Hirschler-Ruth.—Levi Oswald Hirschler of Alto Loma, Calif., and Dorothy Anna Ruth of Upland, Calif., were married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emma E. Ruth, Friday evening, August 26, at 8 o'clock, Rev. Lester Hostetler officiating.

He who thinks he hath no need of Christ, hath too high thoughts of himself. He who thinks Christ cannot help him, hath too low thoughts of Christ.

—J. M. Mason.

The very best man that ever lived must come to Christ to be justified. The very worst man must do no more.—Sel.

PROGRAM

for the Ministers' Conference of the Western District to be held at Lehigh, Kansas, October 23, 1934

MAIN THEME
"The Minister as Pastor"

Forenoon Session, 9:30 A. M.

1. Devotional Service........................Rev. J. M. Suderman
2. A Selection of Special Music..
3. Conference Sermon....................Rev. Gerhard Friesen
4. A Selection of Special Music..
5. Topic: "The Minister's Duty Toward the Heavy-laden" (German)..................................Rev. C. C. Wedel
6. Congregational Song ....
7. Topic: "The Minister's Duty Toward the Fallen and Unsaved".. Rev. Theo. Roth
8. Close of Forenoon Session. — Announcements...........

Afternoon Session, 1:30 P. M.

1. Devotional Service...........................Rev. Albert Janzen
2. Business Session ....
3. A Selection of Special Music..
4. Topic: "The Minister's Duty Toward the Indifferent and Dissatisfied"...................................Rev. P. P. Wedel
5. A Selection of Special Music..
6. The Minister's Duty Toward the Faithful" Rev. G. N. Harms
7. Congregational Song ....
8. Topic: "The Minister's Attitude Toward the Question of Prohibition and Repeal in the Light of the Election on November 6th"...... ....To be assigned
9. Close of Conference ....

SOME THINGS THAT CANNOT BE REPEALED

We repealed prohibition.

But we did not repeal the heartaches and the despair that are in legalized liquor;

We did not repeal the habit-forming drug and enshackling power in alcohol;

We did not repeal the law that passes on to the next generation the terrible physical effects of drinking by potential fathers and mothers;

We did not repeal the fact that liquor unleashes one's moral sense so that immorality and fast living result;

We did not repeal the unsteadiness and lack of judgement that liquor engenders and which produce accidents, injury, and death;

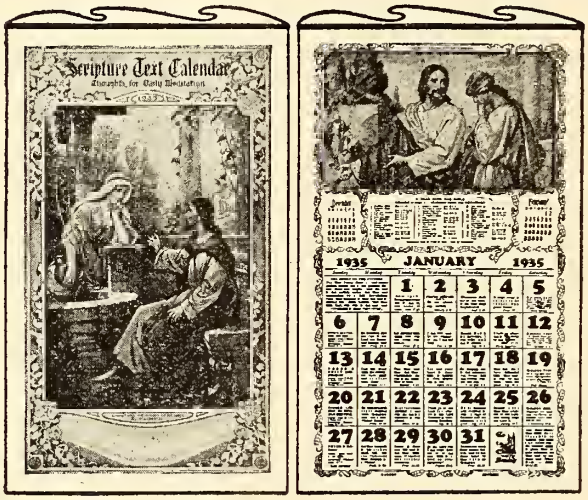
We did not repeal the fact that liquor steals a man's brains, lessens his efficiency, and lowers his income-producing powers;

We did not repeal the fact that legalized liquor once filled our hospitals with delirium tremens cases; our "Keeley Cures" with human beings who had lost their powers of self-control; and our insane asylums with raving maniacs—nor the certainty that it would do so again.

The motto and goal of every true American who loves his God, his neighbor, and his country, should be, 'Total abstinence for the individual, prohibition for the nation"!—Selected.

GET READY FOR CHRISTMAS

Church Organizations and Individuals wishing to sell Christmas Cards and Scripture Text Calendars should get in touch with us at once! We will gladly send illustrated circulars and quote prices upon request



Scripture Text Calendar for 1935

The value and beauty of the Scripture Text Calendar for 1935 have never been quite equaled and certainly never surpassed. The size has been increased permitting us to add color to the border of monthly pages.

The beautiful front cover, with border design of leaves and wild roses in natural colors and the full colored picture of "Christ and the Woman of Samaria"—by Plockhorst, is well worth the price asked for the complete calendar.

Individual agents, Sunday School Classes, Missionary Societies, and other church organizations can render Christian service and make profit by selling Scripture Text Calendars.

Every calendar placed helps spread the Light, promotes the cause of Christ and builds God Consciousness in the home.

PRICES

Single copy, 30; 4, $1.00; 12, $3.00; 25, $5.75; 50, $9.00. All prices slightly higher in Canada.

SCRIPTURE-TEXT CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Christmas is in commemoration of Christ's birthday. We honor Him most by sending only such greetings as are in keeping with and have a bearing upon His mission in life.

The following Christmas Box Assortments contain only Scripture-Text greetings of the newest designs.

Price..........................$1.00 each, postpaid

FELLOWSHIP BOX NO. 34

This is our featured assortment containing the 21 distinctive folders with choice Scripture-texts. In gift box with silver, black, and red top that's varnished! This is our leading Box Assortment.

ASSORTMENT 421

21 Scripture Text Christmas Folders and envelopes, all but two on parchment stock. Several numbers have been beautifully high-lighted with raised silver overprinting. Each carries a Christ-honoring message. $1.50 card value and gift box for only $1.00.

PROGRAM MATERIAL

Complete assortment of Christmas program material now ready. We will list some of the leading program material in the next issue of The Mennonite and the Christian Evangel. If you are in a hurry, send for returnable sample copies at once!

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
BERNE, INDIANA

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 34

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. I HILLSBORO, KANSAS, OCTOBER 16, 1934 No. 20

EDITORIAL

TRADE IN WAR MATERIAL EXPOSED

Naturally, any Mennonite conscious of the history of 400 years of peace testimony behind him is gratified to note that a certain peace consciousness is developing outside of his own immediate circles. Just now, people are wanting to know who gets the profits out of the colossal amount of munitions continually being manufactured and sold on the international markets. If, for example, the Duponts of Delaware see fit to spend great sums of money to legalize strong drink and take the protection of babes, wives, and widows out of our constitution we want to know where they get that money. The answer is, of course, from selling war material to both our own nation and to nations who may in the future use that material in killing off our young manhood.

Even the national Congress is beginning to show an interest in the matter of selling arms and an investigation committee is now at work. The reports of the testimony it has already heard have been head-line material for some days and have made people think along lines they have seldom, if ever, been thinking. Some of the startling facts brought out are:

Munition manufacturers are systematically stirring up suspicions among nations with the object of selling them arms and more arms.

The makers of all kinds of war material comprise an international trust that divides up the business and profits among those who make up that trust.

They have active agents busily engaged at Peace Conventions whose business is to prevent any action that might bring into being a workable international peace.

Officials of our own country are lending submarines, air ships, and men trained in their use as samples for the sellers of American munitions in foreign lands.

Patents and military secrets have been turned over to our arms makers who have sold them to other nations and have pocketed the profits.

American military men work with munition makers with the object of securing business for them abroad.

It has even developed that an American missionary has acted as an agent for an American firm in selling war material to a South American nation that, for a moment, appeared to be on the verge of war. Incidentally, this missionary, in the letter exhibited to prove his part in the transaction, remarked that the people among whom he is working, needed much praying for. We agree that they need praying for when the representative of the Prince of Peace is among them to sell implements of murder.

There is more to tell and we anticipate that more will be told before this congressional committee gets through investigating. We have already impressed upon us by this investigation the fact that the folly and cold-blooded commercialism that sells American made bullets, air ships, guns and gases that may be used in killing Americans, savors of the wisdom of the mad-house.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon the members of the investigation committee. They are going too far. They are hurting business. They are creating a dangerous spirit of distrust among nations. They are insulting friendly nations. They are endangering the political careers of statesmen, etc., etc.

All of which goes to show that there is nothing so much disliked by those who get rich by making hell-inspired implements of death, as publicity. Our hope is that there will be a great deal more such publicity. G.

THE FORTY-SIXTH ANNUAL SESSION of The Middle District Conference was held at the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, August 23-26, 1934

The conference opened Thursday evening, August 23rd. After a few inspiring musical numbers by the Grace church, their pastor, Rev. P. E. Whitmer, spoke words of hearty welcome to the assembled delegates and visitors. Rev. W. S. Shelly, president of the conference, delivered the sermon, using the conference theme, "The Fulness of Christ," as a basis for his remarks.

The conference proper opened the next morning. Delegates' certificates were received from each church in the district except Fortuna, Mo., and the Chicago church. The number of delegates from each church varied from one to twelve. The St. John's church furnished appropriate selections of music.

Rev. P. H. Unruh, a member of the Committee of the General Conference on Mennonite Doctrine, spoke on "The Teachings of Menno Simon." The oft-emphasized teachings, such as non-resistance, taking the oath, peace, etc., were not discussed, but others less often mentioned were given, such as: The Trinity and Deity of God, Incarnation, Atonement, Faith, Baptism, and others. It was an address filled with information and inspiration.

The second address of the morning was given by Dr. A. C. Wieand of the Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago, Ill., a Brethren institution. Dr. Wieand expounded the book of Philippians in this address and the one for the afternoon. All his messages were presented in a simple, forceful manner. He made the book of Philippians better understood for many of his hearers. His first message gripped his listeners. He had a good and appreciative audience for every appearance. In the afternoon session, he stressed the importance of Paul's statement to "rejoice in the Lord alway." To do this, it is necessary to lay the proper foundation for rejoicing. Full consecration to God, working and being content were pointed out as some essentials for a joyful life.

Rev. P. H. Unruh spoke Friday afternoon in place of Dr. Lloyd Pannabecker who had not yet returned from China. His topic was "In the Service of the Master." He said in part that loyal servants of God must read the Word. They must watch, work, and pray so as not to grow stale and in this way serve their Lord day by day. His address was very practical and filled with challenging statements.

The conference granted complimentary votes to P. H. Unruh, A. C. Wieand, U. K. Weber, I. W. Royer, Martha Burkhalter, Floyd and Sylvia Pannabecker, A. J. Neuenschwander, Augusta Schmidt, J. J. Esau, and John Nussbaum.

The report of the Evangelization Committee evoked much discussion, particularly the subjects of the Lima and Chicago missions. The conference agreed to postpone action until the following day when it was decided that the Middle District Conference take over the Lima Mission as a three-year project and that Brother Esau continue as our worker. The request that this conference assume the salary of the Chicago mission worker resulted in a motion that action in this matter be deferred until the next annual session of the conference, with the hope that the present difficulties can be remedied in the meantime.

Rev. P. H. Unruh gave another address on "Immortality." He said that if the resurrection be removed from God's Word, its message is gone. The believer's outlook is one of life. It is a hope, an assurance. It is not my wish to be remembered by a monument of stone or on the pages of history, but by faithful service to my Lord and His cause. By a few well chosen illustrations he spoke concerning the certainty of immortal life.

In his final message Dr. Wieand spoke on "Christian Assurance." To know if you are a Christian or not, apply the following tests: Do you have the fellowship with God? Do you hate sin? Are you keeping the commandments of God? Do you love the brethren? If not, there is no remedy except Jesus Christ. His address was based on I John 5:13.

Reports from our educational institutions, Witmarsum Seminary and Bluffton College, were made by Rev. J. E. Amstutz and Floyd Pannabecker, respectively.

The Resolutions Committee submitted these resolutions which were adopted:

1. That we express our heartfelt appreciation to the Grace Mennonite Church of Pandora for the gracious hospitality which they have shown us during these conference days.

2. That we express our sincere gratitude to all those who have blessed the sessions of this conference with inspiring spiritual messages in word and song.

3. That we request our program committee to cooperate with sister conferences to avoid conflicting dates in conference sessions.

4. That since there seems to be a great dearth in lack of knowledge of the Word of God, we recommend that week-day religious instruction and daily vacation Bible schools be encouraged, and that our churches provide for such instruction and schools.

5. That we deplore the fact that the 18th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States has been repealed and that the sale and manufacture of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes is again sanctioned by law in many of our states. We believe that it is the duty of the church to teach temperance and to point out the evil effects of the use of alcoholic liquors and to do all it can to encourage sobriety and to rid our nation of this great evil.

6. That inasmuch as nationlism and militarism are growing apace, we as peace-minded people endeavor to emphasize in our teaching and conduct the essential principles of our denomination, such as the simple life, non-swearing, and especially non-participation in war.

7. That we as a conference encourage Bluffton College in her endeavor for greater Christian usefulness by our prayers, students, and financial aid.

8. That we voice our worshipful thanksgiving to our gracious heavenly Father for physical and spiritual blessings we have enjoyed and that we express the same by singing the first stanza of hymn No. 383.

9. That we as the Middle District Conference notify the Home Mission Board of the General Conference that we would not be in favor of selling the Chicago mission property to the group representing seventy-five per cent of the present membership that has withdrawn with Brother Rhea, but to maintain the work and place a new man in that mission.

Officers elected for next year are: Rev. A. E. Kreider, President; Rev. Adolph Friesen, Vice President; J. S. Schultz, Secretary; E. A. Lugibill, Trustee; Edison Sprunger, Educational Committee; Rev. P. A. Kliewer, Evangelization Committee; Rev. J. E. Amstutz, Program Committee; E. W. Baumgartner, Bluffton College, Trustee.

An invitation to meet next year at the Zion Mennonite Church in Donnelson, Iowa, was unanimously accepted by the conference.

The conference requested its President and Secretary to appoint a committee of two to investigate rates and plans for going to the General Conference in California next year.

Special music numbers were also furnished by the Ebenezer church and the First Mennonite Church of Bluffton.

The Women's Missionary Society gave a very interesting program on Friday evening with Augusta Schmidt as the principal speaker. The meeting was largely attended.

The Young People's Conference was held Saturday afternoon and evening. Some very fine talks were given at these sessions and many helpful suggestions no doubt took root. The evening session was devoted entirely to the subject of peace.

The Sunday afternoon session was devoted to Sunday School work. Dr. A. C. Wieand gave the address of the afternoon on "How to Study and Teach the Bible."

The final session, Sunday evening, was a musical program given by the choir of the Grace church under the leadership of Hilda Amstutz. The cantata "St. Paul" was rendered in a very creditable manner. The choir was assisted by Prof. G. A. Lehman, bass; Mrs. Roy Hilty, soprano; and Mr. Freeman Burkhalter, tenor. The alto was sung by the directress, Hilda Amstutz. The church was filled to capacity at an early hour and many were unable to get in. This program was a very fitting climax to a very successful and blessed conference.

D. W. Bicksler, Secretary.

"Religion can enter into the smallest things but it invariably makes them larger and finer."

NOTES FROM CANADA

Rev. H. H. Ewert, principal of the Mennonite Collegiate Institute of Gretna, Manitoba, has not been well since the middle of May, although he has been able to be up and around part of the time and to do a little work. — (He has improved a good deal more since the above note was written.)

On June 5th, an informal meeting of ministers of different branches of Mennonites in Manitoba took place in a park at Morris, Manitoba, Forty ministers, representing ten churches, were present. Several speeches were made and the rest of the time was devoted to general conversation.

The annual "Schulfest" of the Mennonite Collegiate Institute of Gretna, Man., took place June 10th, and was very largely attended. Among the distinguished outside visitors were Rev. David Toews of Rosthern, Sask., and Dr. Seelheim, German Consul, of Winnipeg, who both made appropriate speeches. The latter also spoke about present conditions in Germany, where he had been but recently.

A sanatorium in Winnipeg, lately purchased by the Mennonite Hospital Society "Concordia," for $18,000, was dedicated on June 17th, in an appropriate way, as a Mennonite hospital. Mennonite ministers and officers of the hospital as well as distinguished men from the city of Winnipeg, made appropriate speeches. This dedication was attended by a very large number of people.

The General Conference of Mennonites in Canada convened this year at Hague, Sask., from July 1-4. The same was attended, as usual, very largely. On Sunday about 2000 people were present. Thirty congregations from Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta were represented by delegates. Three new congregations joined the conference. At the same time the annual conference of the Mennonite Brethren of Canada convened at Winkler, Manitoba.

Song festivals etc., conducted by Mennonites in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, took place this summer as follows: May 10 in Saskatoon, Sask., June 3 in Altona, Man., July 5-7 in Niverville, Man., July 9-13 in Dalmeny, Sask., July 16-21 in Herbert, Sask., and possibly more at other places.

On August 1, an unusual celebration took place at Steinbach, Manitoba, to commemorate the immigration of Mennonites from Russia to Manitoba, sixty years ago. — In simple Mennonite manner this celebration was held. Of course there were many people together at this occasion.

The undersigned itinerant minister of the General Conference of Mennonites in Canada has traveled several thousand miles during the past conference year; visited sixty places in Manitoba and fifty places in Saskatchewan; preached 230 times; baptized 42 persons at five different places; conducted communion seven times at five different places; took part of mission festivals, Bible courses, and other special meetings, undertakings, etc., and visited many families.

The General Conference of Mennonites in Canada is composed of 18,852 souls, 10,120 members, 3,598 families, 210 ministers, 24 elders, 42 congregations, 180 places of worship, 46 churches, 123 Sunday Schools, 78 Young People's Societies, 72 Sewing Societies. During the year 1933, 417 were baptized. Total contributions for church and missionary and emergency purposes: $21,626. Benj. Ewert.

INDIA MISSIONS AND MONEYS

A certain printed statement purporting to be from me may be interpreted as meaning that we need no more money to carry on. Also that further cutting down of mission funds can only bring blessings. I believe it is fair to give the other side of this question. If we have some of our work on a self-supporting basis,—to what extent is money needed for mission work which is absolutely fundamental and according to New Testament standards?

Yes, the churches here at Basna are on a self-supporting basis. That is news. Like all news, it throws out of true perspective all else. False deductions can be too easily drawn, which do not survey the whole matter. Furthermore, the words "self-supporting basis" need interpretation. The phrase I have been using is not "self-support" but "self-supporting basis." By which is meant that the frame work is set up, the thing in embryonic form is established. But while the system is here in its essential features, it requires development and nurture. After Paul has established his churches, how many years did he lend his guiding hand and pen and experience thereafter? And what money supported him during these years?

Before the question is answered as to what extent money is absolutely necessary to carry on according to New Testament standards, let me clear the ground with two other preliminary matters.

First, let no individual, or pastor, or church at home interpret anything herein as in the light of a demand from the home folks. Or as showing in the least any ingratitude for all that you have been so royally doing in the past. Our hearts are filled with nothing but deep, sincere gratitude for all you have done and are now doing. We know that some of you are suffering and are filled with privations. We have heard that honest obligations cannot be met. We believe that you are doing nobly and according to your ability. I also readily admit that other phases of church work, provided for by any of the regular established Boards, is worthy of all support of our hearts and purses.

Secondly, I want to assure you also that we are doing everything possible to carry on with reduced incomes, and to carry on valiantly and victoriously. Old clothes are patched and repatched. Our children go without shoes and stockings. Gardens are made to produce to the limit. "Ball Brand" glass jars for preserving vegetables and fruits are among our most cherished possessions. Those who have motors very, very seldom use them for pleasure, so that we can truthfully say that in our mission, motor cars are practically never used for pleasure. Those who do not have motor cars go by foot or ox cart, or by bicycle.

No new motor has come into our mission since 1929, while some dating back to 1922 or 1924 are still used. Old envelopes are used a second time for sending mail. Wrappers of home papers from the United States are carefully removed and further used.

But if we are to carry on mission work according to New Testament standards, what is actually needed in the way of money?

First of all, money for the missionary is absolutely needed, — to send him 12,000 miles half way around the globe, to keep him there till his energies are all used up,—then to bring him back again. St. Paul had money, it seems plenty of it, to sustain himself. He used it carefully. It may not have been readily available on a couple of occasions—but he had it.

Look on page three of the February 6, 1934, issue of The Mennonite for the Foreign Mission Budget Estimates for 1934, as presented by General Conference Secretary, Bro. C. E. Krehbiel. You will find that between 65 and 70 percent of the total needs are for the missionary.

Are our salary allowances exorbitant? In the year 1927 my younger brother went to China as a missionary. He enlisted under one of the regular Boards of the United States. How much does he get? For every dollar that he receives, Mrs. Moyer and I both together receive only about 37 cents, that is, we did in "the good old days" when full allowances came through and exchange was normal. A few years ago a C. E. Secretary for all Burma, India, and Ceylon visited here. He said, "In my experience all over India, there is no missionary body in any of the regular missions of India who receive such low allowances as you, and yet carry on." Many of our neighbors get 50% more than we. Some of them get furlough every five years. We wait until our eighth or ninth year.

Can we dispense with the missionary? Well, if it is for the glory of our precious Savior that this post in His service be wiped out, you can take it from me that I will never insist that it be maintained just to give me a job. Christ first! — though I have to raise chickens or grub potatoes.

Suppose Moses had led Israel out of idolatrous Egypt and then had deserted them beyond the Red Sea, instead of continuing forty years more? Suppose St. Paul had made his journeys, then would have deserted his converts, and had not revisited believing groups, nor had written his letters, nor had sent his coworkers to see how they fared for the next twenty years? Moses continued though he had Aaron as priest. St. Paul continued though he ordained elders. But neither of them usurped the place of those chosen.

No, we cannot carry on mission work and dispense with the missionary. Let us remember that 65 to 70 percent of all General Conference Foreign Mission Board money goes for the missionary, and that only 30 to 35 percent goes elsewhere. Probably no Mission Board supports so many missionaries in India on so little money as our own.

Then of the needs beyond the missionary, the next biggest item is listed as "current expenses, helpers' salaries," etc. These items in India largely go to (1) evangelistic work out beyond the reach of the churches; (2) medical work; (3) teachers in schools for Christian children up to the fourth grade, and children and teachers beyond that up to the eighth grade, only.

Is evangelistic work out beyond the reach of the churches according to New Testament standards? Is medical work? We believe so. Are schools for Christian children according to New Testament standards? Certainly, if they train workers. Paul trained his, and Jesus trained His. Practically all our work above the fourth grade is now on this basis. Of the school work of the fourth grade or under, much of this is self-supporting except the teachers. No money goes to students for schools outside our own mission. All the tremendous work that is done in evangelism, in medicine, and in schools for Christian children is done on this 30 to 35 percent.

I come back to the place from where I started. If we have some of our work on a self-supporting basis, to what extent is money needed for mission work which is absolutely essential and according to New Testament standards? My answer is given above and in accord with the message sent by the India Missionary Body to the General Conference in 1933, the gist of which was this: we have nicely weathered the storms and cuts thus far, BUT TO CUT ANY FARTHER AT THE PRESENT STAGE IS TO SERIOUSLY CRIPPLE OUR PRESENT WORK AND UNDO THE WORK OF YEARS. No, further cutting down of mission funds in India will not bring more blessings, but sorrow and grief to us, and we believe to the great loving heart of the Great Shepherd of lost souls.

Yours for Him,
Samuel T. Moyer.

ANOTHER GREAT FLOOD IN OUR CHINA MISSION FIELD

It was with horror that I noticed in a Philadelphia daily of September 5, 1934, that our mission field had been visited by another terrible water scourge, and the city of Changyuan, where Brother and Sister August Ewert and Miss Frieda Sprunger are located, as the apparent center of the great flood. I quote from the paper:

110,000 Chinese Forced to Live in Trees

Tientsin, China, Sept. 5—(AP)—Their homes destroyed by flood waters of the rampaging Yellow River, 110,000 persons are living in tree tops near Changyuan, in the southern extremity of Hopeh Province. A survey by North China relief agencies showed that 300 villages of Hopeh and Honan Provinces had been inundated. Relief is being rushed to the region from Tientsin.

Whatever may have happened again in our own mission field, however serious and dangerous the catastrophe may be to our workers and work, this fresh reminder of dangers in China from flood and famine, and pestilence, should drive us all to our knees. Oh, what horrors such a disaster has again brought to our already sorely visited district in China, and how we should pray for the field, the work, and the fellow workers there! Jer. 33:3 says, "Call upon Me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not." Are we of those Christians who by "prayer and supplication" present our wants before God? Is this not again an opportunity to ask ourselves the question, "Do I pray enough, and in the Spirit, for the great work of mission, and the missionaries at the front"?

Your fellow worker in Christ,
P. J. Boehr.
Richlandtown, Pa., September 11, 1934.

FROM THE BROWNS IN KAI CHOW

Kai Chow, Hopei, China,
August 19, 1934.

Dear Fellow Christians:—

Greetings in the Master's name! We know that you love the Lord and His work and that you are praying for the same, and no doubt are also giving for His cause. But we are often not doing our duty in informing you all about the work. You have read about Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannabecker's going on furlough. They have done faithful work for a whole term, and now they needed change and rest. But how about the rest of the few missionaries left on the field? Are you going to leave the whole burden of the work on the shoulders of a few? We had a fair load of responsibility, but when Rev. and Mrs. Boehr went home, their work was given to us as an extra addition. Now when the Pannabeckers were going, the supervision of the hospital was added to our lot. Dr. Pannabecker worked hard to find a Chinese doctor and he did engage one, but now this man wants to leave us in a few weeks. Chinese doctors are very hard to find and they cannot nearly take

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication.......Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office ....Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance.......$1.50
Foreign $2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to the place of a foreign one. Some of us are getting old early. Where are the furloughed missionaries that ought to be here now? Where are the new recruits? Dear friends, pray with us for solution of the problem.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

Very faithfully yours,
H. J. and Maria Brown.

THAT OVERCOMES THE WORLD

Carl J. Landes

Text: I John 5:4

Among the frequent burning sentences of Jesus to those closest to Him was this one: "Oh ye of little faith." Jesus realized that to become an instrument in God's hand for spreading the "Good News" demanded an undying faith. To many persons religion is a BURDEN to be borne; to others, thank God, religious faith is a POWER which carries them over life's highway.

So this morning we direct our prayer and meditation upon this theme and text: "That overcomes the world."

"Our faith is the victory that has triumphed over the world."

God's Promises — the Basis of Faith

When one meditates upon, studies "the world," with all its cruelty, injustice, suffering —one can easily "lose one's faith." That was true in Jesus' day; it is true today. But where there is close fellowship with God there are promises which CARRY one, DRIVE one on in faith, often "not knowing whither."

"For as the rain cometh down — and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth and maketh it to bring forth and bud—so shall my word be—it shall not return unto me void,—but shall prosper unto the thing whereto I sent it" (Isaiah 55:10, 11).

What a beautiful parable from Nature! When rain comes down from heaven and meets the barren, cold earth— life begins to bud. Just so is God's Word." When it is sent out, it will not return, but will accomplish. God's Word, like rain, "maketh the earth to bring forth and bud."

What a promise that is! Not a load to carry; but an inspiration to carry us.

"Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32).

We sing so glibly "FAITH OF OUR FATHERS"—"Chained in prisons dark"—but "in heart and conscience free"—"If we like them could die for Thee."

Do you think you could be free in prison? That is one of God's promises; our "Fathers experienced it." "The truth shall make you free." That "freedom" is available out of prison and in prison. The scribes and pharisees were bound; Jesus whom they crucified, was free. That is an important discovery in the promises of God; the church might well ponder its message.

"Every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up" (Matt. 15:13).

That promise ought to make every minister, officer, lay-member tremble with responsibility. I take it that this promise means:

"If Fundamentalism is of God, it will stand; but if it isn't—."

"If Modernism is of God, it will stand; but if it isn't—."

"If Mennonitism is of God, it will stand; but if it isn't—."

"If present-day theology is of God, it will stand;; but—."

"If the present-day church is of God, it will stand; but—."

That is a promise that makes me shudder a bit; but which also gives me faith. The "isms" that come from man will be "rooted up."

So perhaps we can sum up the promise of God in these words: "Everything which God has planted in the human heart, will prosper; what man has planted of himself will perish."

History testifies to the truth of those promises. This age of strife, turmoil, change, suffering, intolerance, needs to understand what God has promised. For upon those promises ONLY can be built the "Faith that has triumphed over the world." "Oh ye of little faith."

Man's Response To Those Promises

"By faith, Abraham went out, not knowing whither—." That is man's response to God's promises. Abraham's faith; and your faith and my faith—is the fruit of fellowship with God, and the assurance of His Word.

At this point we should distinguish between "Creeds" and "Faith." We say "Articles of Faith"; when we really mean "Articles of Beliefs." My "Creeds" (and the creeds of any generation) are the things I believe to be true; my "Faith" is the assurance of the victory of God's purpose;; and defeat of man's isms, regardless of my beliefs.

"I believe in God the Father — Jesus Christ — Holy Spirit — Virgin Mary — Pilate —." So run our "creeds." In part, the creeds of every generation are mistaken, and change as the Kingdom grows. But the "Faith of our Fathers" — the "Assurance, the confidence, the evidence of the victory of God's truth"—that "faith" is eternal.

In this connection turn again to Gamaliel of old. (Read Acts 5:33-39). Here is Institutional Religion (synagogue). A "new seed" is sown —"THE WAY" of Christ. "Destroy the weed," cried the church. But Gamaliel had faith.

His beliefs differed from "The Way"; he did not like it a bit more than did his colleagues, but his faith "assured him of the victory of God' Word" — whether that be "Gamaliel's way," or "The Way."

Oh, if the church of today had "Faith" in addition to her "Creeds"! I am not belittling creeds; we need them. I have them; I hope you have. But we need more; we need "The faith that has triumphd over the world."

Or, again look at Paul (Philippians 1:12-20). Paul was imprisoned by people who had "beliefs" (with which Paul differed); but they were people who lacked faith in God's Word. From prison Paul revealed the fruits of his faith, "What has happened to me has actually resulted in furthering the preaching of the good news." That is always what happens — "Truth crushed to earth shall rise again," more powerful than ever before. My, what a promise on which to build one's faith!

Listen again to Paul (II Cor. 4:6-9), "I am hard pressed on every side, but never cut off; perplexed, but not driven to despair; routed, but not abandoned; struck down, but not destroyed."

His beliefs and his courage often wavered. Paul often descended into the hell of doubts, struggles, sufferings. But his "Faith" KEPT him; CARRIED him; DROVE him on. That faith is the only conquering weapon of any generation. It is the only weapon which "triumphs over the world."

Oh, that the "Faith of our Fathers" might burn anew in the hearts of those who follow Christ in Menno Simon's train! I am not crying for all the "beliefs" of our Fathers; some of them were mistaken — like some of ours will prove to be when history assimulates this generation.

But my prayer, my yearning desire is that this church, this conference, the Church Universal may rise to that FAITH WHICH HAS TRIUMPHED OVER THE WORLD." May God forgive our faithlessness, and grant us faith.

SOME STARTLING RESULTS OF REPEAL

By Rev. Franklin C. Read

Research Secretary of the McLean County
Dry Alliance
(From the Bloomington Pantagraph)

The American voters have been hoodwinked into repealing their national prohibition amendment, but they are rapidly waking up to the fact that they have not repealed, and cannot repeal, the liquor problem. The evidences of this fact are legion, all proving that the old liquor traffic is with us again, with all its old evils, and with a large number of new ones. Let us look at some of them.

First, THE BOOTLEGGER. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau declared recently that "The bootleg ring still has the country by the throat." Attorney General Cummings enlarges on this statement, saying, "Bootlegging is today as active as ever, and the illicit manufacture of hard liquors EXCEEDS IN VOLUME THE MANUFACTURE OF LEGAL LIQUOR." And Joseph H. Choate, Jr., Federal Alcohol Control Administrator, confirms these statements, and adds, "Conditions surrounding distribution in many parts of the country are more damaging to morals and to the social structure of the nation than was the old saloon."

Raymond Moley, former adviser to President Roosevelt, now editor of "Today," goes farther, and says, editorially, "Not in his busiest days under prohibition did he (the bootlegger) carry on so great or so wide a trade as he rejoices in just now. The output of his stills is actually larger than that of the licensed distilleries of the country—perhaps twice as large. It is, at the very least, as large as the gross consumption before prohibition."

In proof of this statement he gives figures showing that from December 5, 1933, to April 21, 1934, government agents seized 2,696 stills, ranging in capacity up to 15,000 gallons, and averaging 275 gallons—100 gallons more than the average under prohibition. They also seized 308,273 gallons of spirits. This makes an average of 23 stills and 2,233 gallons of spirits for every day since repeal!

The total capacity of these stills was nearly 68,000 gallons; and Mr. Choate estimates that, should the same rate continue for the year, the total number of stills seized in 1934 will be nearly 8,000, with a total capacity of nearly 272,000,000 gallons — OVER A MILLION GALLONS MORE THAN ALL THE LEGAL DISTILLERIES IN THE COUNTRY!

But only a small fraction of the illegal liquor is seized. By far the largest part of it is sold —and drunk. Sold, not as formerly at retail, but at wholesale. For the bootlegger now deals, not with the ultimate consumer, but with hotels, restaurants, and stores. And to these he unloads his stuff by the barrel, or by the dozen —or hundred-case lot. Thus repeal plays directly into the hand of the bootlegger and, instead of eliminating him, as promised, makes him a more important factor in the booze business than ever. So important a factor, indeed, that we are told that every other cocktail or highball drunk, even in the most exclusive hotels, is bootlegg stuff.

And the reduction in enforcement costs, so confidently promised, has also proven itself a myth. For, as Mr. Moley says, "At no time under prohibition were so many federal agents at work' enforcing prohibition as are now engaged in enforcing "regulation." In addition to $10,000,000 for ordinary enforcement expenses, an additional $11,500,000 has been allotted to build a new fleet of cutters to combat "rum runners" and smugglers, whom repeal, it was promised, would abolish absolutely. And in addition to all this increased expenditure by the federal government, practically every state and local government is expending far more for the enforcement of license regulations than any of them ever expended for the enforcement of prohibition.

But these features of the present liquor situation, bad as they are, pale into insignificance beside the real tragedy of repeal. I refer to the terrific increase in drunkenness and in motor vehicle deaths which has followed in the wake of repeal. If, as Governor Landon of Kansas says, "The aim of all legislation dealing with the liquor traffic should be national sobriety, not national revenue," then repeal has proven itself the most ghastly failure in all our history of bungling in liquor legislation.

The National W. C. T. U. has compiled figures on those subjects from police records of forty typical cities, ranging in size from Chicago to towns of less than 4,000 population. And here is what those figures show:

Of these cities 28 report since repeal 43,528 arrests for drunkenness, as against but 28,773 for the same period last year—before beer came back. This is an increase of more than 51 percent. Nine reported more than 100 percent increase, and 16 more than 50 percent increase. These cities have about one-eighteenth of our country's population, and the figures are for about one-fourth of the year. So you can figure out for yourself what the total increase for the whole country will be for the entire year.

"The Voice," published by the Methodist Board of Temperance, declares that "statistical returns from 45 representative American cities justify the expectation that arrests for drunkenness in 350 leading cities will this year EXCEED BY A QUARTER OF A MILLION the number of such arrests DURING THE WORST YEAR OF PROHIBITION. And we were confidently assured by our wet friends that repeal would be the absolutely necessary first step for the promotion of TRUE TEMPERANCE!

But the liquor flood turned loose by repeal is not only debauching our people, making thousands of them drunkards, it is also MURDERING THEM BY THE THOUSANDS. Every city reporting on motor accident deaths shows a most decided increase. Cleveland, with the lowest record, has had since repeal an increase of 22 percent; while our National Capital, Washington, with 100 percent increase, makes the worst showing. The average increase is 42 percent.

This means that, should the same percentage hold good for the entire country and for the whole year—and there is no reason to expect a decrease—the number of deaths from automobile accidents in the United States in 1934 will reach the alarming total of MORE THAN FORTY-TWO THOUSAND. This will be by far the highest total in our history. It will surpass the 1933 record by more than 12,000. It will exceed our hitherto high record of 33,346 in 1931 by more than 9,000. Our 1933 record was 29,900.

The auto slaughter had been growing by leaps and bounds up to 1931. Then, alarmed, we put on intensive safety drives, and reduced it in one year to 29,196 in 1932. This meant the saving of more than 4,000 lives from this form of death. With the same safety drives on in 1933, we should have had a still further decrease. But, with eight months of beer, we not only halted the decrease, but piled up in its stead an increase of more than 700. With what horror will safety workers view the tremendous increase of more than 12,000 this year! One speaker at a safety council meeting prophesied that repeal would make our highways safer. How tragically his prophecy has failed, as has every prophecy of repeal benefits.

What shall we do to relieve this distressing situation? Mr. Choate says, "Reduce the liquor taxes, so that the legal dealer can compete with the bootlegger." And the liquor control conference that met recently in Chicago, echoed his demand. But the utmost that this device could do would be to cheapen the price of legal liquor, and so increase its consumption. It would not reduce the total amount of liquor consumed. If, as Mr. Choate said at Chicago, "The drinking man wants what he wants when he wants it and where he wants it," he will invariably patronize the bootlegger when it is either cheaper or more convenient to do so than to buy from the licensed dealer.

Henry Schwartzhild, editor of a New York liquor sheet, told the Chicago conference that, if the present trend in liquor regulations continues, the "only thing the distillers and brewers can do is to turn the business over to the government," which will thus "find itself in the liquor business within five years." This threat evidently means that he wants the government to "let up" on its regulations, so that the licensed manufacturers can add more millions to their already exorbitant gains. We prophesy that WHEN UNCLE SAM GOES INTO THE LIQUOR BUSINESS, especially as a monopolist, PROHIBITION IS CLOSE AT HAND! For the American people will not stand for any such deal.

On the whole, the wets are far more confused over the present liquor situation than are the drys. The drys stand unshaken by Senator Sheppard's slogan, "IT (PROHIBITION) WILL INEVITABLY RETURN"! When the wets have tried out again all the old, outworn makeshifts which they have used for years to delay and defeat prohibition, and the nation has witnessed their utter failure, we shall confidently expect to see the honest wets ready to admit their mistakes, and help bring about the reenactment of national prohibition, and also to see that it is more honestly enforced than it ever has been. In the meantime we drys shall continue our most intensive temperance education, assured that the "Temperance Twins," prohibition and education, will finally solve the liquor problem.

P. S.—The Travelers Insurance Co., fighter for highway safety, has just given out figures showing for the whole country a 20 percent increase in auto deaths during the first half of 1934, a 42 percent increase on drunken drivers, and a 60 percent increase in drunken pedestrians hit by cars. And beer in 1933 gave us more than 700 increased deaths over 1932.

Copies of this may be obtained at 25c for 100 copies.

DANIEL 1:8

Mrs. Fanny A. Weaver, Danvers, Ill.

"But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank, therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself."

The Hebrew children came to a decision. They determined from principle, which must have grown out of a choice of God and consecration to His service. They had an early religious training, as was common among the best Jews. But these boys must have had especially good home religious influences. There is no better armor against temptation than the Christian armor, put on in childhood at home. Their sudden departure from home, to be thrown upon their own resources probably helped them to take a decided stand for their religion and their God. They used wise means. He requested the prince of the eunuchs, unto whose charge they had been committed. Thus they took the wisest course possible. There was no bravado, but simply quiet, firm, and wise courage.

Examples in real life have great power over us. If Daniel could resist, so can we. If Daniel ought to have stood up bravely, so ought we.

No one can enter upon the great world of life and usefulness without first being tempted and tried. Thus at the beginning of the Christian life comes the great temptation,—the battle as to who shall rule the soul: its success is conversion, the entrance upon the new and true life. Satan tempts in the desire to make us fall. God transforms the temptations into trials, proving what we have become fitted to do.

All who would become strong and useful must gain their power largely through victory over temptation. It is thus that the soul "builds itself larger mansions." It is a chief factor in education, transmuting the baser metal of each individual into the nobler. Never do that which may lessen spiritual power.

It becomes us to be humble under humbling providences. These young men that were in captivity would not defile themselves, no, not with their portion of the king's meat. How much better is it with those that retain their integrity in the depths of affliction than with those that retain their iniquity in the heights of prosperity! The great thing that Daniel avoided was defiling himself with the pollutions of sin; that is the thing we should be more afraid of than any outward resolution, requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself. We cannot better improve our interest in any with whom we have found favor than by making use of them to keep us from sin.

He that lives according to nature will never be poor; but he that lives according to opinion will never be rich.

This wonderful obstemiousness of these young men in the days of their youth contributed to the fitting of them (1) for their eminent services. Hereby they kept their minds clear and unclouded, and fit for contemplation, and saved for the best employments a great deal both of time and thought; and thus they prevented those diseases which indispose men for the business of age that owe their rise to intemperances of youth; (2) for their eminent sufferings. Those that had thus insured themselves to hardship, and lived a life of self-denial and mortification, could the more easily venture upon the fiery furnace and the den of lions, rather than sin against God.

David made a number of resolutions: "I will praise thee with uprightness of heart. I will keep thy statutes and delight myself in them. I will meditate in thy precepts, and have respect unto thy way. I will not forget thy word. I will run the way of thy commandments when thou shalt enlarge my heart. I will speak of thy testimonies before kings, and will not be ashamed. At midnight I will rise and give thanks unto thee because of thy righteous judgments. Surely I will not come into the tabernacle of my house, nor go up into my bed; I will not give sleep to mine eyes, no slumber to mine eyelids, until I find out a place for the Lord, an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob."

WORKING AT THE WRONG END

We have been watching with interest the efforts now being put forth by various religious organizations to reform the moving picture show business. We certainly do not wish to throw any hindrances in the way. The need for reform is generally recognized, even by those whose work it is to promote the moving picture business. Whatever they may be able to accomplish in the way of reform will be cherished by every lover of decency.

But we have noticed in other reform movements that they seldom succeed in reforming anything permanently. For instance, the fight against the liquor traffic, the efforts to secure laws that will bring about a decent respect for the Lord's day, the effort to abolish war, etc., etc. Why not work at the other end a while? Instead of church people pledging themselves not to patronize movies that are not up to the standard, let them do the sensible thing to stay away from movies altogether. Instead of trying to enact laws compelling people to respect the Lord's day, let all Christian people abstain completely from Lord's day desecration. Instead of trying to compel all nations to become pacifists, let all Christian people remember that "the weapons of our warfare are not carnal," and therefore have no part in any carnal warfare whatsoever. While others are trying to reform the world, let Christian people, by precept and by example, put forth greater efforts to bring the world to Christ.—S. S. Times.

SOME "DON'T EXPECT'S" FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS

Don't expect to serve the Lord as a Sunday school teacher unless He has called you into that work.

Don't expect to be an efficient teacher, if you have made no effort to acquire efficiency.

Don't expect to accomplish anything, if you consider the work of little importance.

Don't expect to teach the "smallest children," if you think they require the smallest talents and the least preparation.

Don't expect to teach the lesson unless you know it.

Don't expect a "Sunday morning glance" to brush off the whole week's dust from the lesson —or your mind either.

Don't expect to teach the Word without being much in communion with the Author.

Don't expect a two-minute Sunday morning prayer to catch up a week of neglect.

Don't expect your class to be on time if you are not punctual.

Don't expect your class to respond to the lesson if you have not.

Don't expect your pupils to "grow in grace" if they have not been born again.

Don't expect your pupils to be saved unless you make the way of salvation plain.

Don't expect them to be saved if you very seldom and very weakly invite them to come to the Lord, so that they get the impression that you consider it of little importance.

Don't expect to win them if you do not love them and show that you do.

Don't expect them to believe very strongly in a Sunday show of interest that is not seen between Sundays.

Don't expect harmony in the class if you are not in harmony with the rest of the teachers and superintendent, and above all, the Lord.—
(Paul W. Nelson in the Evangelical Beacon.)
—Christian Monitor.)

CORRESPONDENCE

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. Fred Donelson, Jr., has entered Chillicothe College at Chillicothe, Mo., where he is studying telegraphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dietz and the Andrew Mosiman family of Meadows attended church services Sunday morning, September 9, and were dinner guests at the Joseph Augsburger home.

Miss Veda Eash, student nurse of the Mennonite Hospital in Bloomington, visited relatives in Hopedale, Sunday, September 30.

Mrs. Bertha Guth, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stuckey and family of Deer Creek, and Miss Viola Guth of Washington were entertained at the home of Mrs. Barbara Naffziger, Sunday, September 30.

A group of our members attended church at the Peoria Mission, Sunday evening, October 7, when Rev. Hostetler started a series of services to continue through the week.

Howard Litwiller has enrolled for his senior work in the Illinois State Normal University at Normal, Ill.

Miss Emma Litwiller and Mr. Alfred Menner of Ann Arbor, Michigan, were married, April 21, 1934. Mrs. Menner is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Litwiller, of Hopedale, Ill. She is a graduate nurse of the Mennonite Hospital at Bloomington and also did post graduate work at Dr. DeLees at Chicago. At the time of her marriage she was doing work at the Health Service at the University Hospital at Ann Arbor. Mr. Menner is a civil engineer. Mr. and Mrs. Menner are at home at 417 W. Jefferson St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

Lima Mission, Lima, Ohio, September 10, 1934. Sunday, September 9, 1934, we observed our first anniversary in the Sunday Bible School. A year ago there were thirteen present, including one child. Last Sunday, our anniversary, there were thirty-six present, twenty-four being children. Our highest attendance was fifty. Our average for the summer months was thirty-five.

On Sunday morning we have our Bible school, followed by morning worship and in the evening Christian Endeavor, followed by an evangelistic message. On Wednesday afternoon we have children's meeting. The time is spent teaching songs, Bible verses and Bible stories. Rev. and Mrs. Esau are assisted by Mrs. Barbara Bucher from the Ebenezer Mennonite church at Bluffton. On Wednesday evening we have prayer meeting and Bible study.

A Women's Missionary Society was organized last December. All our meetings have been well attended. The society's work is among the needy of the community. Clothing has been bought for those in need.

The last two weeks in June we had Vacation Bible School. The total enrollment was 65. The average daily attendance was 40. The children gave a program at the close of the school. The Monday following, Rev. Kliewer from Ebenezer church came with a school bus and took the children in the country for a picnic. The teachers in the Bible school were Miss Ruth Bixel from Pandora, Miss Fern Bixel from Bluffton, Miss Pauline Sprunger from Lima, and Mrs. Reuel Bixel from Lima. The opening and closing exercises were in charge of Rev. Esau. During the class sessions Rev. and Mrs. Esau visited among the families who were represented in the school.

The children gave a program at Christmas time, on Easter Sunday, and at the close of the Vacation Bible School.

We ask an interest in all your prayers that the work may continue to progress as it has in the past year.

We take this opportunity to thank all who have contributed in any way, either in services or financially, to the work. Mrs. R. E. Bixel. 808 N. McDonel St., Lima, Ohio.

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Ind. The Berean class spent Wednesday evening, June 20, with their teacher, Miss Clara Bohn. Miss Bohn left on a several months' trip to Europe, and was given a handkerchief shower. Ice cream and cake were served.

Mrs. John Deavel was hostess to the Berean class Thursday, June 21st.

Dan Moser who submitted to an operation recently at the Elkhart General Hospital, is able to be about and attend services.

No services were held Sunday, July 1st, as repairs and refinishing was being done on the interior of the church.

Union open air meetings on Sunday evenings during July and August began July 1st. The services are held back of the grade school building. This church is cooperating with the Baptist and Methodist churches in these services.

Services were again held in the church after three weeks during which time the interior of the church was repaired and refinished. Election of officers for both Sunday School and church were held. The Sunday school officers elected for the coming year were as follows: Superintendent, Arthur Slagel; chorister, Dan Oesch; pianist, Mrs. Cletus Hooley;; secretary-treasurer, Mary Catherine Peterson; primary superintendent, Mrs. Don Bowen;; temperance superintendent, Mrs. Arthur Slagel;; missionary superintendent, Clara Bohn; cradle roll superintendent, Mrs. Garth Stoltz. Church officers elected were as follows: Deacon, R. A. Hartzler; deaconess, Mrs. Salina Hartzler; trustee, Vern Kauffman; chorister, Mrs. Cletus Hooley; pianist, Mrs. Clyde Yoder; ushers, Fred Kohl, Fred Stoltz; junior ushers, Stanton Hendricks, Robert Yoder; Mennonite and Evangel correspondent and solicitor, Opal King.

Sunday evening, July 15, at the union meeting, which was held in this church, the religious drama, "The Rock" was given by a group from the LaGrange M. E. church.

The Sunday School is planning a picnic, to be held at Shipshewana Lake, Thursday, July 26.

Meadows Church Notes, Meadows, Illinois. Robert Strubhar, a student of the Fort Wayne Bible School, delivered the message several weeks ago.

A group from the Calvary Church brought basket dinners to the Old People's Home on September 23rd. In the afternoon they presented a program.

Rev. Valentine Strubhar filled the pulpit on September 23rd.

Communion services were held September 30.

A church social was held on the Old People's Home lawn on September 11th. A large number were present.

Rev. G. I. Gundy and S. M. Stuckey motored to Missouri, where they spent several days.

Rev. E. S. Augspurger filled the pulpit in Rev. Gundy's absence, October 7th. Rev. Gundy attended a Home-Coming at the Congerville church and delivered an address there.

Charles Gittinger submitted to an appendix operation at the Mennonite Hospital, October 1st.

Victor Roszhart has been ill for the past several weeks and is now slightly improved.

Rev. G. I. Gundy went to Nebraska for several days to take a load of canned goods for friends and relatives there.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. ROY YODER
1300 Bond Ave.
Peoria, Ill.

PRAYER

"O God, give me clean hands, clean words, and clean thoughts; help me to stand for the hard right against the easy wrong; save me from habits that harm; teach me to work as hard and play as fair in Thy sight alone as if all the world saw; forgive me when I am unkind, help me to forgive those who are unkind to me; keep me ready to help others at some cost to myself, send me chances to do a little good every day and to grow more like Christ. Amen.

—William DeWitt Hyde.

ALONE WITH JESUS

Alone with Jesus! What a sweet and holy spot! What a blessed refuge to which the soul may betake itself from the charge of Satan, the accusations of the world, and the sorrows of life! Sweet spot for the heart to unfold itself, to tell its hidden tale in the ear of Infinite love, tenderness and compassion. Alone with Jesus!

How different a front would Christianity present to the world if the Lord's people were oftener there! What humanity and gentleness and love would characterize all their dealings! What holiness stamped on every brow, that all might read! What few judgements passed on others — how many more on ourselves! What calmness and resignation and joyous submission to all the Lord's dealings!

Be much "alone with Jesus." Then will the passage to glory be one of sunshine, whether it be through the portals of the grave or through the clouds of heaven.—Selected.

NEVER TOO LATE FOR GOD

God deals with impossibilities. It is never too late for Him to do so, when the impossible is brought to Him, in full faith, by the one in whose life and circumstances the impossible must be accomplished if God is to be glorified. If in our own life there have been rebellion, unbelief, sin, disaster, it is never too late for God to deal triumphantly with these tragic facts in full surrender and trust. It has often been said, and with truth, that Christianity is the only religion that can deal with a man's past. God can "restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten" (Joel 2:25); and He will do this when we put the whole situation and ourselves unreservedly and believingly into His hands. Let us never forget that we have a "God, who (giveth life to) the dead, and calleth those things which are not as though they were" (Rom. 4:17). Not because of what we are, but because of what He is, God forgives and heals and restores. He is "the God of all grace." And grace means that when we turn to Him He acts, never according to what we deserve, but always according to His own infinite love and mercy and compassion. Let us praise and trust Him.—S. S. Times.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

October 28, 1934

Missionary Heroes of Today.—Acts 1:8

The growth of a church is measured by her enthusiasm in missions, the power of a church is measured largely by her budget of missionary giving. This service gives us a splendid opportunity for studying the work of our own church in her missionary endeavors, as well as the lives of some outstanding missionaries of the church at large.

Jesus spoke to the disciples promising them power to witness at home and abroad, and what command passes on from one generation of believers to another, as also does the promise of power. How greatly God has blessed missionaries with power whenever they have dared to trust Him implicitly! Today, as always, there can be found in our missionaries outstanding examples of unselfishness and spiritual greatness. They are ever an example to the churches back home to take their Christianity more seriously. There is too much smug satisfaction in many fellowship groups, satisfied to worship in beautiful cathedrals with thickly cushioned pews, but with too little regard for helping in the work of witnessing in Judea, Samaria, and the uttermost parts of the earth.

In planning for this service topics should be assigned at least one or two weeks in advance. It is not sufficient in the time allowed for preparation to hand out the topics in the morning when the service is to be held that evening. It would be advisable to make a roll of mission workers now active in the work or perchance at home on furlough. We need to know our missionaries more intimately, and by so doing we will become better acquainted with our mission projects in India, Africa, China, among the American Indians, among our Canadian brethren, and in our city missions. We will also study some of the pertinent problems concerning the more active work of missions as it pertains to our churches today.

Questions

1. What is the primary motive and purpose of missionary endeavor?
2. Give the challenge of Acts 1:8 for modern Christians.
3. How do you account for the fact that there are always waiting lists of life recruits, but always a dearth of money?
4. Tell about your favorite missionary in our work today.
   (Note: Give this question to three or four members.)
5. Who is your favorite among all modern missionaries. Why?
6. What are some qualifications for missionaries ?
7. How can our church and our young people's society help more in our mission work?

November 4, 1934

What Is Right And What Is Wrong With America?

Jeremiah 6:8

My, what a challenging topic we have for discussion this week! We hear one man tell us that America is all right, that we are living in an almost Eutopia; the very next man will tell us that everything is wrong, morally, spiritually, economically, politically, educationally, and in every way. Where is the truth? That will be our task. Possibly the answer will be somewhere between those two extremes. We often discuss as to what America thinks of God, but in this meeting let us discuss honestly what God thinks of America. That is what really matters.

In our Scripture portion the weeping prophet Jeremiah is speaking the words of God to His people, prophesying what will come to pass to Judah if she will not return to God. He says: "Be thou instructed, O Jerusalem, lest my soul depart from thee; lest I make thee desolate, a land not inhabited."

No nation goes to wreck and ruin within just a few years, in history it has usually required centuries for that to come to pass, but in America we are vitally concerned as to whether we are in the process of becoming more Christian or more pagan. It matters not so much perhaps as to what America is today, but much more "Whither is she going"?

Questions

1. What constitutes our standard of right and wrong?
2. Give some thoughts pertinent to our day as found in our Scripture text. (Jer. 6:8.)
3. In what realms of life are we least successful in our American life?
4. In what realms of life in America are we most successful?
5. What can the church do to help right the wrong in America?
6. What is the good and what is the evil in our national political life?
7. What can the Young People's Society do to help make America more Christian?

November 11, 1934

What Progress Are We Making Toward World Peace?

Matthew 5:9

This is Armistice Day. This affords us an unusual occasion to study this topic. It is now exactly sixteen years since that memorable eleventh day of November. Those were the days when we heard the slogan: "War to end all War," "Make the world safe for democracy," "To make a warless world." How far have we come toward the fulfillment of these nice-sounding slogans, or were they merely beautiful ideals held before us to calm our consciences and give us righteous indignation in order that some few might become rich at the price of the precious blood of our splendid youths? Will we permit ourselves to be fooled like this again?

In this discussion it will be of interest and value to consider current developments in the problem of peace and war. Someone should discuss the Nye Resolution and the resulting investigations. Aside from this you will desire to discuss the problems which are always involved in this knotty problem. We as Mennonites need to repeatedly make known our position and the reason therefor as it is found in the gospel and example to be found in Jesus Christ.

"And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their swords into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Isaiah 2:4.

"But I say unto you, love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you, and persecute you; that ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven." Matthew 5:44-45.

Questions

1. What is the heart of the peace message?
2. Why do men seek war instead of peace?
3. Why has peace among nations failed so often?
4. What are some of the findings of the Nye Investigation?
5. What is the present outlook for peace in Europe today?
6. What attitude will you take when war again breaks out in our country?
7. What should young people do to further peace?
8. What has been the consistent Mennonite viewpoint on peace in time of war?
9. What would Jesus have us do in any form of conflict?

Unless we pray for others we are lacking in that spirit in which alone we can pray hopefully for ourselves, and we are living in neglect of a prime duty to God's dear ones who need and deserve our prayers.—Dr. Clay Trumbull.

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Roy Yoder, 1300 Bond Ave., Peoria, Ill.

October 28, 1934

Moral Courage and Moral Cowardice

Acts 4:13-20; Matt. 26:56

"Dare to be a Daniel, dare to stand alone; dare to have a purpose true, dare to make it known."

Pre-Prayer Service

True bravery is not human bravery; but it is wrought in the presence of God.

Song Selections

"Follow the Gleam," "More Like the Master," "Stand up for Jesus," "Faith of our Fathers," "Must Jesus bear the cross alone," "I Need Thee Every Hour."

Courage does not seek to "show" off. It seeks to be humble, but not weak. The principles of right and wrong do not change. Since we as Christian young men and women are not our own, but are bought with a price, a tremendous price, we will have the courage to abstain from anything which does not honor God or which brings a reproach upon Christ.

The will within us either makes us courageous or a coward. A heart filled with love for Christ will develop a God-given will.

When we pray in the disciples' prayer, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven" we pray condemnation upon ourselves if God's will is not our will.

Oh, young people, take God's way, God's will, and He will give you victory over your cowardly acts and wills. He says, "Prove me NOW herewith."

Program

Prelude.

Praise service.

Devotionals. (Let the devotional chairman write out a responsive reading bearing upon the topic or read the scripture lesson in unison.)

Special musical number.

Sentence prayers.

Introduction of topic and discussion by the leader.

Question 1. The boys during the World War were taught that if they died for their country they were saved. How did this tear down true moral courage and mislead many?

2. Is it not better to live for a great cause than to die for it?

3. Name and discuss as many courageous charcters in the Old Testament as possible.

4. Name the cowardly characters of the Old Testament. Why were they so?

5. Name the cowards of the New Testament.

6. Who is the most courageous one in the New Testament. Why?

7. Name and discuss some other courageous men and women in the New Testament.

8. How does love affect courage and defy cowardice?

9. What is your interpretation of these words, courage and cowardice?

Hunt and Read

2 Tim. 1:7; 2 Chron. 32:7, 8; Ps. 27:1; Heb. 13:6; Num. 13:17-33; Acts 16:25-40; Ps. 3:1-8; Judges 7:1-3; John 18:24-27; 1 Cor. 16:13.

Prayer for missionaries who have given their lives for Christ, serving others.

Offering.

Announcements.

Topic and leader for November 4.

Extend invitation to all.

C. E. Benediction.

November 4, 1934

Being Sensible About Money

Matt. 27:3-10

(Consecration Meeting)

"Which is your master, your money or you?"

Pre-Prayer Service

Thank God for the opportunities of doing His will with our money and for the warning in His word of misusing it. Ask God to open our eyes to the earthly limitations of money.

A Dollar Bill Meeting

Either secure "stage money" or make some wax crayons so as to resemble as nearly as possible a greenback. Each member is given a bill and as they come forward to speak on "What shall I do with my money" a pair of scissors is given to them to use in cutting in proportion the bill as he or she would use or spend it. Be honest in your remarks, because you will remember that some day God will hold you responsible for your statements and promises.

The consecration service can be had and a verse or individual promises given from God's Word at the close of each talk. Those who do not take part should have an opportunity to take part in the consecration service. Do not omit any one.

Hunt and Read

James 5:3; Luke 12:21; Jer. 17:11; Deut. 8:13, 14; 1 Tim. 6:9, 10; Mal. 3:10; Matt. 25:34-40; Eccl. 5:19; Luke 15:14; Isa. 55:1-3; Prov. 21:20; 2 Cor. 9:7, 8.

Questions for Use in Discussions

1. Is having money a sin?
2. When does it become a sin?
3. When is it a blessing?
4. What opportunities are there to use money for Christ?
5. What is it that money cannot do?
6. Is money a safe investment?
7. Explain Malachi 3:9, 10.
8. Should one save money? How can it best be done?
9. Explain Luke 12:13-21.

November 11, 1934

Must Nations Always Fight

James 4:1-3; Isa. 2:1-5

(Armistice Day Service)

"Christian Patriotism means more than singing, "The Star Spangled Banner" or "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

Pre-Prayer Service

Pray about the affairs of our nations and ask God to intervene and direct men's hearts to Him through conviction which is the only passage way to prosperity.

Your Meeting

We would suggest this meeting be made a very patriotic service. Patriotic to God to our forefathers, and to our country. The American flag and the Christian flag will make very appropriate decorations.

Let the questions and topics be written on flag folders. (Red, white, blue.)

Program

Prelude.

Praise Service.

Selections: "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," "The Star Spangled Banner," "America the Beautiful," "America," "The Whole Wide World for Jesus."

Devotionals, Isa. 2:1-5.

Sentence prayers.

Announcements, of leader and topic for November 18.

Introduction of topic by leader.

Opening remarks by pastor.

Discussion:

1. What causes war?
2. Why have men failed to bring about world peace?
3. What stand should we as Mennonite young people take in times of peace? In times of war?
4. Do men fight because they want to?
5. What place do the following have in war: (a) Jealousy, (b) pride, (c) hatred, (e) envy, (f) selfishness, (g) love?
6. Can nations live at peace as long as they are not at peace with God? Explain.
7. How will individual Christianity help to promote peace and righteousness?

Prayer for home and foreign missionaries. See what God says about it.

1 Pet. 2:13-17; Matt. 17:24-27; Matt. 22:15-22; Acts 23:1-5; Ps. 24:1-6; Neh. 5:7-13; Isa. 11:1-9; Prov. 17:14; Isa. 1:16-20; 2 Chron. 15:9-15; Rom. 14:19; Prov. 12:20.

Offering. — Benediction

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

Junior C. E. Topics

October 28, 1934

Topic.—Our Country Must Be Won To Christ

Acts 9:32-35

"Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people." Prov. 14:34.

Why must our country be won to Christ? The best answer to this question is to be found in the Bible. I hope you are not waiting until October 28 to read this lesson, because we really need a good deal of time for study. Let's make this a history lesson. Turn back to the Old Testament and you will see how God worked with His people, Israel. Looking at Exodus, we find them in Egypt. In Ex. 3, God calls Moses to lead them into their own land. In Ex. 13:17-22 they start on their journey. Often they complain and do not please God, and each time He must punish them. Yet He loves them and gives them everything they need. In Num. 13 we are told how they sent spies to see into what kind of land God was leading them. Most of the spies and the people forgot how great God is and they were afraid to go on, so God punished them by keeping them in the wilderness forty years. Josh. 3 tells how they finally go into this good land. Many years later, these folks had kings. Whenever the king and people pleased God things went well, but often there were kings who did not feel that they needed God and always they were punished. At last so many of the people chose their own way that God allowed other nations to conquer them. (2 Kings 17:5-20; 2 Chron. 36:11-21.) God had been very patient with them, but at last they must suffer. God has been very good to this land that we love, but unless people love and please Him, He will not keep on blessing us as He has done. Do you think He is pleased as He looks on America today and sees thousands of people who never go to His house or read His word? And what do you suppose He thinks of saloons, cigarettes, Sunday sports, and ever so many other things that are done when people forget Him? Surely our country does need to be won to Christ, and boys and girls must help. First of all, give your own heart and life to Him. Be brave enough to say "no" when tempted to do wrong. Then try to win your playmates and others. With all of our trying, we must pray, too.

Plans for the Meeting

Some time before the meeting, ask all of the Juniors who are old enough to write short essays on the topic. Their discussion should answer two questions in relation to the subject: "Why"? and "What shall we do about it"? Let the reading of these papers take the place of the usual questions and answers.

Daily Readings

Missions at Home. Acts 1:8.
Thousands won. Acts 2:41.
Some oppose the gospel. Acts 4:1-4.
Winning leaders. Acts 18:7-11.
Why some oppose. Acts 19:24, 25.
Slow progress. Matt. 13:31, 32.

November 4, 1934

Topic.—Being Like Christ In His Unselfishness

Phil. 2:5-11

(Consecration Meeting)

The topic today reminds me of a story I have just read about a little girl named Susan. Susan's father hung a swing under a tree in the yard for her one day, and she was so happy when she saw it. She felt that she wouldn't want to do anything but swing and swing. The next day two neighbor children, who had seen the swing, came to play with her. Instead of sharing with them she said, "This is my swing and nobody can swing in it but me." For a time Susan enjoyed herself, but in a few days she began to wish for company and ran to the neighbor's yard. They were as unkind to her as she had been to them, and suddenly she saw how selfish she had been. From that time she was glad to share with others. She had learned that selfishness does not pay.

Christ was always most unselfish. He always thought first of other folks' good. At all times, even though He might have been tired or hungry, He was ready to do for others. Our scripture reading speaks of His unselfishness and tells us that we should be like Him.

Plans for the Meeting

In addition to the questions, have the Juniors tell of unselfish men and women spoken of in the Bible. Some are mentioned in the Daily Readings.

Questions

1. Tell the meaning of unselfishness.
2. Tell of some ways in which Christ proved His unselfishness.
3. Why do you not like to play with a selfish boy or girl?
4. How does loving others help us to be unselfish?
5. How can Christ help us to be unselfish?

Daily Readings

Unselfish Abraham. Genesis 13:9.
Unselfish Joseph. Genesis 50:21.
Unselfish Moses. Numbers 11:29.
Unselfish Paul. 1 Corinthians 10:33.
Unselfish givers. 2 Corinthians 8:1-5.
Unselfish Samaritan. Luke 10:34, 35.

November 11, 1934

Topic.—Cease Firing! What That Means

Isa. 2:4

(Armistice Day)

Ask your mother or father to tell you what "Cease firing"! meant on the first Armistice Day sixteen years ago. Many of us remember that day well. When word came that fighting had stopped it seemed too good to be true. For more than four long years men had been fighting, not because they wanted to nor because they hated each other, but because they felt they must. Most of them had left happy homes, where parents, wives, sisters, or brothers were thinking of them and longing for the war to end. When at last it did end, people were so happy they scarcely knew how to act. Some celebrated wildly, others stayed at home and quietly thanked God as they looked forward to seeing their boys again. Then came the real home-coming. And what happy meetings there were as the soldiers came back! But some people were not happy, for their boys would never come home. They had died while away. Other boys came back to be sent to hospitals, sick or crippled. Surely war is cruel. It is no wonder that our Heavenly Father said many years ago, "Thou shalt not kill." Wars are caused by sin, and God hates sin and tells His children not to fight. Get your Bible and read Matt. 5:39, 44 and Rom. 12:14, 19.

Plans for the Meeting

In order to impress upon the minds of the Juniors the Bible teaching concerning war and peace, find many references on the subject There will be verses to be read by the Juniors, also stories that may be told.

Questions

1. What are some causes of war?
2. Why do we hate war?
3. How does the Bible tell us to treat our enemies?
4. Why is Armistice Day a happy day? Why a sad day to many ?
5. Why is Christ called the Prince of Peace?

Daily Readings

The causes of wars. Jas. 4:1-3.
Why kill our brothers? Exod. 20:13.
The hope of the world. Psa. 46:9.
God is a God of peace. 1 Cor. 14:33.
Peace when the King comes. Zech. 9: 9, 10.

God Watches Over You

There were three children in the home, one of whom was much younger than the others. A terrific storm came up and the two older ones were greatly frightened and cried very hard. The little fellow paid no attention to the storm and finally said to them, "Oh, stop your crying! Don't you suppose God knows His business"?

The small boy realized that God can take care of you just as well in a storm as when the sun shines. He is with you in the dark as well as in the light. Trust Him! —Unknown.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

October 21, 1934

The Christian At Prayer

Lesson Text.—Matt. 6:5-15

Golden Text. — "Continuing steadfastly in prayer." Rom. 12:12.

The lesson text for our discussion of prayer is a part of the sermon on the mount. Jesus has been telling His disciples what the requirements for membership in the kingdom of God are. The striking thing about Jesus' qualifications that He suggests is that they are inward and have to do with character rather than outward forms and customs. The beatitudes state the characteristics of the Christian life. Jesus says, if you have these qualities then you are the light of the world and the salt of the earth.

These facts must be kept in mind as we come to His interpretation of prayer. He is warning the disciples against an over-emphasis on forms and outward observances. He says, when you pray be not as the hypocrites. A hypocrit is an actor on the stage, taking its original Greek meaning. The actor on the stage often only plays an experience rather than having it himself. So Jesus says hypocrites go through the forms of prayer, that is, they stand on the street corner or in the synagogue with their long robes and pious faces saying many words which, Jesus says, are vain repetition, while very often these words do not express the desire of their hearts.

All this discussion raises the question: What is prayer? And with the disciples we would say: Lord, teach us to pray! Perhaps the best description of prayer is given in the old hymns which we sing entirely too little. "Prayer is the soul's sincere desire unuttered or expressed." Prayer is the deepest desire of our hearts and lives whether we say it or not. It is possible for an individual to speak words in a prayer which are not really the real prayer of the heart.

Many people have lost faith in prayer because they have looked upon it as a tool to be used to have God grant their wishes. They have thought that prayer was an attempt on the part of the individual to beg or coax God until He submits to their will, while prayer really is the struggle on the part of the individual to make his will conform to the will of God. Even Jesus in the garden said, "Not My will but Thine be done."

To other people God through prayer becomes a divine Santa Claus from whom we get things. And then we continually discuss whether there is such a thing as unanswered prayers. If prayer is a matter of persuading God to give us the things we want then there are many unanswered prayers. But if prayer is communion and fellowship with the Father, then all prayers are answered, because it is the opening of my life so that God can do through me what He would like to have done. Perhaps an illustration would be in place. Two boys had a very difficult arithmetic problem. The one rushes to his teacher and says, "Would you get this problem for me while I go out and play baseball"? Just so many of us pray. The other boy, however, comes to his teacher and says, "Would you help me with this problem"? and in the presence of the teacher, and with the teacher's guidance, the boy solves his problem. In the one case the boy wanted his problem solved without any effort on his part, while in the other the boy could solve his problem when he had the teacher's guidance. Let us suggest another truth in this parable. The teacher could do more for the boy who stayed in his presence than he could for the one who ran away to play baseball. How often we rush into the presence of God and ask for things and then run away expecting Him to answer it. God can do more through a man who prays than through one who selfishly asks for things.

The suggestion of Jesus about going into the closet to pray is an interesting one because it suggests not only shutting yourself in physically, but also shutting out all distractions which might give you a divided mind. If thine eye be single thy whole body shall be full of light. Jesus then gives to His disciples what we might call a model prayer. This does not mean that it needs to be used every time an individual prays, but it rather suggests the principles of prayer.

In this prayer there is adoration, thanksgiving, supplication, submission, and penitence. Prayer to Jesus was the great battle field on which He fought out life's problems.

October 28, 1934

The Christian's Standard of Life

(International Temperance Sunday)

Lesson Text.—Eph. 4:17-27; 5:15-21

Golden Text.—"And be not drunken with wine, wherein is riot, but be filled with the spirit." Eph. 5:18.

Paul is writing to a Christian church that is situated in the heart of paganism. Ephesis was noted for its low moral standards, which were encouraged by the heathen religions. One of the largest heathen temples of the Roman empire was there, the temple of Diana. This worship was a very licentious one and with the worship there was revelling and drunkenness and immorality. In the midst of such a situation the church members at Ephesis had to live their lives and undoubtedly some of these gentile people who left their heathen religion and accepted Christ brought with them into the church some of their customs and practices. We would infer this from Paul's warnings in our Sunday School lesson.

It is also significant to realize the situation of the writer of this letter. Paul is in prison at Rome. He has completed his missionary journeys and established many churches and now as he lives there in confinement his great interest is in his churches. Instead of brooding over his own difficulties, his heart goes out for the great Christian family scattered throughout the Roman empire.

We are aware of the fact that the Scripture for this Sunday is to be used as a basis for temperance lesson. To many people this suggests only the problem of liquor, but this lesson involves a great deal more than that. It is the contrast of a pagan life and a Christian life, and this involves not just a matter of eating and drinking, but a viewpoint of life. To be a Christian means to have one's whole life dominated by the spirit of Christ. All life's activities and relationships will be spiritualized and transfigured by Christ's spirit. In such a life there is no spirit of anger, malice, jealousy, rivalry, or greed. Business may not be Christian, but a man can be a Christian in business. There are all too many church members who outwardly profess Christianity, but whose whole outlook on life is pagan, worldly and materialistic. They still engage in business for the profit there is in it and take advantage of their fellowmen when they see an opportunity.

Of course there is the problem of liquor. Many church members, even Mennonites, who voted for beer hoping that it might increase the price of grain, now have their eyes open to the fact that the old saloon is back and that automobile accidents are increasing through drunkenness at a tremendous rate. We are again sending men and women to our high schools and public schools to teach the growing youth that alcohol is injurious, but the most permanent solution for the drink question is converted men and women because it is possible for a Christian to be sober in the age of drunkenness.

WHEN SOMEONE CARES

When you meet some disappointment
And you're feeling kinder blue;
When your plans have all been side-tracked
Or some friend has been untrue;
When you're toiling, praying, struggling
At the bottom of the stairs,
You will feel a little better
When you know that some one cares.

Someone who can appreciate
One's efforts when he tries,
Someone who seems to understand
And then will sympathize;
Someone when he's far away
Still wonders how he fares,
Someone who can ne'er forget,
Someone who really cares.

It will send a thrill of rapture
Through the framework of the heart,
It will stir the inner vein until
The teardrops want to start.
For this life is worth the living
When someone your sorrow shares—
Life is truly worth the living
When you know that someone cares.

This world is not all sunshine,
Many dark clouds disclose,
There's a cross for every joy-bell,
And a thorn for every rose.
But the cross is not so grievous
Nor the thorn, the rosebud tears;
All the clouds have silver-linings—
When you know that someone cares.

—Henry Buchanan.

JOTTINGS

The Oklahoma Bible Academy, supported by Mennonites of Oklahoma, opened this year September 17, Rev. J. B. Frey, who for years has been one of the missionaries under the General Conference Board, stationed among the Hopis, will serve as Bible teacher in the school. Rev. and Mrs. Frey have also taken charge of the dormitory and boarding hall. Two of their children come with them as students.

Rev. P. H. Unruh of the Alexanderwohl church, Goessel, Kansas, who was a guest of the Middle District Conference at its recent meeting in Pandora, Ohio, returned home. The calling of ministers from other groups to meet with local conferences has been a practice in vogue in some conferences and has met with general appreciation.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, who until a few years ago was pastor of the Upland, California, church, has received a call to succeed Rev. A. S. Rosenberger as pastor of the West Swamp, Pa., circuit which consists of the West Swamp, Quakertown, and Flatland churches. Rev. Neuenschwander does not come into the Eastern District Conference as a stranger. For eight years he was the minister of the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pa., before going to California.

In Henderson, Nebraska, there is on foot a movement to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the coming of the first Mennonite settlers into that comumnity. This was in October of 1874. The company consisted of 35 families comprising 175 persons. The locality covers the western part of York and the eastern part of Hamilton counties and is about 60 miles west of Lincoln. It is planned to place a marker on the spot where the Immigrant House, which gave temporary shelter to the newcomers, stood. This building served as a place of worship as well as a shelter. Later it was taken down and the material used in the erection of a house and a barn. The first Mennonite church used by the settlers was built near the Immigrant House in 1880. One of the interesting features of the celebration will be the showing of a map indicating the sites upon which the newcomers located.

The Western District Conference will hold its annual meeting in the City Auditorium of the city of Newton, Kans., beginning October 24. The officers of this Conference are P. H. Richert, President; P. E. Frantz, Vice President; P. K. Regier, Secretary. Churches in Kansas, Oklahoma, and Nebraska comprise the greater number of this group. It is the largest local conference in point of numbers in the General Conference.

Doctors Harvey and Ella Bauman, who have been in the homeland on furlough for some months, will return to India sailing on the S. S. Rex from New York, October 13th. A number of young people in the Eastern District Conference are planning to accompany the Baumans to their ship. The party will charter a "bus" for that purpose.

Pay Your Subscription Now!

SPECIAL OFFERS TO SUBSCRIBERS

Your own subscription for 1935	$1.50
One subscription	$1.50
And one of the following books 25 Years With God in India (Regular Price $2.00 per copy) or The Missionary Interest Among Mennonites By Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman (Regular Price $2.50 per copy)	FREE
Postage on the book you select	25c
All for	$3.25

For Those Who Pay During OCTOBER

OFFER NO. 1

Pay your subscription in full until January 1st, 1936. Then add 70c and we will send you a DOLLAR ($1.00) BOX ASSORTMENT of 1934 Christmas greetings. Each box contains 21 beautiful Greeting Folders in delightful colors. Please state whether you want the greetings with or without Scripture verses. We have both.

SAVE 30 CENTS

OFFER NO. 2

Pay your subscription until January 1st, 1936, and add $1.50 and we will send you a copy of the new Mennonite Hymn Book, bound in Spanish Maroon Fabrikoid. The beautiful new gift edition sells regularly for $2.00 per copy.

SAVE 50 CENTS

Or if you prefer you may add only $1.00 and we will send you a copy of the new Mennonite Hymn Book bound in the older style black cloth binding which sold regularly for $1.50.

Combination Subscriptions

The Mennonite and the Christian Evangel
Der Christliche Bundesbote
Both for $2.50 per year

If you want the B. B. Kalender and the Mennonite Year Book add 20c and make a total remittance of $2.70.

Club Subscriptions

5 or more copies to one address at $1.20 per copy.

The Mennonite Book Concern
Berne, Indiana

Sister Aganetha Fast, missionary on furlough from China, under the General Conference Board, who arrived in America several months ago, visited the Berne, Ind., church and gave a missionary address. A coworker of Miss Fast is Miss Frieda Sprunger, who hails from the Berne church.

September 16th was observed as Rally and Anniversary Day in the Saucon, Pa., church, of which Rev. Elwood Shelly is pastor. At the morning service the address was given by Rev. Harry Fritsch of Allentown and the celebrated Tingly Gospel Singers supplied the music. The anniversary address was delivered by Rev. George Greiss, D. D. On Thursday, September 10, an echo meeting of the "Youth's Leadership Conference" was held in the Saucon church.

The Executive Committee of the Mission Societies of the General Conference have the following to report for August: Foreign Missions, General Treasury, $61.98. Christmas Fund, $55.00. Expenses of Committee and "News and Notes", $2.60. Miscellaneous, $131.00. Grand Total, $250.88.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of Berne, Indiana, was the principal speaker at the Monroe, Ind., township Sunday School convention held in Decater, Ind., September 22.

On Sunday evening, October 7, the Germantown church, the oldest Mennonite church in America, Rev. Howard Landes, pastor, will celebrate an anniversary. The program will be of an historical nature. Rev. S. M. Grubb will give an address with special reference to the pastors who have served in this congregation since its beginning. The deacon of the Germantown church, Walter Temple, who is an evangelist in the Eastern Conference, will conduct services in the Second Mennonite church, Philadelphia, on that evening.

During the absence of the pastor of the West Swamp and Quakertown churches, Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, Dr. Harvey Bauman conducted the services. Doctors Harvey and Ella Bauman, who live in Quakertown at present, are actively engaged in making preparations for their return to their field in India.

Bethel College, Newton, Kansas, opened this year with an increased enrollment over last year. There have been few if any changes in the faculty for this term. Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio, had a normal enrollment. The freshman class numbers fifty. Miss Martha Burkhalter, former missionary to India, has accepted a position as instructor in biblical literature and will serve as dean of women. C. E. Rediger, formerly connected with a Mennonite tabernacle in Chicago, will serve as business manager for the institution.

A crew of approximately forty students of Bluffton College were put to work under FERA laying tiles and draining the land around the college campus. This will greatly improve the already beautiful college surroundings.

The West Swamp, Pa., church having rather thoroughly renovated and improved the church edifice, held a rededication service on Sunday, September 23. The program included special Sunday School exercises, a conference service in the afternoon, and a community service in the evening.

The theme for Universal Bible Sunday, to be observed on December 9, is related to the four hundredth anniversary of the publication of Martin Luther's translation of the Bible. Early in November the American Bible Society will provide the pastors of America, for their use in observing Bible Sunday, with suitable free material which will include a brochure, "Across the Barriers of Language," by Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz, and a three colored poster showing Luther at work above a large reproduction of the first copy of Luther's Bible opened at Psalm forty-six.

Rev. P. J. Boehr and family, who are making their home at Quakertown during their furlough, are kept busy keeping missionary engagements. Sunday, the 23rd, Bro. Boehr spoke at the Deep Run church. Mrs. Boehr was the guest at one of the meetings of the ladies of the Springfield church and was also an invited speaker at a neighboring Reformed church. Bro. Boehr writes specially of a visit to a rescue mission in the nearby city of Bethlehem, at which time he says he had a fine chance for a message.

DEATHS

Kliewer.—Mrs. Justine (Reimer) Kliewer, wife of P. G. Kliewer, was born September 20, 1881, in Marion County, Kansas. In June 1900 she was baptized upon confession of her faith by Elder Peter Balzer and joined the Alexanderwohl church near Goessel, Kansas. In the year of 1902 she migrated with her parents to Oklahoma, where they settled two miles west of Mountain View. When the Ebenezer church was organized she became a true and faithful worker. She was married to P. G. Kliewer, August 17, 1905. She has been at all times a real mate, a true mother, ever ready to help where help was needed. She made many friends both in Mountain View and in Gotebo. The union was blessed with nine children, four boys and five girls, of which two boys, Paul and Menno, preceded the mother into eternity. After being submitted to an operation in the University Hospital in Oklahoma City on September 8, 1934, she passed away. She now celebrates a happy reunion with her two sons, also her father, two sisters, and one brother. She reached the age of 52 years, 11 months, and 13 days. Her death is mourned by her husband, seven children, two boys and five girls, her mother, four brothers, and four sisters.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Mitchell, Comins, Michigan, are the happy parents of a lovely baby girl. Florence Ruth was born at 10 P. M., September 16th, and weighs 7¼ pounds. Mother and daughter are doing nicely.

Christmas Program Material

Don't wait until November to begin practicing for your Christmas Program

Christmas Treasury No. 45. (L.) Recitations. Exercises, Acrostic Drills, Dialogs, Pantomimes, Tableaux, Decorating suggestions. This is always our best seller. Price 25c.

Christmas Suggestion, Book No. 8. (TM.) A 32-page book containing a great variety of material for all grades in the Sunday School—exercises, acrostics, dialogs, recitations, pantomimes, tableaux, and decorating suggestions. Price 25c.

Meig's Christmas Selections No. 2. An excellent collection of Recitations, Exercises, Tableaux, Pantomimes, Drills, Songs, Acrostics, and Short Plays for every age in the Church School. Edited by Florence E. Wolcott. Use these selections if you are interested in creating a distinctly Christian Christmas service. 39 pages. Price, postpaid, 25c.

White Gifts for the King. Selections No. One. A collection of songs, recitations, dialogs, drills, pantomimes, and stories for use in a "White Gifts for the King" service. Some churches prefer to make up their own programs and for those who do, this will be very helpful and suggestive. The material consists of the very best selections from all the pageants and services published to date. Contains four illustrations of stage settings and two songs for children. Price 25c.

CHRISTIAN HYMN PANTOMIMES by Verna Whinery. (TM.) Simple pantomimes of 10 favorite Christmas hymns. Price, 30c per copy; five or more copies, 25c each.

A CHRISTMAS MUSICAL READING—The Holy Birth arranged by Rosche. This is a Christmas novelty in the form of a musical reading of Luke 11:1-46. The use of this arrangement will very materially embellish the Christmas morning service. Price, postpaid, net 40c. Remittance must accompany order. Not sent on examination. (R.)

SERVICES

Songs of Yuletide by Walter, Kohlman, and others. (TM.) Eleven inspiring songs in a fine variety of styles. Price, 10c per copy; $1.00 per dozen.

The Light of a Star by T. H. Meredith (TM.) One of the best new services. Price, 10c per copy; $1.00 per dozen.

In Old Judea (new). Price, 10c per copy; $1.00 per dozen. (L.)

The Road to Bethlehem (new). Price, 10c per copy; $1.00 per dozen. (L.)

PAGEANTS

The Light of the World by Warnecke and Hine. (R.) A pageant of the Nativity. Price, postpaid, 75c per copy. In quantities of six or more copies, 60c per copy.

The Holy Nativity by Highfield, Schueler, and Rosche. (R.) A beautiful pageant of the Nativity for mixed voices. Price, postpaid, 75c per copy. In quantities of six or more copies, 60c per copy.

A Star in the Sky (Stockton). A sacred Christmas Pageant for Reader and Chorus by Katheryn Knos. Price, 30c per copy; $3.00 per dozen, postpaid.

The Way of Peace by Bayley and Walter. (TM.) A dramatic and unusual pageant. Price, 35c per copy, 12 or more copies, 25c each.

Three Wise Men by Whinery and Edwards. (TM.) A pageant which portrays how three young men caught the modern significance of the Wise Men's gifts. Price 35c per copy; 12 or more copies, 25c each.

My Song and My Star (new) by Morris and Fisher. (L.) Price, 30c per copy; $3.24 per dozen.

CANTATA-PAGEANT

Christmas Through the Ages by Robertson and Lorenz. (L.) A delightful retelling of the old, old Christmas story. Price, 35c per copy; $3.78 per dozen.

SACRED DRAMATIC CANTATA

Good-Will to Men by Bell and Dale. (L.) Six main characters, six minor parts, and fifteen musical numbers. Price, 35c per copy; $3.78 per dozen.

SONG AND STORY PROGRAMS

Gold of the Wise Man (new) by Lehman and Lightbill. (L.) Price 30c per copy; $3.24 per dozen.

The Sheltered King by Robertson and Meredith. (TM.) An impressive and worth-while Christmas service. Price, 30c per copy; 10 or more copies, 25c each.

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO THE

Mennonite Book Concern
Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

“Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.” 1 Cor. 3:11

OL. I HILLSBORO, KANSAS, NOVEMBER 6, 1934 No. 21

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 34

MISSIONARY NUMBER

“PRAISE THE LORD, O GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD”

Ps. 106: 1

‘PRAY WITHOUT CEASING.” I Thess. 5:17

If our kind mission friends will read through hese reports, they will find many reasons in hem for praise and thanksgiving. That is one eason for publishing this issue before Thanksiving Day, when an increasing number of our unday Schools provide for a “Mission Thanksiving Program,” which is very commendable.

But the reports contain also many reasons or intercessory prayer, yes, for “prayer withut ceasing,” as Paul puts it. Some may not ave time just now to read the whole number ecause it contains so much material, but reiember, please, that the two Mission Numbers er year are the only ones that come into the omes of about one-half of our families. So ave the number for later use. We have tried o have all stations represented, and as many iissionaries as possible, which necessitated art use of smaller type.

Speaking of Mission Thanksgiving Programs

y the Sunday Schools, we hope that no one ill get tired of our urging this once a year. The esults where these programs have been given re so good that one cannot help but urge them. Let a simple program be made by the officers and teachers of the Sunday School, so that each class is represented either by a song, or a memorized psalm, or a paper, or an address, or a mission story, and besides, let the minister give a brief children sermon, and no better Thanksgiving program could be given. It can easily take the place of the regular forenoon service on that day, or of the evening service where that is the rule. A Thanksgiving offering by young and old is, of course, a natural part of the program.

Our Treasury

While we are very thankful for having been able to make all payments up to October 1st, the last quarter is here, and for this we need about $10,000.00. If we should pay a part or all of the loss on exchange, it would be several thousand dollars more. But this is usually the best part of the year for our treasury, and we look hopeful into the future, that the Lord will provide, even if the income in September was rather small, $2,776.00.

Brother and Sister H. R. Bauman, both M. D.’s started on their return trip to India on October 13. The doctors are badly needed in India. They had planned to stay a few months longer on furlough, but the need was too pressing. May the Lord protect them and their five children.

HOME MISSIONS

What has happened in Chicago?

This question has been coming to the writer by interested parties both in person and by letter. The answer depends very largely on the source of information, the attitude of the one that replies, and the connection he or she had with the affair. This seems to give the picture its various colors and shades. There is perhaps no one that can tell all that happened, and surely any one with a biased mind should be slow to speak.

Even if Solomon writes that there is nothing new under the sun, he certainly had not known about the difficulties in the Chicago mission, for here there seems to be something that must be in a class by itself. In the writer's thirty-eight years experience in Home Mission work, nothing similar has ever come to his notice, and it has caused heartaches and sleepless nights and has driven us to more fervent prayer. It is an unfortunate situation, with its sad outcome.

The Board owes it to its constituency and it is our purpose to give it here as clear and simple as we can.

For some time rumors were afloat of difficulties in the mission, but the Superintendent's reports were nearly always favorable. Little ruffles that appeared occasionally, also seemed to disappear again. Too frequent changes in the mission were not conducive to the best results, hence the Board patiently continued the workers as long as it seemed at all feasible. Perhaps we seemed to be too patient while others seemed to us to be too hasty. But when the work seemed to suffer seriously because of a lack of peace and harmony, the Board felt that it could do only one thing with the voluntary resignation of Brother Rhea received last January. The Secretary was asked not to be in a hurry to circulate the resignation through the Board, as a petition was also circulated among the members of the church pleading for the retention of Bro. Rhea. The resignation was not forwarded for three weeks, but when the petition had not then arrived, the resignation was circulated through the Board and unanimously accepted and a call extended to Bro. A. J. Neuenschwander, who after prayerful consideration accepted. Nine weeks after the resignation had arrived, the petition also arrived, then everything had been arranged for the transfer of workers. To suit all concerned i was decided to make the change July first. Accordingly the petition was not considered b the Board.

A few weeks before July 1 it seemed advisable for the Secretary and the Treasurer to g to Chicago to take an inventory of the missio property and arrange for the change of workers

AN APPEAL FROM THE BOARD OF PUBLICATION

Because of the depression and other adverse circumstances our Publication Work has contracted a debt of $12,000.00. At the last session of the General Conference held at Bluffton, Ohio, 1933, the Conference approved of this indebtedness and assumed this obligation, but that did not liquidate the debt. Some time in the spring of this year there was a threat to put our Publication Work into involuntary bankruptcy, but this catastrophy was happily averted. However, the debt is still hanging menacingly over our work.

The Board of Publication requests and suggests that we remove this burden and menace by Christmas. About twelve years ago there was a famine in Russia and I remember that our churches in one month gave $16,000.00 to relieve that distress. That was an emergency. So this debt that is threatening to destroy our Publication Work is an emergency, and it ought to be met with the same spirit of sacrifice. There should be at least fifty persons in the General Conference who can and are willing to give $100.00 each to cancel this debt, and there are thousands of others who in smaller amounts can contribute the balance, so that with thankful hearts we can enter the Jubilee Year of the Conference free from this burden of debt.

Send your contributions to the Chairman of the Board of Publication, Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, Reedley, California.

If space permits there will be acknowledgements in every issue of the paper from now until Christmas, and we trust that through your generosity the debt will be wiped out by that time.

H. J. Krehbiel.

Everything went along smoothly until we reached the point of vacating the pulpit and home in favor of the new pastor, when the provisions of the Illinois law were quoted. This law provides that no employee need quit his post in favor of a successor until he has received all his back pay. It is well known that the Board had to reduce salaries and to avoid raising their indebtedness, made distributions according to the funds received. The ignoring of the petition had so embittered the petitioners against the Board, that they stirred up Bro. Rhea to demand all his back pay. This he did not do, but neither would he say on what condition he would vacate. The Board felt that they could not borrow the $700 which would have been the amount required to satisfy the claim, without doing the same thing for all the other workers, and this would require several thousand dollars, and this would have to be borrowed on the individual responsibility of the members of the Board for we were pretty sure that the Conference would not approve of such an increase in our debt.

To help Bro. Rhea out in his predicament, over the summer months, we agreed to let him remain until September 1st, at his regular pay, provided we could make arrangements with Bro. Neuenschwander. The latter was ready to begin the work, and without any other employment, very reluctantly consented.

When the first of September drew nigh it became evident that the pulpit and home were not to be vacated until satisfactory settlement would be made by the Board. To force the issue Rhea's supporters had engaged a councellor to assist them in organizing an independent congregation free from all denominational affiliation. They claimed 80% of the membership. At the special request of the writer, to prove this assertion, all parties kept silent. Without the consent of the Board they continued the use of the church for two Sundays in September. Because of the distance away from the scene of action, it was exceedingly difficult for the Board to handle the situation. It semeed the people who were not acquainted with the real difficulty, began to look askance at the Board for not having done its duty in clearing the premises. Even the remnant in Chicago seemed effected with this idea. Others seemed to think that if 80% of the congregation were loyal to the pastor, he should have been retained, and so we were in bad on every side, but these good people did not see the elephant from every side.

We kept on praying for a revelation of God's will in the matter and we believe our prayer was answered. The Secretary was constrained to write to Rev. A. H. Leaman, who is an old friend of ours and is well and favorably known to many of our people because of his powerful sermons and clear and orthodox Bible teaching in many of our churches and conferences. Bro. Leaman, though a busy man, offered to become our mediator, effect a settlement with Bro. Rhea, and take charge of the work and endeavor to gather the remnant and give the work a good test to see if it is worth continuing. He came to an understanding with Bro. Rhea for a consideration of $150, and a signed statement, yielding up the keys of the church to Bro. Leaman and promised to make no further claim. Since there was no one to occupy the home he was privileged to use it as his home until December 31, 1934. Brother Leaman set to work earnestly to reconstruct the work and the reports so far are encouraging. Nothing definite was done in the way of finding a man for the place as the Board must await Bro. Leaman's recommendations.

Notes from the field

The hard times in which we live seem to have been wholesome to many people in spiritual things. They have seen their possessions fade away and their source of income fail and it has turned their attention to the spiritual things which abide. All the reports from the fields tell of increased attendance and interest in one thing needful. People are seeking salvation and an anchor for the storm of life.

From Smith Corner (East Freedom, Pa.), Bro. Sylvan Lehman reports that the attendance at the Sunday School this quarter was better than last quarter and the offerings were more, the total income this quarter was the largest ever received. And please remember that the times here have not improved, people have no more money. In a financial way the people here can not be compared to any average Mennonite community. At this writing, Bro. Lehman is in the midst of a series of evangelistic meetings. May his efforts be effective in the salvation of souls, the success of which depends largely on our prayers.

Brother Glass of the Altoona, Pa., Mission writes that the Lord has honored their efforts in every department of the work. The attendance which is always good in all the meetings is not the chief object, but to bring men and women and boys and girls to accept the Lord Jesus Christ as their personal Savior and live for Him and build them up in the faith, in this Brother Glass and Sister Stiffler have more souls to their credit than many a popular preacher in a fine community. They had a number of accessions to the church and a catechetical class of 15 now under instruction. They have taken no vacation, but devotedly looked after the needs of their people and community which is the most poverty stricken city in the Union. Many of their members were compelled to move out so far that they can not attend the services. The people have no money and no clothing and no bread and no fuel. The city helps some, but I am going to tell on these consecrated servants of the Lord, I believe our people should know this: In their relief work, but especially in the church finances where every bill is paid, not from the collections, for they are very small, but from the salary which the Board pays them. Many a month every cent of their salary goes into the work, they do the work and pay for it, and trust the Lord for their needs. Love them as they love souls, and pray for them and their work, and if you have any clothing or things to eat, send it to them, they are in dire need to supply their people. Address 2204 11th Ave., Altoona. Shoes and pants especially needed.

Hutchinson, Kansas. Bro. Plenert writes that in the hottest summer for years they had the best attendance. Open air meetings in cooperation with other churches were largely attended. The work in every department is making progress. Midweek Bible study hours are well attended. This is a good evidence of spiritual growth.

Canada

A very enthusiastic and capable worker, as well as one that is in constant demand is Rev. Jacob Janzen in Ontario. Brother Janzen is preeminently a teacher, and is in demand for lectures on educational subjects. On September 28, he delivered his 307th lecture for this year and always to well-attended and appreciative audiences. He makes a special effort to instruct his hearers in the conditions in Russia as a result of atheistic influences and warns people against this monster and admonishes them to adhere to the Faith in God and His Word in view of the present day dangers of modernism, which shatters the faith of our fathers. An article from the pen of Brother Janzen on the subject would be helpful reading matter.

To enter into a report of all the faithful, capable, and selfdenying workers and give their report in detail would make too long a story and would contain much sameness. I will just mention a few of the most striking incidents.

The itinerant ministers and elders who travel around to visit the various groups have no easy time. Traveling by auto into new territory through forests and mud and stranded in a mudhole, sitting in the auto all night. People lose their homes and move out into new districts away from their acquaintances, no churches in some places, and Sunday School and preaching in private houses, yet some come through the rough roads for twenty-five miles, so hungry are they for the Word and fellowship. Harvests are fair in some places and poor in other places, yet all have Harvest Thanksgiving and mission services and deny themselves to contribute to the Lord's work and the relief of the needy here and also in their old home in Russia where people are dying from hunger. These are a few glimpses of the conditions in the new settlements.

The church in Winnipeg needed more room and it was undertaken in faith and accomplished. The Elder Bro. J. P. Klaassen is troubled in the summertime with a stubborn case of eczema which is always irritated by traveling, yet he made a trip through Chicago to Ontario and spoke there several times. He reports of a meeting of his congregation when members were present that came 200 miles.

Bro. C. F. Sawatzki of Laird who serves the Great Deer congregation for many years and lives far from the field, which is very large, and feels the weight of the task and his inability to do justice to it at such a distance and because of physical weakness, still reports that during the summer 15 persons were baptized and 5 others were received by the right hand of fellowship.

In the Girls' Home in Winnipeg the work and routine remains about the same. There is always an ebb during the summer time, many girls go home and some accompany their masters to their resorts. But the Matron, Miss Helena Epp, takes great delight in the work.

In Saskatoon they have about a hundred girls and because the wages are low, some have found employment in Vancouver, B. C. Seven of the girls were married. The same routine is followed as before, but extra efforts are being made in educational lines, especially to teach the German language to the children. This school session is held on Saturday.

Bro. G. G. Buhler of the Mechanics Grove (Quarryville) congregation has handed in his resignation. The Board is looking for a suitable man for the place. During the Thanksgiving season remember the Home Mission Treasury. Thank you! W. S. Gottshall, Secretary.

REPORT OF THE FIELD SECRETARY of the Central Mennonite Board of Home and Foreign Missions

Dear Brethren and Sisters:

When the Board was organized following the Conference of 1933, it seemed wise that for at least this year I should continue in the office of Field Secretary of the Board. It was recognized that for one who is an employee under the Board to also be one of the officers, entailed some difficulties. It is the hope of all of us that when the reorganization of the Board is effected this year, someone will be available for this office who will be able, unhindered, to carry on the extensive work that has opened up through the growth of the missionary enterprise. My own work during the year has consisted largely in promoting the foreign missionary program from the angle of the Congo Inland Mission and arranging with Rev. E. A. Sommer to do actual field work in as many of the churches as were open for the same.

The work of the Field Secretary consists in presenting the needs of the several fields and the progress of work to the constituency. In actual practice during the past several years this has consisted largely in promoting the foreign work.

Arrangements were made and carried out whereby Rev. Sommer visited the churches of Topeka, Middlebury, Kouts, Goodland, Bethel, Anchor, Congerville, for individual solicitation of members; and also spoke in a number of the other churches. Wherever the individual solicitation was made there was a splendid response in increased contributions even in these strenuous times.

Since the Congo Inland Mission has placed its entire support program on a project basis, the task of the Field Secretary has been greatly simplified. In addition to presenting general information about the needs of the mission field and the general progress of the work, he has been able to present for the consideration of the supporters, projects as follows: Medical units, evangelistic outstations, students in training and pupils in the elementary schools. At the present time Central Conference supporters have undertaken to provide the necessary support for 24 outstations, 29 students and 85 pupils. We are very appreciative of this splendid response to the solicitations of the past, yet beg to give the information that to fully assume our portion of the gigantic load resting upon the shoulders of the Central Conference as its portion of the Congo Inland Mission work, this ought to be increased to about the following figures: Outstations 100, students 75, and pupils 300, together with thirty medical shares of $35.00 each. When one considers the total membership of our conference as being over 3000, then it seems that 500 supporters ought to be found who would be willing to assume responsibility for anywhere from $15.00 to $50.00 share in a work that is producing such large results as is true of the Congo Inland Mission.

I believe that when eventually all of our pastors and the official boards of the churches fully understand the present program of support, the necessary means will be readily forthcoming. In the meantime, the work in our foreign mission is suffering for lack of support.

Relative to the home missionary work, I wish to report that in my estimate the most significant development is the prospect of ultimately combining our work in Chicago with that of the General and Defenseless Conference into a Central Mennonite self-supporting church. During this year while most of the interested parties were resting on their oars, a large opportunity slipped by. In three of the missions involved there either has been or is in prospect a change of Superintendent. With a shortage of funds so that the regular allowances cannot be paid, how unfortunate it is that this proposed program of cooperation was not initiated more aggressively at a large financial saving and a great spiritual strengthening for all the work concerned.

At the close of this year, it is my sincere hope that this Annual Conference and Board Meeting may find it possible to make arrangements for this office which will insure larger spiritual results than we have been able to obtain in the past. May the Lord grant His guidance to your efforts in the year that lies ahead.

A. M. Eash.

OKLAHOMA

Why Am I A Christian

At the recent campmeeting near Thomas, Oklahoma, an Indian woman gave as her answer to the above question the following response. This woman had been received into church membership by another denomination, but has transferred her membership to our denomination now. She gave her testimony about as follows:

It is now 28 years since the time when I became a Christian. I have stumbled in my Christian life many times, I have even fallen prostrate at times, but I have ever risen again and am striving to continue in this course. I am now aged, but at one time when I was still quite young and my children were small yet, one a mere babe, I became very sick. The doctor who was called for me said that I would die. This moved me very much. "What will become of my children, especially of the little babe"? These were the thought within me. Then in the night when I was very sick the Spirit of God came into me and I prayed to God, saying: "God, be merciful to me and to my children and give me longer life"! Thus I prayed to God even though I was not a Christian then, nor did I attend church services, on the contrary, I used to make fun of the Christians and I was opposed to the church. But when I was so very sick and the doctor said that I would die, I prayed to God and asked Him to lengthen my life. Though I was so very sick and there seemed no hope for me, nevertheless I did not only arise from my bed the next morning, but I even busied myself to prepare the breakfast. At about nine o'clock, while I was still busy with the preparation of the breakfast, the doctor came to see me again and he was very much surprised to find me not only being up and about, but even being busy with preparing breakfast.

After that I said to my husband: "Go call the Godly-speaking white man (missionary) and tell him that I want to speak to him." He did that and pretty soon the missionary came and asked me why I had called him. I told him what had happened, how God had heard my prayer and had healed me and that now I wished to be baptized. He was willing to do that, but then turned to my husband and said to him: "Do you want to remain on the other side, or do you want to be baptized at the same time when your wife is baptized and so come with her into the church"? My husband then said: "Since God has taken pity on us and has given restoration, I do not want to remain on the other side, nor do we want our children to remain on the other side."

On a Sunday following we were all baptized. As I said before, I have been going this way for 28 years, I have stumbled, I have fallen, but I have always arisen again and am still going on this way. I always come here to hear God's Word. I am not educated; the interpreter's tongue has to serve me for a tongue and the interpreter's ear has to serve me for an ear. Young men and young women strive to serve God; you men, too, who are used to boasting of the fact that you were created first, before the woman, now show that you are also first in serving God.

G. A. Linscheid.

Canton, Okla., September 24, 1934.

An Indian Camp Meeting at Thomas, Okla.

Many years ago our mission among the Cheyenne and Arapaho Indians started an evangelistic camp meeting every summer in the hope that these meetings would keep at least the Christian Indians from attending the heathen gatherings, such as the arrow worship, sun dance and others. The Indians showed great interest in these camp meetings and collected considerable sums of money each year for common feasts at these gatherings. But soon the eating became the main attraction and the services were poorly attended. Instead of doing away with their heathen gatherings, the heathen seemed to consider it as one more gathering to add to their virtues. So the large summer camp meetings were discontinued. A few small gatherings with the native helpers and Christians were held since. During the depression even these were discontinued. This summer some of the Indians of this district expressed the idea that we should have camp meetings again. When it was suggested that we should have them without any public eatings, the interest seemed to wane. A few favored the plan, regardless of the many difficulties in the

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication..........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office..........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance..........$1.50
Foreign..........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.

Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

way, such as the drouth, the hard times, the absence of many of the Indians who were at the CCC camps, etc. After further considering the matter prayerfully, it was decided to have the camp meeting in the later part of August, but on account of the shortage of grass and water the time was postponed to September 18 to 21. The brethren Linscheid and Ediger, as well as their native helpers, Harvey Whiteshield and Homer Hert, were willing to come and help in the work. All arrived promptly. The attendance the first day was small. We wondered whether the Indians by their failure to attend wanted to show their disapproval of having a camp meeting without any feasting and showed little desire for spiritual food. But in the evening some more came and we learned that they had been detained from coming during the day because the day before the government officials had killed some starving cattle and had invited the Indians to come and help themselves to the meat, and so they had to stay home and take care of the meat and no doubt did some feasting too. For an Indian this was a valid excuse. The next two days the attendance and interest increased. The fine messages and interesting discussions were very helpful to every one present, but especially to the Christians. Only a very few camped at the church and some slept in the basement of the church. Some who have cars went home for dinner but the most of them brought their lunches from home. We have reason to believe that they came to receive food for their souls and that they were richly blessed. Some of the sermons and talks were on the following subjects: "Who is a Christian"? "Christian Living," "The Reward of a Christian," "Why I am a Christian." Time did not permit to discuss the other two topics on the program: "Why I am not a Christian" and "How can we be better Christians"? The evening prayer meetings were led by the native helpers, followed by sermons of the visiting missionaries on the subjects "The Prodigal Son" and "The Sower," using the magic lantern for illustrations. It was very interesting to hear some of the older members testify of the way they were led to become Christians. Only it took them so long to say it that only a few could be heard. — Though the attendance was small, we believe that every one who came there hungry for spiritual food was richly blessed and that the prayers of those who remembered these services before the throne of God have been fulfilled and will further be heard. Will you continue to pray? H. J. Kliewer.

From the Harvest Field at Clinton and Hammon, Oklahoma

Inside of the ten days during the month of July of this year four of our Indians in the Clinton district told me they had accepted Jesus as their personal Savior and asked to be instructed and baptized.

First there is a seventy-five year old grandmother. Until a few years ago she seldom came to church. Six years ago she was married to one of our Christians. Even then she came to church only now and then, and when she came she hardly ever stayed in church during the services. But not so the last year. Usually when I visit the Indians for the first time after they ask for instruction I ask them how they came to accept Jesus as their Savior. It was interesting and encouraging to listen to this old grandmother. The Word of God is still powerful.

The second is a man 38 years old, well educated, talented, a keen thinker, with many and varied experiences back of him. He comes from an Episcopal family. He has married here. He surprised me when he said he expected me to begin with him at the bottom.

The third is a mother of four children and 29 years old. She grew up under decidedly non-Christian influence. Her mother confessed to me not long ago that she had accepted Jesus as her Savior in her youth, but when she married she accepted other religions. Nellie therefore seldom came to church in years past. And her marriage did not bring her more under the influence of the Word of God. She is shy and timid. Two years ago she had to go to the hospital for a serious operation. I visited her just before she left for the hospital, but felt the seed of the Word of God was falling by the "wayside." I was glad to hear now that the Word of God sown then sprouted and "broke through" after two years.

The fourth is an unmarried woman, twenty-one years old, with many and varied experiences. She has been motherless since she was five years old. I have every reason to believe that she is sincere. But she is one of the most uncommunicative Indians I ever instructed.

Would it be possible to instruct these four as a class? I would not know how. I am convinced anew that I did the right thing when I began years ago to instruct individually. It takes more time, but it is time well spent. When I asked a class if someone had a question or wished to say something, they with very, very few exceptions — at the most just shook their head. Now while instructing each one alone that is different. The periods of instruction belong to the encouraging hours in the work here.

The work as a whole is everything but encouraging at present.

May we ask you to pray again for the Indians as a whole and the Christians and their leaders in particular? J. B. Ediger.

ARIZONA

"One Among Many Others"

Dorothy Joan, a ten-year-old Hopi girl, is one of those many Indian children whom the ravaging disease, tuberculosis, has claimed. As often as possible she came to the Sunday School over the rocky path, carrying her little baby brother on her back. She used to sit in Sunday School, listening carefully to the story of Jesus, which Mrs. Suderman was telling the children.

For a number of months it was seen that Dorothy Joan was not well. In the early part of last June, the government nurse succeeded in persuading the parents to let her take Dorothy to the sanatorium at Winslow, which is about seventy-five miles from here. But a few months ago her mother had a chance to go in to see her. Seeing how bad she was and hearing from the white doctor that there was no hope, she took her sick child home.

One afternoon Mrs. Suderman took six of the young Christian girls to visit Dorothy Joan and to tell her the story of Jesus once more. When they came to her house and knocked, no one answered. They looked in and saw the partly deaf grandmother rolling out bread dough for baking. After asking her where Dorothy Joan was, we were told that the girls would not be permitted to go up, only Mrs. Suderman could go. Upon knocking at the door, it was opened by the mother of the sick girl. No permission was given by either father or mother. The mother then said that Dorothy was about to leave. Mrs. Suderman did not yet realize that death was setting in, so she asked, "Where to"? The mother looked at Mrs. Suderman as if to say, "Yes, where to is she going"? Mrs. Suderman then left the house to meet the other six girls who had heard the conversation. They were sorry to know that their schoolmate was dying. They decided to have a little prayer meeting for her at the church. How simply the girls prayed that the Lord should yet be merciful to little Dorothy; to bring to her mind the stories she had heard in the Sunday School; to lead her to pray to Him and to believe on Jesus even in her dying moments. The girls then also sympathetically told such things as these:

"We know nobody came to see her these last days for all are afraid of death." "The other children were sent away not to be defiled by Dorothy's death." "I know they just left her there all alone without food or drink because all are afraid of her." "She was put into that little dark room so as not to defile the home by her death." "They say that the owls come near to take the spirit away when she dies."

The next morning Dorothy Joan died.

John P. Suderman.

Oraibi, Arizona.

Moencopi, Tuba City, Arizona

At Moencopi we have no native Christians since the Hopis there have been very hostile in the past. Interest, however, is fairly good. The Sunday School attendance averages over thirty people this year. There is a division among the Hopis at Moencopi. The older people desire to hold to the old religion, whereas the younger people feel they would make more progress in every way, hence do not care to keep in the old way. This accounts partly for the increase in Sunday School attendance.

A hindrance to the mission work, however, is the present program of the government. The government has been spending a great deal of money giving the Indians work. Whereas we like to see the Indians self-supporting and progressive, it makes the Indian proud and independent. When they have plenty of everything, they have very little desire for God and Christ. As long as the depression lasted they were more humble and came to inquire more about God.

Mrs. Fred Johnson has not been very well for nearly a year. About a year ago her brother died after a lingering illness. Before he died, they talked much to him about his salvation, however, he kept on putting off the decision until one day he passed into the Beyond. This has caused her much worry, until her health began to fail. Pray for her health! She would like to have sewing classes for the Hopi women of her village, since that is always a good opportunity for preaching the Gospel to them, but as long as her health fails she will have to postpone her sewing classes.

For the past three or four years Moencopi had a Christian schoolteacher who was friendly to the mission. It is always noticeable when there is a Christian or a principal at school who is friendly to the mission. But this fall the principal and his wife have been transferred elsewhere and so the coming of a new teacher is always a concern for the missionary. Let us pray that God may guide the affairs of the government that they may give us those kind of teachers who will in no wise hinder His work among the Hopis.

F. A. Johnson, Native Missionary.

MONTANA

The Cheyenne New Testament

This fall, forty-three years ago, it was that the Cheyenne New Testament was started; for it was then, at the close of my first Gospel message to the gathered Cheyenne Indian men, near Canton, Oklahoma, that their question was impressed upon me: "Why has this Lord of God never been given us in our own language"?

Then this Word of God came to my mind: ". . . How shall they believe in him, whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher"? I thought, how shall the Word be understood by these Indians unless given to them in their own language?

The first step toward meeting the challenge of the Indians in giving them "God's message" was the study and mastering of their mother tongue, which hitherto has remained unwritten.

This task required much time, application, patience, and strength, for it meant not to merely become acquainted with the common daily language, but also with the Cheyenne way of thought and expression concerning deeper things of mind and heart, as revealed in oral traditions, ceremonial, religious, pictorial, and sign language.

This material had then to be sifted, classified, grammatically arranged and gathered into an extensive dictionary, which was printed on the multigraph in 1915, by my son Valdo.

However, the first translations of portions of the Bible had not to wait until all this was done. As early as possible, with the outstanding aid of Harvey Whiteshield, a well educated Cheyenne, the Gospel of Luke and John, together with detached portions of Old and New Testament, was tentatively translated, the Gospels being first printed in Berne, Indiana. In 1912 my son Valdo reprinted the two Gospels and printed the then existing translated portions of the Old and New Testament. The two volumes were used continually in the Cheyenne mission field throughout the years until now.

In 1916, when we were transferred to Montana, my co-workers and the leaders among the Cheyenne Christians urged that all earlier translations be revised and to them be added the rest of the New Testament, meaning Matthew, Mark, The Acts, and all the Epistles and Revelation. The American Bible Society encouraged the undertaking, later on, by offering to photo-print the entire New Testament in a smaller volume and furnish us free one thousand bound copies, when the multigraph print should be done. The latter is excellent, but only a small edition being printed and too voluminous to be easily carried along.

The task given me was thus started eighteen years ago, but receiving only part of my attention and time for several years. Many interruptions came, and in 1927, when I became sick, very little could be done. It was mostly in the last years that I could devote most of my time to this work, i. e. especially in the fall and winter months. At last, in April of this year (1934) I reached the last verse of the last book of the New Testament. The challenge of the Indians had been met. I shall never forget that hour in my work room in Lame Deer!

Some may say, "That took him such a long time"! Yes, truly so, but no one offered himself to do it in a shorter period of time. And remember, it took the work of over 20 men during 10½ years to REVISE (not translate), the English New Testament.

In the case of the Cheyenne New Testament it meant not a translation of the English or any other modern Bible version, but a direct translation from the Greek text, comparing carefully the old Latin version, the Hebrew rendering, the English, German, French translations and main versions. Besides this the texts of important and reliable commentaries were consulted.

The Cheyenne language is very rich in expressions and forms, but of a complicated structure. In many cases there was super-abundance instead of lack of forms; the Cheyenne being specific and exact in its meanings of an object, according to quality, vitality, form, position, size, use, and connection. As it is very descriptive in character and words and syllables can be easily compounded, there is practically no limit in its vocabulary.

Nevertheless, great difficulties came in the way, especially with Bible passages of knotty meaning, where several hours were spent on a single verse, and sometimes a sentence. Then came chapters like Acts 27, Romans 9-12; 1 Cor. 15; Eph. 1, 2; Coloss. 1-3; a great part of Hebrews, and several chapters in Revelation, either because of complicated or involved sentences or because of peculiar terms in names, colors, and measures. For the exact rendering of "precious stones" in Rev. 4 and 21, I had to get an exact plate of colors from New York, as in Cheyenne a precious stone is described by its color and transluscency and the terms used by the ancient Hebrews and those of the Greek are different for various precious stones.

Whenever absolute Cheyenne words had to be used or new terms compounded to meet the exigencies, I consulted different older Indians, men or women, until I was sure that the word would be understood and the precious Word of God rendered in Cheyenne as clear, true, and exact as posible.

But the finished translation was not quite the end of the task. I read the manuscript from beginning to close, making corrections and inserting omitted words. The whole was then read to four Indians, each by himself. After that I typewrote the whole and read it to one of our Christian women, to test the understanding of the Cheyenne text. After these six different readings the text was set to type and then submitted to two proof readings by Mrs. Petter and myself, before the final multigraph print. As the latter is to be photo-printed into a small volume, only some 50 or more copies were made, to avoid needless expenses in time and paper.

The multigraph print of the four Gospels was made with the aid of Ernest King, a native helper in the mission work. The rest of the New Testament was set to type by Miss Leona Thierstein of Whitewater, Kansas, and with her valuable and unstinted help the printing was accomplished in the beginning of July of this year.

And now the Gospel of Jesus Christ and precious Word of God in the New Testament is "in the Cheyenne mouth," praise be to God for His gracious help and thanks to all our mission friends in the churches who prayed and gave this work.

From now on no Cheyenne can say, "We have not the Word of God." By His gift to them of the Cheyenne New Testament He tells them: "It is not hard for thee, neither is it far off. It is not in heaven that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us, and make us hear it, that we may do it? Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it to us, and make us hear it, that we may do it? But the word is nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it." Deut. 30:11-14.

Rodolphe Petter.

CHINA

Hua Mei Junior High School

I walked over to the school the other day and found the principal, James C. Liu, in his office. I asked him how the registrations were coming, and he said: "There are 125 students registered by now, but there are about 30 students on the grounds just now who did not bring enough money. They were told to bring the whole amount and then they would be allowed to be enrolled. Besides the above we expect quite a number of old students to come in these days. It looks as though we will pass the 200 mark." There are fifteen girls enrolled in High School this year (last year there were none).

"Who all are the teachers"? I inquired.

"Mr. Stephen H. Wang is the Dean of Men and teaches science in both the high school years (first and second). Mrs. Stephen Wang, his new bride of two months, also teaches and has charge of the girls. The other teachers are: Mr. Wang Hsien Chang, Stephen's brother; Mr. Liu Kuo Hsiang, Mr. Hu Teh Lu, Mr. Chia Ming Ching, Mr. Kuan Shan Ch'eng."

"How many pupils have you in the Primary department"?

"In the Lower and Higher Primary there are thus far fifty enrolled. We hope to have more."

"Are you having any difficulties"? I asked.

"We are hard up for room," James said. "Our furniture does not go around at all. Beds are too few, some of the students are sleeping on the floor. Wash stands, chairs and tables, and students' lockers are not enough." There has been a division of the furniture in the two schools and there is not enough for both, since there are always some things wearing out every year, and not many things have been added these years."

"What are some things for which you are glad"? I wanted to know once more.

"We are glad for the interest shown by our own people for education. The students have come from all over our field and are so anxious to go to school. Some find it hard to bring up the necessary money, and you ought to see the real grief of parents and their children in many instances! Then there are also a number of students who come from our neighbor missions and some from government schools. That is very gratifying, too. One Chinese pastor, Rev. Sung, brought his son a distance of 200 miles to attend our school. We feel our responsibility is great and hope all our friends will support us in prayers and interest. These young people need to be led in their thinking and guided in their actions and be made ready for the service which awaits them in their own country and to their own people."

This High School is entirely in charge of our Chinese leaders and it is very interesting to watch the developments. Surely a great opportunity for young men and women of our mission to give themselves in service for their people! It is also very encouraging to see that the work of the mission has not been in vain.

Elizabeth D. Goertz.

K'ai Chow, Hopei, China.

The "Treasure" In An "Earthen" Vessel

How simple and countrified he looked as he stood facing me and talked eagerly of the things in the Christian life that had come to mean so much to him! We had happened to meet just inside the gate of the compound in Ch'ang Yuan and were now talking — the conversation drawing itself out to a great length. As we talked I forgot all about the simple, almost crude appearance, for I could not but realize that within him there was something, someone, that was more than human.

Mr. Ch'en, for that is his name, lives in a village about twenty li (a little more than six miles) west of Ch'ang Yuan. While away from home in some big city working, he came under the influence of the Gospel, accepted the Savior and was tremendously in earnest about the matter. Because of the change in his life and his zeal for the Lord, he was considered insane. In his own home his brothers would have nothing to do with him because of his "mental streak," as they considered it. Soon after that his younger brother became seriously ill, and after some time in desperation he had his Christian brother called.

"San Ko" (Elder brother, the third), he said, "will you pray for me"?

"But," said his brother, "you do not believe."

"Oh, yes, I do believe now. I see there are results when you pray and so I believe there must be a true God. Please, pray for me."

His brother prayed for him earnestly, and in a few days he was well.

Mr. Ch'an is a man of great faith and prayer. Unlearned, he cannot read his Bible much, but those parts that he knows he accepts in simple faith. He is in the habit of talking out loud when he prays. On those days when he is about the compound we hear him several times a day talking to God in the church, the open windows, which open out into the residence yard. The last thing at night and the first thing in the morning that we hear is often his voice in earnest prayer. He seems to be very happy as he goes about witnessing in his simple way, which usually brings large crowds. His throat is hoarse almost constantly because of his much singing, praying, and witnessing. As we were about to wind up our long conversation at the gate of the compound, I asked him to tell me what he considered the greatest token or manifestation of God's love and grace toward him. I thought he might perhaps mention the fact that God had given him power in prayer, or in witnessing, or might speak of the man sick and demon possessed that are said to have been healed as a result of his prayers. None of these were mentioned. He answered simply: "That Jesus saved me and made me to be a child of God."

Frieda N. Sprunger.

Dear Christian Friends:

Most of my time is spent at home with the children, but I also have been doing some visitation work among the church members and inquirers with the help of a Bible woman.

One of the first places we visited was the home of Mrs. Po. She was very much interested in the Gospel, had attended instruction classes, and was ready for the final catechism class held prior to baptism. Some of the nearby neighbors also came to the home and we just sat and talked. Mrs. Po told a little of the struggles she had been having. She had not been well and finally she promised God that if He would heal her she would testify for the Lord at one of the church services. As a result, she was healed and gave her testimony to that effect. Another one of the women there was also expecting to be baptized and we all discussed spiritual problems, sang a few songs, had prayer, and then we left. The depressed feeling I had had before we came was displaced by a feeling of exultation and thankfulness to the Lord for having given us such a blessed time together.

Of course, the homes we visited were not all like this. One place near the west gate was quite different. One old lady in the yard was a Christian. Most of the others had not heard much of the Gospel, but they all crowded into one little room and there the Bible woman and I spoke to them. Some of the women sat and spun raw silk thread while they listened and all seemed interested, but not enough so to later come to the church services.

One hot day we went to the north suburb. The first place was the home of an old lady who, even though she was weak from tuberculosis and age, managed to hobble to church with the help of a cane. Her little room was too dark and small to go inside and since she had only one or two benches to sit on, we thought it better to find a place where more folks could gather together, but it was hard to find one. Many of the homes had been destroyed by the flood and some folks were busy making mud bricks and putting up new buildings. Others were living in mat huts built for temporary use which, even if we managed to crawl into, would not accommodate many listeners. We finally came to a new looking house in front of which was a woman busily digging out a tree which had been killed by the flood. She welcomed us into her home, which had been built by the government, and the crowd that had been following us followed into her house and we all arranged ourselves as comfortably as possible, some on the one bench, others on the floor, and so we had our service.

So it goes from week to week, everybody welcoming us. We only hope that some of the seed sown will spring up and bear fruit. We also ask your prayers for all the work in the Ch'ang Yuan field. Yours in His service,

Martha Ewert.

Praying for Rain

During the great drought in July both the Christians and non-Christians alike were anxiously looking for rain. The non-Christians used various means to induce their gods to give rain.

Coming from K'ai Chow back to Taming, we passed through a village in which all the different gods of the community had been gathered together into a large mat shed especially prepared for them. The band played, the village feasted, before each god was placed some food and before each god incense was burnt. It seemed as though the villagers were trying to humor the gods into giving rain. At other places we saw gods that had been taken out into the open. This happened in many places. The gods were taken from their comfortable places in the temple and put into the sun so they might realize how hot and dry it really was, and thus be moved to give rain. In many cases family gods were carried by members of the clan out in the dry fields and shown the wilting crops. Incense was burnt to appease the angry spirits and vows were made to the gods by individuals as well as whole village groups, promising that if the gods would send rain they would repair the temples, have theatrical performers come, and celebrate a few days, etc.

In the city of Taming willow branches were put into crocks of water in front of the shops. A man dragging a long chain after him walked along the street, followed by two Taoist priests who collected alms from the people along the way, saying that if they would show mercy heaven would be merciful to them too. By order of the district magistrate the south city gate, called the fire gate, was closed for about four days until rain came. He also sent a representative to worship at a temple about 1½ miles from the city and to bring back some water supposed to have magical powers from that place, to be used by the official himself in offering sacrifices at the temple in the city.

It happened that Sunday was one of the days on which the city gate was closed. At six o'clock we had our regular early Sunday morning prayer meeting in church and a larger number than usual was present because it had been announced that we would pray for rain. Mr. Chang Ch'ing, the evangelist in charge, read from II Chronicles 7:13-16, "If I shut up the heaven that there be no rain, or if I command the locust to devour the land, or if I send pestilence among my people; if my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves and pray, and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven and will forgive their sins and will heal their land." Many fervent prayers were sent up to God in church that morning, as well as later during the day. The one that impressed me most was Chang Ch'ing's prayer as he prayed so earnestly for his people and their leaders, especially the Taming district magistrate who had ordered the south gate locked and in other ways encouraged idol worship. Mr. Chang Ch'ing prayed, "Lord, forgive them, for they know not what they do. My people are groping for light and they are leading them on into utter darkness. My people are lost in superstition and sin and instead of showing them the way out they are leading them deeper into the mire. Lord grant that they might soon repent and turn from their evil ways to Thee."

A few days later when the rain came, the heathen offered sacrifices to their gods as a thank offering and for days large crowds attended the open air theaters which on the one hand were to entertain the people and on the other hand were to please the gods. Our Christians also met and gave thanks to God. The 96th Psalm which was read on that occasion, never seemed more fitting.

Mrs. Sam J. Goering.

A Vital Experience

Some years ago a country boy walked fifteen miles over bad roads to enroll in our Mission Boys' School at Tamingfu. Here he learned about a "new foreign God, called Jesus Christ." He got interested and enjoyed the study about this new way of life. Not long after that the southern army marched through this district and he quit school.

This student and a friend went north to join the army in Manchuria, but when the army lost out in the Japanese struggle of 1931, they became laborers. During the following Japanese occupation they went through many harassing experiences, so that often little hope of life was left. This young man began to reflect on what he had learned about the "living God" in our school. In his distress he cried unto God. Half believing, half doubting, he questioned: "Is there really a living God"? He thought of home and wished to return. There was only one possible way open; unless he tried to go through the front lines, he had to go by Japanese steamer. Most Chinese applicants for passage were refused. While this student — Mr. Wang — was praying, the clear answer came to him, "Tell them you are a Christian." His first reaction was, what good will that do? He went to the Japanese authorities and said he wished to get a permit to board that ship. They asked him, "Who are you"? He ventured, "My friend and I are Christians, and want to go to our home at Tamingfu." He says they could hardly believe it when the Japanese told them that since they were Christians they could believe them, and then handed them their pass. Mr. Wang continued: "There we were, the last two to walk onto the ship, when hundreds of others were standing by who had been refused, and all this because we believed in God. Thus far God had seemed distant and unreal to me, now His love and power overwhelmed me; I felt like one coming out of a very dark room into the bright sunlight." Through this experience Mr. Wang accepted Christ fully as his personal Savior. It was such a vital experience with him that when he got home (now two years ago) he joyfully related to me, "I am telling the people in my village about the God who saved me, and now a number are interested in the Gospel. Please, come and help us, we want to learn more about this way." Mr. Wing still continues eagerly, fervently, in his testimony for Christ. W. C. Voth.

Taming, August 31, 1934.

Movements in China

There is an ever growing number of new movements on foot in China. The "New Life Movement" which has as its purpose the instilling of new life into the people: "Each member must be: 1. Neat and tidy. 2. Simple and thrifty. 3. Honest. 4. Courteous. 5. Observe discipline. 6. Attire in home-made material. 7. Exercise body and mind. 8. Hard working. 9. Do reading during spare time. 10. Sacrifice for the country. He must not: 1. Gamble. 2. Be idle. 3. Smoke narcotics. 4. Overdrink. 5. Break promises. 6. Go to races, dance halls, or gambling houses. 7. Be extravagant." When it was inaugurated here in Taming, a very large crowd attended the opening session and later paraded the streets carrying banners and shouting slogans.

In the government schools above the lower and higher primary the students are organizing themselves into volunteer corps, taking military training to help defend the country in case of another invasion like that of Japan into Manchuria. In the student camp in Taming there are at present about 150 students drilling a number of hours each day. The government supplies nothing but officers to train them. Boy and girl scouts dressed in uniform march proudly along the streets like little soldiers.

In larger centers many different welfare and cultural societies have been springing up. Also many different kinds of cooperative and protective societies, such as labor unions, farmer cooperatives, etc. The splendid work that has been done in Ting Hsien, not far from here, where all the people of an entire county are making remarkable progress because of close cooperation, is attracting the attention of whole China. Jimmy Yen who is at the head of this enterprise, has been offered large sums of money by localities who want to launch similar enterprises.

This spirit of action also manifests itself both in Christian and non-Christian religious groups. Recently the governor of Hopei Province presided at a memorial service held at the Confucious Temple in Tientsin which was attended by more than 1000 persons, representing local government organizations, military, civil bodies, and educational institutions. The temple which has been unattended for years has been renovated. In the center of the temple has been hung the portrait of Confucius. This was the 2485th birthday anniversary of Confucius and is has been decided to observe the occasion annually beginning from this year.

In Shanghai, a number of zealous Christians have established and maintained a broadcasting station, sending out all over China Christian programs every day of the week. Gospel teams composed of consecrated Christian Chinese have been organized in many places, some of them working in their home communities, others traveling all over China. Many of these have no definite salaries and trust the Lord to provide their needs.

This spirit of action is also manifesting itself more and more in our field. The Bible School students organized into gospel teams, have visited the different stations and villages near them, of our whole field, during the last two summers. Lay workers are giving much of their time during the week of evangelism each year, as well as at other times. There has never been a more active interest on the part of the Christians in the regular activities of the church, such as the regular services, Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, midweek prayer meeting, Bible study groups, etc.

A new combined venture of all the churches of our mission field is the taking over of the High School at K'ai Chow. Through its delegates the churches elect a board composed of six Chinese and one missionary. This venture on the part of our Chinese Christians is one of faith. The school was closed for a number of years and much of the equipment needed disappeared during the evacuation, especially laboratory supplies. It is not at all certain that all the funds needed for the current school year will come in. The grant made by the mission is only about one-third of the budget, and can only be paid if the money comes from the Mission Board. The teachers realize this and know that they may not get all of their salary, yet they are willing to make the sacrifice if need be. The large enrollment shows that the school fills a real need. The school is a vital factor in our mission work. From it many of our future leaders of the church will come. Please remember it faithfully in your prayers.

Sam J. Goering.

The Voice of Sinai and the Look of Calvary

The meeting in the Yen village chapel was just over. I was teaching a young woman while Mrs. Sun, the Bible woman, was talking with a young man. I recognized him as the one I talked to over a year ago. A mere boy, not over twenty, usually away from home on business, he was the son of a neighbor in whose home great disturbances had recently taken place. Upon my surprised inquiry I was told he was indeed the husband of the young woman who had taken her own life some two months ago.

"I saw her in a dream," he was saying, "and her spirit haunts me. I must believe this Gospel or I am undone. I have decided it is the only way for me."

Ten years ago this young man, then a lad of ten, with his brother attended the Lung Wang Miao Mission day school. They did well and were interested in the Gospel, but their mother, a bad tempered woman, addicted to opium smoking, forbade them to continue, fearing they might accept the new religion. As the years went by her health broke down and she finally yielded to the exhortation of the Yen family, her neighbors, who are Christians, and a year and a half ago began coming to the meetings held every Wednesday in their village. The woman at first came mostly because she hoped to be physically healed. Last fall the father, too, was won over. They asked us to come into their home and pray for them and a few weeks later took down their images. They began also going to church on Sundays at Lung Wang Miao, and the two daughters-in-law took part in the Christmas program, to the delight of the evangelist who spoke of "the first being last and the last being first."

But Satan does not let his prey be so easily taken from him. Like Asa with his best efforts being unable to reform Israel because the evil had become too deeply rooted, so the mother found it very hard to break away from her evil habits. She continued to oppress her two daughters-in-law and in her home reigned discontent and violence. Added to this, the son mentioned above came home and now openly opposed Christianity, forbidding his wife to go to meetings and often beating her for minor shortcomings.

This made her lot unbearable. It was suddenly noised abroad that the elder daughter-in-law had disappeared. Everywhere search was made for her, but to no avail. Finally after ten days her body was found in a deserted well. Her parents caused her husband and mother-in-law to be arrested and put in jail, but later they were released on bond.

It was while in detention that the young husband had the dream that caused him alarm. We tried to help him, showing him how he should ask Christ to search his heart and point out his sins to him. Then he said, "I don't know, but somehow when I get home there seems to be an evil spirit in the air and sometimes I feel like I could tear down the house. I can't explain it, but I know I must find this Way, else I cannot live. My first wife, too, and now this second one died in such a horrible way, I am afraid their spirits will revenge themselves on me."

So it is fear and the results of his evil doing taking visible form that is driving this young man to the foot of the Cross. But once he arrives and gazes up into that tender Face, may we not trust that he, too, can say, "When I survey the wondrous cross, . . . my richest gain I count but loss. . . . Love so amazing, so divine, demands my soul, my life, my all."

Mrs. W. C. Voth.

Some Results of the Work in Chang Yuas, Hopei, China

Dear Editor and Readers:

Greetings in our dear Savior's name. Since the Yellow River flooded our district part of my time has been spent doing refugee work, which included the distribution of clothes and grain, having charge of building of mud walls around the compound, road building, and other projects which would give work sometimes from seventy to a hundred people.

We have been having very good attendance at the various services. Of course, many have come hoping to get material aid, but some are interested in the Gospel. We have had about fifty people attending the instruction classes which were held five days a week for two weeks. Out of this big class a group were examined to see if they were ready for baptism. Eight were considered as candidates, but they were to attend another two weeks' class of catechism and Bible study so that we could know as much as possible whether they were ready or not. Different subjects were taken up, such as: God, Jesus, Keeping of Sunday, the Communion Service, etc. They were indeed lacking in knowledge on some of these subjects and not only did we all find help through the study. but we became better acquainted with each other and by the daily contact I learned to know something of their problems.

During the time we had this class, this city had one of its yearly celebrations, the worship of the city's emperor which is a mud plaster figure of a man painted and dressed as befitted his title. He usually resides with his plaster grandmother in a temple, but once a year he is taken in a sedan chair to the four gates of the city and, in peaceable times, outside the city, too. Not only is he escorted by the carriers, but thousands of people take part in his parade, carrying instruments of noise and making plenty of it. At such times it is hard for some of the Christians to stand true to their colors and one of the candidates for baptism also took part in the parade. A few days later he confessed to me that he was not ready for baptism and would rather wait. The seven others in the class were all baptized.

On the day of baptism service it was a joy to see all the candidates carrying Bibles. They were now all able to read, but five of them had not been able to do so a year ago. They had attended the character class and had studied and taken examinations on six books which is required of them before they get a Bible. Many of the older Christians cannot read the Bible, and this is a great hindrance to their progress is Christian life. The only spiritual food they get is at the Sunday services.

We are very much in need of funds for Chinese workers to go into the country around us. Pray that the Lord will send more laborers into the harvest field. August Ewert.

Go, labor on; spend and be spent,
Thy joy to do the Father's will;
It is the way the Master went;
Should not the servant tread it still?
Go, labor on; 'tis not for naught;
Thy earthly loss is heavenly gain;
Men heed thee, love thee, praise thee not;
Thy Master praises — what are men?

—Bonar.

INDIA

Beginning and Growth of the Leper Asylum, Champa, India

"What mean those huts on the bank of the river Wasdeo"? Thus asked the many men and women coming from near and distant villages with their loads of vegetables for the Champa weekly bazaar. "Oh, not much, there are only two lepers living there and the missionary gives them their daily rations." ONLY lepers! Who cares for lepers? Are they not to be shunned? Have they not mahabyadi (the great sickness)? Are they not cursed of the gods? How that stings! How that cuts into the heart of him or her who already has a cross to bear of which thousands know nothing. Are they not human beings, who should have a double share of our sympathy? Yes, ONLY two lepers in simple huts on the bank of the river, these were the beginning of what is now the Bethesda Leper Home, with its 515 inmates. The primitive huts have given place to 37 substantial leper wards; four buildings for the healthy staff; one office and dispensary; one boarding, the Spencer Jack Memorial completed in August 1934, for tainted girls; one large church; two homes for untainted children, and one hospital ward in building. All buildings are in solid masonry. "This was from the Lord, and it is marvelous in our eyes." What a haven of rest this has been for homeless, friendless, hopeless sufferers whom Jesus loved so much that he "touched them." Can I ever forget Tiharu, who was ONLY a leper, wounded and heartsore when he came to us? That was many years ago. He was one among a thousand who for a few years lived as a non-Christian. Then he went through an experience that changed the man. His face shone, his heart burned, his tongue was loosed so that almost day and night he praised the Lord. He went to his native village on a visit and set on fire his listeners by his story of new found joy and peace. Said he to his villagers: "Do you remember the time when I lived in this village"? "Yes." "Do you remember that the gauntia (village owner) said: "Get out of here, you are cursed of the gods"? "Yes." "Do you remember how all of you said, 'Don't bathe in this tank, you are a leper' "? "Yes." "Do you remember the day when I said goodbye to my wife and children who cried as though their hearts would break"? "Yes, yes, we know all." "Well, I went. I went to Champa. There is a Home for such as I am. The gate was open. The Sahib said: 'Come.' He gave me clean clothing, food and medicine and never once did he say, 'you are cursed.' When the bell rang I went into the church for the first time in my life. The story of the Savior that loves lepers thrilled me. I attended regularly and now, praise God, I am a new man. Jesus touched the leper. He touched me. I have unspeakable joy. I am a Christian."

Since April, 1902, to August, 1934, this Home has given shelter for a shorter or longer time to 2500 patients, of whom 1125 have been admitted into the church by baptism. 65 lepers have been discharged as symptom free, who are living in their respective villages. The untainted homes have sheltered 85 children. Of these 22 are married. Children of these couples, 26. Our erstwhile boarding children that are now independent of all mission help, are found in the following vocations:

Three trained Bible women, two senior trained teachers, two passed compounders, one hospital assistant, two carpenters, one bricklayer, four gardeners, one trained tailor.

In training in higher institutions: Two Domestic Science and Bible women, one nursing, one senior trained teacher, one fitter and welder, one doctor. In the above list are two young people that WERE lepers, but are now symptom free. One enjoyed a government scholarship. What wonderful potentialities in these fine young people! With consecration to God and with a spirit of genuine service for India, which we endeavor to inculcate into the lives of such who are entrusted into our care, what may they not mean for the future! It pays!

P. A. Penner.

Champa, C. P., India.

Is There No Balm In Gilead?

These words came to my mind yesterday when a helpless father came walking sixteen miles with a little two months old baby, whose mother had died. India boasts of its religiosity. It is claimed that no country in the world is as religious as India. But when a man is "in the corner," when real help is needed, then there is "no balm in Gilead." Here came a father with his little baby. The father is a member of a very large caste. Thousands of his caste brethren live all around him. Now he was in desperate need. The wife had died and left a half-starved two-month-old baby. Now the thousands of caste brethren had no help to offer, but let the baby starve. The father had too much of a "father heart" to do that. He had heard that some sixteen miles away was a mission station where there were Christians, and where there were foreigners. Those people might help him in his plight. He came together with a neighbor of his. They fell down before us as long as their bodies were, and lay there with their foreheads in the dust. Upon inquiry what they wanted, they said that they wanted mercy for the baby. We inquired who they were and asked them why their caste brethren did not help. Certainly there are lots of women with a mother-heart. But they knew there was no hope. The caste brethren could coldly see the baby die without making an attempt to help. But if that same father would declare his intentions of becoming a Christian, the whole caste would be deeply stirred and protest would be abundant. One does not want to use harsh language in connection with the thinking of brotherman, but to us who have been in India for some years the whole caste system seems like a devilish trick, foisted by religious people upon the soul of India. Yet a Mahatma Gandhi fights and fasts for Hinduism, which is the caste system, as far as the common people are concerned.

We found it hard to take the baby because our funds allow no reaching out. Yet in the Christian church is the balm for these poor of the poor. Mrs. Thiessen and I were just about to eat supper when that father came with the starving baby. After a short conversation we asked them to wait a little and we went to eat our supper. Then that tiny baby began to cry, and our appetite left us. We thought of Matt. 25:34 ff. We saw no way of taking the baby, yet we could not turn a cold shoulder to the sick heart of the father. Mr. and Mrs. Wiens felt the same way about it. During the evening we found no way to solve the problem. So we asked the father to stay in the village guest-house for the night, and we would try our best to do something for him the next morning. We all seriously thought of the situation in prayer. The next morning a family was found who was willing to take the baby if others would help along in bearing the expenses. Willing Christians were found. The father's intuition had been right. There was balm for his fainting heart and his starving baby among the representatives of Christ.

John Thiessen.

In The Year Of Our Lord

1.—1924

Land for the opening of the Basna Mission Station was procured just ten years ago, in 1924.—In recounting the marvelous blessings of our Lord during these ten years, we are happy to take a glance over the years preceding 1924.

Brother and Sister Wiens through the strenuous labors of eight years preceding 1924, wrought valiantly and laid enduring foundations in these parts. To this day I marvel at what they accomplished. In pioneering sacrifices, in evangelism, in the many, many baptized, in gathering of children into school, in nurturing these children as their own, — they did deeds without which the present would never have been possible. These baptized became the roots from which our present churches have grown. These children are now our present Indian leaders and helpers.

Land for the new station was registered on April 17, 1924. The railway was 65 miles distant as the crow flies, but the usual route called for at least 100 miles over roads similar to those of the United States of America, say back about 1900. — Our plot of land was cut out of reserved forest, by the side of a lonely road. There was not a single footpath through this. A swath had to be cut to enable surveyors to run their sights and chains. So dense was the undergrowth that our two dogs feared to go more than 20 feet distant from the tents.

Twice we were pelted by clods and broken bricks by hostile neighbors in an effort to drive us out. In the Hindoo village nearby there was not a single Christian home, nor a well, not even a dog. Hindoo friends declared that if we wanted to keep a dog, we would have to put on him a collar equipped with long spikes, so that the panthers would not be able to grab him by the neck. When helpers cleaned up in front of our tent home, using cow dung wash for this purpose, we heard high caste spectators, standing off at a distance, commenting among themselves upon our cleanliness.

When we had our first Sunday School, Mrs. Moyer taught the women and I taught the men. The jungle folks got right up in the middle of prayer, or most any time and yawned or stretched or meandered hither and yon. They knew not how to sing or read or write. They possessed no home nor lands. Their household equipment, including the rags on their back, could have been purchased for $2.00 per home.

2.—1934

Today, after ten years, the changes that have come about are perfectly marvelous. Many have entered into these labors, among the missionaries being Rev. and Mrs. Wiens, Mrs. Burkhard, Rev. and Mrs. Thiessen, Rev. and Mrs. Wenger, Miss C. L. Kuehny, Dr. and Mrs. Dester, Mrs. Moyer, and the undersigned. But what Christ has done exceeds what we all together have done.

Today there are a total of 65 homes, locally, where ten years ago there were none. There now operate three Sunday Schools, entirely self-supporting, and largely by Indian Christian leaders. We have a hospital, whose fame has spread and whose influence has extended into at least six different native kingdoms and zemindaries. Ten years ago there were no wells. Now there are sixteen. Then no dogs; now they have so multiplied as to have become a nuisance. In 1925, when the first cow appeared, we asked Indro in dismay, "Why did you buy such a sack of bones"? He replied, "Well, she cost me only 33 cents, and she might give me a calf." Today, locally, Christians alone possess at least 110 head of cattle. Instead of thick jungle undergrowth, there are gardens yielding flowers, vegetables, oranges, bananas, and a number of other fruits in season.

A Christian Weavers' Association fosters cottage industry, and provides for collective marketing of home-spun cloth. The entire household from the oldest grandmother to the youngest toddling child share in this industry. In three years' time the turnover of the association has exceeded ten thousand rupees. A Christian Cooperative Bank gives each worthy brother the necessary capital to buy or rent land. As he pays back with nominal interest, the next brother gets his chance — if he is not in gross sin, if he has no other debts, if he has nicely repaid his first loan, and if he is alive in Christ Jesus. To date, over fifty families are slowly procuring land and cattle and are becoming self-supporting. Thus the Christians are slowly displacing the more shiftless non-Christian population in five of our neighboring villages, to say of nothing similarly in the district. These two activities are largely fostered by Bro. W. B. John, a man of good report and wisdom and Spirit; while we continue steadfastly in prayers and in the ministry of the Word. Acts 6:1-4.

A Primary School up to the fourth grade for Christian children is fast developing this community into a literate community, and is government recognized. The local church supports its own pastor, and does not draw on the Mission Board for any of its own expenses. Our neighbors who pelted us with clods are now our very good friends, and hang their heads in shame. The powerful Mohammedan village owner at Basna, who thwarted our every move in 1923, before he died wept tears of remorse that he had opposed us and thus permitted us to open this station five miles up in the jungles. But God had His hand in this.

Off the compound, in the district, the nucleus of eight village churches are recognized and are led by local unpaid leaders and by two locally paid Over-Shepherds. A scheme of weekly Bible Lessons of tithing of harvested crops of rice, of scheduled rotating Church Council Meetings, of scheduled Sunday Meetings, of scheduled Ministers' Meetings — these things undergird the district work. When these district Christians gather in yearly festival to sing their songs and tell Bible Lesons learned, we have the high tide of their calendar year.

And yet, "there remaineth much land to be possessed." The compound is not yet fully developed. The churches are just in their swaddling clothes. A higher grade of Church Pastor imperitively needs nurture. The "regions beyond" clamor loudly, — the door of opportunity is wide open. We need some new, fresh, strong, young blood from the homeland.

3. From Whence Came Our Help

Recounting these blessings, two wells of gratitude spring up and will not down. The first is to our heavenly Father Who has been our refuge and strength. Jesus Christ with Him has been valiantly leading us on. All along we have felt that He has not only been challenging us to purity of heart and action, — but that He has been stepping lively ahead of us, His sheep, and of us, His younger brothers and sisters. We have felt that it is ours to keep step, lest we lose sight of His leadings by our sloven courage or indifference.

The second well of gratitude is toward the homefolks and helpers in India. We are happy because of the way the home churches have stood by during these years. We appreciate the way many friends have projected their love by becoming supporters of these school children, enabling them to have a chance in life. The choicest of these children are now our right arm in this labor of love. Without the friends in the United States who have stood by the Mission Board, this work would never have been possible. In India, especially in the early years, the fellow-missionaries living in Champa and enroute at Mauhadihi have rendered inestimable help by clearing and forwarding necessities of life, building supplies, necessities for the routine work, and by their letters and open homes. Without these helps these things would have been impossible. Omit any one of them, things would have gone very lamely.

Yours, in the name of Him Who died for us that thereby we might live and DO LIVE,

Samuel T. Moyer.

Basna via Raipur, C. P. India, August 25, 1934.

"Son of Man Can These Bones Live"?

Ezekiel 37:3

It would be very interesting to know how the prophet Ezekiel felt as he, viewing the valley of very dry bones, was asked, "Son of man, can these bones live"?

By his answer the prophet shows himself a true prophet of God. Should he have answered, "Yes, Lord," it would have bordered on presumption, for as yet God had not revealed His will. To have said "no" would show that the prophet had succumbed to the difficulties, the impossible. It was the answer of faith that said, "O Lord, Thou knowest"!

The answer indicates that the prophet saw the utter impossibility of the bones becoming alive from the human standpoint; but he saw as well the possibility should God will that they should live. "O Lord, Thou knowest"!

Valley upon valley of dry bones are staring one in the face here in India. The same challenging question comes to us. Can these dry bones live? What is our answer?

"O Lord, I have tried, worked, pleaded, given, but they do not come to life. I am discouraged, Lord, I thought I could bring them to life, but there are so few and they seem so weak at times."

"But," says my Lord, "I have commanded you to preach my Gospel. Who is it that will give them life, you or I? What have you done to redeem them? I have commanded you to preach and they shall live. Can you count the live ones? Did I not have seven thousand in Israel that Elijah saw not? Preach! Preach"!

By the time this is read by you, dear fellow-workers and friends in America, we hope to be out in touring work, preaching the precious Good News. How we will need your prayers! Pray that we might have the spirit of utter abandonment and dependence upon God. For it is He that maketh alive; He that giveth the increase. It is His Word that is powerful and sharper than any two-edged sword. It will not return to Him void.

Can we here and you at home face this challenge, "Can These Dry Bones Live,"? by the answer of faith?

Paul A. Wenger.

Korba, India.

Korba Bible Course

What are the marks of a lost sheep; how may he be recognized as being lost? Was the shepherd not there when the sheep went astray? Did he not call? Is our Shepherd not here? Does He not call? If we should honestly and sincerely add our own excuses to the list of those given in refusal to God's gracious call into the Kingdom, how would the list appear? Are we seeking the Kingdom as if it were THE BEST,—THE TRUE MEASURE? Do we seek for God as sincerely and as earnestly as many Hindus do? Is it my pastor's responsibility to see to it that seed sown into my heart may grow and bear fruit? What is the most important question with regard to the witness of Korba church in its community,—the kind of sermons the pastor preaches, or the kind of lives the Christians live? Are we among those of whom Christ says, "I know you not," or of those of whom He says, "I know mine own"?

These and many other simple but practical questions have gripped us and bound us together as we searched the Scriptures, during our Annual Six Weeks Bible Course, which has only been completed a little over a week ago here in Korba. Men and women, literate and illiterate, aged, middle-aged, youth, and children, all in their own particular group, studying the parables of Jesus.

"Tell me the story simply, as to a little child," we sing in the grand old hymn. Here we must tell it simply, but the beauty of it is that the more simply it is told, the more truly it lives in the hearts of those round about us. "Our heart is fixed on the feet of Jesus," sang a group of men, when the closing program of the Bible course was being given. One of the group had been baptized only a few weeks before. It was a joy to see him joining heartily in the song,

"Some put on garlands,
Some put on the sign of Shiva,
Some put on the sacred thread, * * *
Some worship idols, * *
Some go on pilgrimages, * *
Some bathe in the Ganges, * *
Some sit among five fires,—" and always repeating the refrain, "Our heart is fixed on the feet of Jesus."

We praise God, for we believe that because of this time of special study and fellowship there are some who are better prepared to say with the Psalmist, "My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed, I will sing, yea I will sing praises."

Adah Wenger.

Fetters

As long as the Hindu remains a Hindu, he is not free. There are fetters great and small, binding him so tight to customs of all sorts that it is certainly not easy to break all of these as soon as he embraces Christianity. But some of these customs he does not intend to change and I am afraid as long as India is India, neither you nor I will be able to change him. Only Christ, if obeyed, is able to do it.

This morning it was washday at our house. The Ayah and I were wringing clothes out of the rinse water. It was getting late, so I called a water carrier to come and help us. He came, but hesitated. When I asked him again to help, he started to wring out clothes, but immediately the Ayah stepped back. Why? The water carrier's father's name is Dilbod and the Ayah's mother-in-law's brother happens to have the same name. They are not related otherwise. This is considered one of the relationships in which, according to Hindu custom, they cannot touch each other, nor work together, nor help each other. This is a Hindu custom to which many Christians still cling.

When a girl in America contemplates marriage she looks forward to her future home with great joy and anticipation. The thought of living alone with her lover and being mistress of her own home thrills her heart. The girl in India faces a different situation. Marriage for her means, with very few exceptions, that she enters the home of her mother-in-law. The mother-in-law acquaints the new bride within a very short time that she is not in her own home, but in the home of her mother-in-law. She is to take, not give, orders and obey the mother-in-law even more than her husband. The cooking, cleaning, leeping (covering the floor every morning with cow dung), carrying water, etc., is turned over to the bride. And if the bride objects, her husband usually takes the side of her mother-in-law. Because of the hard ruling hand of the mother-in-law the joy of many a young couple who loved each other at the time of marriage, is destroyed. Hindu customs like these are responsible for much unhappiness and suffering.

India is in fetters. It is only when the people become true disciples of Jesus that they become free as Jesus Himself says, "If the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." John 8:36.

Cholera Experiences
Psalm 91

It was Saturday night, and the first cholera patient was admitted in our hospital. The patient was in a state of collapse and we had little hopes for her recovery. Medicines by mouth, hypodermaclysis of Saline, stimulants by hypodermic injections, and external heat were administered and applied. All night we worked and watched, wondering if the patient would recover.

Sunday morning at last arrived. Our efforts were not in vain. The patient's pulse became perceptible, vomiting and purging stopped and she started to mend. But this was not the end of cholera.

The next day her husband, who had stayed with her, started with the same trouble. Another case was admitted. A fourth case broke out in the ward, whom we were unable to save. We were extremely sad when this girl took sick and died. She had contracted the disease while being an inpatient.

Her mother, who stayed with her now, lost all interest in life. She grieved, she lamented, she suffered because her daughter was gone. Should she not grieve and lament? She had no hope, she did not know the God of comfort. Her future was dark.

The next day she herself went down with the same illness. She refused medicines, she wanted to die. With great difficulty we persuaded her to take treatments. Saline was injected into the tissues, stimulants were given, but she responded poorly to treatments. Her old father and mother who were by her bedside began to despair and wondered if she would also leave them.

Here were these three without hope in God and death staring them in the face. The patient was not improving by medicines, they wanted to save her. "Will idol worship help"? the old father asked. "No," I replied, "only Christ, who is the true God, can help. If you so desire we will pray to Him." He wanted us to pray. Can you picture the scene of the dying patient on the bed, the old father sitting on the floor with a few live coals by his side, trying to warm the already cold extremities. These people were among the most ignorant of the ignorant, and since we are not master of their language, I called Mr. Asna, our deacon, to pray with them in their own village dialect. Slowly Mr. Asna prayed to God who hears, who loves, and who tenderly calls the lost. The old father with bowed head and folded hands repeated the last words of each sentence. The Amen was said, and about two or three hours later the daughter was no more with them.

We now decided to see cholera patients in their homes rather than admit them in the hospital and thus endanger any of our other inpatients. Many were the cases we saw. Day and night we were busy, but the words of Psalm 91 repeatedly were brought to our minds. The Lord protected us. He not only protected us, but He gave new strength for each new task. Inoculations against cholera were started. Some days we had large crowds in our dispensary. In all we inoculated over six hundred people in Champa and Janjgir and four hundred in Korba.

The Lord spoke to us all in a loud voice during this epidemic. In Champa alone we had nearly two hundred fifty deaths from this illness. Among these two hundred fifty there was not one Christian except a few lepers. God watched over His own and He spared them all. This made quite an impression upon some of the non-Christians. Some have given this testimony that God protected the Christians. Would that it would so impress them that they would accept Him who not only saves from cholera, but who saves from sin and eternal death.

Loreeta Lehman.

What About the Depression in Mission Work?

We read and hear much about the blessings this depression has been and is for the missions. It is good and right to see the best in all happenings and calamities, and I am not going to say anything against or for them, but only relate a few facts, although it may seem as if I am taking an opposite view. Here it is.

In former years the missionaries took in the orphans that were brought to them either as babies or children more advanced in age. How is that now? I shall mention here just three concrete cases. A few years ago Dr. Ella Bauman opened a babyfold in connection with the hospital at Champa, but the high cost of maintenance compelled them to close this necessary work, and it has been closed ever since.

First case. Twins were brought to Birra station, their mother having died a few days ago. First inquiries were made specially of those who have not their own children and then of the rest; unnecessary to say, of the Christian families. None being found to adopt the twins, they were sent with their father to Champa, perhaps some Christian family would be willing to have them, although we were not aware that the babyfold had been closed already. But the inquiry there was also without any result, and the father, who had carried his twin babies over twenty miles there, had to turn homeward. Half way between Champa and Birra the twins died, and the father went home without his babies, but they were not in any Christian home or orphanage, where the father had hoped to put them.

Case number two. It was during the hot season. One morning a serious accident happened in the village Birra, three and a half miles from the mission station, and I was sent for to take care of the case, but I took the badly injured man at once to the hospital at Champa. While I was getting the car ready and packing also my necessary articles for going to the hills, because my plan was to leave at 8 A. M. for Champa and then leave for Landour, there was also among the many people who had come to say goodbye, a man with a baby, offering it to anybody who would care for it. I had to hurry and go because the second messenger had come from Birra, urging to come quickly. I had forgotten about that baby to inquire later, and when I did ask about it nobody knew what had become of the child, but so much was certain, none of the Christians had taken it. Where it is or what has become of it, nobody here knows. Another child lost from the fold! Why are babies not wanted any more by the mission? NO FUNDS to keep and bring them up, and the Christian families are, most of them, too poor to take proper care of their own children, and so this source of ingathering and increase is closed.

Case number three. About three weeks ago a two-month-old baby boy was brought to the mission. Who wants a baby boy two months old? Nobody. We have not enough to feed our own growing families. Take the child back to your village and let your own caste people take care of it. We cannot, the child will die; you take it. After conferring and deliberating and waiting till evening, there was a young couple who are on the waiting list for baptism, who declared themselves willing to take the baby and care for it if they would be paid a certain sum for the work. An agreement was reached and one missionary family has promised to furnish the milk for six months and the other missionary family supplies the bedding, and one Indian Christian sister has promised some clothing, while the mission dispensary furnishes the feeding bottles and rubber nipples. The rest, the taking care charges, shall be agreed on and supplied by voluntary contributions. This way the baby boy may become a community protege.

Why not have the church take care of this baby? This church has now for several years already supported some people. First one young couple was supported for three years in the Janjgir Bible School; for nearly two years one boy was sent to a tailoring school and his expenses paid, after that a second boy was trained in a tailoring school and his support was given by the church, and this year a second young couple is being trained in the mission Bible School at Janjgir, and the church pays for them. The incomes are shriveling, but the demands are increasing. One fund of the mission, "Where Needed Most," could do much good, but that fund has so few contributors. The depression is still on.

Greetings to all readers from your co-workers,

P. J. and Agnes Wiens.

Birra via Janjgir, C. P., India.

A Special Request For Prayer

We have a young chap in charge of the tailoring shop who grew up in our orphanage and who learned sewing by hand many years ago while he sat on our veranda. About Christmas time, or shortly before, he was married to one of the Christian girls from Basna who had been a student in the Janjgir girls' school. The young couple seemed very happy — until a dark cloud came over them. The young woman had continued fever and upon examination it was found that she had tuberculosis. She was sent at once to Pendra Road, where there is a mission sanatorium. That was a few months ago and Dr. Lutz, who is in charge there, writes encouraging letters saying that the girl is improving right along. She is glad that the girl came while the sickness was in its beginning stages, and this gives us all great hopes that the girl can be cured. But this time of waiting is very hard on the young husband and his heart is very sad. When they had to separate he wept like a child. Please pray for him that God may give him comfort and peace even in this time of anxiety.

We often wonder what is the purpose of all the sickness and suffering in the world. This question has concerned each one of us at some time or other. It is hard to find an answer, but one thing is sure: it creates in us love and sympathy and a feeling of concern for others. It keeps us from getting hard-hearted and puts a new meaning into prayer. It helps to purify and refine our more sensitive natures. It makes us forget all barriers between us and makes us feel like one big family. In this way we not only sympathize with the members of our own families, but can feel the same deep concern for suffering humanity on the other side of the globe.

For this reason it has been possible to carry on mission work in the different fields. It is because friends in the homeland are enough concerned about "poor Lazarus who sits outside the gate." We would wish that at this time when many cannot give as much money to the General Treasury as you would like, that your sympathetic interest and concern and prayers may be doubled.

"More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of. Wherefore let thy voice
Rise like a fountain for me night and day.
For what are men better than sheep or goats
That nourish a blind life within the brain,
If knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer
Both for themselves and those who call them friend?
For so the whole round earth is every way
Bound by gold chains about the feet of God."
—Alfred Tennyson.

With Christian greetings,

Elizabeth W. Thiessen.

Try Yourself As A Missionary To The Hindus

It may be interesting to some of our mission friends to try themselves on answering questions such as are repeatedly put to us in our evangelistic work. To answer questions like the following in a Scriptural way and so that the questioner will be drawn to Jesus and be led to accept Him as Savior, is no easy task. We missionaries are repeatedly confronted with such situations. We do our best but feel wanting. If someone feels positively sure what should be answered, I am sure we will appreciate to hear of it in a letter.

1. A Hindu who has been sick for several years seems to have little chance for recovery. We ask him whether he will be glad to die. His answer is "Yes, I shall be glad if God either makes me well or takes me by death." Upon our further questions as to whether there are any sins that disturb him in his thought of death and of meeting God, he answers, "I have never sinned. There is no sin that disturbs me in my thought of death." In answering such a person one must remember that his thinking has a Hindu and not a Christian background. How would you help this man?

2. Another Hindu was asked whether his sins were forgiven by God or not. His answer was that God deals with a person according to his works. There is no such thing as forgiveness with God. As we live, so we shall reap. His thought on the question is colored by his belief in re-births. How should such a Hindu be dealt with?

3. In speaking to a "Kabir Panti" about his salvation, he came back at us Christians in a rather self-righteous spirit with this question, "Why do you take life? God is life and the source of life. All life is of God and so a part of God. By taking life you sin against God. Why do you sin against God like this? Now, Christians, how will you answer him so that your argumentation will not estrange him, but win him to Christ? This is no easy task. W. F. Unruh.

The Annual Bible Course

To perform evangelistic or any other religious work the Bible above all other literature should constitute the sole foundation. The above enterprises have their particular objectives in view to bring before the people, viz., to enhance, "The knowledge of HIM (Christ), the power of HIS resurrection,, the fellowship of HIS sufferings, and being made conformable unto HIS death." Furthermore, "That He might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit." Again along with this, "But grow in the grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." Getting this done requires an outstanding practical familiarity with the contents of the Holy Book.

The Indian co-workers have very little opportunity to make use of commentaries, explanatory material to augment their knowledge because the Hindi language has so few books along that line since the public battles with extreme poverty reducing the purchasing possibility next to nil. The missionaries planned how these helpers could be assisted. As early as 1912 a course covering some portions of both Old and New Testaments with certain characters was planned. The Indian working staff, both men and women, met thereafter each year for two or three weeks at one station, either early in spring or the beginning of fall. The first year, of course, all convened in one class, thereafter, as new members came in, other changes were made, and as many as three classes were arranged.

The church gained larger proportions, the general instruction proved insufficient. The above procedure had good success, nevertheless was inadequate, because only a small portion of the Christian constituency obtain direct benefits. Another method was felt to become a pressing need. It is very true, each Lord's Day the preaching, reading and reciting of Scriptures, the Sunday School bearing on God's Word besides the weekly prayer meetings and Bible classes lent an invaluable help all around. Although a lack of intensive Bible study made itself urgently known. It became more urgent to get something out that would give each one a chance sharing the ingathering of detailed knowledge on different phases what is found in the Scripture.

This made it necessary to look about for an opportune time when most Christians could attend such course. During the monsoon when the district work must be more or less abandoned, the roads are either impassable or closed, seeding and weeding proceeds, the general public abstains from moving about far, this appeared all around an appropriate section of the year. Six weeks were agreed upon; generally July and a goodly part of August. The monsoon extends from middle of June until toward the end of September. Sometimes in our section more than 60 inches of water falls.

Another matter was the allotment of study material. One year the book of Job and Romans seemed most suitable, then again Isaiah, First and Second Corinthians; again Judges and Ruth; First and Second Timothy, Titus; another time First and Second Samuel, First Peter, the three letters according to John, Jude; Old Testament characters most outstanding among Israel, Revelation; furthermore Jeremiah, Gospel of John and the Harmony; this year the Psalms and Parables of our Lord Jesus. That the material for each year's six weeks proved too much cannot be debated, however, the instructors in their preparation made special efforts to divide and adjust everything as far as possible to suit the special classes and grades of students.

Some readers, I surmise, ask: How did this work out? Each station, knowing with what class material it has to study and instruct, therefore had to feel its way through to make the very best of the opportunity confronting. From two to nine classes were arranged as circumstances required. For the illiterates only the lightest portions could be set aside; the middle division covered about half the course; the evangelists, teachers and those having acquired a further education took everything. Careful planning, allotting, preparing have made this season of deep and systematic study of God's Word accessable to about 90% of the Christian community. Not only did the Christians avail themselves of this wonderful opportunity, but non-Christians participated eagerly, their subjects of conversation found herein occasion. The seed fell on receptive soil. A lawyer inquired when the second coming of Christ should be dealt with. He was there with his note book, some of the pages were filled. This year the Parables stirred a number of young people to make their decision regarding the stand in Christ; lay members saw the deficiency in their daily life; the workers as evangelists and teachers testified the neglect of progressive Bible study, bemoaned the set-back in living a life of true witness for Christ; furthermore admitted never having known the manifold teachings in the Parables and the invaluable Psalms which ordinarily sounded so alike that interest in their study was weak, but now the treasury has been unlocked.

The discontinuation of this annual Bible Course in the judgment of all would spell disaster, robbing God's flock of the grand opportunity that makes for Christ and His Kingdom. After each time of such gathering one notices how the impetus was reinforced to appreciate the Bible still more than aforetime. The saints find out that this Word of God is absolutely infallible, inspired by the Holy Spirit. These efforts counteract the destructive inroads that the enemies of the cross cause by their unwholsesome literature. This course will continue, arouse more interest and must lift the life of the diligent student to a higher standard in Christ.

P. W. Penner.

Janjgir, C. P., India.

CHOLERA AND TRUTH

"Haiza," that is cholera, is a term that strikes terror in the mind of the average villager of India. It causes fear, panic, and paralyzes industry. Recently one of hospital workers and I went to a cholera stricken village. Upon approaching the village, we noticed that there was no one working in the fields nor were there any carts or pedestrians to be seen anywhere. This was at a time of the year when every available man and animal is usually in the field. Groups of vultures were scattered over the meadow near the village and the fact that they were eating cholera victims, did not make the situation any less horrible. As we entered the village, we felt the same deadly atmosphere. Two, five, ten were dying daily in a village of 800 inhabitants, Cholera is no respecter of person or cast. It is not surprising that many people died since there was no isolation, there was no provision for sewage disposal, many people were drinking water from ponds, and the dead bodies were thrown in the field or barely covered with dirt on the banks of the pond.

Dusk found us located in the village school house. The vultures were flying by on their way to roost, dogs were invading our premises in the hope of stealing food, bats were darting about aimlessly in the gathering gloom, and as a climax the solemn watchman brought the news that twelve had died in the past twenty-four hours. Is it any wonder that the physical forces began to cast a spell of gloom over the two strangers in a stricken village?

We realized that other forces needed to be marshalled to the front. Never did Psalm 91 mean so much to me as that night. "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty. — A thousand shall fall at thy side — but it shall not come nigh thee. — His truth shall be thy shield and buckler." With such forces at our disposal the physical powers about us became nil, nay not nil, but contributory voices in the harmony of the "secret place." "His truth shall be thy shield and buckler." Truth, boiled water, cholera vaccine, chlorine disinfectants, and a knowledge of cholera were our shield and buckler. Truth, Christ's "All power is given unto me," was our fortress. "When I sent you, . . . lacked ye anything"?

Truth, what may it not imply! How wonderful the truth of medical science, imperfect as it may be! The average span of life in England is fifty-two years, in India twenty-three. Infant mortality in England is 69 per 1000, in India as high as 200 to 500 per 1000. In America the expectant mother faces the situation with the promise of every possible help, in India with lethargic resignation to fate and to the ignorant, superstitious sweeper woman who will attend her. Diphtheria, at one time almost as dreaded in America as cholera in India, caused only forty deaths in the state of Indiana during the first six months of 1934. These differences are a matter of truth, and the application of the principles of Him who said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life."

Lack of truth sets denomination against denomination, faction against faction, "Fundamentalist" against "Modernist," while the truth of "Go ye" is forgotten. Lack of truth sends thousands from one holy place to another of India in quest of life and the truth of Him who said, "I am . . . life" is not known, and it sends thousands from one pleasure resort of America to another to find and save life, and the way of Him who said. "He who would save his life shall lose it," is not followed.

What am I doing that men might know the truth and follow Him who is "the way, the truth, and the life."

H. E. Dester, M. D.

NEWS FROM NORTHERN CHEYENNE INDIAN RESERVATION, MISSION FIELD, BUSBY

By A. Habegger

The government issued orders that the cattle owned by the Indians be reduced by half their number because of shortage of grass and hay, due to the drought. The government has sent in several hundred head of lean cattle from outside the Reservation. These were branded U. S., and butchered by the Indians, and some of the meat was dried for later use. Now the cattle that the government has bought from the Indians for from $4.00 to $8.00 per head for calves and $12.00 to $20.00 per head for cows were also branded U. S., and will be butchered by the Indians for immediate consumption. For some who had cattle it means they got paid $20.00 for their cows and then got them back to eat free of all charge. This because they are wards of the government.

On Tongue River in the Birney District the Government has been rebuilding the irrigation ditch which has not been in use for a number of years. $34,000.00 were appropriated for this purpose, but the money will not reach to complete the work, and added appropriations have been requested through Senator Wheeler of Montana. The head Irrigation Watermaster, when asked whether he believed that the expenses were justified and whether the ditch would pay for the investment made. said: "The question is not whether it will pay. but will it do the Indians some good." Well, the Indians at least got to work this summer and had plenty of food, but none have improved their homes or laid up something for the coming winter, but a few have bought harness for their teams and some clothes, while quite a number have invested in second hand cars.

Another government project is the building of much needed roads on the Reservation. From Lame to Birney caterpillar tractors and a stone crusher have done much work to make a real highway between the two points. The Indians have hauled crushed stone and also helped make the grade. Other roads are to be improved until we will have a road system of which we may well be proud.

The C. C. C. Camps on the Reservation also have given employment to many Indians. They have built miles of fences, cutting the Reservation into convenient grazing units. They have also cleared and cleaned springs, to make better watering places for cattle and horses and sheep. At the Busby Camp we have had services for those who are interested and literature is being distributed which has been donated and financed by friends of the work living at Berne, Indiana.

The mission buildings, both the dwelling house and the church at Birney, have been repaired this summer. Special evening services were held at the church during the time the repair work was done. This field needs more concentrated effort. The people as a whole are friendly and live closer to the station than at any other mission station. As a whole the people are of the most conservative on the Reservation, no doubt due to ignorance and isolation.

The Interior Department of Indian affairs has ordered that the number of pupils in the Boarding Schools be reduced. Indian children within walking distance of the school may have dinner at the school, but receive no clothing or lodging. Children whose parents receive regular salaries may attend as day school pupils, but cannot have the noonday meal. Poverty is to be no excuse to put children into the Boarding Schools. This seems to be another step to close the few remaining Boarding Schools.

On August 30th, Marden C. Habegger left Busby for Newton, Kansas, after spending the summer with his parents. He was graduated from the Berne, Indiana, High School in spring and is now enrolled as a freshman in Bethel College. Jeanne finished the eighth grade by correspondence from the Calvert School, Baltimore, Maryland. At present she is taking High School work from the American School in Chicago, by correspondence, her father and mother each supervising two subjects. Helen, Esther, David, and Lois attend the Tongue River Boarding School as Day School pupils.

The enrollment of the Busby Sunday School is seventy-seven at the beginning of the schoolyear. The teachers are the same as last year. Milo B. Davis teaches the primary class, Rev. Habegger the Junior class, Miss Nina Lamberg and Henry Owl teach Intermediate classes, and Mrs. Habegger teaches the adult class. New song books for the Sunday School were furnished by different classes of the Sunday School at Berne, Indiana. The adult class has pledged to buy a new heater for the church this fall. Mrs. Owl from Tennessee is organist for the Sunday School.

Lame Deer, Montana, September 24, 1934.

Dear Mission Friends:—

"It is thirty-eight years ago today since I began my life work as a missionary at Cantonment, Oklahoma," was my remark at the breakfast table to the lady who is staying with me while Mr. Petter is away at Kettle Falls, Wash.

She replied that some kind of celebration would be appropriate. However, the celebration took the form of hanging storm window sashes, storm doors, and making further preparations for the oncoming winter. It snowed during the night and is still snowing. The atmosphere is cold and cheerless. The sky is overcast. The walks and roads are slushy.

Though a special celebration was wanting, I celebrated in my heart while busy with many things. In thought I again lived over the past. It seemed but "yesterday" when Mr. and Mrs. Jake Krehbiel with light spring wagon and pony team brought me over the 65 mile stretch of sandy Indian trails from Darlington, Oklahoma, to the new field of intensely interesting experiences at Cantonment. I again recall the text God so vividly impressed upon my mind and heart while I was still on the train that sped west, taking me from Ohio to Indian Territory, as it was still called, that "When He putteth forth His sheep, He goeth before them."

But it is not my purpose to reminisce in this article. The Secretary of the Board has asked for about 1800 words from the Montana workers for the next Mission Number of the church papers. We wish to comply with this request, and present our fields with such experiences as we have made, especially in the past year.

The immediate experience for me is my return last Friday from Kettle Falls, Wash. A lady friend from here made the two weeks' trip with me. Mr. Petter had wished that I might come if but for a short time. With fine highways and good weather, one need no longer dread Camel's Hump, McDonald Pass or even Lookout Pass, as I once did, especially when the car responds to the wheel as mine did. We stopped three nights in going the more than 850 miles, but only two in coming the longer distance via Sandpoint to avoid the bad detour over Camel's Hump. We rejoice to have arrived before the snow blocked our way.

The wonderful panorama of scenery through western Montana, northern Idaho, and eastern Washington delights the eye and refreshes the mind. I am grateful for this pleasant diversion from the continual "grind" on the mission field.

During my brief stay in Kettle Falls, it was our privilege to attend a service at the "Emigranten Haus" near Deer Park, which our dear Brother Aeschliman of Colfax conducted. Then we had the pleasure of having him spend a night with us at our ranch, or rather orchard home there in Kettle Falls.

And now for high lights in our experiences since I returned from the General Conference at Bluffton, Ohio. last fall. The burden upon our hearts then was the plea for prayerful and interested support for a completed translation of the New Testament into Cheyenne. The opposition on the field had at times been so bitter and our churches and our Board were having such a struggle to maintain their workers and their various fields that at times we felt well nigh crushed with the stupendous task so nearly accomplished and yet so far from being accomplished.

Very clearly my task for the winter was to secure for Mr. Petter the utmost of undisturbed hours for the laborious reading of the various texts, the careful search for the right word in Cheyenne, the daily consultations with Indians about this or that expression as they came and went from our home. Yet at the same time the regular mission work of our own Lame Deer station, also that of Birney, some 23 miles distant, had to go on. The regular services had to be conducted, as well as funerals, marriage ceremonies were performed, sick were visited, a native ministry was being trained.

By the grace of God, verse for verse of the last books of the Bible were thus "ground out" until on April 11, at 11:15 A. M., the last word in the Bible had been given in Cheyenne.

Words simply fail me to give an adequate conception of such a task. One needs to live in daily contact with a translator of the Word to realize its magnitude.

Some have chided: "Why aim at such a thorough rendition of the text? Why not speed up and give a paraphrastic translation on difficult verses? Why confine oneself almost wholly to this one task? Why not divide up one's time to permit social contacts and diversions? Why wear oneself out on a rather unappreciated task? The younger generation of Indians will soon all talk English, why bother with such a laborous translation to be relegated to the shelves of our museums sooner or later"? Thus various have been the suggestions of friends and enemies.

As the ammunition trains were ever the sought out targets for the enemy in the late war, so it can readily be seen that the translater of the Word is especially hard pressed. Read, "The Shrine of a People's Soul," by Edwin W. Smith, who tells the story of how men and women have gone to new fields, have mastered an unknown tongue, have reduced it to writing, have finally translated the New Testament or the whole Bible into the strange tongue to get the thrill of such a task. This writer says, "We rightly admire a scholar who single handed translates the whole Bible into English! how much more ought we to admire a man who goes out to some outlandish spot, learns the language from the lips of the people and then, perhaps after thirty or forty years of toil, gives them the Word of God in their language. He has his reward when his people read it and say, 'Yes, this is our language,' and find God there."

To further appreciate difficulties in giving the Word of God to a people who knows it not, read also the story of Jeremiah in the 36th chapter of his book and realize the magnitude of the task God required of him in the face of bitter opposition, "Take thee again another roll and write in it all the former words that were in the first roll, which Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, hath burned."

Now let our Cheyenne translator speak of his own experiences: "If my translation work taxes my brain, on the other hand it gives me great joy and satisfaction. One has to look at a verse from all angles to give its exact rendition in Cheyenne. Often a single word throws a new light on the text, never seen before, like a special ray from on high. This spiritual compensation far outweighs all the toil and all the privations, and makes the work a real delight."

Once he wrote, "I am coming to the twelfth chapter of Revelation and thus far have found no difficulties of interpretation, nor has the peculiar phraseology of John been hard to put into Cheyenne. Just the same, one cannot 'go on high' through those 'seals, trumpets, bowls' and other labyrinths . . . In going slowly and carefully, one can pick a sure path."

Again he writes: "Yesterday I came to Rev. 4 and the part from verses 2-8 kept me thinking a long time. I had to give Cheyenne names to all those precious stones according to their color and effulgence, for it is that and not the "stones" themselves that has importance. I had to ransack Hebrew meanings of those stones and their effulgence and then carefully read all information I could get about precious stones. Found out that there is little agreement among connoisseurs and that Hebrew appellations fit not the later descriptions of gems by Greeks and Romans . . . So here in verse two jasper and sardius are not two, but a compound of both . . . not diamond (white), but a most glorious combination of deep yellow (burnished gold) and dull red, very much like some of the glorious sunsets in Montana."

Another excerpt from a letter written on the day when the task was completed, reads: "Let everything that hath breath praise Jehovah." I finished translating the last book of the Book of books just five minutes ago. Words fail me to say how I felt when the last word of the Bible was put into Cheyenne. As I penned the last verse, "The grace of the Lord Jesus be with the saints," I knew instinctively that this grace had sustained me in the arduous task, and that this grace would accompany this book of God in Cheyenne."

"Barring the printing of the newly translated books, my main work is now accomplished. While it was arduous and many times Satan opposed it, nevertheless it was of deep, eternal, divine blessing to me. Never before had I experienced the depth of God's Word as I did while translating Revelation. In reading and translating verse 18 and verse 19 of the last chapter, I could truly say that I did my utmost in spirit, mind, and heart to never 'add' and never 'take from' the precious message of God.

"I say not that I did THE BEST. God only can make a perfect translation. I feel assured that our Cheyenne Indians will understand this book with little explanation. Before translating Revelation, I went over most of the prominent views on the book, beginning with the church fathers, Catholic and Protestant . . . views galore during 18 centuries. Yet none of them gave me an insight like the one I got by simply reading, re-reading, thinking and re-thinking the wonderful message."

Now other high lights of the winter's experiences were the Thanksgiving service patterned as usual after that of the Puritan fathers. Then the joyful Christmas program with the elaborate evergreen Christmas decorations, the joy of the children in the rendition of their parts, the opening of mission boxes from far-away mission friends . . . The Easter cantata meant time and effort, but delighted audiences both here and in Busby . . . The "church exhibit" I describe in a separate article, for it was a most successful and satisfying affair and attracted much favorable comment. . . . Later the concert of classical piano music and vocal solos in our church was a unique venture, which repaid me amply for all it cost in effort and time.

I mention one more high light in our experience when Miss Leona Thierstein of Whitewater, Kansas, volunteered to come again and assist in the printing of all of the newly translated books, and thus to finish up this great work. In view of the very serious accident Bro. Thierstein had had the previous summer, which still handicapped him greatly, we dared not hope that Leona would come. Praise God that she did come, and in her efficient way she set the type, folded papers, helped run the sheets through the machine, kept the printing shop (rear room at church) in order, and by her sunny disposition greatly assisted in overcoming many difficulties, so that before the extreme heat of the summer was upon us, she and Mr. Petter were able to finish this important task. It was my privilege to do the daily proof reading, and otherwise assist so the work go on without needless disturbances . . . PRAISE GOD FROM WHOM ALL BLESSINGS FLOW, PRAISE HIM ALL CREATURES HERE BELOW, PRAISE HIM ABOVE YE HEAVENLY HOST, PRAISE FATHER. SON AND HOLY GHOST.

In His glad service,

Bertha E. K. Petter.

EDUCATION WITHOUT CHRIST—DOES IT PAY

In an unusually small and dilapidated shack live a man and his wife. They have hardly anything to eat. Their clothes are real old and ragged. Furniture does not exist. The man is a human derelict. A confirmed drunkard, an adulterer, an inveterate gambler, and a bitter enemy of the church for many years. He now has lung trouble besides social diseases. Until recently, he was regularly emplowed at the Catholic Boarding School and church as interpreter. The priests spoke through him on Sundays in their services — in spite of what his character is. Finally his declining health prevented him from keeping this job. Just now he has temporary employment guarding dried meat and smoking it. (The government is shipping in 1000 head of drought cattle for the Indians to eat. About 165 head are for this district. The government pays the Indians $3.00 a day to butcher the animals and dry the meat. This meat is to be issued free of charge to the Indians next winter.)

You would expect this couple to be ignorant outcasts. But not so. They are both well educated. The man is probably the best educated and most brilliant Indian on the entire reservation. He speaks English fluently, has attended schools for the higher education of Indians in the east, has traveled extensively, etc. He could have risen to any position in the government service had he wished to do so. And had he been an earnest Christian he could have become a full fledged missionary. But in spite of all his learning, in spite of his keen ability to think, he chose the way that leadeth to destruction, and now he reaps the terrible harvest — part of it.

I have described him to you so that you may pray definitely for his conversion and also for the conversion of his wife. He is middle aged, but has the appearance of a broken old man. He has been deeply touched a time or two by the Gospel Message, but has always sunk back to greater depths of sin and hatred against Christ. Pray for him and his wife!

His is not particularly an exceptional case among such Indians who have had the privilege of higher education minus Christianity!

The other day I spoke to a fine young man just back last June from several years in an Agricultural College and also in a School of Higher Education in the west. He had confidently expected to enter a well paid government position on his return here. But the agent had none for him, except work at $1.00 a day and board. He said to me: "I have no time to waste on a $1.00 a day job." And in spite of his years of agricultural training and a special course in dairying last winter he did not know the breed of a thoroughbred heifer that happened to walk past us while we were talking. One feels like saying, "Hurrah for Uncle Sam and higher education"! (A leading National Magazine, with over 2,000,000 circulation per week, had a story about an Indian girl who spent several years in eastern schools. It showed how utterly unfit she was to return to her tribe in Arizona — after "learning to drink tea with the proper crook in her little finger," etc. And this article closed with the quotation: "Hurrah for Uncle Sam and higher education.")

Pray for this young man, too. Life is before him. It has not yet been marred by open sin. It could be used for the glory of God. He and his young wife are both Catholics. His wife is also from a higher school. If once converted, and with their education, they could become a great blessing to their people here.

Mr. and Mrs. Valdo Petter.

Ashland, Montana.

THE CONGO INLAND MISSION

By A. M. Eash

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of the work of the Congo Inland Mission during the past several years was the large ingathering of souls into the Christian church. In a short period of three years the membership has almost trebled, increasing from about 1100 to over 3000. This large increase can be laid to several contributing causes and has been responsible for a large increase in responsibility and activities. It is regarding this increase and the associated experiences that this article will briefly deal.

The program of the mission has been one of teaching the word rather than preaching. True, there have always been regular preaching services and evangelistic campaigns. However, the large program has been one of gathering groups of children and adults together and teaching them. This teaching consisted both giving the rudiments of reading and the actual messages from the word of God. At the end of 1933 nearly ten thousand people were weekly in some study group or other. The large portion of this number attended regular week day school sessions and also the Sunday services. This large number of people was scattered throughout nearly two hundred villages in area about two hundred by four hundred miles in extent, and the teaching was done by a force of about two hundred Christian men and women. One of the many things for which both the present day missionaries and Board members can be profoundly thankful is the fact that the mission founders believed literally in a teaching program. They believed that the Word as it goes forth does not return void. They gave themselves to a translation of the Bible into the native languages, the writing of very simple school primers and, then, gathering the people into small groups and engaging with them in this teaching ministry.

To be more explicit, we might state that the missionaries are located in four centers. At these centers schools have been established where about six hundred resident boys and girls are carefully supervised in their daily life, are instructed in station schools, and are given regulated experience in the simple arts of living, food raising, etc. These pupils are kept in these station schools for from five to eight years. During this time they learn the rudiments or reading, writing, numbering, etc. Practically all of them are also enrolled in catechetical classes where the fundamentals of the Christian religion are taught. One of the logical results of these years of instruction and supervision is that the large majority of them become Christians with a profession based upon an actual experience — and that experience based on definite knowledge.

Back of these station schools, scattered through the bush and on the plains are hundreds of native villages in which the darkest superstitions and ignorance prevail. It is to nearly two hundred of these scattered villages that the mission has sent native Christian families — one to a village — there to conduct simple elementary week day schools and to teach and preach the Word of God. To these scattered village schools have come the likely and unlikely boys and girls. To them have also come the village men and women. It is not an unusual sight to see a village chief sitting poring over his letters and syllables, aided by some humble village boy who has had a somewhat longer experience in trying to read. Neither is it unusual to see a mother of the village with her primer in one hand and with the other hand holding a bouncing nursing baby.

The village teacher is a patient individual. He has not yet learned the haste and irritability of the Western and so he teaches whether there are disturbances or not. Chickens, goats, and even pigs stroll through the studying group — and they study on and teach on. He works for a small salary, amounting to less than $10.00 for an entire year. He raises his own foods and out of the meager salary buys his clothing. His home is a mud building and his life is lived exceedingly simple. His faith in his God and things divine carries him through difficulties which would otherwise seem insurmountable. To his people he is a man of wisdom. He can read and write. His contact with the white missionaries has introduced him to the large outside world. He wears the white man's clothes and has adopted some of his mannerisms. With his chief he often shares the distinction of settling village disputes. His contact with Christianity, as expressed by the mission and missionary and as experienced in his heart, have lifted him from the common ranks into a distinct place of leadership.

Once or several times a year his recommendations to the missionary aid in selecting the choice village school boys and girls who then have the privilege of traveling to the mission station and becoming resident pupils there. The periodical visits to his village by the missionary on his tours of inspection and supervision, are banner days in the lives of the villagers. Everyone is in the school. the teacher does his best and every pupil studies intently and recites bravely. The missionary in his wise counsels reprimands the slothful and commends the diligent. Particularly does he seek to strengthen the hands and words of the teacher who has faithfully labored throughout the year.

And so it has happened that throughout the vast area in Central Africa the Congo Inland Mission has established a series of village centers — usually known as OUTSTATIONS — where the Gospel message is being faithfully given. Only one result from this extensive evangelistic teaching program is possible — that eventually this Word will take root and there be a large ingathering into the Christian church. That ingathering is now taking place and regularly the mails bring the joyous word of multitudes who have come to know the Lord Jesus Christ as their Savior and have come into the Christian church.

There is yet another point to consider in connection with this revival increase. In the central station schools every year a number of boys and girls — who have now become young men and women — are graduated from the regular elementary school. The missionary has discovered who of these graduates have abilities which would aid them in becoming future native leaders in still more centers of work. These are gathered into training classes where for a period of several years they are given intensive training in the subjects which they would later need to teach, should they eventually be fortunate enough to be selected for such work. Also they are given thorough instruction in the fundamental teachings of the Bible so that they may become efficient teachers of that Word. When finally they are graduated from the Teacher Training Classes they are fairly well equipped to return to their home villages or else go to some other village and there open new evangelistic educational centers of work. And so the work of the mission is rapidly growing and spreading, thousands are daily under the sound of the Gospel and hundreds are coming into the church of Jesus Christ.

The second phase of this discussion deals with the results of this large ingathering. During the past three years over two thousand members have been received into the church. Many of these are both young in years as well as in Christian experience. They came out of a raw, ignorant, superstitious, barbarious paganism. Without any home or village environment that is conducive to living and developing the Christian life, the problem of leading and nurturing these young Christians has become an enormous task for the missionaries and their native helpers. The lure of the former life, the appeals of their fellow villagers, the general unchristian environment are always working in opposition to the Christian appeal. The problem of the missionary is more than one of evangelism. It has become one of training and nurturing, disciplining and guiding. The missionary's task is never completed. He could work day and night if his physical and mental powers permitted. As it is, in his zeal he sometimes forgets his physical limitations. The result is broken bodies and spirits and the pathetic picture of missionaries being invalided to the homeland. This has happened in the experience of the Congo Inland Mission. It is happening today, and there are prospects that if the forces on the mission field are not greatly strengthened it will occur increasingly in the future.

The needs of our mission can be briefly stated as follows:

1. At least a one-half increase in the number of white missionaries. The present number on the field is sixteen.
2. An increase in the mission giving so that the full budget of $25,000.00 a year can be realized.
3. More professional missionaries — at least three more doctors, several nurses, an agricultural man, and a director for the educational work, who is thoroughly conversant with the French language.
4. Most of all, a constituency that believes in the efficacy of prayer and who consistently makes the work of the mission a subject of intercessory prayer.

RETREAT OF 1934 AT LAKE SHIPSHEWANA, INDIANA

Sunset Meetings

Led by Rev. J. N. Smucker of Smithville, Ohio

The sun had just slipped below the horizon, leaving its glow in the sky and reflected on the blue waters of the lake. A hush was over the hundred young people and their leaders as they gathered beside the lake. There were a few songs, a prayer, and then the blue of Lake Shipshewana faded, in its place we saw Galilee, and we lived again the experiences of the men of old as they met the Master of men. We were with John the Baptist, John, Nicodemus, Peter, the Rich Young Ruler, and Saul, as they came into the presence of the Lord of Life; and we saw in their responses to the meeting with Him our own experiences. We felt the possibilities of full surrender, and the tragedy of withholding ourselves from that surrender.

We came away from Retreat feeling that we, too, had met the Master, and that He was calling us, as He had called these others, to follow Him. We are sure that in many hearts there was a new vision of what life with Him might mean, a new determination to live every day in the light of His presence, and a new purpose to so live that through us others, too, might find fullness of life with Him.

Elva May Schrock.

CORRESPONDENCE

Wayland, Iowa, September 15, 1934. Dear Readers: From April 24-29, Dr. Petter from Mt. Pleasant, a retired Methodist minister, shared with this community some of the experiences he had on his several trips to the Holy Land. He had several maps which he made himself. He also showed us many slides from the above mentioned country. This was helpful to the Bible student and edifying to those who listened to him. The attendance was good throughout.

Some weeks later, Dr. Petter came to us again and at the place where the foregoing meetings were held gave us his lecture on "Canes." Dr. Potter has in his possession a large collection of canes. Most of these were acquired in a very interesting manner. Some of the stories he told in connection with the acquisition of the canes were touching.

During Lenten season the churches had a week of union services. These were held alternatively in the Methodist and our own church. Rev. Pritchard and Rev. Basinger brought some very inspiring messages.

Our pastor believes that an occasional change is good. So on Easter Sunday two laymen gave short talks. Prof. Roth, our Sunday School Superintendent, spoke on the subject of "Immortality," while the writer of this article spoke on the subject, "Jesus is Here."

The first Sunday in May we observed Holy Communion.

On April 18, Dr. Harvey Bauman from India was in our church. He brought us a very interesting message. We wish Drs. Bauman Godspeed as they return to India for further service in the Master's vineyard.

On the same date Mr. and Mrs. Amos Suter stopped in Wayland with Mrs. Suter's brother, Rev. Basinger, and family. They came through here on their way home from Texas.

The Community Daily Vacation Bible School opened on June 3. The sessions were held in the public school building. Some twenty pupils were in attendance. The school program was given in the Methodist church on June 23.

On June 14, several of our church members attended the annual "Get-Together" of the four churches in Iowa. It was held at the Emanuel Mennonite church near Noble. A program in the forenoon and in the afternoon consisted of talks and music. This was interspersed with a picnic dinner and an hour of recreation at noon.

On June 15, the children of the church gave their annual Children's Day Program.

June 14-15 the young people of the four Iowa churches held their annual retreat at Donnelson. A large number of young people were present. The writer was permitted to sit in session with the young people and enjoy the sessions throughout. Rev. Weaver from Danvers, Ill., brought us the main messages of the retreat. May God bless such gatherings!

From August 2-9, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Amstutz and family from Pandora, Ohio, were here on a visit with Mrs. Amstutz's brother and sister and families, Otto Suter and Mrs. Selma C. Sommer.

During the early part of August Rev. Basinger was in attendance at a ministerial conference which was in session at Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Sunday evening, September 16, brought to a close our reunion meetings which were held in the park during the summer months.

From August 23-26, Rev. Basinger, his daughte Lynette, and the writer and her family were in attendance of the 46th session of the Middle District Conference, which was held at Pandora, Ohio.

Recently we had several nice rains. As a resul the meadows were nice and green. These rains ar most welcome after a summer of drouth. Yet we ar very grateful to our Heavenly Father for the abundance of things he has permitted us to gather in, even though we had a dry season. May God bless you all I remain, sincerely yours, Mrs. Selma C. Sommer.

Freeman, South Dakota, September 20, 1934. Greetings in Jesus' Name! Tuesday evening, September 4th was a wonderful evening. We realized that many mus have prayed for us. The air was pure and balmy, having been cleared by a recent lovely rain that settled all dust storms. The people came in from all directions. As the bell rang, six ministers, Stahl, Gross Prieheim, Tieszen, Duerksen, and Unruh, led the schoo faculty (followed by the student body) to their reserved seats in front. After many personal greetings and by letter from many states and Canada, followed by heartfelt testimonies and some singing, the climax came, as the six ministers laid their hands upon nine teachers (stenographer and cook included), who knelt at the altar, dedicating their free, unsalaried service unto the Lord for another schoolyear. Immediately after dismissal from chapel, music was heard in the nearby Girls' Cottage, inviting all guests to come in. It was a rare and beautiful sight to behold what a rich and useful kitchen shower had been deposited in kitchen and dining room, — from sugar to salt, from chocolate to vinegar, from flour to a kitchen linoleum, every article greatly needed. A heartfelt thanksgiving prayer, followed by the doxology, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," closed the evening, and after warm handshakes and "God bless you" the guests turned homeward, to continue in prayer for Sunnyside Bible School. This is very necessary; as all teachers, including stenographer and cook, are all serving entirely free without any salary, — as unto the Lord. The Lord supplies all of our needs through willing hearts and hands, wherever He can find them. All the glory be to Him! Amen.

Barbara Glanzer,
Correspondent for Sunnyside Bible School

Butterfield, Minnesota, September 30, 1934. We are again coming to the fall of the year, at this hime we, indeed, have many reasons to be thankful for so much our Lord provides for us daily, even though the harvest did not yield as much as other years. We don't want to murmur, but be thankful for what we have.

During the summer months a number of visitors have been here from different states. Sidonia Kintzi. who has spent almost the last three years in Wilmington, Colo.. was here in July with her niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. George Chaffin. Leroy Linscheid from Reedley, Cal., spent a few weeks with us. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Claypool and family from Pennsylvania spent one week here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Linscheid, and other relatives on their return trip. Emma Linscheid went along to spend the winter there. In August Rev. and Mrs. L. H. Linscheid and family spent a week in South Dakota, visiting their parents. Sunday, August 12, Rev. D. J. Dick from Mountain Lake had charge of the morning service.

Mrs. Carl Stark from Montana visited a few weeks with her sick mother, Mrs. J. J. Linscheid, and relatives. Mrs. Linscheid has been suffering for a number of years and is almost helpless, yet she never complains, but bears her cross quietly. She has great faith in our Lord and knows that some day her burdens will all be taken away.

September 9, Rev. P. J. Friesen and Rev. J. J. Balzer had charge of the morning service; at this time we also partook of the Lord's Supper. Rev. L. H. Linscheid spoke at this time in the Bethel church at Mounatin Lake.

At the September Ladies' Aid meeting, Miss Aganetha Fast was with us, she being in charge of the meeting, which was of great interest.

August 25, our brother, Erwin Miller, and wife and family from Sarona, Wis., visited with us over Sunday.

An English Bible class has been started in church every Friday evening. We hope that many will take part. Rev. L. H. Linscheid is in charge of it.

Every Tuesday evening Mrs. H. M. Fast instructs the Children's Bible class.

Mrs. R. H. Brubaker and daughter Aleda from Maryland are here visiting at the present time. They have been in Shell Lake, Wis., where they attended the golden wedding of Mrs. Brubacher's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hubin.

We had an announcement of the silver wedding of Missionary H. J. Brown and wife. We congratulate the Brother and Sister, and may our Lord who can provide for all, do so, and may souls be brought to the Lord through the work of these dear people. We want to greet them with the 23rd Psalm, "The Lord is my shepherd," etc.

The Lord has given us very nice rains during the last week. We feel very grateful, for we needed them badly. Mrs. Gust. Miller, Corr.

Goessel, Kansas, October 1, 1934. Dear Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— It has become my duty to write to this paper of the Tabor Mennonite Church. On January 1, 1934, our membership was 348. On Pentecost we had baptismal services and seven new members were added. Last year in October it was our privilege to celebrate the twenty-eighth anniversary of our church. It was a big day of thanksgiving and blessing. Our graveyard had 95 graves on that day. The Rev. P. H. Richert is our pastor. He has served us for almost 24 years now. Henry Frey and H. J. S. Schmidt are the deacons. Our Sunday School consists of about 400 members. We elect our officers every year in September and the first Sunday in October they begin to serve. Our newly elected Superintendent is Alfador Frey; Secretary, G. R. Funk; Treasurer, H. J. Brandt. The school consists of twenty classes. We have three Endeavor Societies: Senior, Intermediate, and Junior. Clarence and Martha Schmidt are the sponsors to the Intermediate and Junior Societies. When the last two named societies meet, the older folks meet for a Bible Study Hour.

On September 18 was the funeral of Mrs. Benjamin Frey. She attained the age of 91 years.

Best wishes and God's blessing to all readers.

D. S. Thiesen, Corr.

Pleasant View Church, Aurora, Nebraska. A program was given by the ladies during the C. E. hour Sunday evening, September 16. The theme of the evening was "Jesus," all the numbers dealing directly with this subject.

A miscellaneous shower was given by the Misses Glenda and Verna Springer in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Steider, Wednesday evening, September 26. The honor guests were the recipients of many lovely gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Zimmerman have gone to California, where they expect to make their home with Ben Erb and family.

Rev. Warren Eicker of Milford, Nebr., preached the sermon at the Sunday morning service, October 7.

"Prayer" was the subject of the program given by the men during the Christian Endeavor service, October 7.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Springer left for Los Angeles, California, October 9th. They will spend the winter there with their daughters, Margaret and Grace.

Rev. Geo. Gundy of Meadows, Illinois, and Mrs. Pearl Zoll of Carlock, Illinois, were visitors in this community, Wednesday and Thursday, October 10 and 11.

Grandpa Rediger is at present visiting with his daughters, Mrs. Dave Bender and Mrs. Chris Stauffer, of Milford, Nebraska.

A series of revival meetings was begun Wednesday evening, October 10, by Rev. Lantz of Chicago, Ill.

Gladys Rediger.

Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pennsylvania, September 21, 1934. Greetings to the Readers of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel. On April 1, there were twelve young people baptized upon their confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and received into the membership of the church. There were also five received by letter.

The Spring Communion Service was on April 8, and the Summer Communion Service on July 8.

On May 6, in Rev. Unruh's absence Mr. Frank Dippel, Superintendent of the Brotherhood Mission, Philadelphia, spoke at the morning service.

On May 6, at the evening service new hymn books were used for the first time, and dedicated. It was an unique service, because Mr. F. J. Wiens, Manager of the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana, was present and spoke on hymns and what they meant in his life. He had just filled the order for the books before he had left Berne to attend the sessions of the Eastern District Conference at Schwenksville.

On Mother's Day, May 13, the Sunshine Girls, a class of girls taught by Mrs. Malcolm Yost, had a short program in the Sunday School and they presented a carnation to every mother present. At the evening service the Brotherhood had charge and they presented every mother with a book mark of Mother's Day. The men's chorus sang several numbers.

Monthly Bible conferences were inaugurated on July 19. The speaker on July 19, 20, and 21 at this first conference was Dr. L. Sale Harrison, Australian Bible Lecturer. On August 7, 8, and 9 the speaker was Rev. Vance Havner, Reedsville, South Carolina. On September 11, 12, and 13 the speaker was Rev. James Mallis, Toronto, Canada, Director of the India and Ceylon Mission Board.

Our pastor, Rev. Daniel J. Unruh, filled the pulpit of the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, on August 12. In his absence Mr. Paul Shelly, Pennsburg, had charge of the morning service.

August 26, when Rev. Unruh was on his vacation, Dr. Harvey Bauman, returned missionary of India, spoke at the morning service. At the evening service Gerald Ford, a student of Wheaton College, had charge of the service and he was assisted by three fellow-students of Wheaton College.

The Harvest Home Service was on September 16. The vegetables and fruits, both canned and fresh, were given by members and friends and then they were taken to the Mennonite Home for the Aged at Frederick.

On June 18, the Westervelt Missionary Family of Columbia, South Carolina, presented a program in the church. The boys are all sons of missionaries who are on the foreign field. They had a band and there was also some vocal music. A few of the boys told of the countries from which they came. These boys are in this country going to high school or college to prepare themselves to go to the mission fields. This meeting was sponsored by the S. O. S. Class, the young people's class taught by Rev. Unruh.

The Young People's Society meets every other Sunday evening. There have been some special meetings. On July 1, the meeting was an all musical program. On July 29 Gerald Ford, a student at Wheaton College, had charge of the meeting. On August 26 Winfield Fretz, one of our members and a graduate of Bluffton College, had charge of the meeting. Those that took part in the program were graduates, former students, and students of Bluffton College.

Dorothy M. Gerhart, Corr.

WILLIAM S. GOTTSHALL

Fiftieth Ordination Anniversary

A third of the Eastern District Conference Ministers have passed the fiftieth milestone of service. The fifteenth of October, marked that occasion for Rev. William S. Gottshall. The other two brethren privileged to pass ahead of him were, Rev. Nathaniel B. Grubb, sixty-two years of service, and Rev. Allen M. Fretz, fifty-one.

The Conference members of the congregations Brother Gottshall served joined in paying tribute to him and to the Lord, whose blessing gave him so rich a ministry. Three separate services were arranged for the occasion. The first, in the Eden congregation at Schwenksville, Sunday, October 14; the second, in the East Swamp Meetinghouse, Sunday, October 21; the third, A Ministerial Meeting in the Zion Meetinghouse, Souderton, Monday, October 29, at which time Brother Gottshall will read his paper, "The Work of the Minister."

"Nancy and Will" Gottshall

The program at Schwenksville was arranged and directed by the present pastor, Rev. Freeman H. Swartz. A twenty-page booklet, giving a brief biography of Brother Gottshall and a sketch of the background and growth of the congregation, with appropriate cuts, was distributed on that day. Brother Gottshall preached the sermon for the Fall Communion services of that congregation. The afternoon was devoted to the giving of tribute to these years of service. Those who participated in the program were, Rev. Ernest J. Bohn, president of the Eastern District Conference; Rev. Howard G. Nyce, a son of the congregation; Rev. Henry Johnson, pastor of Lower Skippack, second oldest Mennonite congregation in America; Rev. Nelson F. Schmidt, Lutheran pastor and colleague of Brother Gottshall during the early ministry at Schwenksville; Rev. Allen M. Fretz, aged pastor of the Deep Run Charge, who expressed his sentiments in a poem of his own composition; and Mrs. Peter J Boehr, daughter of Pastor Gottshall.

A letter of greeting from Rev. P. R. Schroeder, President of General Conference, was read So was a greeting from the aged Nathaniel B Grubb. A sheaf of letters and telegrams wa presented and turned over to Rev. and Mrs Gottshall as a memento of the occasion.

Pastor Swartz read a salutation to Brothe Gottshall. It shall appear later in these columns under the caption, "The Occasion."

A number of musical tributes were given b members of the Eden Sunday School and congregation, many of them grandchildren of the father who witnessed the ordinatio in "the Meetinghouse on th Hill" fifty years before.

A fine pen-sketch of thi meetinghouse was made b Kathryn Alderfer, eighteen year-old granddaughter of member who was present a the service in which "the lo fell on 'Will' Gottshall." Sh was able by her Mennonite life-background, to put int the sketch the emotiona appeal that the memory o forty (the meetinghouse wa torn down in 1894) year weaves into such a sacre spot. The presentation wa made just before Brothe Gottshall was given opportunity to respond to his man tokens of appreciation an greetings.

As Pastor Gottshall rose to respond, his voic trembled with emotion. He thanked all wh had a part in the service. His deepest regre was the fact that his helpmeet could not b present to share the tributes. Then in clea ringing tones he gave a vigorous testimony o the power and blessing of God on his life i these fifty years, the one purpose of whic ministry was — The Preaching of Christ as th Only Power to Save the Lives of Men!

"Love to Christ and man is the essence c Christianity. If you are unloving, you are nc following Christ in any real way."

REMARKS ACCOMPANYING THE FINANCIAL REPORT FROM COLONY FERNHEIM, DATED AUGUST 5, 1934

Office of the Central Committee
Scottdale, Pa., October 2, 1934.

I have fallen behind in my accounting since the work in the period of gathering in the cotton crop was very urgent and we obtained help one month too late. At the present time a few assistants have been secured. When these are “broken in” I count on catching up in the work. The books are in good order and all is perfectly clear to me. Only the formal entries are not yet made. This is the reason that the accounts are so very late. But you will be interested to get the pertinent figures to date. So I shall give a few items from my records.

We, as a Cooperativa, have delivered cotton, nclusive of the last shipment, in total 388,235 kilos. This represents only the colony Fernheim (Menno colony not included). Besides, private sales amount to 30-50 thousand kilos of this I cannot give an accurate account). So ur colony has harvested this year over 400,000 kilos of cotton. (1 kilo equals 2.20 pounds.)

Of the cotton delivered by us (388,235) 26,219 kilos were sold to date, leaving 62,016 ilos yet to be sold. We have sold only ginned otton. To date this ginned cotton amounted o 30-32% of the weight of the raw cotton. The rice at which it was sold is in Argent-Pesos Peso 40 Centav. per kilo of ginned cotton.

After subtracting all expenses we get a little ver 90 centavos, Argentine currency, per kilo or ginned cotton, or about 30 centavos for the aw product. In Paraguay currency we cannot et give the figures, since we use the Argentine esos as need requires. If matters continue as oday, the amount will presumably be 9-11 Parg. pesos per kilo. It is for us very much, since many of us were thinking that we would not ave our daily bread in the coming winter. But he first year regarding payments has failed. he farmer today, however, entertains the hought that, even so, the coming year may enable us to make more progress in “catching up.” nd, taken as a whole, we had a touching harest home festival this year, since all the more han abundant donations of our brethren in the orth were added, fruit, butter, raisins, fruit upplies for a long time (shipped from Califoria). The little ones told each other with happy, shining faces of the beautiful things the Christmas man of the North had brought them. Also the adults were very happy over the rich supply of underwear and clothing (shipped from Pennsylvania). Many were through these donations enabled to reduce their expenses for such things, that the old wagons could be thoroughly repaired, and even new wagons were bought (two men going in partnership), cows were bought where people had lost their cows or where more milk was needed in the family. Also the procuring of other “little things” was made possible, so that to all our brethren we would express our heartfelt thanks with the wish that God may reward you, as we in this life may not find it possible to give an adequate recompense.

Bro. David Loewen has asked to be relieved of his colony position. This request was granted and Bro. Franz Dueck of Schoenwiese, who is now serving as a director of the Cooperativa, was elected in his place.

The weather has been dry and windy for a considerable time. Health conditions are unsatisfactory. The two new citizens from Germany, Penner and Hildebrandt, we were privileged to meet and welcome in our midst. I asked Mr. Penner a fortnight after their arrival how he liked it here and what was his impression of things in general. “God be thanked,” he said, “that I finally have found a home again, and I believe that I with my family will have my daily bread here.” (These had accompanied the Harbin transport from Germany to Brazil and then on to Paraguay.) He related further that in Germany such a “hell” was made of conditions here that he decided to come only because he desired to be reunited with his family. Also on the boat those of the Harbin group talked in the same way, so that he had grave doubts concerning conditions here. A family Wiens of the Harbin group handed him some of their savings for their parents, brothers, and sisters here to alleviate to some extent their needy condition. But today he pities the Harbin group that they have been so misinformed. These are the words of Mr. Penner. The family Wiens in Paraguay has returned the money, adding some to the sum, to their children in Brazil, thanking them for their anxiety, though it was uncalled for.

With brotherly greetings,

Franz Dueck, J. J. Funk.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. ROY YODER
1300 Bond Ave.
Peoria, Ill.

NO COMPROMISE

"No compromise with evil," shall be our battlecry,
For God and right must conquer, and sin and wrong must die;
Unflinching we are standing, uncompromisingly,
Beneath the flag of holiness forever we will be.

No compromise with error, for Bible truth we stand,
Let none remove the landmarks erected by God's hand.
With loyalty our watchword and faith in Christ our stay,
We'll bravely storm the forts of sin and through Him win the day.

No compromise with worldliness, no yielding to the wrong,
No lowering the standard that's stood through ages long;
With Jesus as our Leader, His Spirit as our Guide,
We'll firmly stand for righteousness whatever may betide.
—Haldor Lillenas.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

November 18, 1934

Why Should Young People Abstain From Alcohol?

I Corinthians 6:19-20

A number of questions immediately come to our minds when we meditate upon this topic. Should young people abstain while older people indulge? Why should anybody be asked to abstain from the use of alcohol? If so, for what reasons? Is it a question of morals, or spiritual values, of physical welfare or of social importance?

In planning for this program the leader or the program committee, if such is the custom of your organization, should arrange the plan of procedure well in advance. Let us get at the facts. Consider the problem as it affects you right in your home community. Insist that your speaker seeks for facts. If possible, get some outside speaker to address your society, providing you can find one whose attitude is thoroughly Christian.

The Scripture portion assigned for this discussion bases the argument on grounds physical and spiritual. When Paul writes to the Corinthians he urges upon them the consideratic of the fact that the physical body is more tha that, it is the tabernacle for the Holy Spiri and therefore it is not common, it must be ke clean and pure from everything which tends harm. We must ever remember the price whic Jesus Christ paid for us, we have been bough for His service at a tremendous price. No ma or woman may injure his body without consi ering the cost.

Not for a long time has the cause of righ eousness tended to right itself so quickly as this problem of liquor. Wet propaganda e gulfed our nation, sweeping along with it m and women of intelligence and religious insigh and resulted in the repeal of the Eighteen Amendment. Already many of those same e thusiastic repealers are becoming avowed di ciples for a Dry America. Newspapers whic were militantly wet are now just as ardent dry.

Like in the World War we were fooled by b ing made to think THAT a righteous crusac so in the overthrow of prohibition we ha again been hoodwinked. Every argument f voring repeal is being found to be a lie, the we have never been known to be truthful and ide istic, and they never will be.

The saloon is back and its evils are far worse than they ever were before Prohibition. Drunkenness and crime have greatly increased in every city. There is as much, or more, boot-eg liquor being sold than that which is legal-zed. Instead of one billion dollars of revenue only one-tenth of that amount has entered our reasury. Youth and age is being debauched. There is no good in the whole nefarious busi-ess.

Questions

. Give a brief history of Prohibition and Repeal.
. What is Paul's argument for sobriety in I Corinthians 6:19-20?
. What is the effect of alcohol on the human body?
. How are arguments for repeal being answered by facts at the present time?
. How is Repeal affecting our community?
. How can we best protect our youth from the evils of alcoholism?
What can we do to rid our fair nation from alcoholism?

November 25, 1934 (Thanksgiving)

The Grace of Gratitude

Luke 17: 11-19

There are several services in each calendar ear, like Christmas, Easter, and Thanksgiving hich do not call so much for the discussion of pics but more for witnessing, thanksgiving, d giving an open way tc the Spirit.

The "Grace of Gratitude" is beautifully illus-ated by the story of Jesus and the ten lepers. Were there not ten cleansed, but where are e nine"? The world is dying for a bit of love, r some appreciation, and a sincere gratitude r some favor done. God has blessed all of us erwhelmingly, sacrificially, and without any int of the price. The self-giving was no less an the life of Jesus, the Son of God. Who er heard of a God giving Himself? No other ligion knows of a God "going a little farther."

Do you say you have nothing for which you n be thankful this year? Gratitude is a quali- of the Spirit. It does not depend upon the aterial wealth we possess. True thanksgiving anates from being, not having, it is an inner d not an outer value. The grace and peace the true Christian life comes as a gift, it can-t be bought by money or merit of works. atitude should have a large place in the life of every true child of God. It is a growing thing, it is contagious, it brings much joy to the agent and to all his friends and neighbors.

Questions

1. What is meant by gratitude?
2. What will gratitude do for a Christian?
3. Give a few thoughts on our Scripture portion.
4. Can we have gratitude in years of want?
5. How can we express our gratitude?
6. For what gifts are you truly grateful? (Ask many to respond to No. 6.)

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Roy Yoder, 1300 Bond Ave., Peoria, Ill.

November 18, 1934

Honoring Modern Makers of Peace

Matt. 5:9

Blessed are the Peacemakers for they shall be called the Children of God.

Pre-prayer

Pause for a moment of prayer as a group before you go into the service. Thank God for the progress that has been made for nations at peace.

Thoughts on the Topic

Dr. Robert E. Speer tells how on one occasion Mr. Arthur Balford gave a lecture on the subject, "The Moral Values which unite the Nations" in McEweeen Hall of Edinburgh. The speaker spoke eloquently of the different ties that bind together the people of the world. The speaker sat down amid a great outburst of applause. After the applause had died down, in the moment of silence when, after the Scotch fashion, the presiding officer had arisen to make his own little address of appreciation, Professor Lang said he saw this Japanese student stand up and lean over the balcony. Before the chairman could open his lips, the Japanese student had spoken. "But, Mr. Balford," said he, "what about Jesus Christ"? Professor Lang (a listener) said that one could have heard a pin drop in that large, packed hall. Everyone felt at once the justice of the rebuke. The leading statesman of the greatest Christian empire in the world had been dealing with the different ties that bind and unite mankind, and had omitted the one fundamental and essential bond. And everyone felt, too, the dramatic element in the situation, that the reminder of his forgetfulness had come to him from a Japanese student from a far away non-Christian land. "But, Mr. Balford, what about Jesus Christ"?

School teachers may be peacemakers by teaching peace and the value of peace to the children illustrated by the horrors of past wars.

Andrew Carnegie, founder and supporter of the Church Peace Union, was a peacemaker in that his organization impresses peace upon the hearts of men of many nations.

Mrs. E. K. Bowman, Helena, Mont., mother of five children, without money or office equipment, has written and distributed a "World Peace Primer," arranged peace contests and written many articles. She is a Peacemaker.

William Penn's unarmed colony in Pennsylvania lived for 70 years or more amid savages, but unattacked, because of his principle of kindness and justice, not a white man was killed.

The more people think peace and talk peace the sooner war will cease.

Sunday Schools and C. E. Societies can instill Peace in and throughout their programs, training the minds of our youth and the lives of the youth to live it and practice it in everyday life and not wait until wars begin to make themselves known as non-resistant.

Questions for Discussion

1. What does Jesus mean when He says BLESSED are the peacemakers?
2. What do we mean by Peace?
3. Name some ways in which we can promote peace in ourselves.
4. Name some ways in which we can promote peace in our homes.
5. Name some ways in which we can promote peace in our business.
6. Name some ways in which we can promote peace in our social life.
7. Name some ways in which we can promote peace in our churches.
8. Name some ways in which we can promote peace in our neighborhoods.
9. Name some ways in which we can promote peace in our country.
10. Name some ways in which we can promote peace in our nation.
11. Name some ways in which we can promote peace in the world.
12. What is different in the peace that Jesus gives from that which we get elsewhere?
13. What are the conditions which produce a peaceful soul and life?

Can you find them?

Gen. 26:12-23; Gen. 45:24; Eph. 2:13-22 Phil. 2:1-5; 1 Kings 5:1-7.

November 25, 1934

There Is A God Who Cares

I Pet. 5:5-7 (Thanksgiving)

Even in the midst of a depression
A Christian has enough blessings
To keep him busy thanking God!

Pre-Prayer

Thank God for Jesus Christ our Savior, fo His love, for the material blessings of life. As God to receive our thanksgiving, to use us to b a blessing to others, to forgive us for our ir gratitude.

Suggestive Program

Piano prelude — "Savior Like A Shepher Lead Us."

Call to Worship—Read in Unison Ps. 111.

Hymn—"Does Jesus Care."

Poem or Reading.

Leader's introduction of the topic, based u on Matt. 10:28-31.

Question 1—Through what agency is God care manifested to us?

Quartet—"God Will Take Care of You."

Question 2—How does a mother reveal God care?

Question 3—How does Nature yield to God care? What does this mean to man?

Song—"Count Your Blessings."

Question 4—Is God's care always shown material things? How else?

Question 5—Is it possible that sorrow a sickness are blessings?

Question 6—Can the unthankful be happy

Question 7—What was wrong with nine the ten lepers that Jesus cared for and healed

Question 8—What national blessings do v enjoy today? Tell about the first thanksgivir and what it lends to us today.

Question 9—Will a thankful people forg God?

Thanksgiving offering and gifts for baske for needy families (we grow by sharing) ca be presented to the chairman at this tin (placed into a large box decorated with thank giving gaiety).

Song—"Praise Him, Praise Him."

Challenge—"I will be Christian," manifested through a thankful heart.

Benediction and reconsecration prayer.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

Things to be Thankful for

Some people think they have nothing to be thankful for, because they do not have everything they want. But they forget that the very breath in their bodies is given to them by God. The air they breathe into their bodies is a blessing from God. Their two good eyes, their two good feet, their two good ears, their two good hands, and every part of their bodies are gifts of God to them.

There are many people in the world who have all these blessings, yet they never thank God for them. They even curse God to His face, and feel that He is unkind to them.

The beautiful warm sunshine and the rain are blessings from God, which He gives to the unthankful as well as to the thankful. Yet they feel that God is unkind to them because He takes something from them which is not for their good. If God takes a little child out of their home, some people think He cannot be a God of love or He would not do such a thing. Yet the little child might have been just the thing which took their hearts away from Him. He wanted them to love Him, therefore He took from them their idol so they might love Him and so He could pour into their lives greater blessings.

We do not understand all God's ways, but we should love and appreciate Him anyway, knowing that He could not do anything which is not for the best. He is a loving God, and all He does is because of love, though we may not understand His ways.

If we have not thanked our kind God before for all our blessings, let us begin to do it now. He is worthy of more thanks and praise than we shall ever be able to give Him on this side of eternity. So let us not miss the blessing of just being thankful. May it not be only words of thanks, but may it truly come from the heart.—Junior's Pleasure.

November 18, 1934

Topic.—God's Wonder Book: What It Tells About God

John 3:16; 4:24

"Great God of wonders! all Thy ways
Are matchless, God-like, and divine;
But the fair glories of Thy grace
More God-like and unrivaled shine."

What a wonderful God we have, and how we should love and praise Him! The Bible tells us a great deal about Him and we know it is all true. The Book begins with the words, "In the beginning God." It is He who planned for us and who was before the earth was made. "It is He that hath made us" (Ps. 100:3) and not only me, but the earth and all living things. We can not understand how, but we are glad to know that He did it.

Another happy thought is that He is everywhere. Someone has written this little story. I have heard of a boy who was being questioned about God. "Tell me where God is," said the questioner, "and I will give you an orange." "Tell me," said the boy, "where God is not, and I will give you two oranges"!

Then we know that He loves us, both because of all He does for us and because His Word says so many times. The verses that we know best which tell of His love are 1 John 4:8 and John 3:16.

And because He loves us so much He is always watching us. The Moody Monthly has this to say about His watchfulness: "The biographer of Bishop Watts, Ditchfield, relates that when he was a child he was one day in the house of a very old woman who asked him to read a framed text, 'Thou God seest me.' Then she said: 'When you are older, people will tell you that God is always watching you to see when you do wrong, in order to punish you. I do not want you to think of it in that way, but I want you to take the text home and to remember all your life that God loves you so much that He cannot take His eyes off from you.' "

I am so glad that He knows our hearts, aren't you? Remember that since He knows all things, He always does what is best.

Then He is holy. That is, He is and always has been without sin. Because He is such a God, we, too, must be cleansed from sin before we can go to be with Him. This is why He sent Jesus to die for us and wants us to accept Him as our Savior. No matter how young you are, God loves you and wants you for His very own child. The Bible tells us that God is not only holy and loving, but He is just and will certainly punish sin. If he has not cleansed your heart, let Him do it today.

Plans for the Meeting

Only a few of the Bible teachings concerning God have been mentioned in our discussion. Others are suggested by the Daily Readings and you may find more in the Book itself. Urge the Juniors to find as many Bible truths on this great subject as they can. The use of such songs as "Come, Thou Almighty King," "Holy, Holy, Holy," "How Firm A Foundation," and other hymns praising God will help the Juniors to appreciate His greatness.

Questions

1. Mention one thing the Bible tells that proves God's power.
2. What does the Bible teach about God's love?
3. How does it tell of His knowledge?
4. What do we learn of God's dealing with sin?
5. How has God planned for our future?

Daily Readings

God is spirit. I Cor. 2:10.
God is love. I John 4:16.
God is everywhere. Psa. 139:7-12.
God is good. Matt. 19:16, 17.
God is holy. Heb. 12:14.
God is gentle. Isa. 41:10.

November 25, 1934

Topic.—For What Should We Give Thanks?
I Thess. 5:18

When Thanksgiving Day comes this year, it will find the homes of some of our Junior's quite different from those of others. People in some parts of our land have an abundance of food and to spare. From other places comes word that food is very scarce. Fields have been burned and cellars and granaries are almost empty. It is of you who live in these places that I am thinking especially as I write. It may be that some of you are asking, "For what shall we give God thanks"? Thank Him for knowing, for loving, for caring. Thank Him for His promises and that He keeps His word. In Matt. 6:33 and Phil. 4:19, He promises to take care of those who truly love and trust Him. Thank Him for strong bodies and — but I must not do all of the thinking for you. Try counting your blessings and see if the list is not much longer than you had thought it could be. I am sure that things are not as dark for any of you as they were for Daniel just before he was put in the lion's den, yet he thanked God then. Perhaps God has taken some things from you to help you to love Him more.

How about you who have plenty? Are you thanking God for it or are you fretting because you don't have more? Think of all of the boys and girls who would be glad to exchange places with you. It is not because of your goodness, but of God's that you have all that you need, so don't forget to thank Him for it and to share with others. Let none of us forget to thank God that in this land we are free to worship Him and to study His Word.

Plans for the Meeting

Draw on the blackboard a cornucopia (horn of plenty). Instead of filling it with the usual fruits and vegetables, have issuing from it the names of things for which to be thankful.

Questions

1. Why are we told to be thankful?
2. Name some men and women of the Bible whc praised God.
3. How is it possible to be thankful even in harc times?
4. Tell of a Bible character who was thankfu even in trouble.
5. How does a spirit of thankfulness help us?

Daily Readings

Thankful for God's mercy. Titus 3:5.
Thankful for Christ. Rev. 5:11, 12.
Thankful for home. Matt. 8:20.
Thankful for parents. Eph. 6:1, 2.
Thankful for food. Deut. 8:10.
Thankful for everything. Phil. 4:6.

The Bible is always fresh and thoroughly up-to-date. Indeed it is far, far ahead of humai science. Progress cannot overtake it, or get beyond it. Generation succeeds generation, bu each finds the Bible waiting for it with eve fresh and never failing stores of informatio touching matters of highest concern, touchin everything that affects the welfare of humai beings.—Mauro.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

November 11, 1934

The Christian Citizen

Lesson Text.—Gal. 5:13-26

Golden Text.—For all they that take the sword shall perdish with the sword. Matt. 26:52.

This is armistice Sunday. It is a time when many people will be thinking of war and peace. Sixteen years have now passed since that epochal day of November 1918, when the contending armies laid down their arms and ended four years of carnage and bloodshed. We had hoped that would end war, but just now all about us there are misunderstandings between nations and differences which may very easily lead to war.

What is the fundamental basis for a permanent peace? Does it lie in organization and treaties and diplomatic relations? The principles of peace are stated very clearly in our lesson text. Wars and fightings come from a certain kind of life. If we shall have permanent peace we must think peace and live peace. It is the fruitage of a life led by the Spirit.

Paul, in his epistles teaches us that we are citizens of two worlds. We bear a certain relationship to our government. There are certain obligations that we accept because we are citizens. But our citizenship is also in heaven and we have obligations to the king of all kings. Christian citizenship is the highest type. There are many citizens of a country who are law abiding and obedient because they are afraid of the law, but the Christian's life is not motivated by fear. He obeys the law because he is prompted by the spirit of love. This is also the foundation for permanent peace. You can not compel nations to be peaceful nor obtain permanent peace by legislation. If a citizen is a Christian, peace is one of the fundamental virtues of his life.

This peace of a Christian is not, however, an animal contentment which has no concern for others and is primarily interested in seeing that he is fed and clothed. Neither is it the passive peace that is complacent and half hearted and does not oppose that which is wrong. The peace of the Christian is the kind Jesus had when in the face of the cross He said, "My peace I leave with you." It is a peace which comes from a life too deep to have the storms of life disturb it. This peace in the life of an individual will also manifest itself in an interest in having peace in the home, church, the community, and the nation. Organizations of peace are an effective means to an end, but only peace can come through a regenerated life.

November 18, 1934

The Christian as a Church Member

Lesson Text.—Matt. 5:13-16; Acts 2:41-47

Golden Text.— For we are members of His body, of His flesh and of His bones. Eph. 5:30.

Today we are to consider the relation of a Christian to the church. It is very important that we should clearly understand the place of the church in the life of today. There are two opposing views that have been held and are held today concerning the church. One is that it is wholly a divine institution, infallible and supreme in its authority. The other is that it is a very human institution with no power or authority over the life of its members. The church has been criticized, condemned, but has never been replaced by any other institution. It might be well to notice the origin of the church. Jesus refers to the church only twice. His theme and emphasis is the kingdom of God and yet Jesus established the church. What does the word church mean? It has a Hebrew as well as a Greek significance. From the standpoint of the Hebrews it means God's own, or God's possessions. Its more direct derivation, however, is from the Greek. The word among the Greeks was used in a political way meaning "A group of men called out from the citizenship to rule a city state."

So the church is God's people, a called out group which are the members of the kingdom of God. They are the salt of the earth and the light of the world. There are several reasons why a Christian wants to be a church member. In the first place, he wants to worship with others. The church furnishes a place where he can meet with others of common faith and purpose and be in fellowship with them and with God. He needs this worship in church because it is here where he learns what life really is and what God's will is for life. He shares with others his experiences.

In the second place a Christian wants to be a church member because the church has a message for the world. Jesus said, "I am the truth" and it is this truth which he is to share with others as a member of the church. It is this truth about God as the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. The truth about the stewardship of life and the truth of the world's needs.

In the third place Christians should be a church member so that he might work effectively through cooperation with others. From others he receives inspiration and encouragement. They were all together in the upper room when the Holy Ghost came upon them. It is in this spirit of unity and fellowship and peace that there is life and power.

Finally, the Christian should be a church member because the church renders unselfish service in the needy world. The church does not need to be replaced, but she does need to regain a vision of Jesus of Nazareth and the power received by the apostles on the day of Pentecost.

THE SIXTIETH ANNUAL EASTERN DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION was held in the Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Pa., Saturday afternoon and evening, September 29, 1934

The general theme of the Convention was "The Teacher" with "Preparation" and "Appreciation" as sub themes.

At the afternoon service the regular business was transacted with John Swarr of Quarryville, the president, presiding. All officers gave worth while and encouraging reports. Some of the statistics compiled by our Field Secretary, Walter Temple, were perhaps not as encouraging as they might have been, but many schools have resolved to improve within the next year. We have two 100% schools in our district. One is Allentown, who has repeated itself for the third time, and the new one to be added is Zion Sunday School at Souderton.

Our Mission Secretary, Mary Borneman, reported that we had reached our goal for $750.00 for this year. It was only by her persistent efforts that she was able to give us such an encouraging report. The Sunday School Conference raised a total of $1510.00 for mission purposes only, in the last two years. The mission project for next year will be the raising of $300.00 for Home Missions, which is to go to our mother church at Germantown and $300.00 for Foreign Missions.

Three simultaneous conferences were held during the afternoon session. One on Music and Worship in the Sunday Schools, led by Wm. H. Shelly of Philadelphia. This group discussed the type of music to have in a Sunday School service, the chorister and pianist and how they help to put us in a worshipful mood. The conference on missions was led by Dr. Ella Bauman, Champa, India. She spoke on how to present missions in your Sunday Schools in an interesting manner. The conference on the were leaders and teachers in our Sunday Schools was led by Rev. E. J. Bohn of Souderton. He spoke on problems facing our young people and how to hold their interest while at the services.

Mr. Wm. Mohr of Allentown had charge of the devotional period in the evening. He spoke on the grace of God and how often those who were leaders and teachers in our Sunday Schools had to put this grace to use in facing the problems of their pupils. Rev. Henry Kistler, associate pastor of the Pennsburg Lutheran Parish was the speaker. He spoke of the influence of a Sunday School teacher and the importance of a Sunday School in the training of youth. He said many things go into the making of a good teacher first of which is the teacher's presence on a Sunday morning. This means a great dea to the pupil. The fact that a teacher does no depend upon any false promptings for his power, but is solely dependent upon God is very important.

The attendance at our convention was not a well as was hoped for, but when you take int consideration the heavy rains we had all afternoon and evening, we need not wonder why s few were present. Traveling was treacherous with many streets flooded with water. But th inspiration received was worth while all the effort made to be present. Our different Sunda Schools rendered excellent music which greatl helped to enjoy the services.

Mae Latshaw, Secretary.

We can not serve God and mammon; but w can serve God with mammon.—Robert E. Speer

JOTTINGS

Doctors Harvey and Ella Bauman sailed for the mission field after a furlough of some months, from New York, October 13. A farewell service was arranged for them in the West Swamp, Pa., church, Dr. Bauman's home church, on October 7. A number of young people from the Eastern District went to New York to see them off on the date of their sailing.

Sixty members of a chorus are practicing for the rendition of "The Messiah" in the Upland, California, church. Rev. Lester Hostetler, pastor. The date for the annual Harvest Home Festival is October 14th. The interest of the little ones is not neglected in this congregation. A Junior Choir meets for practice every Monday evening. Cradle Roll mothers have a meeting of their own. At a recent meeting mothers brought with them their children's favorite story book or magazine for discussion.

Bethany church, Freeman, South Dakota, held its fall Missionary Festival. Rev. John Bartel of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, president of the Northern District Conference, was the speaker at the morning service and Helen Tiesen, returned missionary from Africa, spoke at the afternoon service. The evening service was conducted in the German language.

Rev. C. H. A. van der Smissen of Newton, Kansas, and former editor of the Bundesbote, the German organ of the General Conference, who, in spite of his 83 years, has been very active, submitted to a serious operation in Bethel Hospital some days ago. His condition is reported to be favorable. His many friends in his former congregations, Herford and Zionsville, Pa., and Summerfield, Ill., as well as the many readers of the paper he edited so long hope and pray for his speedy recovery and return to former activities.

Rev. G. A. Linscheid of Clinton, Okla., one of the General Conference missionaries to the Indians in Oklahoma, is at this writing making a tour in the interest of missions to churches in Kansas and Oklahoma. The tour will continue until Thanksgiving Day. On Thanksgiving Day he expects to be the guest of the Hillsboro, Kansas, church, which is planning to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its founding on that date.

Members and former members of the Eden church, Schwenksville, Pa., church will join in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Rev. William Gottshall on Sunday, October 14, morning and afternoon. At the morning service the fall communion will be celebrated, at which time Rev. Gottshall will bring the message. In the afternoon there will be a program for the anniversary. Incidentally it will be forty years since the present house of worship was built. A piece of ground purchased by the congregation, adjacent to it, will be dedicated during the noon hour. Rev. Gottshall was called to be assistant to his father in the ministry when quite a youth. He served the Eden congregation as pastor for many years after his father's death. Later he served as minister of the Allentown and Upper Milford churches, going from there in answer to a call from the Bluffton, Ohio, church and later to Freeman, S. D. He is at present pastor of the East Swamp church near Quakertown, Pa. For years he was secretary of the Eastern District Conference and is also a member of long standing of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference.

October 7, in the Eden church, Schwenksville, Pa., was Rally Day in the Sunday School. The congregation observed its fall communion on the same date. The Harvest Home service on August 26 brought out one of the largest attendances in the history of the church and the collection on that occasion was the largest recorded of any meeting of the membership. More than half of the collection was contributed to missions. Rev. Howard Nyce, a son of the congregation of Allentown, and Rev. Harry Hagner of Reading participated in the service. The congregation joined in an anniversary service, commemorating the Sesqui of Montgomery County with the other churches of the town.

The September report of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference is as follows: Total receipts

Pay Your Subscription Now!

SPECIAL OFFERS TO SUBSCRIBERS

Your own subscription for 1935 $1.50
Or one new subscription $1.50
And one of the following books
25 Years With God in India
(Regular Price $2.00 per copy)
or The Missionary Interest Among Mennonites
By Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman
(Regular Price $2.50 per copy)
} FREE
Postage on the book you select 25c
All for $3.25
N. B.—This offer is good only until January 1st, 1935

Combination Subscriptions
The Mennonite and the Christian Evangel
Der Christliche Bundesbote
Both for $2.50 per year
If you want the B. B. Kalender and the Mennonite Year Book add 20c and make a total remittance of $2.70.

Club Subscriptions
5 or more copies to one address at $1.20 per copy.

The Mennonite Book Concern
Berne, Indiana

$2,092.45; Balance in Bank, September 1, 1934, $132.54. The income has been from the following sources: General Fund, $1926.45; Gifts for Orphans, $111.00; Gifts for Ewert, $25.00; Interest and Rents, $30.00. Total, $2,092.45. Remitted sent direct to India. $187.45; Paid on Orders $1730.04. In Bank October 1, $307.50.

The program for the meeting of the Western District Conference, the largest local organization of the General Conference, to be held in the Newton, Kansas, Auditorium, October 24 and 25, has been published.

Rev. A. S. Rosenberger , of Quakertown, was in Bluffton at the opening of the college year. He returned to Pennsylvania to remain until the middle of November, when he shall relinquish his pastorate and assume the position of assistant to President Mosiman of Bluffton College.

The West Swamp, Pa., congregation completed the renovation of its building and held a special service of dedication Sunday, September 23. There was an afternoon and evening service.

The financial report of the Executive Committee of Mission Societies follows: For Foreign Missions and General Fund, $104.10; for Home Missions, General Treasury, $75.75; Christmas Fund, $156.21; Miscellaneous, $205.00; Expenses of the Executive Committee and News and Notes, $13.20. Total $205.00.

The Home Mission Treasurer of the General Conference reports for July: Total receipts, $1084.35. Total disbursements, $1070.45. Total indebtedness, $8500.00. The workers under this Board received only 90 percent of their pay for July. — The report of this Board for August is as follows: Total receipts, $1320.62. Total disbursements, $1240.47. Workers received 90 percent of their regular pay for August. The total indebtedness was reduced from $8500.00 to $8100.00 by the gift of $400.00 from a friend in Kansas for that purpose.

The Emergency Relief Board of the General Conference received in July, $344.23 for Russia; $519.85 for the General Fund; $25.00 for Harbin. Total $889.08. Disbursements, $524.20. The August report of this Board indicates that $308.72 were received for Russia, $615.07 for the General Fund. Total, $821.75. Disbursements, $806.14.

Rev. P. H. Unruh of Goessel, Kansas, Treasurer of the Emergency Relief Committee of the General Conference, writes that according to reports reaching him conditions in the Molotschna Mennonite settlement in Russia are deplorable. This is because of the drought which was general in that section. Most of the gifts which are sent to Russia reach the parties for whom they are intended.

DEATHS

Mrs. D. C. Schmidt, Upland, California. — Barbara Beutler Schmidt was born in Polk County, Iowa, November 15, 1863. When she was three years of age her parents moved to Missouri, where she grew into young womanhood. In early life she accepted Christ as her Savior and was baptized by Rev. Valentine Krehbiel, at the Mennonite church, Christian, Kansas. On April 26, 1886, she was united in marriage to Daniel C. Schmidt, in which happy relation she continued until her death, September 16, 1934. She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband, five brothers, and a number of relatives in the East. Funeral services were held in the First Mennonite church of Upland, California, of which she was a member. Her pastor, Rev. Lester Hostetler, assisted by Rev. John K. Lichty, who spoke in German, conducted the service.

INVITATION

The First Mennonite Church of Hillsboro, Kansas, wishes to announce that it intends to commemorate its fiftieth anniversary on the 29th day of November, 1934, beginning at 9:30 A. M. Dr. J. H. Langenwalter will be the chief speaker. In the afternoon a mission festival will take place, and for the evening a C. E. program will be rendered. To all these meetings the above church extends a hearty invitation to all sister churches to partake of the blessings which the Lord may bestow upon us. — By request of the church,

G. A. Schroeder, Secretary.

RECEIVED FOR PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE

First Mennonite Church, Uplanrd California	$18.59
First Mennonite Church, Upland, California	12.92
First Mennonite Church, Upland, California	10.96
First Mennonite Church, Upland, California	15.42
First Mennonite Church, Upland, California	26.35
First Mennonite Church, Colfax, Wash.	50.20
First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho	18.81
First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho	3.30
Mennonite S. S. Convention, Dallas, Ore.	4.65
Ladies Aid Sewing Society, Pratum, Ore.	7.05
Mennonite S. S. and C. E. Conference, Paso Robles	30.00
Mr. and Mrs. Jno. C. Jantz, Odessa, Wash.	2.00
Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Jantz	2.00
Mennonite Church, Menno, Wash.	15.12
Mennonite Church, Menno, Wash.	15.75
Mennonite Church, Monroe, Wash.	16.15
San Marcos Mennonite Church and First Mennonite Church, Paso Robles, Calif.	10.00

RECEIVED FOR PORTLAND, OREGON, MISSION

Mennonite Church, Newport, Wash.	$ 6.46
Mennonite Church, Newport, Wash.	5.00
Immanuel Mennonite Church, Pratum, Ore.	43.00
Mennonite S.S. and C.E .Convention, Colfax, Wash.	18.75
L. M. Ledig, Upland, Calif.	50.00
F. J. Kliewer, Newport, Wash.	.50
San Marcos Menn., Church, Paso Robles, Calif.	7.07
San Marcos Menn., Church, Paso Robles, Calif.	8.15
First Mennonite Church, Colfax, Wash.	41.00
First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho	52.81
Adult C. E. of Immanuel M. Ch., Los Angeles, Cal.	15.81

This report covers from May 1st to October 1st, 1934.

Gratefully acknowledged,

Pacific District Conference.

Jno. C. Jantz, Treasurer.

C. C.. Rev. Baumgartner
C. C. Rev. Aeschliman.

Order Early -- Avoid the Rush

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON COMMENTARIES FOR 1935

Peloubet's Select Notes
61st Annual Volume (always our best seller) $2.00

Tarbell's Teachers Guide
30th Annual Volume. A great favorite with practical Sunday School teachers........................$2.00

The Teachers Guide
A new and splendid book..$1.50

Snowden's Sunday School Lessons
14th Annual Volume..$1.35

Arnold's Practical S. S. Lesson Commentary
39th Annual Volume..$1.00

The Gist of the Lesson
A very helpful little book for those who do not care to carry around a bigger book..........................35c

THE GOLDEN TEXT BOOK with the Home Daily Bible Readings on the International S. S. Lessons for 1935. Price............60c per dozen; $5.00 per 100

*DAILY TALKS WITH GOD FOR 1935

Unique calendars with easily removable sheets that feature a Scripture Passage, Devotional Reading, Prayer and suggested Scripture Reading, for every day in the year.

In two styles

Wall Style to hang on the wall, size 8½x12¾.
Easel Style; size 6½x8 inches. Printed in colors. Easel cutout form designed for standing or hanging. Packed firmly in a very attractive gift box.

Prices: Either style, each 60c
In lots of one dozen $5.76, postage extra

*SCRIPTURE TEXT CALENDAR FOR 1935

The value and beauty of the Scripture Text Calendar for 1935 have never been quite equaled and certainly never surpassed.

Individual agents, Sunday School Classes, Missionary Societies, and other church organizations can render Christian service and make profit by selling Scripture Text Calendars.

Every calendar placed helps spread the Light, promotes the cause of Christ and builds God Consciousness in the home.

PRICES
Single copy, 30c; 4, $1.00; 12, $3.00; 25, $5.75; 50, $9.00
All prices slightly higher in Canada
Send for descriptive circulars

BEAUTIFUL NEW BOX ASSORTMENTS OF 1934

SCRIPTURE-TEXT CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Christmas is in commemoration of Christ's birthday. We honor Him most by sending only such greetings as are in keeping with and have a bearing upon His mission in life.

The following Christmas Box Assortments contain only Scripture-Text greetings of the newest design.

*FELLOWSHIP BOX NO. 34

This is our featured assortment containing the 21 distinctive folders with choice Scripture-texts. In gift box with silver, black, and red top that's varnished! This is our leading Box Assortment.
Price..$1.00

*ASSORTMENT 421

21 Scripture Text Christmas Folders and envelopes, all but two on parchment stock. Several numbers have been beautifully high-lighted with raised silver over-printing. Each carries a Christ-honoring message. $1.50 card value and gift box.
Price, only....................................$1.00

Also other assortments without Scripture texts similar to the above, at $1.00 and at 50c per box. Write for descriptive circulars.

CLOSE OUT BARGAINS

3 Box Assortments of former years. All $1.00 values. Each contains from 18 to 21 greeting cards which even now sell regularly for 5c and 10c each.
3 boxes, not less than 58 cards, only $1.00 postpaid
Order early to avoid disappointment

EXCEPTIONAL VALUES

Each of these sold originally for 25c

SERIES NO. 1310 CHRISTMAS CARDS

Ten beautiful cards (size 4¾x3¾) in beautiful colors. Original designs. Scripture texts and Christian sentiments. Ten white envelopes to match the cards. We bought several thousand of these cards and can therefore offer them to our customers at the following low prices:
1 package....................15c 6 packages....................75c
10 packages..........................$1.00

When you see these cards you'll wonder how we could do it. Remember, that there is an envelope for each card.

SERIES NO. 1290 CHRISTMAS CARDS

Ten beautiful cards and envelopes to match similar to those in series No. 1310, but size 5⅜x3½ inches. Every picture reminds one of the birth of Christ. Some people prefer this series. We suggest that you buy some of each series. Of the 20 designs found in these two packages no two are alike.
Same price as Series No. 1310

Write for descriptive circulars if you want further detailed information.

Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana

Christmas Gift Suggestions

BIBLE BARGAINS

COLLINS BOLD FACE BIBLES

Type that is easy to read

No. 2988½ Reference Bible. Bound in black artificial leather, divinity circuit.......$1.25

No. 4988½ Teachers' Bible, complete with References, Concordance and Illustrations. Artificial leather binding. Red edges, divinity circuit.......$1.50

No. 4988. Same as No. 4988½, but with red edges under gold.......$2.00

No. S89½ Text Bible. Beautiful sapia illustrations. Divinity circuit, red edges. Our most popular Bible.......$1.25

No. S1989HC. Beautiful Gift Bible with 16 colored illustrations. Red under gold edges. Divinity circuit. Black fabrikoid binding. An ideal children's Bible.......$2.00

N. B.—Other Collins Bibles from 50c to $11.50 . Let us know what you need.

We also carry a large stock of Holman, Nelson, National, International, Cambridge, and Oxford Bibles. Write for descriptive circulars giving full details.

Our Leading New Testament

No. MO2½ P. S. Collins New Testament and Psalms. Large type, vest pocket size Testament bound in black artificial leather. We have sold several hundred during the past two years. An ideal S. S. gift or reward.

Price.......35c

DEVOTIONAL BOOKS

Come Ye Apart, by J. R. Miller. Small size. Cloth	$1.00
Leather	$1.50
Streams in the Desert. Cowman	$1.50
Consolation. Cowman	$1.50
God's Minute. Cloth.......60c, Fabrikoid.......$1.00, Leather	$1.50

SMALL GIFT BOOKLETS

Wonder Book of Bible Knowledge ($.150 per dozen)	15c
Gems from the Bible ($1.00 per dozen)	10c
Child's Primer of the Bible ($1.00 per dozen)	10c

Send for circulars describing Bible Story Books, Mottoes, Bible Story Readers, Book Works, etc. We have everything for our Sunday Schools.

MENNONITE BOOKS

Here are a few books that should be in every Mennonite home. By purchasing these books you are helping the publication work of our Conference and also our Mission Boards. Their contents are intensely interesting and will increase your knowledge of the activities of our church.

A Development of the Missionary and Philanthropic Interest Among Mennonites of North America

By Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman, Ph. D.

An intensive study of the great missionary enterprises of the various Mennonite denominations by a well known Mennonite scholar and former Missionary to China. It answers many questions, such as "Why is American Mennonite interest in Missions of such comparatively recent origin"? The Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America has taken special interest in the publication of this volume. It is therefore gratefully stated that arrangements have been made for all profits accruing from the sale of this book to be paid into the treasury of the said Board.

The volume contains 57 tables, graphs and illustrations which make it an exceedingly valuable reference work. 416 pages. Bound in beautiful purple cloth covers. Title stamped in gold.

Net Price.......$2.50 postpaid

Twenty-five Years with God in India

Written by the India Missionaries as a memorial of their Semi-Jubilee Anniversary of the Founding of the Mission. 100 illustrations. Bound in fine cloth binding.

Price.......$2.00 postpaid

The Coming of the Russian Mennonites

By Dr. C. Henry Smith

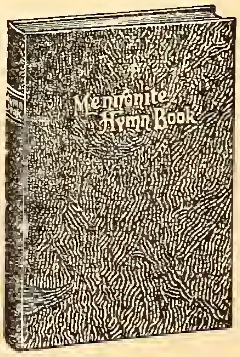
An Episode in the Settling of the Last Frontier. An exceedingly interesting story written in the fascinating style of the author. The volume contains 296 pages with many illustrations, bound in fine cloth binding, size 6x8¼.

Price Postpaid.......$2.25

The New Revised English Catechism

Bound in beautiful maroon fabrikoid.
Price, 40c per copy; $4.25 per dozen

THE MENNONITE HYMN BOOK



The official English Hymn Book of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America
A beautiful gift for all who love the great hymns of our church

PRICES

No. 1 Record Buckram (Maroon) Binding
Single copies.......$1.50 postpaid
12 or more copies..$15.00 per dozen not prepaid
100 or more copies $110.00 per 100 not prepaid

No. 1-A Spanish Maroon Fabrikoid (Gift Edition)
Single copies.......$2.00 postpaid
12 or more copies..$18.00 per dozen not prepaid
100 or more copies.......$125.00 per 100 not prepaid

No. 2 Full Black Leather Binding
Single copies.......$2.50 postpaid
12 or more copies, $24.00 per dozen not prepaid

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
BERNE, INDIANA

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 34

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. I HILLSBORO, KANSAS, NOVEMBER 20, 1934 No. 22

EDITORIAL

PATRONIZING OUR PUBLICATION WORK

Readers of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel should bear in mind that the publishing interests back of the paper are responsible for the greater portion of its support. The time for religious papers to be self-supporting seems to be past. Even in the larger denominations, with a larger constituency back of them, religious papers are becoming extinct and a comparatively few remain. Such is the effect of the depression. Our own paper, The Mennonite and Christian Evangel, represents an effort to continue the existence of the organs of the Central and General Conferences. The Publication Boards of both bodies are justified in expecting that the members of the two bodies give their substantial support in the effort to keep going the much needed interests which they represent. It is not only a matter of profits and losses that are involved, it is a matter of existence. Just because a church paper does not pay for itself is no reason why it should be discontinued. When the subscriptions do not pay all the bills another source of income must be found. Every few days there is left at the door of the writer the publication of one of the many new sects that have come into existence and endeavor to build up a membership by proselyting. Others of our neighbors also receive this paper free. It is thrust upon them whether they want it or not. This sect, and others like it, figures its growth in proportion to the amount of money it spends on its printed literature. Propagation from the point of view of those who clutter our mails with their printed matter is worth every penny it costs even though the bills that have to be paid attain large proportions.

In many denominations, including our own, the usual way to meet the cost of publishing religious papers is through the profits of a Book Business, which besides the sale of books generally, includes in its wares supplies for church, Sunday School, Young People's Societies, and such other literature and stationery that members loyal to the church see fit to buy: Bibles, books, stationery, and specialties, such as birthday and Christmas, are legitimate articles for a church publishing business and book room to handle. The Mennonite and Christian Evangel represent both the General and Central Conferences. The book business of the General Conference is cared for by The Mennonite Book Conrecn of Berne, Ind., under the management of Ferd. J. Wiens. Our associate, Rev. Wm. B. Weaver of Danvers, Ill., represents the book interests of the Central Conference. They both deserve all the patronage that can be thrown in their way by the membership of their respective conferences. If the members of all our churches were to throw all their business in their direction, the struggle for keeping the church papers going would be much easier and profits that might accrue might get things out of the red. Let those who are prepared to buy supplies keep in mind that prices on standard goods are pretty much the same everywhere, and this also applies to our own book business.

Private ventures often come into competition with our publication interests. We cannot shut out such competition altogether, but we can and must appeal to the fairness of our constituency in these matters. Let us ask: Is it FAIR for the Mennonite conferences to call into being Publication Boards and ask them to supply us with good literature and denominational papers and then let their business starve to death after it has been created and given excellent service for years? Is it fair for Mennonite churches, Sunday Schools, Young People's Societies, and church members generally to purchase the articles they need and use elswhere when the publishing house of their church is prepared to supply them at no greater cost? Is it fair for church organizations to raise money by selling novelties bought elsewhere than our own agencies could supply and incidentally strengthen a worthy institution of the church?

Christmas will soon be upon us. Many of us will be wanting to give gifts of Bibles, hymnals and other good books to our friends. We will need to buy these things somewhere if we want them to give. Why not place the order at once with Rev. Weaver of Danvers, or Bro. Wiens of Berne? All of us will want beautiful Bible pictures somewhere about the house. Why not order some of those splendid Bible calendars that may be bought so reasonably? Who does not send birthday and Christmas cards to friends? Be wise and see what the brethren Wiens and Weaver have to offer. —G.

AUTUMN BEAUTY

A poet once said of a man without romance or sentiment in his make-up: "A yellow primrose by the river's brim a yellow primrose was to him and nothing more." There are those of us who take everything for granted and thereby miss many of the beauties that a benevolent Red to some of us is red, and blue is blue. Nothing in them suggests the glory of the sunrise or Creator has made possible for our enjoyment. the deep mystery of the restless sea. It becomes just a matter of having eyes and not seeing, and ears and not hearing the beauties that may be ours for the joy of seeking them. Just now, in the fall of the year, we may, if we will, be fascinated with the wonderful riots of colors that blend into a harmony that stirs our being. The brightness of the asters, both wild and cultivated, the suburb dahlias multiplied in their grace and color by the skillful gardener, the frost-defying chrysanthemum, all of them are in a grand conspiracy to make us feel that this is a beautiful world after all. Or we may look upon the mountain side and note the riot of colors that the fading leaves of the forest give to the landscape. Who in the darkness of a winter evening has not watched the glowing embers of some fading fire as they vanish into nothingness, and was filled with a strange and fascinating feeling? Likewise, in the varied colors of the autumn leaves we may see a last great effort to brighten things before the long winter's sleep overtakes the things that covered the slopes with life and brightness. Another poet has called October days, "The melancholy days, the saddest of the year." Sure, they are as melancholy and as sad as the grave if one looks at them that way. But here comes the vision of faith, — the vision that sees beauty end in death and anticipates a new world to come — a world of flowers and a world bedecked in a carpet of green that in the horizon blends into the blue of heaven as it rises from the deep sleep of winter's rest. Let us note in the grass and leaves of fall the marvelous harmony into which blend the colored leaves, the browned stems and the ripened pods of seed merge, each having performed its part and then prepared to pass from the scene gloriously to sleep,—the sleep of rest for which the Creator has provided so that He again can "make all things new." These departing things have not only served a useful purpose—in their own way they have contributed joy and beauty as they passed on, "Like harp strings are broken asunder by music they throb to express.) —G.

"HOW CAN WE PRACTICE CHURCH DISCIPLINE TODAY AND REMAIN TRUE TO THE PRINCIPLE OF LOVE AS TAUGH BY CHRIST"?

Every institution has its problems of discipline. The state, the home, the school and the church, all have their particular problems of discipline. The methods of discipline in the process of evolution and change. Consequently they are quite different today from what they used to be. The change in each case, as a rule, has been for the better.

Our subject particularly deals with church discipline. Especially with the question of practicing it in harmony with the principle of love. That this has not always been the case in the past, no one will gainsay. The problem of church discipline is indeed not only a very important one, but a delicate and sometimes a difficult matter. And in practicing it one can very readily do more harm than good to the church and to those in whose behalf it is practiced. I think we all agree it should always be for the good of both the church and the ones upon whom it is practiced. This will be true only if it is done in accordance with the principle of love as taught by Christ.

The history of church discipline contains many sad, dark, and shameful pages. In no other respect has the church been more untrue to the spirit of her Lord and Master than in her methods of discipline. Herein lies one of, if not the greatest, of her failings. Many a soul has not only been estranged, lost, and embittered against the church, but greatly wronged and mistreated, because of unchristian discipline. One cannot help but think of how the church dealt with the heretics. How inhuman and loveless her dealings were with the great reformers, such as Martin Luther, our own Menno Simon, John Wesley, and many others. In losing these men she indeed lost much. It was all due to her unreasonable dealing with those who were unorthodox from her viewpoint. If she had kept such men as these within her ranks they would have been a source of untold blessings to her.

Our subject, however, is not interested in church discipline of the past, but of today. For it reads: "How can we practice church discipline TODAY and remain true to the principle of love as taught by Christ"? If the church has failed so tremendously in this respect in the past, the church today must not fail. For unwise church discipline will be immensely more harmful today than it was in the past. In this age of enlightenment the only kind of church discipline that will be effective is the one that remains true to the principles of love. This kind of discipline is not only the most successful and accomplishes the desired end, but it is the most easily administered.

Now, the first requisite for practicing the discipline of love is that those who administer such discipline must themselves be filled with the love of Christ. Then it will be inevitable and natural that their dealing with others will express that same love. The reason why the church in the past violated the principle of love in matters of discipline, is that those who practiced it were not filled with this love themselves. The same is true today, that wherever and whenever the church goes contrary to the principle of love in her dealing with her members, it means that those who are responsible for such discipline themselves do not truly have this love in their hearts.

It is my firm belief that methods and forms of church discipline today express more fully the spirit of love than they did in the past. But even today there are instances of church discipline that betray the absence of love. Just as the church in the past resorted to persecution as matter of discipline of those who in their thinking deviated from the accepted doctrine of the church. So we have cases today where certain individuals are persecuted because they differ in their views from those commonly accepted by the church. Now the form of this persecution is not through the use of the physical sword or any cruel and brutal treatment, but it is persecution just the same. Persecution through words may be just as great a violation of the principle of love as that of the physical sword. Does love ever persecute anyone in any form? Does love ever hold any heresy trials? As far as I know Jesus never did, nor did Paul, the greatest leader the church has ever had, although both Jesus and Paul were subjected to such trials. And we know it was not love that did it. It is to be devoutly wished that every leader in the church would read a book like the one by that great Quaker, mystic and philosopher, Rufus Jones, entitled, "The Church Debt to Heretics." In it he shows that the church indeed owes much to them. For instance, we would not have had the reformation or the Mennonite church if Luther and Menno Simon or some one else had not been willing to be heretics.

Let us now come more specifically to church discipline in the case of the individual congregation. Here let us point out another requisite for the practice of the discipline of love. The individual church or congregation should not have any rules or regulations whose enforcement would be contrary to the principle of love. The rules and regulations themselves must express the idea of love. We know, however, that some churches do not meet this requisite. Consequently for such churches it is difficult to remain true to the spirit of love in matters of discipline.

Probably the best way to show how the discipline of love can be practiced is to take a few specific cases where discipline is necessary and indicate how love would deal with such cases. Let us take the case where a member has become guilty of gross immorality. How would love deal with such a person? Some churches have the rule that such a member automatically excludes itself from church membership. Is such a rule in harmony with the principle of love? Should not exclusion follow only when such a person refuses to acknowledge his or her guilt and to show worthy signs of repentance? Should such person not first have the opportunity to confess her or his sins and resolve to do better? If such a person refuses to do this and continues in the evil ways, then exclusion should be resorted to. But how is this confession to be made? Must it necessarily be made in public before the whole congregation? It seems to be more expressive of the principle of love if such confession is made before the leaders of the church and these report to the congregation instead of having the concerned person undergo the humiliation of appearing before the whole congregation and making a public spectacle of the matter. Love never humiliates someone else. The purpose and end of church discipline is not humiliation, but correction. We should not forget how Jesus handled a case of this kind. The pharisees tried to publicly humiliate the woman guilty of immorality and make a public spectacle of her, but Jesus told them to beware and to the woman He said, "Go and sin no more." No, love does not condemn, look down upon, nor despise such a person, but rather reaches a helping hand and speaks a kind word of encouragement. That is what Jesus did, who is the embodiment of the principle of love. On the other hand, He severely censured those who despisingly looked down upon erring souls. Love is sympathetic and considerate in its dealings with fallen souls. The church in her attitude toward prodigal members should express the spirit of the father in the parable of the prodigal son, because that is the spirit of God toward them. Furthermore, should not the church in its practice of discipline also express the spirit of God as it is described by the Psalmist when he says that "The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy." "He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities." That is the spirit of God in His dealing with men and women who fail. Surely it must be the spirit of God's church in its dealing with such men and women. In other words, love is patient in matters of discipline. Paul says, love suffereth long and is kind. We should not be too hasty in practicing discipline. We can easily do more harm than good to a human soul. It is so easy to embitter a soul against the church through hasty and unwise procedure. Discipline should never be for the purpose of punishment. The discipline of love expresses itself especially in solicitude and admonishment toward wayward members. Jesus' attitude toward Judas was one of solicitude till the end. The same is true in his attitude toward Peter after the denial.

The teachings of the parable of the wheat and the tares, namely that we should not be too hasty to pull out the tares, also applies to the practice of church discipline. Many a time in practicing church discipline wheat has been pulled out with the tares. Against this Jesus warned very strongly. Love demands that we remember that all of us have tares among the wheat of our life. I hope that these remarks do not convey the idea that laxity in the practice of church discipline is advocated. No, even severity of discipline is necessary when the case demands it. But it must always be done in the spirit fo love. And love is always just and fair and wise and considerate of other persons' feelings and rights.

How should a church deal, in the light of the principle of love, with a person who does not in all particulars agree in his religious thinking with the teaching of the church, but who otherwise takes his life and belief serious and strives after the right and the true in matters of belief and conduct? Will love resort to excommunication in such a case? Does not the parable of the wheat and tares here again apply? Even if such a person has tares among the wheat of his religious thinking and belief who is there that dares to maintain that he has no tares in his religious thinking? Does not that parable justify the conclusion that in certain cases the pulling out of tares must be left to God?

How should a church deal, in the light of the principle, with the indifferent members? Those who neglect their common and rightful church obligations? I have known of churches that have the rule that if any one fails to partake of communion three times in succession without giving a legitimate excuse, such a person is consequently excluded from church membership. Now, it seems to me such action is too hasty, although there should be a limit as to how long such totally indifferent members can retain their membership. What this time limit should be, may be rather difficult to designate. Such members present one of the most difficult problems of church discipline. They are the ones that try one's patience. And yet we must be patient with them, because love is patient.

The three requisites then for practicing church discipline and remaining true to the principle of love are: First, those who practice this discipline must themselves be truly filled with the love of Christ; second, the rules and regulations of a church should express the principles of love; third, those who are responsible for matters of discipline must know the nature of love and ask themselves how love would deal in each particular case. Does this dealing express kindness, patience, helpfulness, wisdom, and justice? Will it win or antagonize the erring soul? The spirit of wrath and intolerance have no place in the discipline of love.

In closing, let me say that the best way to practice the discipline of love is to hold up Christ in all His holiness and love toward fallen souls. For He said, "And I, if I be lifted up will draw all men," even erring souls, "unto myself." So every true church member can and should practice the church discipline of love by lifting Christ up in his own life through actions and words.

CHRIST AND HUMAN SUFFERING

E. Stanley Jones

(Reviewed by P. K. Regier)

The problem of human suffering is perhaps as old as mankind itself. Many have wrestled with the problem, but few have solved it. The gentle Buddha, brooding long and deeply over life, came to a conclusion that fairly takes our breath away. It was this: Existence and suffering are one. As long as we are bound to the wheel of existence we are bound to suffer, for existence and suffering are one, not accidentally or incidentally, but intrinsically and inescapably. The only way to get out of suffering is to get out of existence itself.

The conclusion of the writer of the Book of Ecclesiastes is not far different when he says: "I have seen all the works that are under the sun; and behold, all is vanity and a striving after wind." In the book of Job it is said: "For affliction cometh not forth of the dust, neither doth trouble spring out of the ground; but man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward."

The book of Job itself was written to deal with this question of unmerited suffering. A more modern man cries out in these lines: "My son, the world is dark with griefs and graves, so dark that men cry out against the heavens."

In a Round Table Conference in India a fine young Englishman said: "God let me down. My brother was wounded in the war. I prayed to him that my brother might live. Any decent person would have answered. But he did not and my brother died. Now I have no faith left. I do think that Christ was the greatest Personality that ever lived. But God let me down, so I have no religion. I wish I did have one."

A professor in a great university in America was struck by a truck, knocked down, and his leg broken. After he recovered, at the first appearance in the chapel service he said to the students: "I no longer believe in a personal God. If there were a personal God, would He not have whispered to me to beware of danger of the coming truck and have saved me from this calamity"? He was struck down and in the fall his faith crashed too.

An Indian once said to Rev. Jones: "Since I have become a Christian I have had no more troubles at all." This seemed a proof to him that God was pleased with him. Now in these three cases it is assumed that God should save the righteous from trouble. If he does not, it is either a sign that He does not exist, or that, if He does exist, there is something wrong in Him or in us. Isn't there something fundamentally wrong in this conclusion? Does the gospel teach that if we follow Christ we shall be saved from suffering?

Suppose it should be guaranteed that calamities would always strike the wicked one, and that the righteous would always be saved, what kind of a world would this be? Its laws would always be in a process of suspension whenever the righteous were involved. Gravity would not pull downward even though you leaned too far out over the parapet — provided, of course, you were righteous. If the person were good, the law would be suspended; if bad, it would smite him. It would indeed be a very undependable universe.

Rev. Jones now raises and answers the question: Are Christians spared from suffering?

Evil is of two kinds—one which rises from within from the choices of our wills; that evil we call sin. The other evil comes from without, from our environment of society and of the natural universe; that evil we call suffering. It is easy to understand why we should suffer as the result of our inner choices, but why should we suffer when we do not choose—why should these evils come upon us from without? That they would come upon us Jesus teaches very clearly in Luke 21:8-19.

An earthquake in India shook down a mission building and left a house of ill fame standing near by. In Burma a severe earthquake shook down everything in the locality, but left a Christian's house standing in the midst of it—and this was considered as an act of Providence. But was it? What about those cases where it does not happen in this way?

If it could be proved that the Christian is infallibly spared pain and suffering when it falls on others, the result would be a degradation of Christianity. The multitudes would flock to our churches and accept Christianity and its protections as one would take out a fire insurance policy. It would also be the degradation of the Christian, for he would miss that discipline which comes from living in a universe of impartial law. He would be exempted from that struggle with impersonal and impartial forces of nature out of which alertness and strength of character are formed and through which he is made mentally and spiritually and physically fit to survive. That exemption would be his elimination. His religion would degenerate into magic.

Rev. Jones gives a complete statement of the various ways of facing human suffering.

1. Omar Khayyam, the Persian poet, looked upon the world with its misery and in its fierce reaction against it proposed "To grasp this sorry Scheme of Things entire,

. . . . shatter it to bits — and then
Remold it nearer to the Heart's desire"!

This poet would remake the world with the possibility of suffering left out. This may be the heart's desire of many of us at times of peculiar perplexity and pain, and yet it remains only a desire, for we know that we have no power to put into effect.

2. A second method of meeting suffering is the opposite of the above, and that is of accepting the fact of suffering by always trying to meet it by anticipating it.

3. There are those who meet the problem of suffering by the attitude of self-pity. They get pleasure out of feeling sorry for themselves.

4. The attitude of stoicism. This is the attitude of accepting the fact of suffering, and steeling oneself against it. An Indian tribe in South America begins early to instill this attitude into its young, for as soon as a child is born the father greets it with these words: "You are born into a world of trouble. Shut your mouth, be quiet and bear it."

5. The attitude of Buddha. Buddha would reduce life to that of the vegetable insensibility and call it victory. He would councel us to get rid of personality — in other words, to get rid of our headache by cutting off our head. It is a remedy, but at too big a price.

6. Hindu. All suffering has its antecedent sin somewhere. As a calf will find its mother among a thousand cows, so your deeds will find you amid a thousand births. All suffering, therefore, is just.

7. The Moslem attitude is perhaps simpler than any other one. He is impressed with the sovereignty of God. All that happens is His will. He has predetermined and predestined all that happens. The attitude of the faithful is to submit to His will. Islam literally means submission to the will of God.

8. The Jewish attitude was, that God would look "with favor upon his people," would save them of all troubles, would let no "plague" come nigh the dwelling of the righteous, would give the righteous double for all his losses, and would satisfy him with long life and prosperity.

9. Christian Science. Suffering belongs to the realm of the unreal and exists only in mortal mind; realize your identity with the Eternal Mind and all sin and suffering and death pass away as unrealties.

The Christian Way—At Work in the Gospels. When we turn to the New Testament to find Jesus' way of meeting suffering, two things strike us with surprise: First, that His way is so utterly different from others. Second, that comparatively few in Christendom are using it.

Jesus' attitude toward suffering may be stated very briefly as follows. In Luke 21 He dis-

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance........$1.50
Foreign........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

cusses the various sources which may bring suffering upon His followers. In the very center of this description Jesus makes a declaration that throws a flood of light upon the whole problem and His attitude toward it: "It shall turn out for you as an opportunity for witnessing." In other words, He says, "You are to take hold of these calamities and turn them for a testimony — you are not to escape trouble, nor merely to bear it as the will of God; you are to use it." He suggests that we are to take up pain, calamity, injustice, and persecution, admit them into the purpose of our lives and make them contribute to higher ends — the ends for which we really live.

The Christian Way Is Victory. To many people the phrase, "Thy will be done," means, "Thy will be borne." After Jesus had prayed these words in the garden of Gethsemane He spoke to His sleepy disciples these other words: "Arise, let us be going" — let us be going to meet the betrayal, the rejection, the accusations, the spittle, the cross. The will of God was to be done not by acquiescence, but by activity — it was to be done by taking hold of the whole miserable business and turning it into a triumph of the love of God. We can see Jesus in Gethsemane, no longer the Victor of the will of God, but the Victor through that will.

Josiah Royce defined faith as "the soul's insight or discovery of some reality that enables a man to stand anything that can happen to him in the universe." These words echo the New Testament words: "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even your faith."

The Choice — Religion with or without a Cross. In this chapter the author gives a marvelous exposition of the incident when the Greeks came up to see Jesus. We pass up the significance of this incident by occasionally using the words: "Sirs, we would see Jesus" as a text for a sermon, and leave it at that. But Rev. Jones suggests that it is perhaps even more significant in the life of Jesus than His temptations in the wilderness.

The author says further: "It is probable that the Greeks came as an embassy to suggest that He leave the Jews and come to the Greeks. This is not far-fetched, for tradition tells that the Prince of Edessa did send an embassy to Jesus asking Him to come to Edessa. These Greeks probably saw the storm that was gathering about His head; they perceived that He would end in disaster if He went on among the Jews—they would kill Him.

It is probable that they came, therefore, to invite Him to get out of the whole thing, to come to Athens where men's stands were broad and liberal, where teaching such as His would be appreciated, and where He could live long as an honored and respected teacher. Why go to Jerusalem, where disaster awaits? Step out and come to Athens. In this connection Jesus uses the words: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth (on a cross), will draw all men unto myself." In other words, He chose the cross rather than long life; He chose Jerusalem rather than Athens.

The Cost to God. We Christians look on Jesus as the human life of God. He is that part of God which we have been able to see—the uncovering of the Divine. He is the Divine speaking to us in a language we can understand, a human language, showing us His character where our characters are made, namely, in a human environment. We do not see how else God should show Himself except just in this way.

If that be true, then what fell on Jesus, fell on God; what He bore, God bore; His cross was God's cross. Then this outward cross that was lifted up in history is a sign of that inward cross that lies upon the heart of God. We who are bounded by our senses could not see this inward cross upon God's heart unless and until it was lifted up before our senses. The Italian painter was crudely right, then, when he pictured the nails driven into the hands of Jesus as going through the wood and into the hands of the Father at the back. This conception echoes the statement of Paul when he says: "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself."

We cannot separate God and Christ, making one hard and unbending and the other tender and forgiving. A little girl said, "I hate God, but I love Jesus, for God was going to destroy the world, but Jesus would not let Him." She expressed in a child's outburst what has been built up into theological systems. But the New Testament unfolds to us the Christlike God. When Jesus says, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father," He means, among other things that "he that hath seen me on the cross hath seen the Father on the cross." The cross, then, is God's heartbreak.

100 STUDENTS FOR THE "O. B. A." MENO, OKLAHOMA

This has been our goal for some years. This year we have reached the number of 75, with more in view, especially for the second semester. Together with the special students (not visitors) for the Short Bible Course planned, to be held during the winter, the goal may be reached.

Most of our students come from near by: Meno, Ringwood, and Goltry. These mostly drive from home, some as far as twelve miles. From the whole South there are only three. Then there are ten from Perryton, Texas; two from Inola, two from Turpin (these places are 200 miles distant), and four from Medford.

The teachers are: Two of our last year's teachers are serving again, Albert Eck (from here), and Miss Minnie Schmidt (from Newton, Kansas), and Rev. J. B. Frey, missionary from Arizona, serves as Bible teacher.

Where do we get the room for so many? For 100 regular students we must have more room, absolutely. These 75 are now crowded to the utmost. One of the former school buildings, the old Meno church, was sold and moved away, for which we now are very sorry. The brick building is too far away from the dormitory to be conveniently used. Thus the "boys" have been moved into Mr. Epp's house, near the dormitory; Mr. Eck is staying with them. The "girls", with Miss Schmidt in the very midst of them, occupy the upper floor of the dormitory. On the middle floor three schoolrooms have been arranged, and one large room in the basement, where all assemblies are held, and the largest classes. One Bible class has sixty enrolled. (We wonder what the State Inspector will have to say!)

We, too, are asking, how it is possible that in this time of depression, where some schools had to close their doors, several others have a larger enrollment than ever. For ourselves we find these answers: 1. All depends on God's blessing. 2. We have strongly reminded ourselves of the seriousness of the times — and that our youth must NOW get acquainted with the Bible, before it may be too late. 3. The young people themselves (in Oklahoma at least) seem to realize more than ever the difference between our Bible High School (The "O. B. A.") and the common High Schools. 4. We have worked hard, soliciting students, and much prayer has gone up to God for the school. 5. And since we now are accredited by the State for the FULL FOUR YEAR COURSE, so students can graduate here, with a State H. S. Diploma, the same as from any High School in the state, a number of former students have returned. The three year Bible Course, to be taken separately or in connection with the High School course, still is the "crown" of our school. Rejoice with us and pray for us!

THE SOCIAL LIFE AT THE RETREAT

One of the most valuable phases of the Retreat experience is the opportunity afforded to meet other young people who have shared a similar Mennonite heritage. These contacts broaden us and help give an understanding to our common problems.

The Retreat committee in various ways provided outlets for expression of the social surge. A mixer was held on the opening night. After a few "get-acquainted" games every one felt at ease and entered into the spirit of joviality for the rest of the evening.

To further cement these newly formed friendships the various delegations entertained one another often with parties in each other's cottages. Here the Retreaters became more intimately acquainted with one another and the resounding laughter gave evidence that an enjoyable time was being had by all.

Added to this was a number of feeds which greatly contributed to the "esprit de corps" of the group. A wiener roast was held at Cotton

Lake, and on the final evening a melon feed was held on the grounds. Free time during the afternoons also provided opportunity for fellowship. Athletics, hikes, boating and swimming activities provided the focus of attention during this period.

Thus by these various means many friendships were formed, many of which extend beyond the mere time limits of the Retreat. Ample opportunity was provided for every Retreater to enlarge the scope of his acquaintances and thus broaden his vision, add to his understanding, and increase his tolerance.

—Orden Smucker, Bluffton, Ohio.

CORRESPONDENCE

Bluffton College. With work at Bluffton College well under way, early indications seem to point to an improved situation and successful year. A very inspiring faculty retreat was held just prior to the opening of college. This served to stimulate a proper spirit for the work of directing the lives and personalities of the students entrusted to the care of the institution. The sessions were under the direction of Rev. Rosenberger and Rev. Kreider. The discussions were free and informal.

Students arrived on the following week and while the number was not as large as expected, it is nevertheless gratifying to see a slight increase over the previous year. The total registration stands at 182.

Several changes in faculty and administration have taken place. Miss Martha Burkhalter is dean of women and also teaches a course in missions. Rev. C. E. Rediger, a man of wide experience in college business administration, is the new business manager. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger assumed the new function of associate president during the first of November. His series of lectures during the opening week of school enabled the students and faculty to become mutually acquainted.

Financial plans of the college are assuming more of a definiteness with a refinancing program which at this writing is well under way. In addition to the refinancing program an appeal for $10 gifts is being presented to the several conferences and is hoped to have the popular support of all the churches.

The religious organizations of the college are being felt on the campus and various programs have already been given. It is expected that meetings in the various churches will give opportunity for service. Members of the faculty also stand ready to serve the churches for special occasions.

One of the delightful occasions of the year was the annual homecoming event. A large number of graduates and former students were present to witness the football game between Defiance College and Bluffton, the Beavers coming out on top, 6-0. The climax of the day's festivities was the concert given by Prof. G. A. Lehman, formerly of this faculty, now of Rochester Theological Seminary of New York. A capacity audience enthusiastically applauded as he sang with his usual fervor and artistic quality.

A new campus beautification project is giving a new aspect to the campus as Riley creek is being dredged and widened. Under a FERA grant a number of students are assisting in the various departments in tabulation and research work.

Thus the college is combining all its resources and efforts in the great cause of Christian education with the ultimate goal of building a better world for the oncoming generation. In the spirit of the Master we go forth, convinced that the eternal verities will triumph To this end we plead for the guidance of the all-wise Providence and for the prayers of our many friends. B. D. Smucker.

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yoder and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Augsberger of Peoria, Ill., worshipped with us Sunday, October 14. Mr. and Mrs. Yoder, who are soon to leave for the mission field in Africa, spoke at the morning worship hour.

Rev. E. A. Sommer of Bloomington, Ill., was with us Sunday evening, October 14, and delivered the evening message. The following week he spent soliciting missionary pledges.

Mrs. Josie Lentz has left for Lima, Ohio, to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Grace Stemen.

A cement walk and curb has been made in front of the church, which adds much to the outside appearance.

Saturday afternoon, October 20, Mrs. Earl Neufer entertained the ladies of the Good Fellowship and Crusaders classes at a bridal shower for Mrs. Karl Bobeck. A fine social time was enjoyed and a mock wedding added to the afternoon's entertainment.

Communion services were observed Sunday morning, October 21st, with a goodly number present to partake of the sacred emblems.

The Berean class met Thursday, October 25, with Mrs. Vernon Kauffman.

The Crusaders class enjoyed a Halloween party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rink near Millersburg, Tuesday evening, October 30.

Ina Plank submitted to an appendicitis operation at the Kerchival hospital in Wolcottville, and we hope for her a speedy recovery.

The Ladies' Aid met Thursday, November 1, with Mrs. Erman Yoder.

A daughter, Janet Charlene, was born November 3, to Mr. and Mrs. Mendal Moseman.

Sunday evening, November 4, a special musical program was given with numbers rendered by different classes of the Sunday School.

The ladies of the Good Fellowship class spent Friday, November 9, with Mrs. Mervin Rostetler of Middlebury.

Sunday evening, November 11, Dr. L. P. Harshman, physchiatrist and nerve specialist, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, spoke on a subject relating to mental health and mental hygiene.

Bluffton, Ohio, October 6, 1934. This is the last day of September, and after having had two refreshing rains last week the sky has taken on a blue hue, announcing that October's bright weather is at hand.

Our hot and dry summer is culminating into a fruitful autumn. We had so many weeks of heat and drought that one almost dreaded to step outside some days and see plants and animals suffer. Yet we have harvested some fine crops. Through this all we can not help but recognize "God as a Wonder Worker," for many seeming impossibilities have become realities.

With last Sunday as our Rally Day, the church and its various auxiliary organizations have ambitiously launched upon a new year of religious activities. With the opening of college our church feels that this is the time to begin a new year in its activities. We have welcomed a nice group of students, but the number should be considerably larger. We would wish that the Mennonite young people would seriously consider our own church schools before making their decision.

During the year we had with us as active members, Missionary S. F. Pannabecker and family. We appreciated their burning missionary zeal, which always holds them in grip. We also were privileged to have with us Dr. Ella Bauman at a morning service, and Miss Fast for an evening service.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander was with us at several occasions and also conducted a week of pre-Easter services.

At present the church has undertaken two improvement projects, the one to paint the exterior of the church and the other to rebind our hymnals.

The Sunday School has organized a Teachers Training Class, under the instruction of Dr. J. S. Schultz, dean of the college.

For the winter months special music for our Sunday morning services will be furnished by the men's and ladies' choruses under the direction of Prof. Otto Holtkamp and Miss Naomi Stiner, respectively.

Every Sunday we expect a sermon rich in inspiration and spiritual blessing, and our pastor, Rev. A. E. Kreider, never disappoints us.

With sincerest greetings,

Mrs. Edwin Amstutz.

Newton, Kansas, October 18, 1934. To the readers of the Mennonite and the Christian Evangel: Since your correspondent was away from Newton for several weeks and in the hospital several weeks, this report will not be as complete, but he will give what he has.

On July 29, Dr. J. Lohrenz gave his farewell sermon, after having preached almost every other Sunday since January. He has been a blessing to many and we will miss him.

On August 5, Rev. Abr. Albrecht preached in German and English and afterwards tried to awaken an interest in the Bible School at Hillsboro. The collection was for the Bible School.

On September 2, Rev. P. H. Unruh of the Alexanderwohl church, coming from the Middle District Conference, preached in both languages.

On September 9, in the evening the County and District C. E. Secretaries gave interesting talks on the work of the C. E. Union.

September 23, Rev. H. J. Dyck preached in the evening. He is the pastor of the Elbing church.

On September 30, Rev. P. P. Wedel of Moundridge preached in both languages.

Sunday, October 7, in the evening, Dr. Winrod of Wichita spoke on the subject: "God Revealed" very interestingly and forcefully.

On Sunday, October 14, the Lord's Supper was celebrated. A young man was baptized. The whole meeting was very solemn and impressive.

On Monday evening, October 15, Hon. Clinton N. Howard spoke on "The Rise, Fall, and Recovery of Prohibition" in a very interesting and convincing way.

C. van der Smissen.

Burrton Mennonite Church, Burrton, Kans., October 15, 1934. Dear Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel: We are happy to report that our Sunday School and Church attendance is increasing. Several persons joined church this spring by letter and baptism. A few new families have also moved into our community.

Our church united with the other churches of this community for union services this summer. During that time the C. E. meetings were discontinued. Our C. E. held an election at its last meeting and we now hope to work with new enthusiasm.

The Mission Society held its annual bazaar recently. A basket supper was enjoyed by all those present. We were well pleased with the financial results of the bazaar.

We were glad to be able to have our Bible Vacation School for the children this summer. Miss Amanda Pankratz was the teacher. We closed the school term with our annual Sunday School picnic. The children of the vacation school helped furnish the program.

Corr.

Eden Mennonite Church of Moundridge, Kansas, is as usual trying to further God's kingdom through its various activities. We are permitted to come together on the Lord's Day for worship services, a privilege which is not treasured highly enough by the Christian people of our day. How much would the Waldensians have given for such a privilege! They were persecuted and driven to worship in caves and hovels of the earth, while we may peacefully worship in special church houses.

The various avenues in which the religious life of our people is fostered is through the Sunday School, preaching services, church choirs, and the Christian Endeavor. But we know that the church activities alone are not enough for a wholesome Christian life. In spite of our Sunday Schools there is a great ignorance on the part of church people concerning the Word of God everywhere in the land. The Bible must be read daily and may it be truly said of our Christian people, "But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night." Again a prayer life is necessary to a wholesome Christian life. Someone has said, "We may have the powers of Heaven at our command if we pray earnestly."

In our own community we have had a number of deaths. Deaths do come. It is a law of life. Also a number of young people were united in marriage. May their course of life be one of contentment and happiness in such earnest and trying times. Trust in God can only make such things possible. For He careth for His own.

Missionary G. A. Linscheid as well as sister Linscheid were with us October 5th. They gave us a very fine review of the work and problems confronting them in the Indian missions. They plead most earnestly for intercessory prayers in behalf of their work. When Peter was bound in chains in the prison, prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him . . . and behold, the angel of the Lord came upon him and a light shined in the prison . . . and his chains fell off from his hands." Here we see the answering of prayer. God is able to grant us an answer to our prayers if they are made unitedly and earnestly in the cause of missions as well as other problems that confront us. The lukewarmness prevalent among Christians shows a lack of prayer life.

Fellowship with Christ always produces a life of love and good will, and prayer is that means of fellowship and communion with God through His Son, Jesus Christ. May God's richest blessing abide on all those who have God's kingdom at heart. Sincerely,

Rev. Phil. A. Wedel.

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. Rev. Hostetler conducted revival services at the Mennonite Mission in Peoria for a period of two weeks, ending October 21. Rev. J. J. Gross of the Hopedale Methodist Episcopal church filled the pulpit both Sunday mornings during his absence.

Mrs. Barbara Naffziger and daughters Fern and Mona were visitors at Varna and Flannagan, Sunday, October 14.

(Concluded on page 23.)

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. ROY YODER
1300 Bond Ave.
Peoria, Ill.

LOVE'S TRIUMPHANT STORY

Ride on, O King anointed
By heaven's supreme decree;
Through everlasting ages,
Our great High Priest be.

Ride on, O King eternal,
Thy sword of victory wield,
Till sin's dark host defeated
Lie helpless on the field.

O speed the day of promise,
When war and strife shall cease
And Thou shalt reign exalted,
The glorious Prince of Peace.

—B. D. Ackley.

Y. P. WORK

The Young People's Committee feels that it can report definite progress on the program that was outlined at the General Conference in August. The members of the Committee are promoting the work in their various districts and the young people are responding to their efforts.

The Field Secretary, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander has visited the churches throughout the various districts. These contacts have resulted in a new vision and a greater determination to carry forward the tasks of the Kingdom.

The sending out of a Field Secretary was and is a venture of faith, but there is reason to believe that this faith will be rewarded. The majority of the churches which have been visited have sent financial contributions which make it possible to continue our efforts. There have also been offerings from those districts to which Rev. Neuenschwander has not yet gone. If each Young People's Society in the General Conference will remember the Young People's Committee in prayer and with an offering, much will be accomplished.

Please send contributions to Mary B. Borneman, 27 East Marshall Street, Norristown, Pa.

WHO WILL WIN?

Mrs. Paul Wenger

A Hindu merchant of the Rajput caste. An attractive little wife and four fine children. A comfortable mud house in Korba village. A hearty, yes, a pressing invitation to visit wife and children. A sitting room, neatly furnished with a few chairs, a bed, and a few small tables, all with clean coverings. The entire room, though not especially beautiful to our aesthetic sense, yet a delightful surprise of orderliness, showing unusual housewifely care. A distinctly homelike atmosphere, and more than that, a home where one could read of things that are taking place. On the walls were pictures — colored, framed pictures of Sita, Ram, perhaps Vishnu, Ganesh, and other Hindu gods and goddesses. On a small table were a few books, carefully arranged, and in a favored place, the Word of the Living God, THE BIBLE! Remarkable evidences of a conflict— Christ and Ram bidding for the soul of this family!

Three visitors. A hearty welcome. A bit of friendly conversation. A few interested neighbors coming in. A few hymns, a brief message, a short passage of God's Word read from their own Bible. Outside, a man, the merchant himself, listening behind latticed doors. The visitors were departing, when one was recalled. Listen to the resume of what the man said during a somewhat lengthy conversation.

I want my wife to learn to read. Here among our people it is not the custom and is not well that a man should teach his wife to read. I have several times tried to make arrangements for my wife to be taught by Christian women, but have not been able to find one as yet. I have taught her some myself, so has also my young nephew. (Here the wife was called to show her ability in reading, and showed that wonderful progress had been made.) We of our country suffer much because of the condition of our womanhood. Much has already been done to uplift them, but more must be done. Women are nobler than men, and our women are capable. Look at your Christian woman Pandita Ramabai, and at our Surojini Naidu. You have just been reading from the Bible for these women. They have not understood what you read. (His conclusions here may not have been altogether correct.) There are two religions in the world, Hinduism and Christianity. You are a Christian, I am a Hindu. I am able to read, and to weigh and to choose. These women are not able. India's women must be educated.

Educated, yes, but something more.

A remarkable home! A wonderful possibility! A place where a battle is being fought, and the battle is not one of flesh and blood.

Oh Sita, oh Ram, all gods and goddesses, what have you to offer these who are seeking for the light?

Oh Christ, Son of the Living God, Light of Life, shine, that they may know Him, "Whom to know is Life Eternal."

Who will win?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

December 2, 1934

What Is the Purpose of Missions?

Matt. 28:16-20

The large group out of the Protestant church which uses the Christian Endeavor topics will rejoice in the privilege of discussing these next three C. E. topics. It is a series dealing with missions, in which we will discuss the purpose of missions, the problems relating to missions and the missionary opportunities right at our very door.

There are two questions facing us in this consideration of our topic for this week: "What is the Purpose of Missions"? We will first consider the purpose of missions and then try to conclude as to how far a program of work will actually be missionary.

The Purpose of Missions

In this day when so many of our missionaries are at home due either to their own choice or to the lack of money, and when so many Christians have permitted their enthusiasm in missions to grow cold it is very timely that we re-study this problem. WHY MISSIONS? In the first place because your Lord and my Lord bade us go, teach and baptize (Matt. 28:16-20.) If our dearest friend on earth would command us to do a certain deed, that would be sufficient reason for our doing it. This was our Lord and Master's last command to all Christians before He ascended back to the Father. As we diagnose this reason we find it is for the purpose of winning men and women and young people to an allegiance to Jesus Christ. A man does not truly live until he has given this loyalty to Christ, for He has bought all men at an awful price, this is the manner of life which Jesus called the abundant life. This will result in a transformed life, he will have become a "new creature," a life of true culture and Christian enlightenment should follow. At times we try to develop culture and uplift the levels of life and hope that thereby souls may be saved from a life of sin, but many of our movements of reform show that we must first transform the natures of men before we can bring about much of reform.

There is a secondary and partly selfish reason why we should be interested and active in missionary endeavors. It is based on the fundamental spiritual principle, "Whosoever is willing to lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall find it." The church or individual which would grow must live an unselfish life, they must find an active interest outside of themselves; and missions serve that purpose in an ideal way. A missionary church is usually a growing church, while the church which has no interest in the cause of missions soon becomes a cold and lifeless church.

What Is "Missions"?

A denomination other than ours has an annual Fair at which time they exhibit agricultural products to show that better methods of cultivation, better seeds for sowing, and greater care in raising stock will bring superior and increased returns. Is this fair missions? Why, or why not? The same denomination has an annual Baby Welfare Show and a display of articles which should be found in an Indian rural home. Is this missions, or is it not? Some missions through the means of doctors, nurses, and teachers seek to help create healthy bodies and promising minds with new possibilities for useful living. Is this missions? Why, or why not?

Questions

1. What do we mean by missions?
2. To what extent does Matt. 28:16-20 constitute a call to missionary endeavor?
3. What to your mind constitutes the purpose of missions?
4. In what ways may an interest in missions be beneficial to us?
5. How inclusive is the program of missions?
6. What can our society do for missions?

December 9, 1934

Problems Faced On Mission Fields

Acts 19:23-41

This is the second topic in our series of mission studies. Surely there are problems a plenty confronting the cause of missions. In planning the program for this service it will be well to consider carefully current problems as they are related to missions. Procure speakers who read widely. If possible, invite a missionary to speak on some of the outstanding problems confronting missions today.

Some Present-Day Problems

In our Scripture portion Paul experienced almost all of the problems as they are confronting our modern church. In the first place when Paul was meeting with considerable success in his long ministry in Ephesus his enemies opposed him on the ground that he was drawing too much money away from them. In a world of materialism like ours commercial greed plays a large part in making the work of our missionary endeavors difficult. When people do not have as much money as they think they ought to have, then all giving for beneficent purposes is slowed down so that Boards find it impossible to return some of their workers and many places of work on the field must be eliminated.

There was also something of the spirit of jealousy to be found in Demetrius and his fellow-workers. Success raises enemies. Paul and his companions were attracting too much attention, and were drawing some away from them. Our missionaries experience this quite often at the hands of priests and other god-worshippers. Whenever traditions and existing forms are being challenged, there trouble is liable to ensue. That is true not only in missions, but even here at home.

Another reason why the cause of missions suffers is because men are too careful of their lives. They feel it is such a waste to go and lose life in the cause of missions. When beautiful Harriet Newell became wife, devoted missionary, mother and saint all within one year, her friends thought she had thrown her life away. But because of her willing sacrifice there were fifteen or twenty willing volunteers ready to take her place on the mission field and hundreds of others increased their giving and praying for missions. Was her life wasted? When our own Noah Burkhalter gave his life for the cause he loved in India and many others increased their zeal and loyalty to the work he loved, was his life wasted? The same might be said of Sister Anna Funk who, while returning from India on the ill-fated Titanic (which men said was unsinkable) gave her place in the lifeboat to a mother whose daughter was already on the boat, these and many others are still serving their Master because they were not afraid of losing their life for the sake of their Lord whom they loved so much.

Another critical problem confronting missions is that knotty question of Nationalism. Commercial companies follow the missionaries and scatter their wares and cheat the natives in many cases. In other instances they bring products which are illegal at home and thereby ruin precious lives. When the natives see and learn all about this they question a religion which allows such immoral treatment. They are not able to distinguish between the work of a Christian American missionary and a pagan commercialized American business firm. This also in many cases involves the problem of militarism and suspicion toward other nations.

Questions

1. What do you regard as the greatest problem confronting the cause of missions today?
2. To what extent is the lack of finances a serious problem?
3. What national problems make the cause of missions more difficult?

4. Is the lack of Christian consecration a real problem?
5. How may our society make the cause of missions a greater success?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Roy Yoder, 1300 Bond Ave., Peoria, Ill.

December 2, 1934

What Is The Bible?

Heb. 4:12, 13

(Consecration Meeting)

The Bible is a searchlight thrown upon the path of life. If we read it and seek to obey it, we shall be led aright. No one ever goes astray in life who follows the word of God.

Pre-Prayer Service

Praise God for the Open Bible and the Holy Spirit who teaches us and guides us into All Truth.

Helpful Hints

The Bible is a guide to right living. There are things in it that are hard to understand, but its precepts, and the Sermon on the Mount, are not difficult to comprehend, but they are difficult to live. We need Jesus in us to live these truths. The Bible is a book of the ages (Isa. 40:8). Science may grow away from the conception of science, but we can never outgrow the Bible. It is as eternal as Right and Wrong.

The Bible is an inspired Book. God breathed Himself into it, so that when we read the Bible the soul becomes saturated with God. No other book is like it.

The Bible is the Word of God, revealing what He is and what He wants us to do, and how to live.

The Bible is not one book, but a library of books, written by many persons over a period of centuries. It reflects the thoughts and customs of long-past days, and shows us how men came to know more and more about God.

Questions

1. Which is the most important book in the Bible to you? Why? (Give this question to several.)
2. Why is the Bible always so new and interesting to everyone?
3. What makes the Bible different from all other books?
4. Find out the authors of the books of the Old Testament, and their purpose in writing these eternal truths.
5. Who wrote the book of Acts and what is the message of the book?
6. Why are the four Gospels so named? Who wrote them and to whom were they written?
7. Name the Pauline Epistles and the messages in these letters.
8. Who wrote the book of Revelation and why is it so called?
9. How can we learn to read our Bibles every day? What method can we use? What time of the day is best?

Find Quickly and Read

Luke 24:25-27; James 1:19-27; II Tim. 3:16, 17; John 17:14; Eph. 6:17;; Isa. 55:10, 11.

December 9, 1934

How To Use Our Bibles

Acts 17:10-12

God cannot bless and reveal His word to a lazy mind.

Pre-Prayer

"Praise God for His Word and for minds sufficiently intelligent to understand, by the guidance of the Holy Spirit, those things which He has there written for us.

How To Read

For devotions: Read the Bible as part of your devotions, reading slowly, noting significant phrases, meditating on what you read. Then try to live according to your highest knowledge and yielded wills.

Historically: Read the Bible, considering the historical background. Use good commentaries, with care, in helping you to secure this background.

Read each book of the Bible so as to get a clear idea of the purpose of the book.

Study Christ's life as given by each of the four gospels. Read each Gospel through several times. Study Jesus' actions, saying, etc.

Read the Bible more than you read commentaries, although commentaries are good. Your own convictions given by the Holy Spirit, as you study are more important to you than the thoughts of others.

Do not worry over the inspiration of the Bible. The Book is a lantern which contains the light, but it is not the light itself.

Select a topic and trace it through both Old and New Testaments.

Trace a subject using a concordance in the New Testament and find illustrations of it in the Old Testament. This will give a new value to both Testaments.

Read your Bible with an open mind, ready to listen to God as He speaks to you.

Pray before you begin to read and study that your heart might be prepared and your eyes and mind open to His messages for you.

Test your convictions by the Scriptures. Be sure they are right, then go ahead.

Questions

1. How would you go about finding "How can I be saved"?
2. Where would you find the study of the "Life of Christ"?
3. Why is it necessary to study the historical setting of each writer?
4. Why is Scripture memorizing necessary?
5. What is the difference between reading the Bible, and studying the Bible?

Read:— John 5:39; Matt. 7:24, 25; Rom. 15:4; Jer. 15:16; I Pet. 2:1, 2; Ps. 19:7.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

December 2, 1934

Topic—Being Like Christ In His Love Of God's House.—Luke 4: 16-19.

(Consecration Meeting.)

David said, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord," Psa. 122:1. How many of us can truly say that? I trust that we do really love to go to church where we can praise God together and learn of Him. If we would be like Christ in our church-going, we must go faithfully, for we are told that it was His custom to go to God's house each week. He went not only to listen, but to help in the service. He proved that He really loved God's house and wanted it kept as a place of worship when He drove out those who were buying and selling there. Many great men have loved to go to church and have gone regularly. It is said that George Washington never stayed away from church because of company. If any came to his home on Sunday he always invited his guests to go along to church instead of staying at home with them. So many people seem to forget that God gave us one day each week to worship Him. They think of it only as a day to have a good time. That was not Christ's way nor is it the way of those who love Him. We need that one day for Him.

Plans for the Meeting

The superintendent should carefully study Bible teachings concerning God's house in her preparation for the meeting. Mennonites in the past were very careful to keep the church strictly a house of worship. Today some of our churches give secular entertainments, at times charging admission. Sales are held in classrooms or even in the church proper. What would Christ say about this? The Juniors should be told. A careful study of His conduct in and attitude toward God's house will answer the question. Try to instill in the hearts of the Juniors such a love for God's house that they will want to go there regularly and will do their best to see it kept a place of worship.

Questions

1. How did Christ prove His love for God's house?
2. Why should we love to go to church?
3. What did Christ say about buying and selling in the church?
4. How does church-going help us?
5. How may we Juniors help in the church?

Daily Readings

Zeal for God's House. John 2:18-22.
Jesus a visitor. Luke 2:43-49.
Teaching in the temple. John 8:1, 2.
A hymn on God's house. Ps. 84:1-4.
Regular church-going. Heb. 10:24, 25.
Christ's church attendance. Mark 1:21, 22.

December 9, 1934

Topic—God's Wonder Book: What It Tells About Wrong-Doing.—Rom. 5:12

When driving through a city or along a highway, one often comes to a red light. That is not placed there to frighten one or to make one lose time, but to warn one of danger that he may drive carefully and go on his journey safely. There are many such warnings in the Bible. We find some of them today. God's Wonder Book uses a little word of three letters when speaking about wrong-doing. We do not like the word, but if we would know what the Bible teaches we must use the Bible name, S-I-N. God wants us to know how awful sin is, for He speaks of it many, many times. Look into a concordance and see the great number of verses about sin, iniquity, trespass, evil, and other words for wrong-doing. The Bible teaches that all have sinned (Rom. 3:23). Not only actions, but hearts are sinful (Jer. 17:9). We are taught very plainly that sin must be punished (Gal. 6:7), and punished with death (Rom. 6:23). Not just death as we generally think of it, but that which shuts out of heaven (Rev. 21:27) and brings punishment that never ends (Rev. 20:15). This is an awful thought and any wise person will surely want to find a way to get rid of sin. Trying to cover or hide it will not help (Prov. 28:13). There must be another way. We find that in Ps. 103:3, God forgives, puts away — sin, and He has only one way of doing it. Christ came to save sinners (1 Tim. 1:15) and He is the only One who can (Acts 4:12). I Cor. 15:3, 4 tells what He did and now we need just to accept and believe on Him (Acts 16:31; John 3:16). Even after we are saved we need Him to help us that we shall not sin. We sin when we do wrong, and Jas. 4:17 says that we sin, too, when we fail to do the good that we should.

Plans for the Meeting

Speak of warnings against sin as stoplights of the Bible. The entire study period should be devoted to finding what the Bible teaches on this important subject. Have the Juniors tell of men and women of the Bible who sinned. David is an especially good illustration of the joy of sin forgiven.

Questions

1. How many Bible words for wrong-doing can you think of?
2. Why is sin spoken of so often in the Bible?
3. Tell of some results of sin.
4. How may we have our sin forgiven?
5. Mention some of the good things that come to those whose sins are forgiven.

Daily Readings

Wrong-doing always punished. Gal. 6:6, 7.
God is just. Rom. 2:6.
Rebekah's wrong-doing. Gen. 27:6-10.
Ananias' wrong-doing. Acts 5:1-6.
Adam's wrong-doing. Gen. 3:6.
The wages of sin. Rom. 6:23.

Others

"We are His witnesses of these things."

"Ye are the light of the world . . . . Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

"But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth."

How much time and thought are we giving to "Others" in our Christian Endeavor work? Do we remember that we have been saved to serve? Christian Endeavor was started especially to give folks a place to work. Are we satisfied to do just what we must in the meetings or are we trying to win those outside of Christ and the church?

There is a real work for us to do; are we doing it? We have committees to reach the sick, the lonely, the unsaved, and those in other lands. Are we doing our part? How about the folks near us? Christ said, "He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth." Luke 11:23.

WHAT THE RETREAT MEANT TO ME

My attending the Retreat this year, which was my first time, proved to be a great blessing to me. God's big trees made His greatness very impressive. Our speaker at Vespers at one time expressed the thought that we, in one respect, are as those Giant Redwoods. These trees keep growing and growing until they reach high up into the heavens. They continue to grow thus for many years. We must grow in the same way; higher and closer to God. If we do not grow upward, we are standing still. This is one of the many lessons I learned during that week and it is my desire to learn more and serve more the One who died on the Cross for all. —Meta Schroeder.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

November 25, 1934

The Christian Steward

Lesson Text.—Matt. 25:14-30

Golden Text.—Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. Matt. 25:21.

A parable is an earthly story with a heavenly meaning. Jesus was a master teacher in the law of apperception, using the common things of life to illustrate great truths concerning the kingdom.

The parable of talents is one of the three in Matthew twenty-five, which deals with the hope of the coming of the Lord. The parable of the Ten Virgins teaches watchfulness and the parable of the talents teaches working till Jesus comes. The parable of the sheep and goats suggests the standard by which life shall be judged.

Carlyle said that the truth of the parable of the talents was the Sinai law of life raising the question, "What talent is in you? How do you use that talent"? Vacauloy says, this story has given language a new word, "talented."

When a new emperor would come to the throne in Rome, kings and lords would go on a long journey to the emperor to see whether they could keep their kingdom. While they were gone the servants had charge of the kingdom, and faithfulness was required of them until their lord should return. It is on this fact that Jesus bases this parable of talents. One servant received five talents with which to trade, one two, and the other one, each one according to his ability. None of the three could complain because they were given all they were able to use. The two invested their talents and were very successful. The third, however, hid his talent. He was not lazy, but he wanted to save his money. In that day they had no banks, so they hid it in the ground to save it. He had kept his talent with scrupulous care. He wasn't going to take a risk. That, according to Jesus, was his failure. He did not use, invest or plan for his talent. A talent has two sides, on the one is written endowment and on the other responsibility. This man with the one talent lacked the courage of adventure. He did not see that if a talent is not used it will vanish. We keep what we share.

This lesson, of course, suggests the Christian principle of life, which is stewardship. The fundamental idea of stewardship is that all that life is and has belongs to God and is entrusted to us for use. It is our endowment which brings to us responsibility. Stewardship is not a human invention of a church board to raise money. It is the fundamental principle of Christian life. It is not as a holdup man says, "Your money or your life." Stewardship says, "Your money and your life." It is as essential to Christian living as regeneration, sanctification, or any other Christian truth.

What, to your mind, prompted Jesus to tell this story?

What view of life does Jesus present in this parable?

What is Christian stewardship?

Does it have anything to do with money?

Is this view of life reasonable or practical for our day?

What relation does this parable have to the coming of our Lord?

December 2, 1934

The Christian as a Witness

Lesson Text.—I Thess. 1:1-10

Golden Text: But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and in Samaria and unto the uttermost part of the earth. Acts 1:8.

Our lesson for today is taken from a very interesting letter of Paul. First Thessalonians is not only the first of Paul's letters, but it is the first Christian writing of which we have any record. It was written before the gospels.

Paul in all his letters has particular problems in mind that he is facing and attempting to solve by his letters. It is true, of course, that his messages are for today, but they were primarily written to deal with situations of his day. We all remember that second mission journey of Paul, where he came to Troas after having been forbidden by the Holy Spirit to go to Galatia. As he was at Troas he received a definite call in a vision to come to Europe. He responded and on this journey he established a church at Thessalonica. It is to this church that he is now writing this letter. He is writing to them because some in the church were spending too much time idling around waiting for Jesus to come. Paul is writing to them urging them to go on working and witnessing for Christ until He comes.

Our lesson is taken from the first chapter. Paul has a very fine way of approach when he wishes to offer advice to a church concerning some serious situation. He very tactfully gives words of commendation and encouragement before he brings necessary rebuke to the church. He commends the Thessalonian church for their faithfulness and zeal in witnessing for Christ. Through Macedonia and Achaia people had been affected by their testimony.

The truth of this lesson, of course, is our witnessing for Christ. Some one has said that more people read the fifth gospel of Christ more than the four in the New Testament. This fifth gospel is the one according TO YOU. We by our words, our attitudes, and our lives bear testimony either for or against Christ. The most effective revival will come to America when Christians once effectively witness for Christ in their occupations and professions by their lives.

What was Paul's experience in the founding of the Thessalonian church?

What problems in the church prompted this letter?

In what ways did those early Christians witness for Christ?

What to your mind is the greatest need of the Christian church today?

CENTRAL CONFERENCE MISSION BOARD AND MINISTERS' MEETING

The Central Conference Mission Board held its quarterly session November 13 at the Mennonite Hospital, Bloomington, Illinois. All the members of the Board were present. Regular business was transacted, then the Board met each one of the three mission superintendents to discuss with them problems concerning their work. The great problem of the Board is a matter of finances. We would urge our churches to put forth every effort to systematically and regularly send their contributions to our treasurer for the support of our mission work. Most of the communities in which our churches are located have been abundantly blessed materially in comparison with other sections of our country.

The Ministerial Association held a meeting on November 14th at the hospital. Practically all of the ministers were present, except those at a great distance. A program had been arranged for the day, but was very much condensed in order to allow time for the discussion of pressing problems that had to be met. A special conference delegates' meeting will be held at the Normal Mennonite Church, Thursday, November 22, to further consider the same problems. We are sorry these meetings are necessary, but on the other hand, we cannot allow disruptive forces to destroy the unity and fellowship of our conference. The minister's meeting revealed that there is a spirit of unity, fellowship, and seriousness on the part of the ministers present. We expect to continue to be workers together with God. —Weaver.

SERMONOGRAMS

Today is a better day than yesterday. Do not let deceptions destroy confidence in real honest goodness.

The man who does not learn by his mistakes turns his best schoolmaster out of doors.

Life is full of endings, but every ending is a new beginning; we can start a better chapter.

When you get to the end of your rope, tie a knot in it and hang on.

Forget yourself for others, and you will never be forgotten by others.

Sin remains the same in essence and results no matter what label you place upon it.

When it is finally settled that a thing is impossible watch some fellow do it.

Be on the level and you are not likely to go down hill.

Never hear more than one kind of trouble at a time. Some people bear three—all they have and, all they have now, and all they expect to have.

You cannot push people up to a higher plane of living, you must lift them up, and to lift them up you must first climb up yourself.

Christianity is not just a theory, to be discussed and believed, but a way of life.

JOTTINGS

The churches of the community joined with the Inman, Kansas, church in the celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary on October 10th. A tent had been erected on the church grounds for the accommodation of the visitors and friends who gathered. Rev. P. H. Unruh gave a Home Missionary Address and Rev. G. A. Linscheid gave a Foreign Mission Address. The Anniversary Address was given by Rev. A. J. Dyck. Pastors who had served this congregation during the period of its existence gave brief addresses.

Rev. M. M. Lehman, formerly of the Chicago Mission, and later working under the Home Mission Board at Drake, Saskatchewan, has severed his connection with the Home Mission Board to take charge of the pastorate of the Marion, S. D., church.

Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannebecker, who have just returned from China, where they have served in the General Conference missions, spent a portion of a week in Bluffton, Ohio. Both have been students in Bluffton College while preparing for their work. Dr. Pannebecker spoke in the First Church, Bluffton, and St. John's and Ebenezer churches, Pandora.

Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Brown, pioneer missionaries of the General Conference in China, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on October 30th. The message in the little greeting which they sent to their friends reads: "This is a day of rejoicing for us. Do rejoice with us, for you have had a share in us as well as in the work. Pray also very definitely that the grace and power of the Lord shall be with us and our Chinese co-workers for even greater things to come. May the name of the Lord be praised among His people."

On October 14, the Pretty Prairie church, Kansas, celebrated the fiftieth year of its founding. Former ministers of the congregation were present to take part in the exercises. These were J. J. Flickner, J. B. Epp, N. W. Banman, and J. W. Lorenz. At the afternoon exercises several of the members of the congregation spoke. A special program was arranged for the evening service. Rev. Banman, who is now a resident of British Columbia, was present at the expense of the congregation. The occasion gave him opportunity to meet many of his friends in Kansas. Rev. S. M. Nusselman is pastor of the Pretty Prairie church.

Two new congregations were admitted into membership of the Pacific District Conference at its late meeting, namely Grace church of Dallas, Oregon, and Grace church of Albany, Oregon. Rev. G. W. Baergen is pastor of the former and until his recent retirement on account of poor health, Rev. Harley Kins was pastor of the latter.

The Needlework Guild, in which the ladies of the First and Second churches of Philadelphia, Pa., are interested, had a display meeting in the Second Church. Many garments of various kinds as well as a collection of quilts which the ladies had made, were on display and represented the kindly sympathy on the part of the ladies for the unfortunate ones who stand in need of them and will receive them as a protection against the coming winter's cold. Addresses were made by representatives of the Moyamensing Soup Society and the Visiting Nurse Society.

Many of our readers will remember the appearance of John H. Friesen at the General Conference held in Hutchinson, Kansas, as the leader of the first party of refugees from Harbin, Manchuria. He recently died at his home near Patterson, California, at the age of 59. Patterson is about 100 miles northwest of Reedley. Rev. George Hubert of the local M. B. church was assisted by other ministers in conducting the funeral service.

The Men's choir of the Berne, Indiana, church rendered a musical program in Goshen, Ind., which was given under the Ministerial Association of that city. The program was given in the local High School Auditorium as a part of the union services under the auspices of this association.

Pay Your Subscription Now!

SPECIAL OFFERS TO SUBSCRIBERS

Your own subscription for 1935........$1.50
And one new subscription........$1 50
And one of the following books
25 Years With God in India
(Regular Price $2.00 per copy)
or The Missionary Interest Among Mennonites
By Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman
(Regular Price $2.50 per copy)
} FREE
Postage on the book you select........25c

All for $3.25

N. B.—This offer is good only until January 1st, 1935

Combination Subscriptions

The Mennonite and the Christian Evangel
Der Christliche Bundesbote
Both for $2.50 per year

If you want the B. B. Kalender and the Mennonite Year Book add 20c and make a total remittance of $2.70.

Club Subscriptions

5 or more copies to one address at $1.20 per copy.

The Mennonite Book Concern
Berne, Indiana

ev. A. J. Neuenschwander of Berne, Indiana, who recently been called to be the pastor of West amp, Pa., church, was in his new charge October Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, the outgoing pastor of charge, who has been called Assistant President Bluffton College, was also present, in charge of the service as pastor of the charge.

ev. C. H. A. van der Smissen of Newton, Kansas, former editor of the "Bundesbote," writes that he ecovering from an operation to which he submit- several weeks ago. Since returning from the ration he celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his ination to the ministry of the Gospel. Since leav- Berne, Indiana, and making his home in Kansas has been unusually active in the work of the min- y, responding to many calls from many sections Kansas.

he Annual Harvest Home-Coming of the Upland, ifornia, church was an elaborate one and occupied whole Sunday. The Communion service was held he morning at which time the pastor, Rev. Lester tetler, preached. This was followed by a basket ner, held on the church grounds. The feature of afternoon's service was an address by Rev. J. C. l who spoke on the subject: "Time Brings Chang- while others spoke on the subject: "Looking ead." At the Sunday School meeting a letter was d from a former pastor, Rev. M. M. Horsch, and a ner superintendent, now nearing fourscore years e the Children's Talk. At the evening service there e a number of special musical features and Dr. I. T. Hoover, Dean of LaVerne College, gave an ress on "Crises in the Life of Jesus and Qurs."

ev. Paul Whitmer, pastor of the Grace church, dora, Ohio, and formerly one of the professors of marsum Theological Seminary, conducted a series vangelistic meetings in the Wayland, Iowa, Men- ite church, October 7 to 14.

he Mennonite church in Germantown conducts an ual musical festival. This year the festival is to held on October 25. The choir of the Eden Men- ite church, Schwenksville, Pa., will render the pro- m. There will also be group and solo singing as as special instrumental music. Rev. Howard T. des is pastor of the Germantown church.

rs. Harvey and Ella Bauman sailed from New k Saturday, October 13th, on the Italian Liner , returning to their work in India. More than 125 ple from the Eastern District Conference were sent to say farewell and wish them the Lord's sing in their work. The farewell service, sponsored the Young People's Societies of the Eastern Dis- t Conference, was in charge of Rev. D. J. Unruh, tor of the Grace Mennonite Church, Lansdale, Pa. us remember the Baumans and all missionaries our daily devotions.

Vith the passing of Robert G. Ross from our midst, Eastern District Conference has lost an energetic and loyal worker in the cause of Christ. While still a young man he had served as president and vice president of the C. E. Union and the Sunday School Union as well as on various committees of these conference organizations. He was active in the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, and was serving there as General Superintendent of the Sunday School as well as in other positions at the time he was taken sick. He is mourned by his wife and two children as well as a host of friends. Those who had the privilege of knowing and working with Bob thank God sincerely for having had the privilege and for the inspiration that his life was to them.

DEATHS

Mrs. Marie Ummel passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. L. Kaufman, at 9:45 P. M., Thursday, October 11, after an illness of several weeks.

Marie Aeschliman was born in Switzerland, September 10, 1885, and died at the age of 79 years and 1 month. She was married to Christian Ummel in 1879. They came to this country in 1889 and settled near Bloomington, Ill. Mr. Ummel and a daughter, Lena, preceded her in death. The following children survive: Mrs. Dwight Ensley, Colfax, Wash.; Mrs. Allen Yoder, Goshen, Ind.; Mrs. C. L. Kaufman, Hudson, Ill.; David S. and Mrs. W. L. Linneman, Danvers, Ill., Ernest, Bloomington, Ill.; Paul, Chenoa, Ill.; Rev. Samuel Ummel, Morton, Ill.; Mrs. Joe Stutzman and Mrs. Earl Stutzman, Carlock, Ill.

She leaves 29 grandchildren and 2 greatgrandchildren. A sister, Mrs. Rosa Rubin, and three brothers, Rev. P. R. Aeschliman, Fred and Ernest Aeschliman, with 38 nieces and nephews reside at Colfax, Wash.

She accepted Christ as her personal Savior early in youth and united with the Mennonite Church.

Funeral services were held at 1:30 P. M., Sunday, October 14, from the home of C. L. Kaufman, with the Rev. Allen Yoder of Goshen, Ind., officiating, and at the East White Oak Mennonite Church, with the Rev. E. Troyer in charge, assisted by the Rev. Geo. Gundy of Meadows, Ill. Burial was in the Park Lawn Cemetery at Danvers, Ill.

Verena Roth, daughter of Benjamin and Catherine Lauber Roth, was born in Switzerland, April 1, 1852, and departed this life October 11, 1934, at the age of 82 years, 6 months and 10 days, being the last of seven children.

In 1869, she with her widowed mother and brothers and sisters came to the United States. They settled near Morton, Illinois, with the oldest brother who had preceded them, later moving to Gridley, Illinois.

On March 17, 1870, she was united in marriage to John K. Oswald of Morton, Illinois. To this union were born seven sons and seven daughters, one daughter dying in infancy.

On February 19, 1888, she with her husband and family moved to Aurora, Nebraska, on a farm four miles west, where she lived the remainder of her life.

In her early teens she gave her heart to God and united with the Mennonite Church. Her devotion first to God and then to her family is outstanding in the memories of her children. Her faith in God remained firm till the end. She said that her Jesus was waiting to receive her and exhorted those whom she left behind, to follow her to her new abode. Her life was a benediction to many. She had the spirit of a true pioneer, never complaining and always a cheerful word for those surrounding her, regardless of circumstances.

She leaves to mourn her departure, a sorrowing husband with whom she lived 64 years, and her children, all of whom were present at the funeral service: William R., Daniel H., Joseph E., John C., Theodore R., Aaron B., Carl E., Lina, Mrs. Clara Krabiel, and Mrs. Catherine Slagle of Aurora, Mrs. Mary Freyenberger, Wayland, Iowa; Mrs. Emma Freyenberger, Noble, Iowa; Mrs. Ada Repp of Pioneer, Ohio; besides 31 grandchildren and 12 greatgrandchildren.

> "Oh! think to step ashore
> And find it Heaven;
> To clasp hand outstretched
> And find it God's hand;
> To breathe new air
> And find it celestial air;
> To feel refreshed
> And find it immortality!
> Ah, think to step from storm and stress
> To one unbroken calm;
> To awake and find it Home."

Funeral services were held October 13, 1934, at the United Brethren Church at Aurora, Nebraska. Interment in Aurora cemetery.

John George Wilkins, son of Matthew and Agnes Wilkins, was born March 3, 1886, at Denison, Iowa. He died October 2, 1934, at the age of 48 years, 6 months, and 29 days. Early in life he moved to Nebraska, and later to South Dakota, where he met and married Lola Mayfield on April 30, 1918, who with six children, also one brother, Henry, remain to mourn his loss. He moved to the vicinity of Remington a few years ago and for the last year and a half has been with his family attending services at the Zion Mennonite church, and all arrangements had been made for the family to be taken into full fellowship of the church on Sunday, October 14. Brother Wilkins always had a wonderful testimony for his Christ and will be greatly missed in the church and community.

Funeral services were held from the church Friday, October 5, at two o'clock in charge of Rev. A. D. Egli from Kouts, Ind. Burial in Remington cemetery.

Barbara Preheim, the youngest daughter of Frederick Strausz, and wife, Magdelina Schrag, was born in Horodishtch, Russian Poland, March 26, 1849, and died October 2, 1934, having attained the age of 85 years, 7 months, and 6 days.

On November 7, 1869, she was married to Peter Preheim, which marriage lasted 65 years, less one month.

When the great Swiss Mennonite immigration, in 1874, from Russian Poland to America took place, our parents also came along and settled down in Yankton, S. Dak. While living in America, she was always separated from her parents, brother, and sister of whom lived at Moundridge, Kansas, a fact she often keenly felt. In addition to this she fered much in the last fifty years from a bodil fliction. The day before her death, she unfortun fell upon her left arm and broke it. This in add to a weak heart and old age caused her death the morning, at five o'clock.

She was the mother of ten children, of whom died in infancy. Besides these she mourned the of one daughter-in-law and a few small grandchil She was the last survivor of her father's family.

Her living family consists of her 86 year old band, eight children, with their wives and husb There are 52 grandchildren and 16 greatgrandchil In all 86 souls.

The funeral took place on the afternoon of Oc 4, at the home of Jacob G. Graber, and the S Mennonite church. Rev. P. R. Schroeder led the cession and the services. He spoke practical w based on Hebrews 9:27. Rev. John C. Kaufma sisted and gave a comforting message in conne with II Peter 1:14. A few of the grandchildren a number of quartets, and she was laid to rest i Salem Mennonite cemetery to await her Lord' turn. We wish rest to her ashes, and eternal li her soul.

Samuel P. Prehe

Mrs. Magdalena Miller, daughter of Peter and erine Miller, was born at Belfort, France, on De ber 18, 1845. She peacefully passed away from infirmities of old age at the home of her daug Mrs. P. P. Wyse, in Wayland, Iowa, on Octob 1934. She attained the ripe old age of 88 yea months, and 18 days.

In 1849, her parents emigrated to America settled on a farm near Archbold, Fulton County, where they resided for about 15 years. In the s of 1865, they moved to Iowa. Soon after their a in Iowa, the family united with the Eicher Menn church, of which she remained a faithful membe til her death.

In January, 1871, she was joined in the bon holy matrimony with John G. Miller. This union blessed with three sons and one daughter. Sinc death of her husband she has been staying wit children, making her home with her daughter, Ella Wyse, of Wayland. She leaves to mourn he parture, three sons, one daughter, 11 grandchil 7 greatgrandchildren, 1 brother, and many other tives and friends.

Funeral services were held Monday, October the Eicher church, of which she was the oldest ber, conducted by Rev. Elmer Basinger and Rev. Miller, pastor of the Eicher church.

Mrs. Sarah Plank, 71 years of age, died at the of Mrs. C. W. Kinsinger at Danvers, Ill., at 6:25 Thursday. She had been ill only thirty minutes lowing a paralytic stroke.

Sarah Kauffman was born October 13, 1863, Congerville, Ill., a daughter of Jonathan and Ta Yoder Kauffman. Her marriage was to Jona Plank, who preceded her in death. Surviving ee children: Mrs. Mae Cook, Mrs. Lee Plank, and Alfred Plank, all of Muscatine, Iowa; ten grand- dren, two greatgrandchildren, also one sister, Mrs. litha Gingerich, Loda, Ill., and two half brothers two half sisters, David A. Kauffman, Mrs. Anna k, and Mrs. Irene Reaba, all of Congerville, Ill., Frank Kauffman of Cooper, Iowa. She was a nber of the Congerville Mennonite church.

'uneral services were conducted by Rev. J. H. King, lock, Ill., assisted by Rev. Smith, Eureka, Ill., and . Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Ill.

MARRIAGE

raham-Steider.—The marriage of Miss Margaret ham, daughter of C. D. Graham, to Ralph C. Steider son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Steider, took place urday, September 22, at 11 A. M. at Belleville, sas. The single ring ceremony was performed by . P. O. Davis at the Christian parsonage. The ple will be at home to their many friends at the e of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Steider of Aurora.

ERGENCY RELIEF BOARD TREASURER REPORT FOR SEPTEMBER 1934

Receipts for Russia

ev. F. F. Jantzen, Paso Robles, Calif., $5.00; P. W. ssen, Newton, Kans., $20.00; A. W. Froese, Buh- Kansas, $10.00; Sister Ida Epp, Bethel Hospital, ton, Kansas, $5.00; St. John Mennonite Church, dora, Ohio, by Milferd Haas, $10.00; Edward Esau, tewater, Kansas, $20.00; D. W. Friesen, Altona, ., Can., $1.00; Tabor Mennonite Church, Goessel, sas, by Henry Frey, $17.65; John J. Schmidt, Can- Kansas, $6.00.

Receipts for General Fund

mmaus Church, Whitewater, Kansas, by J. A. Busz, Elbing, Kansas, $95.00; Christian Church, ndridge, Kansas, $33.00; John J. Pauls, Perryton, as, $10.00; West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kans., Fred D. Meyer, $17.00; First Mennonite Church, and, Calif., by H. H. Reimer, $13.20; Brudertal nonite Church, by F. N. Funk, Marion, Kansas, 00; Bergthal Mennonite Church, Pawnee Rock, sas, by H. C. Schultz, $12.43; Grace Mennonite rch, Pandora, Ohio, by Ray S. Hilty, $10.76; Louise ier, Newton, Kansas, $60.00; First Mennonite rch, by Howard S. Weiss, Jerrettown, Pa., $1.66; ler Mennonite Church, by J. B. Regier, Buhler, sas, $44.44; A Friend, Lucien, Oklahoma, by Rev. S. Bechtel, Deer Creek, Okla., $5.00; Bethel Men- te Church, Fortuna, Mo., by S. J. Moyer, $7.19.

otal Receipts: For Russia, $94.65; General Fund, .93. Total receipts for September, $467.58. Total ursements, $449.74.

ratefully acknowledged,

Peter H. Unruh, Treasurer.

ssel, Kansas.

CORRESPONDENCE

(Continued from page 11.)

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Egli and family have moved to Hopedale from Normal. Mr. Egli has been in business in Hopedale the past year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Kauffmann and daughters of Kouts, Ind., have been visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Donelson and sons spent the week-end of November 3 at Chillicothe, Mo., with their son, Fred Jr., who is in school at that place.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Julius Helwig, Thursday, November 1. Sewing was done for the Mennonite Hospital at Bloomington and a box of used clothing was sent to the mission on Sixty Second Street, Chicago. Gertrude Brenneman.

Twenty-Sixth Street Mennonite Church, 720 West 26th St., Chicago, Ill. The fall of 1934 will be remembered in our church as one of the most heartening in recent years. A splendid spirit prevails among the membership and there is harmony in all our activities.

The Midweek Church Night, after being discontinued for several of the summer months, was resumed with the beginning of October. An average attendance of 68 has participated in the several activities. We have a full two-hour program each evening and among the activities are a Bible class for young people and adults, a story hour for children, a meeting of the Boy Scouts, choir practice, a missionary study class and manual and club work by two groups of boys and two groups of girls.

Sunday, October 4, was the Annual Rally Day in the Sunday School and the 28th the Annual Home Coming Day. On the latter day there was a fine attendance in both the morning and evening services. A count showed that eighty families were represented in some service of the day. 97 partook of the evening lunch and about 160 attended the evening program. This was the Fifth Annual Home Coming Day and was the best gathering we have yet had. It is estimated that about two thousand families have in some manner or other been connected with this institution since it was started in September, 1906.

The November program calls for the following special features: Christian Family Recognition Day, November 4th; Peace Sunday (Armistice Day), November 11th; Missionary Sunday, November 18th; Thanksgiving Sunday, November 25th; Union Thanksgiving Service, November 29th.

Century of Progress visitors have favored us with numerous short visits and a number were able to be in one or more of our services.

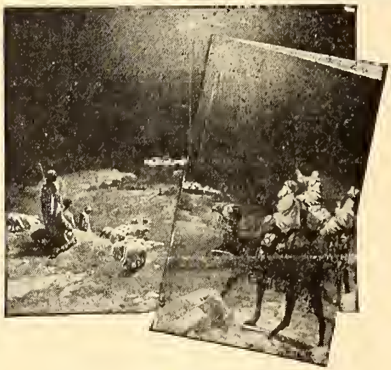
It is only when we do our best for God that we give Him a chance to do His best for us.—R. H.

The simple desire and purpose to please and honor and serve the Master will save your most ordinary work from being contemptible, and will give your greatest service a beauty and acceptableness which bulk and bigness can never give.—S. E. Herrick.

INEXPENSIVE GREETINGS

Cards Breathing the Spirit of Christmas

Christmas Folders for Pastors, Superintendents, and others who wish to write or print their own Christmas message



No 1. Bethlehem Folder

THREE BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS

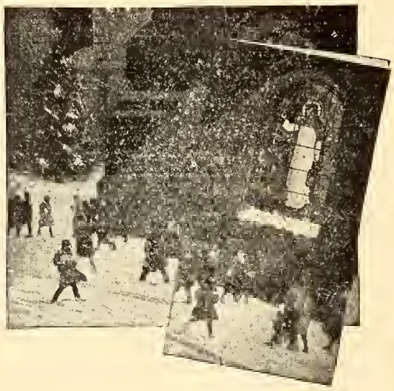
All Size
6¾x6



No. 2. Light of the World Folder

WRITE YOUR OWN
CHRISTMAS
GREETING

Also another beautiful folder we do not have room to illustrate here

No. 3 Angels and Shepherds Folder

These Christmas folders are for those who wish to write their own Christmas message. Beautifully printed in full color on high-grade white Velour Folding Enamel stock. Supplied flat ready for your printed or written message.

Also suitable for distribution as Christmas pictures with a religious significance, or used for printing Christmas programs or announcements. Size 6¾x6 inches.

Furnished with or without envelopes and postpaid at the following prices:

With plain white envelopes	$1.50 per 100
Without envelopes	$1.25 per 100

Be sure in ordering to give name of folder wanted and price per 100. (Assorted if desired.)

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO THE

Mennonite Book Concern

Berne, Indiana

OUR MOST POPULAR BIBLE

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE BIBLE

Edited by Rev. C. I. SCOFIELD, D. D.
Assisted by Eminent Scholars

With a New System of Connected Topical References to all Greater Themes of Scripture, with Annotations, Revised Marg al Renderings, Summaries, Definitions, and Index, to wh are added Explanations of Seeming Discrepancies, and a N System of Paragraphs, a Panoramic View of the Bible Bible Chronology with Twelve Colored Maps and Index to Maps

Helps at the Hard Places Where Needed

Made in Two Sizes, identically the same, Page for Page except for Size of Type

	Handy Size No.	Price	Larger No.	P
Cloth (Postage extra)	40	$ 1.95	90	$
Superior Cloth	50	2.50	70
French Morocco, limp	51	5.00	71
French Morocco	53	5.50	73
Persian Morocco, leather lined to edge, silk sewed	59	7.00	79
On Ovford India Paper
French Morocco	53x	7.00	73x
French Morocco, leather lined to edge silk sewed	55x	8.00	75x	1
Alaska Seal, limp, leather lined	58x	8.50	78x	1
Antique Calf, basket weave grain, button clasp	56x	9.00
Persian Morocco, leather lined to edge, silk sewed	59x	9.50	79x	1
Morocco, rutland grain, half circuit, Blue or Brown	49x	10.50	89x	1
Real Morocco, calf lined to edge silk sewed	65x	10.50	85x	1
Sealskin, calf lined to edge silk sewed	68x	13.00	88x	1
With Dictionary of Scripture Proper Names, Oxford Index, Concordance, and Maps
French Morocco (White Paper)	153	6.50	173
French Morocco	153x	8.50	173x	1
French Morocco, leather lined to edge, silk sewed	155x	9.50	175x	1
Antique Calf, basket weave grain, button clasp	156x	10 50
Persian Morocco, leather lined to edge, silk sewed	159x	11.00	179x	1
Morocco, rutland grain, half circuit, Blue or Brown	149x	12.00	189x	1
Real Morocco, calf lined to edge, silk sewed	165x	12.00	185x	1
Morocco, pebbled grain, half circuit, Blue or Brown	169x	13.00	199x	1
Sealskin, calf lined	168x	14.50	188x	1
With Cyclopedic Concordance
French Morocco on White Paper	353	7.00	473
On Oxford India Paper
Persian Morocco, leather lined to edge, silk sewed	359x	11.50	479x	1
With Helps by Dr. R. A. Torrey
Cloth	50T	2.75	70T
On Oxford India Paper
Real Morocco, calf lined to edge, silk sewed			85xT	1

All with overlapping cover, round corners and red und gold edges unless otherwise noted

BIBLE BARGAINS

COLLINS BOLD FACE BIBLES
Type that is easy to read

No. 2988½ Reference Bible. Bound in black artificial leather, divinity circuit $

No. 4988½ Teachers' Bible, complete with References, Concordance and Illustrations. Artificial leather binding. Red edges, divinity circuit $

No. 4988. Same as No. 4988½, but with red edges u gold $

No. S89½ Text Bible. Beautiful sapia illustrations. Divinity circuit, red edges. Our most popular Bible $

No. S1989HC. Beautiful Gift Bible with 16 colored illustrations. Red under gold edges. Divinity circuit. Black fabrikoid binding. An ideal children's Bible $

N. B.—Other Collins Bibles from 50c to $11.50 . Let us k what you need.

We also carry a large stock of Holman, Nelson, National, In national, Cambridge, and Oxford Bibles. Write for descriptive circulars giving full details.

THE MENNONITE
AND THE
CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 34

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.
The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. I HILLSBORO, KANSAS, DECEMBER 4, 1934 No. 23

EDITORIAL

NOTICES OF DEATHS AND WEDDINGS

The Mennonite and Christian Evangel aims to be a household paper and seeks to serve in a way that will foster an intimate connection with the home and the denomination. In most denominational papers room is provided for notices such as we are discussing. These notices are valuable as church records, family records, and community records. They help keep the scattered members of the denomination in personal touch with one another. Our aim is to have, if possible, a notice of such events as they occur in our congregations. We hope, too, that those responsible for sending them in to the paper, the pastors or near relatives, will keep in mind the fitness of things and send the notices in within a reasonable time. To take note of a death or a wedding months after they have occurred is not good form not a proper respect for the ones who are the subject of the notices. In preparing such notices for publication it will be our plan in the future to omit such things as we deem matters of more local than general information. We want to print the facts, but we must, in the interest of space, omit much of the details that come to us. An inch of space, if there are numerous notices, will serve the purpose for which this section of the paper is set apart and will give room also for many more such notices we hope to receive. We do not think it unreasonable to expect our pastors to send in notices of marriages and deaths as they occur in their congregations, and members of the church should call their attention to omissions and neglects as they are made.—G.

THE A. B. C.'s

It is a bewildering array of letters that confronts the reader of almost any news item regarding our Government and its efforts to speed up the much wished for recovery. Before us is a list of thirty-six groups of letters, beginning with A. A. A. and ending with T. V. A. C. They sound very much like the signal code that the school boys on our back lot are using in practicing for the football game in which they hope to make themselves famous on the coming Saturday. Only this list is neither amusing nor mysterious. It represents a great variety of ways by which the load of taxation will be laid on our backs for the rest of our lives and for the rest of the lives of our children's children. Perhaps they mean that centuries will pass before what is charged against the future will be wiped off the slate. We are neither politicians nor economists and we have had too little experience in high finance to fully grasp the significance of all this "Alphabetic Soup," but we do know that where they destroyed crops and killed off stock to raise prices there will be hungry and cold people who have no money to buy things they need at low prices, let alone high prices. We know when the country has to place a high proportion of its population on its pay roll that they all have to be paid and that somebody must raise the money to pay them. It may be that the "mess" in which we find ourselves is something more than just poor judgment in the use of the means that God has entrusted into the hands of this nation as His stewards. We have wasted our means in a terrible and useless war which did not insure an end of war as was pretended, but a beginning of "Bigger and Better Wars," as a certain comic paper put it. We have spent our means in extravagances and excesses, we have worshipped the dollar and gauged everything by its standard. We have thought money and happiness were synonyms. We have too often thought that to pay our church dues regularly and, with a show of liberality, was all we needed to do to qualify as a good Christian. We need most of all to find our way to God and that with confession on our lips and a humble and contrite heart. A column of alphebetic symbols may do all right in a laboratory, but it is not the remedy for a God-forgetting past, a reliance upon the dollar and an inordinate appetite for pleasure. The surgeon knows that the knife will hurt, but he has the cure of the patient in mind. We have been feeling hurts in many directions, but that seems to be the way of bringing us back to healthy seriousness and right living with our God and our neighbors. G.—

SOME OF THE HEATHENDOM THAT NEEDS EXPOSING

We have read of white people who have grown up in Christian lands and under Christian environments becoming Hindus and so members of the Brahminist religion, submitting to whatever rites are required of the proselyte who wants to enter that cult. Of course such rites include the process of purification which calls for the eating of a substance made from the products of the living, sacred cow, including in its make-up the excrement of that creature. Some female converts to Brahminism have appeared in this country, either to visit their old home or to spread propagation concerning things that relate to the people of India. We wonder whether a white woman who has eaten cow dung, for in plain language that is what this Hindu purification involves, has not altogether surrendered that nicety which we like to associate with normal living

PUBLICATION FUND CAMPAIGN

When the General Conference was organized in Lee Co., Iowa, seventy-four years ago, they placed before themselves four lines of Christian work in which they proposed to engage—

1st—Home Mission
2nd—Foreign Mission
3rd—Publication
4th—Education and later on added to these four Deaconess Work.

For each one of these Christian activities the churches have given large sums running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, except for Publication. Very little if anything was given for this branch of Conference work beyond the $1600.00 which was loaned the Conference in 1884 by four brethren for three years without interest for the purpose of establishing a Publication Work.

But Publication is as essential as any of the other undertakings of the conference. Indeed, it is more essential, for without it the others would not exist. It is the chain that binds the churches together into one body, makes a united effort possible and reports to the members the progress in each field of effort. The time has now come when we must realize this and come to the rescue of our Publication Work, because it is laboring under a debt that is threatening its very existence.

Not only ought we to contribute enough by Christmas to liquidate the debt of $12,000.00, but we ought to give enough more to have the beginning of a fund to purchase our own Printing Press.

I am confident that you will realize this crisis and come to the rescue. I know you will, and I thank you in advance.

Send your contributions to H. J. Krehbiel, Chairman of Board of Publication, Reedley, California.

and normal habits and normal women; or that regard for cleanliness which we have a reasonable right to expect from those with whom we associate. Those many teachers of the religion of India who sometimes appear before American audiences like to tell us what a superior religion they profess, but we hear only from those who have lived in India, and know the habits of the people, of the repulsive practices that are done in the name of their religion.

Not so long ago there appeared in the city in which we live a troup of Indians alleged to belong to the tribe that practices snake dancing. They were exhibited in a large department store that specializes at the time in Indian made goods. A white lecturer accompanied the troup, which consisted of young people who had the benefit of an education and could speak English easily and correctly. In giving an imitation of the "snake dance" we noted that the performer had a harmless reptile in his hands and did not place it in his mouth as they do in the real ceremony, but held it several inches from his face and seemed not to be liking the job at that. Fortunately for the delicate ears of the women and children, who crowded around, the white lecturer did not tell, and possibly did not know, what follows as a part of the real ceremony the night after its dance. If the story were to be told it would be one of gross immorality. No wonder that even the Hopi women are ashamed to show their faces for days afterward.

Before another group, alleged to have come from the head hunters of the Islands of the Pacific, we heard a lecturer advise his hearers to save their money instead of giving it for the conversion of these people from their beautiful religion with which they are very well satisfied. Well, a people who make idols of the heads of their fellows whom they have murdered, and often in the most cowardly way, surely need converting and the marvel of it all is that with such creatures there is a possibility of their becoming brethren beloved through the message of the Gospel and the grace of God.

One hears considerable of the culture of "Nature people," meaning people whose culture is not of our civilization or the civilization of great nations. Those who propose a scheme of letting them alone in the practices of their so-called religion and superstitions completely ignore the innatural passions, the filth and the cruelty that enters into their rites. —G.

THE PENNERS CELEBRATE THEIR SILVER WEDDING IN INDIA

"Our cup" — of joy, — "runneth over," and this surplus joy Mrs. Penner and I desire to share with our many friends in the United States, and particularly with those friends who by their messages of cheer and their congratulations remembered us on THE important day in our life, August 24th, our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Twenty-five years! This seems to be a long time as a person looks into the future. It is generally otherwise when looking backwards, unless it has been marred by tragic events of some kind in the home.

How vividly we recall our wedding day in the Alexanderwohl church twenty-five years ago! How wonderfully heartening was the message of brother-in-law, Prof. C. H. Wedel, based on the text: "They that wait for Jehovah shall renew their strength." Knowing that we were soon to sail for India, he made it very plain to us that Jehovah, —Jehoval-el-Shaddai, the God of all strength, would be Our strength if HE would occupy the first place in heart and home. But I am meditating, I want to share.

We purposely avoided broadcasting our silver wedding, but it was nevertheless remembered by many and in consequence something in the neighborhood of 100 letters found their way into our home. For all these Mrs. Penner and I desire to thank you most heartily and sincerely. Because it may not be possible to reply to all of these letters, or at least not during the next few weeks, we wish to make use of the Mennonite, not only to thank you, but also to give you a brief account of how the day was spent.

Unfortunately our wedding day is in August, perhaps the wettest month in the C. P. Rains may be so copious during this month that all traffic on our mud paved roads comes to a stand still, and rivers and ravines become unfordable. A few days before the 24th, we had smiling weather, and although some rice fields needed water badly, we nevertheless prayed to God that for our sakes He might drop the rain elsewhere rather than here in order that our missionaries in Basna, 65 miles, and those in Birra and Korba, 25 miles from Champa, might be able to come to our important day. But God thought more of the rice fields than of our silver wedding, — and we agree that HE was right, and so on the 22nd, rain came and it came in real earnest with the result that Brother and Sister Moyer and Sister Kuehney from Basna and Brother and Sister Duerksen and Brother and Sister Wenger from Korba could not be here. Roads were absolutely impassable and rivers and ravines were torrents. Although Birra and Korba are the same distance from Champa, yet Brother and Sister Wiens and Brother and Sister Thiessen could be present, thanks to Bro. Wiens' indomitable courage when it comes to run his Chevrolet through mud and slush. They came in on the evening of the 23rd. But our Korba workers, Brother and Sister Duerksen and Brother and Sister Wenger, could not possibly cross the ravines which were torrents during these days. For Mrs. Penner and me, and I believe for all the others that were present, the absence of these dear workers cast a shadow over the happy event in our home. All other missionaries were present. There were others whom we missed. The happy group of school children on the hills many miles away. Next our loved ones across the seas, and above all our own children and granddaughter. But these disappointments, these separations all belong to the "cup" which one is called upon to drink.

"What is a silver wedding? Are you and Mrs. Penner going to be remarried now"? Such and similar questions were asked by some non-Christians. Our reply was: "Come and see." And they were there, many of them, so that even standing room was at a premium. Long before the day dawned some of our Indian brethren were up and began preparing the curry and rice meal which we had asked all our Christians to share with us. At 11 A. M. long rows of Christians, men, women, and children, filled the veranda. This could not hold all that had come and so small groups were sitting here and there under the welcome shade of nearby trees, waiting to be served. What a wonderful sight! Thirty-four years ago not a single Christian, and now well nigh on to 300! What cheered our hearts among some other incidents during this meal was that a recent convert for whom we had prayed for nearly 34 years was among those that served. He WAS an outcast —a Harijan. Untouchables and unapproachables are called Harijans. Hari means God; Jans means people. Thus, people of God. Certainly a wonderfully applicable name. "Ye that once were far off," according to Hindoo thought and religion, "are made nigh in the blood of Christ," according to Paul, the Christian. This brother, Bahoran, who for so many years fought God, is now a happy child of God. Let no one be discouraged. To sit and have an hour's chat with Bahoran is a joy.

At 3 P. M. the meeting in the church began. The services were in charge of Bro. P. W. Penner. He read as an introduction Joshua 14:10-14 and made a few introductory remarks very appropriate to the occasion. Then Bro. Isaac spoke in English, basing his remarks on and giving in brief a history of the twenty-five years of our married life, as he knew it. Bro. Wiens spoke in Hindi, using as his text Phil. 4:4 and Psalm 100. Joy in the Lord was the thought brought out. Between the addresses songs in Hindi were rendered. The missionaries of Champa, together with a number of Indian brethren, sang a Hindi song in four parts, something very unusual in our community. The last song was, at our request, sung in German by all the missionaries present: "Lobe den Herren, den maechtigen Koenig der Ehren." So we praised God in three languages. Taken altogether, the service was one never to be forgotten. We were so happy that our family of little, untainted girls entered into the joys of the day. In the early morning they were here and with song and a cheery salaam showed us their love. Garlands of flowers were not wanting.

After dinner — supper we say in America, — all of our missionary workers gathered in our bungalow and under the supervision of Sister Lehman and our Sister Isaac, an informal program was carried out. A number of letters written by them and by friends from home were read. The day closed with a hearty "Thank you"! to our heavenly Father, who even in India can cause the cup to run over.

How does it feel to have passed the twenty-fifth anniversary mark? Do you feel older? Here is our answer as expressed by John E. Roberts:

> "They say that I am growing old,
> I've heard them tell it times untold,
> In language plain and bold—
> But I'm NOT growing old.
>
> "This frail old shell in which I dwell
> Is growing old, I know full well—
> But I am not the shell."

P. A. and Martha Penner.
Champa, C. P., India.

MAKING WORSHIP "WORSHIPFUL"

Carl Landes

A church worship service is more than a "sermon." So often we come to church, and leave — if the sermon was to our liking — with, "This was a good service"; if the sermon was not to our liking, "I didn't enjoy the service at all." That attitude toward worship in the Protestant church lets "the man in the pew" off too easy. The sermon is only a part of the service; an important part, surely — but not more important than other features. The pastor is responsible for that sermon; and God pity the pastor who "listens to men rather than God."

But let us look at the worship service as a whole:

1. Organ prelude. Here the pastor is not responsible, but the congregation. We can make that prelude a gossip hour, visiting with our friends; or a "worship hour"—acknowledging our sins before God; asking His blessing upon the service, the pastor, the hearers. Let's make it a "worshipful period."

2. Hymns. If your pastor fails to preach a good sermon, in your judgment, surely you can worship as the organ and our hearts unite in the great hymns of the ages. With all the duties pastors have (and I am not complaining), at best he can give 15 or 16 hours to a sermon. Some of our hymns, a single hymn, may summarize the experience of a lifetime of a great personality. But if our hymns are to inspire us, lift us, make us "worship the Father," we must put our heart and soul in them, singing them from the heart.

3. Responsive reading. Usually selected with some bearing upon the message. Sometimes lays a good foundation upon which Scripture and sermon are built. Sometimes our confession of sin, etc.

4. Offertory. A time which judges our faith in a material way. An opportunity to lay all on the "altar of God," or to only "partially surrender." "God loveth a cheerful giver." "Giving is worship," if we give in the "spirit of Jesus."

5. Scripture Lesson: A message concerning a problem of life, from the pen of God-inspired men of the past. Sometimes this Scripture admonishes us, severely searches us, gently moves us, challenges us to leave all and follow Him.

6. The Choir. Not a "concert organization," but a group of consecrated voices, "Lifting the congregation and themselves" to the throne of God, in adoration music, songs, hymns, anthems. A consecrated choir means as much to a worship service as a consecrated pastor and minister.

7. Now comes the sermon. A fifteen or twenty minute part of an hour's worship. Perhaps it may be "what you want," perhaps it is "what you don't want"; but if the minister be consecrated to God's kingdom, it will always be "what the minister thinks God wants," which is about all any minister can do.

8. Silent Prayer by Congregation. To ask God that hymns, scripture message, may sink into our hearts and bear fruit unto life eternal.

9. Benediction and Doxology. God's blessing as we go into tomorrow and face temptation, misery, suffering, life. Friends for our own Spirit's welfare, let us "make our worship worshipful." "Coming to God in the unity of the Spirit, to receive a vision of 'His Way of Life.' "

THE MINISTER'S DUTY TOWARD THE INDIFFERENT AND DISSATISFIED

P. P. Wedel

We are thinking of the indifferent church member and of the dissatisfied church member. We do not have in mind the great throng of people who are altogether indifferent towards religion and the multitudes who are so dissatisfied with the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ that they will not accept Him as their Savior. These would come in the class of the unsaved which we have already discussed. Thus we are concerned with those who profess to be Christians, and who perhaps would take it as an insult if you would question whether they are children of God. Sad to say, there are those in our churches who profess Christianity, but who are indifferent or dissatisfied. As pastors we must face this fact. We must deal with these people. We have a duty towards them.

Perhaps before we speak directly of this duty we should define these people somewhat. Who are these indifferent? The best definition I know of is found in Revelations 3:15, "I know thy works that thou art neither cold nor hot." The indifferent are neither cold nor hot, they are lukewarm. At least they would deny that they are cold, although we often speak of them as having grown cold towards the church and its activities. By the indifferent we have in mind those who have become negligent towards the church and the services it is rendering. They do not give it their moral or financial support. In some cases they may still support it financially, but through their absence from the house of God and the activities of the church they at least seem to be disinterested in Christ's cause. They may still be good fellows, but as far as the church is concerned they are good for nothing, because the church cannot rely on their support.

And who are the dissatisfied? To define them is rather difficult. There are different kinds and different stages of dissatisfaction. We are not thinking now of those who are dissatisfied with themselves or who are dissatisfied to leave the church as it is, for there is room for this kind of dissatisfaction. God give us more of it, if it will become an incentive for improvement. But there is a dissatisfaction that works harm. The dissatisfied may be those who nurse a grievance of some kind. Perhaps they have a strife with some other member in the church; perhaps the pastor has done something to aggravate them; perhaps they are not made as prominent as they feel that they should be; perhaps the church has taken some action of which they do not approve; as a result they are dissatisfied. Or they may find things different than they like them; they are of a critical state of mind and feel as though they cannot be satisfied unless things measure to their standard. As a result they begin to criticize and soon they become disgruntled. In their own minds their intentions and motives are good, but as a result of their impatience they get to the point where they make themselves almost impossible. These dissatisfied people may follow the example of the indifferent, and cease their attendance at the services of the church and withdraw their support from the church. On the other hand they may continue supporting the church and their activities; but again and again perhaps they will voice their dissatisfaction in a spirit of quarrelsomeness. As pastors we must deal with these people also. We have a duty toward them.

It may be that after all there is not such a great difference between the indifferent and the dissatisfied. Dissatisfaction is very apt to lead to indifference, and indifference may also lead to dissatisfaction. Anyway, the duty of the pastor towards both of these classes is very much the same, and his method of dealing with them will also be similar. In our further discussion of our topic we will, therefore, not take each one of these two classes separately, but point to things that apply more or less to both of them.

Having people in his parish who are indifferent and people who are dissatisfied, the pastor must ask himself: "What is my duty towards them"? Today as a group of pastors who wish to serve the Lord Jesus Christ efficiently, we want to ask ourselves: What is our duty? It is our duty to convince them of the error of their ways. It may not be possible to do so; but we can at least try. It might be a thankless piece of work, but we can do no worse than fail, and perhaps by the grace of God we will succeed. Surely the indifferent and the dissatisfied person is mistaken; his attitude is not right. He is harming himself and others. Would that we could make him see this! The least we can do is to try.

We should let them feel that we miss them. We miss them in our services, we miss their support, their cooperation, their love, and their help. Perhaps they feel that they are not wanted. We should let them know that they are wanted.

Then we should let them feel that we love them. It may be difficult to love one who is so indifferent to a cause so near to our heart, or one who through his quarrelsomeness causes us much grief; but unless we can love them and convince them of our love, we will hardly be able to win them.

It is our duty to try to get at the root of the trouble. As a rule there is a cause or at least an imagined cause on the part of the indifferent and dissatisfied person for his attitude. Why is this person indifferent? Why is that one dissatisfied or disgruntled? We may think that the reason is but an excuse, nevertheless it will be helpful if we can get at the root of the problem, especially if we can determine the real cause, even though it may be different than the reason given. Let the pastor conscientiously ask himself, "Am I the cause? Have I given offense? Have I been too careless? Have I failed to be as faithful as I should have been"? Whatever the cause, it is the duty of the pastor to remove it if possible.

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb. D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance........$1.50
Foreign........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

In a word we might say it is our duty to win them, win them back for Christ and His cause. What a day of rejoicing it would be for us pastors if we could win every indifferent and dissatisfied church member in such a way for Christ and His great cause, so that they would throw their whole influence and service into the efforts the church is making. That means in other words that we must win them back to an intimate personal relationship with Jesus Christ. For these people need to be saved; they are not living in the fullness of the salvation strength of Jesus Christ. It is our duty to bring Christ to them, to bring them to Christ who can save to the uttermost so that they will live in the strength of His salvation. Then indifference will vanish; the disgruntled attitude will cease.

As we speak of the duty of the pastor we are concerned also with the method by which he can fulfill his duty. Let us point to a few things that we need to observe in our effort to do our duty, for to some extent at least each method also reminds us of a duty.

In this connection we first mention the fact that we must be impartial. The Lord is no respecter of persons. Let His servant be like the Master in this respect. Right is right and wrong is wrong. The pastor must condemn wrong no matter whom it strikes; he must stand up for the right, no matter whom he favors by doing so. It is not so easy to be partial, still less easy to evade the impression and accusation of partiality. No two cases are just alike, even though they look very much so; naturally to those who do not know all the details, some things will seem partial. Very often in dealing with dissatisfied members the pastor will have to make decisions between persons who are at outs with each other. Let him be careful never to judge a case until he has heard both sides, and then let him be impartial in his judgment.

Further, he is to be kind and sympathetic. Of course, he must be truthful and there are times when he will find it necessary to tell a person the truth, even though that truth will have a sting. Jesus was kind and sympathetic, yet the day came that He pronounced His woes over the Scribes and Pharisees. But generally speaking, you cannot scold people into line, and if you can, they will very likely not stay in line. Let the person know that you will not waver from the truth; give him to understand that you will not compromise with wrong; let him know that you will stand for justice and righteousness even though it pain the transgressor; but in it all let the spirit of kindliness and sympathy be a drawing power to convict and convince and draw to Christ the Savior.

Then the pastor must be prayerful. He needs the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Let him pray for a rich measure of the Spirit. He should pray also with or at least for his indifferent and dissatisfied members. Intercessory prayer is a power unto salvation. It is possible to do this work in the study, in the pulpit, on the street, but especially in the prayer chamber. Without intercession pastoral work will lack spirit and power.

Furthermore, let the pastor do this work as unto the Lord. It is not his work that he is doing, it is the Lord's. It is not his cause in which he is engaged, it is Christ's cause. It is not his honor he is to seek, he is to bring honor and glory unto His Master. In dealing with people, especially with the type of people our paper is concerned with, it will be helpful to keep these things in mind. Let those with whom you work and whom you try to win feel that you are jealous for the Lord, that you are absorbed in His cause, zealous for His honor and glory. If they are conscious of that, they will be easier to win.

But to do his work as unto the Lord will include another thing. It means that he will seek the best interest of the indifferent or the dissatisfied church member. He must be interested in their eternal welfare. We will deal differently with a man if we deal with him in the light of eternity than if we deal with him on a temporal plane only. Christ dealt with people in the light of eternity. He had their best interests. Unceasingly He labored to show them that there are higher values in life than the mere gratification of one's physical and temporal desires. To make soul values of pardon and peace and righteousness and holiness he permitted His blood to be shed on the cross. All the time He was seeking man's best interests, man's eternal salvation. This is why men felt drawn towards Him. That is why men listened to Him. They saw that He was not seeking Himself, but that He was concerned about their welfare. If our church members who are so far from being what they should be will notice that we are concerned about their eternal welfare they will be much more responsive. They may not agree with us, but they will by the grace of God be set to thinking and, grant God, to mend their indifferent or disgruntled ways.

God help us as pastors to see our duty towards those who it would be easier to ignore than to shepherd. God make us wise and efficient in ministering unto them. God give us abounding grace to be patient, sympathetic, kind and loving as we deal with those who are indifferent and with those who are dissatisfied. God help us to touch their lives that by grace they will surrender fully unto the Lord Jesus Christ.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

Rev. Roy Scot
Pastor Danvers Mennonite Church, Danvers, Ill.

Text: Matt. 5:16

One of the oldest ideas in Christian thinking is an idea that has been most frequently repeated in every era of the Christian teaching. It has been simply put, "The Light of the World is Jesus." When we have heard that idea taught and sung all our lives it requires but little imagination to picture Christ as a great and ever burning Light and every Christian as a reflector which throws that light into the environment about him to "brighten the corner" where he is. This picture reveals a truth that is as important as it is true. It is certainly true that every Christian must reflect the light of Christ's love and righteousness into every condition and circumstance of life. But it is just as true that such an idea does not discharge the instruction that we find in the Master's words, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father, which is in heaven."

In our physical world the sun is the source of light. The moon and stars are greater or lesser reflectors which catch that light and throw it into situations where the direct light is shut out. Such is the work of the reflector and it shows us a part of our duty as Christians.

When one stands on a bridge, such as the new bridge at Peoria, during the night, and looks over the city he sees many lights. Here is a brilliant beacon throwing a single ray of light in huge circles. There is a floodlight making bright the yards where men rub shoulders and jostle one another in the work of the world. Below us is a row of red and green switch lights showing the danger or safety to be found at the parting of the ways. On the busy street corner is a flashing light controlling the rights of drivers on the city streets. In a warehouse near by is a man searching in a darkened room. In his hand he holds a trouble lamp to light him in his search. But more than any other type of lights one sees hundreds, yes, thousands of little squares of light shining out from the homes of the city. Here are many forms of light in many different situations, but each light is burning in itself with power from one great source which cannot be seen except as it reveals itself in these many and varied lights.

Let us never forget that we are lights, not satellites. Stars reflect, but Jesus said, "Let your light shine." Not the unattached star which casts back what it receives, but rather a light burning within ourselves, using us, firing us with power from the one unseen force.

One of our first Christian duties, then, is to let our light shine. Reflected light is helpful in dark places, but never as good as the original light. As we turn through the pages of the history of the church we find periods of darkness and periods of light. In every case when the church was in a period of darkness the church was dealing in reflections, not in consuming light. Discussions and reflections on the ideas and philosophy of other peoples and other days. In every period of progress and light the church was living afresh its message. Vital personal religion had forced the logical discussion into the background and the light was a burning of souls afire with God and for God.

There would not have been church dissension and denominations if every Christian would have clung to the fire God started in his soul and neglected to emphasize the cold reflections of theology and impractical philosophy. Christ certainly wants us to be concerned about every truth in our world of truth, but He has not called us to agree on ideas and philosophy. We need to shine together each with the light of God burning in his soul. Something like that must be what Jesus meant by, "Let your light shine."

Christ must have suspected that men would try to rob His message of its vitality, for He adds some conditions showing the manner in which we are to let our lights shine. The first condition or manner is "That men may see your good works." On the surface this sounds like an exhortation, to show off and keep our good works on the bandwagon of publicity. However, even a very meager acquaintance with the Author of those words shows us that whatever else He meant He was not advising us to display our wares in the Neon signs of publicity. In almost the same breath He had cautioned men to exercise their religion in secret that the God who seeth in secret might reward openly. He it was who told His healed followers to go their way and tell no man. This humble Nazarene could not have meant for Christians to show off before men. His very presence and whole nature rebelled against such a suggestion. What, then, did He mean?

Let your light shine that MEN MAY SEE your GOOD works. No, that does not mean display, but it does mean that our good is not to be shrouded or counteracted by anything else in life. That is like Jesus. How many Christians there are who really are shining lights for Christ, but because there are elements in their lives that are opaque to God's will their life is seen by men only in the form of shadows cast by these parts of life that have not been penetrated by God's will. Here is a Christian whose eye is single, but whose knife is dull. Some little careless act or tendency that men easily see causes them to cast aside any good that might otherwise be done. Here is a hard working, self-sacrificing Christian who would give his life, or her life, for Christ who forgets to save his secrets for God. He talks about things that he should pray about. Men call him "loose tongued" because he talks too much. This shadow often darkens the bright light which would otherwise have shone for Christ. Another man has had an experience with God that should have given him a saving relation, but which has been held within and never given a chance to bear fruit and cast its light. He speaks in vague pictures and priestly songs about his "salvation," but forgets that Jesus said, "Let your light so shine that men may see your good."

One would never exhaust the possibilities of this idea, but we could follow it into almost endless implications where the light has been clouded by darkness. Shall we consider one other case. There is a surprisingly large group of persons who are good and who try to live as near perfection as they can, but who are uneasy about being classed as "Christian" with all that should be expected of one who bears that name. These men are covering up their light with both hands for fear some one will see the source of their light.

Jesus was certainly taking a clear stand on His point when He said, "Let your light shine," not so men will be reminded of what you accomplish, not so you give your deeds publicity, but so you do not cover up your light with anything, however trivial, for any cause, however great. Men used to have lanterns in the pre-electric days before flashlights. For cases needing darkness until the right moment someone invented dark lanterns. These lanterns had a bright light, but a sliding door across their one exposed side made the light completely shut in. Jesus said, "Let not your light be a dark lantern, with your light shut in or shaded, but shine so men may see your good, unclouded, unhampered by trivial, unimportant, or careless inconsistancies.

There is one other phrase that describes the manner in which our lights are to shine. "That men may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Our lights must shine in such a manner that men, having seen the good in us, will glorify God. Let us not be confused. Jesus did not say, "that men might glory in your goodness." He is not commending the person who acts in such a way that men glory in him, the type who says, "See what I have done"! On the other hand, He did not say, "and mystify the Father who is in heaven." Jesus did not try to wrap the Father in mystery and He never asked or intended that we should. He said simply, "and glorify your Father." Let your shining be to the glory of God.

Do you remember hearing the statement, "Now is the Father glorified in me." Those are the words of Jesus, spoken in regard to the cross. God was glorified in Jesus when Jesus fulfilled the mission for which He was sent. Having seen your good work, men are to glorify God. Is not that pretty close to the situation described by Jesus' words, "The Father is glorified in me"?

Our lights are to shine, then, in such a manner that we may fill our particular mission in the world. Few, if any, of our lights will be identical. Most of them will vary, for our circumstances will vary. Some of us, probably very few, will be beacon lights who lead travelers along the right way through the darkness. There will be floodlights who show men what they are doing and enable them to move in the light. Some will be used for switch lights to show men the safety or danger at the parting of the ways. We shall need traffic lights to regulate the respective rights of men. For seeking and recovering the lost we shall need search lights. Most of us will be hearth lights glowing out in situations where men and women and children live, and love, and grow. Each person must shine in his own light, in his own circumstances, with his own possibilities, filling his own mission, and the Father will be glorified in him.

To carry out the figure then for a day in which we are all familiar with incandescent electric lights, let us paraphrase the words of the Master. Just as the tungsten filament in all of the many types of lamps becomes charged and warmed until it throws a light from its own incandescence, we must be filled with the Holy Spirit of God until our lives give off light. Let the light of your life and experience in which the fibres of your soul become incandescent with the Spirit of God, shine before men, unhampered by trivial or inconsistant tendencies, so that, by your fulfilling of God's mission for you, God may be glorified in you.

Dear Father, let Thy love in me
Renew my heart in purity.
And let my life be spotless white
Aglow with incandescent light,
The fibres of my soul aflame
With Jesus' power, in Jesus' name.
Amen.

C. I. M. NEWS JUST RECEIVED FROM THE MISSIONARIES

1.—Rev. Grader on October 12th.—"We have had some very anxious hours and days since my last letter. 10:30 P. M., September 22nd, we rushed two bicycles to Luebo to call Dr. Stixrud. He arrived the following night. My wife had a very hard night and was very weak when he came. After examination he said she needed an operation as soon as possible. This could only be done where there was a hospital. We went to Luebo with him. On Monday preparation was made for the operation, and on Tuesday morning the operation was performed. It took a little over an hour. We praise the Lord that we were able to return home two weeks after the operation. — — My wife sits up a little in the morning and then again in the evening when it gets a little cool. She is still very weak and according to doctor's orders should not do any work for the first six weeks or so."

2.—Dr. Unruh on October 6th.—"If this were not winter time at home we would send her home as soon as she is able to stand the trip, but as it is winter now we will probably wait until the warmer time in the States and then send them. Perhaps she may make a rapid recovery so that they can stay on a while longer, but I have grave doubts. This land is no place to regain strength after one has been through what she has. — — — One thing is sure, if I had had a more reliable hemoglobinometer I would not have allowed her to go down as far as she did. — — — — Perhaps you could see if you could get someone to give me $45.00 so I could buy a really good hemoglobinometer. Needed badly."

3.—Miss Helen Stoesz on October 3rd.—"I am frightfully tired. Have had my hands full and overfull with the sick at Kalamba. This last month we gave close to 5000 treatments."

4.—Mrs. Enns on September 13th.—"The schools have started again and work is plentiful. There are a number of things that need to be done before the coming conference in December, so we are trying to hurry up the work. Sometimes we become quite impatient with the natives as they seem to have only one speed—a slow one. — — The last Sunday in July we were privileged to baptize 89 converts. It was a joy to hear the testimonies of these young Christians."

5.—Rev. Becker on October 3.—Statistical report shows for April to July, 1934—School enrollment in Kalamba District, 2334; average attendance 1543. In catechism 2157, Sunday morning service 4055, Sunday School attendance 3528, baptized Christians 508, converts 1459.

6.—Rev. Enns on September 27th. — "The roof was on the house when your letter mentioning it reached us. We are now also working on this house (A mie house) to get it in shape so that all of us will have good places that we may call home. We will have some rooms ready for moving in about a month. All the stone work on it is finished." (This is a memorial house built with money furnished by the Enns relatives on the death of their mother.—A. M. Eash.)

7.—Irma Birky on September 23rd.—"I can't say that I am too anxious to go home. I would not be sorry if you could not get the money for my passage. I am feeling so well now that it seems a furlough is unnecessary. I so thoroughly enjoy the work that I would really rather stay here a while longer." (Miss Birky is now in her sixth year for this term and the doctor says it is imperative that she come home.—Eash.)

8.—The Board urges that there be special prayer that all of the needs of mission and workers may be met. May He grant your people the mind and ability to give liberally to missions during the next few months.

Rev. A. M. Eash.

CORRESPONDENCE

Pleasant View Church, Aurora, Nebraska. A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Frank Vetter for Mr. and Mrs. Donald Chaney, Thursday evening, October 25th. The honor guests received many lovely, useful gifts.

Mrs. DeRoy Wilson and son are at present in Los Angeles, California, visiting with her sister, Mrs. Enis Newcomer.

Communion services were held Sunday, October 28th.

The Ladies' Aid Society met Wednesday, October 31st, at the home of Mrs. Harold Oswald.

Meadows Church Notes, Meadows, Illinois. Rev. G. I. Gundy and E. S. Augspurger went to Indiana to get a truckload of donations from the Indiana churches for the Old People's Home.

The young people of the church enjoyed a Halloween party at the home of E. S. Augspurger, on October 29th.

Mrs. Urban from the Lutheran church of Washington presented two lectures on November 4.

The following young people presented a program on Sunday evening, November 11: Faith and J. D. Shertz, Earl Kaufman, Alvin Mohr, Claude Miller, Earl Mishler, and the Pathon brothers.

Plans are in progress for an all-day meeting on Thanksgiving.

The following committee was chosen to plan the Christmas program: Ruth Streich, Emanuel Raben, Tillie Getlinger, Clarence Mosiman, Mrs. Elmer Vercler, S. E. Baughman, and Mrs. J. E. Rocke.

The Anti-Can't class held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Willis Sommer. The class members are working on dresser scarfs for the hospital.

The Willing Workers class held its meeting at the home of their teacher, Mrs. G. I. Gundy. All their mothers were invited to attend. The afternoon was spent knotting a comforter.

Joe Rediger and family of Nebraska are visiting relatives here.

Deep Run, Pa., Charge. The fall communions in the charge were observed as follows: Deep Run, October 21st, in the forenoon; Perkasie, in the afternoon; Springfield, October 28, in the forenoon. Pastor A. M. Fretz in the preparatory services on the days preceding took as a text for a preparatory meditation the closing rapturous exclamation of the doctrinal part of the epistle to the Romans, 11:33, "O, the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out." As a communion text were used Paul's opening words of the practical part of this epistle, 12:1-5. The attendance and participation in these services was good. A number of aged and infirm members were served with the memorial emblems in their homes.

The Endeavorers of Deep Run had a special rally service on October 28, in the afternoon. Mr. Booz of Perkasie led the song service, speakers from a distance gave talks, Alvin F. Moyer read the Scripture lesson, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Weiss of Bally with their instruments gave good music with several hymns, Mrs. Ely R. Fretz of Springfield gave two impressive readings.

In the evening the C. E. Society of the Perkasie church had a Junior rally. Wilmer Myers, a junior, read the Scripture lesson, different members of the Junior Society had part in excellent singing, speaking, and praying service. Several young people of both the West Swamp and Flatland societies participated with selected songs, which were much appreciated. Raymond Weiss of West Swamp gave an address principally on the C. E. topic for the day, stressing mission work. The pastor had for the occasion yielded the preaching services, he was present and led in the opening prayer, enjoyed the program, and made closing remarks. He much appreciates the Christian enthusiasm of his young people after a pastorage of fifty-one years.

Thankgiving Day, November 29, will be observed in the charge with services at Deep Run at 8:30 a. m. These services will be followed by the annual congregational business meeting.

Henderson, Nebraska, October 18, 1934. The celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the coming of the first Mennonites, in 1874, was a great success. The weather was fine and the attendance in the afternoon and evening was large. The church was filled to capacity. The four different churches took part. The interest was keen and the enthusiasm was high. The addresses were interesting and instructive. The far reaching importance of the undertaking was greatly stressed by all the speakers, as well as the undying principles and the good name that our fathers have acquired among those that were not Mennonites.

Also attention was called to the fact that we already, to some extent, have lost this good name among those who once spoke so highly of the dealings they had with our fathers. They are now wavering to speak likewise of us. Their word was as good as the best that could be secured. Must we not honestly confess that in general this is too true? And in a good many instances can only say, "that Abraham was our father."

However, in spite of this fact, urgent pleas were made to the present generation, very emphatically, throughout the entire program, where we have drifted away from this good name, to return and as much as lies within us, stick to the undying principles of our fathers, such as simplicity, frugality, honesty, nonresistance, yea be yea and nay be nay, deity and the trinity of Godhead, incarnation, atonement, faith, baptism, etc.

The song, "Faith of our Fathers," as a response to the "challenges" by more than 100 voices of the different church choirs, gave an expression of willingness, that with the help of God and as far as lay within themselves, they will continue to cherish these principles for which our fathers have done so much for us.

Then years ago, at the fiftieth anniversary, 46 of that first group were present. More than one-half of these have passed into the Great Beyond the past ten years. Nineteen were present and answered to roll call with an appropriate Bible verse, followed by the song that was sung when they departed for America sixty years ago ("Die Heimat faeilt mir immer ein"), under the leadership of Rev. John Abrahams, which made a deep impression upon the large audience.

A picture of Castle Garden of former days, where we were quartered on the arrival at New York, was shown. Also a picture of the Immigrant House as it remained in the minds of those of us, was present and a map with an exact location of the site where each family then settled.

Two collections for the needy in Russia were taken.

A picture of the remaining of that first group was taken after the close. J. J. Friesen.

CHRISTIAN FAITH WILL HELP YOU, TOO

When you are far away,
And you are alone, heartsick, and blue,
The world's all wrong, true friends are few,
Christian Faith can help you, too.

When you feel lost and need someone to guide
you,
Get down on your knees and pray,
Pray to God to direct your steps
For He, alone, can guide your way.

When you are about to give up trying—ready to quit,
You just can't see your way through,
Try a little Christian Faith,
It is sure to help you, too.

Delia Anne Ragland.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. ROY YODER
1300 Bond Ave.
Peoria, Ill.

THE ONWARD PATH OF TRUTH

"New occasions teach new duties,
Time makes ancient good uncouth.
They must upward still and onward
Who would keep abreast of Truth.
Lo, before us gleam her campfires;
We ourselves must Pilgrims be,
Launch our Mayflower and steer boldly,
Through the desperate winter sea,
Nor attempt the Future's portal
With the Past's blood-rusted key."

—James Russell Lowell.

THANKFUL FOR GOD'S BENEFITS

Too often we remember what we ought to forget and forget what we ought to remember. A week's illness is far fresher in our memory than fifty-one weeks of unbroken health. We write our mercies on the sand, where tomorrow's tide obliterates the record, whilst too often we carve our misfortunes on the rock. We lose all recollection of the mercies of God, almost as soon as they have been enjoyed, and our gratitude is as short lived as our memory. We do not "bless the Lord" simply because we "forget His benefits."

When we confer a kindness upon a friend of equal social rank, we expect some recognition of our kindness, and resent ingratitude. Still more keenly do we resent ingratitude when the favor is conferred on an inferior. But if we show kindness to an enemy in return for his evil, and he receives it with cold indifference, then our disgust and indignation knows no bounds. Why, even the dogs lick the hand that fondles them; and we conclude that neither heart nor conscience is left in such a man.

True, perhaps — but how seldom do we pause to think that in thus condemning another, we may really be condemning ourselves.

The mercies God has shown us have been mercies bestowed not on an equal, not simply on a creature infinitely inferior to Him; but upon those who once at least were "enemies by reason of wicked works." (Who forgiveth all thine iniquities.) When we not only remember "all of God's benefits," but also how sadly unworthy we are of them, we shall begin to "bless" Him as we have never yet done. That gratitude will express itself not only in praise and thanksgiving, but also in thanks-living. We will make proper use of the possessions, means and divine gifts He has entrusted to us and for which we are responsible, and our lives will express themselves in Christian service. Try it! It will broaden your very face to say "thank you" and mean it.

Homer Leisy.

THANKSGIVING AMID HARDSHIP

Following a period of famine and great hardship, in early colonial times, Captain Miles Standish returned to Plymouth from a voyage northward, bringing a goodly supply of provisions and the news that certain colonists had escaped a terrific storm. Governor Winslow writes of these blessings as follows: "Having these many signs of God's favor and acceptation, we thought it would be great ingratitude if secretly we should smother up the same, or content ourselves with private thanksgiving for that which by private prayer could not be obtained, and therefore another solemn day was set apart and appointed for that end, wherein we returned glory, honor and praise, with all thankfulness to our good God, which dealt so graciously with us; whose name for these and all other mercies toward His church and chosen ones, by them be blessed and praised now and evermore."—Selected.

There are two classes of offenders in this matter of worship of song: those who, having a good voice, do not sing with the heart, and those having a good heart do not sing with the voice; and the latter is not the least culpable. For one who loves God, and adores Jesus Christ, to sit silent when His praises are sung, keeping time to the melody only with the muffled beating of the heart, ought to be considered almost an affront to the most High . . . . God would not have been pleased if the Israelite had gone to his neighbor's flock for a lamb because, forsooth, he might find one there that was whiter and more comely. And neither will Christ be pleased now if we borrow another's voice to utter our praises for His redeeming love, however exquisite and beautiful that voice may be. The offering must be taken out of the flock which He purchased with His own blood. —A. J. Gordon.

"COME UNTO ME"

By Verna Smith, Ocean City, N. J.

Once a leper by the roadside
Writhed in painful agony.
Someone gave him hope and cleansed him,
Someone said, "Come unto me."
Who would speak to him, a leper,
Low and cursed, though he be?
It was Jesus, the Messiah,
Sweetly saying, "Come to me."

Once my soul was lost and sinful,
Doomed to black eternity;
In His arms I was enfolded,
As He said, "Come unto me."
Jesus Christ took each sin with Him,
Bare them all on Calvary,
Now He brings the peace I long for,
Bidding softly, "Come to me."

Are you deep in sin and sorrow,
Do you wish you might be free?
Have you ever heard Him whisper
To your heart, "Come unto me"?
Do you want Him for your Savior?
Won't you to His comfort flee?
Life is yours if you will answer
When He calls you, "Come to me."

"Why is it that there is so little heart in some people's religion? Because they have so little religion in their heart."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

December 16, 1934

What Missionary Opportunities Exist Within Ten Miles Of Our Church?

Matthew 9:35-38

This is the third and last of our series of three missionary topics. We can conclude that missions or missionary pertains to making life more abundant for any individual whose life we may touch, be they far or near. In God's work there are in reality no home or foreign missions, all human beings are His children, irrespective of their race or clime.

Coming just before Christmas, this topic which we will be discussing is quite appropriate, for it leads us into the Glad Season with the spirit of service and helpfulness. As we plan for this service, let each group well in advance select a committee to note the areas where your society might well do some real labor of love and service.

In The Scripture Text

Quite strikingly we hear again and again the characteristic word concerning Jesus, "And he went about all the cities and villages." He was always going about doing good. How much he packed into a few short years! Always He was teaching, preaching the Kingdom and doing all manner of service to all those who needed help. He appealed to the intellect and emotions of men, He healed their broken bodies, fed those who were hungry, gave a compassionate interest to the multitudes dissatisfied, and held out a challenge for service to those who needed to lose themselves in order that they might find life which is life indeed.

The majority of our Mennonite churches are classed as rural. Sometimes we think we have no mission problems confronting us in our immediate communities. We think the greater part of our church neighborhood goes to church with some regularity. We become somewhat smug and self-satisfied. A topic like this should drive us out of our secure self-content. Merely to mention some avenues of possible service will suggest to us some ways in which we may profitably serve Jesus Christ, our Master, even within a ten-mile radius from our home church.

1. Mennonites are supposed to be a peace-loving people. Are all the churches in your community working together in a harmonious spirit, do they have the same common interest and do they labor toward that end? In case they do not, as is liable to be the case, are we doing our part? Mennonites are quite individualistic and if everybody does not exactly agree with us we are quick to call ourselves martyrs, contenders for the faith, and feel confident that we are right and they are wrong.

Are we young people doing what we can to build up a better Christian community consciousness? We may be real missionaries by being heralds for a more Christian relationship between the churches.

2. Are there any children in your church community who do not go to Sunday School? Are there any older folks in your neighborhood who are not affiliated with any church? Have you ever invited them? Has there been evident a real sympathetic longing to help them and befriend them? Are there some others who are nominal Christians, but lack that radiant faith which should be the possession of every Christian. The members of your society may live such a victorious life that others may long for it. In various ways we may tell the self-giving Gospel story of God our Father and Jesus Christ our Lord.

3. Are there any communities in your ten-mile radius which are unchurched or without a Sunday School? That may serve as a real opportunity for service. Your society may be able to begin a mission church or Sunday School. That will be a real deed of service to furnish officers and teachers to help such an organization.

4. We send missionaries to foreign lands, but often forget those of other nationalities who live in our midst. Are there any such in your community? Did you ever exchange an evening program with a colored church in your community? Do you welcome other races to your services and to your homes?

5. Is there any need which is unfilled in the way of helping hungry, unclad families and wayfarers within your reach? No, it is not sufficient to refer them to an organized relief or charity agency. Christ helped the poor, in the early Christian church that was her privilege and she grasped the opportunity, and it is ours still. The church has lost more than she knows in handing this function of the church into the hands of organized charity outside of the church.

6. You may think of a number of other ways in which your church and society can take the place of the Master in going about doing good. What can your society do to make life more abundant as interpreted by our Master when He said, "I came that ye might have life and have it more abundantly." Is there any such opportunity in your ten-mile radius?

December 23, 1934

Why Did Jesus Come?

John 10:7-18

This will be the Christmas topic, for day after tomorrow will be Christmas. What thoughts that word brings to us! That is the one day of the year above all others when families delight in being together. The spirit of it percolates into all of life. Those who know nothing of Christ and His church nevertheless feel the spirit of the season. In many churches and communities there will be a special Christmas program on this evening and the regular Christian Endeavor topic must drop out. Perhaps you will have the high privilege of participating in the rendition of a community Messiah musical service.

If you happen to plan on a regular Christian Endeavor service make it meaningful and worthwhile. Christmas is always a time for worship. Sing a large number of those beautiful Christmas songs and carols. The topic assigned is very fine to bring into our lives better understanding of the real meaning of Christmas.

A good plan would be for as many as possible to give reasons for Jesus having come into this world. Study the gospels and find all the reasons you can find therein. Then try to think of any other reasons for His coming and see how long a list you can make. Tabulate them on a blackboard. You will be blessed in such a service. Another thing which may prove very interesting and helpful is to relate fully several of our very fine Christmas stories, like: The story of the Wise Men, the story of the Shepherds, The Other Wise Men by Henry Van Dyke, Dicken's Christmas Carols, and others. Above all do not forget to make it a joyful service of worship and happy thanksgiving for Jesus the Christ. Is He your Christ? Are you following Him? Will you consecrate yourself to Him anew and love Him more?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Roy Yoder, 1300 Bond Ave., Peoria, Ill.

December 16, 1934

The Influence of the Bible

II Timothy 3:15-17

This can best be seen by comparing it with the countries where the influence of the Bible is not known.

Pre-Prayer

Pray your way through!

Lights of the Scriptures

The Bible has a lasting influence upon the child as he is taught from it while very small.

The Bible reading in the home at family altar carries a great significance forever in the minds and hearts of those who dwell in that home.

The Bible is the "Tie that Binds our hearts in Christian Love."

The influence of the Bible changes our social life.

The Bible has greatly influenced literature. Its style has become the model for writers, and its sayings are scattered in the best writings of the ages and centuries.

The Bible influences men as they memorize it in youth. Later in life, those verses are fortresses.

Questions

1. What makes the difference between nations? Christian and non-Christian?
2. How could the Bible become universal literature, giving to all nations the same ideals of good will?
3. How is the Bible a mirror to men's hearts?
4. How is the Bible like conscience?
5. How did the translation of the Bible change civilization?
6. What influence has the Bible upon you today? (Ask several to answer this question.)

Search the Word

Ps. 37:30, 31; Heb. 4:12, 13; Ezek. 37:7; Rom. 1:16; Eph. 6:17; Ps. 119:9.

December 23, 1934

"Love Came Down At Christmas"

(Poem by Christina Rosetti)

Luke 2:8-14

True Worship can only be expressed in one way — Love.

Pre-Prayer

Praise God for His Love Gift to all mankind who will accept Him.

Suggestive Meeting

1. Prelude—"Love Found A Way."
2. Group song—"When Love Shines In," "Love Lifted Me."
3. Silent prayer, closing with several sentence prayers.
4. Let some capable person read Christina Rossetti's Poem, "Love Came Down At Christmas," slowly and carefully, but distinctly. (It may be found in the Christian Endeavor Worlds or in Miss Rossetti' works.)
5. Now let us compare this with the Scripture in Luke 2:8-14. (Comment upon this Scripture.)
6. Leaders' introduction of the topic.
7. Topic for discussion. (1) All heaven was interested in Jesus when He came to earth. Never before had a being so divine taken upon Himself the form of frail humanity. What did this mean? Phil. 2:5-11.
   (2) Explain Jno. 3:16 in the light of our topic tonight.
8. Special numbers of music.
9. Question 1: How has God manifested His love from the very beginning of time?
   Question 2: How did the people of Moses' Day believe God?
   Question 3: How can love change anyone's life?
   Question 4: Is love, sacrifice?
   Question 5: What has God's Love-Gift meant to me?
10. Receive the Love Offering.
11. Pastor's five-minute talk.
12. Closing song and prayer.

Questions

1. What do we mean here by "dreams"?
2. How are dreams incentive to teen-aged young people for later years and life?
3. How much are dreams imagination?
4. Is it good to dream?
5. How can I work out my ambitions and dreams?
6. How can dreams be measured?
7. What place does "will" hold in dreams coming true?

8. At the close of another year is your dream of life any nearer realized than before? Why? Why not?
9. What will you do with your life? Will it be a dream come true, in Christ?

Search and Read

Acts 2:16-18; Dan. 4:28-33; Jer. 23:15-17; Isa. 6:1-8; James 4:13, 14; II Cor. 4:16-18.

My Testimony and Prayer

This work of the Intermediate Department of our joint publication has truly been a privilege which has afforded me great joy and blessing and has helped me to acquire knowledge through research work in various books and magazines and has made the Scripture more precious to me and the Holy Spirit more affective in teaching me His will. My life's dream and ambition has come true. God has opened the door of Africa to us and my prayer is that you may give God your young lives and ambitions that just such doors and other doors may open to you, who are our next leaders.

Will you do it?

Lovingly,

Mrs. Roy Yoder.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

The Junior Pledge

"I will be present at every meeting of the society when I can."

As a Junior, I feel it a vital duty of mine to be present at every meeting of my society. Just as my hands and feet are a necessity to the correct functioning of my body, so am I to the functioning of the society. No society can function very well with only a part of its members present. Unity is an asset to any society.

There are endless reasons why I should not be absent from any meeting. First of all, I lose all the important and helpful things that are being taught, that would indeed be valuable to my spiritual life if I were absent. Then I lose that feeling of friendliness, of Christian fellowship that I find in associating with my fellow members.

If I am absent, it is not fair to the one who is leader if I am not there to help discuss the topic. And in turn I would want as many members present to help me when I led. For I feel the success of any meeting is due to the active part all members take. The more thoughts that are spoken by members, the wider the discussion and, of course, the more interesting and helpful the topics can be made.

To the individual that is apart from the society I certainly can't be a very good example of a loyal member if I don't attend every meeting. I couldn't be very forceful in bringing them to our society if I, myself, did not attend regularly. Jesus certainly was loyal to His mission here on earth — He went about doing good, healing the sick, and changing the hearts of many people. He surely gave us the most perfect example of loyalty that would be well for everyone to follow. Especially if we expect to be an example to "outsiders," we must be loyal to our society as a member by being present when we can.

Being present at all meetings, I learn to do so many things that will help me in later life. For instance, I learn to speak publicly, offer original public prayers, learn how to lead in a way that makes any meeting interesting, no matter what the topic, and I also learn memory passages from the Bible that are liable to stay with me and be remembered even when I am old.

If I am an active member, perhaps I will be in the position to hold some office in our Junior society. This will perchance be only small since a Junior society isn't always so large, but it trains me for later life if I am called to hold an office in the older societies.

There are ever so many advantages derived from attending every meeting that it completely overrules all reasons for not being present. So, like loyal Juniors, let's all make it our aim to be present at every meeting of the society when we can and then notice the results and we need not be ashamed of our society before God.

Mrs. Herb Roszhart.

Meadows, Ill.

December 16, 1934

Topic—How Can We Share Christmas With Others?

I John 3:17, 18

Isn't Christmas a happy day? I wonder if you boys and girls love it as I do. Hearing Christmas songs always gives me such a happy feeling. I don't think we love Jesus more on Christmas Day, but having the special day and hearing again the songs about His coming, remind us of Him so much. I wonder if giving to others doesn't help, too. For many years I was in city mission work. Giving was a big part of our Christmas work, and how we did love it! There were baskets of groceries to pack, toys and clothing to be taken to poor children, sick folks, old people, poor and sad to visit. And always the gifts and visits brought joy. When barrels and boxes came bringing these gifts to pass along, I think we enjoyed them just as much as did the folks to whom we gave them. I have seen some of the people who filled the barrels and boxes and I am sure they enjoyed it, too. Have you ever tried sharing Christmas in that way? If not, you have missed a big Christmas joy. Perhaps you don't have money, but you may have a toy that is still good enough to pass along. Or perhaps you could make a scrap-book. Children in hospitals love them. Then, too, Christmas is a good time to tell others of Jesus. When we do that we share with them the very heart of Christmas.

Plans for the Meeting

If you have not made plans for helping any one at Christmas, try to plan something definite today. Gifts may be sent to Missions or Homes or perhaps the Juniors could visit someone aged or ill in your community. Many old people love to have children visit them and sing for them.

Questions

1. Why is Christmas a happy day?
2. Explain the Scripture reading (I John 3: 17, 18).
3. Why do we love to make gifts at Christmas time?
4. What have I that I may share with others this Christmas?
5. How may we share Christ with others?

Daily Readings

Sharing our knowledge. Mark 16:15, 16.
Sharing our joys. Luke 15:22-24.
Sharing our goods. Acts 4:34, 35.
Sharing our talents. Rom. 12:6-18.
Sharing our friendliness. Prov. 18:24.
Sharing our Lord. Eph. 3:14-21.

December 23, 1934

Topic—Songs and Poems About Christmas

Luke 2:8-14 (A worship service)

Hark! the herald angels sing,
"Glory to the new-born King;
Peace on earth, and mercy mild,
God and sinners reconciled"!
Joyful, all ye nations, rise,
Join the triumph of the skies;
With the angel host proclaim,
"Christ is born in Bethlehem"!

As Christmas day is a happy day, so Christmas songs are happy songs. They are not only happy, but they are full of praise to God and to Christ Himself. It is said that many years ago, Christmas carols were not sung by the people as they are now. Then in 1224, Francis of Assisi, longing to have everybody know of Christ, had songs written about Him and a church decorated to represent the manger scene in Bethlehem. On Christmas eve he had the people come to the church where they might see for themselves how Christ had come and might hear the songs of His coming. As the people listened, they began to sing. They were so happy that they stayed there singing all night long. We are told that this was the beginning of the singing of Christmas carols by the multitude of people.

Plans for the Meeting

Sing many Christmas carols, use Christmas poems telling of Jesus' birth, and have the Juniors tell the Christmas story as found in the Bible.

Questions

1. Why do we enjoy the Christmas carols?
2. Why is Christmas a time of singing?
3. Tell of Jesus' birth.
4. Tell the story of the shepherds.
5. Tell the story of the Wise Men.

Daily Readings

Subject of poem. John 1:14.
Poems of worship. John 4:24.
The Bethlehem theme. Micah 5:2.
Songs of the Child-King. Matt. 2:2.
Songs of the wise men. Matt. 2:11.
Poems of good will. 1 Cor. 13:1-3.

Live as if Christ died yesterday, rose this morning, and is coming back tomorrow.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

December 9, 1934

The Christian As Teacher

Lesson Text.—Matt. 7:24-29; Acts 18:24-28

Golden Text: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." II Timothy 2:15.

This is one of the most important leesons in this quarter. The Christian church has woefully neglected the ministry of teaching. The fruitage of that neglect is seen in the lives of church members.

Christianity is a religion that can be taught. Jesus went preaching and teaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God. The parables and the Sermon on the Mount are illustrations of His teaching. Although He did not come into the world primarily as a teacher, He used the method of teaching to correct the errors of His day in relation to the Kingdom and to bring His interpretation to the people.

The Scribes and Pharisees who were the official teachers of Israel, did not accept Jesus as a teacher because He did not get His training at the feet of one of their scribes. But yet Jesus was the greatest teacher the world has ever known. He was greatest from the standpoint of personality, methods, and material taught, which are the three greatest tests of a good teacher.

The parable in our lesson of building on the rock and the sand is an evidence of the masterful teaching of our Lord as well as a lesson on the attitude of a learner to the things he is taught.

The verses taken from the Book of Acts show the place teaching held in the early church. Apollos was a teacher. There are two qualifications of Apollos that can well be accepted by every Sunday School teacher. First he was right in the Scriptures. We can not teach what we don't know. A person may be ever so consecrated and yet be woefully ignorant as far as the Bible is concerned. This may even be true of preachers. In the second place Apollos was willing to learn from other teachers. The greatest reason why we do not have better trained Sunday School teachers or preachers is because they do not feel the need of it. They are not willing to learn from others. Sometimes there is even manifested a spiritual pride or a closed mind which makes the teacher ineffective as far as teaching the Word is concerned.

We are all teachers of the Gospel as Christians. The most effective teaching is life. Some teachers say they can not teach the pupils so they get it. This may be true as far as material is concerned, but never true of life. We teach more effectively than we know. Our lives and attitudes either witness for Christ or against Him. May the day speedily come when the church gives to the ministry of teaching its proper place. The most permanent and effective evangelism is a teaching evangelism.

Sunday School teacher, what is in this lesson for you personally?

What is the place of teaching in the church?

What is meant by educational evangelism?

Would you say Jesus was primarily a teacher or a preacher?

Devember 16, 1934

The Christian and the Lord's Supper

Lesson Text.—I Cor. 11:23-34

Golden Text: "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death until he come." I Cor. 11:26.

The Lord's Supper as instituted by our Savior has a very interesting history when traced from Jesus' day until now. Today we find the entire ritual of the Catholic church centered around the bread and cup. The mass or high mass are a celebration of the Lord's Supper. We go from the elaborate ceremony of the Catholics to the simple services of the Mennonite church where about twice a year we break bread and take the cup. It being the week of the Passover, Jesus wanted to have a fellowship meal with his disciples. They gathered in an upper room and Jesus broke bread and gave the cup symbolical of the spirit of friendship, hospitality, and fellowship.

Today this bread to the Catholic actually becomes the flesh of Christ after the priest blesses it, and the wine becomes the actual blood of Christ. This is called transsubstantiation. To the Lutheran it is bread and wine and also the flesh and blood of Christ. This is called consubstantiation.

To Menno Simon both of these interpretations were wrong. To him bread and wine remained bread and wine, but they were symbols of Christ's broken body and Jesus' shed blood. This is our view as a church today.

The Lord's Supper has no magic about it. It is not salvation to an individual. It is one of the means by which a Christian maintains and nurtures his fellowship with God through Christ. There is a danger in the church of making it an end in itself.

First of all it is a memorial service. We remember as we partake of the emblems of bread and cup the death of Jesus and what it means to us.

Second it is a fellowship meal. We express our spirit of friendship and fellowship with each other in this service.

Third it is communion — that is a common union. It should be a very effective service in maintaining the unity of the believers. The words of Jesus are vital, "This do in remembrance of ME."

Why did Jesus institute the Lord's Supper?

Did He mean that we should continue it after His death?

How can a person eat and drink unworthily?

How is the Lord's Supper a witness for Christ?

SOME RECENT C. I. M. INFORMATION

I. The Board is struggling with some tremendous financial problems.

1. There are sixteen missionaries on the field who need regular support. This calls for $800.00 a month.

2. There are a large number of missionaries at home on furlough who require their support. This calls for $150.00 more each month.

3. There is a large and growing work on the field which calls for another $500.00 a month.

4. There are buildings to erect, there is literature to be produced, there are missionaries to travel, there is cloth to be purchased and clothing to be made, there is promotional homeend promotional work to be done, there are nearly two hundred native Christian workers who receive their one dollar a month salary.

II. The Board has an immediate emergency task.

1. The Becker family of parents and two children are long overdue on their furlough.

2. Miss Irma Birky is now well in her seventh year of service and must return home.

3. The Grabers are ordered home by the doctor, due to the health of Mrs. Graber. They need to come at once.

4. The Suttons need to be returned to the field to replace the Beckers at Kalamba.

5. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yoder have been appointed to go to the field to make up some of the work laid down by the Grabers.

6. The combined cost of moving these missionaries to and from the mission field totals nearly $4,000.00. This is an emergency expense calling for immediate action.

III. Two other missionaries are in preparation to go to the field, but in both instances the expense of their going is met either by themselves or interested personal friends. These are Miss Agnes Sprunger, who begins a fourth term of service and Miss Fanny Schmallenberger, a new worker.

IV. The work in the mission is growing. Present estimates of the baptized church membership are that it is nearing the four thousand mark. "The Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved."

V. There are oppositions to the work.

1. Some of these oppositions are in Africa. They come from the witch doctors, the Catholic priests and unsympathetic Government officials.

2. Some of the oppositions are in the homeland. They come from misguided or jealous Christians. The one of these oppositions tends to destroy the work of the missionaries while the other tends to undermine the work of the Board in its effort to support what the missionaries are doing.

VI. The Lord has been marvelously gracious. In spite of all the imperfections of both board and workers. He has showered his blessings upon the efforts put forth and— multitudes are being saved.

—(Zion's Tidings.)—J. P. Barkman.

"One of our greatest dangers in these times of stress and strain, is to become anxious, disheartened, discouraged, and dismayed by looking about instead of looking to HIM who said, 'All power is given unto me . . . and, lo, I am with you alway . . .' "—D. D. M.

JOTTINGS

Sister Frieda Kaufmann, superintendent of the Bethel Mennonite Hospital, Newton, Kansas, who has been enjoying a well earned holiday in Europe during the summer, stopped off at Philadelphia to visit friends on her way back to Newton.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, who has accepted a call to succeed Rev. A. S. Rosenberger as pastor of the Swamp, Pa., charge, has arrived on the field. He left his former home, Berne, Indiana, by auto and experienced some difficulty with snow while crossing the mountains. He has been invited to give the Thanksgiving Address before the Quakertown Chamber of Commerce. Rev. Neuenschwander is no stranger to the East, having served as pastor of the First Mennonite church of Philadelphia for eight years before going to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Burkhalter of Berne, Indiana, recently celebrated their diamond wedding. Their ages respectively are 84 and 83 years. They were married in 1874 by the late Rev. S. S. Sprunger. At the celebration Mr. Burkhalter wore the same suit of clothes in which he was married. Among their children are Mrs. Caroline Zook, who served on the Hopi mission field; Lovina, who is a city missionary in Los Angeles, Calif.; and Martha, missionary to India, now on furlough, serving as dean of women in Bluffton College. One son, Noah, died on the mission field in India.

The Church Messenger, the monthly issued by Eden Church, Schwenksville, Pa., Rev. Freeman Swartz, pastor, appeared in enlarged form as an anniversary number. It contained a history of the congregation with sketches of its ministers and portraits of the pastors, Moses Gottshall, Wililam Gottshall, and Freeman Swartz. It was the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Rev. W. S. Gottshall.

At a meeting of the Orphanage Society of the Eastern District Conference held in Zion church, Souderton, Pa., a group of young people from Bethany church, Quakertown, presented a pageant representing missionaries from different countries. A Girls' Chorus from West Swamp also participated. Officers elected were: Mrs. Jacob Fretz, president; Mrs. J. B. Bechtel, vice president; Miss Ada Landis, secretary; and Miss Emma Ehret, treasurer.

Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannebecker, of our China mission, home on furlough, spent some days with the churches of South Dakota. They also spoke in Freeman College, Freeman.

Miss Aganetha Fast, another of the General Conference missionaries on furlough from China, who has been living in Mountain Lake, Minnesota, has changed her address to Hartford, Conn., where she plans to attend the Kennedy School of Missions during the winter months.

Pay Your Subscription Now!

SPECIAL OFFERS TO SUBSCRIBERS

Your own subscription for 1935 .... $1.50
And one new subscription $1 50
And one of the following books
25 Years With God in India
(Regular Price $2.00 per copy)
or The Missionary Interest Among Mennonites
By Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman
(Regular Price $2.50 per copy)
} FREE
Postage on the book you select 25c

All for $3.25

N. B.—This offer is good only until January 1st, 1935

Combination Subscriptions

The Mennonite and the Christian Evangel
Der Christliche Bundesbote
Both for $2.50 per year

If you want the B. B. Kalender and the Mennonite Year Book add 20c and make a total remittance of $2.70.

Club Subscriptions

5 or more copies to one address at $1.20 per copy.

The Mennonite Book Concern
Berne, Indiana

Wild game is scarce in many of our states where once it was abundant. Pennsylvania, one of the oldest states, has more deer than any other state, even in thickly settled districts they are more or less common. Bro. Eli Fretz of Springfield, near Quakertown, while at work on his place saw a pair near by so tame that they walked leisurely and fearlessly within a hundred yards of the roadside. This is one of the most thickly populated rural sections in the state.

Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, pastor of the Eden Mennonite Church of Schwenksville, addressed the Brotherhood of St. Paul of Ursinus College on Tuesday evening, October 30th. This organization is composed entirely of ministerial student. Rev. Swartz spoke on the very timely subject, "Permanence in a World of Change." He urged the group in a very forceful manner to search diligently after those things which are permanent in their college life. Paul R. Shelly, of Pennsburg, member of the Hereford Mennonite church, Bally, is the vice-president of the organization.

Rev. P. P. Wedel held a series of meetings at the Oraibi, Arizona, Indian Mission, Novemer 1 to 8. This was followed by another series of meetings conducted by him, November 11-18, in the Immanuel Mennonite church, Los Angeles, Calif. The Woman's Mission Society of Immanuel church celebrated its tenth anniversary. The speaker on that occasion was Dr. Hurlburt, founder of the African Inland Mission. The Ladies' Chorus of this congregation furnished the music at one of the services of the Sailor's Rest Misison at San Pedro.

Brother J. B. Bechtel, deacon in the First church, Philadelphia, who is engaged in an extensive jeweler's supply business which developed from a small beginning, recently celebrated the fortieth anniversary of his business.

Bluffton College campus has been made a State Bird and Game Refuge. This means that provision will be made for the protection and care of wild life and that means will be taken to encourage birds and small game to live there. The Refuge will be under state supervision.

Word has just come from Africa that Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Graber are ordered by the doctor to at once return to the homeland due to the health of Mrs. Graber. Arrangements are being made for their return. The Grabers went to Africa in the summer of 1930 and were due to return home on furlough in June, 1935. Rev. Graber has for several years served as mission treasurer in addition to having the oversight of the large evangelistic work in the Charlesville District.

The largest congregation connected with American Mennonitism is the congregation connected with the Charlesville station of the Congo Inland Mission. On June 30, 1934, there were 2448 members in this district, about 2000 of whom had been baptized in the past three or four years.

The annual Home Coming of the Twenty-sixth Street Mennonite Church in Chicago has grown into large proportions. The mission church has served in the heart of Chicago for over twenty-eight years. It was recently estimated that approximately two thousand families have been connected with the place in some form or other during these years. At the recent homecoming held on October 21st, about 80 families were represented in one or more of the day's services. Rev. E. Troyer of Normal, Illinois, was the chief speaker in the evening service.

The present program of the Congo Inland Mission calls for six misisonaries to go to the field, sailing from New York on January 25th; and for five to return home on furlough, together with two children. Those outgoing will be Rev. and Mrs. Omar Sutton (beginning their fourth term of service), Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yoder (new missionaries), Miss Agnes Sprunger (beginning a fourth term), and Miss Fanny Schmallenberger (a new missionary). Returning home are Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Graber, Miss Irma Birkey, and Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Becker and their two children. The outgoing missionaries are sailing by cargo steamer and on arrival at Matadi, Belgian Congo, will drive by automobiles to the mission. The homecoming workers will travel from Matadi home on the same steamer used by outgoing ones. Since Mrs. Sutton and Rev. Becker are brother and sister, the few days together at Matadi will be greatly appreciated by them. Of those coming home, it is possible that the Grabers will return at an earlier date than the remainder of the party.

The Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference acknowledges the following for the month of October: Total receipts $5,519.52. Balance in Bank, October 1, $307.50, representing Gifts to General Fund, $3,996.13. Gifts for Orphans $371.10. Gifts for Ewert $10.00. Interest and rent $866.54. Special Accounts $275.75. Remitted to India $222.82. Paid on Orders $5,321.12. Balance in Bank, November 1, $283.09.

Report of the Executive Committee of Mission Societies for October. To the Foreign Mission General Treasury $185.78. Home Missions $94.37. Christmas Funds $163.00. Expenses for News and Notes $25.85. Miscellaneous Expenditures $333.58.

The Emergency Relief Board of the General Conference has the following to report: Receipts for Russia $181.60. For U. S. A. $75.00. For Canada $9.00. Total $894.79. Total Disbursements $804.98.

DEATHS

Jacob E. Claassen was born November 19, 1840, in East Prussia. June 13, 1859, he was baptized on his confession of faith and received into the Mennonite church of his community. In 1867 he married Mary Warkentin, whom the Lord called "home" June 7, 1882, leaving him with five children.

On September 13, 1883, he married Anna Nickel. He and his family came to the United States in 1888 and settled at Beatrice, Nebraska. In 1896 they came to California and settled at Paso Robles; thereby he became the pioneer and founder of this settlement and the San Marcos Mennonite Church.

November 6, 1934, he was called home. He was 93 years, 11 months, and 18 days old.

He is survived by his wife, 12 children, and their families. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Rev. 14:13.

Wismer.—Near Plumsteadville, Pa., on July 4, 1934. Amande nee Meyers and wife of Harvey M. Wismer, aged 56 years, 8 months, and 16 days. Services on the 8th by her pastor, A. M. Fretz, assisted by D. J. Unruh, at Deep Run.

Ehresman.—Emilie C., daughter of John and Emilie Kennel Augspurger, born near Overpeck, Ohio, April 17, 1876. She united with the Mennonite Church in her youth, and remained a faithful member all her life. She was united in marriage with Theodore Ehresman, January 3, 1899. To this union was born four sons and one daughter, all of whom are living. She passed away on Sunday, September 16, 1934. Funeral held from the Mennonite Church, Tuesday, September 18th. Services held by Rev. J. E. Amstutz, basing his remarks on Revelation 2:10.

Shaddinger.—In Blooming Glen, Pa., on July 30, 1934, Griffith Shaddinger, aged 61 years, 3 months, and 21 days. Services and interment on August 3rd, at Blooming Glen Mennonite Church. Melvin Bishop officiated, assisted by A. M. Fretz.

Myers.—Near Bedminsterville, Pa., on September 3, 1934, Granvil Isaiah Myers, son of Isaiah M. and Sadie Myers, aged 2 years, 5 months, and 16 days. Funeral services on the 6th at Deep Run. Services by Pastor A. M. Fretz.

Moyer.—In Dublin, Pa., on September 24, 1934, Pearson K. Moyer, aged 60 years, 1 month, and 11 days. Interment and services on the 30th at Blooming Glen. The brethren Moyer and Bishop officiated, A. M. Fretz assisting.

Delp.—At the home for Aged at Frederick, Pa., on October 8, 1934, Elizabeth nee Lewis, Peterman, Myers, wife of Jonas Delp, aged 67 years. Interment at Doylestown cemetery, on the 11th. Services were conducted by her pastor, assisted by Bro. Unruh, in the chapel of the cemetery.

Clara M. Rue, daughter of William and Mary Rue, was born at the Rue homestead, July 18, 1882. She was united in marriage to B. E. Reeser, January 31, 1899. They resided on a farm near Danvers, while residing in this vicinity. She united with the North Danvers Mennonite Church, later transferring her membership to the Congerville Mennonite Church, and was a faithful member until death. She was known throughout the entire community for her pleasant and loving personality. She was found in her home Thursday morning, November 15, by members of her family, her death being due to coronary embolism. Two children preceded her in death.

The surviving are, the husband and the following children: Mrs. Guelford Zoodk, Congerville; Mrs. Fred Knapp, Goodfield; Mrs. Carl Thrailkill, Eureka; Clarence, Dorothy, Vernon, at home; Ruth and Flossie, Peoria; also 14 grandchildren.

Brothers and sisters surviving are: John E., Leslie, and William Rue of Congerville; Mrs. Daniel Rinkenberger, Congerville; Mrs. Samuel Reeser, Goodfield; Mrs. J. A. Nohl, Deer Creek; and a host of relatives and friends.

Brighter than the sunlight in the glowing skies,
Is the tender love I see in my dear mother's eyes,
And from my heart I'm grateful for all you've done for me,
And I'll pray that Heaven will bless you and guard you tenderly.

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is still;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

The funeral was in charge of Rev. Geo. I. Gundy, Rev. John F. Smith and Rev. J. H. King, assisting.

AT THE END OF LIFE'S JOURNEY

By Arthur F. Ortmann

When the evening sun is setting
And your trials on earth are done,
When you leave this world behind you
In going to a better one.

When you see the Sun of Righteous
In the home beyond the skies,
In the place of no departing
He Himself our tears will dry.

That is where we all are going
In His Righteousness above;
He's our Lord, our Friend, and Savior
In the place—our heavenly home.

These alone that have been faithful
Shall a crown of stars receive,
Those who've guided many a pilgrim,
Many a sailor on the sea.

And the ones, on Him believing
He will gather in the fold,
Showing them the joys of HEAVEN
And of riches never told.

He Himself has built the city
That His children now behold,
He, the Builder and the Maker
Of that city for His own.

Where no Sin or Death will enter,
But in Righteousness alone
We, as Kings and Priests shall gather
In that place, our HEAVENLY HOME.

MARRIAGE

Ummel-Hatler.—In the First Mennonite Church of Ransom, Kansas, November 8, 1934. Miss Gertrude Ummel, daughter of Mrs. Della Ummel, to Halbert Hatler. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Albert Jantzen, assisted by Rev. Alvin van der Smissen. The bride and groom will be at home to their many friends in their newly established residence in Ransom.

Waltner-Gering.—In the home of their pastor at Odessa, Wash., Rev. M. J. Galle, and in the presence of their immediate family relatives, Ralph Gering with Hilda Waltner. Rev. M. J. Galle officiating.

Landes-Renolds.—On October 2, 1934, by Pastor A. M. Fretz at Perkasie, Pa., Mr. Lamont Renolds of North Wales, Pa., and Miss Mary Elizabeth Landes of Pipersville, Pa.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

That Honor Christ Whose Birth We Celebrate

GOODWILL LINE OF CHRISTMAS FOLDERS

New and original artistic designs—Reproduced in soft harmonious colors by offset and letter press on new and beautiful embossed and two-tone parchment stocks — Sentiments specially written and hand lettered for this line.

CHRISTMAS SHOULD INCLUDE CHRIST

The editor of a prominent religious magazine comments that most cards have "scarcely a reference to Christ, born in Bethlehem, whose birthday we celebrate at Christmas time. They are holiday cards, but hardly Christmas Cards." Goodwill cards are different. They carry Christ-honoring messages.

SCRIPTURE TEXT CHRISTMAS CARDS

are increasing in popularity and use each year. More and more, Christians are coming to use Christmas Cards that give prominence and place to the Christian aspcet of the Christmas occasion. Such cards are not usually available in local stores. Send your order early so you will not be disappointed at the last minute.

Assortment No. 421—21 Scripture Text Christmas Folders and envelopes, all but two on parchment stock. Several numbers have been beautifully high-lighted with raised silver overprinting. Each carries a Christ-honoring message. $1.50 card value and gift box for only $1.00. Packed in a beautiful gift box.

Assortment No. 412—12 Beautiful French Folders on parchment stock reproduced in process colors. Each folder carries a Christian Christmas message and appropriate Scripture text. 70 cents worth of folders and gift box for only 50 cents.

WITHOUT SCRIPTURE TEXTS

Assortment No. 4211—Friendship Christmas Folders—same set of 21 quality folders as used in assortment No. 421, but with Conventional Non-Religious Sentiments, equally attractive but different gift box. Only $1.00.

Assortment No. 4121—Friendship Assortment composed of same 12 parchment folders as used in religious assortment No. 412, but with Friendship messages instead of the religious. Different gift box. Only 50 cents.

GIFT BOX

Each assortment is put up in a beautifully designed and printed gift box suitable for use in sending a gift after the cards have been used.

Close Out Bargains

3 Box Assortments of former years. All $1.00 values. Each contains from 18 to 21 greeting cards which even now will sell regularly for 5c and 10c each.

3 boxes, not less than 58 cards, only $1.00 postpaid

Order early to avoid disappointment

GIVE BIBLES THIS CHRISTMAS

Collins Bold Face Bibles

Type that is easy to read

No. 2988½	Reference Bible. Bound in black artificial leather, divinity circuit	$1.25
No. 4988½	Teachers' Bible, complete with References, Concordance and Illustrations. Artificial leather binding. Red edges, divinity circuit	$1.50
No. 4988.	Same as No. 4988½, but with red edges under gold	$2.00
No. S89½	Text Bible. Beautiful sapia illustrations. Divinity circuit, red edges. Our most popular Bible	$1.25
No. S1989HC.	Beautiful Gift Bible with 16 colored illustrations. Red under gold edges. Divinity circuit. Black fabrikoid binding. An ideal children's Bible	$2.00

N. B.—Other Collins Bibles from 50c to $11.50 . Let us know what you need.

We also carry a large stock of Holman, Nelson, National, International, Cambridge, and Oxford Bibles. Write for descriptive circulars giving full details.

Our Leading New Testament

No. MO2½ P. S. Collins New Testament and Psalms. Large type, vest pocket size Testament bound in black artificial leather. We have sold several hundred during the past two years. An ideal S. S. gift or reward.

Price	35c
Without Psalms	25c

Now Only One Dollar

THE SCOFIELD REFERENCE NEW TESTAMENT

With Book of Psalms

With the same Helpful Features as contained in the Scofield Reference Bible. To which are added Synoptic Introductions to the Four Gospels, the Epistles, and the Poetical Books.

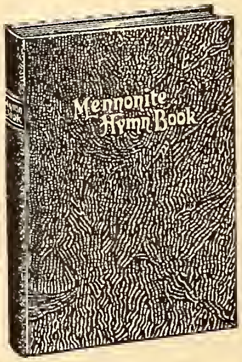
MINION 16 mo. Black-Faced Type

(Size 7x4½ inches

No. 710. Attractively bound in blue cloth with square corners, white edges.

Price, postpaid..........$1.00

The Mennonite Hymn Book



The official English Hymn Book of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church of North America

A beautiful gift for all who love the great hymns of our church

PRICES

No. 1 Record Buckram (Maroon) Binding
	Single copies	$1.50 postpaid
	12 or more copies	$15.00 per dozen not prepaid
	100 or more copies	$110.00 per 100 not prepaid
No. 1-A Spanish Maroon Fabrikoid (Gift Edition)
	Single copies	$2.00 postpaid
	12 or more copies	$18.00 per dozen not prepaid
	100 or more copies	$125.00 per 100 not prepaid
No. 2 Full Black Leather Binding
	Single copies	$2.50 postpaid
	12 or more copies,	$24.00 per dozen not prepaid

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN

BERNE, INDIANA

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar '84

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. I HILLSBORO, KANSAS, DECEMBER 18, 1934 No. 24

EDITORIAL

We are grateful to all our subscribers for the oyal support they have been giving The Mennonite and Christian Evangel. There is nothing so heartening as the knowledge that behind an effort stand those who have its interest in mind continually. Without such supporting interest no venture can succeed. From time to time we have been appealing for a larger support along the line of new subscriptions and we have always had a feeling that those who are already subscribing for the paper and reading it do not need to be appealed to except for continued interest. It is those who do not take the paper and do not read it that we want to reach. Just printing articles with this in mind will not accomplish much unless the appeal reaches beyond our circle of readers. It is our hope that those who have always given the paper their support will become boosters for it. What we really need to help us are ministers who will frequently speak in the interest of the paper from their pulpits. We also want teachers of adult classes to be our boosters. It has been encouraging to observe that in some quarters young people's and other organizations have taken upon themselves the responsibility to institute a drive in the interest of our church papers. We know times are hard. Our business has been hard struck and people are hard pressed for the means they need to keep going, but necessities are generally secured though the task is trying. Surely every church member must realize that a church paper is a necessity in every Christian home. It must be taken even though other things may be omitted, because a family that is out of touch with its church is not in a position to benefit by all that the church might mean to it. All the readers of this paper know how serious the situation with our publications is and we look to them to prove their loyalty by throwing all the influence and energy they can command in the direction of a larger subscription for the coming year. —G.

December 6, was celebrated in the Christian world as the 400th anniversary of the publication of Luther's translation of the Bible into the German language. This was one of the most important literary events of all time. It unified the German people. It fixed their language and it made possible a familiar and first handed knowledge of the revealed Word of God. There had been other similar undertakings, but those who made them were not equipped with the technique at Luther's command, nor were the resources to which he had access available. However, they were pioneers and prepared the way for the better translation made by Luther.

Other nations followed Luther in receiving the Word of God in their own tongue. Wycliff, the pioneer English translator, lived too early to have his work printed, but it had a wide circulation in manuscript. So much so, indeed, that years after his death his bones were taken from the grave and burned by those who stood in the way of a Bible in the language of the people. Tyndale, to whom we owe more than any other man for giving us the English Bible in its present form, paid with his life for having translated and given it to the people. His last word, as he was led to the stake, was: "God, open the King of England's eyes!" Two years later Henry VII ordered a Bible chained to the pulpit of every parish church so that it would be accessible to any who cared to read it. Bible translations since that time have increased so that it has appeared in practically every written tongue, and many languages have been reduced to writing so that the Bible might be printed in it. Among those who have reduced unwritten languages to writing with the view of printing the Bible, we call attention to the work of Dr. R. Petter, of the General Conference Mission to the Cheyenne Indians. His gift to the people among whom he works is a written language and the Bible in Cheyenne. This has been a labor of a life time among a people whose tongue, it was believed, could not be mastered by a white man. —G.

212792

The press reports considerable feeling over the demand of the Japanese Government for equality in the maintainance of its navy which would make it equal with the United States and Great Britain. There is considerable speculation concerning what is to happen when the Japs undertake to build a navy of greater strength. Will it lead to war? Will it mean that there must be a struggle for supremacy in the Pacific? Well, discussions such as this lead to war, if the war parties have their way, there will be no end of wars for the generations to follow. We tremble at the thought of what such conflicts will mean. We wonder what has become of the good sense of the world when, after an experience such as we went through in the last war, it is going on getting ready for a "bigger and better" war.

However, let us note some things that indicate a possible improvement in the war mindedness that threatens us. For one thing, we recall the words of one of the most prominent Japanese who is not a military man; he says: "Japan is too poor for any kind of a war." What this Jap confesses is true of the most of the world in spite of the bigchestedness of military men everywhere. They are too poor for war. Germany is troubling the world somewhat because of the attitude of its dictator. The same thing is true of Italy's Dictator.

HELP OUR PUBLICATION WORK WITH GIFTS AND PRAYER

Pastors! Brethren and Sisters! Our Publication Business is in a condition where your immediate help is absolutely necessary. It is still in operation. Our church papers and other printed helps are coming to your homes regularly, bringing you spiritual nurture, telling you of the activities in our missions and relief, and of our various experiences in a common endeavor to carry on the Master's work in our churches and conferences.

But, unless you all, singly and collectively, help roll the burden of debt off its back, it may be forced to give up. Our creditors have been longsuffering. But some of them are getting to the point of despair. Only cash will now satisfy them.

This debt, which now amounts to $12,000.00 has, like thousands of others, resulted largely from the catastrophal economic depression which has been general the country over. And because of it many of our subscribers fell into arrears on our church papers, until there is a sum in excess of $4000.00 due on this score. Collection of much of this is difficult or impossible, or, if forced, would often defeat the very aim that our conference has set for itself, the extension of Christ's kingdom among us.

The Board of Publication is trying to balance the budget, but that is manifestly impossible as long as this large debt is overhanging. It has lowered salaries, managed to reduce costs of printing, and tried to economize in other ways. And once the debt with its heavy draft for interest has been removed, it can give reasonable insurance that it will do all it can to keep out of debt.

Kindly pray God's direction and guidance upon the Board and the Management of the Mennonite Book Concern. But do not forget, work and prayer go together, give and pray. Give before Christmas.

Send all gifts to the chairman of the Publication Board, Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, Reedley, Calif. J. R. Thierstein, Member, the Board of Publication.

These men are largely playing to the galleries and making utterances for home consumption. Russia is an Ishmael among nations and has been so for some time, but it has problems on hand that must be settled before it can walk over other nations rough shod. The economic situation is such that none of these nations could trust themselves into rashly plunging into conflicts with other countries. With three dictators in Europe watching one another, we may depend upon it that they serve as a checkmate to one another. They remind us of the boy who was too much afraid to openly challenge the other boys to a fight and so he went back of the barn and made fists in his pockets at them. The inferiority complex with which he was possessed was sort of eased by the gesture and a real fight was avoided.

Just now Paraguay and Bolivia are engaged in a senseless, but bloody war. The whole world is seeing how senseless it is and various kinds of pressure are being brought to bear on these nations to bring them to make peace. To date this pressure has not succeeded, but it has demonstrated that the rest of the world is beginning to realize the wickedness of war and to depreciate the worth of the glory that comes from war. There was a time, not so long ago, that any one whose conscience opposed war or participation in it, was looked upon as being abnormal mentally. Today, in many nations, men in every walk of life are declaring that they will not participate in war of any kind. Churches, schools, and colleges are asserting themselves in this direction.

We are too close to the confusion of our age to properly estimate the way things will go, but this we know, that war, if it comes, will be the most insane thing to which men have committed themselves and when it does come there are sure to be multitudes of intelligent people who will have nothing to do with it.

—G.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION IN OUR MISSION SCHOOLS

(By Miss Helen E. Nickel, Janjgir, India)

Within recent years missionaries have come to recognize that unless mission schools produce more truly Christian young people, there really is not sufficient reason for their existence in their present form. Liberal contributions of missionary personnel, time and money go for education and so the responsibility is a very great one. It is my purpose to set forth very briefly, as I have learned to see them, certain great hindrances in making our schools contribute definitely and largely in developing Christian character and also to point out some very encouraging efforts now being made to remedy very radically the situation.

First of all, perhaps, we should mention government standards of curriculum, examinations, financial aid and inspection as a distinct hindrance. Because most missions, ours included, receive some financial help from a friendly government, they have adopted the standards set forth which are almost entirely secular. Too many missionaries have readily yielded to the pressure of secular standards and not resisted courageously enough the trend of teachers to prepare the children for examinations rather than for life.

It is not that Bible instruction has been eliminated or ignored, but rather that it has not been made vitally alive and important. Then, too, the age-old and worn out method of rote teaching has been employed by the teachers. Even though the Bible study period is conducted daily the year around, we often have to admit with surprise that the pupils have related so little of their teaching to life situations. In a test on factual knowledge and memory work I would be willing to place any Indian girl of average ability, who is enrolled in the Funk Memorial School at Janjgir, alongside an American girl in the same class and venture to say that the Indian girl would win out in any oral or written test in Scripture. And our mission school is still young. This is worth something, but we surely cannot be content until we see better results in consistent Christian ideals, attitudes and sympathies resulting from the rare privilege of having attended the mission school. We cannot lay the blame entirely to faulty methods, but we must recognize as contributory, if not fundamental, reasons, also lack of proper supervision, little or no opportunity for teachers training and diversity of curricula.

Pressed for time, burdened with many duties, lack of a true understanding of aims, whatever the cause may be, many missionaries in charge of educational work have failed to instruct personally or supervise carefully with much suggestive criticism the teaching of Scripture, and the sense of responsibility for the results which have appeared has not been as keen as is desirable. Very few teachers, perhaps none in our mission, have had the opportunity to train in any other school for this most important of all tasks in a mission school. At times they have not even been helped or encouraged to train while on the job. Then, too, there is a variety of curricula in use, ranging from poorly organized outlines to very good graded courses with the aims definitely stated. No doubt it has been somewhat difficult to secure sufficient "helps" in the vernacular for primary teachers, but in the Middle Schools teachers can use English well enough so that this is no great hindrance.

In spite of, or it may perhaps be that because of, these great problems, a very encouraging agitation for improvement can be noticed in our own and other missions. Briefly stated, it is manifesting itself in all of these ways, (1) a deep concern that the "output" of mission schools is not better when measured by Christian standards. This concern is frequently expressed by missionaries doing other than educational work. (2) Trained and consecrated missionaries are devoting time and effort to changes which promise results. (3) More and better materials are being made available and efforts are in progress for unifying curricula. (4) This year teachers of our own Chattisgarsh district can avail themselves of an opportunity to attend a Refresher course (Retreat) where they will receive help and inspiration at reasonable expense. (5) Some teachers are of their own accord showing interest in improving their work; some have shown that in their own lives they have caught the challenge of Jesus Christ when He said: "Except a grain of wheat fall into the earth and die, it abideth by itself alone; but if it die, it beareth much fruit."

Is this task not great enough to engage the effort and time of a missionary? Is it not a challenge to young people at home to help us here? The Lord Jesus, Himself, will remind us how we can best do this. More is accomplished through prayer than we realize, much help can come from encouraging letters and advice. Many teachers, perhaps a few who do not have positions at present, could share their experiences for our benefit. We trust some can specialize and offer their services to our mission board. And lest I forget, the usual and important plea—we still need money badly and welcome gifts for this urgent work of vitalizing and improving the Bible teaching in the scho of the mission.

THE RECENT CHINA FLOOD

Kai Chow, Hopei, China,
October 15, 1934.

The Emergency Relief Commission,
Freeman, South Dakota.
Dear Brother J. C. Mueller:—

It pains us to report that, although the w ters from the 1933 Yellow River flood had ne er entirely dried up, now a new break in t dike has flooded the country for the seco time. The heavy waters came about a mon later than last year, and thus on somewh higher grounds the fall crop could be part harvested, but a big stretch of territory h had no crop for two years. This brings a l of suffering into our midst again.

We are well aware of the fact that many our dear people in America are very hard h by drought and our hearts go out to them i sympathy. We also think of the duty of bett situated localities to first help their own peopl in America. But if any can also spare som for relieving suffering here, we shall be ver thankful to God.

If you ask whether the flood here this yea is as bad as last year, we can hardly answe with yes or no, for there are several factor to be taken into consideration. The water s far is not quite as high and as a preventativ the people in the south, where the country wa flat and no back whatsoever to halt the water have built several little dams about three o four feet high, and these are keeping the wate from spreading out so far into the countr and spoiling the fields. However, at some place the water went over the top or broke throug anyway. Then, too, since the houses wer washed down in many low villages a year ago the houses that have since been rebuilt stan on the debris of the old ones and thus are ou of reach of the flood. Some people have not moved back after the last year's flood subsided. Thus we see that the damage is not half what it was last year, but again when we realize that these people have not had a crop for two consecutive years, and that last year they still had some grain on hand, even though much of it was spoiled and had a very bad odor, and they also had furniture, lumber of the tumbled down houses, and they had animals, all of which could be sold to help bridge over. But this year there is nothing to fall back upon. So you see, although the damage done is not near what it was last year, the resistance power is wanting.

The reason for a repeated flood lies in the fact that the Yellow River has no definite bed. It is kept in by dikes, having a bed often considerably higher than the outside. The stream is very long. Heavy rains in Shansi and Konan bring a terrible amount of water down in mountains into this one river, but not only water but sediment, so much that it fills the channels up and the water naturally has to go over the banks or dikes. The break this year was slightly higher up the river. The water strikes the city of Sh'ang Yaan with a heavy stream all around the city. Even though a walled place is able to keep the stream out, the water slowly seeps through and fills the inside up badly, and even if not endangering the houses, but to supply such a city of 15,000 people with food is no easy matter.

Please publish this and pray with us for this serious situation.

Very faithfully yours,
H. J. Brown,
Chairman, Relief Committee.

WHAT MAY A CHURCH OFFER MODERN YOUTH IN LIEU OF THE INDUCEMENTS OF THE WORLD?

When we speak of modern youth and the inducements of the world or dangers threatening their spiritual life, we must not fall into the error that there were no dangers in former days or generations. There were dangers aplenty and the good old days were not as good as we old folks like to picture them to ourselves when we become reminiscent and spin a halo about them. Nevertheless, every age had dangers peculiar to itself and there is no gain saying the fact that in the present sophisticated, pleasure-mad, money-mad, speed-conscious, radio-conscious and flying-machine age dangers are multiplied and the inducements of the world are more subtle than before. To counteract these dangers and inducements of the world and offer the young people of our church something better in their stead, is one of our most serious and most timely problems. Young people will satisfy their craving for amusements, their God-given social desire, in some way. If there are no desirable, legitimate ways provided they are in danger of patronizing questionable amusements and visiting questionable places. Persevering prayer and serious thinking and planning and the guidance of the Holy Spirit is necessary to do the right thing in this matter.

From the foregoing we deduct two premises: First, there are peculiar dangers or inducements of the world confronting Christian young people, and secondly, the church must offer her young people something better in lieu of such dangers and inducements. I take it that this paper is not so much to point out the dangers and inducements of the world, but to point to ways and means to counteract such dangers and inducements.

May we begin with that which is the most effective, most powerful, most potent, yea, the only factor to successfully meet dangers and counteract the inducements of the world to questionable matters. It is to bring our young people face to face with Christ in true spiritual experiences, which means sound conversion. Love of the world, of sinful pleasures of questionable associations is then controlled by the work of the Holy Spirit. But the church must do her share to keep her young people nurtured in faith and Christian life.

At this point we naturally think of Sunday evening meetings and services. If at any time of the week his satanic majesty is on the job, it is Sunday evenings. Then he is out to trap unwary Christians and induce them to social doings, auto rides, movies, and what not. This in an endeavor to mentalize the preaching and teaching of God's Word during the day. It is the sacred duty of the church to open her doors Sunday evenings to counteract Satan's efforts and the inducements of the world. Programs of Christian Endeavor Societies may be made very interesting and instructive. Services with a practical message, not too long and to the point, and some musical selections, etc., should attract an audience. A great deal of singing is always attractive. A church with closed doors Sunday evenings is neglecting her duty toward her young people.

Speaking about young people's organizations in particular, we know they are a great help. No church can afford to be without such organizations. Ministers and church leaders must manifest an active and prayerful interest in these organizations. Not to lord it over the young people, nor be their official leaders, but to sit with them in the pews as advisers and counsellors. If the relation between old and young is as it should be, the young people naturally seek the advice and counsel of their elders.

Our church services shall always be attractive and the young people should feel they have a part in them. Make use of the choir, if at all possible, in our Sunday services. Generally young people enjoy choir work, especially if they feel their work is appreciated. Our church services are usually very simple, devoid of rituals, but a certain amount of such rituals, used judiciously, is helpful and inspiring and young people like them. Let us get away from the chilling, sleep-producing sameness in our singing, preaching, yes even praying, during our services, if we want to keep our young people interested. Needless to mention, that in our Sunday Schools our young people should always be largely enlisted.

Again, our sisters have their missionary organizations. In many churches there are such organizations separately for younger women and also for girls. They do good work and this work is greatly appreciated by our Mission Boards and laborers in the various fields at home and abroad. Sometimes I wonder why there are not similar organizations among our men and boys? There are churches in which brotherhoods are organized and they exercise a wholesome influence over younger men and boys. Any male member of the church ranging in age from 16 to 60 years is eligible for membership in such brotherhoods. Their meetings are held monthly or quarterly, and usually open with a fellowship lunch. Then follows an address about a live topic. The most important, however, is round table discussion of practical and timely problems. Young men and boys who are inclined to drift get interested in their brotherhood meetings and the older members have golden opportunities to win their confidence and point out the dangers confronting their spiritual life. Such matters as movies and their heart-polluting influence, the card table, tobacco-slavery, the pool room habit, Sunday ball games, joy rides, etc., are discussed in a Christian, matter-of-fact, friendly, not dictatorial or better-than-you spirit. This is a means of keeping young men on the path of virtue and godliness.

Again, our Father in heaven has endowed our young people with many gifts and talents. It is my conviction that these should be used to the glory of God and for the purpose of keeping our young people from using them in the service of the world. We have spoken of choir work and the use of the gift of song. Now there are such who do enjoy to play instruments. Why not use this fine gift to the glory of God? David says: "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, to sing praises unto thy name, O most High . . . . Upon an instrument of ten strings and upon the psaltry, upon a harp with a solemn sound." Psalm 92:1-3. "Yes," you say, "this was in the Old Dispensation"! True, but do you think we should be less fervent in our worship in the New Dispensation and suppress our God-given talents? "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye saints," means New Testament as well as Old Testament saints. We expect to hear the best of music in heaven, should we not train our hands and ears to help produce it and enjoy it? We are happy in anticipation, when without the taint of sin we may produce and enjoy heavenly music. Therefore, if at all possible, organize an orchestra among your young people. Make use of it in your Sunday School, young people's work, etc. The social gatherings of your young people are more enjoyable when an orchestra lends its help.

Should the gift or talent of acting or dramatics be made use of by the young people of the church? Is it not a God-given talent? If so, why should not our young people make use of it? Here I am treading upon controversial ground, I know. But may I voice my conviction in this matter? Certainly such activities must not run into seed. They must always be properly supervised, as all other activities of the church. Nothing should be done or allowed that militates against propriety, that is not elevating, helpful, inspiring. By means of the eye, truths may be made plainer, impressions become more lasting. In this connection I am thinking of pantomimes, then, dramatization of historical events or missionary experiences, usually called mission plays. As to biblical dramatization, I would be very careful. But, I believe, scenes out of the lives of prophets like Elijah and Elisha may be dramatized with benefit and profit. In the New Testament some of Christ's parables lend themselves to dramatization. Any scene in which God the Father is supposed to speak, or in which Christ, our Lord,

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication..........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office..........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance..........$1.50
Foreign..........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

is supposed to figure, should not be used. We should not place the Holy Trinity even in the person of our Lord and Savior on the same level with persons or human beings. Somehow it detracts from our reverence and adoration of the absolutely Holy One. This is too sacred a matter to allow even the semblance of profaning the Most Holy One, dwelling in a light which no man can approach unto, whom no man hath seen nor can see. There are religious scenes which may properly be used during, or as a part of, a Sunday evening service. Others had better be used in connection with social gatherings on week days. Giving our young people opportunities to use their gifts and talents in a proper, legitimate way, goes a long ways toward keeping them away from places and amusements hurtful to their spiritual life.

There is another phase of activity which might be mentioned. For lack of a better name we might call it inter-church activity. A number of young people of one church are guests of the young people of another church. The visitors or guests render a program of music, prayer and song, testimony, and short addresses. This may also be a week-day affair and a social or literary program may be rendered. May I add to this that a number of our young people's societies sometimes visit county homes and jails and render a religious program for the benefit of the inmates. This is very commendable.

As we have noted, social activities play an important part in the lives of our young people. These are legitimate activities and should not be discouraged by the church. They keep the young people from satisfying their social cravings and desires at the highways of the world and sometimes along the byways and hedges. Playing games constitutes a large part of such gatherings. There are a goodly number of games that may be played with happy enjoyment. A ball team is nothing out of the way, provided games are played at the right time and in the right spirit. Our young people love such games and such teams may keep some from attending professional Sunday ball games.

This paper would not be complete without mentioning our "Young People's Retreats." It is my observation that they are of great spiritual benefit to our young people. They come home with new zeal for their church work and new ideas for practical work in the young people's societies. The best of all, they are drawn into closer fellowship with their Lord and Savior and with young people of other churches. We pray that the leadership of these Retreats may always remain biblically sound and guided by the Holy Spirit. Anyone who is shaky on God's great plan of salvation, or on the divinity of Christ, is not a safe leader for our young people.

Lastly, may I mention that young people should be given a larger share of responsibility in our church and conference work. I wonder how many churches have members in their official board thirty or under thirty years of age? I wonder how many delegates elected by our churches to this conference are thirty or less than thirty years old? It would be wholesome for our churches and conferences if our younger people would be given some share in the responsibiilty of conducting the activities of churches and conferences. We older folks need the daring enthusiasm of the young people and the young people need the restraining, conservative influence and ripe judgment, based upon past experiences, of the old people. It is a healthy and hopeful sign to see many young people at congregational business meetings and at conferences. Sharing responsibilities with older members increases their interest, love, and loyalty to their church. It also helps to counteract distracting influences from unwholesome sources.

"Prove all things, hold fast to that which is good." May you, beloved conference, treat this paper in the spirit of this biblical injunction. It is written with sincere desire to be of some help to young and old and makes no claim of completeness, let alone infallibility. May the Holy Spirit guide our churches in this so vital a matter and may all of our young people be truly won for Christ and the church.

—M. Horsch.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE THREE GIFTS OF THE WISE MEN

We believe that the three gifts of the Wise Men are symbolic of the three gifts which we can make to our King. We each have three kinds of things in our lives today which we can offer to the King. We read that the Wise Men opened their treasures, so we want to open our treasures. You may ask, "What are my treasures"? Why, YOURSELF and all you possess.

First, let us consider the gold. Gold was an acceptable gift for the subjects to bring to the King because of its purity and value. We need to feel the responsibility of bringing our gold to our King. He has given us this gold to use, nevertheless a portion belongs to Him. If people could only realize how greatly gold is needed for His work, they would soon open their treasures and pour it forth, I am sure. Those who have all they need for their comfortable spiritual life often cannot realize the awful, desperate want of people on the other side of the sea. But how can they believe in whom they have not heard? We can do our part in sending missionaries and helping those who preach and minister. Also, gold stands for much besides money. Think of all the golden things of life! The joys, the brightness, the glory of success, all beauty, all gaiety, all golden mirth and laughter. Let us consecrate these golden things and bring them as offerings to our King.

The second gift was frankincense. Frankincense is an emblem of Christian worship. It is not enough to bring gold to the King, we must give the frankincense of true worship and by that we mean the constant worship of an adoring heart. Unless our daily life from Monday to Saturday is a life of worship, there will not be much reality in our public worship on Sunday. And then, frankincense stands for all that appertains to the spirit part of you—your ideals, your noblest loves, your finest aspirations. Open your treasures, then, and bring these to your King.

The third gift the Wise Men brought was the gift of myrrh. Myrrh stands for death. Some of us may be called upon definitely to face death, for the King's sake. But all who have lived unto Him in life can glorify Him in death. We can all at last bring to Him this gift — a gift, which in the bringing, will indeed bring us into His very presence. But, meanwhile, your present offering of myrrh is the death of self, the daily crucifying of the self-life. "He that shall find his life must lose it." But myrrh, in the Bible, stands for other things besides death. You will find that it stands for love—love of the sweetest, tenderest kind. You will find it stands for sorrow, not bitterness of woe, but sorrow accepted as the Father's will, and therefore touched with reverent joy.

Myrrh is also an emblem of service. While Jesus was here on earth He went about doing good. He fed the hungry, He healed the sick, taught the ignorant, and forgave the sinful. And then before He left for heaven, He left in our hands the work which He had only begun. He taught us that we are our brother's keeper. He told us the story of the good Samaritan and ended by saying, "Go thou and do likewise." He said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these little ones, my brethren, ye have done it unto Me." He expects us to build hospitals, He expects us to care for the widows and orphans, comfort those who mourn. And as we do these things in His name, we are in the true sense bringing our gift of myrrh to our King. P. K.

CHURCH VS. LIQUOR TRAFFIC

The following resolutions, adopted by the Methodist Church of Illinois, may be a practical suggestion to our Mennonite conferences.

The Fight Is On
The Church vs. the Liquor Traffic
A Ringing Declaration

Resolution adopted by the 1934 Illinois Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church:

WHEREAS, Under the policies adopted by the federal and state governments, the new liquor traffic is proving itself more ruthless than heretofore, and has already resulted in greatly increased drunkenness, bootlegging, vice and crime, and

WHEREAS, The liquor crowd is expending vast sums of money in propaganda, to popularize the use of alcoholic beverages, particularly among women and young people, and

WHEREAS, The church group is the largest against this new and powerful menace to the welfare, safety and happiness of the people of Illinois, and

WHEREAS, While the church is peculiarly qualified to give temperance instruction and create sentiment against the liquor traffic, we recognize that no denomination alone can successfully cope with the multiplicity of problems thrust upon the people by the return of liquor under repeal, and that this serious situation demands a united front and a united policy combining the energy and power of all churches and the militant forces of righteousness, and

WHEREAS, The Resident Bishop, Ernest Lynn Waldorf, and other leaders of our church and members on the Board of Trustees and the Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois have sent to this Conference a communication that the Anti-Saloon League remains the best agency available for future effective opposition to the liquor traffic, and that the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois has a new superintendent, and has revised its program, methods and personnel, to meet the new situation successfully, and that the measure of effectiveness of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois will be determined by the measure of cooperation and support given to it by the churches, and requests that this Conference elect a full quota of trustees on its State Board.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that this CONFERENCE, hereby solemnly declares our steadfast opposition to the whole liquor traffic; that we earnestly urge our churches to uphold a standard of total abstinence from the use of alcoholic liquors as a beverage, and that we enlist our membership giving special attention to the young people as to total abstinence and for a militant fight to destroy the traffic; that we endorse the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois as the Federated Church Agency through which the membership of our churches and temperance organizations for united action against the liquor traffic, and we hereby call upon our churches, pastors and members, to continue increasingly their cooperation and support in carrying forward its work against the liquor traffic, and we recommend that this Conference appoint its full quota of trustees on the Board of the Anti-Saloon League. . . .

Like resolutions have been and are being passed by other denominational bodies.

WHAT IS EVANGELISM?

The world cries for spiritual leadership. Such leadership must be evangelistic. What is evangelism?

Consciousness of the Reality of God

The intent of evangelism, first of all, is to create and sustain in the lives of men a consciousness of the reality of God. Multitudes, today, are living in tragic uncertainty. Broken landmarks of faith are strewn along life's highways. Over these very altars of broken hopes are the crushed lives of those who once worshipped before them. Leadership is needed which will inspire these folks to raise their eyes to see the stars of heaven.

The spiritual tragedy of our age is that we have mistaken the transitory for the permanent. We have builded our lives and our civilization on principles of thrift, profit, and success which have not been tuned to the eternal laws of the universe. And the church, too often, fattening itself with the crumbs from the rich man's table, has encouraged deluded folk to feel that the blessings of God are to be measured by bank accounts and real estate.

Real evangelism can never be a retreatist movement. Stability cannot be secured by running away from the facts of life. An emotional experience which makes one forget his troubles is in no sense our goal. Evangelistic preaching is the proclamation of the eternal truths in contrast to the temporary. It is the taking of men into some quiet retreat and saying to them:

"There are the things you thought permanent. They have failed you. Here are the things which are really worth while and eternal. Here are the laws which give to life a meaning and to the universe a purpose. Here is God,

"That God which ever lives and loves,
One God, one law, one element,
And one far off divine event,
To which the whole creation moves."

Fellowship With Jesus Christ

The intent of evangelism is to bring the individual into a growing fellowship with Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Jesus is the radiant personality of human history, the eternal interpreter of God. When He walked in Galilee and Judea men learned of God through Him. That same personality has glowed through the ages. To know Jesus is to know God.

There can be nothing more sweet to a distressed soul than this fellowship with Jesus. To hear His words, "Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest," is the sure prophylactic for dementating fear. Fellowship with Jesus tempers the wind, lightens the mortgage, raises the eyes, strengthens the heart.

But this fellowship has its dangers. It is a two-edged sword, cutting both ways. This world is not an easy place for those who are willing to go the full way of Christian fellowship. The first disciples were accused of trying to upset the world. The logical conclusion of the spirit of the New Testament would raise havoc in the world today. One cannot fellowship with Jesus and look complacently upon a society debased and corrupted by selfish and materialistic ideas. It is dangerous to go the full way.

But it is more dangerous to know the mind of Christ and then refuse the full way fellowship. Our present world is the product of such inconsistency. To know Jesus, to catch a glimpse of His loves and passions, to appreciate His instinctive affection for right and His hatred of wrong is a wonderful thing. But to experience this and then to refuse complete fellowship is a tragedy. Evangelism goes the full way.

Combines Moral and Spiritual Passions

The way of human progress is difficult. Political and social reform movements without religious inspiration are short lived. On the other hand, religion without social emphasis is impotent. If a spiritual emphasis can be born which will capitalize the discontents and hatreds of the world turning negatives to positives, transforming bitterness into constructive programs, the Kingdom of God will not be long delayed.

Evangelism means all this.

William H. Leach.

(Church Management.)

A PROPOSED CODE FOR OUR CHURCH MEMBERS

Believing — that National Recovery is dependent upon the moral and religious forces in the hearts of the citizens, we propose a national recovery in all of our churches by agreeing to the following code:—

1.—We agree to work not less than three hours a week in cultivating the right spirit of living for God and the church, in our own lives as well as others.

2.—We agree to be present at all the public meetings of the church as a maximum; the minimum to be at least two services a week, primarily the Sunday morning worship service and Sunday School.

3.—We agree to support the church with our share of money, the minimum to be one-tenth of what we have to spend and the maximum to be based on our sacrificial love for the church.

4.—We agree to assist every member of our family to be at church every Sunday—especially the children.

5.—We agree that children should not be sent to church and Sunday School, but should be accompanied by the adult members of the family.

6.—We agree to share our faith with others in the community, endeavoring to get others to church with us.

7.—We agree to exalt God and the Golden Rule in all of our transactions.

8.—We agree to be loyal to and support the program of the leaders of the church.

9.—We agree to refrain from engaging in any activity or organization that has a detrimental influence on the work of the church.

10.—We agree to pray for and seek to sustain our Government of these United States.

11.—(Save this for future reference.)

"WHATEVER YOUR THEOLOGY"

Religion is extraordinarily popular now; it is "on the map" in the daily newspapers, the secular magazines of immense circulation, and in the most widely read books and "best sellers." But under the name "religion" we find creeds and teachings as far apart as the poles. There is a religion to suit every taste. Even under the name of Christianity there are widely differing teachings; men talk about Christ more generally than ever before, but the word means entirely different characters or concepts to different individuals or schools. And with all this there is a strangely small number of old-fashioned believers who take the Bible for what it claims to be, literally and inerrantly the Word of God; and who believe in the Christ of the New Testament as the only begotten Son of God, the only Savior of sinners.

One is reminded of these facts by recent printed letters sent out by Roger W. Babson, the business statistician of international reputation. Babson has done a vast amount of good in the world of finance and economics. His diagnoses are remarkably accurate, based on painstaking investigation and study; his counsel is sane and wholesome; and for many years he has thrown his large influence on the side of religion as a vital asset in individual and national life.

In a recent letter published in The Globe, Babson stressed the need for spiritual qualities in grappling with present-day business conditions. Early in the autumn, speaking in New York City before a meeting of national leaders of the Young Men's Christian Associations, he said: "Business depressions are caused by dissipation, dishonesty, disobedience to God's will —a general collapse of moral character. Statistics show this plainly. With equal precision, they show how business depressions are cured. They are cured by moral awakening, spiritual revival, and rehabilitation of righteousness." Here is a courageous message that should be welcomed on every hand.

Another fine word from this keen student of current conditions called attention to the fact that the "new generation has felt sufficient in itself. Sabbath schools and churches have been neglected, family prayers have been given up, and Sunday has been made a common holiday." The conclusion drawn is that "a large percentage of the people now unemployed, or losing money in business, have no faith upon which to fall back."

But along with these true and unusual words from a business leader, Babson says things that are a disappointment to Christian people, and that necessarily shake confidence in his spiritual discernment. In another recent letter he calls upon business men to exercise faith and recognize the vital place of spiritual power, and he says:

"Whatever your theology may be, or even if you discard all theology, you surely believe in Spiritual Power and that such power has great possibilities. Throughout all the ages God has been the symbol of such power, whether through the worship of idols, or of saints, or of nature."

As to spiritual power, he says we know no more than scientists know about electricity, but as we use one, so we can use the other. If only we will have faith in the spiritual power which, he says, "so many millions of people call 'God,'" and if we will direct our life toward better things, and pray for guidance in business, then sooner or later this spiritual power will come. "You will find yourself to be a new man—with new ideas and fresh energy."

Business men and others who take these statements from Babson as describing a sure pathway to spiritual power and blessing are doomed to disappointment and defeat. Set alongside the real truth, as revealed in the Word of God, they are seen not only to fall lamentably short of the divine wisdom, but to be in sharp contradiction of that Word. The Bible offers no help or hope to men "whatever your theology may be, or even if you discard all theology." The theology of the Scriptures is crystal clear, and so plain and simple that children and the common people can understand it, while it also satisfies the ablest intellects of mature men.

Thus the Bible shows plainly that men never can worship God through the worship of idols, or of saints, or of nature. Warning the Christians at Corinth against worshiping idols, the apostle Paul writes by inspiration: "The things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils, and not to God. . . . Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of devils." When even the apostle John on Patmos, receiving the Revelation, mistakenly "fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which shewed me these things, that angel instantly forbade this worship, saying: "For I am thy fellowservant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this Book: worship God." And nature-worship is unsparingly condemned as the practice of those "who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshiped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed for ever."

There is only one way to have spiritual power, and that is by the personal acceptance of Jesus Christ as one's Savior and Lord, who alone can give men the great gift of the Holy Spirit, the source of all spiritual power. "No man cometh unto the Father," said Christ, but by Me." And "ye shall receive power," He promised the disciples, "after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."

Business men and all the rest of us need to be strengthened, refreshed, given spiritual power to meet and solve the critical problems of today. But there is only one way to "find yourself to be a new man." "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."—Selected from "Toronto Globe" by A. C. Kolb. (Gospel Herald.)

CORRESPONDENCE

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. Mrs. C. A. Stoltz was hostess to the Berean class Thursday, November 22.

Rev. and Mrs. Salzman, J. C. Troyer, and E. E. Hartzler attended a special delegates' meeting at the Normal Mennonite Church, Tuesday, November 22.

Sunday, November 25th, the pipe organ which was installed in the church was dedicated. An all day service was held which was largely attended. At the morning service Rev. P. E. Whitmer of Bluffton, Ohio, delivered the message. A special number of music was rendered by Mrs. Wagner of Ligonier. Ten members were received into the church by letter. A fellowship dinner was served in the basement of the church at noon. In the afternoon there was pipe organ music by Miss Martha Hutchinson of Ligonier, and also other special music. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by Rev. Whitmer. In the evening a musical program was given and also an explanation of the pipe organ was given by Miss Hutchinson.

Mrs. Ira Hostetler is able to attend services again after recovering sufficiently from injuries received in an automobile accident.

Miss Cassie Yoder is able to attend services again after having been confined for some time by injuries from a fall.

Ephraim Plank and Paul Kohl, students of Bluffton College, spent Thanksgiving vacation at their homes.

Sunday evening, December 2, a missionary program was given, led by Miss Clara Bohn. Songs and recitations and a playlet, "The Five Little Dollars" were given by the primary department and talks and readings were given by others of the Sunday School.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, December 6, with Mrs. Earl Neufer. Sewing was done for the African mission and also quilting was done.

Sunday evening, December 9, a worship service, "The Christian Adventure," was given. The program consisted of special music and worship service and a drama by the Crusader's class, "The Far Country," directed by Miss Martha Lantz.

Upland, California, November 24, 1934. The Mennonite churches of Los Angeles and Upland are looking forward with great anticipation to the convening of the General Conference in this community the coming year. A committee representing the two churches is laying plans for the convenience and comfort of the many guests who, we hope, will honor us with their presence.

Several days ago a committee selected a very attractive site in the San Bernardino mountains for holding the Young People's Retreat in 1935. It is a two hours' drive from here high up in the mountains, beside a clear lake sparkling among fine forests.

The Upland church has been carrying an indebtedness of several thousand dollars ever since its dedication nine years ago. At a Brotherhood meeting two weeks ago it was decided that this debt must be paid before conference. Enough money has been raised to pay off the debt and to take the church into the new year with a clean slate.

Under the able leadership of L. J. Horsch a young people's class is studying Bible history. Another class meets weekly in the study of Mennonite history. Our pastor directs the study of this class, thus assuring good work.

On October 14, our church celebrated its Annual Harvest and Home-Coming Day. Communion service was observed in the forenoon. At noon there was a basket dinner with a lengthy social hour. In the afternoon there was a short memorial service in honor of those who have passed on. This was followed by a service of song, intersperced by several addresses. In the evening Dr. I. T. Hoover of Laverne College gave an able address on "Crises in the Life of Christ — and in Ours."

At the close of the Sunday School session Sunday mornings all classes gather in the auditorium and there is generally music by primaries or intermediates, followed by a sermonette for the children, the morning service following without a break—the children retiring during a song by the audience.

On Sunday morning, November 25, nine new members were received into the church and on the evening of the same day the Ladies' Missionary Society rendered their annual missionary program. A song service was followed by an exceptionally fine missionary talk by Mrs. Harlan Brooks of LaVerne. Professor and Mrs. Brooks are home on furlough after many years of missionary work in India.

Union Thanksgiving services of the five churches of our city will be held in the Brethren-in-Christ church this week. The address will be given by Rev. J. T. Handtler of the Nazarene church. Rev. Handtler is a hearty young Russian refugee. At risk of his life he succeeded in escaping from the land of his birth.

On December 9, our church will observe the four hundredth anniversary of Luther's translation of the Bible. Appropriate services will be held both morning and evening. Many copies of old Bibles and manuscripts will be on display in the church lobby.

A chorus of 75 voices will render the Messiah concert in this church on the afternoon of December 16. J. C. M.

Wayland, Iowa, November 11, 1934. Dear Readers:— September 30, we had our Rally Day, at which time our children gave an interesting program of recitations, Scripture passages, and songs. Several classes had a perfect attendance that day.

On the same day consecration of children took place, at which time two small children were consecrated.

In the afternoon several from our Sunday School attended the District Sunday School Convention at Olds. Three addresses were given.

On October 2, Rev. Kaufman, president of Hesston College, Hesston, Kansas, spoke to our student body at the High School on "This one thing I do."

October 7-14, Rev. P. E. Whitmer, Pandora, Ohio, was in our church. His general theme was "The Gospel in Christ's Parables." Sunday, October 7, at 11:00 A. M., he spoke on "The Responsibility of Hearing," 7:30 P. M., "Whence Comes Evil"? Monday, October 8, 7:30 P. M.: "Religious Pride and Humility." Tuesday, October 9, 7:30 P. M.: "Much Goods." Wednesday, October 10, 7:30 P. M.: "True Neighborliness." Thursday, October 11, 7:30 P. M.: "The Two Brothers." Friday, October 12, 7:30 P. M.: "Religious Preparedness." Sunday, October 14, 11:00 A. M.: "Abiding in Christ"; 7:30 P. M.: "The Last Judgment." We are thankful to our Heavenly Father for these meetings. The weather during the entire week was most ideal. The attendance was very good, increasing to the very end. The last evening some had to stand. We shall always welcome Rev. Whitmer into our midst.

On October 9, Rev. Whitmer spoke to our High School students on the subject "Dependability," driving home his point by means of illustrations.

October 21, Rev. Basinger preached a sermon preparatory to communion, of which we partook October 28. A goodly number were present.

By the time this will be in print we will be nearing Christmas. May I then wish you all a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year!

Yours in His service,
Mrs. Selma C. Sommer.

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yoder of Peoria, who are preparing to sail for Africa in January, spoke during the church hour Sunday morning, November 25, telling of the work they have chosen in the Congo mission field.

Members of the Christian Endeavor Society entertained the Sunday School at a house party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kauffman, Tuesday evening, November 28.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Donelson and their two youngest sons visited Fred, Jr., who is in a school of telegraphy in Chillicothe, Mo.

Mrs. Albert Luke of Chicago spent the weekend of December 1 at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Litwiller.

Communion services were held Sunday morning, November 11, in charge of the pastor, Rev. Hostetler.

A daughter, Corrine Joanne, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Litwiller of Peoria, November 20.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

THE HAMMER AND THE ANVIL

"Last eve I paused beside a blacksmith's door,
And heard the anvil ring the vesper chime;
Then looking in I saw upon the floor
Old hammers, worn with beating years of time.

" 'How many anvils have you had,' said I,
'To wear and batter all these hammers so'?
'Just one,' he answered, then with twinkling eye:
'The anvil wears the hammers out, you know.'

"And so, I thought, the anvil of God's Word
For ages skeptic's blows have beat upon
Yet, though the noise of falling blows was heard,
The anvil is unworn — the hammers gone."

ANNOUNCEMENT

With this issue we are announcing a change in the personnel of our Young People's editing staff. During these months when the Mennonite and The Christian Evangel have been united into one church paper, Mrs. Roy Yoder has done commendable work as editor of the Intermediate Workshop. We are sorry to see her relinquish these duties, for she did her work in an able manner. Many have learned to love her because of her contributions. So as she journeys on her mission of love and service to Africa, all of her many friends wish her God-speed and much joy in the Master's work. We hope she will remember these pages from time to time with some missionary letters to us.

The work will, however, continue. Mrs. Homer McCowan has been procured to take the place of Mrs. Yoder. We can rest assured that the suggestions and inspirational articles will be of the same high standard as they have been in the past. Give her your prayers and loyal cooperation.

This life is short, 'twill soon be past,
What's done for Jesus, that will last.

THE BIBLE

Titles

The word BIBLE is the title of the books the Old and New Testaments, but is not foun earlier than the fifth century of our era. T priests had charge of the manuscripts used the synagogues, and afterwards in the churc es, who spoke of them as "THE BOOKS hence the Greek word for BOOK (biblos) b came the title of the entire collection of book In other words, THE Book is the Bible.

In the New Testament the Bible is call "The Scripture" (Acts 8:32; Gal. 3:2 II Tim. 3:16; Jas. 4:5), also "The Scripture (Matt. 21:42; Luke 24:27), and "The Ho Scriptures" (II Tim. 3:15).

The Old Testament is called "The La (Matt. 5:17; I Cor. 14:21); "Moses and t Prophets" (Luke 16:31).

In Heb. 7:22; 8:6; 9:15 is the distincti between the Old and the New Covenant. T former applied to the Old Testament and t latter to the Christian Scriptures. The Lat "Testamentum" is the equivalent of "Cov nant" and this term came into use.

The Scriptures are also called "The Word God" (Luke 5:1; Acts 4:31; 8:14; 13: 16:6).

(To be continued.)

A REMOVER

An Exchange says: "Alcohol will remo stains from summer clothes." Yes, it will that. It will also remove:

The summer clothes,
The winter clothes,
The spring clothes,
The fall clothes,

The furniture from the house,
The rugs from the floors,
The food from the cupboard,
The lining from the stomach,
The kidneys from the back,
The hair from the head,
The sight from the eye,
The brain from the head.

Yes, alcohol will also remove:

A good reputation,
A good many respectable friends,
A happy home and family,
And an otherwise valuable man from God.
Surely, as a remover, alcohol has no equal.
—Albert F. Prieger.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

December 30, 1934

How To Make Our Dreams Come True

Genesis 37:5-11

Old men dream dreams of the past, but young men and women, too, dream their dreams of the future. Young people dream about their future life-mates, their vocation, their successes, and their financial balance saved for old age. It is a fine thing for a man or a woman to dream dreams and have visions, providing they are wholesome and of such a nature that they do not obstruct God's plan for life.

In our Scripture portion we have a very inspiring picture of a youth who dared to dream his dreams, he was looking ahead. Already as a boy when walking the narrow lanes of Palestine watching his father's sheep he was not satisfied to merely have enough to eat as is the case of the four-footed hog (and sometimes the two-footed also). He was very unfortunate in living in a day of polygamy and being the only son of the most beloved wife of Jacob. Jealousy arose because this "father's pet" was given a coat of many colors. The older brothers were simply biding their time when they could get rid of this dreamer.

After some days the father sent Joseph to the Plain of Dothan to get word from the brothers. This was their opportunity, no one would ever find out, so far away from home, what was done to this owner of the coat of many colors. After having thrown him into a pit, one of the more commercially minded brothers decided there would be more profit in selling him as a slave to Egypt.

While in Egypt, Joseph determined to keep looking ahead, he proved himself the best possible kind of a slave, and when he was severely tempted by Potiphar's wife, he fled, he refused to plead his case, he again proved himself an ideal prisoner and soon found himself in the position of High Food Commissioner of all Egypt, next in power to King Pharaoh himself. Verily, the man who dares to trust in God and never is tempted to sell his long future for a brief moment of so-called pleasure, if he ever looks ahead trusting that God is a just God and that all will work itself out right in the end, he will invariably be the victor. "The anvil wears the hammers out, you know."

There are two other outstanding lessons here. The first is retribution. It seemed like a long way from the old home to the Plain of Dothan. They thought after selling Joseph, that would be the last. They forgot that sin always finds us out, it works as surely as the law of gravitation, be it in the Plain of Dothan, Philadelphia, Chicago, or Los Angeles. The young man who leaves home and goes to a distant city may think, "Now I can do as I please, nobody will know the difference." Yes, my friend, YOU will know, God knows, and just as surely as you do any wrong it will bear its fruit and your sin will be proclaimed from the housetops. The other lesson is that of forgiveness. Joseph graciously forgave. We all need forgiveness. Thank God that there is a second chance in store for us. But let us never forget that there is retribution not only for individuals, but also for communities and nations who choose to live selfishly, they cannot succeed thus.

Questions

1. What is the value of dreams in the life of youth?
2. What are some worthy ideals which might be dreamed about?
3. How much patience should be manifested in realizing our dreams?
4. What shall we do if our dreams conflict with God's plans for us?
5. How can a closer walk with Christ help us in realizing our dreams?
6. What are some of the outstanding lessons to be learned from Joseph, the dreamer?

January 6, 1935

What Do I Know About God?

Psalm 89:1-34; I John 4:16

(Consecration Meeting)

Happy New Year! May all of us be worthy of a blessed and a Christ-inspired life in the year 1935. God will indeed bless us richly if we are worthy. He desires that we have the best gifts, but if we will not appreciate them then it would not be kindness to give them.

This is a consecration service, it is quite fitting that it should be so. Most of us need to reconsecrate ourselves again and again. I do not mean that we should expect conversion experiences time after time, but it is well to renew our loyalty and allegiance to our Christ. What better topic could have been chosen than to begin this year at rock bottom and meditate upon God. "In the beginning God," those are four of the most meaningful words in our Bible. He is not only the Creator of all life, but He is also the Pilot, the Guide, and Sustainer of all that has life.

It is usually thought that the 89th Psalm was written when the Jewish Kingdom and its king had fallen very low before its enemies. The Psalmist is thinking of the promises which God had made to David and are now failing to be fulfilled. Either one of two things must come to pass, either God must vindicate His faithfulness or Israel must turn about face in her relationship to Him. Considerable mention is herein made of worship, and honor which is due God because He is kind and merciful, but He is also just and righteous.

In the average individual the drawing power of love is more powerful than the driving power of fear, but in these past years we have perhaps so emphasized the loving kindness of God that we have made Him sentimental. We have not stressed sufficiently the justice and righteousness of God. He demands that individuals as well as nations live on a high ethical plane with lofty ideals, motivated by the desire to live unselfishly and vicariously as did Jesus, remembering ever that the twin virtues of justice and righteousness will long outlive greed and all forms of selfishness.

It remained for Jesus to bring the highest revelation of God, when He portrayed Him as a Father, abounding in love toward all those who will choose to be His loving children. And thus the Apostle John reasons that a loving God demands that His earthly children should perr ate the spirit of love toward all their fell men. He says: "And we have known and lieved the love that God hath to us. God love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth God and in him."

Questions

1. Why is New Year a good time for consec tion to God and His service?
2. What aspects of God do you honor most?
3. How can we know anything about God?
4. What can we know about God?
5. In what realms of life is God most evid today; in history or in personal experience
6. How should a fuller knowledge of God aff our manner of living?
7. What lessons can nations learn by getti closer to God?
8. What are some of the truths concerni God which are revealed by Jesus Christ?
9. In what ways will you give God a bet chance at your life this coming year th you have ever done before?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Roy Yoder, 1300 Bond Ave., Peoria, Il

December 30, 1934

How Can We Make Our Dreams Come True

Eccles. 9:10a

"Do More Than Your Share"

Pre-Prayer

Meet Christ in prayer before the C. E. me ing and you'll know His presence througho the service.

Searchlights of truths from the Scripture

Lesson on the Topic

Doing things with the hands suggests sk skill calls for practice; practice means ha work.

Do your work earnestly, putting yourself to it and doing your very best.

Do not put off the thing that you ought a must do. Do it now, heartily, with all yo might. "Whatsoever ye do, do ALL to t glory of God."

"The night cometh," said Jesus, "when man can work." John 9:4. Make use of eve chance to serve Him, lest your time be wast for eternity.

Dreams are Ambitions

By dreams we do not mean dreams in sleep, it waking dreams, or imagination at work or inking of things you would like to achieve. o one accomplishes anything without imagina-on. — Dreams coming true are goals for life.

Imagination gets a man nowhere if he just reams and that's all. We need "will" that ads us to work out our goals or ambitions for fe.

If a dream is to become true it must be a ream in line with the will of God.

Dreams must be dreamed with and in God.

Mrs. Homer McCowan, 402 Leland St.,
Bloomington, Ill.

January 6, 1935

Topic.—Simple Rules for a Happy Life

Eph. 4:22-32
(Consecration Service)

Happiness has been defined as the result of armonious powers, steadily bent on pursuits hat seek a worthy end. It is not the lazy ıan's dower, nor the sensualist's privilege. It s reserved for the worker and can never be rasped and held save by true manhood and omanhood.

Pre-Prayer Service

Rules for a Happy Life.—The perfect human ife may be compared to a grand concert, herein the chief parts are taken by a great rgan and a fine quartet. The bass voice we all the BODY, the tenor—the MIND, the alto —the HEART, and the soprano—the SOUL. he organ is Environment, the player is Civili-ation, and the leader of the choir is the over-rooding Spirit.

It is the work of the organ to accompany,— ot to lead. When we allow external forces to arry a tune of their own caprice, the result is medley of deafening discordant sound. The ne supreme cause of unhappiness is our fail-re to make the world be still while we hearken o ourselves.

The melody of life was meant for SOUL to voice, and when MIND, HEART and BODY assumes to take the place of SOUL, the melody is in the wrong part. The problem of happiness is to train the MIND, HEART and BODY to vibrate with the SOUL.

I. Happiness of BODY—found by going back to Nature.
  1. Eat simply and rationally.
  2. Learn to relax.
  3. Stand straight and breathe to the bottom of your lungs.
  4. Hit the game harder. Mental resolution to win at all hazards.
  5. Work up a good sweat.
  6. Laugh at the weather.
  7. Ponder on the habits of animals. They know how to live, being taught by nature. Humans do not, having deserted nature.
  8. Revel in the earth, air, water and sun.

II. Happiness of HEART is measured by how fully we can love, asking no return and thinking not to possess.
  1. Refuse to be disappointed. Whatever happens might have been worse.
  2. Have a "good cry."
  3. Share somebody's troubles—it scatters our own.
  4. Confess your faults.
  5. Count your "mercies."
  6. Cultivate a healthy sense of humor.
  7. Form a habit of anonymous giving.
  8. Keep busy.

III. Happiness of MIND—accrues chiefly from independent thinking. Following may help.
  1. Discredit public opinion. A wrong idea that we own is better than a right one that is borrowed. The world crucified Jesus.
  2. Get an ambition that spans earth and sky.
  3. Surround yourself with what you want to be.
  4. Master the art of concentration.
  5. Play fair. Not honesty alone, but our feeling toward the other fellow.
  6. Balance employment and amusement.
  7. Do something different.
  8. Study the teachings of other nations.

IV. Happiness of SOUL is found by going on to God. This larger vision may come through sorrow, meditation, self-sacrifice, worship, love or any other crisis of experience that lifts us momentarily from the tangled mesh of human relationships. SOUL'S first mandate is—Enjoy all things more. Enjoy pain, privation, sorrow, failure, misunderstanding, and martyrdom. How do these help us?

Happiness, in the end, is to reject happiness and to live or die for truth. Those who seek happiness never find it, for it can only be found in the line of duty, no matter where the way leads. SOUL finds happiness in two ways, namely, by seeing with infinite clearness; then doing with infinite strength.

Three main enemies to happiness are hurry, worry, and debt.

Many who have gained distinction have declared that the happiest period of their lives was when they were struggling with poverty and working with all their might to raise themselves above it.

Questions

1. What is happiness?
2. Why is happiness found wanting today?
3. How can we achieve happiness?
4. Would happiness for one person be happiness for another?
5. What are some other enemies to happiness?
6. Is unhappiness caused by someone else or by my ownself?
7. Can a person find happiness in an ordinary career? What do Jesus' teachings teach?
8. What can you do to increase your own inner happiness?

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 So. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

The Junior Pledge

"I Will Live A Christian Life"

How many Junior boys and girls have really stopped to think, when they repeat their Junior pledge, "I will live a Christian life," how much they are promising their Lord? Let us consider some of the things you are promising your Lord when you repeat that single phrase.

When Christ was here on earth He gave us a perfect example of how we should live. If I live a Christian life I must shape my life after His pattern. What were some of His principles?

Christ told us that the greatest thing on earth is love. He loved us so much that He gave His life for us that we might have life eternal. If I live a Christian life I will love my Lord and love my enemies as well as my friends, for we read in His word that Christ died for the wicked.

I will be unselfish. I will give Christ first place in my life, others second place, and myself last.

I will give Him my best of my talents, se vice, time, and money.

If I live a Christian life I will be true— tr to my Lord, my parents, and my friends.

I will be pure in mind and pure in body, fc my body is the temple of the living God and must not abuse it in any way.

If I live a Christian life I will have faith. will call on Him in time of trouble, for we rea in the Bible, "All things work together fc good to them that love the Lord."

I will be forgiving — forgiving others eve as Christ has forgiven me.

If I live a Christian life I will be happy. A Junior boys and girls want to be happy abov all else. Christ said there was only one way t true happiness. He said, "I am the Way." will be like a sunbeam and scatter sunshin wherever I go.

If I am a Christian I will share this happ ness with others. I will tell others about Hi so that they might also know this happiness.

Last of all, a Christian life promises lif eternal.

As a Junior I promise my Lord all thes things. I promise I will live this Christian lif at home, at school, and at play; every day c the week as well as on Sunday. No matter wher I am or what I am doing I want others to kno that Christ is living within me and that "Fo me to live is Christ."

Edith Kohfeld, Reedley, Calif.

December 30, 1934

Topic.—How Can I Make Next Year Better Than Last?

I Cor. 15:5-8

I wonder if you have ever seen a midget o dwarf? Some of these little people never ge any larger than you were when you went int the Beginners' class in Sunday School. The grow older each year, but their bodies do no grow. If you should suddenly stop growin when real small your parents would be greatl worried. It would seem sad, yet we have a seen people who grow to full size yet do no grow any better from year to year. This i much more sad. In II Peter 3:18 we are tol to grow in grace and in the knowledge of ou Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. As we must ea good food if our bodies are to grow, so we mus feed our minds rightly if we are to becom ronger Christians each year. I Peter 2:2 lls us that the Word of God, the Bible, is hat will make us grow as Christians. Are ou a better Christian than you were last New ear's Day? Do you know more of the Bible? r are you a Christian at all? If you are not, o let Jesus come into your heart right now hat you may start the New Year with Him. hen take time every day to read the Bible and pray. If you are tempted to neglect that, hink of the midget whose body can not grow. ou don't want to be a dwarfed Christian, and hat is just what will happen if you do not read he Word even though your body may be tall nd strong. On New Year's Day we seem to e standing on a landing. As we stop, we look ack over 1934 and forward into 1935. Rememering the mistakes of the old year should help s to improve in the new.

Plans for the Meeting

The new year is often spoken of as a blank age on which things good and bad will be writen. You might distribute blank sheets of paer in the meeting today. Ask the Juniors to vrite on these papers some things that should e a part of their year. A few are mentioned n the Daily Readings. Have the writing done fter a brief discussion of the topic, then gathr the papers and make a list of the most worth hile suggestions.

Questions

1. How may I grow as a Christian in 1935?
2. Why should we wish to be growing Christians?
3. How can we make 1935 a better year in our society?
4. Mention some things we should do for the church.
5. How may I be more helpful at home next year?

Daily Readings

Better understanding. Ps. 119:33, 34.
More faith. Luke 17:5, 6.
More love. I Thess. 3:12.
More willingness to work. I Cor. 3:9.
More unselfishness. I Thess. 5:14, 15.
More joy. I Thess. 5:16.

January 6, 1935

Topic.—God's Wonder Book: What It Tells Us About Obedience

Matt. 21:28-32

(Consecration Meeting)

"Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice." Do you remember who said this, and when? You will find it in I Sam. 15. King Saul, the first king of Israel, had disobeyed. He had been sent by God to destroy everything belonging to a certain wicked king. Instead of doing that, King Saul had saved some of the best of the sheep and cattle for himself. When God sent His prophet Samuel to speak to Saul about it, Saul pretended that his people had kept these animals to sacrifice to God. God knew this was not true and even if it had been, Saul could not have been excused because he had disobeyed God. Saul had to be punished even as disobedience must always be punished. The Bible teaches that we must obey God. Whatever He says we should do. Not only are those punished who disobey, but they are not truly happy.

The Bible teaches too, that children shall obey their parents. How many of us are sometimes like King Saul? We think that we know better or that we have a right to do as we please. Are you really happy when disobeying father or mother? Of course not! We should be glad to obey them both because God wants us to (and we do want to please Him) and because our parents have lived much longer than we and know best. As you grow older you will always be happy to know that you have tried to please your parents.

Plans for the Meeting

During January and February we continue with the theme "God's Wonder Book" at six of the meetings. The best way to know what the Bible teaches on any subject is to study the Book itself, therefore much time should be devoted to finding Scripture on these topics. Speak of men and women of the Bible who obeyed God and of others who disobeyed and notice the result in each case. With the help of a concordance, have the Juniors find verses containing the words obey, obedience, etc.

Questions

1. What does the Bible teach about obedience to parents?
2. Does God expect us to obey our teachers? Heb. 13:17.
3. Why is it very important that we obey God?
4. How was Christ an example of obedience?
5. What are some rewards of obedience?

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

December 23, 1934

The Christian Home
(Christmas Lesson)

Lesson Text.—Luke 2:8-19; Eph. 6:1-4

Golden Text.—Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. Luke 2:14.

The time has again come to remind us that we should meditate on the meaning of Christmas. Some one has suggested that to entirely too many of us Christmas is spelled Xmas instead of Christmas. Not that the spelling makes any difference, but it is an index of our busy, hurried lives where Christ becomes an X that is an unknown quantity in our Christmas celebration.

Our Sunday School lesson calls our attention to two great truths of Christianity, one that Jesus came into the world as a babe, the second the importance of the Christian home in our present-day civilization.

Let us face clearly this matter of Jesus' birth. It is very significant that God sent His Son into the world not by CREATION, but by generation. Granting that Jesus' birth is a miracle, then God could have brought Him into the world as a full fledged man, ready for His life mission. That is, God could have so created Him. But He sent His on into the world by generation, through a mother. Jesus was born as a dependent, helpless babe and needed the nurture and care of godly parents, so He could grow and develop physically, mentally, socially, and even religiously. Jesus spent thirty years of His life in preparation for His three years' ministry. God's plan of sending His Son in this way was a great venture. He risked to have His Son come as the son of a carpenter's wife and risk the dangers of disease, accidents, and all other dangers that confront an individual in the world. Yet this was God's great adventure for man. Its wisdom we today very well know. It elevated the position of woman from a chattel of man to a position of equality, that is a helpmeet for him. It also placed a great value on personality and gave the child its proper place in the life of society.

The family biologically and religiously orig inated for the purpose of caring for and pro tecting the child. The home grew out of thi biological necessity. The infant has the long est period of infancy of any of God's creation This is true because of the nature of huma life. The home is established primarily for th care of children. Psychologists tell us that th first three years determine very largely the lif of the individual. These years are spent in home. Here in the home we have in embryoni form the activities of society. Here the chil first learns the lessons of care of body, thrif feeding of his mind, his attitude towards oth ers and his relationship to God, which are s essential to an efficient Christian citizen. "Chi dren obey your parents in the Lord," becaus here you learn your first lessons of respect fo authority and obedience, which are so essentia in a democracy. Parents provoke not your chil dren to wrath because their lives are plastic and habits formed and lessons learned will nev er be forgotten. How often we as parents for get that our attitude towards church, school and the neighbors determines the attitudes o our children towards these as they leave th parental roof and go out into life.

Why did God send His Son into the world as a babe?

What is the origin of Christmas historically

Have we made Christmas Christian or do we still observe it as a pagan festival?

How would you describe the Christmas spirit?

What is the relation of the child to the Kingdom of God?

December 30, 1934

Tests of a Christian

Lesson Text.—I John 5:1-12

Golden Text.—Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat loveth him also that is begotten of him. I John 5:1.

We have come to the last lesson for the year 1934. What an interesting series of lessons we have had, particularly this last quarter, where we have studied the Christian, who he is, what he does, and his relation to others.

Now as we come to this last lesson we are to consider the tests of a Christian life, that is, who after all is a Christian.

It is very confusing these days with two hundred and sixty-six denominations among Protestants, besides the many smaller sects and isms. And then also the large body of Christians who are called Catholics. Who is right? They all claim to follow the teachings of the Bible and be followers of Jesus. Is there a test by which the common man or woman may know that he or she is a Christian?

The name Christian was first applied to a group of people in Antioch, who were followers of the way. Christian was a name given to these by the world. The book of Acts quite often refers to such people as followers of the Way. In other words, a Christian is one who is a follower of Jesus. To follow Jesus does not mean to walk behind him a few rods or miles, but it means "arm in arm," a friendship, a fellowship, a life lived according to the way of the life of Jesus. Any ordinary man can read the teachings of Jesus even without commentaries or suggestions from schools of interpretation and understand Jesus' life and teachings sufficiently to become a follower of Him. Our lesson says the outstanding requirement is to have Jesus, that is to have faith in Him. Jesus in all of His ministry was deeply concerned that His disciples should have faith in Him and in His Father. This faith was to be a living trust so that life became dependent on Him. This kind of a faith produces life. "I am come that they may have life and have it more abundantly." This faith produces joy. "That my joy may be in you." It also produces fruit. The final test, therefore, is to be found in life itself. A life which is God-conscious, and spiritualized so that every thought, attitude, desire, motive, and deed shall be Christlike. No individual, regardless of loud claims and the parading of his theology is Christian when life is militant, pharisaically proud, ugly in attitude towards others, and exclusive in his views as to who is saved. The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, and peace. The writer of these Sunday School Lessons wishes all his readers a truly Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. May God bless you one and all!

What is the first essential for a Christian?

What is the relation of love to God's commandments?

How can we make this year's Sunday School lessons the most practical?

What is the relation of faith to conduct?

WORKING OR BUILDING

With the reorganization of our church work for the fall and winter many of us have been called upon to assume responsibility as workers in one capacity or another. Some have accepted the task laid upon them from a sense of duty. Some perhaps because they were pressed into it, "there just wasn't anyone else to take it." Some from a genuine love for the work. But whatever the motive for accepting the responsibility, the joy you get out of it will depend much upon your vision of the purpose of it all.

Two men working at the same job were accosted one day by a passerby and asked what they were doing. The first one looked up, disgruntled at being interrupted in his work, and replied, "Laying brick to make a living," and with that resumed his work. The stranger passed on to the second one and again inquired. "And what are you doing"? His face lighted up and with animated voice he replied, "We are building a cathedral."

Paul says, "With good will doing service as to the Lord, and not to men." He was speaking of the labor of a servant for his earthly master. How much more should our work for the church be "as unto the Lord." Your refusal or acceptance of a task is to Him and not to men. Your enthusiasm and faithfulness is for His cause. Are you merely teaching a class, singing in somebody's choir, serving on a committee, or are you BUILDING the KINGDOM of GOD in human hearts?

—Emma Ruth.

FAITH

By Hugh O. Isbell

Religion is of faith indeed,
In God and life and Jesus Christ—
I wrote my name unto this creed,
And still my need went unsufficed.

But when I turned aside from prayer
To make another's need my own,
Lo! Christ and God were standing there,
And Faith stood up in flesh and bone.

—The Christian Century, Chicago.

JOTTINGS

The fifth meeting of the Woman's Missionary Societies of the Western District Conference was held in the First Church, Newton, Kansas, immediately following the meeting of the Conference. Mrs. I. C. Regier presided. Music was furnished by several of the choruses of the churches represented and other sisters participated in various ways. Miss Linda Brown spoke on "Present Conditions in China" giving consideration to the educational, medical and evangelistic phases of the work. Mrs. S. M. Musselman spoke on "Duties of the Woman at Home Toward Missions." A report of the work of the Bethel Hospital in Newton was given by Sister Marie Lorenz and Sister Anna Schmidt gave a report of the Bethesda Hospital at Goessel. The closing remarks and prayer were made by Mrs. G. A. Linscheid of Canton, Oklahoma. Officers elected were Mrs. Frank Klassen, chairman, Mrs. Gerhard Friesen, vice chairman, Mrs. Wm. Roth, secretary, and Mrs. Ruth Wedel, treasurer. The collection amounted to $79.05.

Rev. Benj. Ewert of Winnipeg, Manitoba, has recently gotten out a pamphlet of worth on the subject: "Auswanderungen und Ansiedlungen der Mennoniten." (Immigration and Colonization of Mennonites). In a concise essay he has set before the reader the story of the mass movements of the fathers of our churches with special emphasis upon those movements that led to the vast settlements of Mennonites in the United States and Canada.

The total receipts by the Treasurer of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference for October were: $1188.42. The total disbursements were: $988.50.

A local "Prince of Peace Contest" was held in the Trenton, Ohio, church, Rev. J. Amstutz, minister, on the evening of November 8. On November 4, eight young people were received into the membership of the Trenton church by the rite of baptism.

After attending service on his birthday in the Alexanderwohl, Kan., Church, the 82 year old father of the minister, Rev. P. H. Unruh was greeted with a house full of guests, who had called to pay their respects in the son's house.

We wish that every minister and church council might have the opportunity of seeing and examining a circular distributed to the membership of the Immanuel Church, Los Angeles, California. Rev. D. D. Eitzen, is the Pastor. It is an urge that members of the church support our publication interests with their patronage. There are 8 sections in which the periodicals and publications of the General Conference are described and their prices given and place is left for the signature of the one who wishes to subscribe for or purchase a publication. The circular would be worthy of distribution to every member of the General Conference and with slight changes to every member of the Central Conference.

Estimating within four miles the distance trave ed by three miniature railway trains in the Illino Central Century of Progress Exposition at Chicag Prof. Donald Bowman of Bluffton College, won 11,000 mile all expense rail tour.

The meetings conducted by Rev. P. R. Schroeder i the Goltry, Okla., church met with great apprecia tion in the shape of capacity audiences. Ten person made decisions for Christ at these meetings an were admitted to church membership throug baptism and one was received by letter.

Miss Susie Penner, who for some time was student at Bethel College left her home in Newto Kansas, on a journey to Paraguay, where she intend to meet her fiance, P. P. Hildebrand, from whom sh was separated for a number of years through th Bolshevik Revolution in Russia. Other members c her family have been scattered to various corner of the earth through this revolution.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, who has succeeded Rev Arthur Rosenberger as minister of the Swamp Pa charge, has located at 122 Juniper Street, Quakertown, Pennsylvania.

Pay Your Subscription Now!

SPECIAL OFFERS TO SUBSCRIBERS

Your own subscription for 1935........$1.50
And one new subscription........$1 50
And one of the following books
25 Years With God in India
(Regular Price $2.00 per copy)
or The Missionary Interest Among Mennonites
By Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman
(Regular Price $2.50 per copy)
} FREE
Postage on the book you select........25c

All for $3.25

N. B.—This offer is good only until January 1st, 1935

Combination Subscriptions

The Mennonite and the Christian Evangel
Der Christliche Bundesbote
Both for $2.50 per year

If you want the B. B. Kalender and the Mennonite Year Book add 20c and make a total remittance of $2.70.

Club Subscriptions

5 or more copies to one address at $1.20 per copy.

The Mennonite Book Concern
Berne, Indiana

It is a custom of the young people of the Second Church, Philadelphia, to distribute baskets of provisions to poor families on the evenings before Thanksgiving Day and Christmas. In their recent distribution they were generously supplied with provisions and contributions of money. A delightful factor that entered into this year's distribution was that a number of those who had been helped on other occasions, responded with substantial gifts of money. Not being so especially hard-up now they thought of those who were in situations they had good reason to remember.

Another sign of the aggressiveness of the Immanuel Church of Los Angeles appears in the shape of a silver seal used by members of the church to announce the coming 25th anniversary of the founding of the church. These stickers are attractively designed and we are sure will be noted by whoever receives a letter having one on the envelope. The seal reads: "25th Anniversary of Mennonites in Los Angeles, Aug. 10—11, 1935. Following General Conference—Upland. Immanuel Mennonite Church."

The Young People of the Eastern District Conference held a successful rally in the Zionville Pa., Mennonite Church. The attendance was good and the interest all that might be desired. The Rally was addressed by Rev. Lester Kriebel, pastor of the Palm, Pa., Schwenkfelder Church.

Rev. A. W. Geigley, minister of the Mennonite Church at Fairfield, Pa., was the guest preacher at the Mennonite Church at Bluffton, Ohio last Sunday. In the evening the Girl's Reserve had charge of the service.

Dietrich Neufeld, a graduate of Bluffton College and one of a number of young Russian Mennonites, who were educated in that institution and who later was a student in the Art School at Washington, has received recognition of his skill by the acceptance of one of his linoleum block prints by a New York magazine.

Rev. Hege of California conducted a series of meetings in the South Church, Freeman, South Dakota. Before moving to California some years ago, Rev. Hege was pastor of this congregation. The services were conducted in both the German and English languages.

The 1934-35 Catalogue of the Mennonite Book Concern has made its appearance in the form of a large 111 page pamphlet. Those of our readers who have not been so fortunate as to receive one, should apply to the Book Concern for a copy. The size of the Catalogue indicates the great variety of merchandise the Book Concern has to offer. As a matter of reasonable loyalty, members of the General Conference Churches should patronize this Book Concern.

I have been driven many times to my knees by the overwhelming conviction that I had nowhere else to go.—Abraham Lincoln.

TIDE OF THE YEARS

Robert Hare

Years come and pass, like the flowing tide,
But never a backward wave
Waits for tomorrow, with joy or with sorrow,
For freed-man, friend, or slave!

We dreamed long ago that the tide would stay,
Or wait at our fancies' will,
But with deeper hush, and swifter rush
It carries us onward still!

'Tis a wonderful stream, that tide of the years,
With its silver sheen and spray,
And still on its tide, to the ocean wide
It hurries our life away!

Across it I see the broken threads
Woven in friendship's chain,
And faded flowers, through weary hours,
All drifting on waves of pain!

O tide of the years bring back unto me
The faces now lost in your flow,
Bid memories sweet their story repeat,
While life winds softly blow!

I hear in the dash and murmur of waves
That break on the unseen shore,
The dreaded sigh of a last goodbye,
For the waves return no more!

SOME "DON'T EXPECT'S" FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS

Don't expect to serve the Lord as a Sunday School teacher unless He has called you into that work.

Don't expect to be an efficient teacher, if you have made no effort to acquire efficiency.

Don't expect to accomplish anything, if you consider the work of little importance.

Don't expect to teach the "smallest children," if you think they require the smallest talents and the least preparation.

Don't expect to teach the lesson unless you know it.

Don't expect a "Sunday morning glance" to brush off the whole week's dust from the lesson,—or your mind either.

Don't expect to teach the Word without being much in communion with the Author.

Don't expect a two-minute Sunday morning prayer to patch up a week of neglect.

Don't expect your class to be on time if you are not punctual.

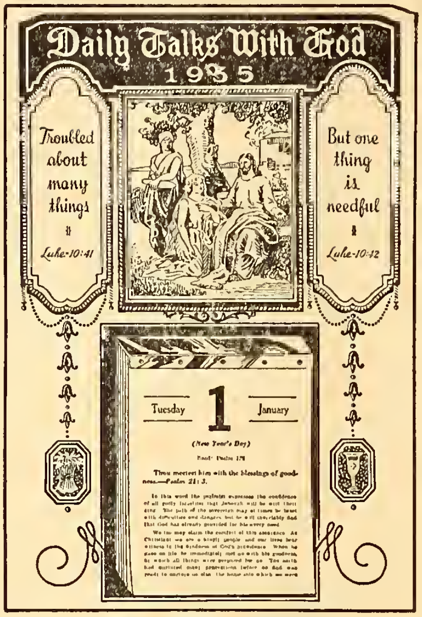
Don't expect your class to respond to the lesson if you have not.

Don't expect your pupils to be saved unless you make the way of salvation plain.

P. W. N., in Evangelical Beacon.

DAILY TALKS WITH GOD

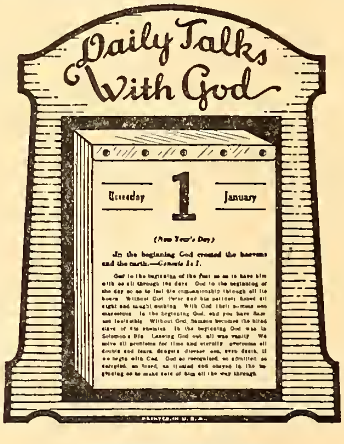
For 1935



Daily Talks With God
1935
Troubled about many things
Luke 10:41
But one thing is needful
Luke 10:42
Tuesday
1
January
(New Year's Day)

WALL STYLE

8½x12¾ inches. Printed in three colors, with beautiful, embossed Biblical pictures and scenes from the Holy Land.



Daily Talks With God
Tuesday
1
January
(New Year's Day)

EASEL STYLE

Size 6½x8 inches. Printed in colors. Easel cutout form designed for standing or hanging. Packed firmly in a very attractive gift box.

UNIQUE CALENDARS

Both "Wall and Easel" styles, with easily removable sheets that feature a Scripture Passage, Devotional Reading, Prayer and suggested Scripture Reading, for every day in the year.

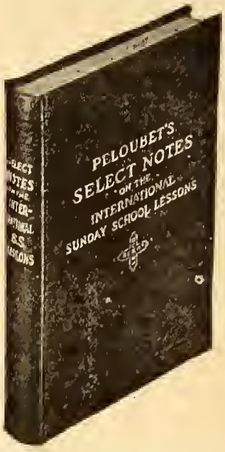
PRICES: Either "Wall" or "Easel" Style.
Per Dozen $5.76, postage extra

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO THE

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN

BERNE, INDIANA

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON COMMENTARIES FOR 1935



Peloubet's Select Notes on the International Sunday School Lessons

PELOUBET'S SELECT NOTES FOR 1935

61st Annual Volume

A Commentary on the International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By Wilbur M. Smith, D. D.

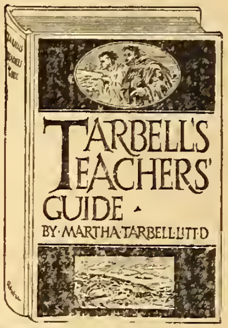
"Concise — fresh — stimulating. As valuable and complete a book as practice and knowledge can make it."

Price $1.90—postpaid, $2.00

TARBELL'S TEACHER'S GUIDE 1935

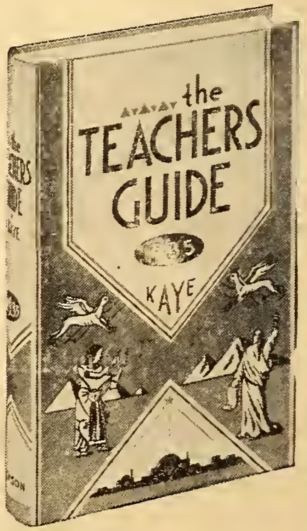
Martha Tarbell, Litt. D.

A striking new jacket by Oliver Whitwell Wilson is a feature of the 30th annual issue. All the well-known "advantages" are again in evidence verifying the claim of the Christian Advocate that "Tarbell's Excellence nearly Silences Competition."



Tarbell's Teachers' Guide
By Martha Tarbell Litt. D

Strongly Bound $1.90 (Postpaid $2.00)



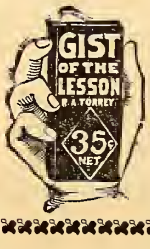
the Teachers Guide
1935
Kaye

THE TEACHER'S GUIDE FOR 1935

Edited by
Dr. James R. Kaye

A completely new and inspiring volume of helps for the Sunday School teacher. Nearly 400 pages.

Price $1.50 postpaid



Gist of the Lesson
R. A. Torrey
35c
Net

SNOWDEN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS for 1935..............$1.35
ARNOLD'S PRACTICAL S. S. LESSON COMMENTARY....$1.00
THE GIST OF THE LESSON for 1935 ....35c

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, JANUARY 1, 1935 No. 1

EDITORIAL

NEW YEAR'S GREETINGS

Welcome to the year 1935! We believe it will be filled with many opportunities and blessings. My New Year Resolution is contained in the following verses:

1935

I will start anew this morning with a higher, fairer creed;
I will cease to stand complaining of my ruthless neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit repining while my duty's call is clear,
I shall waste no moment whining, and my heart shall know no fear.

I shall not be swayed by envy when my rival's strength is shown;
I will not deny his merit, but I'll strive to prove my own;
I will try to see the beauty spread before me, rain or shine;
I will cease to preach your duty, and be more concerned with mine.

—Weaver.

OPPORTUNITIES OF 1935

You often hear people complain that they do not have the opportunity other people have. This is often true, but is due to the fact that they can not see them. Some of the most ordinary and unexpected happenings are our greatest opportunities.

A young man was one day listlessly walking down the street when he espied a large tent which looked to him like a circus tent. He went in and heard a man pray. This preacher prayed so long that the young man started out, when someone got up and said: "Let us have a hymn while our brother finishes his prayer." This interested the young man and he stayed and in that tent accepted Jesus Christ. This young man was Dr. Winfred Frenfell, the physician and missionary to Labrador. The preacher who prayed so long was D. L. Moody.

There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. But omitted, all the voyages of their life shall be spent in shallows and in miseries.

May we this new year enrich our lives and enlarge our service by accepting the opportunities as they come. —W.

AN APPEAL TO YOUTH

This is a day of great problems. Yet it presents the largest opportunities to youth that have been presented in any generation.

These problems of home, school, church, and nation may be looked upon as unsurmountable difficulties or as a challenge to manhood and womanhood. Christian Gauss in the American for May 1934 presents a challenge as follows:

"We need desperately a new system of education, a more vital religion, new forms of government, new uses for leisure, and new ways of living. In all of these tasks, every young man can cooperate, no matter what his job. The first step is to pick out one of these fields of reconstruction, focus your energy and interest, avoid the mistake so many of your elders make —build your life around your work and not around money. The promise is so rich that if you will stake out such a claim, your elders will say to you as Emerson said to the young Walt Whitman, 'I salute you on the threshold of a great career.'"

This advice of Christian Gauss is very timely. Too long have we worshipped at the shrine of false gods, money, production, nationalism, pleasure and careless thinking. We need for the year of 1935 to see the goal of life clearly from the beginning. —W.

THE MISSIONARY IMPERATIVE "GO YE"

Jesus said, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." The question arises in our minds as to the necessity of our mission work. It would not be difficult to find church members who have very little interest in missions particularly foreign. They feel it is pretty much a matter that is man-made and is sponsored by committees and boards. To their way of thinking it is left to the individual to decide whether he wants to be interested in missions or not.

It is profitable for every church member to ask himself the question, "What is the origin of mission"? From whence comes the inspiration and power to carry on." The answer to that question lies in the life and teachings of Jesus. It was He who gave the command, "Go ye into all the world." This is the misisonary imperative. But shall I be interested in missions simply because it is a command? Many church people are supporting missions with that motive. It is a "first mile" proposition. "Jesus said, we had to do it." To be sure it is a command. But the strongest incentive does not come from an outside command to the true Christian, but rather from an inward compulsion. A Christian is one who is born from above and whose life is prompted by the spirit of love. We would say with Jesus, "I must go to the next villages for they, too, must hear the Gospel." Or with Paul, "I am debtor." "The love of Christ constraineth me." When such a spirit prompts the individual, then the missionary command, "Go ye" becomes an inward power and light." —W.

PUBLICATION FUND CAMPAIGN

At the first session of the General Conference which I attended in 1893 I was elected a member of the Board of Publication. Ever since that time, with the exception of the years when I was chairman of the conference, I have been a member of this Board. In the twenty-six years preceding 1929 the Board had not as much trouble as we have had in the past four years. Prior to 1929, the Book Concern not only paid the annual deficits on our church papers, but showed a surplus profit beyond that, which the conference at its triennial session disbursed for missionary and benevolent purposes. When the depression came sales fell off and the delinquencies and deficits on the church papers became larger; we had no surplus on which to draw and were compelled to go into debt. We have now rearranged our business and publications so that we believe they will be selfsustaining, but the debt must be paid if the work is to continue.

I am glad that many of the loyal members of the conference see this and are sending in their contributions for this cause, and I hope that many more will do so. Send your contribution to

H. J. Krehbiel,
Chairman of Board of Publication.
Reedley, California.

"CASTING ALL YOUR CARES UPON HIM, FOR HE CARETH FOR YOU"

(By Mrs. Christine H. Duerksen, Korba, India)

"Father of Kalyan, there is no rice in the house. What shall I cook"?

The father of little Kalyan turned to his wife and said, "There are yet those two annas (four cents) in money. I will go to hunt for a little." Taking the money from its hiding place he went out into the little crooked street to the little homes where rice was sometimes sold. There was no shop in the village.

The mother of Kalyan busied herself about the evening tasks, the buffaloes were tied up in their shelter, and the few little chicks that the hawks had spared were shooed to their corner of the little mud hut. She turned as she heard her husband's step in the doorway. Her expectant look vanished when she saw he was empty handed. There had been no rice to sell that evening. They could not beg from their neighbors, for they were equally poor. They belonged to the Lord who was the giver of all good things. Surely He knew their need.

Their need drove them to prayer and as they told the heavenly Father of their lack of food they also told Him they were willing to go to bed hungry if He wished it so. But they also knew He could provide in ways unknown to them. Then they slept.

It was still early morning when a woman of the village, not a Christian, came to their home with a measure of unshelled rice. She greeted them and said she had brought rice for them. They plied her with questions: Why had she brought it? Had she known their need? She said she had just felt she should bring it. But the father and mother of little Kalyan walked softly that day. They knew it was the Lord who had heard their prayer.

(This happened in Resdi, where there are five Christian families.—C. H. D.)

THE CHINA MISSION OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE MENNONITES OF NORTH AMERICA

1. Introductory

The need of a world-wide vision has brought the church of the western lands to look beyond its own confines, and to reach out to "the regions beyond," and thus has carried out, at least in part, the Lord's great commission, "Go ye into all the world and disciple all nations." The church needs her missionary program as mapped out by her Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. In fact, the only reason for the existence of the church is to propagate itself. Without the missionary spirit and program the church would die,—would become extinct. "Salvation is of the Jews" (John 4:22) is correct, for from them came the Gospel to the Gentiles (us). We in turn are largely entrusted to give the Gospel to fellow-gentiles throughout the world. To what extent have we accomplished this? How far have we carried out the Master's last and great commission?

"The work that centuries might have done, must crowd the hour of setting sun." To a mere handful of disciples Jesus commits the Gospel in these words, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations" (Matt. 28:19), and these early disciples of Jesus obeyed their Master's command, and carried the Good News throughout the then known world. Paul writes in Rom. 15:20, "Yea, so have I strived to preach the Gospel, not where Christ was named." He was so zealous for the Gospel that he found no more room for evangelization, because the task had been largely completed, and he was reaching out for other fields yet unknown. If each succeeding Christian generation would have carried out the great commission in like manner the entire world would be evangelized long before today. "It is the whole duty of the whole church to give the whole gospel to the whole world."

2. Historical

Before 1914 our church had missionary work among the American Indians and in India, but not in China. It was indeed strange that the mission field attracting the great attention and interest that China did, should not much earlier have come to the attention of our church. For China is the field of the largest and most marvelously used inter-denominational missionary agency, The China Inland Mission. They have over 1000 missionaries in China, and during the years of depression have sent out, or returned, some 400 missionaries.

A forerunner had already left for China in 1909. Brother and Sister H. J. Brown went to China with great faith and with the idea that our church would in time undertake missionary work in that great land. God answered their and our prayers. J. Hudson Taylor, founder of the China Inland Mission, was a great man of prayer, and much prayer was made to the Lord of the harvest before we opened missionary work in China. Rev. and Mrs. Brown worked independently at first, but in 1914 our church at the General Conference in Oklahoma took over the work in China, and in 1915 Peter J. and Jennie Boehr were commissioned by our church to go to China. On the way another party joined them, Miss Talitha Neufeld, who has not been with our mission since 1927 or 1928. And so, by November 3, 1915 (date of arrival of this party of three at Kaichow, Hopei, China), our church had on the field there five missionaries in all.

Then from the year 1918 the staff steadily grew until in 1921 our China mission had in all twenty-two misisonaries on the field. Since 1927 came the decrease of staff, for various reasons, and by subtracting and adding the force, until today we have about half of the missionaries at home, or four couples and two unmarried women in China, and three couples and two unmarried women here — and with little promise to be returned, unless special efforts are put forth. As far as known, all now on furlough in the United States are willing to return.

3. The Task Before Us In China

About 350 miles south of the old capital, Peking, lies our China field, and is a plot of ground measuring 6000 square miles, with a population varying from 20,000 to 75,000. Also there are some 3000 villages in that field of the plain. No mountains, but river flats, and often threatened by Yellow River floods and by drought. Travel by auto is possible nine months of the year; only a pity that no funds have been at hand to use cars for a few years now, after the auto really had become a necessity in evangelistic and medical work.

Out of the vast multitude for the few heralds of the Cross, some 1000 people have been baptized and admitted to the church. We are responsible for the evangelization of one two-hundredth part of China's millions. There are hundreds of inquirers but, "what is that among so many," you ask. "Little is much with God in it," and Christ fed a multitude of over 5000 with "five loaves and two fishes."

May add that there is less banditry in our field in China than in many other districts, because we have no mountains where bandits usually have their hiding places.

4. The Work In China

As is the common practice of other missions, we have the three departments of the work—the evangelistic, the educational, and the medical; but all part and parcel of the one program, as the Lord outlined it in Acts 1:8. Evangelism is carried on by the missionary's tours through the villages, by Chinese evangelists and colporteurs, and by the means of two large gospel tents, which can be out from eight to nine months a year, provided there are funds to carry on that work. As a result of much prayer and evangelistic work there are at present some twelve organized "indigenous" churches, cared for largely by Chinese pastors, all as yet unordained. Some should be ordained, we have felt for some time.

The educational work has been curtailed from what it was years ago, but then the government is now doing much more aggressive school work than formerly. Government policies and the attitude of a number of Chinese educational leaders have also contributed to the change of misison policy on schools. But we stand for a good Christian education, and we must have the trained men and women. At present the children's schools are scattered over the district, and teachers supported by the mission. A Junior High School functions at Kaichow, which has possibly more support from Chinese sources. The two Bethel College graduates, Jas. Liu and Stephen Wang, are in charge there.

The medical work has its center in the small hospital at Kaichow, Dr. C. L. Pannabecker in charge, but now on furlough, leaving the field without a missionary doctor. The Chinese doctor has recently left, too, and now they must be satisfied with occasional help from a Chinese doctor who has his own practice in Kaichow city. But the evangelistic spirit pervades this work as well, and the work of outstation clinics, and village clinics. Much good is thus done for the Gospel, and thousands relieved physically. Sister Frieda Springer and Elizabeth Goertz are the faithful nurses.

5. The Task Just Begun

We as a church cannot say that our task in that great China mission field is nearly completed, but must rather say that it is merely begun. The need of the hour is much prayer and great faith. 1 Thess. 1:3, "A work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ," that is the proper definition of missions. The challenge of the hour is to pray and send missionaries back to the China field, if missions there shall not stop. There are at present four good misisonary residences vacant and always needing repairs, and one large dwelling has already been given over to hospital work. "Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest that he send forth laborers into his harvest." "And lo, I am with you always."

THE BIBLE

(Continued from last issue)

Division of the Bible by the Hebrews

The Hebrews divided the Scriptures of the Old Testament into three parts:

I. THE LAW. The five books of Moses, called the Pentateuch (Acts 15:5, 21).

The word Pentateuch signifies Five Books. This section of the Bible bearing this title, The Law, can be traced to the time when compiled (Deut. 31:24, 26; Josh. 1:8; 8:34; 24:26). These books were marked by the Hebrews by the first or chief word in the opening statement, while the Septuagint uses words descriptive of the subject matter—Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, etc.

II. THE PROPHETS. This section contains the historical books, Joshua, Judges, I and II Samuel, I and II Kings, the Major Prophets, Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel, and the twelve Minor Prophets. This collection of twenty-one books was called "The Prophets" because they were compiled by Teachers of the people, or Prophets, whose writings were prophetic, i. e., instructive as well as predictive.

III. THE SCRIPTURES. This section consists of three groups:

1. Job, Psalms, Proverbs. These devotional books were used in the services of the synagogue.

2. Song of Solomon, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther. These were called the "Five Rolls" and during special festivals were used as the "Lessons."

3. Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah, I and II Chronicles. These were considered as an appendix.

In the English Bible the arangement of the books of the Old Testament is very convenient.

1. The Pentateuch—the first five books, commonly called the Five Books of Moses.

2. The Historical Books — from Joshua to Esther. These comprise the four historical periods: The Theocracy, Joshua and the Judges; The Monarchy; Judah and Israel; Post-Exilic Period.

3. The Poetical Books, also called the Devotional Books—Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Song of Solomon.

4. The Prophetical Books—from Isaiah to Malachi.

It is easy to remember the four words: Law, History, Poetry, Prophecy.

It was not until the tenth century that a more systematic division into verses was made by Archbishop Langton, while Cardinal Hugo divided the text into chapters.

The Canon of Scripture

The Greek word canon signifies a straight rod or rule. When used figuratively, it means that by which anything is tested as a rule, such as a test or rule of logic. It is used in Gal. 6:16; Phil. 3:16 as a "rule of life," and in II Cor. 10:13, 16 as a measure of excellence. In 380 A. D., it was first applied to the Scriptures, and from the time of origin it has been applied to the books comprising the Bible which are regarded as having divine authority. Thus we speak of the Canon of Scripture, while uncanonical books are those that are not in the Canon. The Apocryphal books belong to this class, all the evidence pointing to the fact that they were not inspired, have divine authority and are not a part of the Scriptures as a "rule of faith." In matters of religion and ethics the Bible is the standard, the rule or canon by which these are judged.

In regard to the Jewish Canon, by the order of Moses, the "Book of the Law" was placed in the ark (Deut. 31:26). Following that period, Joshua and other records were added. Daniel (9:2) refers to the "Books" and Zechariah (7:12) to "the Law and Former Prophets." Isaiah (29:18; 34:16) speaks of "the Book of the Lord."

After the captivity the Law was given its final form probably by Ezra and the "Great Synagogue," while Nehemiah "founded a library" in which were gathered together for the second Temple "the acts of the kings and the prophets, and those of David." In the Prologue of the Greek translation of "Ecclesiasticus" (B. C. 131) we have the first notice of the Old Testament as a distinct compilation, and Philo-Judaeus (B. C. 20—A. C. 40) speaks of the constant use of "the laws and oracles, produced by the prophets, and hymns and other" (Scriptures).

Josephus, the Jewish historian (A. D. 38-97), says specifically that the books having divine authority were the five books of Moses, thirteen books of Prophets and "four hymns and directions of life." With the exception of Job, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes and Song of Solomon he mentions all the books of the Old Testament as "divine." The four just mentioned did not furnish any materials for his word for which reason he does not allude to them. He declared that since the death of Artazerzes (B. C. 424) "no one had dared, up to his day, to add anything to them, to take anything from them, or to make any change in them." This clearly indicates that the Jewish Canon assumed a settled form in the time of Ezra and Jeremiah and it is identical with the Old Testament as we now have it, our thirty-nine books being classified so as to accord with the twenty-two letters of the Hebrew alphabet, i. e., in that grouping the twelve minor prophets were counted as one book, Ruth was coupled with Judges, Ezra with Nehemiah, Lamentations with Jeremiah, while the two books of Samuel, Kings, and Chronicles were reckoned as one each. Jerome "gives the contents of the Law, Prophets, and Hagiographa in exact accordance with those of the Hebrew authorities. The Talmud also agrees with the same, and gives the writers of each."

At a later time these books of the Jewish Canon were regarded by Christians as having divine authority and as such were quoted extensively by writers. It is an important fact that "between A. D. 200 and 400 ten Catalogues of Canonical Books were published. Six of these agree with our present Canon, and three omit only the Book of Revelation."

By Genuineness and Authenticity of the Scriptures is meant that they are the actual writings that have come down to us, and that these writings have been unaltered. This will be considered in connection with the Preservation of the Bible. We are laying emphasis upon the canonical Old Testament Scriptures, that they consist of those books of the Jewish Canon and no others. The Apocryphal books are not in that Canon and are to be rejected as a part of the inspired Bible. From time to time they were added to the Greek Septuagint and thus found their way into the Bible, and, by uncritical processes, came to be accepted by Alexandrian Jews. The best of the early fathers rejected these fourteen books and maintained that the only books of the Old Testament having divine authority and constituting the Canon were those of the Jewish collection. External and internal evidence alike is against their inspiration and the Apocryphal books are no part of the rule of faith, no part of the Word of God.

Forget yourself for others, and you will never be forgotten by others.

I WILL BE CHRISTIAN

I will be Christian. Like a crimson line running through my life, let this covenant bind me to the will and way of Jesus.

I will be Christian. My witness to the experience which is the most revolutionary and profound man may know; my personal testimony to its reality.

I will be Christian. My body, mind, and spirit Christ-centered, that I may learn His will; that I may walk His way; that I may win my associates; and that "in all things He might have the preeminence."

I will be Christian. My voice of passion in an age grown cold and cynical because of faltering faith and shrinking deeds; my answer to the Macedonian call of spiritual continents unpossessed and unexplored.

I will be Christian. In my heart, in my home, in my group, in my country—now, to help save America that America may serve the world.

I will be Christian. Through my church; agency at once human and divine, weak as man but strong as God, and through which He at last "shall reign where'er the sun does his successive journeys run."

I will be Christian. Across all lines of color and class, into every human relationship, without respect for temporal circumstance, in spite of threat and with no thought of reward.

I will be Christian. Thinking peace, studying to find and helping to perfect its machinery; recognizing no sea as a division and no language as a barrier; loving my own country first, but all who love another, and knowing that patriotism which begins at home ends only in the unity of mankind.

I will be Christian. That Christianity may become as militant as Fascism; as terrible toward wrong as God's hatred of sin; as tender with the weak as His love for little children; as powerful as the prayer of the righteous, and as sacrificial as Calvary's Cross.

I will be Christian . . . So help me God.

—Daniel A. Poling.

HUMBLED . . . . EXALTED

By Northcote Deck, Solomon Islands

"He humbled himself . . . . Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him."

So runs the wonderful record of the Savior's

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office ....Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance........$1.50
Foreign $2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to love unto death in Philippians 2:8, 9. And we are invited by God to realize more what that humiliation cost, and as a result to have in us more of this mind which was also in Christ Jesus.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

By what standard, then, shall we measure it?

Of time? But a thousand years are unto God as one day.

Of space? Yet he taketh up the isles as a very little thing.

By purity? Yet he dwelleth in the light which no man can approach unto.

To aid us the Word of God reveals something of that love to the uttermost. Through it let us seek to realize something of that humiliation. Let us think then:

How He Was Led

We naturally picture Him as leader, leading the sheep beside the still waters. Indeed, God has given Him as a leader and commander to the people. (Isaiah 55:4). But for Him, at whose word creation sprang at once to light, to be led, and by a will other than his own, seems strange and unthinkable. Yet so it was all through His earthly life. He went down to Nazareth to be "subject" to the will of His parents through long years. When His ministry began He was "driven" of the Spirit into the wilderness. He was "led" by wicked hands to the brow of Nazareth, and after His arrest the officers "took Jesus and bound him, and led him away to Caiaphas." And this all because it was the will of His Father!

So, then, He humbled Himself and all His life was living out "Not my will, but thine be done"!

What He Was Lent

Though He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor, so poor that all His life He had to be borrowing from those around Him. By His Father's will His means were so slender that continually He had to be beholden to poor people around Him.

"Had to be" one writes deliberately, because this, too, was the will of His Father.

True, He never borrowed but He blessed. He never does still. Here are some simple lines on His humiliation:

They borrowed a bed to lay His head
When Christ the Lord came down;
He borrowed the ass in the mountain pass
That He might ride to town;
But the crown that wore
And the cross that He bore
Were His own, the cross was His own!

He borrowed the bread when the crowd He fed
On the grassy mountain side;
He borrowed the dish of broken fish
With which He satisfied;
He borowed a room on the way to the tomb
The Passion Feast to eat;
They borrowed a cave, for Him a grave:
They borrowed a winding sheet;
But the crown that He wore
And the cross that He bore
Were His own, the cross was His own!

These are moving words and they seem true. Yet when you come to think of it, they are exactly not true, because the bed, the ass, the bread, the fish, the room, the cave, the winding sheet, were His already, for He had created them all. The thorns and the cross, He had done nothing to deserve them. No, they were not His: they were yours and mine; We all had richly reserved the crown of thorns and the cross of shame. He bore them in our stead.

So He humbled Himself, that coming into the world He had made He had no patrimony, and had to be beholden to poor folk around Him who became His benefactors. O wonder of wonders, all divine!

Where He Was Laid

This heir of heaven, when He was born into the world, found not even Mary's humble home at Nazareth open to receive Him. He found not even a place in the common inn at Bethlehem. Phrophetically, that, too, was closed to Him.

"No room, no room, the inn is full, yea, overfull! No room have we for such as ye, poor folk of Galilee! Pass on!"

He came unto His own . . . His own received Him not!

So through the succeeding years He lay down to sleep in many a strange resting-place. Birds of the air had nests, but the Son of man had not where to lay His head. Sometimes it was the dewy mountain-top, or the roadside, or a pillow on the lake. Sometimes it was "with the wild beasts and the angels." Strange combination for the Son of God!

But come, see the last place where our Lord lay! Come to Golgotha, where they crucified Him and two others with Him, and Jesus in the midst! Then, after those hours of agony comes the dying cry and the triumphant record: "It is finished"!

Many things indeed were finished then. For us, sins and iniquities were forever paid for. For Him the spitting and the scourging, the contradiction of sinners and the humiliation, yes, all this was at last forever over and done with!

And now that our redemption was at last complete a marvelous thing happened. God the Father, who had felt every pang of the pain and passion of His beloved Son, suddenly interposed an invisible and impassable barrier between that sacred form and the insults of the enemy. It was as if God said:

"Thus far, and no further! I have yielded my beloved Son to your will that He might give His life a ransom for many. But now the price has been paid, redemption is complete. Not another indignity shall be offered to Him. He has humbled Himself indeed, and now I must highly exalt Him."

So not another hand was raised against Him—with one exception. We read in John 19: 32, "One of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side." This last stab of hate was needed to convince Pilate at the time and the whole world ever since that He really did die. "And forthwith there came out blood and water." Sure medical proof that death had been complete some hours! But then indeed, God interposed Himself between His son and the world of sinners.

The next act in the plan of men is disclose in Isaiah 53: 9, "He made his grave with th wicked." The word wicked is in the plural, an evidently refers to the two thieves. A bette translation of this verse is, "They made hi grave," or "His grave was made with the wicked." For that is what happened. A hole wa dug convenient to the cross, and into it wer tumbled the poor bodies of the two thieve with their broken legs. If men would have ha their way, into it would have followed the sacred form of the Savior, to share in that common felon's grave and to be forever dishonore For that was a man's plan. But God had another plan. He was to be "with the rich (singular) in his death." And so it was, for Go moved Joseph of Arimathea to beg the body o Jesus: a courageous act. And God moved Pilate to grant the request. So instead of th sinful soldiers further defiling that sacred for and tumbling it into the grave of shame w read, "Joseph of Arimathea took it down an laid it in a sepulcher" (Luke 23:53). Josep had prepared it for himself. God had prepare it for His Son. So "with the rich" He was i His death, and laid in state in the newly-mad tomb till the resurrection morn. Thus no hand touched the Savior after His death but hand of love, as no eyes saw Him after His resurrection but eyes of believers.

So He humbled Himself, and God has highl exalted Him, for come, see the place where ou Lord next lay, in the bosom of the Father (Joh 1:18)! But in the sudden intervention of Go at Calvary, once the sacrifice was complete, between His beloved Son and the wicked hand and hate of sinners. we are given a wonderful and unrealized indication of the cost of the Son's humiliation and suffering to the eternal Father.

* * *

And now "let this (same) mind be in you"! commands the Father. Humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God that He may exalt you in due time! Arm yourself with the same mind! Only so shall we be able to bear and forbear. Only so shall we be able to do all things to the glory of God!

(Church Management.)

Never bear more than one kind of trouble at a time. Some people bear three: all they have had, all they have now, and all they expect to have.

CORRESPONDENCE

Hebron Church, near Buhler, Kansas, November 5, 1934. Good wishes to Editors and Readers! We very much enjoy reading what other churches report in our church papers. In order to be faithful to my duty I shall report from the Hebron church, near Buhler, Kansas.

The continuous heat and drouth of last summer has humbled us before God, and we have prayed Him lonely and jointly for forgiveness of our sins of commission as well as of omission. We also prayed for the needed rain. Now let us be thankful to God for all His mercy and goodness.

We as churches must strive to avoid likeness of the world. The government establishes its schools after its own taste and yet these schools control more and more the activities of the churches.

My good friend, Bro. P. B. Martens, was killed in an auto accident.

Corn. Froese, son of David Froese, died as a result of burns received in a fire, and Jacob Neufeld, son of D. D. Neufeld, found his death in a burning house. All these were laid to rest in the Hebron cemetery under great participation. Our sympathy to the bereaved.

Seventeen members were received into our church by baptism.

The Christian Endeavor renders good programs; also the choir has rendered good service.

Our sewing circle had prepared a number of things which were sold through a "mission sale." The proceeds netted $500.00.

On Thanksgiving Day we had a special privilege, when Brother C. E. Krehbiel and Brother P. S. Goertz brought us the message of the day. The offering netted $130.00.

Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year! J. G. Neufeldt.

Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton, Ohio. The approaching holiday season finds the members of the Salem Mennonite Church near Dalton, Ohio, busy in the preparation for special services. There has been great interest and much enthusiasm on the part of the children in preparing for the annual Christmas program. The committee in charge has been doing good work.

An outstanding event in our Christmas season is the annual rendition of Handel's Messiah. This is a community project. The chorus is directed by our able chorister, Mr. Victor Gerber. Each year this program is rendered in one of the churches in Dalton and on another date in the Salem Mennonite Church.

An interesting and helpful race project and brotherhood service was recently enjoyed. A short time ago on Sunday evening the Second Baptist Church (colored) of Wooster, Ohio, was our guest. The members thereof came in a body and had charge of the evening service. They led in congregational singing, had a goodly number of special musical renditions, and their pastor, Rev. J. T. Payne, delivered a passionate sermon. They invited us to visit them with a program at some future date. The large congregation present expressed great appreciation for the service.

We feel that our community has been extraordinarily blessed with abundant harvests. We had a record breaking corn crop. We should be even more thankful than we are to our heavenly Father for His manifold blessings. Thanksgiving Day was of unusual interest to us. After the divine services we held our traditional Thanksgiving sale in the public schoolhouse across the road from the church. The offering and the receipts of the sale amounted to considerably more for the cause of missions than has been the case for the last few years.

We have had regular morning and evening services throughout the year. Following the regular Christian Endeavor services in the evening we had outside speakers, services of a special nature, or sermons by the pastor. In a general way, as we review this year which is almost past, we feel that we have much for which we can be sincerely grateful — physical health, free from ravages of disease, a fine spirit of Christian unity and a healthy spiritual growth. We look toward the new year with a spirit of hopefulness. During the past year we have witnessed more than the ordinary number of beautiful weddings — several of them were church weddings, but we also were called upon to experience a number of deaths. First we laid away the remains of our beautiful, sweespirited, seven-year-old Vivienne Miller; then the elderly scribe of many periodicals, Brother Daniel Kirchhofer; soon thereafter the angel Death called one of our deacons, Brother Werner Ruff; and a few weeks thereafter the summons came to the oldest resident of the Son-the world, found not even Mary's humble home at Nazareth open to receive Him. He found not even a place in the common inn at Bethlehem. Phrophetically, that, too, was closed to Him.

"No room, no room, the inn is full, yea, overfull! No room have we for such as ye, poor folk of Galilee! Pass on!"

He came unto His own . . . His own received Him not!

So through the succeeding years He lay down to sleep in many a strange resting-place. Birds of the air had nests, but the Son of man had not where to lay His head. Sometimes it was the dewy mountain-top, or the roadside, or a pillow on the lake. Sometimes it was "with the wild beasts and the angels." Strange combination for the Son of God!

But come, see the last place where our Lord lay! Come to Golgotha, where they crucified Him and two others with Him, and Jesus in the midst! Then, after those hours of agony comes the dying cry and the triumphant record: "It is finished"!

Many things indeed were finished then. For us, sins and iniquities were forever paid for. For Him the spitting and the scourging, the contradiction of sinners and the humiliation, yes, all this was at last forever over and done with!

And now that our redemption was at last complete a marvelous thing happened. God the Father, who had felt every pang of the pain and passion of His beloved Son, suddenly interposed an invisible and impassable barrier between that sacred form and the insults of the enemy. It was as if God said:

"Thus far, and no further! I have yielded my beloved Son to your will that He might give His life a ransom for many. But now the price has been paid, redemption is complete. Not another indignity shall be offered to Him. He has humbled Himself indeed, and now I must highly exalt Him."

So not another hand was raised against Him—with one exception. We read in John 19: 32, "One of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side." This last stab of hate was needed to convince Pilate at the time and the whole world ever since that He really did die. "And forthwith there came out blood and water." Sure medical proof that death had been complete some hours! But then indeed, God interposed Himself between His son and the world of sinners.

The next act in the plan of men is disclosed in Isaiah 53: 9, "He made his grave with the wicked." The word wicked is in the plural, and evidently refers to the two thieves. A better translation of this verse is, "They made his grave," or "His grave was made with the wicked." For that is what happened. A hole was dug convenient to the cross, and into it were tumbled the poor bodies of the two thieves with their broken legs. If men would have had their way, into it would have followed the sacred form of the Savior, to share in that common felon's grave and to be forever dishonored. For that was a man's plan. But God had another plan. He was to be "with the rich (singular) in his death." And so it was, for God moved Joseph of Arimathea to beg the body of Jesus: a courageous act. And God moved Pilate to grant the request. So instead of the sinful soldiers further defiling that sacred form and tumbling it into the grave of shame we read, "Joseph of Arimathea took it down and laid it in a sepulcher" (Luke 23:53). Joseph had prepared it for himself. God had prepared it for His Son. So "with the rich" He was in His death, and laid in state in the newly-made tomb till the resurrection morn. Thus no hands touched the Savior after His death but hands of love, as no eyes saw Him after His resurrection but eyes of believers.

So He humbled Himself, and God has highly exalted Him, for come, see the place where our Lord next lay, in the bosom of the Father (John 1:18)! But in the sudden intervention of God at Calvary, once the sacrifice was complete, between His beloved Son and the wicked hands and hate of sinners. we are given a wonderful and unrealized indication of the cost of the Son's humiliation and suffering to the eternal Father.

* * *

And now "let this (same) mind be in you"! commands the Father. Humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God that He may exalt you in due time! Arm yourself with the same mind! Only so shall we be able to bear and forbear. Only so shall we be able to do all things to the glory of God!

(Church Management.)

Never bear more than one kind of trouble at a time. Some people bear three: all they have had, all they have now, and all they expect to have.

CORRESPONDENCE

Hebron Church, near Buhler, Kansas, November 5, 1934. Good wishes to Editors and Readers! We very much enjoy reading what other churches report in our church papers. In order to be faithful to my duty I shall report from the Hebron church, near Buhler, Kansas.

The continuous heat and drouth of last summer has humbled us before God, and we have prayed Him lonely and jointly for forgiveness of our sins of commission as well as of omission. We also prayed for the needed rain. Now let us be thankful to God for all His mercy and goodness.

We as churches must strive to avoid likeness of the world. The government establishes its schools after its own taste and yet these schools control more and more the activities of the churches.

My good friend, Bro. P. B. Martens, was killed in an auto accident.

Corn. Froese, son of David Froese, died as a result of burns received in a fire, and Jacob Neufeld, son of D. D. Neufeld, found his death in a burning house. All these were laid to rest in the Hebron cemetery under great participation. Our sympathy to the bereaved.

Seventeen members were received into our church by baptism.

The Christian Endeavor renders good programs; also the choir has rendered good service.

Our sewing circle had prepared a number of things which were sold through a "mission sale." The proceeds netted $500.00.

On Thanksgiving Day we had a special privilege, when Brother C. E. Krehbiel and Brother P. S. Goertz brought us the message of the day. The offering netted $130.00.

Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year! J. G. Neufeldt.

Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton, Ohio. The approaching holiday season finds the members of the Salem Mennonite Church near Dalton, Ohio, busy in the preparation for special services. There has been great interest and much enthusiasm on the part of the children in preparing for the annual Christmas program. The committee in charge has been doing good work.

An outstanding event in our Christmas season is the annual rendition of Handel's Messiah. This is a community project. The chorus is directed by our able chorister, Mr. Victor Gerber. Each year this program is rendered in one of the churches in Dalton and on another date in the Salem Mennonite Church.

An interesting and helpful race project and brotherhood service was recently enjoyed. A short time ago on Sunday evening the Second Baptist Church (colored) of Wooster, Ohio, was our guest. The members thereof came in a body and had charge of the evening service. They led in congregational singing, had a goodly number of special musical renditions, and their pastor, Rev. J. T. Payne, delivered a passionate sermon. They invited us to visit them with a program at some future date. The large congregation present expressed great appreciation for the service.

We feel that our community has been extraordinarily blessed with abundant harvests. We had a record breaking corn crop. We should be even more thankful than we are to our heavenly Father for His manifold blessings. Thanksgiving Day was of unusual interest to us. After the divine services we held our traditional Thanksgiving sale in the public schoolhouse across the road from the church. The offering and the receipts of the sale amounted to considerably more for the cause of missions than has been the case for the last few years.

We have had regular morning and evening services throughout the year. Following the regular Christian Endeavor services in the evening we had outside speakers, services of a special nature, or sermons by the pastor. In a general way, as we review this year which is almost past, we feel that we have much for which we can be sincerely grateful — physical health, free from ravages of disease, a fine spirit of Christian unity and a healthy spiritual growth. We look toward the new year with a spirit of hopefulness. During the past year we have witnessed more than the ordinary number of beautiful weddings — several of them were church weddings, but we also were called upon to experience a number of deaths. First we laid away the remains of our beautiful, swee-spirited, seven-year-old Vivienne Miller; then the elderly scribe of many periodicals, Brother Daniel Kirchhofer; soon thereafter the angel Death called one of our deacons, Brother Werner Ruff; and a few weeks thereafter the summons came to the oldest resident of the Sonnenberg community, Brother Christian Tschantz, who died at the age of eighty-eight years.

We wish all of our sister churches God's richest blessings, and we pray for our co-workers in other lands and for our new brothers and sisters there. Let us all raise our Ebenezer and trust in God for the future.

A. R. Keiser, Corr.

Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice Nebraska, November 27, 1934. Dear Friends: We have to bring thanks to our heavenly Father for so many earthly as well as spiritual blessings. We are not worth all the love and goodness He bestows upon us daily.

We had the privilege to have Dr. and Mrs. Pannabacker in our midst lately and we heard the different experiences and problems they have in Kaijo, China. Dr. Pannabacker is mostly busy in the hospital, treating people for some disease, and the poor people surely take something along about the Great Healer, Jesus Christ.

Sunday evening we saw some pictures about the everyday life in China and the writer has wondered about and admired the beautiful country, nice large trees, flowers and shrubbery are very beautiful.

Now we are looking for a nice treat. Sister Anna Penner, daughter of Rev. J. K. Penner, deceased, and Gustav Toews of Newton, Kans., will have their wedding in our town church on Thanksgiving Day, November 29th, at 4 P. M., if it is God's will. We are sorry to see Sister Anna Penner leave, but God knows best, and she will have her work for the Lord there also.

We have had rain here more or less all of last week, and the country is well soaked. We are all looking very hopeful into the future, as last summer we did not have any moisture for about four months. The Lord is graceful and we will bring Him thanks for His goodness. With much love and best greetings to all, and wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year,

John Wiebe.

Deer Creek, Oklahoma, December 2, 1934. The health of our church members is fairly good, for which we are very thankful. We who have good health do not appreciate health like we should and ought to be more thankful than we really are.

In January, one of our cradle roll members, Verna Mae Latchar, was called to the Great Beyond and was laid to rest. On March 28 the grandfather of little Verna Mae, Christian Latchar, passed away. The funeral services were held on Good Friday. He reached the age of 77 years.

March 30, Good Friday evening, the Bethel Men's Octette gave a very good program in our church.

On May 13, Sunday School and church services were dismissed so we could attend the Oklahoma convention in a tent at the Mennonite church at Medford. In spite of the rainy weather the tent was filled.

August 12, six young people were baptized, Josephine Moyer, Minnie Hiebert, Floyd Moyer, Marvin Dester, Elton Krehbiel, and Clarence Lichti. Communion service was held the following Sunday.

On August 26, our church celebrated its thirty-fifth anniversary. All former pastors still living were invited and asked to take part in the program: Rev. Gerhard Friesen, Lehigh; Rev. John Moyer, Newton; Rev. John C. Peters, Mountain Lake; and Rev. John Lichti, Medford. It was impossible for the latter two to be with us. Dr. E. G. Kaufman was an afternoon speaker, with our pastor in charge of the programs.

Our Mission Society meets the first Thursday of every month, with the exception of the three summer months.

Our Endeavor Society meets every other Sunday. We have no Junior Endeavor, so the Juniors are given a part on the programs with Scripture reading, clippings, recitations, and singing.

Harold Kuehny and Maurine Reusser were married on May 2, 1934.

Harold- Bechtel and Esther Kuehny were married on June 24, 1934, and John Hohman and Juanita West on August 27.

Delbert Dean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Dester, is the new member on our cradle roll.

We had a very hot and dry summer, but have had a wonderful fall, plenty of moisture, some fall garden, and an abundant wheat pasture. Wishing all readers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, Corr.

Swamp Charge, Quakertown, Pa. A brief note to the brethren. It is with regret that we had to lose Rev. A. S. Rosenberger. But we are glad for the few years we have been privileged to have him serve us. His service has been one of the best and his time has been well spent while with us; our congregation has been thriving and is in a healthy growing condition. He moved slowly, but every move counted, always showed progress, and by his thoughtful, prayerful deliberations he has become one of the most outstanding men of this community, not only among our members of the Swamp Charge, but of this entire community. He was brought up among us and knew very much the makeup of all. In other words, we full well realize he knows and we know the work that he is entering now shows what type of man we were privileged to have, but we could not for one moment try to discourage him in this new enterprise and we wish him and his family God's richest blessings. We also feel confident that Bluffton College is fortunate in securing Mr. Rosenberger, and this institution will be greatly benefited and helped, for we believe that he is grounded and rooted on the real principle which is of vast importance.

If our college is to survive and go forward and be upheld and supported, the constituency, in the first place must have men with the real spirit, the real makeup, men who know God, if you please, then, and then only, will any Christian institution, or any institution, go forward.

We also here in the country know the marks of a well balanced man, and we can see as well as our friend can see, why he is accepting this new field and we feel it was the only thing for him to do under the circumstances. We know he is conscientious, and on that strength we feel the college will go on. We also know that he was not anxious to leave this charge, nor did we like to see him leave, but these are the experiences in life that will make for greater happiness and for greater effective work in the future. Respectfully yours,

R. S. Stauffer.

Pratum, Oregon. At the close of another year we truly have many things to be thankful for. This has been a very prosperous year for the Christians. Twenty-three young souls were added to our large group through baptism. Our attendance is fine. Both morning and evening services are well attended.

On Thanksgiving Day we had our usual union service with the neighboring church. Many came to listen to the message which was given by one of the leading pastors of Salem.

On October 5, our pastor was happily surprised when the superintendent of our Sunday School and his Sunday School teachers and their families came to the parsonage to spend the evening with this happy, God-fearing family. The sisters of the Missionary Society gave him a handkerchief shower, to show their love toward him as their leader.

It has pleased our loving Father to take Mrs. Robert Wenger home to Himself after many weeks of suffering and pain. Our community has had several seriously sick ones, but at present these have improved some.

We are having lovely winter weather so far. The farmers are still plowing and will leave the land lay idle until spring. The fall grain which has been seeded looks real good.

The church choir is busy practicing the cantata, "The Eternal City," which will be given at Christmas. The Sunday School choir is also busy with Christmas songs. The children have received their Christmas pieces and soon these will also have to be drilled. A splendid program has been arranged and a blessed time it will be. A time with the real Christmas spirit prevailing.

Lydia Stauffer, Corr.

Whitewater, Kansas. It has been a long while since anything has been written concerning the Swiss church near Whitewater. Our church and Sunday School attendance has been very good during this year. Nine new members have been taken into church, after receiving catechisical instructions and baptism by our pastor, Rev. Teo. Roth. We are glad indeed, that there are still such who feel the wooing of the Spirit of God and obey His call.

We have our C. E. programs Sunday evenings and our prayer meetings and Bible study Wednesday evenings. The attendance at our prayer meetings is encouraging. Rev. Theo. Roth and Charles Zuercher lead these meetings. It is very necessary that the Christian people meet one evening every week for Bible study and prayer. If this would be the desire of every Christian, we would not have this falling away from God. Our churches would be filled. We would find our enjoyment in serving the Lord. It is sad indeed, that so many seek their enjoyment in places of worldly amusements where they find no food for their souls.

Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander of McPherson gave us two very interesting sermons Sunday, November 11.

Corr.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

PRAYER

"More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of. Wherefore let thy voice rise like a fountain before me night and day. For what are men better than sheep or goats that nourish a blind life within the brain?
If knowing God, they lift not hands in prayer, both for themselves and those who call them friend? For so the whole round earth is every way bound by gold chains about the feet of God."

—Alfred Tennyson.

CHISTIAN ENDEAVOR

January 13, 1935

What Do I Know Of Prayer?

Luke 11:1-13

"Lord, teach us to pray." That is our prayer as we begin on the discussion of this very important topic. It is well as we are still on the threshold of this new year that we meditate on the importance of speaking much and often to our heavenly Father. Our source material in the study is to be found in the Bible and out of the experience of men and women who know how to pray and have felt that their prayers have been answered, either by an affirmative or a negative answer.

What is prayer? It is primarily talking to our best Friend. It is fellowshipping with One who desires to be closer to us than breathing. Why do we pray? We might answer, because we simply cannot help it, because it is instinctive to pray, but there are even better reasons why we will desire always to pray. In the first place a child of God will eagerly turn to God many times in a day with a prayer of deep thanksgiving. The more we pray the more thankful we will be, and the more we thank the more we will find the reasons why we should be thankful increasing. A second reason why we pray is so that there may come into our lives a new peace, the like of which we have never experienced before. We will then feel that our lives are at one with God and no one who has that feeling has the least bit of fear, it matters not what will come, they will feel that they are in the care of an all-loving God who can best be described as Father. Another reason why we want to pray is so that we may be strengthened against the wiles of the tempter. Jesus prayed often, many times He spent a whole night in prayer. When He felt a crisis confronting Him, He found extra time for meditation and prayer. Do we need this strength any less than did He? To be a Christian is to have begun a way of life that turns about face from the way of the flesh, but for most of us it is a continual struggle, it is a progressive growth, but we will need this daily fellowship with the Savior in order that we may be strong. We are never tempted to do the mean, ugly deeds while we are on our Mountain Tops or while we are in conversation with our best and purest friends, but temptations often come when we are alone or in the company of those with the lowest of ideals. As we talk oft with God and give Him our highest loyalty we will conquer one habit after another and become more nearly "perfect as our Heavenly Father is perfect." The fourth reason why we want to pray is because we feel the need for "our daily bread." It is right that we should petition God for all kinds of things that we think we need, but let us remember that a kind parent sometimes must say "No," not because that parent does not love, but simply because he loves his child too much to permit any harm to come to him.

Questions

1. What is prayer?
2. When should we pray?
3. How does prayer help in thanksgiving?
4. Is prayer a privilege or a duty?
5. Why should we pray?
6. Why do we pray so sparingly?
7. What would come to pass if all Christians prayed as we should?
8. What are your resolves for this year in respect to prayer?
9. What lessons can we learn from Jesus' prayers?

January 20, 1935

What Do I Know About The Church?

I Corinthians 12:12-17

This is the first of a series of three topics on the church. Next week we will consider the program of the church and the week following we will endeavor to enlist the services and loyalty of our youth to the church in a way which has never been experienced before. Executive groups should plan to make the most of this opportunity in order that we may ally all our young people anew into the services of the church.

The Church Criticised.—On every hand we have been hearing and reading during the last decade or two that the church is an institution of the past. They tell us the church has outlived her usefulness. Those who are members are quite imperfect creatures, often times they are called hypocrites. The church is a joy-killer. The church is opiate to her people. The church has been on the side of big business and of all great wars in the past, and many other accusations are made against the church. What shall we say? How can we answer them?

Youth's Answer.—Very true, the church of Jesus Christ is a very imperfect organization, and the reason for that is because it is made up of human beings. There is too much insincerity and hypocrisy in the church. We shamefully admit that there are too many denominations and that the church has become thereby very much weakened. But in spite of all shortcomings the church still remains the most idealistic institution on the face of the globe. The church is so severely criticised because she has such a high standard. Her enemies are honoring her when they try to scoff. It does require a high standard of every individual who accepts Jesus Christ as Savior and when there are shortcomings it seems so much more scandalous when a Christian fails. Let us accept that rebuke. But it still remains of Jesus Christ for the redemption and full salvation of all men. "The gates of hell shall not prevail against her."

The church does look askance at certain forms of pleasure, but not because God and the church desires the Christian to be a gloomy sort of creature. Whenever the church rightly opposes any form of pleasure, it is because she feels it is harmful rather than helpful. God does desire all men to be extremely happy. The happiness is of the inward variety which will not wear off when you get home from a carousing party with a dark brown taste in your mouth, it is of a more permanent nature. See John 14:27.

The church must always be forward looking, holding on to that which is good and among the first to accept new truths. Down through the ages it has been the task and privilege of prophets of the church to perceive what God is trying to do in that age and then be the leaders in that movement. It must be so today. The church by virtue of her place under God dare not lag in God's program, she must, and she will lead.

The ideal church is the one where every member has some definite task to do. And each member then feels that his work must be done well that the church of Jesus Christ may prosper. In our Scripture portion, Paul is writing about various members of the church who were jealous of one another. But a lesson which each one of us needs to learn is that God has given each a talent which is to be used. I am responsible to do my best with the talent which God has given me, I am not to do Brother Jones' best, but my own best. Let us not deal in making excuses concerning our inability or someone else's superior ability. Let us remember Jesus' parable concerning those bringing excuses. He expects us to follow irrespective of the cost, for He knows it will be worth while.

Questions

1. What is the church?
2. What is the purpose of the church?
3. What do you consider the greatest weakness of the church?
4. What do you consider the best attribute of the church?
5. Why does not a much larger percentage of our population belong to some organized church?
6. How was the Church first instituted? With what success?
7. Give a brief history of the Church through the Middle Ages.
8. What was the Reformation?
9. What should each member do for his church?

ONE DAILY NEWSPAPER ON REPEAL

A multitude of sane thinking men and women have never favored the return of liquor. Today another large group is becoming sick and tired of hearing liquor advertising coming over the radio, seeing them in dailies and magazines, and especially on roadside posters where our fine womanhood is pictured as partaking of their nefarious products.

A few months ago the Chicago Daily News published the folloinwg editorial on its front page. Today this is the only daily which does not accept liquor advertisements, and when one knows that before Repeal they were strong advocates for doing away with Prohibition. Many thinking men and women are certain that Prohibition of some form will come back to our beloved land, "the calf will be sure to hang itself," but in the meantime it will be so very costly in lives of our children, some fathers and mothers, in decency and in the spending of countless millions. During the first year of Repeal we spent two and one-half billion dollars for drink of the alcoholic beverage type. Is that the road to recovery?

The excerpt from the above Daily follows:

"The existing tavern, under the present liquor law in Illinois, retains all the evils of the old saloon, and has added new evils of its own. The old alliance between the saloon and politics has been resumed. Every promise that, after the restoration of the liquor traffic to legality, the business would be kept respectable and law-abiding, has been violated.

Such being the conditions, The Daily News now reiterates its decision not to aid, even by indirection in its advertising columns, the promotion of a business which has already allied itself with corrupt politics, which is again providing a harbor and refuge for the criminal element, and which with a stupidity that is incomprehensible, is building sentiment in favor of a fresh experiment in prohibition, despite the unhappy outcome of the first effort in that direction . . . It is because we are devoted to the principle of temperance that we decline to take any part in the promotion of the sale of any kind of liquor."

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan, 502 Leland St.,
Bloomington, Illinois

January 13, 1935

How Shall We Meet Disappointments?

Josh. 1:1-9

Be strong!
We are not here to play, to dream, to drift,
We have hard work to do and loads to lift.
Shun not the struggle,—face it, 'tis God's gift.

Be strong!
Say not, the days are evil. Who's to blame?
And fold the hands and acquiesce,—O shame!
Stand up, speak out, and bravely, in God's name.

Be strong!
It matters not how deep intrenched the wrong,
How hard the battle goes, the day how long;
Faint no,— fight on! Tomorrow comes the song.

Pre-Prayer

Ask God to give us strength and courage that we may at all times do His will.

Last week we had simple rules for happiness and we found that we must remind ourselves that there is a certain amount of dullness in every life and one of the rules was "refuse to be disappointed."

When a man is pleased with himself, his achievements, possessions or circumstances such pleasure is the result of a comparison of his present position in this respect with some former position or with the position of someone else. We may say that two prospects are before him, and the larger and fairer is recognized as his own. Under disappointment the same two pictures may be present to his mind, but accompanied by the certainty that the better is not his or is his no more. It might be said that the contents of his consciousness are in each case the same, the whole difference lying in the different relationship to self.

1. What is disappointment?

2. Is disappointment caused by one's own self or by others?

3. Can we afford to leave our friend's disappointments be disappointments to us?

For instance, I knew of a click of freshman girls who all looked to one as their leader. She was at the place where every one else should look up to her and her wishes should always be granted, which in many instances could not be done in school, as the teacher had others to consider. Her disappointments were always shared by her group and they reacted as she did. One of the girls happened to stop in to see me and began to tell of all their troubles and when she finished I asked her if she could afford to make her life unhappy, be unkind, have that poor attitude toward her work and probably fail just because she was letting her friend's disappointments be hers. She answered me that this was her best friend. Was she her best friend?

4. Do we often see afterwards where what we called a "disappointment" was not a disappointment in the end, but a stepping stone?

5. Does the Master disappoint us or do disappointments come through disobedience? Compare with the family life (parents and children). In afflictions in life does the Master disappoint us when we are not healed? Doubting Thomases will still need to see the wounds upon the body of Christ and He needs us to reincarnate those wounds and scars. We may be called to suffer persecution and loss without complaint or darkening of faith before the eyes of the world.

6. God commanded Joshua, "only be thou strong and very courageous that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law—." Did it take courage for Joshua to step in Moses' place and lead a people that had been mourning their great leader? How can we store up strength so that we will be able to endure disappointments that come to us?

7. Is failure disappointment?

8. If we have failed should we give up? Does it mean to try somewhere else or something else? Real test of character is what one does after he fails. Is failure or disappointment sometimes God's means of being able to touch the human heart?

9. Did Jesus have disappointments? Also study Luke 22:61 (first sentence). Was it Jesus' disappointment that drove Peter out to weep bitterly, or what was it?

10. Study John 21:3-6. What caused Peter to return to his old occupation? Did they have success? In the hour of failure these men learned to walk by faith. Jesus said, "Cast the net on the right side of the ship and ye shall find." They felt sure it would be no use — night was the time for fishing, and they had finished at the best places. Everything was against it except His word. They obeyed and lo! the results. Let us use their motto: We have tried and failed, nevertheless at Thy word we will try again.

11. Read John 21:15-17. Although Peter had disappointed Jesus, Jesus followed him, prepared breakfast, and having fed the weary disciples, turned to Peter an said, "Lovest thou Me"? An affirmative reply brought Peter the privileged assignment, "Feed my sheep."

12. How are we going to meet our disappointments?

January 20, 1935

How Shall We Act When We Win?

I Cor. 4:1-7

Many a man has won success with the captivating smile and the glad hand.

Pre-Prayer

I want to check upon my life to see that faithfulness marks my successful achievement.

Debate Topic

Resolved, That it is much harder to be a good winner than it is to be a good loser.

This may be used as a regular debate or with two leaders and society in two groups.

Discuss how winners or losers do act and then how they should.

Suggestions:—In school work, games, contests, business, etc. Discuss characters who have been great winners and what it is that makes them great. Look back of the winner and see if there is a reason for their success. May it be due to someone else who has worked, helped, sacrificed, given of their time and means that they may have the privilege? Is the receiver of the prize always the winner?

Food for Thought

Any person who makes a success must meet the condition and one who works for mastery must be genuine in the discharge of his duties. When success has been attained once how must one live to keep that confidence? The Italians say that Hades is paved with good intentions. Do good intentions make success? No, not unless we carry them out. The common occurrence is to drift instead of being exact and careful and we build on past success until we find we have missed a great opportunity.

Jesus told Peter that Satan had asked for him that he may sift him, like us. Jesus prayed for Peter. After success Satan tries to find our weak places to make us fall. We, too, need Jesus to pray for us. We ourselves are to watch and pray. Satan is like a magician. He gets our mind on success, takes us in our weaker moments and sifts us.

The five foolish virgins were filled with good intentions and successful in being adorned and in the procession to meet the bridegroom. They went to much trouble adorning themselves to be fit to meet Him. The one thing they lacked was oil in their lamps. Many Christian people are full of good intentions, battling through life, preparing to meet Christ at His return because they have been doing many beautiful works and have had many successful accomplishments, but lack the oil of grace for Christian living. The door was shut and the virgins were not admitted. If we trust to our own heart no matter what success we encounter we shall fail in the end.

The highest degree of success, the one of greatest honor, glory, and wealth to be attained in the universe, is that of having a part in the exaltation of the Bride of Christ and sharing in the eternal honor, glory and wealth of the Bridegroom, the eternal Son of God. This alone is real success; all else without this is but miserable failure.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 So. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

The Junior Pledge

"I will take some part in every meeting"

We have had articles by a number of Junior superintendents on different clauses of our pledge. I hope that you have read all of them and that you are keeping these promises "trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength." It would be most unwise to sign a pledge like this if one were to keep it without help, but having Christ to help us, we need not be afraid Today we come to the last part. It is important that all members keep this promise if the meetings are to be all that they should be.

As a rule boys and girls love to take part in meetings, but sometimes there are those who do not. Do you? If not, why not?

I am thinking of three possible reasons. Maybe you are bashful or afraid that you might make a mistake. You really wish that you could speak as the others do. There was once a young man who found it so hard to speak that he was told he need not keep that part of the pledge. But he loved Christ and wanted to do something for Him, so he kept on trying. That young man later became well known and loved as one of the most interesting and best of C. E. speakers. He was not afraid to try.

Perhaps you intend to do your part, but just forget. When you are given a question or topic you put it into your pocket or purse, sure that you will find the answer as soon as you get home. Then you get so busy playing, going to school, or helping your parents that you do not think of the question again until you are in the meeting and you are almost surprised to find it way down in the corner of your pocket. Did you really try to remember? When Mr. Coolidge became president of this country his father said of him that when Calvin was a boy on the farm and was given any work to do while the father was away, he never needed to see about it when he came home; it was always done. Wouldn't it be splendid if Junior superintendents could say that of all Juniors? What meetings we sould have!

Then there is another reason for failing in this part of the pledge. There are not many who give this reason, but sometimes we find a boy or girl who just "can't be bothered." Have you forgotten that this is done for Christ? What if He "couldn't be bothered" with us? That would be hard to imagine, wouldn't it? We sometimes forget that our help is really needed. You wouldn't fail Christ, would you? Isn't that what we do when we are not faithful in our work for Him? "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." Eccl. 9:10.

January 13, 1935

Topic—God's Wonder Book: What It Tells Us About Good And Bad Company

Prov. 13:20; Gen. 13:12, 13

We want to think for a little while of two people spoken of in the Bible who were changed by the company they kept. One found good company, the other bad.

You will find the story of the first in the book of Ruth. Ruth lived in a country where people worshipped idols—a heathen country. She might never have known that this was wrong had she not become well acquainted with Naomi and her family. You remember Ruth married one of Naomi's sons. Naomi loved God and lived a godly life. Because of being with her and watching her life, Ruth, too, came to love God.

In Genesis 13, we read of Lot who got into bad company. He thought more of the money he might make than of the companions he had and moved into Sodom where people were exceedingly wicked. The Lord finally took him out of that place, but some of his children had married wicked people and were destroyed.

There is a saying, "A man is known by the company he keeps." Not only is that true, but our lives and habits are influenced by those with whom we associate.

Plans for the Meeting

Ask an older Christian who understands boys and girls and knows the importance of right companionship to speak on this important subject. This talk might be given before the open discussion and the questions. The advice of your guest may suggest questions or comments for the discussoin.

Questions

1. Why is the choice of companions important?
2. How may we choose friends wisely?
3. What type of boy or girl should you choose as a friend?
4. What kind of grown folks are good companions for boys and girls?
5. How can we help our companions?

January 20, 1934

Topic—God's Wonder Book: What It Tells Us About Honesty

Rom. 12:17

The boys were having a good time at a game of ball until an argument began about a ball. Was Frank out or wasn't he? They couldn't agree until they decided to ask Ross who had been watching the game. He stepped forward, showed just where the ball had fallen and the game went on. Everyone knew that when Ross said anything it was true. No one questioned his word.

According to the Bible, that is the way all Christians should be. So careful in even little things that no one would doubt them. There is no excuse for even pretending what isn't true.

We think of the word "honesty" in two ways: Honesty in speech and honesty in life. There are people who are very careful about paying debts, yet sometimes say things that are not quite true. Then it is possible to be true in speech and not quite so particular about other things. Usually though, the two go together.

God's Wonder Book has a good deal to say about honesty. We shall think together of four verses. The first is in Acts 6:3. Men were to be chosen as deacons in the church. Those chosen must be known as honest men. Eph. 4:25 tells us plainly to speak the truth. The honest life is spoken of in Heb. 13:18 and I Tim. 2:2. Others watch Christians, and if we do not live rightly they can not trust us. More than that, some people will have nothing to do with Christ or the church if they see that Christians are not living honestly.

Plans for the Meeting

Make much use of Scripture in your study today. What does the Bible teach about honesty? There are many verses that answer this question.

Questions

1. Give reasons for honesty.
2. What are some rewards of honesty?
3. What does "live honestly" mean?
4. Why is this important?
5. Why does it never pay to be dishonest?

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

January 6, 1934

Peter's Conversion And Call

Lesson Text.—John 1:35-42; Mark 1:14-18

Golden Text.—And Jesus said unto them, come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men. Mark 1:17.

For three months we shall have the opportunity of studying the life of a man who, although he was very prominent in the work of the early church, is very little known. By studying the life of Peter we get not only the life of a pioneer in the early church, but also a history of early Christianity.

The facts concerning Peter are very few and indefinite. Yet he stands forth in solitary grandeur as the leader of the early church. In the greatest missionary book in the world, the Book of Acts, Peter occupies the center of the stage in the first half of the book.

Peter was a Galilean. He lived at Capernaum. He was an industrious and fairly successful fisherman, for he had a home and took care of his wife's mother as well as his own family. The home of Peter, Galilee, was also the home of Christianity, the land of the work and teachings of Jesus. There He worked most of His miracles and here He chose His first disciples. Jesus as well as Peter lived in Capernaum along the sea of Galilee. Jesus chose all of His disciples in Galilee except Judas. The sea of Galilee in those days was noted for its fishing. Josephus says that when he approached Tiberias he saw the lake covered with boats of fishermen. Galilee was very largely Jewish, especially along the western shore of the lake. These Jews were a much more simple folk than the Jews of Judea, who ridiculed them for their northern dialect. They were a hardy and courageous people and were by no means ignorant. Every town had a synagogue with a rabbi. This may help explain why Jesus chose eleven of His disciples from Galilee. They were more openminded and teachable than the Judean Jews.

Two of the Galilean fishermen left home one day on a long journey south along the Jordan where they had heard was a strange prophet, preaching and baptizing. Andrew and Simon became disciples of this prophet called John the Baptist. They were told by John the Baptist that the time of the coming of the Messiah was at hand. Baptism was a preparation for this event. One day another young man came to the banks of the Jordan river from Galilee, a carpenter's son and a carpenter Himself. He too belonged to the plain and simple folk of Galilee. He was baptized by John, thus dedicating His life to the Kingdom that was to come. This was Jesus of Nazareth. A short time after His baptism He was out for a walk and John the Baptist noticed Him. John said to two of his disciples, "Behold, the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world." These two disciples were another John and Andrew, Simon's younger brother. Andrew and John followed Jesus to where He was staying and talked with Him. When they left Him they were inspired and convinced that others should meet Him. So Andrew went and got his brother Simon and brought him to Jesus. Jesus looked at him and said: Your name is Simon, but you shall be called "Petros," a rock.

Andrew and Peter soon after left Judea and went back to their occupation of fishing on the sea of Galilee.

Jesus began His ministry in Galilee after nearly a year in Judea. One day while walking along the sea He saw Andrew and Simon Peter with their father, fishing. He called to Andrew and Simon and said: "Follow me, and I will make you TO BECOME fishers of men." That is the work of Jesus, to take a man as he is, and to make him what he ought to be. There is a period of strenuous training ahead for Simon before he can be a "Petros," a rock.

What do we know of the early life of Peter? Was Jesus' method of selecting disciples an effective one?

What is the most effective plan and program of evangelism?

Is it possible for the modern man to really follow Christ?

January 13, 1935

Peter's Great Confession

Lesson Text.—Luke 9:18-26; I Peter 2:5, 6

Golden Text.—And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God. Matt. 16:16.

When we come to this second lesson on Peter we find ourselves well along the way in that process of Simon becoming Peter. One half of Jesus' three year ministry is past. Peter has been following Jesus for nearly two years, hearing Him teach and seeing Him perform miracles, and heal. Jesus worked in Judea nearly a year. He has reached the height of His popularity, and while the faith of the disciples is increasing, the unbelief of the temple Jews is also increasing. The opposition is becoming effective. Our lesson occurs at the time of a great crisis in Jesus' life and ministry. He has taken His disciples far north to Caesarea Phillipi for rest and meditation. He asks them, "Whom do men say that I am"? The disciples said that different ideas were given. Some thought He was Elijah, some, Jeremiah, and some, John the Baptist risen from the dead. But Jesus is not so deeply concerned as to what people outside of His intimate experiences are concerned, but He is very anxious to know what the twelve think of Him.

So He asks, "What do you think of me"? or "Whom say ye that I am"? Simon Peter, of course, who was impulsive, impetuous, became the spokesman for the group. Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the Living God." Jesus commends him for his answer, and then proceeds to teach the disciples what true Messiahship involves. What did Peter have in mind when he said: "Thou art the Christ — the Messiah"? According to what happened afterwards, Peter undoubtedly did not imply more than that Jesus is this human deliverer, the Messiah that the Jews were looking for. There is always a danger of us reading more into a statement than is there. The Messiah the Jews were looking for was to be a Deliverer, a Savior, delivering them from bondage under foreign powers and to set up a Jewish kingdom on earth. Peter had this in mind. This is why Jesus' announcement of His sacrifice, persecution, and death did not fit into Peter's program for a Messiah, so he said these things could not happen to Jesus. Jesus taught them to keep secret His messiahship, so no revolution would be caused, also that His messiahship would be brought about not in a worldly way, with military power and thrones and social prestige, but by suffering, sacrifice, and death. This is a truth which we present-day Christians have not learned very well.

It took bitter experiences on the part of Peter before he came to the place where he could out of his experience give us the other Scripture in our lesson, I Peter 2:5, 6. To think of Christ not as an earthly Messiah sitting on a throne at Jerusalem, but as the chief corner stone, the building of a spiritual kingdom, takes more than mental development, it implies a soul culture, an enriching of life lived in fellowship with the Christ.

What are some of the experiences Peter had with Christ that led him to the great confession?

Was Peter following emotion or reason when he gave his answer?

Did Peter see the full implication of his answer?

How much emphasis should be placed on the material in the establishment of the Kingdom of God?

In what ways can we make the great confession?

CORRESPONDENCE

Tiskilwa Mennonite Church, Tiskilwa, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Albrecht entertained a number of friends and relatives on the occasion of their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary on November 16.

The young people of the church enjoyed a social evening at the pastor's home, November 30.

Francis Bachman, who is a student at Illinois State University, spent his Thanksgiving vacation at home.

Richard Ringenberg accompanied some friends to Goshen, Indiana, where they attended the homecoming at the college.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yoder of Peoria were the speakers at the morning service on December 2. Mr. and Mrs. Augspurger and Mrs. Burns accompanied them to Tiskilwa.

On the evening of December 7, the Gleaners class with their husbands and some friends enjoyed a covered dish supper and social evening at the pastor's home. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yoder guests of honor, Mr. and Mrs. Augspurger, Mrs. Burns, and Mrs. Lena Garber were out of town guests.

On December 9, baptismal services were held, at which time two young persons were received into church membership by baptism.

Mrs. Elizabeth Shrock is seriously ill at this writing.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sears has been visiting at the home of her son, Homer, at Moline, Illinois.

JOTTINGS

The Christian Endeavor Union of the Central Conference of Mennonites conducted Christian Endeavor Training Classes throughout our churches. The congregations were grouped in districts and the same course given in each district. The Expert Endeavor was used as a text. Examination was taken by about sixty of these students, who will receive the C. E. E. Diploma. Commencement services will be held in some of these district.

Rev. E. A. Sommer who has moved to Washington, Illinois, has accepted the pastorate of the South Washington church. He will also devote a part of his time in visiting the churches in the interest of missions.

A Training School will be held in the Central Conference to provide training for our Christian workers. The churches of Illinois have been divided into districts and the instructors will go from one district to another. The three instructors are: Rev. E. A. Sommer, who will teach Missions; Rev. R. L. Hartzler, who will teach Training for Service; and Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, who will teach "The Message of the Bible." The school starts January 14th and lasts five weeks.

A special conference session was held at the Normal Mennonite Church, November 22, 1934, for the purpose of ratifying the action of the executive committee in dismission Rev. Reuben Zehr, pastor of East White Oak Mennonite Church from the ministry and conference for insubordinate and disloyalty. The delegate body supported the committee in their action.

Rev. I. R. Detweiler held a series of meetings at the Normal Mennonite Church, November 25 to December 2. Rev. Detweiler gave lectures on how we got our New Testment, then preached following the lecture.

Rev. Roy Scott has accepted the pastorate of the Danvers Mennonite Church and has moved from Peoria to Danvers. Rev. Scott formerly was a member of the Methodist church. He has started a concentration program in his church with much interest, which will continue until Christmas.

The North Danvers and Danvers Mennonite choirs will present the Messiah on Sunday evening, December 23, at the North Danvers church, and on Monday evening, December 24, at the Danvers church in town.

A birthday celebration of unusual interest was held in Newton, Kansas, when Rev. C. H. van der Smissen was joined by his 86-year-old sister, Hillegonda, in the observance of the 83rd year of his birth. They are the children of the late Professor van der Smissen, who was associated with the Mennonite school at Wadsworth, Ohio. Before coming to America Prof. van der Smissen had been pastor of the Mennonite church in Friedrichsstadt, Schleswig-Holstein, then a part of Denmark. The Friedrichsstadt church dates back to the time of Menno. The many friends of Rev. van der Smissen and his sister, Miss van der Smissen, rejoice with them and are happy to know that they are in excellent health.

Brother C. F. Claassen, who for many years served as treasurer of the General Conference, recently celebrated his 75th birthday. The employees of the Newton Kansas State Bank, of which he is president, remembered him on this occasion with a beautiful display of flowers.

The Christmas program of the Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, includes the rendering of Handel's Messiah as a Christmas exercise. The solo parts will be taken by guest singers. Miss Hilda Amstutz is the leader of the choir.

The Western District Conference has a Peace Committee which recently held a meeting at the home of Rev. H. P. Krehbiel in Newton, Kans. Members of this committee are: Rev. P. P. Wedel, Rev. P. H. Richert, Prof. J. J. Voth, Walter Dyck, and Rev. H. P. Krehbiel.

Freeman College, Freeman, S. D., celebrated Founder's Day, which was the third of its kind, on December 14. The morning session consisted, besides music, of addresses by Supt. J. H. Garber of Marion, Benj. Kaufman of the Board of Trustees, and Rev. J. J. Balzer of Mountain Lake, Minn. The afternoon exercises were sponsored by the music department of the college. Rev. Balzer was also speaker at the evening exercises.

Rev. Cyrus Nusbaum, the author of the well known hymn, "Let Him have His way with you," who is a Methodist minister doing work in Oklahoma, was a recent visitor at Deer Creek and told his listeners that his grandfather was a Mennonite minister way back in Indiana. Though high in the seventies, Rev. Nusbaum is still strong and vigorous.

Brother and Sister William Gerhart, of near Norristown, Pa., plan their golden wedding celebration for Christmas eve. Until their retirement to their farm in the beautiful Skippack Valley, they were active members of the First Church, Philadelphia. Brother Gerhart served as treasurer of the congregation for many years, and Sister Gerhart was active in the Sunday School, Ladies Aid Society and other congregational activities. The Gerhart family participated in the organization of Grace Church, Lansdale, and continue their activities there. Brother and Sister Gerhart became members of the First Church, Philadelphia, in February of 1889. The many friends of the family rejoice with them in the recent improvement in the health of Brother Gerhart.

Rev. Lee Lantz of the Mennonite Gospel Mission, Chicago, held a series of meetings at the Calvary Mennonite Church, November 18 to December 2.

Dr. and Mrs. Pannebecker were the guests of the Beatrice, Nebr., congregation during the last week of November. The congregation was happy in meeting and hearing those who represent our missionary interests in China.

Word has been received by the family of Doctor Bauman that they arrived safely at Bombay on November 5. Having spent their first furlough after a period of service in India, Drs. Harvey and Ella Bauman have returned very much helped by their stay in the homeland.

The treasurer of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference reports for November as follows: Balance in Bank, November 1, $283.08; gifts to General Fund, $4114.30; gifts for orphans, etc., $707.34; interest and rent, $207.64; sundries, $221.88. Total $5261.16. Remitted direct to India, $341.30. Paid on order, $4927.42. Balance on December 1, 1934, $275.52.

The Executive Committee of Missionary Societies of the General Conference reports through its treasurer, Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz: Foreign Missions, General Treasury, $159.40; Christmas Fund, $476.27; Miscellaneous, $355.75. Grand Total, $991.42.

On Sunday, November 25, the Topeka Mennonite Church at Topeka, Indiana, dedicated a newly installed pipe organ in an all-day service. In the forenoon the church held its regular Sunday School and worship service. Ten new members were taken into the fellowship of the church at the morning worship service. Rev. Paul E. Whitmer of Pandora, Ohio, preached the sermon. A fellowship dinner was served in the basement of the church during the noon hour. In the afternoon Rev. Whitmer preached the dedicatory sermon and Miss Martha Hutchison of Ligonier presided at the pipe organ. The evening service was devoted to music by the pipe organ, chorus, and quartet selections. A large crowd was present all day, with the house literally packed in the evening. With the organ so beautifully played by Miss Hutchison and the very fitting and appropriate messages given by Rev. Whitmer created the consciousness that a step forward is being taken in the life of the church Rev. Earl Salzman is pastor.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Received for the Publication Fund during November

P. R. Aeschliman $5.00; W. P. Rempel $10.00; Theo. Krehbiel $1.00; E. W. Baumgartner $1.00; J. J. Franz $10.00; A. A. Penner $50.00; S. P. Krehbiel $25.00; J. P. Habegger $50.00; Clara Rout $25.00; Jacob W. Penner $25.00; Anna Bueler $10.00; J. E. Regier $10.00; E. A. Aeschliman $5.00; Olive Amstutz $20.00; Richard S. Haury $10.00; C. F. Claassen $10.00; Anna Andreas $5.00; Friends in Oklahoma $7.00; L. M. Ledig $50.00; John C. Jantz $5.00; Daniel Haury $50.00; C. C. Graber $10.00; A. J. Ledig $20.00; W. C. Andreas $10.00; Frank Balzer, Sr., $10.00; J. A. Krehbiel $100.00; John C. Soldner $20.00; P. P. Wenger $10.00; Mrs. John K. Regier $2.00; C. W. Klopfenstein $25.00; Jacob M. Landis $5.00; Reedley church $244.51. Total $939.51.

Above is a report of the contributions received during November for the Publication Fund. You can see that we have not nearly reached the one half of the $12,000.00 required to liquidate the debt resting on our publication work. But the gifts hereby gratefully acknowledged are all, with the exception of the offering by the Reedley church, gifts from individual friends to whom I appealed for personal contributions. I have over one hundred other friends to whom I have appealed for a contribution and I hope to hear from them. Some churches have promised to take up an offering for Publication before Christmas and I hope every church that is a member of the General Conference will do so. If thus we unitedly and prayerfully remember our Publication Work and contribute to the fund according to our ability as the Lord directs us, though we may not obtain enough to liquidate the debt by January 1, 1935, I am sure that the debt will be sufficiently reduced so that the burden will be much lighter and the danger of being forced into bankruptcy will be eliminated.

With sincerest gratitude I thank all those who have thus far so generously contributed to this cause. May the Lord reward you for your kindness.

H. J. Krehbiel.

DEATHS

Gideon Stiner, at his home in Pandora, Ohio, December 6, 1934. Age 70 years, 1 month, 17 days. In early manhood he was a teacher in the public schools. In 1888 he married Mary Ann Baumgartner, with whom he lived in happy wedlock for over 46 years. He is survived by his wife, two sons, and two daughters. One son is a minister and the other is a missionary in South America. Mr. Steiner has been active in church and community, having been a Sunday School teacher for more than fifty years, and having held various offices in Grace church. He served for a time as president of the local Board of Education. Funeral services were held in Grace church, December 9, and were conducted by the pastor, Rev. P. E. Whitmer, assisted by Rev. H. E. Troff.

Abraham G. Moyer was born April 4, 1867, in Hilltownship, Bucks Co., Pa., October 20. He was received into membership of the West Swamp, Pa., church through the rite of baptism. Later he with his wife transferred their membership to the Bethany church of Quakertown, Pa. On November 26, 1887, he married Hannah Fretz. To this union seven children were born, one dying in infancy. The rest survive. He died November 26, 1934. Age 67 years, 7 months, and 22 days. Mr. Moyer was an industrious business man, interested in the moral and civic welfare of the community. He was a sincere church man, giving much time and energy for the upbuilding of the church of Jesus Christ. The funeral was held in Bethany church, Quakertown, the pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, officiating. Text, 1 Cor. 15:55-57. Interment in Quakertown Union Cemetery.

Lester Homer Bixel, oldest son of Peter and Pauline Bixel, was born on February 5, 1890, in Richland Township, Allen County, Ohio, and departed this life at the age of 44 years, 5 months, and 22 days, on July 27, 1934, at his home in Pandora, Ohio, after a lingering illness of nearly four years, during which time he uncomplainingly and patiently endured his suffering.

In his early teens he consecrated his life to his Master and joined the Ebenezer Mennonite Church, of which he remained a faithful member until his death. He fitted himself for service by attending Moody Bible Institute, Bluffton College, and later Witmarsum Theological Seminary where he received his Bachelor of Theology degree. He accepted a pastorate at Hopedale, Ill., in 1921. It was during this time that he was appointed by the Congo Inland Mission Board to serve as a missionary to Africa. He served two terms aggregating about eight years of active service on this field and his chief longing and heart's desire was to see the natives accept the Christ whom he had learned to love and serve. He poured out his life in service for others and had the welfare of missions on his heart until his last conscious moment.

On May 23, 1924, while in Africa, he was married to Alma Diller. He leaves to mourn besides a host of relatives and friends his wife, an adopted son, Robert Moffat, his father, a stepmother, three brothers, Waldo of Salem, Oregon, Richard of Columbus Grove, Ohio, and Raymond of Pandora, Ohio; and one sister, Mrs. Clara Chamberlain of Prescott, Arizona. His mother, his brother Fred, and his sister Lillian preceded him in death.

Funeral services, largely attended, were held at the home in Pandora, Ohio, Monday, July 30, at 1 P. M., in charge of Rev. E. G. Steiner and Rev. Allen Yoder and at the Ebenezer Mennonite church in charge of the pastor, Rev. P. R. Kliewer, assisted by Rev. A. M. Esch, Rev. E. M. Slagle, and Rev. E. Troyer.

MARRIAGES

Penner-Toews.—Gustav R. Toews of Newton, Kans., to Anna Penner of Beatrice, Neb,. in the Second Mennonite Church of Beatrice, Nebr., November 26, 1934. The pastor, Rev. M. M. Horsch, preached the seromn and officiated. Text, Isa. 61:10.

Hilty-Amstutz.—At the home of their pastor, Rev. P. A. Kliewer, Bluffton, Ohio, Clela Hilty and Paul Amstutz. Rev. P. A. Kliewer is pastor of the Ebenezer Mennonite Church.

MISSION RECEIPTS

July 1 to October 1, 1934

BELLEVIEW SUNDAY SCHOOL
Schnell	$ 25.00	$ 25.00
BETHEL CHURCH
Anna Gerber—Outstation	25.00
Gladys Heiser—Student	10.00
Ladies Aid—Home	6.00
Church Home	4.69	45.69
BOYNTON CHURCH
Ladies Aid—Home	3.00
Church—Home	4.00
Church—Foreign	9.82	16.82
CALVARY CHURCH
J. E. Sturbhal—Outstation	50.00
Sunday School—Home	20.66
Sunday School—Foreign	15.00
Church—Home	40.02
Church—Foreign	44.00	169.68
CARLOCK CHURCH
Home	15.00
Foreign	45.00	60.00
CONGERVILLE CHURCH
Ladies Aid—Home	3.00	3.00
DANVERS CHURCH
Ladies Bible Class—Outstation	12.00
Ladies Bible Class—Foreign	3.00
Ladies Bible Class—Home	5.00
Ladies Aid Society—Home	5.00	25.00
EAST WHITE OAK CHURCH
Young Ladies Miss. Soc.—Home	10.00
Church—Foreign	50.00
Church—Home	100.00	160.00
8TH ST. CHURCH
Mr. and Mrs. Leland Hartzler—Outstation	25.00
Church—Home	5.00
Church—Foreign	25.00	55.00
FLANAGAN CHURCH
Home	8.14	8.14
MEADOWS CHURCH
Foreign	84.11	84.11
NORMAL CHURCH
Vacation Bible School—Foreign	10.65
Vacation Bible School—Home	2.56
Foreign Mission Society	5.00
Church—Home	12.44
Church—Foreign	49.35	80.00
NORTH DANVERS CHURCH
Foreign	53.63	53.63
PLEASANT VIEW CHURCH
Mr. and Mrs. Kremmer—Outst.	12.50
Church Home	9.79
Church—Foreign	10.53	32.82
PEORIA MISSION
Sunday School—Foreign	18.75
Senior Y. P. C. E.—Foreign	8.00
Mission—Foreign	6.53	33.28
SOUTH WASHINGTON CHURCH
Dorcas Class—Foreign	10.00
True Blue Class	10.00
Church—Home	5.95
Church—Foreign	10.84	36.79
TISKILWA CHURCH
Foreign	17.65
Home	8.00	25.65

TOPEKA CHURCH
Opal King—Medical	1.00
Rev. Earl Salzman—Student	4.00
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Slagel—Students	10.00
Mrs. Ruth Hostetler's Class—Foreign	15.00
Primary Dept.—Foreign	1.94
Church—Foreign	33.33	65.27
WARREN ST. CHURCH
S. S. Yoder—Outstation	20.00
L. R. Yoder—Outstation	10.00
Mrs. Ella Litwiller—Student	1.00
Church—Foreign	11.25
Church—Home	4.00	46.25
ZION CHURCH
Adolph Hotler—Outstation	25.00	25.00
BIXEL FUNERAL EXPENSES
Anchor Church	6.00
Belleview Sunday School	10.00
Boynton Church	20.28
Calvary Church	25.00
8th St. Church	9.45
Flanagan Church	8.14
Peoria Mission	3.50
S. Washington Church	7.25
Tiskilwa Church	5.45
Warren St. Church	1.00
Zion Church	5.55
Silver Street Church	22.32	123.94
Total Receipts		$1175.07

ORPHANAGE SOCIETY OF THE EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The Orphanage Society of the Eastern District Conference held their thirtieth annual convention in Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton, Pa., on Saturday, November 10.

The morning session was taken up by the business of the society. In the afternoon a very interesting program was presented, as follows:

A devotional period by Rev. Howard Nyce.

Trio—Three ladies from Souderton.

Missionary Sketch by young people from Quakertown church.

Cornet Solo—Roland Scholl, Souderton.

Reading: "The Man Who Died For Me," by Miss Etta Davis, Lansdale.

Ladies' Chorus—West Swamp Church.

Illustrated Lecture on India, by Miss Lucy Powell, a former missionary to India, now of Mount Airy, Philadelphia.

The Orphanage Society was organized for the purpose of caring for orphans and needy widows. We welcome to our organization all persons who are interested in such work.

All who care to unite with us may do so by enrolling and supporting the work by free will offerings and otherwise.

The Orphanage Society is now quite actively engaged in relief work. We are helping four widows in their valiant effort to care for their fatherless little ones.

One family near Mann's Choice, two families in Philadelphia, and one in the Lansdale district are receiving our support.

We hope that the pastors will remember this cause. We would suggest that each congregation set aside their Children's Day offering for this cause. The children would be interested in knowing they were helping other children.

Our next convention will be held in the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, on the second Saturday of October, 1935.

The treasurer's report is as follows:

Receipts

Balance on hand	$5403.63
Receipts	39.37
Interest from Bank	163.52
	$5606.52

Expenditures

For widow in Philadelphia	$105.00
Fidelity Guarantee Bond	12.50
Orphan in India	35.00
Mrs. Boehr	15.00
Mrs. A. S. Rosenberger	2.50
Carversville Orphanage	5.00
Quakertown Rescue Home	5.00
Widow near Mann's Choice	50.00	230.00
Balance on hand		$5376.52

President: Mrs. Jacob R. Frety.
Secretary: Miss Ada M. Landis.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Ebenezer Mennonite Church of Bluffton, Ohio, has recently organized a Teachers' Training Course. The Western District Conference Plan is being followed. The class has at present an enrollment of ten.

On December 9, the Ebenezer Mixed Chorus presented a cantata, "Prince of Peace" at the Ebenezer church. The soloists were Angeline Althaus, soprano; Esther Lugibill, alto; Gordon Hilty, tenor; and Francis Niswander, bass. Mabel Lugibill was accompanist, and Mabel Amstutz, directress.

SCHEDULE of Publication Dates of The Mennonite and the Christian Evangel for 1935. As during the past year this joint periodical will be published on the first and third Tuesday of every month:—

January 1
January 15
February 5
February 19
March 5
March 19
April 2
April 16
May 7
May 21
June 4
June 18
July 2
July 16
August 6
August 20
September 3
September 17
October 1
October 15
November 5
November 19
December 3
December 17

Those subscribers who have not already done so should make it a point to pay their subscriptions NOW. Please remember that subscriptions are payable in advance. Only the loyal support of all our subscribers will enable us to continue this periodical.

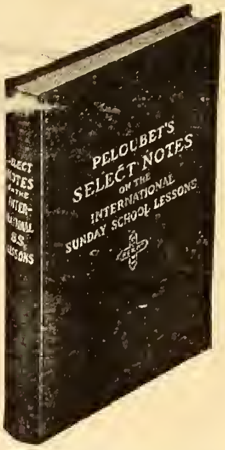
Make all remittances payable to the MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana, and not to M. B. Publishing House at Hillsboro, Kans.

OUR NEW CATALOG

We still have several hundred copies of our new 1934-1935 catalog. If you want a copy just drop us a card.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
BERNE, INDIANA

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON COMMENTARIES FOR 1935



PELOUBET'S SELECT NOTES ON THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

PELOUBET'S SELECT NOTES FOR 1935

61st Annual Volume

A Commentary on the International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

By Wilbur M. Smith, D. D.

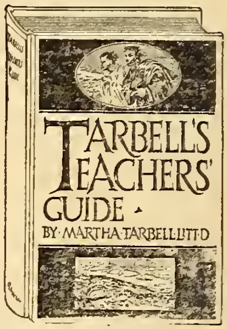
"Concise — fresh — stimulating. As valuable and complete a book as practice and knowledge can make it."

Price $1.90—postpaid, $2.00

TARBELL'S TEACHER'S GUIDE 1935

Martha Tarbell, Litt. D.

A striking new jacket by Oliver Whitwell Wilson is a feature of the 30th annual issue. All the well-known "advantages" are again in evidence verifying the claim of the Christian Advocate that "Tarbell's Excellence nearly Silences Competition."



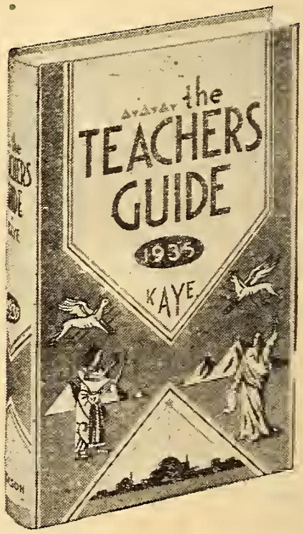
Strongly Bound $1.90 (Postpaid $2.00)

THE TEACHER'S GUIDE FOR 1935

Edited by
Dr. James R. Kaye

A completely new and inspiring volume of helps for the Sunday School teacher. Nearly 400 pages.

Price $1.50 postpaid



GIST OF THE LESSON
R. A. TORREY
35¢ NET

SNOWDEN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS for 1935..............$1.35
ARNOLD'S PRACTICAL S. S. LESSON COMMENTARY....$1.00
THE GIST OF THE LESSON for 1935 ....35c

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanu Troyer Mar 35

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, JANUARY 15, 1935 No. 2

EDITORIAL

THE DIAMOND JUBILEE

Notice is given to the Diamond Jubilee of he General Conference in another page of this ssue. The celebration is to be in connection with the meeting of the General Conference in California. The writer still recalls hearing in his boyhood Rev. John Oberholtzer describe his trip to Iowa to attend the meeting of the first conference. Father Oberholtzer was a personality of distinction. His simple, homely way of gaining the attention and interest of those with whom he came in contact was a gift that made him an influence. Little did he think in his lifetime that after three quarters of a century his name should be revered at a gathering of brethren on the shores of the Pacific. Little, also, could he visualize a gathering at which brethren from the wilds of western Canada would have a part in that event with others from North, South, East, and West. Though a friend of education and a tireless worker in the interest of higher education in the Mennonite church, he could not have dreamed of the extent to which higher education would be carried on in his beloved church during the lifetime of many who worked with him and knew him well. His interest in missions was the beginning of the great missionary enterprises undertaken by his church. What he knew of Mennonite missions related to the missionary enterprises in the Dutch Indies carried on by the Dutch Mennonites and that work was just in its beginning. Paging over issues of the paper he published at Milford Square, Pa., we note with what satisfaction he records the reports of the Dutch missionaries of their first converts. Today, with missions among several tribes of American Indians and in India and China and a large staff of missionaries and their assistants, we would hardly be impressed with the magnitude of a small result of effort in an island off the coast of Asia, but God's work grows, the mustard seed has rooted and grown until its branches spread wide.

It is the hope of the Conference that the Jubilee will receive the widest publicity both in preparation for it and finally in the reports of its transactions.

G.

MUNITIONS AND PATRIOTISM

The more we learn of the activities of the munition makers, the more we are discovering that the military people are close to them and many of them have been benefiting by their relations. The country has been stirred by the revelations concerning these merchants of death and the measures they have resorted to to increase their already large profits. An alliance between the parties, the makers of munitions and the military men amounts to a combination of two classes, those who seek glory at the cost of human blood and those who seek riches at the cost of human blood, and yet call themselves patriots. Can we permit such people to pose as patriots who get money for their patriotism? Can we permit soldiers, seeking the advance of the influence of their militarist, to scheme in the interest of their class and then call it patriotism? G.

EDUCATED TO DRINK

A magazine article on "Wines" concludes with the statement: "A generation is growing up which has to be almost completely educated in the use of wine." A supplement to a Sunday paper shows an American born princess celebrating her birthday. We counted seven glasses before the princess in the picture. Evidently those American born girls, rich enough to buy titles for themselves in the shape of princes, who have never done a stroke of work in their lives, do not need much education along the line of drinking. Perhaps if they were to be educated a little more in the present needs of the millions who are hungry, cold, and depressed, they would not think seven kinds of drink necessary to a well planned meal. G.

A PREACHER'S MESSAGE

Can it not be that many of our preachers have too much theory and technique and not enough practical sense? One young man comes from the seminary to a country parish and is filled with the notion that a church can make no progress without a survey of the community. Now it happens that any village store keeper or perhaps the local rural carrier could give him all the information sought in a survey of that community in a few minutes. Even in cities where they make surveys one hears that the information is of little use in a practical way. The church must work with the material Providence has set before it and that generally needs no elaborate table of statistics to work upon. Again, here comes the minister with a social burden on his mind. He may hold forth on the follies and cruel thoughtlessness of the rich. Having no rich people in his congregation, one may be sure that no rich ones will come over to his way of thinking. The burden on another will be the race problem. True, we have not one, but several such problems on our hands and they should be met in a Christian way, but the individual church is in no way to handle this situation, especially when there are none of the kind of people who need such attention in the immediate vicinity. Expressions in the interest of the races should be appe coming from larger and more influential qua ters than the local church. True, we need

PUBLICATION FUND CAMPAIGN

It is reported that Washington one time when he arose to address an audience wiped his spectacles and said: "My eyes have grown dim in the service of my country, but I have never doubted the integrity of her purpose nor her sincerity to carry out that purpose." So I say concerning the General Conference and my association with it for the past forty-two years. That I have not misplaced my confidence is evidenced by the encouraging letters which I received from the ministers who are the leaders in our conference.

One writes: "I am sorry that I cannot send your Board a larger gift. The Publication Work is important and the strategic center of all our conference undertakings."

Another says: "If the Publication Work suffers it will banefully affect all our conference work." Still another minister writes, "I am so poor I cannot send you a contribution. If all the members of the General Conference had kept both our church papers and paid for them promptly as I have for the past forty-nine years, perhaps there would be no deficit."

To me the most touching letter was that of a brother in the Middle West who writes as follows: "We had no harvest at all, not even vegetables in the garden. We must buy all our feed. However, we will take up an offering for Publication before Christmas, and I am sure our people will give all they can."

If these people who have had a total failure of crops will do "all they can," I am sure that if other members of the General Conference who have not had a crop failure will give in the spirit expressed in this and the other letters, we will be able to enter the Jubilee Year of the conference with grateful hearts, because the burden of debt will have been removed.

Send your gifts to Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, Chairman of the Board of Publication, Reedley, California.

treat all men as brothers, but we do that when we meet them in our everyday walks. Preaching equality is one thing, but living it consistently is another and that comes not so much from hearing public discussions, as from the real spirit of Christian brotherhood that is within a man.

Specialization in the pulpit and in the church does not always fit, especially when it refers to classes. The Gospel that puts salvation up to the individual and urges surrender to the will of God is the best cure for the many social ills with which society is afflicted. Create a right relation between the individual and his God and then will follow a right relation between man and man. We are wondering why the pulpit has lost so much of its influence. The reason for this in many respects is because the preacher, who should be dealing with souls, has busied himself too much with matters of social and political reform about which he too often knows little or nothing. Such things call for dealing with masses, but the effective Christian work consists in dealing with individual souls. G.

"CHRISTIANITY"

What Does It Mean To The World?

As I sat and thought of what it means, yes, what does it mean? It seemed I stood at the blacksmith's side watching him at his work. He was beating the red hot iron, then again sharpening a plow share, or perhaps shoeing a horse. I noticed as he looked up from his work, a smile, a satisfaction of having done his work well. I am sure the MASTER was well pleased.

Again I stood at the student's side viewing his work. The problem was difficult, the work tiresome and not in the least pleasant. He labored, he figured and thought. Thus employed, a classmate comes along with a lot of unfinished work, asking for a little help. Occupied himself to the utmost, we heard him say, "Sure, I'll help you." But a brief moment it seemed, and the other was through with his knotty problems and with a joyful heart went his way. We see him once more bending low and earnest over his work at once, scarcely knowing how a light was breaking out. I see it now, I see it all. (Oh! could you have seen his shining, sweet face!) How easy it works out! It surely will please the Master to know I've done my work well.

Again we pass on to a farmer boy, as whistling he goes about doing his work, carrying water, wood, and doing chores (untold). His heart is light, for it will please the Master to have all the work done.

We see the office girl sitting behind the desk. Her eyes speak that her soul is in touch with God. Her winning smile is a blessing and work to her is no burden.

Again we view the business man behind his desk. There he bends over his papers, all of vital importance. He is carried away with the thought of his son about to enter into the business world. A shadow seems to cloud his brow. And in a moment a faint whisper, yes, a prayer, rises toward God in behalf of his son. It seems the words come floating back: "All is well, thy prayer is heard."

Step softly as to the parsonage our steps are turned. The minister we find engaged in prayer, kneeling, pleading with God for the flock entrusted to his care. Their souls' salvation rests as a heavy burden upon his soul. A dear lamb, a babe in Christ, has strayed, how far thou hast not known. A sheep has left the fold, another has drifted along with the popular crowd. We hear him pleading, entreating, seeking that God may return the wanderers back to the fold. Unseen, unheard, a messenger comes and strengthens him. We seem to catch the words: "Thy prayer, thy faith, and thy request is heard and granted."

Leaving him, we pass through the crowded city. At once we stand before a plain, humble cottage, and as we peep into the room we see an aged couple about to partake of a simple meal, consisting of baked potatoes, a glass of milk, two slices of bread. In reverence and in humble spirit they bow their heads as father gives thanks for God's loving care, protection, and for the food that the Lord did provide. As we watched, it seemed we saw already a crown more beautiful than words can describe resting slightly above their heads as if to say, "Just a few more days and the final winning race is run." "Henceforth (as Paul says) "is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."

Out of the clear sky there suddenly came a thundering crash — and the door of grace and time had swung shut.

The words of the poet came to our ears in truth — and oh! what a weeping and wailing, as the lost were told of their fate; they cried for the rocks and the mountains they prayed, but their prayer was too late.

Christianity then will mean to every believing soul, LIFE, eternal life.

The curtain was lifted and a strange sight greeted our eyes for a passing moment. It semeed we viewed heaven itself. — The blacksmith, the student, the office girl, the minister, and the aged, sainted couple were in that heavenly choir, singing the song of Moses and the Lamb.

It pays, brother, it pays TO BE A CHRISTIAN. Do not put it off! Behold, NOW is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation.

Pray now, that your prayer may not be too late. Arthur F. Ortmann.

LIVING WITH A LIVING GOD

"Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me." "Ye believe in God." "For our God is a CONSUMING FIRE."

Do We Really Want A Living God?

Moses, Israel, in the wilderness "Trembled" at God's voice. Isaiah heard God's voice, and cried "Woe is me." God called to Jesus, and Jesus "Sweat great drops of blood."

What truth lay at the roots? A "LIVING GOD." "For our God is a consuming fire."

What God Demands

We want "out" of these crises and our confusion too easy. We need to study Hebrews 12.

(1) A frank acknowledgement of sin. If we are unwilling to admit that "SIN" led us where we are today, then our way "out" is hopeless indeed. Jesus' message was prefaced by "Repent." "Repentance," then the "Kingdom."

(2) A Living God demands Truth. "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life. — Ye shall know the Truth. — I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now; but the Spirit of Truth — will guide you into all truth." "Our God is a consuming fire" who demands that we "resist unto blood" (give our lives) "striving against sin."

(3) A Living God demands responsibility for attitudes and actions. "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." If we put our trust in material things and worship material gods; if we say "we have no sin," then we must be willing to take consequences of our acts and attitudes the "chastening of the Lord."

A Living God Gives:

(1) Life. "No chastening — seemeth to be joyous — but afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteousness unto them which are exercised thereby." Those who are "exercised" by our present "chastening" and learn God's lesson — will find life.

(2) A Faith "That Cannot Be Shaken." "Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but also heaven — that those things which cannot be shaken may remain."

Carl J. Landes.

MRS. CHRISTINE H. DUERKSEN WRITES FROM KORBA, INDIA

"We do not go before the world begging the world to open its doors. We do not beg the world to support us to defend us, or to protect us; but in the authority of this name of Christ, we demand that the world render unto God the things that are God's.

When we go in the name, in the authority and in the power of Christ, the enmity and hatred of the world is immediately aroused."

From a sermon "In His Name," by Dr. Mark A. Matthews, published in King's Business.

Extract from a camp letter.

Katghara.

"Yesterday in Churri, I tried to find the man who once asked whether we could help him. He had accepted a New Testament from me last April. I went to his house and they told me that he was at the bazaar, but when I got to the bazaar they told me he was at his house. A little later I went to his house again and they said he had gone for a walk. It was almost like that on Wednesday, and I am beginning to wonder whether we have lost out in Churri. But it may be that the Holy Spirit is working there and for that very reason some do not want to have anything to do with me. At any rate, I did not see it that way when I was there, and consequently felt rather blue.

At sunset I stood here on the veranda wondering what I could do. Many men were walking past the mission compound and in short succession two different men whom I do not know, called out to me and asked whether I would come and speak to their group. The first was a shopkeeper who said that at noon a group of men always came to his shop. I should come too and 'cause them to hear.'

When the second man went by in his group he asked me to come to their village in the evening. We went there last night and had a good meeting. We gave them our message, sang our bhajans (Christian songs to native tunes) and all left quietly, without any debate. The twelve o'clock meeting is to be now and I must get ready to go.

ARE MISSIONARIES "WOLVES"?

Recently a young Cheyenne Indian told the writer that the Indians of the "Peyote" religion have an explanation for the words of the Lord Jesus in Matt. 7:15, "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves." His remarks were about as follows: "For a long time the Indians did not understand these words of Jesus. They have seen many wolves and know their sneaking habits, but they have never seen a natural wolf dressed in sheep's clothing. Therefore the word 'wolves' here must refer to people. Before the whites came to this country, we Indians did not use wool for clothing. The whites came here wearing woolen clothes. Soon they cheated us out of our game and land; so the whites must be the 'wolves.' Now the missionaries have come to us also wearing 'sheep's clothing' and telling us that our religion is not good. They are trying to rob us of our religion. So they must be the real 'wolves.' Jesus Himself says, 'Beware of them.'"

Another example: Many years ago an old Cheyenne chief came to the writer to "borrow" some money and usually they consider a loan the same as a gift. He said: "Most of the whites are wolves. I have known you a long time, but I do not know yet whether you are also a wolf or not. Today I have come to find out. I want to visit some friends in Montana and need $50.00 more for the trip. If you loan me that amount of money, I will know that you are my friend; if you do not loan it to me, I will know that you are a wolf, as other whites."

Though the missionaries may be called "wolves" by those whom they try to help, that they may become the "sheep" of the "Good Shepherd," they need not be discouraged when they remember that this Shepherd, who knew no sin, was called by even worse names. After all, it is better to BE sheep among the wolves, than wolves among the sheep, regardless of what one is called. H. J. Kliewer.

OUR DIAMOND JUBILEE

How Shall We Celebrate It?

1. By Thanksgiving.—Let it be, first of all, a Call to Prayer! The fact that our General Conference is permitted to celebrate its seventy-fifth anniversary in 1935 is cause for rejoicing and thanksgiving, for praise and prayer, for meditation and devotion, for self-examination and humility, for a spiritual revival and renewed consecration. May it be to us a matter of Faith and Trust in God who is able to perform what He has promised (Rom. 5:21).

While much remains to be done and much has been done but feebly; yet the Lord has visibly blessed the efforts put forth in His cause. However, there is yet much to do. He wants us to give praise and rejoice because of past blessings, but we must also prayerfully look ahead —must face the future hopefully with our Lord.

Our deep gratitude for the past will surely please Him. But will it, can it, also please Him fully if we appear before His altar with lip-service and loaded down with financial debts— with unpaid vows — not having brought to His storehouse the whole tithe, as good stewards should?

The Prophet Malachi wrote: "Bring ye the whole tithe into the storehouse, that there may be food in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith Jehovah of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

2. By a Thank-Offering.—Let us prove the Lord! Let us plead His promise! Let us make this an occasion for a consecrated thank-offering. We have debts. And surely it will please the Lord and inspire us mightily if all of these debts are completely wiped out when we gather to celebrate our Diamond Jubilee. Let us make this a prayerful goal and all join hearts and hands to do it! If it is done spontaneously, without undue urging from without, it will be doubly blessed. To this end, who will volunteer to bring a real sacrifice — to contribute a thank-offering to a Special Jubilee Fund?

3. A Jubilee Fund. — The Executive Committee of the General Conference has approved this project and has named the undersigned a committee to present it to you.

The purpose of this Jubilee Fund is:

a) To pay off all debts of Conference Boards, so we may celebrate our Diamond Jubilee free from debts.

b) Any remainder is to be a Permanent Jubilee Fund, the income of which is to be used as the Conference or the Executive Committee may determine.

c) As always, donors may, if they wish, say that their gifts are to go for some specific cause. Otherwise they go into the Jubilee Fund.

d) All gifts for the Jubilee Fund are to be sent to the Conference Treasurer, Karl A. Richert, Newton, Kansas. Send yours now on blank below.

e) Any and all gifts, small or large, will be thankfully received. It is desired that just as many as possibly can may have a share in this thank-offering. Give as the Lord has prospered you.

In the Master's and your service,

The Jubilee Fund Committee.
C. E. Krehbiel,
Secretary General Conference,
Newton, Kansas.
H. J. Krehbiel,
Chairman Publication Board,
Reedley, California.
Mrs. R. A. Goerz,
Secretary Women's Mission Association,
Newton, Kansas.
D. D. Eitzen,
Chairman Y. P. Committee,
722 E. 79 St., Los Angeles, California.

- - - - - - - - - - - - - - - -

GIFT BLANK

Karl A. Richert, Conference Secretary,
Newton, Kansas.

Dear Brother Richert:

Enclosed please find ....
$..................................as Thank-Offering for the Diamond Jubilee Fund of the General Conference. May the Lord add His richest blessing!

Name..

Address...

Date...

YOUNG PEOPLE'S BIBLE CONFERENCE

November 29 to December 2, Bluffton, Ohio

The Young Peoples' Bible Class of the St John Mennonite Church sponsored a four-day Bible Conference. The theme of the conference was, "Consecrated Youth for Sacrificial Service."

The speakers were C. E. Rediger, Business Manager of Bluffton College (formerly connected with home mission work in Chicago), Prof. D. L. Foster, instructor of Personal Evangelism at Moody Bible Institute, and Miss Martha Burkholder, Dean of Women and Instructor of Bible at Bluffton College (formerly missionary in India). The music was furnished by the Gospel Quartet and Prof. Adolph Gerber from Fort Wayne Bible Institute.

All the messages both in song and word were brought in a forceful way stirring the hearts of the listeners to realize the necessity of yielding oneself wholly and completely to the Lord's will. It is only then that we have the real joy as a Christian.

Miss Burkholder spoke on "Service in the Foreign Field." She pointed out the great need of many more workers on the foreign field, among those especially mentioned were India, Tibet, Africa, Siberia, South America, and Europe. It should be the aim of the church to send out as many missionaries as possible. The parents and colleges should endeavor to encourage and train the youth for such work. It is love that prompts missionaries to leave home with all the conveniences, opportunities, and friends to go to those yet in darkness. Some of the requisites of a missionary are: (1) Be familiar and well grounded in the Bible, (2) obtain a Bible School training, (3) be able to typewrite and know bookkeeping, (4) be willing to give up conveniences of homeland and willing to go wherever He leads, (5) be well trained in all lines, for a missionary is called upon to know and do almost anything.

C. E. Rediger gave an address on "Service in the Homeland." Many instances were cited which he observed in the Home Mission work that portrayed the awfulness of sin. It is a privilege to consecrate ourselves to God in our youth, rather than wasting our life for the enemy first and then turning to God for salvation. We owe consecrated service to God not only for His sake, but owe it to those about us.

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication..........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office..........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance..........$1.50
Foreign..........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

It is a big job, but profitable in this life and in the life to come.

Professor Foster spoke on "Service Through Personal Evangelism" and "A Glorious Gospel for a Needy World." These are some of the high lights of his messages. Some requirements of a personal worker are: (1) Know the Bible, (2) know for certain you are saved, (3) live a clean life. We cannot live a double life and expect to win someone to Christ. (4) Fully yield yourself to the Lord. Consecrate your time, talents, hands, feet, intellect, voice, ambitions — everything to Him. (5) Spend much time in prayer. Have we callouses on our knees from praying? (6) Do we really believe that men and women outside of Christ are lost? Christ expects us to be witnesses for Him. Are we sometimes like rivers at the Arctic—frozen at the mouth? We find ourselves speaking of almost anything else, but when it comes to telling about Christ we hesitate. Why? Be desperately in earnest to tell of the saving power of Jesus Christ. Much emphasis was given to obeying the Lord when He speaks to you. Do not say "no" when He calls you. Do what He says. Go where He sends. Sometimes God has to bring us to the end of ourselves to make us willing to accept His will. Are we down on our knees seeking the will of God for our lives? He will reveal it to us. God is not desiring dead sacrifices, but living sacrifices. Romans 12:1. God is calling on the very best young people to go out to lost humanity. Does God have control of our money? We are responsible for what we do with it. He expects us to pray about spending our money. It is a sin to have things if we rob God to have them.

Great are our privileges as Christians, and great are our responsibilities.

Lenna Augsburger,
Young People's Correspondent.

HOSPITAL PRAYER MEETING KAI CHOW, HOPEI

A prayer meeting is held every Saturday morning from eight to eight-thirty o'clock in the Kai Chow Mission Hospital. All the workers of the hospital — doctor, evangelist, Bible woman, nurses, students, and other helpers,— meet together for the purpose of praise, confession, and prayer.

Praise—Psalm 107:8, "O that man would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men"!

Praise God for His grace in Christ Jesus, by whose merit we may come to the Father.

Praise God for such a wonderful Gospel to preach!

Praise God for the continued support from the home-churches — Mex. $6000.00 or about U. S. Gold $2000.00 for hospital for one year. Think how many pennies, dimes, quarters, dollars, dollar bills, and checks it took to make up that amount! How many, old and young, helped in this! We thank God for such mission spirit among our people at home.

Praise God that we all have a work to do, for all the relief we could give to suffering ones.

Praise God that we all have our food, clothing, and shelter.

Confession—It was said not long ago that "the people in China are all either Christians or atheists." How much of this burden is my share? Am I as active in working with souls as I should be? Have I done all I can?

It has also been said, "One blazing soul sets another on fire." Am I as warmhearted as I might be? Are other people lukewarm because I am lukewarm?

How many of us are completely surrendered?

Matthew 23:23, "These ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone."

Prayer—"Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing instant in prayer."

Prayer for the continued filling of our needs, also for the coming year: Hospital, $6000.00, gold $2000.00; School of Nursing, $540.00 (new class; Country Clinics, $1000.00; School of Nursing, $1469.00 (senior class).

Pray for a new Chinese doctor. Since Dr. Pannabecker we had a young doctor, but he felt he could not shoulder the responsibility alone, he did not have enough experience. Now we have word from another doctor, pray that God might call him here and bring him safely to us, and that all arrangements for his service here can be satisfactorily made, and that he may be a great blessing to the many patients of our district.

Pray for our graduate nurses out in the work: Mr. Liu Hsiu Ming in the south, Mr. Wang Teh Hua in Ch'ing Feng, Miss Li Hua Yun in Tsinan Christian University Hospital for six months' experience.

Pray for Mr. J. T. Wang, our head nurse, who is going to Peiping for post-graduate work for eight months.

Pray for our students who are to take national examinations in December that their knowledge and their spirit of service may develop hand in hand.

Pray for the patients who come to stay in the hospital — that God may give them a heart to repent and turn to Him.

Pray for the patients who come to the clinic daily, and for those that have been in the hospital formerly, who heard the Gospel preached to them, that the Holy Spirit may continue His gracious work in their hearts and bring them to full knowledge and experience of salvation.

Pray for Dr. C. L. Pannabacker in the homeland, that he may be able to prepare himself further for service again here in China, when his furlough is finished.

Pray for the evangelistic work of the mission, catechism classes twice a year, tent work going on all the time, moving from village to village, that the seeds sown may fall on prepared ground.

Pray for the steady work of the church, that soon there may be found men among the Chinese who can be ordained as elders.

Let us all pray together for revival meetings —that God may send to us His servants to lead us on to know the Lord more really and be blessed from His very fullness.

Our dear prayer-helpers at home, we depend on you to help draw the net of the Gospel around many who are still without the fold!

We thank you for all you have done in praying and giving, may you find great joy in continuing your support.

Whenever the Spirit reminds you of us, please pray, we need your help just then.

By the time this reaches you the "Week of Evangelism" (Chinese New Year season) will be here. Pray God's blessings upon His messengers who go out into the villages everywhere, upon the message in song, scripture, and tract form.

Yours for Him out in the field,

Elizabeth D. Goertz.

GOD'S PROMISES ARE TRUE

A few days ago a woman called at the Bible House; the Sunday previous she had heard the secretary give a message in one of the churches and being in the city only for a few days she made use of her opportunity to call and tell us of her wonderful experience and the result of placing one Bible in the home of a needy family. She lived in the section where the people had very few religious privileges and in many homes there was not even a Bible to be found. The children were growing up to manhood and womanhood without any knowledge of God or any knowledge of what is right and wrong as based on the Law of God.

This woman wrote to the Northern Bible Society years ago, giving the name and address of a very needy family who wanted a Bible. She described the home in which they lived as being a log house one story high — a ladder was fastened to the wall leading up to the attic under the roof. This family had three boys — they slept on a bed of hay in the attic, in the evening these boys would take the Bible and a lantern and climb up the ladder to get to their bed of hay and by lantern light would read their Bible. The good seed of the Word of God was falling on good ground. It is easy to understand the spiritual hunger of these boys living in the backwoods, as they had no opportunities to read various books or periodicals or visit cities and look into the wonderful display windows. Their hearts and minds were not contaminated with many things that are a curse to many city boys. The Word of God soon brought about a change in their lives as they accepted the Lord Jesus as their Lord and Savior, their hearts and lives were so filled with joy and gladness that they began to engage in service for the Lord, organizing a Sunday School and leading it. Other members in the family and neighbors were led to Christ through the service of these three boys and the one Bible that our Society had given them. How true is God's promise when He said, "My Word shall not return unto me void." God has no one to send out His Word only His faithful children, and only as we send it out can this wonderful promise be fulfilled.

We kindly ask the friends to plead the promises of God in prayer in behalf of the work of the Northern Bible Society, indicated by Spurgeon. John 15:16. Every promise of Scripture is a writing of God which may be pleaded before Him with this reasonable request, "Do as Thou hast said." The Creator will not cheat His creature who depends upon His truth: and, far more, the Heavenly Father will not break His Word to His own child, "Remember the Word unto Thy servant, on which Thou hast caused me to hope," is a most prevalent pleading. It is a double argument: It is Thy Word, wilt Thou not keep it? Why hast Thou spoken of it if Thou wilt not make it good? Thou hast caused me to hope in it, wilt Thou disappoint the hope which Thou hast Thyself begotten in me?

Northern Bible Society.
Bible House, 715 West Superior Street,
Duluth, Minnesota.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE AT MEADOWS MENNONITE CHURCH

On January 6, 1935, was held the anniversary service for Rev. George I. Gundy, pastor of the Meadows Mennonite Church, Meadows, Illinois. It was rather a threefold celebration. Rev. Gundy had completed ten years service as pastor of the Meadows Mennonite Church and also as superintendent of the Old People's Home. On October 4, 1934, he had also completed twenty-five years of service in the ministry. In the third place it was the thirty-first wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. Gundy. Rev. Gundy was raised in the Carlock community. He was baptized by Rev. Joseph Stuckey in 1899. and united with the North Danvers Mennonite church. He served both as Sunday School teacher and Sunday School superintendent of that church. He was ordained to the ministry by his father-in-law, Rev. Valentine Strubhar, October 4, 1909. He had been preaching since Spring of 1909 at the Congerville Mennonite church. He was pastor of the Congerville church for fifteen years, driving fourteen miles to serve his church. The Meadows Mennonite church called him to be their pastor and he began his work January 4, 1925. The anniversary services were held in the afternoon and evening. Rev. Ben Esch served as chairman of the afternoon session. Rev. Gundy and Rev. King gave the main addresses of the afternoon. A number of the ministers present were called upon for short remarks, also several of Brother Gundy's members. Rev. E. Troyer gave the address of the evening which closed the anniversary services. We are wishing for Rev. Gundy many more years of service in the ministry.

HOW MAY WE STIMULATE MORE MISSIONARY INTEREST IN THE CHURCH?

M. C. Lehman

I. By Giving Missionary Work the Place It Merits in Church Activity

The remark is frequently heard that missionary interest in the Mennonite church is on the decrease. This may or may not be true. On the negative side one could point out the opening of a new foreign work in Africa and many new mission Sunday Schools and rural projects in North America.

On the affirmative side one could point to the decrease in donation for foreign work as shown by our General Treasurer's figures since 1927, before the "depression" set in. There is a noticeable decrease in the number of missionary subjects treated in our Sunday School and Church Conferences during the last three years. The laity of some congregations claim their ministers preach less missionary sermons than formerly.

Whichever position one may take on this question the fact remains that missionary interest should be continually on the increase. It is a legitimate question therefore, to ask what can be done to stimulate greater missionary interest throughout the brotherhood which will result in more systematic support of our present work and make possible a program of sustained expansion.

Basic to other questions as to methods to stimulate interest is the question as to what the Bible teaches about missions. The modern word missions is not found in the Bible. The word has come into the English language since the time of the production of the King James version.

There is no clearer or more unconditional command in the New Testament than Matt. 28:19, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." All legitimate missionary activity has as its object the bringing of a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ to people who do not have it and bringing them into the fold of Christ. Insofar as missions conform to this standard they are obedience to the above command. Missions in this sense are biblically based and commanded. The denomination, congregation or individual who willfully or negligently is less than alert to obey this command is as guilty of disobeying the spoken Word of God as if any other biblical command were disobeyed. Missions should accordingly never be a mere adjunct to other church activity. They need to be part and parcel of the church's program. If we have allowed them to slip from such a place our duty is penance, reconsecration and renewed activity.

We need to remember also that missions spring from the very nature of God as revealed in Christ. Contrasting His mission in this world with the claims of other teachers Christ says, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." To accomplish that mission He willingly gave His life. Jesus' sacrifice of His life was made in order to reveal God's love for all humanity was so keen as to merit the death of His Son to accomplish the possible salvation of the world and satisfy divine justice. He desired that fact to furnish motive power for the spread of His Gospel. The atonement is a motivating factor for missions.

The nature of God is basic to missions in another respect. God is universal. Note the first commandment (Ex. 20:3), "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." His very nature as God demands universality. No one would care to give allegiance to a God claiming jurisdiction over only certain races, nations or geographical areas. Godhood, in the Christian sense, implies universality as nothing. God is God of the whole world or He is no God at all. Christian can accordingly take no other attitude than t make His Gospel universally known. To do les is to give a wrong and partial view of God's nature.

Missions should be an organic part in th church's program because our own salvation a Mennonites is the result of a foreign missior movement. Little more than a thousand years ago our forefathers were worse heathen in the forests of northern and eastern Germany than there are in India today. They offered human sacrifices to false gods. Their evangelization came about through missionaries being sent to them from Italy. Had Paul not been obedient to the Macedonian call at Troas, Italy might not have been evangelized. In any case our salvation is the result of Paul's missionary work. Would it be Christian to deny to others the salvation we have received ourselves?

(Concluded in next issue.)

CORRESPONDENCE

Paso Robles, California. Season's greetings to all who read this report from the First Mennonite Church of Paso Robles.

As the year 1934 is drawing to a close and we look back over the past months, we have much to be thankful for.

About a year ago twelve new members were added to the church, nine who had been instructed in the Holy Scriptures by our pastor, Rev. C. Hege, and three by the right hand of fellowship.

On special occasions this church and the San Marcos church have made it a practice to worship together, such as baptismal services and the rare services of the ordination of a minister (Rev. Albert Jantzen, who is now stationed at Ransom, Kans.) We also have regular Union C. E. meetings. The last one was held here on the afternoon of October 21. The program was entirely devoted to music and was enjoyed by all.

The weather has been very nice up until just recently when we have had some frosty nights. It is nice and green now, as we have had about four inches of rain.

The S. S. Department is busy preparing a program for Christmas, to be given on Sunday evening, December 23.

Upon the invitation from the South Mennonite Church of Freeman, S. D., our pastor, Rev. C. Hege, and formerly pastor of that church, is conducting a series of meetings there. From there Rev. Hege and wife were stopping off at Nebraska and Kansas before coming home. May God protect them on their journey and bring them safely back to us again.

First Mennonite Congregation, Newton, Kansas, December 27, 1934. The time since the first of October has passed so rapidly, and brought our congregation so many diversions and blessings that the correspondent is afraid that this correspondence will be rather lengthy.

The correspondent was operated on September 17, and so for a while could not take any notes.

On November 4th Dr. Kaufman preached. Since November 6, we had in our church a green, a silver, and a golden wedding.

On November 6, Gerhard Enns married the widow of his intimate friend, J. G. Regier. Brother Regier was for many years the treasurer of our mission board. Rev. P. E. Frantz, brother-in-law of the bride, spoke in English, our pastor, J. E. Entz, spoke in German, and performed the ceremony. About 200 persons were invited to a social gathering in the basement of the church. After the lunch there was an interesting program. Rev. P. R. Voth spoke, then our missionary Linscheid from Oklahoma spoke of the wedding customs among the Cheyennes. The bridegroom steals the bride and is not allowed to look at his mother-in-law, nor speak to her. Rev. J. E. Entz closed with a farewell to Sister Susie Penner, who was engaged to P. P. Hildebrand. She came by way of Harbin to America and studied in Bethel College. He studied in Germany, and has now a position in Paraguay. She now went to Paraguay, after several years of separation.

On November 18, Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander from McPherson preached in the morning; in the evening Rev. Ramseyer from Duluth, Minn., spoke of the work of the Bible Society. One evening the Missionary Volunteer Band of Bethel College gave a very good program. On Thanksgiving Day Bro. C. v. d. Smissen spoke German to the congregation and on missions in English to the children. The mission collection was over $250.00.

On December 2, Rev. C. C. Wedel from Alexanderwohl preached in the morning. In the afternoon was the silver wedding of Brother and Sister E. M. Harder. The church upstairs and downstairs was beautifully decorated with silver. Rev. H. W. Harder, brother of the bridegroom, opened the meeting with a short address and prayer. Rev. J. E. Entz, brother of the bride, gave the main address. Rev. H. J. Dyck spoke in English. In the basement 350 invited guests were served by 50 waiters. The principal speech during the program was by Dr. G. Winrod from Wichita. He spoke on the Christian Home.

On December 18, was the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Claassen. He is well known since he for many years was the treasurer of the relief committee. Here he is known for his kindness to others, trying to help others, especially with his automobile, and their home is known for their hospitality. At the celebration in the church auditorium Rev. J. E. Entz spoke in English, and Rev. A. Warkentin, our pastor on leave of absence, from Chicago, spoke German. In the basement, after the lunch, a number of speeches and poems were given. A son of Mr. Claassen threw old photographs of the bride and groom on a screen, and Rev. Warkentin explained them. There were about 250 guests invited.

On December 16, in the evening our choir and the choir of the Christian congregation gave the cantata, "The Coming of the King" in our church. On December 23, they gave it in the Christian church.

On Tuesday, December 25, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel preached in the forenoon. In the evening the Sunday School gave a very fine program in the beautifully decorated church, singing quite a number of German Christmas songs. The classes brought their mission boxes.

Wishing you all a very blessed and successful new year, fraternally yours,

C. H. van der Smissen.

First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa., December 24, 1934. Some time ago our people were fortunate to be able to listen to a program brought by the Green Masked Silver Tenor. This is the name by which he is known to his radio audience, the only name he can use in public, because of his radio contracts. He is a former light opera singer who became converted and is thoroughly alive to the great needs of our day. He has a message and seeks to devote it to the Master's service. His wide experience enriches a program of sacred gems, interspersed with explanatory interpretations, truly helpful to many members of the choir, who were present. His greatest value to the average audience of young people undoubtedly is his message on conditions in America and their cause. He cited former President Theodore Roosevelt's investigation of moral conditions in 1910 with a number of other leaders in American life. These facts were gathered and released before the world war in 1914, so that the usual cause given for our moral decline being the world war, is not entirely correct. The facts were based upon the crime records all over the country and were analyzed by the statistician, George Babson, and were also presented at the National Chief of Police Convention by Mr. Pinkerton, head of the detective agency. These statistics showed that crime was increasing faster than our population by 100 and more percent. Our country had reached its highest peak about 20 years previous to 1910, the beginning of this investigation. Our nation was already in the great moral decline that precedes the fall of all nations, although only 150 years old. Nations usually come to be 300 years old before this decline sets in.

Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt stated that "History is simply the record of the rise and fall of nations." This investigation showed just where we were at. Special stress was laid upon jazz music, the moving picture theater, and the modern dance as the cause of the moral decline today, speeding up this decline at a much faster pace than 20 years ago. He quoted those in professional touch with penetentiaries and criminals of all types that the causes of the same lie principally in the above modern so-called amusements.

He gave us the following references for study: Matt. 18:1-11; Rom. 12:21; Phil. 4:8; Rom. 12:1; 1 Cor. 12:4-7; impressing the fact of our serious responsibilities to separate self from the world; the privileges of ministering being especially great at this time. Among Sunday School teachers, workers, and the ministry too often the terribleness of sin is lost sight of, worldliness and not saintliness, is the sign of the times.

The story is told of Ex-President Coolidge coming home from church one Sunday, his wife asked him about the service and what the sermon was about. Mr. Coolidge replied, "Sin." "Well, what did he say"? asked his wife. "He was against it," said Mr. Coolidge. Too often today you can go to church and discover little about sin or that any one is much opposed to it.

Rev. Jas. R. Clinton of the Pennsylvania Bible Institute and a pastor of a Congregational church of Philadelphia, was with us recently for a series of meetings. His sermon topics for the week follow: "Straightening the Paths"; "Living in the Limitless"; "Spiritual Rebukes"; "The Ministry of Neglect"; "The Mightiest Ministry of the Universe"; "The Final Verdict." One sermon was almost entirely composed of Scripture references quoted nearly all from memory. Like a beautiful piece of tapestry woven and interwoven with Bible truths from beginning to end. Rev. Clinton has a beautiful, blessed expository gift with a message in melody that is a treat for those who are hungry for God's word. His hymn interpretations as he sings the old favorites are an inspiration. It was a treat and we were truly blessed.

The Bowmansville church, Rev. Stubbs, pastor, surprised us by dropping in for Christian Endeavor and evening church services one Sunday recently. We appreciated that. Especially the young people of the Bowmansville church with their courageous testimony in Christian Endeavor impressed us. Come again, Bowmansville!

The Brotherhood sponsored a men's meeting in October. There was a discussion on the topic, "What shall I do in case of war"?

Each speaker was given five minutes to discuss the question from various viewpoints. Stanley Ersinhard spoke as a war veteran; Wm. Geisinger as an educator; John Backensto as a college graduate; Donald Miller as the average man; Wm. Mohr as an industrialist; Rev. H. G. Nyce on the Mennonite viewpoint. The speakers all did well, and we enjoyed hearing them.

Many took part in the active general discussion that followed. There were almost as many different ideas as men present — a kind of rugged individualism, as it were. It showed us how difficult it is to maintain a typical Mennonite background in a city church. The men of the Upper Milford Church were present with us and helped to make the meeting an interesting one. If you want a mentally stimulating and thought provoking meeting, try this.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

"The Lord is in His holy place,
In all things near and far,
Shekinah of the snowflake, He,
And glory of the star.
The secret of the April-wind,
That stirs the field to flowers,
Whose little tabernacles rise
To hold Him through the hours."
—Mrs. Browning.

THE ACID TEST OF OBEDIENCE

Dr. R. A. Torrey said: "One evening I was told that a minister's son was to be present in my congregation, and though he professed to be a Christian, he did not work much at it. I watched for him, and selected the man in the audience who I thought was he, and selected the right man. At the close of the service I hurried to the door by which he would leave, and shook hand with different ones as they passed out. When he came I took his hand and said: 'Good evening! I am glad to see you; are you a friend of Jesus?' 'Yes,' he answered, heartily, 'I consider myself a friend of Jesus.' 'Jesus said,' I replied, 'Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.' His eyes fell. 'If those are the conditions, I guess I am not.' I put the same question to you: Are you a friend of Jesus? Are you doing whatsoever He commands you? Are you winning souls as He commands?"—Earnest Worker.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

January 27, 1935

What Is The Program Of Our Church?

Acts 6:1-7

In our discussion of last week we were considering the work of the church in a general way. In our discussion of this week we will examine the program of the church. Does your church have a definite program or are they "aiming at nothing and hitting it"? In our Scripture text, we find a situation which appears strangely modern. The church was growing rapidly, no doubt much more than ours today, but here comes the modern aspect, the ministers were doing most of the work, and everybody seemed to be satisfied, until the Gentiles felt that the "widows were neglected in the daily ministration," then they saw the wisdom of getting the laymen to work and urge the ministers to busy themselves with prayer and the ministry of the Word. That fault is quite prevalent today. The pastor is scattering himself over too many activities from being a "slap-on-the-back-small-town-preacher" to selling tickets for a "Ladies Aid Jitney Supper."

Planning a Church Program. Unless the church does work out a definite program she will accomplish but very little. It is a well recognized fact that the most active church is the one with a definite goal, setting to work the largest possible number of her members. Some large churches claim to have put as many as one thousand members to work, thus attaining a working membership of 100%.

There are some definite things which might be undertaken by the lay membership of any church. There might be a committee to care for the sick and those in need of relief. They might furnish help when necessary, inform the pastor of those who are sick, etc. Another committee might be concerned with the promotion of stewardship and finances; study those problems, make suggestions and help promote better giving. A third committee might be called the committee on evangelism, concerning itself with the saving of souls, the midweek service, special evangelistic meetings, etc. Every church could with much profit have an active music committee to develop and enlarge the choir, plan for special musical programs of a spiritual nature, etc. The missionary committee might write and receive letters from missionaries, urge the increasing of missionary giving, procure and distribute literature. Still another committee might concern itself with the social life of the church which will be the welcoming committee, plan for social events such as Homecoming Days, and similar events. You may think of others which could serve to good advantage. In this way almost the entire membership could be given a task.

Questions

1. Why should the church have a program?
2. Along what lines should our church plan her program?
3. Is it possible to put every church member to work?
4. In what ways can our church develop her teaching program?
5. What might be attempted by a missionary committee?
6. How could our church become a more evangelistic body?
7. What can young people do to make the work of the church more effective?

February 3, 1935

Wanted! Youth For The Kingdom!

I Timothy 4:6-16

This is Christian Endeavor Day. Plan to make it a special service. Perhaps you will want to make it a union service with other Endeavors in your community. Plan a special program with good music, challenging speakers, and close the service with a note of consecration for YOUTH. Somewhere in the program it would be well to have someone review the origin and the history of C. E., stressing the consecrated services of Dr. Francis E. Clark, the father of Christian Endeavor.

In the Scripture portion, Paul, now an elderly man, is speaking to young Timothy, admonishing him in the way of Christian living like an interested father to a son who is willing to learn from an older man. We are returning to the place where youth is no longer quite as sophisticated as they were for the last decade or so. We are recognizing that youth supplies the driving power for life, but age supplies the wisdom and the balance which years bring.

The greatest asset to every youth is a full consecration to Jesus Christ and His service, possessing that loyalty which comes when one has received the "being born again." Following that first step every youth may acquire true success and a strong Christian character if he will first of all not be afraid of work, much work, for work is a gift from God, it is no disgrace to work. And in the second place let our friend Youth seek the Christian virtues, rooting out any habits which may mar. In many a life the only obstacle between the life as it is and the greater success is a deep-rooted habit which will ever keep life mediocre until that habit is replaced by a virtue.

Questions

1. Tell of some instances when God called youth for definite service.
2. What did Jesus think of youth in respect to discipleship?
3. Why are regeneration and consecration necessary?
4. What are the relative merits of youth and old age?
5. What are some outstanding historical facts of Christian Endeavor?
6. What are some requirements of youth in their preparation for service?
7. Why do some youths refrain from entering the Kingdom?
8. What are the greatest challenges for youth today?

February 10, 1935

Improving Our Attitude Toward The People Of Other Races

Acts 10:34-35

It is well that Christian Endeavor should again spend an evening to think upon this very important topic. Christians above all others should be tolerant and sympathetic to peoples of other races. In our Scripture portion Peter says, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons." But Peter did not always believe thus, it required a vision from heaven to convince him that Gentiles could also become Christians without becoming Jews first. Some good Christians seem almost as intolerant and obstinate as was Peter before his vision.

In your discussions, deal with facts — tell about our lynchings, our mobs, about the way we call foreigners unbecoming names, ridicule, and even hate them. Why? Simply because we are ignorant, we do not know them, we do not try to understand them. We forget that they are humans just like we are, that they appreciate kind words and signs of true love and friendship. The great majority of mobs, race riots, and even national wars might be eliminated if we would take the time and effort to understand other peoples.

In discussing the race problem some who have never mingled with foreigners become sentimental, even to the extent of being willing to marry one of another race. In most cases it is difficult enough for two people of the same race to adjust themselves to each other, letting alone coming from entirely different race stock, habits and ways of thinking. There are right ways of dealing with those of other races and there are also foolish ways of mingling with them. But justice and a true understanding are essential.

Questions

1. What has caused the difference in peoples, dividing them into races?
2. Why do most races have a dislike for other races?
3. Relate the manner in which Peter learned that God is a respecter of no special classes. (See Acts 10.)
4. What place does race prejudice have in the making of wars?
5. What is the effect of greed on the race problem?
6. Toward what races has America sinned most?
7. What does Christianity teach us concerning other races?
8. What can we do to improve the feeling toward other races?

What One Cent Did

It is said that a lady was filling a box for India when a child brought her a cent, with which she bought a tract and put it in the box. It was at length given to a Burmese chief, and led him to Christ. The chief told the story of his new God, and his great happiness, to his friends. They also believed, and cast away their idols. A church was built there, a missionary was sent, and fifteen hundred converted from heathenism was the result of that little seed. —The Youth's Visitor.

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan, 502 Leland St.,
Bloomington, Illinois

January 27, 1935

What Is The Program Of Our Church And Denomination?

II Cor. 4:1-7

Beginning Christian Endeavor Week
Denominational Day

Theme:
"Win and Hold Youth For Christ"

Pre-Prayer

That as youth we may be loyal to the church —our own church and the church universal.

This being the beginning of the Christian Endeavor Anniversary Week, let us begin with focusing our attention on church loyalty and the denominational program for the year.

The following program is the outline of the program for the year and is given by the Intermediate Superintendent, Mrs. Ernest Schirch, Chenoa, Illinois. The full plans are sent to each church which has an Intermediate Society.

January—World Friendship. Starting the New Year with Christ.

February—Preparation. Stressing the Lookout Committee Work.

March—Cost and Price of Friendship.

April—Decision month.

May—Leadership. Better Endeavor Course. Publicity Committee.

June—C. E. Rally, C. E. Retreat, Life Work.

July—Out of Door Worship Services.

August—Vacation Time and Conference.

September—Bible Reading.

October—Prayer. Quiet Hour, and Tenth Legion.

November—Bible Study. Missionary.

December—Brotherhood.

Questions

1. What does our denomination expect of its young people?
2. Are we doing all we can for our church?
3. Is our church doing all it can to help its people?
4. What should our church do for the community?

5. What phase of mission work has our C. E. society undertaken?
6. Are we helping or doing our part in this great work?

Your Picture

"Is my life a disappointment
To the One who loves my soul,
Have I given all to Jesus,
Is my life in His control?

He's the Lily of the Valley,
Fairest of the fair is He.
Does my life reflect His glory?
Can the world see Christ in me?"

February 3, 1935

Wanted! Youth For The Kingdom!

Matt. 19:13-22

Christian Endeavor Day

Consecration Service
"Win and Hold Youth for Christ"

Pre-Prayer

That we may have power and courage to enlist in Christ's Company and remain true to that kingdom.

Hymns—"I am Thine, O Lord," "Just as I am,' 'Give of the Best to the Master."

Christ blessed the little children and said, "For of such is the kingdom of heaven." The quality of childlikeness, receptivity, and trustfulness, whether found in a child or an adult, is the necessary condition of obtaining the blessing of the kingdom.

The rich young ruler ran to Jesus. This shows his earnest enthusiasm, sincerity, and helps us to understand why Jesus loved him. All the commandments he had kept from his youth. Even the love of Christ does not blind Him to the fact that the young man's weakness is an incordinate trust in riches. Self-sacrificing love, shown by giving up of his wealth, can alone bring him into fellowship with God and thus insure eternal life. When Jesus said, "Follow me," it was an invitation of love.

What was the lesson that Jesus was trying to teach? Is there a place for children in God's kingdom? Read Matt. 18:1-4. There are other youths whom God was able to use. Matt. 10:2, John the youth; Gen. 39:1-6, Joseph; I Sam. 18:1-4, David; II Tim. 1:1-6, Paul's son in the Gospel; Luke 2:41-52, Jesus.

The rich young ruler loved his riches more than Christ, and Jesus told him to sell and give to the poor. Does that mean we are to give up all of our means, too? Can there be other idols that are between us and God? Does this lesson mean to give them up as well as "riches," so to inherit eternal life?

"Youth for the kingdom." Why? What is meant by the kingdom? Why should Intermediates crusade for the way of Jesus? What does Jesus offer the young people, an easy way or a hard one? If young people will not show courage is there any likelyhood that the world will ever give up its cruel ways?

Christian Endeavor founded fifty-four years ago yesterday, was begun with a group of young people, your age, who met with their pastor. It became an important part of that church and today it has spread until it includes young people of all denominations, race, and nations. All over the world its birthday is being celebrated by young people repledging themselves to the great principles of Christian Endeavor — open confession to Christ, active service for Christ, loyalty to Christ's church, fellowship with Christ's people. Are you willing to pledge yourself with this great throng? Re-read your pledge and re-consecrate yourself. If you have not signed one, do so and by so doing join with the youth of the nations. Read Romans 12:1. Close with "Take my life and let it be."

February 10, 1935

The Christian Use of Sunday

Rev. 1:9-11

I would not have Sunday to be an ordinary day and I have therefore given the jurisdiction of Sunday to my soul.

Pre-Prayer

Silent prayer that God may speak to you.

Amusements that injure the body, weaken the mind, or corrupt the morals ought to be avoided.

A safe rule for the young convert is never to indulge in any amusement that links him with a great evil institution.

Paul said that he could eat meat offered to idols; for he regarded an idol as nothing and it would not, therefore, injure him. He had a right to eat, but he had the higher right to give up his personal right for the good of the weaker brother.

Everything that any one ought to enjoy, the Christians may enjoy. What is sinful or hurtful to body, mind, or soul should not be indulged in by any one, and such indulgence displaces a purer enjoyment. If the young Christian will take Jesus Christ as the umpire of his life, submitting to Him his pleasures as well as his duties, his life will be full of light, and the shadows that come will only refresh. Jesus said, "I am the light of the world. He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." And this light never becomes darkness. It grows "brighter and brighter till the perfect day."

A pretty safe rule of conduct is to avoid doing anything that would cause heartache or headache.

Questions

1. How can we determine which is right or wrong?
2. Is it proper to engage in any outdoor sports on Sunday?
3. What is a Christian's duty on the Sabbath?
4. How did Jesus observe the Sabbath?
5. Read Mark 2:27. What did Jesus mean?
6. "An act which is not good enough for Sunday is not good enough for any day in the life of a Christian." What do you think of this statement?
7. Many students practice studying on Sunday. What is your attitude on this?

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
5454 So. Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois

January 27, 1935

Topic—What Do We Know About Our Church?

Acts 20:28

(Beginning Christian Endeavor Week. Denominational Day.)

How much do you know about your church? Many of you have gone to the same church since your parents carried you there as babies and it seems as if it had always been there. Of course you know it had a beginning, but did you ever ask when and why? Many years ago, soon after Christ went to heaven, a church was formed at Jerusalem. This was made up of many people, those who loved Him. Later on, these people had to go into different parts of the country because there were those who wanted to kill them. As they went, they told of Christ and many more people came to love Him. In that way churches were started in these places.

As time went on, men did not always agree on all teachings of the Bible, so even though they loved Christ, groups of people had different church laws and these started what we call denominations. One of these men was Menno Simon. Those who believed and worshipped as he did were called Mennonites. Their number grew and now we have many churches of this denomination in both the old word and the new. You may find out from your parents or superintendent just why your church was built and something of the good it has done.

Plans for the Meeting

Draw on the blackboard the picture of a tree with wide, spreading branches. Let this represent the church. It is rooted in Christ. The trunk may represent the early church when all Christians were a united group (Acts 4:32). The branches appear with the persecution (Acts 8:1, then as different denominations are formed the branches are sub-divided. Let each tiny twig represent a church. Some are far apart as to location, some much smaller than others, but all draw their strength from the root, Christ. Apart from Him, they die.

Follow this blackboard talk with a brief history of our denomination and of your church.

Questions

1. Who is the head of the church?
2. What is the reason for denominations?
3. How did the Mennonite church begin?
4. Why should we be loyal to our church?
5. What is the work of the church?

February 3, 1935

Topic—What Our Society Stands For

Luke 2:52

(A review and a forward look. Christian Endeavor Day.)

Last week we spoke of the church, how it came to be and why it is here. Today we want to think together of our own Junior Society. Why do we have that? There must be a reason. According to our pledge, which we have been studying, our society should stand for four things: The Christian Life, Prayer, Bible Reading, and Service. An ideal society, then, is one in which every Junior has accepted Christ, where all pray and read the Bible daily and where each one does his or her very best for Christ both in the meetings and outside. How nearly ideal is your society? What are you doing to make it what it should be? Think over the past year and as you see your own mistakes, determine that with God's help you will be a better member during 1935.

Plans for the Meeting

Place on the blackboard this adaptation of the well known question, "If every member were just like me, what kind of society would this one be"? Review together your work as a society during the past year. As you discover weak places, plan for improvement in the future. Such a subject as this must be discussed in a practical way, fitted to your particular group.

Questions

1. How may our society grow in favor with God?
2. What have we as a society done for the needy the past year?
3. What have we done for missions?
4. How may our society become a greater blessing to the community?
5. How can we improve our meetings?

February 10, 1935

Topic—God's Wonder Book: What It Tells Us About Our Body

1 Cor. 6:19, 20

WHAT GOD GIVES A BOY

"A pair of hands to use for himself and others, but never against others for himself.

"A body to keep clean and healthy, as a dwelling for his mind and a temple for his soul.

"A pair of feet to do errands of love, kindness, charity, and business; but not to loiter in places of mischief, or temptation, or sin.

"A pair of ears to hear music of birds, trees, and human voice; but not to give heed to what the serpent says or to what dishonors God."

—The Boy's Friend.

God's Wonder Book has a good deal to say about our bodies. They are wonderfully made (Psalm 139:14). They are made of many members, each of which is important (1 Cor. 12:14). We are told that we must not let sin reign in our bodies (Rom. 6:12), because the Holy Spirit lives in us who believe (1 Cor. 6: 19, 20). That is one great reason for eating and drinking only that which is good for me. A few days ago two men who were walking along the street were overheard speaking of the evils of drink. Both were drinking men, as could be plainly seen, yet both declared that only very foolish people drink and that they were harming themselves. Why did they drink? They, like many others, do not really want to, but they have become slaves to the habit. When people begin to drink they think they can take just a little once in a while, no one plans to become a drunkard, but many soon find out that they were wrong. God would have us keep our bodies and minds clean and pure. He wants them to be used for Him (Rom. 12:1), hands, feet, eyes, ears, voice, in fact our whole selves.

These bodies sometimes get sick, tired, or crippled, and finally old and worn out, but when Christ comes again we shall have perfect bodies (Phil. 3:21).

Plans for the Meeting

The subject today offers a splendid opportunity for a temperance meeting. Help the Juniors to see that tobacco, alcohol, and different types of worldly pleasure harm mind and body and make slaves of those who indulge. Use appropriate songs and readings. The fact that not only men, but women and children go into saloons or taverns, places a great responsibility upon all who have anything to do with teaching boys and girls. If possible, have object talks concerning not only the drink evil, but other forms of intemperance.

Questions

1. Why should we be careful of our bodies?
2. Why does God want our whole bodies given over to Him?
3. How would He have us use our eyes and ears?
4. Tell of evil effects of alcohol and tobacco.
5. Give some rules for keeping the mind pure.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

January 20, 1935

Peter's Lesson In Humble Service

Lesson Text.—John 13:1-17; 1 Pet. 5:5

Golden Text.—Yea all of you be subject one to another and be clothed with humility. 1 Pet. 5:5.

Mark says in his Gospel, that Jesus called His disciples unto Him, that they might be with Him, so that He might send them forth with power to do His work. The Sunday School Lesson we study today is an illustration, not only of Jesus' method of teaching, but also of the quality of life which a christian experience produces. Jesus had gone to Jerusalem for the last time, where He is to die on the cross. He holds a fellowship meeting with His disciples in an upper room. During the fellowship meal while the disciples are gathered around the table, Jesus rises from supper, took a towel and girded Himself. He then poured water into the basin and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel, with which He was girded. Peter, who is the character of our study, objected very strenuously that Jesus should wash his feet.

It might be of interest to bear in mind the oriental setting of this lesson. It was the custom in oriental countries, that after guests were gathered around the table, that a servant came and washed the guests' feet. Simon Peter knew that, but the thing that he could not understand, was the fact, that not a servant, but the Lord, should stoop to this menial service. This, of course, was the very reason that Jesus did it. He was giving an object lesson to Peter and the rest of the disciples on humility.

As Jesus and the disciples had been on the way to the upper room, Jesus turned and found them discussing among themselves, as to who should be the greatest in this Jewish kingdom, which they thought Jesus had come to establish. They were thinking in terms of position, honor and authority. They undoubtedly came to the upper room and gathered around the table in this quarrelsome, selfish mood, as to who should be the greatest. Jesus very strikingly, although the highest among them, took the place of an oriental servant, and began to wash their feet. No wonder Simon Peter could not understand it. The idea of a Lord washing his servant's feet was not the custom of the orient, and therefore causes not only surprise on the part of Peter, but undoubtedly disturbed his conscience. Jesus here not only taught the lesson of humiilty, but demonstrated it. Peter seemed to have learned the lesson, because we find that in his epistle he says: "All of you be subject one to another and be clothed with humility."

The life of the kingdom of God as taught by Jesus, is characterized by love, and love produces the spirit of humility. We who are admirers of our modern western civilization, with its emphasis on getting on and pushing our way through and dominating the situation, are not great admirers of humility. To us it suggests not so much a spirit of meekness as of weakness. We think of monks, of the medieval period, performing penance, but in spite of all this, Jesus did admire and emphasize the humble spirit. Jesus' particular reason for emphasizing it, was not only that the world in which He lived, emphasized pride, boasting and position, but the religion of the Pharisees seems to have produced in many cases, spiritual pride. The "holier than thou" attitude seemed to dominate the lives of many of the religious leaders of His day. Jesus emphasized humility, because He thought of goodness as something progressive, and the goal of life as perfection in Good. With such an attitude, an individual would necessarily have a spirit of inadequacy, and a consciousness of one's need. Such an individual continueally hungers and thirsts after righteousness. But the individual, who is spiritually proud, and sits in judgment on the religious experience of others does not have this feeling of need and imperfection. They boast of what they have already attained, which others do not have. Many of our problems, both of our church and nation, would be solved, if all the leadership could be in the spirit, not of an authority or teacher, but a servant.

What are the reasons for Jesus' teaching of humility?

What are the true marks of an humble life?

What is the relationship of humility to service?

How can I overcome spiritual pride in my own life?

January 27, 1935

Peter's Denial

Lesson Text.—Mark 14:27-31, 54, 66-72

Golden Text.—Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall. 1 Cor. 10:12.

One of the striking things about character study in the Bible is the fact that it reveals the weaknesses of the individual as well as his strength. Thou art Peter, a rock. And then in the next lesson Peter made the great confession, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." But in our lesson today we find that he has not yet fully developed that rock character in the presence of Jesus. It must, however, be said in Peter's favor that he faced a very difficult and dangerous situation. Jesus had warned them that the time would come when they would forsake Him and be scattered but Peter impulsively answered, although all the rest will forsake you, I will not. We come to the last days of Jesus' life. He has been captured by the Roman soldiers and is led before the high priest. Peter followed afar off to see what would happen with his Lord. There are two forces that are working in the life of Peter which hinder him in gaining the victory. One is his materialistic conception of the kingdom and the other is human fear in the presence of danger. Often times those who boast loudly and seem to be fearless are the greatest cowards. When Jesus was taken by the Roman soldiers, Peter felt that the hope of establishing the Messianic kingdom through Jesus was vanishing. They had no place in their thinking for a king that was to be a Messiah and yet will allow Himself to be taken by His enemies. So as Peter stood by the fire warming himself with the rest of the curiosity seekers, he was not at all prepared to face the accusation that he was one of the group that followed Jesus. Because of the hopelessness of the situation as he looked at it, he denied that he knew this man Jesus, but after he had denied Him, Jesus turned and looked upon him. This look brought to Peter's mind all that Jesus as a friend meant to Him whether Messiah or not. He went out and wept bitterly.

In making the application of this lesson it could very well be called a lesson in loyalty. Peter perhaps was over-selfconfident and then in an unguarded moment he was weak where he thought he was strong. There perhaps never was a time in the history of the church when there is such a great need for taking a stand with Christ. Men and women in every walk of life are raising the question seriously as to whether Jesus' spirit and teachings are the solution of our present day problems and then so often we Christians answer the question negatively by denying Him in the greatest opportunity for witnessing. We too often follow afar off and lose the power which comes in close fellowship with our Lord. It is well that we should adopt the motto of Christian Endeavor, "I will be Christian."

What seems to be the cause of most of the denials of Christ?

Did Peter really have anything to fear?

How do you interpret the statement, "Following afar off"?

What is an effective cure for cowardice and fear?

February 3, 1935

Peter's Restoration

Lesson Text.—John 21:11-19

Golden Text. — Lord, Thou knowest all things; Thou knowest that I love Thee. John 21:17.

One of the encouraging things concerning our Christian experience is that although we have denied Him, there is always a possibility of restoration. There are some interesting events that took place between Peter's denial and our lesson today. When Jesus rose from the dead, Peter was one of the first ones to rush to the tomb to see what had happened to His Master. Jesus met him and Peter knew that he was forgiven. The question now remained as to whether Jesus would take him back into His service. Peter met the Master a number of times, but Jesus had not said anything to him as to whether He would restore him. But one early morning while Peter and some of the other disciples were fishing, Jesus appeared to them by the Sea of Galilee. These seven disciples had been fishing all night and had nothing to show for their night's work. Jesus asked them whether they had any meat. He said they should cast their net on the other side. They did, and Simon Peter drew the net to land with 153 fish in it. Peter now recognized Jesus' voice and cast himself into the sea and swam ashore. Jesus had breakfast prepared for them and they ate. After breakfast Jesus asked Peter whether he loved Him more than their nets and boats and fishes. Peter answered that he did. Peter responded three times to Jesus' question and received Jesus' answer, feed my lambs and feed my sheep.

Jesus is testing finally the real character of Simon. He is becoming more and more a rock. We find later on that Peter feeds the lambs and sheep very faithfully and becomes a shepherd of souls at Rome. There he gives his life for his Master by being crucified head downward.

The searching question in this lesson that comes to us is: "Do you love me more than these"? It becomes a question of greater and lesser loyalties. Jesus says, "Except a man forsake father and mother, brother and sister, houses and lands he cannot be my disciple." Many of us have been handicapped throughout life becouse we attached our loyalties to THESE instead of to the Master. How often we substitute houses and lands, church membership, creeds, forms and customs for the larger loyalty of obedience to Christ. Jesus would say with Paul, "I desire not yours, but you." There is a religious movement in America which places its emphasis on an utter abandonment of loyalty to things and a new emphasis on loyalty to Christ. Do we need to join new movements in order to gain this experience? Jesus has always demanded this of His followers and then has given the power to obey it.

How is Peter different now than he was in our last Sunday's lesson?

Has Jesus forgiven Peter for his denial?

Why did Jesus take Peter back into His service?

Why does Jesus place so much emphasis on love in His questions to Peter?

CORRESPONDENCE

West Zion Church, Moundridge Kansas. On October 21, the Bethel College Intermediates gave a program for the West Zion Society. Mr. Willis Rich spoke during the Senior C. E. hour; a very interesting and thought-provoking address.

October 23, the young people of the Conway Brethren Church presented the temperance play, "What Shall It Profit"? in the H. S. Auditorium.

November 18, Mr. Marvin Dirks, Bethel student, brought the morning message. Dr. Harschbarger of the Bethel faculty, spoke on the European situation, during the C. E. hour.

November 25, the West Zion men's chorus presented a home concert of sacred music to a large audience.

November 28, Thanksgiving services were held at 10:30 A. M. Rev. P. K. Regier conducted the services, and a thank offering of $138.00 was taken for home and foreign missions.

December 2, our congregation observed the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Preceding this service five new members were taken into the church, one by baptism and four by letter.

Mrs. F. E. Dyck and Miss Elizabeth Pankratz are the newly appointed Junior C. E. leaders, and Mr. Dale Galle is superintendent of the Intermediates.

December 9.—This morning our Sunday School celebrated the 400th anniversary of the translation of the Bible by Martin Luther. Every one was asked to read II Timothy and to bring their Bible to Sunday School. There was a fine response. The morning worship service was also a commemoration of this notable event.

The West Zion church chorus of fifty voices will present the cantata "The Coming of the King," by Dudley Buck, on Christmas night. Mr. Weldon Rupp is conductor, with Mrs. E. W. Rupp at the piano and Miss Linda Balzer at the pipe organ. Soloists: Miss Katherine Winsinger, soprano; Miss Maxine Taves, alto; Mr. Wilson Rupp, tenor; and Mr. O. W. Dirks, bass.

The Sunday School will give its Christmas program on Christmas eve. The classes will present their "White Gifts" at the close of the program, as has been our custom for several years. Mrs. D. O. Rupp, Corr.

JOTTINGS

Sister Aganetha Fast, of the mission in Hopei Province, China, who is home on furlough and doing special work at Hartford Seminary, spent her Christmas holiday in Philadelphia, visiting both the First and Second Mennonite churches in that town. She illustrates her talks with interesting pictures.

One of the interesting features at the Pre-Christmas gathering of the young people of the First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, was a talk given by Rev. C. H. A. van der Smissen on the "History of Christmas," in which some of the ancient and modern customs of this celebration were described.

The Men's Chorus of the Reedley, California, church celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary with a concert held in the church. Many of the charter members of the organization are still active in its work. In the past concerts have been given as far south as Los Angeles, LaVerne and Upland, and in the San Joaquin Valley as far north as Turlock and Modesto. Several concerts have been broadcast over KMJ, Fresno.

Rev. Phil. A. Wedel of Moundridge, Kansas, spent a week in Whitewater, Kansas, conducting a series of evangelistic services.

The Berne, Indiana, church enjoyed an elaborate celebration of Christmas. The church was beautifully decorated and a capacity audience was in attendance. The early part of the program consisted of the singing of Christmas carols by the men's chorus with instrumental number intermingled with the carols. The evening's outstanding number was the singing of "The Shepherd Story" by the men's and ladies' chorus.

It is to be regretted that The Mennonite and Christian Evangel is not in a position to bring illustrations to its readers, especially pictures of the work their missionaries are doing. Several pictures recently received would be of special interest. One of these shows a group of Christian students and nurses of the Kai Chow hospital. The writer asks that prayer be made for these young men that they may become of real service for the many suffering ones of China. The other picture vividly portrays the distress of the victims of the Yellow River flood in the district of our missions. The people are shown living in dugouts in an old soldiers' camp. This would not be so bad in mild weather, but is very unsanitary in cold, snow, or rain. Meetings are held in this locality and some of the people are openhearted. Pray that they may find God real to them in their distress.

The young people of the Second Church, Philadelphia, Pa., agree that the happiest part they had in the celebrating of Christmas was found by them in the distribution of many Christmas baskets of provisions to the poor families of the neighborhood, most of whom would have had a cheerless Christmas but for this help.

Brother and Sister William C. Gerhart, of near Norristown, Pa., celebrated their golden wedding o Christmas eve. The men's class of Grace church Lansdale, of which they are members, joined with th family and friends in the celebration of the happ event.

Brother and Sister C. F. Claassen of Newton, Kans. celebrated their golden wedding last month. For man years Brother Claassen was treasurer of the Genera Conference. Many of the friends and relatives o Brother and Sister Claassen joined them in the celebration which was held in the First Mennonite church in Newton.

The Burrton, Kansas, Mennonite church has recently been rearranged and improved. The church has been moved to a new foundation and a basement added.

A feature of the Thanksgiving service of the Alexanderwohl church, Goessel, Kansas, was the specia collection. The pastor, Rev. P. H. Unruh, held the collection plate while the children brought their offerings The total collection for the day amounted to more than $1000.00.

The quartet of Bethel College, comprising Terrance Burns, David Suderman, Sam Byler, and Henry Voth, together with Prof. Hohman made an extensive trip during the Christmas holidays, visiting Colorado and the western part of Kansas. Their first concert was at Pawnee Rock. Places in which they appeared, were: Hanston, Ransom, Cimarron, Ingalls, Ulysses, La Junta, Colo. Flagler, Colo., and Dorrance, Kans. A broadcast was arranged for Dodge City.

Der Mitarbeiter, which has been edited by Prof. H. H. Ewert of Gretna, Man., now in its 27th year, has been compelled to suspend publication because of economic conditions. The Mitarbeiter filled an important place in the work of our Canadian brethren and it is hoped that means will be found for its future continuance.

The Year Book of the General Conference for 1935, edited by Rev. Lester Hostetler, appears in the usual form, containing statistics, the list of ministers, conference organizations, etc., as well as other valuable information. It should find a place in every General Conference home. Files of the Year Book always record matters of historic worth. Copies of each issue should be preserved for reference.

Dr. J. E. Hartzler, former president of Witmarsum Seminary, now a member of the faculty of the Near East School of Theology, Beirut, Syria, in a letter to the editor writes: "I am having indeed a great experience again this year. My students in the School of Theology come from many different Christian denominations, and my university audiences represent 28 different religious faiths. What an opportunity to study religion and the philosophy! I wish that more of our young Mennonite men and women who are coming into the ministry could get some of this experience."

"On December 23rd I am engaged to preach in Nazareth for the Anglican church, both morning and evening. On the 24th I go to Jerusalem and Bethlehem, where we will spend Christmas. In Bethlehem we will worship in the Church of the Nativity on Christmas eve and then visit the Shepherd's Field."

Because of the lateness of the arrival by mail the greeting from Rev. and Sister H. J. Brown, of the General Conference mission in China, could not appear in an earlier issue. The message reads: "The Lord is good unto us and blessed us with heavenly blessings. The weather is nice, and we enjoy country work. We have catechism and Bible classes in five places and other places are still waiting. What a Christmas gift of bringing souls to Christ! We wish you all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year! May the season bring to you all the richest blessings'!

A meeting of unusual interest, the observance of Students' Night, was held in Immanuel church, Los Angeles, Calif. A large number of students represented in high schools, colleges, Bible schools, and special professional schools attended and greatly enjoyed the social given in their honor. The program included good music, several short talks, and a closing devotional service led by the pastor, Rev. D. D. Eitzen.

The officers of the Pacifice District Conference are: President, Rev. J. M. Regier, Reedley, California; Vice President, Rev. J. E. Kaufman, Aberdeen, Idaho; Secretary, Rev. J. M. Franz, Pratum, Oregon; Treasurer, Mr. John C. Jantz, Odessa, Washington; Field Secretary, Miss Emma Ruth, Reedley, California.

DEATHS

Mrs. Paulina Wenger, daughter of Nicholas and Elisabeth Dick, was born in the State of Missouri, December 21, 1866, and died at her home near Salem, Washington, December 5, 1934. October 22 she was married to Robert Wenger, who preceded her in death May 24, 1922. She received baptism and was received into membership of the Emanuel Mennonite Church, Pratum, Oregon, in the spring of 1906. Her departure is mourned by nine children, two brothers, seven grandchildren, one great-grandchild, and a host of relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted in Emanuel church by the pastor, Rev. J. M. Franz.

You cannot push people up to a higher plane of living, you must lift them up, and to lift them up you must first climb up yourself.

Some people are so insistent on having their rights that they do not find time to think of their duties.

CORRESPONDENCE

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. The Christian Endeavor Society was entertained at the home of Fred Donelson, Wednesday evening, December 26.

Howard Litwiller, Edna Bender, and Fred Donelson spent Christmas vacation at the homes of their parents at this place.

Mr. Julius Helwig is able to attend church again after several weeks of absence because of a broken ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Egli and family spent Christmas with Mrs. Egli's parents in Normal.

Howard Kaufman who was quite ill with pneumonia, is much improved at this time.

The Ladies Aid Society held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. A. W. Sutter, Thursday, January 3. Sewing was done for misisonary work in Africa.

A short Christmas program was given by the Sunday School, Sunday morning, December 23. Each class responded with one or more numbers. Gertrude Brenneman, Corr.

Comins Church, Comins, Michigan. The Sunday School Workers Conference held their monthly meeting at Mr. R. H. Kolbi in Fairview, December 13. They are studying "The Holy Land," locating the various places mentioned in the Scriptures, and connecting them with historic events.

Mrs. L. F. Shrock was taken to the McRae Hospital in Alpena where she underwent an operation. She had been seriously ill before going to the hospital. Her daughter, Mrs. Leonard Brightstone, of Lansing is with her there. Mrs. Shrock is recovering as well as can be expected.

Sunday, December 16, communion service was observed at our church. Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Bixel and daughter Lucile were received into the church by letter at this time.

The Christmas service was held Sunday morning, December 23. A program was given of songs, exercises, and one short drama, "His Star in the East," with the White Christmas.

A choir of about 20 voices has started practicing to begin work the first Sunday of the new year. A number have never done any singing before. Christmas eve they went out carol singing. They stopped at about 10 places. On account of the slippery roads they could not go so far, as they had to walk.

BUY YOUR FAVORITE HYMN BOOK NOW!

MENNONITE HYMN BOOK

No Mennonite Church can afford to be without this hymn book. Those churches which have used it for any length of time are enthusiastic about it.

The Mennonite Hymn Book is a 392 page volume, containing 412 hymns of dignity and character and a splendid selection of responsive readings. Hymns are well arranged for all Church Year occasions. Choice selections for Missions, Peace, Home, and Religious Education, including a number of children's hymns and translations of "Gesangbuch mit Noten" favorites. A suitable hymn book for every department of the church. Nearly every hymn has the text set within the music. The music and type are clear and bold. — Printed on superfine book paper and bound in artistic durable binding.

Prices

No. 1 Record Buckram (Maroon) Binding

Single copies, postpaid	$ 1.50
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	15.00
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid	110.00

No. 1-A Spanish Maroon Fabrikoid

Single copies, pospaid	$ 2.00
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	18.00
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid	125.00

No. 2 Full Back Leather Binding

Single copies, postpaid	$ 2.50
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	24.00

HYMNS OF PRAISE NOS. 1 AND 2 COMBINED

447 Hymns

42 Responsive Readings

A 464 page book containing the choice of gospel hymns and songs that have endeared themselves to generations of music-loving Christian people. This book contains all the numbers (duplicates omitted) that appear in "Hymns of Praise Number Two" and "Hymns of Praise."

It contains 464 pages and is very attractively bound in a beautiful cloth board cover of a new pattern with title embossed in gold.

Issued in both round and shaped notes.

PRICES

Single copy, postpaid	$ .70
12 or more, per dozen, not postapaid	6.60
100 or more, per 100 not postpaid	55.00

WORSHIP AND PRAISE

A new General Purpose Book

291 Hymns

29 Responsive Readings

It has the large size page, is printed on No. 1 M. F. book paper and is bound in a special leather grained cloth with title embossed in gold.

Priced in an attractive leather grained cloth, title embossed in gold, 55c the single copy, postpaid,—$4.80 the dozen, or $40.00 per 100 not prepaid. Also issued in serviceable bristol paper, wire stapled binding, 35c the single copy, postpaid, $3.00 per dozen, or $25.00 per 100 not prepaid.

TABERNACLE HYMNS NO. 3

352 Songs and Hymns

It is a collection of 352 pages of carefully gleaned Hymns and Gospel Songs—including a strong Responisive Reading section—for all occasions in Church Worship, Evangelistic Meetings and Home Services.

The songs have been especially selected for their singable qualities, while the words have been carefully chosen for the message they convey, covering every phase of religious experience.

It is issued in a beautiful dark green silk cloth binding, with title embossed in gold. It is also available in a green paper, wire-stitched binding.

PRICES

Silk Cloth Binding

Single copy, postpaid	$ .65
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	6.00
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid	50.00

Paper Binding

Single copy, postpaid	$ .45
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	3.90
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid	32.50

PRAISE AND SERVICE SONGS

263 Songs

This is the most complete book ever published by us for general Sunday School use, whether for departmental or general assembly work. It has a special section for Juniors, which is adequate for the most exacting of department heads. Special orders of services for all ages, with a large number of appropriate readings. All songs arranged by subjects.

Fully adapted to all the needs of Christian education—sound in faith and doctrine. Printed in large clear type. Size of page 5¾ inches by 8½ inches.

"Praise and Service songs" is bound only in attractive red silk cloth binding with title stamped in gold.

Price, $40.00 per 100, not prepaid; 50c a single copy, postpaid.

TRIUMPHANT SERVICE SONGS

295 Sacred Songs

Many New Songs—Marvelous New Worship Programs—22 Responsive Readings — Complete Topical Index—288 Pages. New Large Paper Size.

Obtainable in Round or Shaped Notes

PRICES

Full Cloth Gold Stamping, per 100, not prepaid	$40.00
Single Copy, prepaid	.50
Rope Bristol Binding, per 100, not prepaid	25.00
Single Copy, prepaid	.35
Orchestrations, per volume	1.50

($14.00 for complete set of 12 volumes, not prepaid)

A SMALLER SONG BOOK for Conferences and Conventions

HYMNS OF FAITH AND LIFE

The newest and finest collection of popular yet worthy and enduring hymns and tunes at a low cost for use in church service, hymn festivals, religious assemblies and schools.

130 hymns and a small selection of prayers and responsive readings.

We cannot recommend it too highly.

PRICES

Single copies	$ .20
100 or more copies, per 100	15.00

Postage extra

Prices of other books gladly furnished on request.

Returnable sample copies will be sent to responsible persons expecting to order for churches and Sunday Schools if name of congregation and name of pastor accompanies request.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, FEBRUARY 5, 1935 No. 3

CALIFORNIA WELCOMES YOU!

Now that the Christmas-New Year season is past, we turn our attention more seriously to other things. This year being the Diamond Jubilee year of the General Conference, the Upland-Los Angeles committee in charge of local arrangements starts its work in earnest. Plans for entertaining conference visitors are taking shape. Dates and places of meetings are being definitely decided upon. Special committees are being created and these are starting on their work. It is the aim and hope of the host churches that plans of arrangements may be so worked out as to be worthy of the Jubilee celebration. The local churches also wish to have it known that their efforts from now till August will be bent on preparations to serve and entertain you as their guests at conference time. Make plans now to come then!

The Diamond Jubilee celebration and conference business sessions will be held at Upland. General Conference Young People's program will be at Los Angeles. At this time the Los Angeles church will also celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of General Conference Mennonite work in this city, it being 25 years since the first public service at River Station Mission by Rev. E. F. Grubb, May 8, 1910.

Conference Exhibits

One of the special local committees recently appointed is the Exhibits committee. It is the intention of this committee to request one person in each field of conference activity, who is thoroughly familiar with that particular field, to gather material for display—pictures and historical data of that field—send it to Upland where it will be arranged by the local committee. Thus we hope to create an exhibit which will be both interesting and instructive. Here you shall be able to find pictures of early and present conference leaders and of conference meeting places, personnel of various mission fields, displays of Women's Auxiliary work, displays of education, hospital, publication, emergency relief, Young People's and other conference work. What a privilege it will be for us to look upon the work done in and by the American Mennonite churches in the past 75 years. May it prove to be a real inspiration to all of us and bring glory and honor to our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. —A. J. R.

THE SPENCER JACK MEMORIAL

Wednesday, September 5th, was an important day in the history of the Bethesda Leper Home in Champa. On the afternoon of that day the Spencer Jack Memorial for tainted girls was formally opened in the presence of a large number of Indian friends, about 500 lepers and some invited missionaries. We have felt for years that children should not, for obvious reasons, live together with older women. Because of our arrangements here we were unable to segregate tainted children into a specially protected building. This is now possible. A warm friend of lepers has erected in this Home, not only a building, but a set of buildings for leper girls. There are in the set three wards, one building containing the matron's room and a common room, one kitchen, and a lavatory. All are enclosed by a substantial brick wall. This set of buildings is called the Spencer Jack Memorial, as indicated by a marble slab in the wall to the right of the main entrance. The entire memorial was built by Rev. F. J. Isaac, a competent builder and our fellow missionary.

We were pleased to have with us on the dedication day, Rev. Dr. J. Gass, D. D., of Raipur, Rev. Carl Wyder of Ellichpur, Rev. J. H. Schultz of Baitalpur, and Rev. H. C. Saum of Takhappur, all of whom are superintendents of Leper Homes. Besides these we also had the privilege of having with us Dr. H. H. Gass, M. D., of the Baitalpur Leper Home. The dedication services began at 3 P. M. in the large church which can accommodate 800 to 1000 people. After the usual introduction, Dr. H. H. Gass gave a well prepared address on the subject: "What do we owe the leper"? Dr. Gass having a good command of the vernacular, gave all present much food for thought. Following the address, the history of the Spencer Jack Memorial was read both in Hindi and in English. Songs by the congregation and a selection each by the leper boys and girls accompanied by instruments, concluded the program in the church. After the closing prayer and benediction by Rev. Carl Wyder, all went to the Spencer Jack Memorial, a short distance from the church.

In front of the gate, Dr. Gass, D. D., read Luke 17:11-19 and made a few appropriate remarks. Rev. H. C. Saum gave the dedicatory prayer. Rev. J. H. Schultz then unlocked and opened the main door leading into the Memorial, after which he declared the Memorial open in the following words: "In the name of the Mission to Lepers and in memory of Herbert Spencer Jack, who died in New Zealand on January 11, 1933, I now declare the Spencer Jack Memorial open." All of those present, except the lepers, crowded into the Home to inspect the buildings.

The afternoon closed with a program given by the lepers with the exception of one number. One man, not a leper, who is a good imitator, took part in the program.

We wish to take this opportunity to express our thanks to our liberal donor and friend New Zealand who by her love for lepers ma this Home a possibility. God richly bless h and reward her! Such a memorial is bett than a high monument in some cemetery.

P. A. Penner

Champa, C. P. India, November 8, 1934.

SHORT BIBLE AND BUSINESS COURS

By Alfred Habegger, Busby, Mont.

Pupils were of High School standing, a lived in the log cabin on the mission groun and did light housekeeping. A young m boarded with friends and relatives a few wee The pupils were Jessie Lamewoman, Ruth Y lowrobe of Busby, Julia Yellowhorse, Alice R cherries, and James King of Lame Deer.

Typewriting and Bible were two main cou es, although a practical course in A. B. Shorthand was completed also, and a little M sic was given, as also some work in Englis by Mr. F. H. Smith, a government farm age and some lessons in gardening, by Mr. Milo D vis, the farm agent at the Boarding Scho These two men gave their services gratis, a taught their classes on certain evenings of t week. Mrs. Habegger gave the girls spec help in baking of bread, cakes, cookies, et each Friday afternoon, and this gave them su plies for the week following. The governme received huge quantities of food to be giv out among the Indians this winter, and so the girls received rations in flour, mutton, eg butter, etc., so that it was not necessary f them to have much money for food. We pr vided them with some milk daily while th were in school, and the mission supplied so coal, but the parents of the girls provided the with wood.

The young man had to return home to La Deer in the midst of his work, which he gretted very much, but he thanked us for t help we were to him. As for the girls, I sh quote from their last compositions.

Alice Redcherries wrote: "I have learned or more things during this short course. Nam ly, Bible, which helps me to learn more abo the Christian life, what a Christian should and should not do, and it helps me to love a keep Thy Word. Typing, which will help me et a good position when I get to be a good tenographer. Music, which helps me to learn o read notes and play them on the piano.

heyenne reading, which helps me to learn to ead Bible stories in my own language. I shall ead these stories to my folks. Baking, which elps me to learn to bake my own pies and akes. And I am very thankful for the recipes hich will always be on hand when it comes to aking. Memorizing poems helps me to remem-er things and keep them well in mind."

Julia Yellowhorse wrote: "I have learned nore about the Word of God and wish we ould make others enjoy reading it too. Beides, I have learned Shorthand and I have nade up my mind to practice it by writing to he girls that studied with me. I have found nterest in Typing and Music, and I hope to ontinue every chance I get. I have found yping useful. Cheyenne reading is a pleasure o me, and I hope it is with the rest of us, and hope to do it still better."

Ruth Yellowrobe wrote: "Things that I have earned during this short course: "The first one will put down, is the Bible, which will help ne to a better way, and also that it might help ne to overcome all obstacles that will come ny way. I will try my best to read the Bible, nd will try to come to church. The second is yping, which has interested me a great deal.
he third subject is agriculture, and I thank
Ir. Davis for it. I appreciate it very much.
he fourth is literature, and I give my thanks o Mr. Smith for his efforts to help us Indian irls. I thank Mrs. Habegger very much for he things she has done for us, especially the aking. It will help me greatly. The follow-ng, in which I am also interested, are Chey-nne reading, shorthand course, and the Bible otes which we have taken down in our note ooks. I here give my thanks for the opportuities which we have taken advantage of, and lso for your efforts."

Jessie Lamewoman wrote: "I learned to read
he Cheyenne language which gives me a beter understanding about the Bible. I have earned how to type, which I think is interest-ng and saves time. — I have learned the A. B.
. shorthand which is useful in writing dicta-ion and notes. I have learned two poems and ome Bible verses which I think are beautiful.
And for the Bible course I am very thankful, it vill be easier for me next year, if I take up Reigious Education. 'The Gold Bug,' which Mr. Smith read to us was very interesting, and I appreciate very much the English work he gave us. The agricultural course Mr. Davis gave, telling how to plant, cultivate, etc., I will tell my relatives and other people, where to plant, etc., the things I have learned from Mr. Davis about gardening. From Mrs. Habegger I have learned to bake good bread and other bakery stuff, and also about sewing. I am very thankful. I appreciate very much your help, kindness, and the many things you have done for us."

From the above I believe it is clear to you that if the Indian youth comes in the right atmosphere, gets the right training under the right conditions, that they will respond just like other human beings of other races. Nothing would please me more than to see established a Bible school such as are supported in churches. The mission schools in India and China, have had such opportunities, and their superior educated native help has brought also better leadership into those fields. If a school of from ten to twelve or more pupils could be held for such who have finished the grades, then I would have more hope for the future of native support and leadership, in our Cheyenne congregations. May the Lord lead the way, giving us wisdom, courage, strength and means to carry out such plans as will work for the greatest good of the mission.

When I mentioned above that nothing would please me more than the establishing of a Bible School, I wish to be understood that foremost we desire the conversion of the Cheyenne, but that their training would be best served through such a school. The Indian girls in particular are unemployed, and had very little to keep them busy, and they can do their own cooking and housekeeping. For the young men it is not so simple, as they could not stay in the same building and so must find places to stay, and those are not so conducive to private study as our log cabin, where there is little interruption. But when such a school becomes established, I think its fruits will be a great reward for the time and effort and money that it takes to support it.

Alfred Habegger, Missionary.
Busby, Montana.

Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire called conscience.
—George Washington.

BLUFFTON COLLEGE

Courses to be Offered in the Ministers' Retreat

February 11 to March 1, 1935

The Epistle to the Galatians

Rev. A. E. Kreider

It shall be the purpose of this course to gain a fuller and deeper understanding of the message of this epistle through a careful exegetical study. The English text will be used, but help will also be drawn from the Greek. The study of this epistle should be richly rewarding.

Ministers' Problems Rev. P. E. Whitmer

This is a discussion course on the persistent problems which every Christian minister must meet. Some of these problems concern the minister himself, some concern his church primarily, and some concern his relation with the community and neighboring churches and pastors.

Present World Problems Dr. C. H. Smith

The aim of this course is to be informative with respect to present world problems existing in social, economic, national, and international life. Such movements as Russian Communism, German Nazism, the American New Deal will be considered.

Courses to be Offered in the Christian Fellowship Institute

Historical Survey of the New Testament

Rev. I. R. Detweiler

A brief study of the background of the New Testament is followed by a more careful study of the various letters or books, with special attention to the authors and the situation which called forth each particular message. The materials will be studied in the order in which they were written, and in their relation to Christianity's conflict with the Roman state and Graeco-Roman culture.

The Acts of the Apostles Martha Burkhalter

The course in Acts is designed to acquaint the student with the scope and significance of New Testament History. The structure and purpose of the book is studied, also its relation to the Pauline epistles, and its contribution to the solution of the problem of the origin and development of Christianity.

The Missionary Expansion of Christianity

Martha Burkhalter

This course includes a study of the variou missionary movements and methods throughout the Christian centuries, and a challenge o the present situation.

The Church School Worker Dr. J. S. Schult

Sunday School teachers and other worker in church organizations will study the natur of children and young people as well a methods of working with them so that the may be led into closer fellowship with Christ.

Mennonite History and Principles

Rev. A. S. Rosenberger

The history of the Mennonite Church up t the present day will be studied. Special attention will be paid to the origin of distinctiv Mennonite principles and an attempt will b made to evaluate their worth to the preser generation.

Social Problems of Today Dr. I. W. Bauma

The aim of this course will be to acquain the student with some of the major social an economic problems which we are facing toda The background, nature, and constructive programs of social groups will receive special attention. Though it is planned to discuss suc subjects as the New Deal, liberal and conservative economic and social tendencies, democracy vs. dictatorship, leisure, etc., student will be given an opportunity to suggest problems of special interest.

The Revelations of Science as Argument for God

Prof. Berky

The course will attempt to give the studer a glimpse of high spots in the fields of scienc and integrate them in such a manner as t leave no room for a universe which is not th masterpiece of an omniscient and solicitou Creator.

Church and Choral Music

Prof Russel A. Lantz

There is a growing demand for good mus in the churches of America. In almost a churches there is some program of churc music. Conferences and conventions of pastor and laymen, theological seminaries, and school of music throughout our country are making wider provision for the study of church music and for the training of church musicians. This course will consider the following problems: The problem of music in the church. The organization and administration of choirs. The Minister and the Hymnal. Hymn singing and hymn playing. Selected hymns and carols (Hymnology) and some work in general music appreciation, through the use of the phonograph playing examples of the world's best sacred and secular music.

THE SESSION OF THE FOREIGN MISSION BOARD

We are planning to meet, D. V., on February 19th in Newton, and would herewith call attention to the need of intercessory prayer, which has upheld the work so far, and must do so in the future.

The biggest problem before us is the furlough expense. So many of our furlough missionaries should be returned to the field, or should come home, that it looks almost like a mountain before us. But prayer can remove mountains, says Jesus, the prayer of faith.

For one couple we have already received the necessary traveling money, thank the Lord and the donor.

In the name of the Board,
Secretary.

HOW MAY WE STIMULATE MORE MISSIONARY INTEREST IN THE CHURCH?

M. C. Lehman

(Concluded from last issue.)

Perhaps we can stimulate missionary interest by remembering that missions merit a central place in the church's program because the atonement of Christ, the nature of God, the Bilbe's teaching and our own salvation all indicate that such is their place. If they become an adjunct our interest will wane.

II. By Preaching Missions Systematically From Our Pulpits

The question is sometimes asked: "How frequently should we have missionary sermons"? Some ministers arrange to preach a missionary sermon once per quarter. Sometimes ministers who do this feel that all missionary emphasis may then be eliminated from preaching at other times. The idea that missions are an adjunct of the Gospel which needs to be artificially injected again shows itself by such a procedure.

The method of periodically preaching missionary sermons is no doubt commendable. To exclude missionary teaching from other preaching, however, promotes the Gospel-and-Missions misconception. In fact, no minister should ever preach anything that is not an integral part of the Gospel.

And missions are such a definite part of the Gospel of Christ that any preaching which leaves out of account the child of God's necessity of missionary activity, is warped and misleading. Paul felt the urge of this fact upon him when he said, "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent"? (Rom. 10:13, 14.)

As to the central figure of that Gospel, Peter says in Acts 4:12 concerning Jesus the head corner stone, "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."

As to the source from whom Paul received the Gospel he preached we read in Gal. 1:11, 12: "But I certify you, brethren, that the Gospel which was preached of me is not after man. For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." In 1 Cor. 9:16 he speaks again of the urge he feels to preach the Gospel which he regards as essential for the salvation of "all men everywhere": "For necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me, if I preach not the Gospel"!

The preacher of today should feel no less of that urge to preach a whole Christ-revealed Gospel than did Paul. With such a sense of urge upon him, we can hardly conceive Paul as leaving out of his preaching a strong missionary emphasis whether his immediate subject was carrying the Christian message to the heathen or not. We may well emulate Paul's missionary zeal in our preaching.

It would be possible of course to neglect other subjects or phases of the Gospel which need emphasis and without which our preaching would be incomplete. No sermon can give first place to every phase of the Gospel on every occasion. Sound Gospel preaching must bring into clear limelight some particular phase of the Gospel upon which worshipers concentrate for a particular service. The necessity of carrying the Gospel to those who have it not can in this way be in all our preaching whether it is the subject of particular emphasis on any definite occasion or not.

One method to stimulate greater missionary activity within the church is by the strong support of our pulpits. As ministers we will do well to note if we are doing this.

Goshen, Ind. —Gospel Herald.

THE CAROLINGIAN RENAISSANCE

Rev. W. B. Weaver, Danvers, Ill.

Outline

I. Historical Background.
    1. Political Conditions.
    2. Intellectual Conditions.
II. Reign of Charles the Great.
III. The Schools of Britain.
    1. Canterbury.
    2. York.
IV. Alcuin at York.
V. The Schools of Charles the Great.
    1. Palace School.
    2. Cathedral School.
    3. Village Schools.
VI. The Results of the Renaissance.
VII. Contribution of the Renaissance to Modern Education.

The Carolingian Renaissance is the intellectual awakening that came to Frankland in the reign of Charles the Great. This revival of learning which really started in Britain reached its height in the ninth century on the Continent. There are three such revivals of learning in Europe; the Carolingian, Scolasticism, and the fifteenth and sixteenth century renaissance which introduced the modern era. Although the Carolingian renaissance was the weakest and the least significant yet it was a beginning and had its effect on the other two.

In a discussion of the Carolingian Renaissance it will be necessary to note the political and intellectual conditions of Europe before the Renaissance came. The age of Charles the Great lies between the two dark centuries, the seventh and the tenth. The Roman Empire had gone to decay by the end of the fifth century The sixth and seventh centuries marked the time of the Barbaric Invasions. This was a period of anarchy, barbarism and confusion Barbaric hordes invaded Europe from the East and destroyed much of the established civilization of Europe. Finally the Vandals settled in northern Africa, the Visigoths in Spain, the Lombards in Italy, the Burgundians in southern France, and the Franks in the northern part of France and Germany. The Franks who had accepted orthodox Christianity finally gained the control of most of the other tribes and became the recognized power of Europe The only serious rival of the Franks were the Mohammedans who came across northern Africa, destroyed the Visigothic kingdom and established themselves in Spain. They began to make raids in France and became the rivals of the Franks. They were finally defeated by the Mayor of the Palace, Charles Martel in 732 A. D. in the battle of Tours With this last strong enemy defeated, the Franks began to unify their kingdom. The old Merovingian line of kings died out and Pippin the Mayor of the Palace, became king. In 771 A. D. Pippin's son Charles became the sole king of France. He immediately started on his program of unifying his territory. After he had unified the Frankish territory the Pope had invited Charles to Italy to subdue the Lombards. After he had completed this task he visited the Pope at Rome. On Christmas day 800 A. D., while he was worshipping, the Pope placed upon him the crown, thus making him an Emperor instead of a King. This is the birth of the Holy Roman Empire. This first Holy Roman Empire lasted through the ninth and part of the tenth century. It is during this time of Charles the Great's political domination that the Carolingian Renaissance was in Europe.

Charles the Great was, however, not only interested in the political side of the Empire but also in the intellectual. His purpose was to unify the work of the Teuton and the Roman; to adjust the Barbarian Frank to the Roman culture, and to transfer to the German the foundations for a social organization. Prof Monroe says, "Through the Holy Roman Em-

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication..........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office..........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance..........$1.50
Foreign..........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

pire established by Charles in 800 A. D. the political and legal structure of society was finally accepted by the Teuton. There yet remained with this external unity the inner unity of community of ideas, of language and of the cultural elements of social life. It was the ambition of Charles to bring about this union by the adoption of Latin language, the learning of the church and of such of Roman culture as survived."

The eight Christian centuries before the Carolingian Renaissance may be divided from the standpoint of education into two periods. The first four centuries mark the decline of the Imperial Roman schools of learning and the rise of Christianity. The chief reason for the decline of the Roman schools was the opposition of early Christianity to Pagan education. Such men as Tertullian and even Augustine opposed the study of Pagan writings. Beginning, however, with the time of Augustine the church changed her position. She needed to meet the ideas that the Pagans were bringing into the church. The church fathers now advocated that a study of Pagan literature was necessary, but only as a means to an end so that they might understand the Bible better which was the source of all knowledge. They believed that they could find all the subjects of the Liberal Arts in the Bible. Boethius 525 A. D. was the last anscient philosopher. He translated Greek works which became text books in the Middle Ages. In 529 in the reign of Justinian he closed the Pagan schools and Pagan education died out except as it was preserved in the church schools. On the other hand it should be noted that the church developed a system of schools in these first four centuries. She had first established catechetical schools for the instruction of her converts. These were strictly biblical. Then followed the catechumenal schools which were for the training of the priests. These developed later in the episcopal or cathedral schools. In these schools the Liberal Arts were finally introduced. Another set of schools which are significant in relation to the Carolingian Renaissance was the Monastic schools.

In the second period of these eight centuries we find the destruction of many of the schools on the continent as a result of the Barbaric Invasions. The Monastic and Cathedral were almost broken up. The copying of books had almost ceased. It was impossible to build up an educational system while the Mohammedans were on one side and the Barbarians on the other. We have thus seen that Roman civilization and Roman education went into decline as a result of the interior moral decay; external barbarism and the supplanting power of new ideals through Christianity. It was, however, in the reign of Charles the Great that these were again revived.

Although schools were destroyed and learning had almost died out on the continent the seeds of learning were saved from the schools of Greece and Rome by the Irish and English scholars. They were preserved in the royal and ecclesiastical schools of Britain. Intellectual life and learning were fostered and encouraged. The two schools which perhaps had more to do with the Carolingian Renaissance than any other were Canterbury and York. The revival of learning in Britain was due largely to the inspiration given by Rome. While confusion was on the continent and before Christianity came to Britain, Ireland was maintaining education. In the monasteries of Ireland attention was given to the studying of the Scriptures and the collecting and copying of manuscripts. In the sixth century A. D. Christianity came to England through the work of Augustine. The Pope chose Hadrin for the vacancy of Canterbury. Hadrin, not feeling able to carry on the work alone, took with him to England Theodore of Tarsus, a learned man. Theodore established a school at Canterbury. Theodore of Tarsus was especially noted for his knowledge of Greek. Benedict Biscop later became the abbot of the monastery and master of the school. He made a number of trips to Rome to get literature, thus bringing to England some of the Pagan literature which had been preserved at Rome. He also was instrumental in the establishment of monasteries in northern England such as Wearmouth, Jarrow, and especially that of York. One of the most important pupils of Benedict was Bede. Bede was conservative and did not like Pagan learning. He was, however, a great scholar and wrote the first history of England. One of Bede's followers was Egbert, archbishop of York. It was he who founded the cathedral school of York. Egbert and Albert had charge of this school when Alcuin entered the school. The purpose of this brief sketch is to introduce Alcuin of York who is the most important person in connection with the Carolingian Renaissance. It is interesting to know how the curriculum of Pagan education came in the days of Cicero to Rome and was preserved there by Varro and later the Stoics. This curriculum of the seven Liberal Arts then found its way to the Ecclestical schools of Ireland and England. We find here the fusion of Greek culture, Roman law, Teutonic ideals and Christianity. It is these influences that determine the life and training of Alcuin and that through Alcuin came to the court of Charles the Great.

Alcuin entered the cathedral school of York while a child and there he studied and taught until he went to the court of Charles the Great. He was taught to read and write and memorize the Psalms. Then he was instructed in the Liberal Arts and finally in the Scriptures. He also received here instruction in Christian virtue which remained with him to the end of his life. The nature of the work that he received in the school of his master Albert may be noted from his own description. "The learned Albert gave drink to thirsty minds at the fountains of the sciences. To some he communicated the art and the rules of grammar, for others he caused floods of rhetoric to flow; he knew how to exercise these in the battles of jurisprudence, and those in the songs of Adonia; some learned from him to pipe Castalian airs and with lyric foot to strike the summit of Parnassus; to others he made known the harmony of the heavens, the courses of the sun and moon, the five zones of the pole, the seven planets, the laws of the course of the stars, the motions of the sea, earthquake, the nature of men and of beasts and of birds and of all that inhabit the forest. He unfolded the different qualities and combinations of numbers; he taught how to calculate with certainty the solemn return of Eastertide and above all he explained the mysteries of the Holy Scriptures." This quotation reveals to us the wide range of subjects studied by Alcuin. Alcuin soon became the master of the school at York. He became master in 776 A. D. He was also later given charge of the cathedral library. Here could be found the writings of Cassiodorus, Boethius and Bede, Aristotle, Cicero, Virgil, Statius and Lucan, gammarians such as Donstus and Priscian, Latin fathers such as Augustine, Gerome, Ambrose and Gregory the Great. Ethelbert who succeeded Egbert, was head of the school of York. He sent Alcuin to Europe on an important mission. It was at this time that he met Charles the Great at Pavia. Alcuin attended there the public dispute between Lullus the Jew and Peter of Pisa, Charles' instructor in grammar. On his third visit to Rome he was sent by Eanbald to get from the Pope the archbishop's pallium. Here he again met Charles at Parma in 791. Charles invited him to come to Frankland. Alcuin hesitated, but said he would come if he could get consent of his archbishop and king. He secured their consent and departed for Charles' palace at Aachen in 782.

Charles the Great called Alcuin to his court to assist him in the revival of learning that was beginning in Frankland. After Charles the Great had unified his empire politically he also wanted to bring true unity by an inner life of common language, culture and set of ideas. The educational conditions as was noted before were deplorable. By 750 there was a great loss in learning and Charles felt that it must be revived. Charles, in writing a letter to the abbot of Fulda, expresses the situation in a very striking way. "We have frequently received letters from monks and in them have recognized correct sentiments, but an uncouth style and language. The sentiments inspired in them by their devotion to us they could not express correctly, because they had neglected the study of language. Therefore we have begun to fear lest just as the monks appear to have lost the art of writing so also they may have lost the ability to understand the Holy Scriptures; and we all know that though mistakes in words are dangerous, mistakes in understanding are more so." Charles the Great sensed the situation in his kingdom and made every effort to improve it. He summoned leading scholars in various parts of England, Ireland, and Europe. He had at his court Peter of Pisa, Paul the deacon from Lombardy, and later Alcuin. The Carolingian Renaissance meant a revival in three types of schools. The palace school, the cathedral schools, and the village schools. He brought Alcuin from the school of York to aid him in bringing about this revival of learning. He made Alcuin the master of the palace school. This school originated in the days of the Merovingian kings and was for the purpose of educating the song of the king and of the nobles. Charles developed this school into a court university to which he invited learned men from all parts of the world. Alcuin brought with him to the court of Charles three of his pupils, Witzo, Fridugis, and Sigulf. These three with Alcuin became the teachers of the school. Charles, the queen, Charles' sister, his three sons, his two daughters, his son-in-law, his cousins, Einhard, his biographer, and a number of his bishops and archbishops became pupils of this school. Alcuin had a considerable prestige at the court because he was the best master from Britain and came from the best school. He was seven years older than Charles, which gave him prestige with the king, and yet not so old but what he could become a companion of the king. The question method was used in this school. They studied grammar, Latin poets, the writings of the church fathers, rhetoric, dialectics, arithmetic, astronomy, and theology. Alcuin and Charles the Great collected and copied tests of the classical authors. They copied them in the beautiful Roman characters. The Bible and the service books of the church were also carefully revised. In 786 Charles brought singers from Italy to Metz and Soissons where they taught the Gregorian method of chanting to Frankish clerks.

Charles the Great also encouraged sound learning in the monasteries and cathedral schools. In 787 Charles issued his capitulary upon schools to the monasteries of the land. Education in these monasteries had become almost extinct. Charles' capitulary was the first general charter of education. It was in the form of a letter to the abbots of the monasteries reproving them for their illiteracy. He not only urged them not to neglect study, but to apply themselves with perseverance. He urged them to choose men that are able and willing to learn and have a desire for instructing others. This capitulary of 787 says, "It is our wish that you may be what it behooves the soldiers of the church to be, religious in heart, learned in discourse, pure in act, eloquent in speech, so that all who would approach your house in order to invoke the divine Master or to behold the excellence of the religious life may be edified in beholding you and instructed in hearing you discourse or chant and may return home rendering thanks to God most high." Alcuin aided Charles in the writing of this letter. The little result this letter had was not due to the king, but to the insecurely protected social order. This letter was obeyed by many of the abbots and lasted until the next wave of barbarism in the tenth century. Charles issued a number of other letters of the same nature, urging education both for the priests and for the children of the villages. He was also instrumental in placing trained men in the various church positions. The letter of 789 particularly urges that every monastery and abbey should have its school where boys may go and be taught the Psalms, musical notation, singing, arithmetic, and grammar. Charles and Alcuin sent out "Missi Dominici" to see that these regulations would be enforced. The monastical cathedral schools taught the elementary and higher education. These schools were particularly for the training of the priests. Practically all the education was under the direction of the monks. The village schools were only for elementary training. At the head of these schools was the parish priest. Alcuin remained at the palace school of the king from 782 to 790. In 790 he returned to York feeling that the work had been quite well established in Frankland. He stayed at York two years and returned again to the palace school. After remaining at the palace school for two years he retired and went to the monastery of St. Martins at Tours. This monastery had been established for the purpose of training monks. He went to England and got books and built up quite a large library at Tours. Here he remained the rest of his life. He made Tours the center of learning of France and the church. In the latter part of his life he became narrower; rejected the classical literature, emphasized the ascetic aspect of monastic training, and limited his pupils to the study of sacred writings. There is perhaps one more thought which needs to be emphasized in relation to the work of Charles the Great and Alcuin. Two heresies arose in the church in the latter part of the eighth century. The one was the doctrine of adoptionism upheld by the Spanish bishop, Elipandus of Toledo and Feliz of Urgel. Alcuin wrote several treatises against this doctrine and then secured the condemnation of it at the council of Frankfort in 794 A. D. The other heresy was that of image worship which was also condemned at the same council.

This renaissance was continued beyond the time of Charles the Great and Alcuin by such men as John Scototus Erigena, Rabanus Maurus. The revival came to an end with the incoming of the barbarians in the tenth century.

It is rather difficult to state the results because Charles' empire was divided, his schools closed, and his monasteries devastated. There are, however, a few immediate results which need to be noted. It elevated the morals at the court of the king. Alcuin taught the king morals and reproved the court for its laxness. Charles started the great Renaissance movement which continued with a greater or lesser degree to the Renaissance of the sixteenth century. Alcuin said to Charles "If only many like you would have a desire for education there might be here another Athens, only greater than Athens because it is Christian.

Bibliography

Allen, Continuity of Christian Thought.

Einhardt, Life of Charles the Great.

Graves, History of Education.

Hernshaw, Medieval Contributions to Modern Civilization.

Leach, Schools of Medieval England.

Masterman, The Dawn of Medieval Europe.

Monroe, History of Education.

Mullenger, The Schools of Charles the Great.

Oman, The Dark Ages.

Townsend, The Great School Men of the Middle Ages.

Wells, The Age of Charles the Great.

Walker, History of the Christian Church.

West, Alcuin and the Rise of the Christian Schools.

Workman, Christian Thought to the Reformation.

I resolve to permit no man to narrow my soul by making me hate him.

CORRESPONDENCE

Butterfield, Minnesota, December 31, 1934 The first thing we shall tell you is of the great surprise we had October 1st, on our 29th wedding anniversary. About one hundred relatives and friends gathered at our home in the evening, coming with filled baskets. Two ministers were here, Rev. P. J. Friesen spoke in German and Rev. L. H. Linscheid in English; a male quartet sang a number of songs. Rev. Linscheid led in prayer, after which a purse of money was presented to us by Mrs. H. M. Fast. After a while we all partook of the splendid lunch. We cannot express ourselves in words to these dear people. We are thankful that our Lord has kept us all these years.

Arthur Linscheid and Thelma Sperry were married in August, but no one knew about it so we shall mention it at this time. This couple stayed with their mother, Mrs. J. P. Linscheid, until lately they moved to town.

The 21st of October, Rev D. J. Dick from Mountain Lake had charge of the morning services. October 28, Rev. Herbert Rupp brought us the morning message. Herbert is working in Bena, Minnesota, among the Indians. On November 4, at the close of the Christian Endeavor our annual meeting took place. Mrs. H. M. Fast was elected president Mrs. Theo Linscheid, vice president, and Mrs Erwin Ewy as secretary and treasurer.

On November 15, Raymond Fast, a senior at school, was hurt by playing. It was so serious that he was taken to the Mountain Lake Hospital, where he stayed five weeks. Just before Christmas he came home, but is still in bed. We are glad to state he is improving, we hope he will soon be out again.

On November 18, Henry Flaming from Mountain Lake, gave an interesting talk on Sunday Schools. On November 20, P. J. Bergthold from St. James was laid to rest here. Rev J. J. Balzer and Rev. P. J. Friesen spoke in German and Rev. L. H. Linscheid in English A ladies' quartet from Mountain Lake had charge of the singing.

On November 25, our annual church meeting took place. Every officer was re-elected so I will again try to do my part in writing news for the paper.

On November 6, at our Ladies Aid Meeting at the home of Mrs. J. F. Enns, the annua election took place, where Kate Penner's time as vice president expired; she was re-elected.

On December 15, the Womens Community Choir rendered the Christmas cantata, "The Adoration," at our church in the afternoon and in the evening at the Norwegian Lutheran church.

On December 24, we again as usual had our Christmas program. It is always to remember the birth of our Savior Jesus that He came to save us from all sins. Now coming to the close of another year, we indeed are very grateful for all the blessings we received from our Lord the past year. We had the privilege to have services every Sunday and worship Him. We always had Sunday School; we have nine classes at present, the pupils are from four years to past eighty years. Though we feel weak at times, may our Lord give us more strength the coming year that we may work for our Master.

Now we wish the Editor and all readers a properous new year and God's richest blessings, may we as Christians pray for more souls for Christ in this coming year and may the Lord hear our prayers.

Mrs. Gust Miller, Corr.

Barto, Pa., December 29, 1934. Greetings to the Editors and friends of "The Mennonite and Christian Evangel" from the members of the Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Pa.

With this year rapidly becoming history one can't help but reflect on activities of the different organizations for all are having business meetings and appointing new officers, if necessary. This, too, reminds a person of some of the obligations; hence, this letter.

We started the activities of the past six months with our first Home Coming services on July 1, when we had a very interesting and challenging sermon delivered by our pastor, Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson. He spoke of some of the outstanding people our church has given to the cause of Christ and the organizing of our church. Since time only permitted him to mention facts he has promised that he will at some future date give us more of these interesting facts. During the afternoon services, which consisted mostly of musical talent, Henry S. Borneman, a lawyer and former member of our church, was the speaker. The Ladies' Aid Society furnished the meals and the proceeds from same were turned over to the Church Building Fund.

Then, on July 15, Rev. Raymond Squire, a friend of our pastor and director of Religious Education at the Hilo Boarding School, Hilo, Hawaii, spoke to us in an interesting fashion of his work there. He is also Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor in Hawaii.

Prof. Herbert Berky of Bluffton College lectured to us from July 30 to August 4, basing his thoughts on "Seek Ye first the Kingdom of God." All of these lectures were the approach of a Scientist to the Kingdom of God. Prof. Berky had given a similar series of lectures about 15 months ago, but again he held many of us spellbound with the facts of this world we live in.

On September 29, our Sunday school and church entertained the delegates and friends of our 60th Sunday School Convention of the Eastern District Conference where the general theme was the Teacher stressing Preparation and Appreciation of same. Rev. Henry Kistler, associate pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church of Pennsburg, was the speaker.

Sunday November 4, was another outstanding day to us at Bally. This was anniversary Sunday where the pastor preached a special sermon because it was 13 years since he began his work at our church. In the evening the Ladies Aid Society observed their 54 anniversary, where Mrs. P. J. Boehr addressed the group.

On Sunday afternoon, November 25, the Intermediate Christian Endeavorers of our church prepared four baskets of food which were delivered to aged and needy people. One of these families was married 52 years on November 27, which was Thanksgiving Day in 1882, and how we cheered the hearts of these two old people! We held a short service at their home and the joy we received from doing so can best be expressed by what a 14 year old Intermediate Christian Endeavorer said: "I would not have missed the visits to these homes for anything in the world."

Sunday, December 23, the Primary Department of the Sunday School held its annual Christmas program while on Christmas evening the Intermediate and Senior Department of the school presented the pageant "To All People." This unique pageant was greatly enjoyed by a record house. The offerings at these two programs were turned over to the Mission Secretary for the project by the Eastern District Sunday School Conference.

About 30 of our Sunday School members spread Christmas cheer on Sunday evening, December 23, by singing Christmas carols to aged, sick and shutins.

Our young people are again planning to render a program at the Old Folks at Frederick on December 30. Santa Claus tells us he will be there and bring a gift and an orange.

The pastor has been obliged to be away from our locality a few Sundays in the past six months when Paul Shelly has been substituting.

While quite a few of our church members are aged and infirm and many of our younger people have been sick in the past few months, we have only buried two of our members this year.

Our pastor has had to tie the wedding knot for quite a few of our young people in this past year. This, together with the young lives that God sends into a home to bring cheer to their parents, has helped to cheer us along life's way.

Reflecting upon the events of this past year our church has been quite active and we thoroughly enjoy the new quarters given us, but with these activities we also have responsibilities and reserves. But we hope, with Divine Aid, to take these reverses and difficulties and make them stepping stones to greater usefulness and service in our community in the coming year. Mae Latshaw.

Fortuna. Missouri, January 8, 1935. The Bethel Mennonite Church near Fortuna, Missouri, is still on the map, but it has been rather quiet for some time. The congregation elected a correspondent every year, but in spite of the fact that he failed to report any news in 1934 the voters had enough confidence in him to reelect him for 1935. We must give the voters more credit than the correspondent to have confidence in material like this. Thus we will emply reminiscence and report a few things of 1934. During the year there is no death to report in our congregation. This certainly is an outstanding statement, for which we are thankful to our heavenly Father. But although there were no deaths some families had quite a load to bear, inasmuch as sickness bore heavily upon them. On January Chris. Hofstetters took their daughter Mary to the hospita for a severe case of appendicitis. Afterward other complications developed, so that for several months she was quite feeble.

John P. Loganbill has been afflicted with rheumatism for more than a year, and for a while was quite helpless, but is recuperating some at present. William Hofstetter also has been suffering intensely at times with the dreaded disease cancer.

We are glad for the church work we are able to do. Our pastor, Rev. C. H. Dirks, is active trying to keep every department at work Sunday School, prayer meetings, and church services are regularly held every week during the year. During the winter the pastor teaches a Bible class and in summer the daily vacation Bible school is being conducted. There were 65 scholars enrolled and five teachers are engaged. Wednesday evenings after prayer meeting the choir practices for a while.

On Easter Sunday we had a sunrise service at 6 A. M. and later we had Sunday School as usual, after which a consecration sermon was given on the theme "The Resurrection and the Life."

Drs. Harry and Ella Bauman were with us for about a month, for which we were glad. On August 5, they were again ready to leave and we had an all day farewell and mission program. Rev. Adolph Freasen from Summerfield, Illinois, was with us for the day and gave us two sermons fitted for the occasion, one in the morning and the other at night. In the afternoon Drs. Harvy and Ella Bauman spoke, bidding farewell to the church and also giving some of the reasons why they are again ready to go to India. They pointed out the great need that existed in India, on the other hand God has kept them and given them health, and love for the people, and the work constrained them to resume the task.

Christmas evening the Sunday School gave a program that was much appreciated by all, both the exercises and recitations and the music by the choir. Greetings to the readers.

S. J. Moser, Corr.

Modern life calls for energy and more energy. It needs God more and more, even if it seeks Him less and less. Only in God is there an exhaustless reservoir of strength. "They shall run and not be weary" was said long ago of those who trust in God.—Sel.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

THE TOUCH OF THE MASTER'S HAND

'Twas battered and scarred, and the auctioneer
Thought it was scarcely worth his while
To waste much time on the old violin,
But he held it up with a smile.
"What am I bidden, good folks"? he cried,
"Who'll start the bidding for me?
A dollar, a dollar, now two, only two?
Two dollars, and who'll make it three?

"Three dollars once, three dollars twice,
"Going for three"? — But no —
From the room far back, a grayhaired man
Came forward and picked up the bow,
Then wiping the dust from the old violin,
And tightening up all the strings,
He played a melody pure and sweet,
As sweet as an angel sings.

The music ceased, and the auctioneer,
With a voice that was quiet and low,
Said, "What am I bid for the old violin"?
And he held it up with the bow.
"A thousand dollars, and who'll make it two?
Two thousand, who'll make it three?
Three thousand once, three thousand twice,
And going, and gone," said he.

The people cheered, but some of them cried,
"We do not quite understand
What changed its worth." Swift came the reply,
"The touch of the master's hand."
Many a man with life out of tune,
And battered and torn with sin,
Is auctioned cheap to a thoughtless crowd,
Much like the old violin.

A mess of pottage, a glass of wine,
A game and he travels on.
He is going once, he is going twice,
He is going and almost gone.
But the Master comes, and the foolish crowd
Can never quite understand
The worth of a soul, and the change that is wrought
By the touch of the Master's hand.

—Author Unknown.

A FABLE FOR EPIPHANY

He was a church member.

This particular church member had more than a casual acquaintance with money.

He made it. He carried it. He spent it.

He used judgment in spending it. But was his judgment good?

What the coins and bills in his pocketbook thought of his judgment is rather interesting, as a conversation between them showed.

Fresh and crisp in his new attire, the dollar lay folded in the churchman's billfold. Jingling about with the pennies and dimes a little nickel played.

"You'd better have a good time," the dollar spoke through his partition, hearing the noise. "You won't be here long."

The little nickel was disturbed at the thought that he was to be taken out of his snug position. "How do you know"? he asked.

"Because you are going to church," he was informed.

"Why," the nickel replied, "aren't you going to church, too"?

"I? Go to church"? the haughty dollar made answer. "Of course not! I go to shows, and gasoline stations, and parks. Sunday is my big day, but I am not spent in church. That's a place for small fry like you."

The dollar of the fable had evidently quite a high opinion of the judgment of his owner. The nickel for God! The dollar for fun! That's the way money is set apart for its diverse purposes. But is it wise stewardship? Is it stewardship at all?

God forbid that we should look cross at a nickel in the collection basket or church envelope when poverty gives it and love consecrates it!

But when the dollar in the next pocket gets a swelled head because of its higher mission to the gasoline station or place of pleasure, whereas the nickel merely swells the trust fund of the Lord, we are reminded of a passage in Revelation: "So hast thou also some that hold the teaching of the Nicolaitans in like manner."

We do, alas! dear Lord.

—Lutheran Youth.

A WORD TO BOYS

You are made to be kind, boys, generous and magnanimous.

If there is a boy in school who has a club-foot, don't let him know you ever saw it.

If there is a poor boy with ragged clothes, don't talk rags in his hearing.

If there is a lame boy, assign him some part in the game that doesn't require running.

If there is a dull one, help him to learn his lesson.

If there is a bright one, be not envious of him; for if one boy is proud of his talents and another is envious of them, there are two great wrongs, and no more talent than before.

If a larger or stronger boy has injured you and is sorry for it, forgive him. All the school will show by their countenances how much better it is than to have a great fuss.

—Horace Mann.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

February 17, 1935

What The Bible Says About Temptation And Sin

James 1:2-4, 12-18

There is a strong tendency afoot everywhere to get to the essentials of things. A part of this movement is to be found in a new eagerness to study the Bible anew. In some churches there is to be found a large group of Bible readers who band themselves together to read through the entire Bible carefully and prayerfully during the year 1935. As a part of this movement it is well that we have some topics which delve deeply into the Bible's truth on various subjects. For this week we will investigate as to what the Bible has to say about sin and temptation.

Found in the Scripture Portion: There are four men named James to be found in the Bible, but most Bible students and commentators believe that the author of the epistle is James, the brother of the Lord and head of the church at Jerusalem. It is thought by many to have been the earliest of all our New Testament writings which have come down to us. It was written for all Jews, those unconverted and those who were Christian. Thus we find an abundance of Old Testament material.

James speaks about temptations as trials which, if rightly borne, bring joy. The Christian is bidden to pray that he may not be led into trials, but when trials come they may be made to bear peaceable fruit. Temptations come from within. It has sometimes been thought that God sends temptations and that it is impossible for man to resist them, but God never tempts a man to sin, although he may permit temptation in order that we may be made stronger by resisting it.

Temptation comes from a man's own heart with its evil desire that draws him from the right path. Desire becomes the mother of sin, and sin results in death. On the other hand God is the source of good and every good gift emanates from Him.

For Bible Study and Discussion

1. What is sin? Prov. 10:19, 14:21, 24:9; Rom. 14:23; Jas. 4:17; 1 Jn. 3:4, 5:17.
2. The penalty of sin. Gen. 3:19; 1 Chr. 10:13; Prov. 11:19; Ezek. 18:4; Rom. 5:12, 6:23.
3. Satan the chief agent of temptation. Gen. 3:1; 1 Chr. 21:1; Mt. 4:3; II Cor. 2:11, 11:3; 1 Thess. 3:5.
4. Encouragement to those tempted. 1 Cor. 10:13; Heb. 2:18; Jas. 1:12; II Pet. 2:9; Rev. 3:10.
5. Resisting temptation. Luke 4:8; Acts 8:20; Prov. 1:10, 4:14; Rom. 6:13; Eph. 6:13; II P. 3:17; Jas. 4:7.

February 24, 1935

What The Bible Says About Forgiveness

I John 1:7-9, 2:1-12

Like was the case last week, the topic for this week again very definitely calls for a careful study as to what the Bible has to teach us concerning forgiveness. This week our Scripture portion is found in the First Epistle of John.

Our Scripture Text: Internal and external evidence seems to agree that this epistle was written by the Apostle John after he had come to old age, possibly between 90 and 100 A. D. Some think this epistle was originally written as a supplement to the Gospel. It was written probably to the Gentiles. The theme of the book seems to be fellowship with God and to assure his readers against losing it.

Since the theme of the whole letter seems to be based on fellowship we are not surprised that the author has a good deal to say about forgiveness. Those who walk in the path of the spiritually reborn they will have fellowship with their fellowmen, for they have procured forgiveness through the blood of Jesus Christ. But he goes on to say if anyone claims to be so perfect as to think they are without sin, they are only "kidding" themselves and the truth does not abide in them.

Study The Bible For Truth

1. Analyze 1 John 2:1-12 as to its message concerning forgiveness.
2. Study the promises of divine forgiveness. Ps. 103:3, 130:4; Matt. 6:14; Acts 5:31, 13:38; Eph. 1:7; 1 John 1:9.
3. Our duty to forgive our fellows. Mark 11:25; Luke 17:4; Eph. 4:32; Col. 3:13.
4. What the Bible teaches concerning rewarding evil with good. Gen. 45:15; 1 Sam. 24:17; Luke 22:51; Acts 7:60; Prov. 25:21; Matt. 5:44; Rom. 12:20; 1 Thess. 5:15.
5. Biblical lessons on mercifulness. Ps. 103:17, 108:4; Micah 7:18; Matt. 5:7; Luke 6:36; Jas. 2:13.

We should always cover our neighbor's faults with a cloak of charity, because we need a circus tent to cover our own. —Anonymous.

"He that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city."

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Illinois

February 17, 1935

Modern Waste of Human Life

Jas. 5, 1—6

So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom. Ps. 90:12.

Pre-prayer

That our lives may be lived in accordance with His will, shown to us through His Word and our communications with Him.

Many a motorist watching the dial which records his speed fails to see the beautiful scenery and so it is with the human life. One of the greatest wastes and tragedies is that one's thoughts are absorbed by the trivial things of life and the great truths are disregarded. Let us look around us and we can see children whose lives are being wasted and whose years of living are being shortened by hard labor, so that someone else can make a little more profit. We realize that they are being hindered in their preparation for life. We go on and we can find other young people who have not had to labor as these children but have had a chance to prepare themselves for life and have thrown that aside and spent their life in carelessness, idleness, following the gang and sooner or later, maybe in youth, maybe in middle age, they have lost control of their life and follow into sin, yes, maybe crime. We say what a wasted life, one, that if led in the right direction may have been a great blessing for good—but they heeded not the warnings.

Again when we hear of a great accident where lives have been taken we feel that human life has been wasted by maybe someone's carelessness in small things or someone's disobedience to laws. Then we see hundreds, yes, thousands, of men whose lives have been on the battlefield and yet when the war is over and we count the number of lives that have been lost, we do nothing to prevent another such waste.

Yes, we can see how human life is wasted but let us look at our own selves. No, we don't do any of these things, but aren't there ways in which we waste our lives? Maybe not to such a large extent, but let us look seriously into our own life. Are we wasting our time reading the cheap literature when we could be reading material that will build us up, give us things worthwhile to think about and help us to live a life that is clean and noble? What about our studies? Are we just putting in our time because all the others do? Are we just getting by or are we trying to make every day's work mean something to us? Many have seen and felt later in life that they had wasted precious years and had not made the best of their life. Is there someone who is sacrificing so that I may have this opportunity and am I doing all that I can to repay them or am I neglecting some of my duties? Are we spending all our time and thought on having a good time? Yes, we need recreation but is it of the highest type? If it is sports do we play the game fair or do we cheat when we think that it won't be found out? Do we neglect our duties at home or let someone else do them, for pleasure? Are we so tired by Sunday that we have to spend the day resting? There are many questions more than we could ask ourselves but the life that is not going to be wasted is the one that is going to develop mentally, physically, socially and spiritually, having a time for study, work, pleasure and above all for our devotional life which will help us to make the most of our life and to make the right decisions. Let us take time to look away from the things which we can see to those which are not seen.

Forenoon, afternoon and night,
Forenoon, afternoon and night,
Forenoon and — what?
The empty song repeats itself no more,
Yes, that is life.

Make this forenoon sublime
This afternoon a psalm
This night a prayer
And time is conquered
And thy crown is won.

1. Name characters who you consider have wasted their life and why.
2. Name characters who have not wasted their life and why have they lived on.
3. Can the church help their young people so that their lives may not be wasted? How?
4. Can the church save young people from wasting their life in crime?
5. Do we always make the best use of our every day life?
6. How can we prevent wasting our own life?

February 24, 1935

How Do I Picture Jesus?

John 20: 30, 31

Jesus' Love

There is no height too high,
There is no depth too low;
As far as East is from the West
So far His love doth flow.
It covers all the land,
Encompasseth the sea,
Embraces every speck of time,
And all eternity.

Pre-prayer

May we see Jesus as we have never seen Him before and may His life be an example to us.

Pictures of Jesus

In trying to picture Jesus let us look at the Scriptures and form a picture of Him from the Holy Word and not from other's ideas.

In the first place we have His birth given Luke 2: 1—7.

At twelve He went with His parents to the Feast of the Passover. Luke 2:41-42.

We see Him in the temple with the doctors asking them questions. Luke 2: 46—47.

Jesus was obedient unto His parents. Luke 2: 51.

Luke 2: 52 shows us Jesus as a youth. Can you picture Him in the home? Although a boy of twelve in Jesus' time was considered grown, He yet was submissive unto His parents and learned from His mother, who was His best teacher, the great truths that she had to teach Him.

In later years we see Him coming to John the Baptist to be baptized. Matt. 3:13-17; Luke 3: 21—23.

Jesus was like us, human, and was tempted as we are but He did not yield. Matt. 4: 1—11. When Satan left Him angels came and ministered unto Him. Can you picture Jesus ready to enter His life work? It is a good thing to think upon Christ and to observe His life.

Let us try and picture now His life among men.

Healer — Simon's mother-in-law. Man with the withered hand. Blind man. There are many more that can be named.

Power over the devil—Matt. 12:22-27 and Mark 5:1-20.

Master of the elements—Mark 4: 35—41.
Supplying bodily need—Matt. 14: 13—21.
Sympathy—John 11: 1—46.
Kind and gentle—Luke 18: 15—17.
Humble service—John 13: 4—15.
Agony—Matt. 26: 30—46.
Gave His life for us—Matt. 27: 35—44.
Resurrection—Matt. 28: 2—4.

He was a teacher of great truths given to us in the Sermon on the Mount found in Matt. chapters 5, 6 and 7. Jesus had wisdom, Matt. 22: 17—22, courage and strength Luke 19: 45, 46 and yet in accusing the Pharisee in Matt. 5: 15 Jesus shows us a little humor.

The Christ-like Life

Are you willing to stoop down and consider the needs and desires of little children?

Are you willing to remember the weakness and loneliness of people growing old?

Are you willing to stop asking how much your friends love you, but ask yourself if you love them enough?

Are you willing to make a grave for your ugly thoughts and a garden for your kindly feelings for humanity?

With the gate open toward Gethsemane can you picture the Christ pouring out His soul in prayer to God for us?

He lived to save us from sin.

He died to save us from death.

1. What picture did I have of Jesus as a child?
2. How do I picture Jesus now?
3. What picture do I have of Jesus as a child?
4. What kind of young man was Jesus?
5. If Jesus were here on earth today what would He be like?
6. From what sources do we get our ideas of Jesus?
7. Are our pictures of Jesus affected by any outside sources?

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

Story Telling

The story is an unfailing interest in the lives of both young and old. The Story Method for teaching living truth, as well as for entertainment, is a method tried and true, that has come to us, down through the age, used by teachers ever since teaching has become an art.

The successful story teller must first of all know to select story material and how to work over that material until it is suitable for his audience.

In selecting a story, the first question to ask is, "Does it meet the child's interest?" Beginners and Primary children enjoy simple stories, such as animal stories, poetry, folklore, and children's experiences. Stories of adventure, sacrifice and service hold the interest of the Juniors while Intermediates enjoy stories of heroism and romance.

Meeting the child's interest, however is not the only factor to be considered in the selection of a story. A story may hold his interest and yet not be a "good" story for him to hear. A really good story always has a life giving content which stimulates the child's imagination in the right direction. The good story is true to life. "Untrue and exaggerated situations give children an untrue idea of life, a wrong perspective."

A good telling story is full of action. It dare not limp along with too much description or unnecessary explanation. It must capture the interest of the child with the very first statement and move along swiftly. It is full of real but dramatic situations, but leaves much to be filled in by the imagination of childhood.

The literary quality of the story should be of the best. It should be beautiful, not only in its imagery and ideas, but also its language.

When the teller of stories has learned to recognize a good story, his next task it to learn how to tell it. It is doubtful whether even the greatest artists ever get away from some analysis of their material. The beginner can well afford to outline in detail his entire story. First he will determine what is the special message of his story and write out its theme. Then he will outline the various scenes in his story form beginning to end.

Mrs. M. E. Plank, Middlebury, Ind.

(This is only a part of Mrs. Plank's article on Story Telling. Look for the last half in the next issue.)

February 17, 1935

Topic—God's Wonder Book: What it Promises.

2 Cor. 1: 20.

A great man once promised to meet a poor girl at a certain time to give her some money. As the time came near, he found himself so busy that he thought of sending someone in his place, then he thought, "No, I promised. I must keep my word." So God is careful to keep His word with all of us. I have before me a book of more than two hundred pages filled with promises from God's Word. Every one of these promises has been made by God and He can not afford to break one of them. If one promise should be broken, we might doubt the rest but we shall never have any reason to do that.

When I was a little girl in Sunday School, we used to sing a song in which were these words about the Bible.

"Each page has a promise,
Each promise a pearl
That all if we will may secure."

How are we to secure these promises, to have them come true in our own lives? There are people who think God has forgotten or doesn't do as He has promised. There are two reasons why this may seem true. Often we are in too great a hurry. We think God should give us just what we want when we want it. He knows much better than we and He always works at the right time. Then there are certain things He expects of us. See Acts 16:31. We must believe, then we are saved. Then John 15: 7 tells us our part if we would have prayer answered. You will find that true of the promises all through the Bible.

Here are just a few of these promises. You can find many more.

Salvation, Acts 16: 31; Joy, John 16: 22; Peace, Isa. 26: 3; Guidance, Psa. 48: 14; Wisdom, James 1: 5; Companionship, Matt. 28: 20; Help in sorrow, Matt. 5: 4; Help in trial, 1 Pet. 5:7; Food, Psa. 37:3; Answer to prayer, John 15:7; Home in heaven, John 14:2, 3.

Plans for the Meeting

Have many Bible promises quoted in the meeting. Also give illustrations of how God has kept these promises. You may find them in the Bible, in the experience of later Christian leaders and in your own experience.

Questions

1. Who has made the promises of the Bible?
2. Why has He made so many promises for our good?
3. How do we know we may trust Him to keep them?
4. Why is He so careful to keep His word?
5. How may we hinder God in keeping His promises to us?

February 24, 1935

Topic—God's Wonder Book: What It Tells Us about God's Care.

1 Pet. 5: 7.

From Genesis to Revelation, God's Wonder Book has a great deal to say about His care. Let us begin with Genesis 1. God wanted to make man but first He prepared everything for man's good then put him in a most pleasant place where he would have everything that he needed.

Later in Genesis we read of Joseph who was sold into Egypt and how wonderfully God cared for him there. He caused Pharaoh to become interested in Joseph and to give him a very good position.

Going just a bit farther, in Exodus 2 we find a little baby, Moses. The king had made a law that all babies such as he must die but God watched over him and sent the princess to find him at just the right time.

He cared for Daniel and his friends when they were taken prisoners into a strange country. Even though people tried to kill them for their faith in God, He protected them.

Then I am sure you remember Elijah. Read of God's care for him in 1 Kings 17.

Going over into the New Testament, we find Him still caring for people. Think of all the sick folks Jesus healed. Then as we study the life of Paul we see how wonderfully God cared for him even when he was a prisoner.

After thinking of all these folks, doesn't our verse for today make us glad? "He careth for you." He is just as loving, just as powerful as ever.

Plans for the Meeting

Assign to Juniors the names of different men and women of the Bible who are illustrations of God's care. This discussion may be a sort of sequel to that of last week for God's promises and His care are closely related. Use songs that tell of His care. Perhaps you could get an older Endeavorer to visit your meeting and sing one or two songs on the subject.

Questions

1. How did God provide for Adam and Eve?
2. Why does He care for His people?
3. Tell of ways in which He cares for people now?
4. Is God always able to care for us? Why?
5. What can you think of in Jesus' life that showed God's care?

"If it grieves you because your tongue is quick to say something mean or unkind about another, ask the Lord to help you to think kind and loving thoughts about that one. If you think kind thoughts about all, kind words will come. 'Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.' (Matt. 12:34)."

—Selected.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

February 10, 1935

Peter Preaches At Pentecost

Lesson Text—Acts 2:22-28, 36-41

Golden Text:—Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized, every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. Acts 2:38.

We have now come in the life of Peter to the day of Pentecost. We are beginning to see the significance of the words of Jesus, "'Thou shalt be called Petros, a rock," also after the great confession at Caesarea Philippi Jesus said, "Thou art Peter and upon this rock will I build my church." Simon plus Jesus equals Petros, a rock. This same transformation may take place in any life that lives in fellowship with Jesus and God. Simon Peter, who had been shallow, impulsive, and denied his Lord, now boldly proclaims Jesus as the Christ. What has brought about this change? How is it that Simon, who was afraid, now is a lion in courage?

There are two things that account for it. Up to the time of the Pentecostal experience Peter as well as the other disciples still were expecting Jesus to establish a material, earthly Jewish kingdom. While they were on their way out to the Mount of Olives the disciples said, "Will you now restore the kingdom to Israel"? So whenever anything occurred that looked like a defeat on the part of the disciples, they lost their enthusiasm and courage. But when the day of Pentecost came and they saw that the Kingdom of Christ was not material and earthly, but a spiritual kingdom with the risen Christ as King, their enthusiasm revived and they spoke with boldness in spite of opposition and persecution. The people perceived they had been with Jesus and learned of Him. A positive and joyful faith and with it courage must always come from a fellowship with the spiritual Christ.

In the second place Peter is different because something happened on the day of Pentecost. This great harvest festival of the Jews also became a great harvest and spiritual festival for the followers of Christ.

The Holy Spirit which Jesus had promised before He left, came upon the one hundred and twenty in the upper room. Each individual felt the presence of the Spirit. This Spirit brought to Peter as well as the other followers great illumination. It came as fire. Peter now began to see the kingdom in a new light and the mission of Jesus in a new way. It also gave them power. It came as a rushing, mighty wind. This power is seen in the testimony and work of the apostles. The key word of the Book of Acts is power. It also came to abide with them. It sat upon each of them. Jesus came at the day of Pentecost not as He came the first time, as a babe in a manger and as a man, but in this second coming He came as a spiritual Christ to abide in the hearts and lives of men and women. This is why Paul could say, "Christ liveth in me."

The sermon which Peter preached is simply a result and the product of this unique and marvelous experience that came to them on the day of Pentecost.

Where did Peter get his sermon?

What is the theme of his sermon?

Why did the people think the apostles had new wine?

Did they really lose their self-control?

What really happened on the day of Pentecost?

February 17, 1935

Peter Teaches Good Citizenship

(Temperance Lesson)

Lesson Text.—1 Peter 2:11-17; 4:1-5

Golden Text: Love worketh no ill to his neighbor, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law. Rom. 13:10.

In this lesson we come to the writings of Peter as recorded in his first letter to the churches. The emphasis is to be placed on temperance. Temperance is a virtue. It is found in practically all the ethical systems of mankind. It was one of the virtues much emphasized by the Greek philosophers. It is possible to build up an ethical system separate from religion.

In the Scripture assigned to us for today we have taught this virtue of temperance, but as it grows out of a religious experience. It is always well to remember that although the New Testament teaches the highest kind of ethics and emphasizes the highest virtues, yet it was not written as a text book on ethics. It has a religious message. Its purpose is to reveal the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. This Father is a God of love, and when we live in His presence this love becomes the native power and passion of our lives, and out of a life ruled by love there comes the highest ethical life and the great virtue of temperance. A man ruled by love will be temperate in all things. He will practice self-control in his speaking, eating, drinking, and in his attitudes toward others. He does not slavishly follow an ethical code set up, but in the spirit of freedom he willingly and joyfully lives a life of self-control by Christ-control.

The Bible is a book of life. Here in our lesson Peter first lived that which he wrote in this epistle. Life always comes before literature. Peter experienced these truths he is teaching us in his letters. He admonishes us to honor the king and submit ourselves to the governors. This, of course, we can not literally fulfill because we have no king, neither the kind of governors to which he refers. In other words, the forms in which truth is brought changes from century to century, but the truth remains. The value of the Word of God lies in the fact that we can reproduce these experiences in our own lives.

What do we mean by temperance?

What is the best way to develop self-control in the individual?

What to your mind is the most constructive way to combat the evil of strong drink?

Is smoking or any use of tobacco a form of intemperance?

CORRESPONDENCE

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. Christmas was observed Sunday, December 23, with a short program by the children and a Christmas sermon by the pastor. In the evening a Candle Light and White Gift Service was given. There were twelve candle lighters. Organ music and choir and vocal numbers were given throughout the program.

The parsonage has been the scene of two weddings recently, the ceremonies being performed by Rev. Salzman. Friday evening, December 21st, Miss Beulah Morrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Morrell of Albion, became the bride of Mr. Robert Bilmire, of Ligonier. They will make their home in Ligonier.

On Sunday afternoon, December 30, Miss Evelyn Yoder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Yoder, became the bride of Mr. Clayton Molebosh, of Elkhart. They will reside in Elkhart. Our best wishes go to these young people.

College students who spent the holidays at home, were Paul Kohl and Alden Plank of Bluffton College, and Clifford Lantz of Goshen College.

Miss Nadine Miller of Bryon, Ohio, spent several days recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Miller.

Miss Lois Hartzler, a nurse in the Epworth Hospital, South Bend, spent the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Celine Hartzler.

The Misses Sarah Bohn and Verda Plank have returned to Wooster, Ohio, where they are employed at Wooster College, after spending the holidays with relatives and friends here.

Rev. R. L. Hartzler and family of Carlock, Ill., visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Hartzler, during the holidays and attended the services Sunday morning, December 30. Rev. Hartzler delivered the morning message.

No evening service was held Sunday evening, December 30, in order to attend the cantata, "King of Israel" which was given at the M. E. Church by the Chumbuser M. E. choir and the local choir.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, January 3, at the church.

Sunday evening, January 6, the cantata "Angelic Chorus" was given by the chorus from the Church of God at Emma. Several of our members assisted in the cantata. The cantata was under the direction of Mr. Walter Greenwalt. A large audience was present to enjoy the music.

The measure of a man's real character is what he would do if he knew he would never be found out.—Macaulay.

Whatever kind of world men build now, we all have to live in it. Let us take a hand in the building.

JOTTINGS

Rev. J. C. Kaufman, Freeman, South Dakota, spent some days visiting in the Eastern District Conference. He represents the interests of Freeman College and is bringing information concerning that institution and the condition of the community in which he lives. After four years, during which no crop has been harvested, the once very prosperous community is hard hit.

The ministers of the Eastern District Conference held their quarterly conference in the Zion church, Souderton, Pa., January 14. Rev. J. C. Kaufman of Freeman, South Dakota, was the guest of the Conference.

Rev. Carl Landes of the First Church, Philadelphia, is, at this writing, quarantined in his home suffering with mumps.

We were impressed with the loyalty and fine spirit shown by the members of a small congregation in the western drought region. Like their neighbors they are suffering from the extended drought and practically without means, yet when it was proposed that they omit their usual missionary festival because of the obvious shortage of means, they protested. It had always been their custom to hold such a service and no material need should stand in the way of its continous celebration. The missionary collection which was lifted was liberal considering the needs of the entire community.

The sympathy of our readers and the editor goes out to Dr. J. W. Kliewer, of Newton, Kansas. Mrs. Kliewer recently died in Bethel Hospital a sufferer from pneumonia. Dr. Kliewer was a former pastor of the Wadsworth, Ohio and Berne, Indiana, churches, having also served as president of Bethel College, Newton, Kansas. While in the college work he also served as minister of the Bethel College church and President of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference.

Another great loss to the Mennonite church resulted from the death of Prof. H. H. Ewert of Gretna, Manitoba. Professor Ewert was principal of the Halstead Kansas, Mennonite Academy when he accepted a call from the Canadian authorities to superintend the Mennonite schools of Manitoba forty years ago. For many years he was at the head of the Mennonite Institute in Gretna. This institution has a record for having inaugurated and maintaining a high educational standard among the Mennonites of Canada.

The early home of Prof. H. H. Ewert of Gretna, Manitoba, who recently passed to his eternal reward, was in the Brudertal church, near Hillsboro, Kansas. In this congregation there followed a Memorial Service in honor of the Professor. The services included a review of the work as an educator and minister during his long life.

Tabor College, an institution of the Mennonite Brethren at Hillsboro, Kansas, which has been closed during the past year, is planning for its reopening next fall.

Dr. E. G. Kaufman, president of Bethel College, was the guest of the First Mennonite church of Hutchinson, Kansas, recently delivering an impressive sermon. He was entertained at the home of the pastor, Rev. J. J. Plenert.

The Mennonite church of Berne, Indiana, held its annual business meeting on New Year's day. Otto Sprunger succeded his father, who retired because of age, as trustee. A vote was also taken on proposed changes in the church constitution. One proposal was to strike from the constitution a phase stating that ballots in pastor elections must be signed by the voter. Another change would permit members in good standing in other churches to participate in the Lord's Supper. The constitution leaves this only to Mennonites.

For thirty years the Berne, Indiana, community has been regularly holding special evangelistic services in the Mennonite church. Speakers of prominence and ability have always been engaged. This series of meetings arranged for this year has been under the direction of Rev. Harry van Bruch, one of the younger men in the field of evangelism who has had a continent wide experience.

Rev. C. Hege, of California, and former pastor at Freeman, South Dakota, who served a term as vice president of the General Conference, returned on a visit to his former charge preaching several sermons in the South church to large and appreciative audiences. From Freeman he visited the brethren at Wisner, Nebraska. From Wisner he went to Moundridge, Kansas, where he conducted a series of meetings in the Eden church of which Rev. C. J. Goering is pastor.

Rev. J. B. Frey who for many years served as missionary to the Hopi Indians and now teaching in the Meno Bible School in Oklahoma is at work on scripture translation. Recently he made a trip to Arizona to secure the father of Fred Johnson to assist him in the work. Brother Frey and his guest plan an extended visit to the Mennonite churches in Kansas.

The C. E. society of the West Zion Kansas Mennonite church was the entertaining society for the County C. E. convention.

The Annual Business Meeting of the St. John Church, Pandora, Ohio, elected the following officers: Pastor, Rev. E. Toews; Deacon, Menas Gerber; Trustee, N. N. Soldner; Secretary, H. Koli; Treasurer, Clarence Schneck; Chorister, Henrietta Schneck; Correspondents, Mrs. N. N. Soldner and John Schneck.

The Treasurer of the Emergency Relief Board of the General Conference reports receipts for November as follows: For Russia, $944.85; For Canada, $40.53; For Harbin, $50.00; For India, $.50; For Brazil and Paraguay, $5.00; General Fund $400.53. Total, $1440.68. Total Disbursements, $887.46.

After service of several years as pastor of the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Rev. Carl Landes presented his resignation. The date when this is to become effective has not been announced.

Eden Church, Schwenksville, Pa., was delighted to have as its guest preacher on January 13, Rev. J. C. Kaufman of Freeman, South Dakota. Freeman Swartz is pastor of the Schwenksville church.

The Sugar Creek, Ohio, church, having been without a pastor for nearly a year, at its yearly meeting considered the recommendation of its Church Committee to extend a call to a candidate under consideration. Mr. Don F. Falkenberg, a representative of the Pocket Testament League, was the speaker at the service on the evening of January 6.

The report of the Executive Committee of Mission Societies of the General Conference for December is as follows: Foreign Mission Treasury, $1020.33. Home Mission General Treasury, $277.35. Christmas Fund, $110.04. Miscellaneous, $730.32. Expenses of Executive Committee and News and Notes $22.50. Grand Total, $2,168.94.

The financial report of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference for December, 1934, is as follows: Total receipts general fund, gifts for orphans, etc, gifts for Ewerts, Interest and Rent, gifts for Pension Fund and Balance in Bank $12,130.22. Remitted directly to India and paid on orders, $7,934.34. Balance in Bank January 1, $4,195.88. $3,500 of the first quarters payment has been paid, leaving a balance of unpaid of about $13,000.

On Sunday, January 6, Rev. A. M. Fretz of Perkasie, Pa., in his New Year messages in each of his three congregations led his people imaginarily from the "Upper room" in Jerusalem and its solemnities, in John 13 and 14, by the vine clad hills outside the city with John 15 and 16 down to the banks of the Kidron, where intense reverence the heads were bowed in attention to our Lord's high-priestly prayer before crossing over into Gethsemane. The New Year text from this prayer was John 17, 20—23. The motto prompted for 1935 is: Our Savior's intercessions for us before the sacrificial altar of His life leads us closer to His wounded side in the experiences of 1935.

DEATHS

Henry F. Myers, at his home in Perkasie, one of the charter members of the Bethel Mennonite Church, formerly a member of the Deep Run Church, died November 14, 1934. Age 57 years, 5 months and 6 days. Interment on the 18th, services by his pastor A. M. Fretz, assisted by Rev. Ritter of the Lutheran Church.

Oswin Clemmer, of Bally, Pa., born August 8, 1871. Died in Allentown Hospital, January 2, 1935. He was an active worker in the Bally, Pa., Mennonite Church. He is survived by his wife, three children, two brothers and a sister. Funeral services were held in his late home in Bally and the Mennonite Church. Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson, the pastor officiating.

Rev. H. H. Ewert, Gretna, Manitoba, born April 12, 1855, near Thorn, West Prussia. Emigrated to Kansas in 1874 together with his parents. Taught in a country school 2 years near Hillsboro, Kansas. Was principal and teacher of the Mennonite Seminary at Halstead, Kansas, from 1882 to 1891. Came to Manitoba in the summer of 1891. Principal and teacher of the Mennonite Collegiate Institute, at Gretna, Manitoba, from 1891 to December 1934. School inspector of Mennonite Schools in Manitoba from 1891 to 1903. Total number of years taught 55 years. Was quite sick during the past summer months, gained enough strength to take up his duties in the school at the beginning of the fall term. Got sick on Monday, December 24. Died very peacefully Saturday, at 9 P. M., December 29, at the age of 79 years, 8 months, 17 days. Funeral at Gretna, Wednesday, January 2, 1935. Bishop Jacob Hoeppner of Winkler, and Rev. John P. Klassen of Winnipeg preached the funeral sermons.

Jacob C. Jantz, son of Cornelius and Maria Jantz, was born near Marion Junction, South Dakota, January 1, 1886. In the year of 1903 he came with his parents and brothers to the state of Washington locating on a farm northwest of Ruff. In the year of 1905 he was baptized and received as a member of the church at Menno. When the church in Ruff was organized in December 29, 1910, he became one of its charter members. On the 19th day of January, 1908, he was united in marriage to Rose Miller. The Lord blessed this union with 5 children, 4 sons and 1 daughter. He was a very faithful member of the church. The Bible was a steady companion. He took sick suddenly Sunday morning December 16, being taken to the hospital Tuesday morning. The operation appeared to have been successful, however on Saturday morning, December 22, he passed away quietly. He attained an age of 48 years, 11 months and 21 days. He leaves to mourn his untimely departure, his beloved wife, the 5 children, his aged parents, 4 brothers with their families and a host of relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted from the home of one of his brothers in Odessa, Monday morning, December 24, at 10:45, and then from the Menno Mennonite church at 12 o'clock. Burial was made in the Mennonite cemetery near the church. His pastor, Rev. M. J. Galle, officiating.

Henry Wenger, son of Christian and Elizabeth Wenger, was born near Wayland, Iowa, on December 4, 1870, and died December 23, 1934, at the age of 64 years and 19 days. He spent his entire life in and around Wayland. On February 14, 1895, he was married to Anna Freyenberger. This union was blessed with three children. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, one son, and three grandchildren. Also five brothers and two sisters. He united with the Mennonite Church in his younger years, and remained faithful to the end. Funeral services were held at the Wayland Mennonite Church in the afternoon of Christmas Day. It was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Elmer Basinger, who was assisted by Rev. A. H. Miller of the Eicher Church. Interment was made in the North Hill cemetery.

MARRIAGE

Hixson-Meyers. —At the home of Erwin G. Sleiffer in Springfield, Pa., on December 25, 1934, their adopted daughter Marion M. Meyers was given in marriage to Wesley Hixson of near Springtown, Pa. The ring ceremony was performed by the family's pastor A. M. Fretz.

Basinger-Geiger—In the afternoon of New Year's Day occured the wedding of Laverne D. Geiger, son of Llewelyn and Pauline Geiger of Pandora, Ohio, and L. Gwendolyn Basinger, daughter of Elmer and Caroline Basinger of Wayland, Iowa. The marriage was solemnized by the bride's father at the parsonage at Wayland, Iowa.

A FAREWELL SERVICE FOR OUR MISSIONARIES

On the afternoon of January 20, Sunday, there was held a farewell service for our missionaries going to the Belgian Congo. This meeting was held at the Calvary Mennonite Church at Washington, Illinois. Rev. Ben Esch, pastor of the church, welcomed the audience and then read the Scripture and led in prayer.

Rev. A. M. Eash, field secretary of the Congo Inland Mission Board, presided and introduced the speakers of the afternoon. The missionaries who gave their farewell messages were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yoder of Peoria, Ill., of the Central Conference of Mennonites, and Miss Fanny Schnalleberger, Norton, Ill., of the Defenseless Mennonites. Rev. Emanuel Roche, a member of the C. I. M. Board, and also the pastor of Miss Schnalleberger, gave an address representing the Defenseless Conference. Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, a member of the Board, spoke as a representative of Central Conference. Rev. E. Troyer of Carlock, Ill., then gave the commission to the missionaries and also licensed Mr. Ray Yoder to preach.

Another farewell service was arranged by the C. I. M. Board, which was held at Fort Wayne, Indiana, January 23. The missionaries sailing from New York February 1, are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Omar Sutton, Miss Agnes Sprunger, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yoder, and Miss Fanny Schnalleberger. May the Lord bless them as they go forth to their field of service in the Congo.

CENTRAL CONFERENCE LADIES' AID REPORT

September 1934—February 1935

September: — Hopedale: Food to Hospital, $9.00; Hopedale: Cash to 26th Street, $3.00; Comins: Cash to Old People's Home, $1.00; Danvers: Sewing to Hospital, $2.02; Anchor: Sewing to Hospital, $1.40; Congerville: Food to Hospital, $2.80; Middlebury: Canned Fruit and Food to 62nd Street; Carlock: Comforter, Jelly to 26th Street, $3.00.

October — Hopedale: Cash to 62nd Street, $3.00; Pekin: Hospital Sewing, $1.53; Middlebury: Hospital, $3.00; O. P. Home, Vegetables and Fruit; Anchor: Cash to 26th Street, $2.00; Carlock: Fruit and Jelly to Hospital, $3.50.

November—Pekin: Hospital Sewing, $1.93; Hopedale: Hospital Sewing, $3.00; Clothing to 62nd Street, $10.00; Middlebury: Canned Fruit to 26th Street; Carlock: Sewing for Hospital, $2.21.

December, January, February—Eighth St., Goshen: Support of two African Pupils (including A. G. Sewing, $30.00; Goodland: African Sewing, $6.00; Topeka: African Sewing, $4.16; Middlebury: Support of African Pupil (including African Sewing), $13.69; Comins: African Sewing, $6.50; Hopedale: African Sewing, $13.62; Bethel, Pekin: African Sewing, $13.00; Meadows: Support of African Pupil (including Af. Sewing), $16.40; E. White Oak Ladies Aid: African Sewing, $13.92; E. White Oak Miss. Society: Support of African Pupil (including Af. Sewing), $15.78; Tiskilwa: Support of African Pupil (including Af. Sewing), $15.00; Danvers: African Sewing, $14.16; No. Danvers: African Sewing, $6.50; Normal: Support of African Pupil (including African Sewing), $17.16; Carlock: African Sewing, $10.00; Flanagan: African Sewing, $5.00; Anchor: Support of African Pupil (including Af. Sewing), $15.00; Congerville: Support of African Pupil (including Af. Sewing), $15.62; Calvary and So. Washington: Support of African Pupil (including Af. Sewing), $17.39.

Gratefully received and respectfully submitted,

Mrs. R. L. Hartzler, Sec.-Treas.

BUY YOUR FAVORITE HYMN BOOK NOW!

MENNONITE HYMN BOOK

No Mennonite Church can afford to be without this hymn book. Those churches which have used it for any length of time are enthusiastic about it.

The Mennonite Hymn Book is a 392 page volume, containing 412 hymns of dignity and character and a splendid selection of responsive readings. Hymns are well arranged for all Church Year occasions. Choice selections for Missions, Peace, Home, and Religious Education, including a number of children's hymns and translations of "Gesangbuch mit Noten" favorites. A suitable hymn book for every department of the church. Nearly every hymn has the text set within the music. The music and type are clear and bold. — Printed on superfine book paper and bound in artistic durable binding.

Prices

No. 1 Record Buckram (Maroon) Binding

Single copies, postpaid	$ 1.50
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	15.00
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid	110.00

No. 1-A Spanish Maroon Fabrikoid

Single copies, pospaid	$ 2.00
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	18.00
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid	125.00

No. 2 Full Back Leather Binding

Single copies, postpaid	$ 2.50
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	24.00

HYMNS OF PRAISE NOS. 1 AND 2 COMBINED

447 Hymns

42 Responsive Readings

A 464 page book containing the choice of gospel hymns and songs that have endeared themselves to generations of music-loving Christian people. This book contains all the numbers (duplicates omitted) that appear in "Hymns of Praise Number Two" and "Hymns of Praise."

It contains 464 pages and is very attractively bound in a beautiful cloth board cover of a new pattern with title embossed in gold.

Issued in both round and shaped notes.

PRICES

Single copy, postpaid	$ .70
12 or more, per dozen, not postapaid	6.60
100 or more, per 100 not postpaid	55.00

WORSHIP AND PRAISE

A new General Purpose Book

291 Hymns

29 Responsive Readings

It has the large size page, is printed on No. 1 M. F. book paper and is bound in a special leather grained cloth with title embossed in gold.

Priced in an attractive leather grained cloth, title embossed in gold, 55c the single copy, postpaid,—$4.80 the dozen, or $40.00 per 100 not prepaid. Also issued in serviceable bristol paper, wire stapled binding, 35c the single copy, postpaid, $3.00 per dozen, or $25.00 per 100 not prepaid.

TABERNACLE HYMNS NO. 3

352 Songs and Hymns

It is a collection of 352 pages of carefully gleaned Hymns and Gospel Songs —including a strong Responisive Reading section—for all occasions in Church Worship, Evangelistic Meetings and Home Services.

The songs have been especially selected for their singable qualities, while the words have been carefully chosen for the message they convey, covering every phase of religious experience.

It is issued in a beautiful dark green silk cloth binding, with title embossed in gold. It is also available in a green paper, wire-stitched binding.

PRICES

Silk Cloth Binding

Single copy, postpaid	$ .65
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	6.00
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid	50.00

Paper Binding

Single copy, postpaid	$ .45
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid	3.90
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid	32.50

PRAISE AND SERVICE SONGS

263 Songs

This is the most complete book ever published by us for general Sunday School use, whether for departmental or general assembly work. It has a special section for Juniors, which is adequate for the most exacting of department heads. Special orders of services for all ages, with a large number of appropriate readings. All songs arranged by subjects.

Fully adapted to all the needs of Christian education—sound in faith and doctrine. Printed in large clear type. Size of page 5¾ inches by 8½ inches.

"Praise and Service songs" is bound only in attractive red silk cloth binding with title stamped in gold.

Price, $40.00 per 100, not prepaid; 50c a single copy, postpaid.

TRIUMPHANT SERVICE SONGS

295 Sacred Songs

Many New Songs—Marvelous New Worship Programs—22 Responsive Readings — Complete Topical Index—288 Pages. New Large Paper Size.

Obtainable in Round or Shaped Notes

PRICES

Full Cloth Gold Stamping, per 100, not prepaid	$40.00
Single Copy, prepaid	.50
Rope Bristol Binding, per 100, not prepaid	25.00
Single Copy, prepaid	.35
Orchestrations, per volume	1.50

($14.00 for complete set of 12 volumes, not prepaid)

A SMALLER SONG BOOK for Conferences and Conventions

HYMNS OF FAITH AND LIFE

The newest and finest collection of popular yet worthy and enduring hymns and tunes at a low cost for use in church service, hymn festivals, religious assemblies and schools.

130 hymns and a small selection of prayers and responsive readings.

We cannot recommend it too highly.

PRICES

Single copies	$ .20
100 or more copies, per 100	15.00

Postage extra

Prices of other books gladly furnished on request.

Returnable sample copies will be sent to responsible persons expecting to order for churches and Sunday Schools if name of congregation and name of pastor accompanies request.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, FEBRUARY 19, 1935 No. 4

EDITORIAL

AVAILABLE SOURCES OF MENNONITE HISTORY

Pastors and workers in our churches as well as others are frequently asked by interested parties where they may find literature available for further study of Mennonite history. We are fortunate in having considerable material that is not hard to locate. Europe of course has much that is valuable and represents able studies in Mennonite affairs, but having been prepared for European readers those unfamiliar with the Dutch or German languages, who wish to profit by what is presented are under a handicap. The older Histories gave much concerning our fathers and their faith, but many of them were either incomplete or inaccurate. Modern historical investigation is at an advantage because of better methods and a greater access to source material about which the earlier writers knew little.

We have been asked: "Must we go to musty old archives in Europe in order to learn about our fathers and their faith"? Fortunately, we do not and, what is better, there have been prepared for us of this generation, in our own country, quite a number of studies by able scholars that cover the subject well and thoroughly. We certainly must express our appreciation of the work of Prof. Harold Bender of Goshen College for one of the best guides to the study of Mennonitism in the shape of his "Two Centuries of American Mennonite Literature" in which there is given a description of every known Mennonite work up to the time of the publication of his book, copyrighted in 1929. The student of our church history is well equipped for further study if he avails himself of the information the book contains.

No work on Mennonite history can amount to much that does not take into account the suburb work, the "Martyr's Mirror," as a source book for the study of Mennonite history during and before Reformation times. This volume, especially the first American edition, is unique among American literary productions and has behind it a story that would be too long for the purpose of this article. The late governor of Pennsylvania, Samuel Pennypacker, himself a descendant of a Mennonite pioneer preacher, brought it to the attention of the American public in his histories and magazine articles, so that now the collector who comes into possession of the copy congratulates himself upon having made a valuable find. An English translation of the work was published by the late Rev. John Funk of Elkhart. It is unfortunate that the edition has been exhausted and that because of its bulk and the cost of printing, there is no present prospect for having it reprinted. However there are many copies in Mennonite families and in many Mennonite congregations there are some families owning copies which may be consulted. The German editions of the same work seem to be more plentiful, since there were several American editions. Following Pennypacker's notice of the book a flock of collectors, speculators and dealers combed Mennonite sections in Pennsylvania in search of copies that could be purchased.

An edition was brought out in England earlier than Funk's translation by Daniel Rupp, a noted authority on Pennsylvania German communities, but his edition as well as one printed in England about the same time, are not so well known.

The best authority on Mennonites of the Reformation in Europe is John Horsch of Scottdale, Pa. His work is marked with painstaking care and accuracy and deserves a careful study. His "Life of Menno Simon" has met with general appreciation and shows a familiarity with the subject that makes it a trustworthy source of information. Horsch's other writings with reference to the Reformation, appearing in Mennonite periodicals, throw so much light upon persons and conditions of that time that the student should give them careful attention. They represent pioneer work for the benefit of a generation that has known comparatively little of the subjects he discusses.

There were several non-Mennonite writers who undertook historical essays, which were often quoted, but no non-Mennonite writer in America had such an intelligent and accurate grasp on the history of Mennonites as had Pennypacker. His "Settlement of Germantown," though a comparatively late production, met with considerable appreciation and the edition was soon sold out. Much of his Mennonite lore appeared in Pennypacker's other writings.

One occasionally comes across a copy of Cassell's "History of the Mennonites," both in the English and German languages. Cassell was one of the earliest Mennonites in America to undertake a history and, unfortunately, though early on the field, he was poorly equipped for the task. He had little or no access to source material and such material he brought together that had worth was culled from other writers. However, it was the beginning of a general interest that has developed since his time. Not long after Cassell came van der Smissen with an excellent little book on Mennonites, that should have appeared in English rather than in German. It was at the transition period in our church, when young Mennonites were no longer learning to read the German language. Prof. C. Wedel of Bethel College prepared a series of Mennonite sketches that appeared periodically for a number of years and were used in his classes. These again were in German and consequently limited in their circulation and appreciation.

The Year Books and Almanacs issued by the various branches of the Mennonite church have been found rich sources of Mennonite lore and because of their historical value, files of these publications have been sought for and often purchased at a respectable price. Libraries that specialize in church history want them. Mennonite families that take and benefit by their information are in a position to know what is going on in their church and, in many respects, what has been going on in the church during the centuries of its existence.

No loyal member of the church should be without either subscribing for the church papers or, at least, he should have access to them and take advantage of such an opportunity to inform himself about his church and be able to give a reason for the faith that is in him. Church papers often feature historical articles and these generally are prepared so that the reader may have a general knowledge of what the past has been for the church that is his church and was the church of his fathers. For example, the numerous references that have been necessary to be made concerning our Russian brethren during the past ten or more years have increased the interest in a people whose existence the average American Mennonite had but a vague impression. This one subject, brought before Mennonites of several branches, has helped them to realize that there was one great work in which they all could participate as Mennonites. There was a time when Mennonites of one party would declare that Mennonites of another party were no Mennonites at all. Thanks to printed publicity inherited squabbles could, at least for a time, be forgotten while brethren of the same name, but considerably different from the rest of us, could be kept from starving to death or assisted to a refuge where they might worship as their consciences dictated.

Our church owes much to those who undertook to teach its young people. From the time of Cristopher Dock to the present Mennonite teachers have had a place of influence hardly less than that of the ministers. It was a Russian teacher who interested and made of the Russian Mennonites a people greatly concerned about missions. It was a teacher in the person of Justice van der Smissen who was brought from his comfortable little parish in Schleswig-Holstein to do pioneer work in higher education among the American Mennonites. It was a young Russian teacher in the person of David Goerz to whom great credit is due for many advances in the General Conference, especially the founding of Bethel College and Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital, as well as the establishing of a Relief Board as a part of the working machinery of the General Conference.

Mennonite educators of our day, realizing that the fine historical background of the Mennonites, have given their time and talents to recording the history of our church in a way that has won recognition far beyond the limits of our churches. Their works on the shelves of libraries are frequently consulted and the mistaken ideas of Mennonites generally, that have been rife for generations, have been corrected and the truth portrayed. Dr. C. Henry Smith, formerly of Goshen College and now of Bluffton College, is a recognized authority on Mennonite history and affairs among the scholars of the world. His books, at least his more recent ones, are accessible and should find a place in the reading program of every Mennonite, "The Mennonites of America," "The Mennonites," "The Coming of the Russian Mennonites," and "The Mennonite Immigration to Pennsylvania" being his principal works. Education among Mennonites" by Dr. J. E. Hartzler, and "Development of Education Among Mennonites in Kansas" by H. P. Peters, plainly are the work of educators who appreciate matters of education among those with a Mennonite background. Dr. E. G. Kaufman, president of Bethel College, is the author of an extensive study of Mennoniteism that covers a field wider by far than the title of his book indicates, the title of which is "The Development of the Missionary and Philanthropic Interest Among the Mennonites of North America." The work is a recent one and may easily be obtained from The Mennonite Book Concern, as may most of the others mentioned in this article. We conclude by reminding our readers that there is sufficient literature available for any one who desires to inform himself concerning the growth and development of our church.

There are numerous other works of local and general interest that may be read with profit, but space does not permit our giving them special notice, except to say that their authors recognized the value of giving special study to our church and the story of its growth by contributing time, talent, and means in making possible a wider knowledge of things that relate to the Mennonites. G.

SCHOOL DAY AT JANJGIR

Following you will find a report of the School Day which we held in Janjgir on October 11th. Miss Haramani Nand, the seventh grade teacher, who by the way is one of our own orphan girls, wrote it. In an organized way we have not done much along social or village uplift lines, but this day's program was planned with this in mind and in many ways it was fairly successful. The interesting feature of it was that we had a large group of women attend, among them the most ignorant villagers, and others the wives of Indian officials. The programs included numbers in English, Hindi, and even Chattisgarh dialect, yet the large number of official people attending seemed to appreciate the latter as much at the village people. Their work as tahsildars, sub-judges, excise tax officers, police and railway work bring them into close contact with the villagers. We trust that among the listeners were some who took the Christian messages which they heard to heart and that the day fully justified the preparation and effort which were put into it.

—Helen Nickel.

Here is a short description of our "School Day," which was on the 11th of October. I hope it will interest the readers a little.

It was an "Old Girls Reunion" as well as a "School Day." So all the old girls of this school were invited, but only fifty of them came and brought their children along. Altogether 170, including guests and teachers, ate the noon banquet meal of curry and rice.

Most of our Janjgir people are uneducated and do not care much for their health. So it was decided that the girls of Funk Memorial School should prepare a program to tell them a little about health and cleanliness.

First of all we had our Girl Guide demonstration. It was in the morning. Our guests enjoyed the songs and the drill very much. Our school hall had been given up for the display of things made by school girls. Shirts, baby frocks, sweaters, warm jackets were put up for every one to see. Map drawings, art work, poems, writings, etc., made a goodly sight.

At twelve o'clock all the old girls had dinner in the girls' boarding hall. We all enjoyed the dinner very much. Many girls who could not come, had sent letters and it was quite interesting to read them.

In the afternoon we had "Baby Show." Many babies were brought in and weighed. Each baby was given a little present. Clothes made by school girls were sold. After the sale Dr. Theodore gave a talk on "Health" and the girls performed a drama, called "Mother India." Fifty babies, among them many from Hindu homes, were examined.

In the evening we had another drama. It was about "Village Uplift." It was done by Bible students.

People appreciated our program very much. All our guests departed the next morning, and we had to rest a little to start our school work again.

I hope this description will not bother you. Often we would like to invite American friends to come to our holiday activities.

Yours in Christ,
(Miss) Haramani Nand.

A WORKERS' RETREAT IN CHINA

The usual Summer Institute had been dispensed with this year as an economic measure. Our Chinese workers had kept faithfully at their posts and on evangelistic tours. We like to get them together in fall to discuss plans for the year. So this year we planned on a three-day retreat in connection with that meeting.

During the first part of October our neighbor mission held special meetings in the north suburb of Tamingfu with Rev. James Taylor as special speaker. Rev. Taylor is a grandson of Hudson Taylor, the founder of the China Inland Mission. Having lived in China since he was ten months old, with the exception of five or six years spent in America, he has perfect command of the language and with it a sympathetic understanding of the Chinese people. We were eager to have our Chinese workers attend these meetings because we felt sure Rev. Taylor had a message for us all. And they were glad to come. As one of the evangelists said, "I want to be fed, for I am hungry (spiritually) — giving out all year and not receivin I felt like I had nothing more to give." An they, and we, were "fed," for Rev. Taylor a well as the Chinese evangelist he brought wit him, is a truly spirit-filled man and every se mon was a real message. Rev. Taylor spoke es pecially to workers and more mature Christiar centering around the Abundant Life and th Life in Christ. The Chinese evangelist spok more to the unsaved and to the Christians o confession of sin. He expounded especially th parables and sayings of Jesus, for which spi itual exercise Chinese preachers seem to hav a special gift.

Following these meetings came the thre days' retreat for the evangelists, Bible wome and committee members or deacons of the rur churches. Also some Christians and voluntar workers had come. We were happy to secu Brother Taylor's consent to speak at the fir meeting before leaving for his home in Ka feng. He spoke on Personal Evangelism, poin ing out John the Baptist's personal way of d recting his disciples to Jesus, Jesus calling H disciples one by one, Jesus' personal talk wit sinners like the Samaritan woman and its fa reaching results, and with an unsaved morali like Nicodemus, Jesus searching out Peter ar receiving him back into fellowship after th latter's denial. Other special speakers wer Dr. Feng of the Nazarene Mission Hospita Mr. Chang Ching, preacher of the Tamir church, and Mr. Li Ching Hsien, who taugl in the Kai Chow Bible School. Then there wer papers and devotional talks by the workers ar missionaries in charge.

Dr. Feng, who is as good at soul surgery a physical surgery, illuminated the subject of d vine healing and demon possession for us ou of his rich experience in the Shantung reviva Mr. Li, speaking on the subject, "How can w induce lay members of the church to partic pate more actively in the work of the church' gave timely advice in suggesting that preache and Bible women do not monopolize the Scri ture reading, the singing, the praying, the Su day School teaching and even the sweeping ar window washing. These, if done by chur members, would give them a feeling of owne ship in place of that guest feeling paid worke seek painstakingly to satisfy lest the membe fall away.

Other topics were: "How can we bett reach the non-Christians in villages where w have preaching places"? "What is the best way of presenting the Gospel in order to obtain the best results"? This was followed by a discussion on the relative merits of Paul's methods used at Athens (Acts 17:16-34) with those used at Corinth (1 Cor. 1:1-2:2). "How can we overcome old ideas of Christians in regard to: (1) becoming church memers for other than spiritual gain, (2) the absence of incense and ceremonial offerings obviating any other cost to the Christian." Too often only the "freely ye have received" side of Christianity is emphasized by workers without the resulting obligatory "freely give" part. "Christian ways of celebrating the festivals" was discussed. Here special reference was made to Chinese festivals such as the Mid-Autumn Festival, Arbor Day, National Children's Day (April 2), Memorial Day (November 2), Independence Day (October 10), New Year's, and others.

At the close Mr. Chang Ching brought us a review of the help he personally received at Group Fellowship meetings he attended at Shunte last summer. He earnestly urged the keeping of the Quiet Hour upon workers and Christians. "Have we not all experienced that self-accusation, how 'dzi gi hen dzi gi" (self hates self) when we realize that we are not that power for God which we desire to be"?, he asked searchingly. "Is it not because we do not use enough time to build ourselves up in the inner man"?

We earnestly ask readers to remember this group of workers in prayer that they may be granted strength for their work.

Your co-workers in Christ,
W. C. and Mathilda Voth.

WORLD WIDE SUNDAY SCHOOL NEWS

A Review of 1934

AFRICA—The notable achievement of the World's Sunday School Association in 1934 was the sending of its General Secretary, Dr. Robert M. Hopkins for a four months' visit in south and central Africa. As a result of this visit the Sunday School work has been organized in the Belgian Congo through the appointment by the Congo Protestant Council of a very representative Sunday School committee, the Rev. Malcolm Guthrie serving as executive director. This is the first cooperative unit for Sunday School work organized in the heart of Africa. Its nearest neighbor to the south is the South African National Sunday School Association and to the north the Egypt and Sudan Sunday School Union. The funds requested of the World's Sunday School Association in the Belgian Congo have been assured for 1935. Additional funds are being sought to assist the work of Christian education in the neighboring Portuguese colony of Angola. Dr. Alexander H. Kemp of Quessa was named as Sunday School secretary for this province following the visit of Dr. Hopkins. Recent letters both from Angola and from the Belgian Congo indicate a wide spread awakening to the importance of the Sunday School, Daily Vacation Bible School, and other agencies for Christian education.

GREECE — Greece has reported the outstanding numerical increase in the work of religious education for 1934. The ZOE catechetical schools, particularly in Athens, Piraeus and Salonica, are growing very rapidly. There are now 114 such schools in Athens as compared with 89 in 1933. For all of Greece there are reported 662 schools enrolling more than fifty thousand students. Rev. J. Riggs Brewster, who represents the World's Sunday School Association in Greece, has the finest fellowship with his Beatitude, the Archbishop of Greece, as well as Dr. P. N. Trembelas, the head of the ZOE movement within the Greek Orthodox Church.

ENGLAND—Progress is reported in England in the movement for improving religious education in public education. A statement adopted at the annual meeting of the English Council for Christian Education held late in 1934 reviews the awakening interest in the subject of religious education in day schools during the past five years as revived by the publication of the report of the Archbishop's Commission on Religious Education in 1929 and the more recent action of the National Free Church Council Assembly in 1933. The British Sunday School Lessons Council has compiled from the graded lessons a "Standard Scheme of Religious Instruction" for the ten year school life of the child. A new quarterly edited by Dr. Basil A. Yeaxlee, "Religion in Education," is being devoted largely to the forwarding of this movement. Its editorial board is composed of well known Anglican and Free Church men and women. Approximately 73% of the Local Education Authorities, which have about 80% of the school population in their areas, have taken definite steps encouraging and expecting their teachers to use the authorized syllabuses.

SIR HAROLD MACKINTOSH — The many friends of Sir Harold Mackintosh, President of the World's Sunday School Association, will be pleased to learn that one of the few honors awarded by the King of England at the close of 1934, was one granted to Sir Harold Mackintosh. He was made a Baronet, and the announcement of his new honor specifically refers to the fact that he is President of the World's Sunday School Association with a constituency of more than forty million Sunday School pupils around the world. Those who knew Sir Harold are fully convinced that he is deserving of every recognition both by his king and country and by this globe encircling group which constitutes "the greatest voluntary movement in the world working for the spiritual education of the rising generation."

THE WSSA BALANCES ITS BUDGET — Friends of the world-wide Sunday School work will be gratified to learn that for the most difficult year of 1934, the World's Sunday School Association has balanced its budget. This was accomplished through the loyal support, and in many instances repeated gifts, on the part of a host of friends in many countries. Gifts were received during 1934 from thirty-six countries for the work of the World's Sunday School Association. We are faced with many untrue philosophies of life in these days. Perhaps one of the most misleading is to the effect that we can build a Christian society without the aid of a thoroughgoing, continuous program of Christian education. Fellowship with the World's Sunday School Association is helping to make possible an effective program of Christian education throughout the world.

A Preview of 1935

DEAN WEIGLE TO VISIT CHINA—Looking out upon 1935 the World's Sunday School Association envisages as its most notable achievement the sending of Dr. Luther A. Weigle to China for six months of intensive service. The aim of Dr. Weigle's visit is to respond to the insistent invitation of the National Committee for Christian Religious Education which is anxious to have made under his leadership a study of the problems of training for church leaders in China. "The theological schools are not the only places on which attention will be concentrated. Dr. Weigle will study all grades of training schools, Bible schools and methods of training voluntary workers. This will involve making himself familiar with Chinese conditions, the work that pastors and others have to do and the needs of the local church. Ample time will be allowed in his program for full and leisurely concentration not only with the institutions concerned but with church and mission administrators responsible for policy." Dr. Weigle is chairman of the World Council of the World's Sunday School Association, president of the Conference of Theological Seminaries of North America, chairman of the Educational Commission of the International Council of Religious Education, and Dean of Yale Divinity School. A conference called in New York City to confer with him prior to his visit was attended by forty representatives of the mission boards and other agencies concerned with this visit. Dr. Weigle will spend ten days in Japan enroute to China, and he expects to return in August by way of Siberia and northern Europe, thus completing the circling of the globe.

DR. HOPKINS TO VISIT PUERTO RICO—A very insistent invitation has come from Puerto Rico that the General Secretary of the World's Sunday School Association shall visit this island early in the spring of 1935 with a view of effecting some such program of Christian education for Puerto Rico as that which prevails in Mexico under the leadership of G. Baez Camargo. Among the Puerto Rico leaders from whom communications have been received are—Rev. C. R. Wellman, Director of Religious Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. J. L. Santiago-Cabrera, Director of Religious Education of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.; Rev. G. A. Riggs, Superintendent for the Baptist Churches; Rev. C. I. Mohler, Executive Secretary of the United Evangelical Church; and Rev. C. Manley Morton, Superintendent for the Disciples of Christ. Prof. Florencio Saez, who is now studying in Chicago, has been the Executive Secretary of the Evangelical Union of Puerto Rico and he is strongly insisting that this visit shall be made at an early date. Conditions seem ripe for the creation of an interdenominational department of religious education to be directed by an aggressive full time secretary with perhaps two associates trained especially for ser-

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication..........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office..........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance..........$1.50
Foreign..........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

vice in the elementary and young people's divisions. It is expected that the personnel will be entirely national.

NEW APPEALS—Several very urgent appeals have been received by the World's Sunday School for assistance in opening Sunday School work in important areas in 1935. The allocation to the World's Sunday School Association by the Presbyterian Church U. S. A., of Rev. Irven Paul of Chile as General Director for Religious Eduation in Spanish speaking South America makes it imperative that provision shall be included for opening up this long desired continental service. The strengthening of the newly formed cooperating committees in the Belgian Congo and Portuguese Angola is also most important. It is hoped that the urgent appeals from Northern and Southern Rhodesia may be answered for a visit on the part of Karlton Johnson, Assistant Seretary of the South African National Sunday School Association. Rev. R. T. McLaughlin of the Near East Committee of the World's Sunday School Association, with headquarters in Cairo, is earnestly requested to make his first visit to the Sudan and also to visit again Algeria where the work is in process of reorganization. It is hoped that conditions will make it possible for Mr. McLaughlin and Rev. George H. Scherer of Beirut, Secretary of the Bible Lands Sunday School Union, to visit Persia for extended service there. It is most important that Mr. and Mrs. Levon N. Zenian shall return in 1935 to their work in the Near East within the Apostolic Church of Armenia to begin a new term of service of the Christian education within this ancient Eastern Church. Thus an ever increasing circle of activities opens up in the world-wide work in behalf of Christian education.

WINONA LAKE SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY

Reports Progress in 1934 and Announces Enlarged Program in 1935

The Board of Directors of Winona Lake School of Theology, Winona Lake, Indiana, has just released a report concerning the 1934 session which indicates that the School enjoyed an attendance increase over the preceding year of 32%.

The report further shows that there were twenty-one denominations represented in the student body, also sixteen states, besides two foreign countries. The Board at the same time announced the 1935 session, which is to be held from July 9 to August 11. There will be two semesters of fifteen days each. Work may be pursued in either semester.

Winona Lake School of Theology is interdenominational, thorough, and evangelical. Its president is Dr. William E. Biederwolf, and its dean, Dr. J. A. Huffman. Work is offered leading to the regular theological degrees.

Faculty

The faculty announced for 1935 is composed of the following instructors, well-known in the theological world: Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer, Dr. Harold Paul Sloan, Dr. Leslie Ray Marston, Prof. Rolin Pease, Dr. Howard T. Kuist, Prof. Mable MaQueen Weir, Dr. J. A. Huffman, Dean.

Courses

The courses which will be offered are as follows: English Bible, Biblical Archaeology, Christian Evidences, Modern Cults, Christian Ethics, Hymnology, Biblical Messianism, Greek New Testament, Beginners' New Testament Greek.

Winona Lake School of Theology affords a splendid opportunity for ministers, teachers, Sunday School Workers, and Laymen to study with teachers who are recognized as authority in their respective fields, during the summer weeks.

School and living costs are reasonable at Winona Lake. It is one of America's beauty spots, a fine watering place, dedicated to the higher things of life.

As last year, arrangements have been made whereby a small unit of credit will be allowed for certain lectures attended during the Bible Conference which follows for two weeks at the close of the school. This work is in charge of the dean, and is open to those who have enrolled previously in the School of Theology, or who may wish to enroll for this particular work.

A twelve-page Prospectus has been prepared giving full details of the 1935 session of the school, copy of which may be had by addressing the Dean, Dr. J. A. Huffman, Winona Lake, Indiana.

EVANGELISM IN ITS BIBLICAL SETTING AS TO SPIRIT AND METHOD

By J. D. Graber, Dhamtari, India

In my talk this afternoon I shall not try to justify our present evangelistic methods. I shall not try to justify anything that our Mission Board, missionaries, or mission institutions are doing. Nor shall I seek to indict them, as did a certain author whom I recently read. The view which I shall be able to give will be partial and incomplete, yet I shall attempt to set forth as clearly as possible what I believe to be the spirit, in the first place, and then, the method of biblical evangelism.

I shall try, as much as possible, to keep from making applications. I shall leave those applications for you to make. I shoud like to offer one suggestion, however, with regard to making these applications. I should like you to keep in mind that just because a certain piece of work was done in a certain way in the New Testament does not necessarily mean that it must be done in exactly that way today. There may be new and different factors in the situation that demand careful study and attention. Let us note just two such situations in a general way. The work of Jesus was all done among people of His own race, language, and nationality, speaking with regard only to His human nature. The Apostle Paul worked mostly among people of his own status, people who spoke the same language, of the same race with himself. The Antioch Church and the churches established by her missionaries were essentially on equal financial, social, and racial bases What a contrast this offers to our work in India, for example. We represent a wealthy church, the wealthiest church in all the world while the church which God has established through us in India is the poorest church in all the world. We work among people of a different race; people who speak a different language; people with different standards of living; people of a different mentality. All these things must be taken into account when we seek to make applications and comparisons.

I have discovered in my study of Scriptural evangelism, and particularly of New Testament evangelism, five fundamental attitudes which may represent to us the Spirit of Scriptural evangelism.

The Holy Spirit

The first of these is the fact that the Holy Spirit was the center of all evangelistic work of the New Testament. It is challenging, it is inspiring to read from the New Testament the history of that early missionary development to see the place and honor that is continually given to the Holy Spirit. He is always found as the center, the dynamic, inspiring and directing the whole missionary movement.

It is significant that Jesus Himself, before He entered upon His ministry, was first baptized in a special manner by the Holy Spirit. The Spirit descended upon Him in the bodily form of a dove, the Word tells us. And then, before His ascension, Jesus tells His apostles and believers, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high," i. e., until the Holy Ghost will come upon you. When the day of the great outpouring of the Spirit came and the promise of the Lord was fulfilled they began to evangelize and souls began to be gathered in.

I feel that the most important thing I can say this afternoon is that, as I understand the Scriptures, the spirit of the New Testament evangelism is the Holy Spirit. He is the secret that explains that remarkable behavior of the early believers, as well as the explanation of that remarkable series of events that led to the establishment and spread of the first century church.

Let us trace through the spiritual experience of the Disciples during those crucial days and see if we can come to an appreciation of the tremendous difference the Pentecost experience made for them. While they walked the Syrian roads in company with the Master, He was all they needed. In the Divine presence they were satisfied. He tried on various occasions to prepare them for the shock of His going away, and when the time was ripe He began to tell them that after He had gone away He would pray the Father and He would send them another Comforter. In reading this we often overlook the word, "another." It emphasizes the fact that Jesus taught that the work of the Comforter was to be a continuation of His own work. As Jesus had comforted them by His presence throughout the three years of His earthly ministry so the Spirit would also be to them the comforting Divine presence.

After the death of Jesus these disciples were heart-broken, sad, weak, behind closed doors for fear of the Jews, all because the Divine presence had left them and they were painfully alone. On the day of Pentecost they were overwhelmed at the joy and conscious power of the return of the Divine presence in the person of the Holy Spirit. They felt that everything they had lost when Jesus went away they had regained and in a fuller measure, by the coming of the Promise from the Father, and they broke forth in tongues of flaming fire. Their fears had fled, they knew not where, and with a boldness and effectiveness that amazed the authorities and quickened the consciences of those who heard they preached unto them Christ.

Let us note that the Holy Spirit as He came to them on that day was the assurance to the believers of the real Divine presence. It was nothing like a mere attitude of mind they succeeded in getting. It was not merely the psychological effect of the right kind of faith. There are those in these days of unbelief who seek to explain the movements of the Spirit in these and other naturalistic terms. Nor was it an experience that seemed magical or mysterious to them. It was an experience as natural to them as had been their associations with the Christ. Here had come back to them in full and overflowing measure Christ, and God, in the Person of the Holy Ghost, and He would never leave them, but would be and abide with them even unto the end of the world and the end of the age. Friends, it was a divine presence, a divine indwelling, a divine power for a divine purpose and for the accomplishment of a supernatural and a superhuman task! New Testament evangelism then, in the first place, is divinely dynamic through the presence of the Holy Spirit in the life of the believer.

The second underlying attitude I see in New Testament evangelism is its Universality

This is true in a two-fold manner: that the Gospel is for everyone, and that the spread of that Gospel is the task of everyone. The universality of the Gospel was a new conception to the Jews. God had chosen them, but they had failed to understand the purpose of this act of grace and had selfishly sat down and appropriated their blessing, forgetting that their choice by God was simply His method of making Himself known to the whole world. Spirit-filled prophets and saints from the beginning always understood this world-wide purpose of God and the Old Testament Scriptures are full of the spirit of God's love for the whole world, and they speak much of the vision glorious when righteousness shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea.

The Gospel in its universal aspects had no trouble from the beginning with Spirit-filled people. It was not the whole church at Jerusalem that objected to the giving of the Gospel to the Gentiles. Acts 15:5 very definitely says that it was certain of the sect of the Pharisees which believed who were objecting to missionary activity, people who had gotten into the church but had apparently missed out on the Holy Spirit's fulness. We have them in the church today and their paths or opposition toward the missionary program of the church can be explained in the same way. In Jerusalem they said, "This Gospel is for the Jews only, and we must call back the apostles and have them give an account of themselves."

So the apostles returned. Paul and Barnabas spoke of the Antioch church and of their experience on their first missionary tour. Peter spoke of the conversion of Cornelius. And when those at Jerusalem saw that the Holy Spirit had placed His seal of approval upon the work they said, in effect, "We are satisfied that it is the will of God to save the Gentiles also." A right understanding of the nature of the Gospel and of the will, the love, and purpose of God always leads men to this conclusion.

We note again that the early church believed that the spread of the Gospel of Christ was the task of everyone who believed. We have those with us in our day who will say that the command of Christ in His Great Commission was binding only on the apostles and so is not binding on the church today. Let us see how the early church understood this command. In that upper room on the day of Pentecost, when the promise that had been given with the command was fulfilled, there were present about 120 believers. Women were present; disciples were there; and the Word says they were ALL filled with the Holy Ghost. When the Spirit comes upon a believer He comes upon him for a purpose and that purpose is that he might be a witness. These people apparently did not appreciate this fact fully and it seems that in the early days the apostles did do most of the preaching. But a persecution came upon them. They were all scattered abroad by this persecution. ALL EXCEPT THE APOSTLES — and "they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the Word." The Holy Spirit had endued them all for a purpose, that they might be witnesses, evangels. And when they failed to appreciate this fact God permitted a persecution to come upon them to scatter them abroad until they knew and understood that Christ's "Go ye" meant everyone, and when they grasped this truth with clarity then the Gospel began to blossom forth and there was a great ingathering.

The third underlying attitude which we shall note is the belief in

The Inadequacy of Non-Christian Faiths

The apostles and early Christians appeared to believe that non-Christian religions were not adequate to live by or to die by. They believed, according to Acts 4:12 that Jesus is the only name through which salvation can come. When the Apostle Paul saw the idolatry in the midst of cultured and learned Athens and then saw the altar set up to "The Unknown God" he felt that here was a pathetic attempt to find the true God that had failed. After a tactful introduction he gets to the heart of the Christian Gospel and brings them a message of life through the resurrection of Jesus, for he felt that in their systems and faiths there was no message of life or salvation.

In Romans, the first chapter, where the same apostle is giving a description of the moral degradation that is the result and the outworking of non-Christian religions we have a terrible indictment of all non-Christian religions. The apostle saw that in spite of all their beautiful ideas, their clever philosophies, and the elements of truth and goodness contained in their beliefs, in the practical working out of them it left the devotee but a loathsome creature with festering sores from head to foot. We have an example of the same principle in India. Regardless of what the Hindu Pundits tell cultured audiences in this country about the superiority or the beauty of Hindu philosophy, in its practical working out Hinduism has smitten the masses of India's population with a sickening moral blight.

In Acts 26:18 Paul gives us what he considers the aim of foreign missions. He says, "I go to the gentiles to open their eyes"—for they are blind—"to turn them from darkness to light"—for they are in spiritual and moral darkness—"and from the power of Satan unto God" — for Christ is the only power that can make an immoral man righteous—"that they may receive forgiveness of sins"—for other religions do not even propose to deal with the problem of sin—"and an inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith"—for the offer of an eternal inheritance like this is nowhere else found. Here we have a composite picture of the inadequacy of non-Christian religions: no light, no power, no forgiveness, no life, no hope.

Just what was their attitude toward these religions, then? Did they go about trying to destroy them? No, they appreciated soul hunger wherever they found it. Our finest example is the Apostle Paul at Athens under the circumstances of which we have already spoken. He did not stand up in their midst and begin smashing idols with a hammer. I believe that Paul saw them as Christ did, sheep without a shepherd.

(Concluded in next issue.)

CORRESPONDENCE

Charlesville, Africa, November 22, 1934. Dear Brethren in Christ:— Greetings in the name of the Lord, our Master and Guide—"Make a joyful noise unto the Lord all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness, come before his presence with singing." Psalm 100:1-2.

As we look back upon the recent past experiences that we have enjoyed, we feel like expressing our thoughts in accord with what the Psalmist says in the above verses.

Last Sunday morning as I stood on the porch, it made my heart thrill to see the native Christians and others march toward the river, singing songs of praises to God. They were on their way to witness the baptismal service which was to take place at the river. After the choir sang a few songs and Mr. Graber gave the morning sermon, Russell and he baptized 77 converts in the river. At that time we were also very glad to see three Bashilele take part in this service. There has been just one boy baptized from this tribe in the history of the mission before hand. The work in this tribe is still quite new, but we are looking for great results in the future.

There was also baptized at this time a man who has a very interesting history back of his conversion, which is as follows: Some time ago he lost a child of his own, and after trying to obtain the whereabouts of this child by means of following all the ideas of the witch doctors and failing, he became quite discouraged. An outstation teacher of ours, hearing about him, went to him and presented him the Gospel and told him to pray to God about his trouble. After having accepted Christ and praying to Him, about a week later he received a letter by mail saying his child was perfectly well and was being well cared for also. This seemed to be a direct answer to his prayer, and so Sunday he gave his heart publicly to Christ and became baptized.

Then in the afternoon we enjoyed the communion services with the native Christians in the church, at which time about 500 Christians partook of the Lord's supper. After the services we felt that we had spent a very profitable Sunday in the service of the Lord, and that many a person had received a blessing for attending the services.

Of late we have been plagued with a very heavy plague of locusts in this community. In some districts in the outstations they have wiped out all the fields and many of the natives are sitting in hunger. The elders made a plea to the native Christians to help out, so they brought what they had to the church on prayer day, and a week ago Tuesday Russell and Mr. Graber took it to this place. The people seemed to be very thankful for it and praised the Lord for remembering them in the time of need and distress. The locusts have been here in droves, and when they come it surely is a sight to see. They come in big, black clouds, toward evening and in the night settle upon the fields and just clean up everything within their reach. But now they have left us for a little while, for which we are very thankful, because they do a lot of damage wherever they go. When the people become hungry and discouraged we find it much harder to deal with their spiritual life, and Satan seems to enter in and rule them.

On October 30th, our home was blessed by the arrival of Carolyn Rosa, for which we are very thankful. We are planning to have her dedicated to the Lord next Sunday in the native church in the Sunday morning service.

In these trying times when it seems that Satan can not be conquered at times, we feel that the need of prayer is great and a clearer vision of Jesus is needed. So in closing we would like to request that you earnestly remember this work in your prayers. We also urge that each one of you drop us a line or two now and then, because we would enjoy hearing from our friends. Wishing you God's blessing in the work you are doing, and praying for your success in the future, we remain,

Yours in the service of our Lord,
Russell, Helen, and Baby Carolyn.

Mennonite Church, Trenton, Ohio. Sunday, January 13, 1935, should be a memorable day for the Apostolic Mennonite Church of Trenton, Ohio, at which time we held our annual congregational meeting, which was well attended by the young people as well as the older people.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz gave us an inspirational sermon on the text: "I will build my church." Immediately after the morning service dinner was served in the basement of the church at which time we enjoyed a delightful social period as well as a splendid dinner.

Promptly at 1:30 P. M. the meeting was called to order and all joined in singing the familiar hymn "Faith of Our Fathers," after which Rev. Amstutz read passages from the Mennonite Articles of Faith, followed by prayer.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and adopted. The Sunday School report was then given by Donald Imhoff, followed by a short talk by the superintendent, E.M. Kennel, showing improvement in interest and attendance.

The Missionary Report was given by Lydia A. Augspurger, followed by a short talk by the president, Miss Elisa Holly.

The Woman's Society Report was given by Mrs. Lewis Augspurger, followed by a short talk by the president, Miss Florence E. Augspurger.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz gave his yearly report, showing regular Sunday morning worship, all but four Sundays throughout the entire year, namely a Children's Day program, one union meeting with the U. P. Church, one open air meeting in connection with the Sunday School Picnic, and one Sunday at the Middle District Conference. Two communion services, eight young people were baptized, mid-week services were held for six months with the U. P. Church, two Christmas programs were rendered; the Messiah, under the direction of Mrs. Estelle Mosiman Howe, on December 16, and the children's program on December 23. During the year the Bluffton College Men's Glee Club gave us a program, and addresses were given by the following: Dr. Bauman, Dr. Mosiman, S. F. Pannabecker, and Dr. C. L. Pannabecker and wife. One marriage ceremony was performed, and four deaths, two of our oldest members, Christian Mosiman of Middletown and Miss Fanny Kinsinger of Collinsville; Mrs. Theodore Ehresman and Miss Ida May Augspurger; also conducting the funeral services of Mr. Hinghaus and Mrs. Patton.

Mr. James Moon, who for many years served the church faithfully as deacon, asked to be relieved of this duty, and the church unanimously elected him as an honorary member of the Board of Deacons.

We are indeed very grateful to Mrs. Mary Ehresman for her gift of a Bulletin Board for our church.

We are also very happy to report that by united effort our deficit was cleared, and we are starting the New Year free of debt, and we sincerely hope that each and every member will take a personal interest in the upbuilding of our church, and we face the new year with a spirit of hopefulness.

Lydia A. Augspurger, Corr.

Hutchinson, Kansas, January 12, 1935. The year 1934 is now history, but our memory is yet vividly filled with its happenings. Some we liked, others we disliked. Nothing can now be changed. A closed book that can not be opened. It reminds us of one beloved dead, whose presence we no more can enjoy, but the memory of him lives on. Crammed was the news of weighty events here and there, at home and abroad. Economical, social, political, religious. Want in the midst of plenty. Starvation and gluttony. Depression, with here and there a lift. But to the optimist 1934, if sometimes perplexing, was always interesting. And what about 1935? God knows. He cares. In Him we trust.

Our Mennonite church here, as whose correspondent I am serving, looks back with thanks upon a successful year. Not that all wishes were met, all desires were realized, no; but as far as we sowed in love seeds of kindness and service, we harvested blessings of the heavenly Father's approval.

We know that many Mennonites from far and near have parents, children, brothers, sisters, or friends here. We feel a responsibility toward them. We want to help them. We as Mennonites feel related to them. How do you feel about it? Have we your cooperation? Often we hear of one, a member of a Mennonite church, having been here a long time, never coming to our church, and we have never been notified by his home church of his being here. Think this over prayerfully. Notify Rev. J. J. Plenert, 725 E. 7th St. He will be glad to see them. United we stand, divided we fall. Read John 17:21, "That they all may be one," etc. Don't you see the handwriting on the wall?

Our Sunday School has 13 classes, with 176 enrolled. Quite regular attendance. Church membership 110. 13 were baptized, and 3 united with us by church letter in the past year. The Lord's Supper was solemnized three times; also three church weddings. Several fellowship meetings. A fine Christmas program. Annual church meeting, followed by Old and New Year Watch Night, December 31. Senior and Junior Christian Endeavor activities alternating with Sunday night services. United with a neighbor church a Bible school, 83 enrolled. May 5, Mother's Day, five children were dedicated. Summer open air meetings with two neighboring churches. Well attended. Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, closing night speaker. Serving visitors were: Missionary Linda Brown, Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, Rev. P. E. Franz, Rev. J. M. Janzen, Rev. P. R. Voth, Dr. E. G. Kaufman.

Ladies' Missionary Society meets every week.

Most houseworking girls have Thursday afternoon off. They needed a place to go. We were very glad to invite them to our church basement for their mutual entertainment, recreation and gathering. Here they can sing, play, recite, prepare and eat their supper, etc. Here the newer working girls can bring their vocational and moral problems and discuss them with the more experienced girls. A pretty picture indeed is a group of well behaved youth. My wife and I learned the blessings of a similar weekly gathering of working girls in Winnipeg and Saskatoon, Canada, in 1927, when visiting there. We consider this an essential home missionary activity. Dear reader, do you realize their problems and temptations? Father, mother, do you? A letter of thanks and appreciation from them to the church was read at our annual meeting. Sunday night, January 20, they will give an evening program in our church at 700 E. 4th. You are invited.

Every Wednesday night we have prayer meeting and Bible study. The older folks in the chapel, the children in the basement. In addition we have arranged a teacher training course, in which a large group desires to enroll.

Our pastor, Rev. J. J. Plenert, led evangelistic meetings: one week in Turpin, Okla., one week in Garden Township (Moundridge), ten days in Mountain Lake, Minn.

We are yet under the leadership of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference and the Western District Conference. We are also, resultant of the ever increasing influx of Mennonites by church membership, inclination or extraction, by our location, in the inner or home mission field, and ought to be such vitally and consistently. We also, therefore, need wise and continuous assistance and cooperation by our Mennonite constituency. Thus united we will proceed, divided fall back. From you, our friends, we beg assistance in prayer and cooperation. In God we trust.

Yours very truly,

C. C. Epp.

530 East First St., Hutchinson, Kans.

Meadows Church Notes, Meadows, Illinois. The Christmas program was given on December 24th. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental numbers presented by the young people and several exercises by the children.

A choir from the Calvary church presented a splendid cantata on Sunday night, December 30.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Gundy are the parents of a boy, born December 4. He has been named James Ralph.

Special services were conducted on January 6, to celebrate a triple anniversary for Rev. Gundy. The occasion marked his twenty-fifth year in the ministry, his tenth year as pastor at Meadows, and his thirty-first wedding anniversary. The attendance was large and many of the churches were represented. A musical program was presented in the afternoon and evening. Rev. Troyer gave the address of the evening.

Bible school will be conducted each Thursday night, covering a period of five weeks. Rev. E. A. Sommer, Rev. Hartzler, and Rev. Weaver will teach the classes.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Roszhart celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Friday, January 18. Their friends wish them much joy and happiness in the future.

Pleasant View Mennonite Church, Aurora, Nebraska. The Ladies Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. John Troyer, Thursday, January 3rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Springer entertained at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Oswald, Wednesday evening, January 2. The honor guests received many lovely gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bauchman and daughters, Francis and Wilma, of Illinois spent several days during the latter part of December visiting relatives and friends here.

Miss Mildred Rocke of Gridley, Ill., returned home January 1, after visiting for several weeks with relatives in this vicinity and at Milford.

The Rev. Jacob Peltz of Chicago, the general secretary of the Hebrew Christian Alliance of America, was in Aurora during the week from January 6 to 13. His lectures were on the Bible and the Jewish problems of our day. All the ministers of the county and their congregations were invited to attend these union meetings. Great interest was shown in these meetings and each evening he spoke to a large audience. I feel that each one who had the privilege of hearing him derived some benefit from it. Gladys Rediger, Corr.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

THE HOUSE OF HAPPINESS

Take what God gives, oh heart of mine,
And build your house of happiness.
Perchance some have been given more,
But many have been given less.
The treasure lying at your feet,
Whose value you but faintly guess,
Another builder, looking on,
Would barter heaven to possess.

Have you found work that you can do?
Is there a heart that loves you best?
Is there a spot somewhere called home,
Where spent and worn your soul may rest?
A friendly tree? a book? a song?
A dog that loves your hand's caress?
A store of health to meet life's needs?
Oh, build your house of happiness!

Trust not tomorrow's dawn to bring
The dreamed-of joy for which you wait;
You have enough of pleasant things
To house your soul in goodly state;
Tomorrow time's relentless stream
May bear what now you have away;
Take what God gives, oh heart, and build
Your house of happiness today.

—B. Y. Williams.

HOW DO YOU REACT TO THIS?

By D. D. Eitzen, Chairman of the General Conference Young People's Committee

Young people sing with fervor and enthusiasm, "Faith of our Fathers — —." "Our fathers" had a living faith. We admire and respect it, but — — — do we want that faith? To live by it is extremely hazardous. It costs.

This faith exposed our fathers to "dungeon, fire, and sword." This same faith virtually drove them into frontiers — frontiers fought with peril and failure. Visualize the faith of those five "fathers" who met in Iowa seventy-five years ago for the purpose of unifying the Mennonite churches of America into a working organization. Study the faith of those "fathers" who founded the Wadsworth school and the other institutions of the conference, not forgetting the faith of our more immediate "fathers" who are carrying on the mission of these institutions.

Our schools, our mission fields, our hospitals and all the other enterprises of the conference are the products of this "Faith of our fathers." The work begun has been overtaken by adverse economic circumstances, burdening several of our boards with debt. What now?

Say not the days are evil — —
Who's to blame?
And fold your hands and acquiesce
Oh shame!
Fight on, and bravely in God's name.

Will God find the "Faith of our fathers" in us of the oncoming generation to meet this emergency — this debt?

A problem with a solution in view is no longer a problem. For an instance, hunger is not a problem to the man in bed who is hungry but who also knows that there is food in the pantry and is capable of getting it and eating it. The DIAMOND JUBILEE FUND, however, is a problem. This committee undertakes to collect moneys to liquidate the debts of all conference boards by August 4 of next summer, but it does not know whether there is money in the "pantry." However, a "problem" plus "faith" equals "solution." We need a demonstration of the "Faith of our fathers" to celebrate a debt-free Diamond Jubilee of the General Conference. How much does the "Faith of our fathers" in you prompt you to sacrifice? Are you, young man on the farm, willing to give the Lord one head of the two or more hogs or cattle or chickens or whatever you have? Will you, young people who draw a salary no matter how large or small, honor the "Faith of our fathers" with a week's wages? What can your Young People's Society do? Pray about this and send your response to

The Diamond Jubilee Fund,
K. A. Richert, Conference Treasurer,
Newton, Kansas.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

March 3, 1935

The Insight of Jesus

Matthew 9:36-38; John 2:24-25

This study calls for some fundamental thinking and a sincere perusal of Jesus, the Son of God. He knew all men, He could comprehend the innermost thinking of the woman at the Samaritan well, He could foresee the possibilities in Simon, He knew what was in the heart of a Judas as they were seated around the table at the Last Supper, and He understood and sympathized with the multitude.

Jesus had an insight into divine truth, into the lives of His friends and of His enemies. It should remind us that He knows all about our lives, our hopes, our aspirations, our temptations, our struggles, and our needs. Jesus is the best friend any man can have, for He is so knowing and understanding. Yes, like John says of Him: "He knows all men, he needs not that any should testify of man for he knows what is in man."

We are very thankful for such topics like these. We will not use much space in these columns, but will simply suggest a few portions of Scripture which gave us insights into the inner comprehension of Jesus. It is suggested that these portions of Scripture and these incidents in Jesus' life be made the basis of topics and discussions.

For Topical Discussions

Read and study carefully the Scripture portions suggested and tell in your own words Christ's insight revealed therein. If possible, have each speaker make practical applications for life today.

Some Scripture portions are as follows: Luke 2:40-52; Matt. 4:1-11; John 3:1-13; John 4:4-42; Luke 7:36-50;; Matt. 5:1-7:27; John 6:14-15; Matt. 16:13-20; Luke 10:5-37; John 13:18-30; and Acts 1:3-8.

"We cannot go farther until we go deeper."

March 10, 1935

Crime Does Not Pay

Psalm 1:4-6

"The wicked are not so, but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away. Therefore the wicked shall not stand in judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous. For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the wicked shall perish."

Crime has become of such stupendous magnitude that the public is becoming concerned. Special crime conferences are being held to study the problem. Campaigns are being waged to wipe out the criminal. Just a bit of common sense should convince all the gangsters that crime does not pay. Practically all the "Dillingers" and "baby kidnapers" get caught sooner or later. But above all there needs to be taught to all people young and old that God is a God of righteousness, and the soul that sinneth it shall die.

A daily newspaper recently reported the story of a sixteen year old boy who stole into a well-to-do home, he stealthily ascended the stairs intent on thieving. As he came to the top of the stairs a dim light revealed to him an old man in a bedroom asleep, and over that threshold he could read the words, "Jehovah will keep thee from all evil; He will keep thy soul." After reading those words he retraced his steps and went to his hotel room and wrote the man with that same house number a letter telling him how he had entered his home intent on stealing, but that when he read that Scripture text over his door he remembered how his mother had taught him those very words. And then he went on to tell how in idle moments he had drifted into pool halls and had learned to do petty thieving, but because of that experience he would try to go "straight."

Questions

1. Give some statistics and facts as to the extent of crime.
2. How can we account for the fact that the criminal is coming increasingly from the ranks of youth?
3. Is environment a sufficient excuse for becoming a criminal or must we hold every individual responsible for his deeds?
4. Who is to blame for our increase in crime: the home, the school, the church, society, or all of them together?

5. Why do criminals commit crime, do they think it does pay?
6. On what basis do you feel assured that crime never pays?
7. What is the ideal Christian method of dealing with the criminal: life imprisonment, death penalty, or reform?
8. How would Jesus deal with the criminally minded?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Illinois

March 3, 1935

How Poets Interpret God

Isa. 40:9-17.—(Consecration Service)

"Naught but God can satisfy the soul."

Pre-prayer

"O Thou by whom we come to God—
The Life, the Truth, the Way!
The path of prayer Thyself hast trod;
Lord, teach us how to pray!

Great poets have always spoken with authority. All poetry that is worthy of the name is essentially creative. It is the natural language of youth, freedom, joyousness and love of beauty. Poetry of religion should be the most natural and universal sort of composition. The spirit of man seeks expression for its most elemental feelings in the elevated phrases of rhythmic speech. We need only to turn to the Bible for examples of great poetry. One of the sure tests of great poetry is its power of survival. This we know is true of the Bible poetry and that it is as varied as are the experiences of humanity in its experiments with the great mystery of the soul's relationship to God. Let us study great poems.

The Poet's Call

By day the field and meadows cry;
By night the bright stars plead;
He hears the message from on high,
And to the call gives heed.

The roses tremble as he nears,
And cry, "Rejoice, rejoice"!
The rocks break forth as he appears,
God sends a Voice, a Voice"!
(Thomas Clarke.)

Study Psalms 42 and 43. This in poetry form is called "The Search." Verses 5 and 11 of chapter 42 and 5 of 43 are called the refrain. It is the story of a successful searcher.

The Poet's Simple Faith

You say, "Where goest Thou"? I cannot tell,
And still go on. If but the way be straight
I cannot go amiss: before me lies
Dawn and the day: the night behind me: that Suffices me: I break the bounds: I see,
And nothing more; believe and nothing less.
My future is not one of my concerns.
—Victor Hugo.

God revealed in nature. Imminence in nature in general.

Song from Pippa Passes

The year's at the spring;
The day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven;
The hillside's dew-pearled;
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn;
God's in His heaven—
All's right with the world.
—Robert Browning.

The Country—

Out in the Fields With God

The little cares that fretted me
I lost them yesterday,
Among the fields above the sea,
Among the winds at play,
Among the lowing of the herds,
The rustling of the trees,
Among the singing of the birds,
The humming of the bees.

The foolish fears of what might happen
I cast them all away
Among the husking of the corn,
Among the new-mown hay,
Among the husking of the corn,
Where drowsy poppies nod,
Where ill thoughts die and good are born —
Out in the fields with God.
—Anonymous.

Trees

Read the poem "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer and also "A Ballad of the Trees and the Master," by Sidney Lanier. These are both written as songs and they might be sung.

Gardens and Flowers

God's Garden

The years are flowers and bloom within
Eternity's wide garden;
The rose for joy, the thorn for sin,
The gardener, God, to pardon
All wilding growths, to prune, reclaim,
And make them rose-like in His name.
—Richard Burton.

Animals

The Lamb

Little lamb, who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee?
Gave thee life and bade thee feed
By the stream and o'er the mead;
Gave thee clothing of delight,
Softest clothing, woolly, bright;
Gave thee such a tender voice,
Making all the vales rejoice?
Little lamb, who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee?

Little lamb, I'll tell thee;
Little lamb, I'll tell thee;
He is called by thy name,
For He calls Himself a lamb.
He is meek and He is mild,
He became a little child,
I a child and thou a lamb,
We are called by His name,
Little lamb, God bless thee!
Little lamb, God bless thee!

—William Blake.

Heavens

Read Psalm 19. This is called "The Heavens Above and the Law Within."

Mountains

Silence

I need not shout my faith. Thrice eloquent
Are quiet trees and the green listening sod;
Hushed are the stars, whose power is never spent;
The hills are mute; yet how they speak of God!

—Charles Towne.

For worship, study great hymns written during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun," "Jesus Lover of My Soul," "Adeste Fidelis," "Come Thou Almighty King," "Rock of Ages," "Coronation," "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," "My Faith Looks Up to Thee." There are many others we need to study and they will mean more to us when we sing them.

"Flower in the crannied wall,
I pluck you out of the crannies;—
Hold you here, root and all, in my hand,
Little flower—but if I could understand
What you are, root and all, and all in all,
I should know what God and man is."

—Tennyson.

March 10, 1935

What Is The Meaning of Lent?

Luke 19:28-38; 24:1-4

" 'Tis midnight, and from all removed,
Emanuel wrestles lone with fears;
E'en the disciple that He loved
Heeds not his Master's grief and tears.

" 'Tis midnight, and for others' guilt
The man of sorrows weeps in blood;
Yet He that hath in anguish knelt
Is not forsaken by His God."

Pre-prayer

"Watch and pray"

Lent—Lent means spring and is employed to denote a period of fasting preceding Easter. Easter never stood alone; it came as a day of rejoicing after a fast which commemorated the death and burial of Christ. Periods of fasting can be found in the Old Testament, by the Prophets and Jesus fasted forty days before He began His ministry. It was originally believed that demons entered the body with food and if a person wished to meet God, he must get rid of all evil spirits that would stand between him and God. The fast before Easter, called Lent, began in the second century with only the day before Easter as the day of fasting. Later it was lengthened to forty hours, the length that Jesus was in the grave. In the third century it was lengthened to six days, then called "Holy Week." In the fourth century the time was extended to forty days, thus beginning lent on Ash Wednesday.

Ash Wednesday—It is so called because in the Old Testament times when people wished to show mourning, the custom was to put on "sack-cloth and ashes." This day begins the period of mourning in memory of Christ's suffering.

Object and Purport of Lent—We may inquire in the next place what was the primary idea in the institution of such a fast, and what other reasons were subserved in the maintenance of it.

First, it lasted for the time during which our Lord was under the power of death, to mark the mourning of the church when the bridegroom was taken away. Of this mourning then, Lent is the perpetual commemoration.

Second, this particular fast, however, served as a special preparation for several important events directly connected with Easter. Chief among these was the Easter communion. Easter again was the special time for the administration of baptism, which was necessarily preceded by a solemn preparation and fasting. Lent was also a special time of preparation for penitents who looked forward to readmission for the following Easter.

Manner of Observance of Lent—Special characteristics of Lent consisted in various forms of abstinence from food, the cessation of various ordinary forms of rejoicing, the merciful interference with legal pains and penalties and the like. 1. The actual fast, which was generally a total abstinence from all food till evening, except on Sundays and in some cases on Saturday. 2. The forbidding of all things which were of festal character, such as all public games, theatrical shows, observance of anniversaries, as birthday and weddings, etc. 3. It prohibited all hearing of criminal cases during the season. 4. Besides these negative characteristics we find also the endeavor to maintain a higher spirit of devotion by an increased number of religious services. Many had sermons daily during this season.

Questions

1. Does our church observe Lent?
2. Do you think it would be good for us to observe Lent? Why or why not?
3. Does our church have Lenten services?
4. Does our church have special services during Holy Week?
5. If they do, do young people attend them?
6. If they do not, could we as Endeavorers plan services for that week?
7. What are some of the ways in which Lent is observed?
8. Couldn't we rise earlier than usual and spend a quiet fifteen or thirty minutes to read and meditate on Christ's life, especially this last period of His life, and in communion with our Father? Do you think the sacrifice would be worth while?

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

Story Telling

(Continued from last issue)

Stories for small children should be brief. Many stories come to us in perfect form for telling. Others must be reorganized and adapted. Indirect discourse may need to be changed to direct form, unnecesary detail and explanation be eliminated and sometimes word pictures should be added to stimulate imagination. No one should ever tell a story unless it appeals to him so much that he enters so sympathetically into its mood that he wants to share its meaning with some one else. The amateur should rehearse his story until he has it thoroughly mastered before he attempts to tell it to a group. The story teller who halts or hesitates is lost. The story teller should cultivate poise; not stiffness, but a quiet manner. He must not "moralize." A story that is good enough to tell will do its own teaching.

The story teller would do well to keep a story scrapbook, so that he may have on hand story material for the occasion, whether it be class room, worship period, missionary program, week day social hour, or special days as Christmas, Mother's Day, etc.

The Bible with its wonderful life stories, suitable for all ages, is the ideal course of story material for the church school worker. History and biography are also rich in true life stories. Careful search of your Public Library will yield books of stories to be told as well as books on story telling. Another good source of story telling material may be found in our daily newspapers. Brave deeds, heroism, unselfish living are excellent true life materials upon which to build interesting stories.

Mrs. M. E. Plank, Middlebury, Ind.

March 3, 1935

Topic.—Children of the Bible: Joseph

Gen. 37:1-4; 12-36—(Consecration Meeting)

We have for our lesson today a Bible story that we all enjoy—that of Joseph. You will remember that he was a son of Jacob and Rachel, and had eleven brothers. Our lesson begins with Joseph a young man, seventeen years old. He tells his father of wrong things the brothers are doing. The father loves Joseph more than all the rest and shows him special kindness. All of this makes the brothers very jealous and angry. Joseph has dreams in which he sees himself the leader in his family and as his brothers hear of these dreams they become still more angry.

As we read on, we find Joseph being sent by his father to find the brothers who are away at work. The brothers see him coming and feel this is their chance to "get even" with him. They sell him to men from Egypt, then go home and pretend to their father that some wild animal has killed him. Joseph trusts God and God is with him as he is taken far from home.

It is He who helps Joseph live rightly among strangers. Even though he is misunderstood and put into prison, God is right there caring for him and finally he is made the greatest man in Egypt next to the king.

He reminds us of Jesus in many ways. He was much loved by his father, hated by his brothers (the Jews hated Christ), misunderstood, sent into a far country (as Christ came to the earth), forgave those who hated him, and at last became a great ruler. There are other ways in which Joseph was like Christ. See how many you can find.

Plans for the Meeting

A week before the meeting assign questions and topics to the Juniors covering the entire Bible account of Joseph's life. Call for them in order. After his life story has been told in this way, go over it again, discussing lessons that boys and girls of today may learn from his life. Close the meeting with a short talk by either the superintendent or a guest on "Joseph, a type of Christ."

Questions

1. Who were Joseph's parents?
2. What do you know of Joseph's brothers?
3. Why was Joseph sold?
4. How did Joseph become a great man in Egypt?
5. Tell of Joseph's meeting with his brothers in Egypt and what came of it.

March 10, 1935

Topic.—Pictures in the Shepherd Psalm

Psalm 23

The 23rd Psalm, or Shepherd Psalm, is perhaps the most beautiful and most loved of all of the Psalms. Many of us have memorized it. Do we think of its meaning when we repeat it or do we say it so fast that we fail to see what is really there? Today we are to think of the pictures found in it. Before you read on, close your eyes and repeat the Psalm very slowly to yourself, counting the pictures you find.

There is a beautiful picture in the very first verse. Can't you see Christ, the good shepherd? A good shepherd gives his sheep the best of care. He loves them, gives them the right food, protects them, cares for them kindly if they are sick or hurt.

I am sure that you who live on the farm can see the picture in the second verse. Isn't is a restful one? Here we see the shepherd leading his sheep into places best for them. And so Christ want to lead us.

Verse four has a darker picture. The sheep are not in green pastures now, but in a dark valley where there is danger. I like to think that when there is a shadow, the sun is shining. Go out on a dark day and you can't see your shadow. So even though Christ may sometimes lead through sorrow, soon He will lead out into sunshine and even while in the darkness, this verse says He has a way of comforting. The shepherd uses his rod and staff to protect and help the sheep.

In verse five we have a picture of plenty. But I must stop before I name all of the pictures. How many others have you seen? Doesn't this Psalm make us feel like thanking God for His goodness to us who love Him?

Plans for the Meeting

If possible, bring to the meeting pictures suggested by this Psalm. After the Psalm pictures have been discussed, make the Psalm very personal as you read it aloud emphasizing the pronouns "I," "me," "my" throughout. This will not be done with a selfish motive, but to help the Juniors to see that the Lord, our Shepherd, does deal with us individually. Such passages as John 10 and Luke 15:3-7 may be used.

Questions

1. Why is the shepherd careful of his sheep?
2. How does a shepherd care for his sheep in dangerous places?
3. What does the shepherd do if a sheep gets hurt?
4. Tell the story of the lost sheep in Luke 15.
5. Find New Testament verses telling of Christ's care for His sheep.

"Some children were reading the twenty-third Psalm. And they went on talking about what Jesus, the Good Shepherd, does for His sheep and lambs. One said, He guides them, and feeds them, and drives away the bears and lions from them. 'Yes,' said the smallest child among them, 'and He carries them up the hills.'

"This is true, and shows how great the tenderness of our Lord is. I suppose the dear child was thinking of that verse which says: 'He shall gather the lambs with His arm, and carry them in His bosom.' "—Life Line.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

February 24, 1935

Peter Heals A Lame Man

Lesson Text—Acts 3:1-10; 4:8-12

Golden Text.—Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee. Acts 3:6.

The incident in this lesson occurs soon after the experience on the day of Pentecost. Peter and John are on their way to the temple for prayer at three o'clock in the afternoon. As they came to the Gate Beautiful of the temple they saw a man lying there begging alms. This man was a cripple from his birth. He was not looking for healing and restoration, but for money by which he might buy the few necessities of life. He asked Peter and John for money. This occasioned the memorable remark of Peter which is the golden text of our lesson: "Silver and gold have I none, but SUCH AS I HAVE give I unto thee." This statement immediately arouses our interest. In this day of relief funds and doles it becomes doubly significant. "Silver and gold have I none." There are many people in our churches who excuse themselves from any obligations because they say, "I have no money." In our materialistic America we feel that unless we have money we can not be happy or render service. What a mistaken idea!

Peter said, "I have no money, but such as I have, I'll give you." What did Peter have to give? In the first place let it be noted that Peter lived in the positive rather than negative. There were many things Peter did not have. He could have complained for a half hour to this poor cripple what he did not have. How often we stand in the presence of need and make excuses because of what we do not have. If I had money, or if I could sing, or if I could teach, or if I had an opportunity what service we would render! But Peter said, "I have something." He was positive. It would profit us to take an inventory of what we have rather than what we do not have. The world is not interested in what I do not have, or cannot do, or do not believe. What have you? What can you do? What do you believe? The story is told of D. L. Moody that he was preaching one night to a large crowd. After the service a man came up and said, "Mr. Moody, you made eleven mistakes in grammar in your sermon." Mr. Moody replied, "Undoubtedly I did, my education is faulty, but I use all the grammar I know for Christ. Do you"? We are never condemned for not using what we do not have, if it is only one talent. But if we neglect to use it, we lose it. I really have only what I share and give. Inasmuch as ye did it or did it not.

In the second place Peter had sympathy. He was going to pray, but he did not have his head in the clouds so he could not see the cripple. His worship was linked with service. Many of us go to church Sunday after Sunday and have our lives challenged and then go out into the world refusing to use our lives in His service. The world today needs material things but it needs a great deal more love, sympathy, and someone's deep interest in them. Peter did not look at the man and say, "Yes, I pity you. I'm sorry you are crippled. How did you get that way? When I get to the relief headquarters I'll write a check for such as you." He took him by the hand and lifted him up.

In the third place Peter had faith. When he lifted the man up he believed Christ would help him. Peter said, "Don't look on us as if we had done it. It was the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, whose Son is Jesus Christ, that did this." May we go forth in His name with what we have to help the needy world to find Christ!

What do you have that man needs?

How can you give what you have?

What place does silver or gold have in the helping of mankind?

What does the church have that the world needs?

Are you using what you have?

March 3, 1935

Peter Unmasks Falsehood And Hypocrisy

Lesson Text.—Acts 5:1-6; 8:18-24

Golden Text.—Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor: for we are members one of another. Ephesians 4:25.

It may be well in this Sunday School lesson to remind ourselves of the background of the incident of Ananias and Sapphira. After the day of Pentecost through the efforts of the apostles the church grew rapidly. The Lord added daily such as should be saved. Many of these people, when they gave up Judaism and became Christians, lost their jobs and everything and needed to be supported by the Christian brotherhood. On the other hand there were wealthy people who, when they became Christians, sold all their possessions and gave the money to the church. This was practiced so that it was said, "They sold their possessions and had all things in common." This was done for several reasons. First, of course, their spirit of unselfishness and love which came with their acceptance of Christ, in the second place the great necessity to support the poor, and in the third place they believed the Lord would return very soon and so it was not important to hold property. One of the outstanding cases where a wealthy person sold all and brought it to the apostles was Barnabas of Cyprus. These examples stimulated others among whom were Ananias and Sapphira. They sold real estate, but instead of giving all to the church they secretly kept back part of it. Peter places upon them great condemnation which causes the death of Ananias and Sapphira. What was their real sin? They were not compelled to sell their property, so it did not lie in the fact they believed in private property. In other words, this incident is no argument in favor of Socialism or Communism.

In the second place the sin did not lie in the fact that they kept back part of the money, because that was their privilege. There was no ruling of the church or command of Christ that they must give all.

Their sin was one of pretense and hypocrisy. They wanted the good name of being liberal givers and doing like Barnabas did, and yet not give very much. They secretly kept back part of it. How typically human this is! People posing certain attitudes which they do not really possess. A hypocrite according to its original meaning is "an actor on the stage." One who plays the part of another character without being that one. Ananias was acting out Barnabas without being Barnabas. Many a church member falls spiritually dead beside the offering plate on Sunday morning when he lies to the Lord and says a nickel is all he can afford to give, when the Lord knows better. This is the reason for our spiritually weak churches. We are to be stewards even in our possessions, then we lie to the Lord and hold back what belongs to him. The writer hopes that Sunday School teachers will not waste their time discussing why Ananias fell dead physically, but rather press home the fact that withheld lives and money today causes spiritual paralysis and death.

The second incident in our lesson is where Simon the magician wanted to buy the power of the Holy Ghost with money. The most valuable treasures of life can not be bought with gold and silver.

What is the real sin of Ananias and Sapphira?

What effect does hypocrisy have on the church?

What is the relation of a man's possessions to his life?

What truth is there in this lesson particularly practical for us as Sunday School teachers?

STEWARDSHIP

It ain't in throwin' your cap in the fray
And shoutin' your minister's praise;
It ain't in arguin' all day long
Until you are red in the face;
It's to pay as you pray
On collection day—
That's stewardship.

It ain't in swellin' a talk-fest brigade
And spoutin' out promises fair;
It ain't in yellin' encouragement
When creedsmen rant and rare;
It's livin' day by day,
In a God-honoring way—
That's stewardship.

It ain't givin' advice,
Though it's free and without price;
It ain't in boastful braggin'
About spiritual heights attained;
It's to do your best work
And never play the shirk—
That's stewardship.

It ain't in singin' Psalm tunes
Or repeatin' the Apostles' Creed;
It ain't in bombast or Pharisaic pride,
Or in sayin' one is on the Lord's side;
It's prayin' and workin' and payin'
Always puttin' God's kingdom first—
That's stewardship.

—Woman's Missionary Friend.

JOTTINGS

From Montana comes the report that the three branches of Mennonites at Volt and Lustre have combined to carry on spiritual work at the Fort Peck Dam. A good number of our Mennonite people are working there, and the ministers have been concerned about them as to carry on a mission work there. Three ministers, namely: Rev. Thiessen, Rev. A. C. Wall, and Rev. Schultz, were sent there to make a thorough investigation regarding the possibilities of such work, and it was decided to work together with the American S. S. Union. Rev. McLean welcomed this cooperation. Rev. Albert Ewert ministered to the people last Sunday at Wheeler and New Deal. These are small towns that are formed near the project in which the workers live. The population in and near this project numbers close to 10,000 people.—Freeman S. D., Courier.

Rev. Freeman Swartz, pastor of the Eden church, Schwenksville, Pa., has hit upon a plan by which interest in the service and its message is fostered and continued. He distributed a small book of blank pages that bears the title "Sermon Record." The pages have nothing on them except places indicated for notes on the sermons month by month.

The Quarterly Ministers Conference of the Eastern District Conference was held at Lansdale, Pa., in Grace church, of which Rev. Daniel Unruh is pastor. The meeting was one of unusual interest. Rev. J. C. Kaufmann of Freeman, S. D., and Dr. L. Pannebecker were guests. The former spoke on "The Spiritual Lessons Learned from the Drought" and Doctor Pannebecker brought a misisonary message with special emphasis on the medical end of the work. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of Quakertown read a paper on "The Ministry and the Greater Ministry from a Pastor's Viewpoint." Mr. William Mohr read a paper on "The Ministry and the Greater Ministry from a Layman's Point of View."

Rev. J. B. Epp of Frieview, Oklahoma, who has been successfully conducting Correspondence Bible Courses, writes: "The Lord took me out of the school room (Bible School); the work was too strenuous for me. But He gives me in place of that many hundreds of students in America (German and English), and thousands over in Europe and other lands. The courses are being translated into a number of different languages, mostly for Russians, Poles, etc., etc. Since they have but very few and small Bible schools over there, i. e. for mission helpers, my simple course suits them well. They study in groups, by correspondence. Over there no one is able to pay. I send everything absolutely free, even pay the postage."

Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannebecker of the General Conference Missions in China, now on furlough, spent a Sunday in Philadelphia visiting and addressing the First and Second Churches. Dr. Pannebecker illustrates his addresses with a very interesting and informative series of pictures,

Rev. P. H. Unruh, pastor of the Alexanderwohl church, Goessel, Kansas, held a series of meetings in St. John's church, Pandora, Ohio, of which Rev. Edgar Toves is pastor.

Rev. P. R. Schroeder of Freeman, S. D., president of the General Conference, visited Madrid, Nebraska, on a recent Sunday to deliver a missionary message to install the newly elected pastor.

Bluffton College combines a Ministers' Retreat and a Christian Fellowship Institute with its Annual College Bible Lectures, February 11-15. The Bible lectures will be conducted by Dr. David Jones Evans. The Ministers' Retreat has been arranged in view of the need of a time when ministers get together for study, fellowship and inspiration. The following subjects are offered: 1. "The Epistle to the Galatians," Rev. A. E. Kreider; 2. "The Minister's Problems," Rev. Paul Whitmer; 3. "Present World Problems," Dr. C. H. Smith. The Christian Fellowship Institute continues from February 11 to March 1. The Institute has been planned for men and women, regardless of age or educational training, with the view of giving them the opportunity of spending three weeks in inspirational fellowship and study at the college. The following courses are offered: 1. Historical Survey of the New Testament, Rev. J. R. Detweiler; 2. The Acts of the Apostles, Miss Martha Burkhalter; 3. Missionary Expansion of Christianity, Miss Burkhalter; 4. The Church School Worker, Dr. J. S. Shultz; 5. Mennonite History and Principles, Rev. A. S. Rosenberger; 6. Present Day Social Problems, Dr. I. W. Bauman; 7. Revelations of Science as Arguments for God, Prof. H. W. Berkey; 8. Church and Choral Music, Prof. Russell Lantz.

The Dutch Mennonite Missionary Society, the oldest Mennonite missionary organization, now in its 86th year, recently ordained two candidates, David Amstutz, a native of Switzerland, and Otto Stauffer, a German. The society operates on the islands of Java and Samatra, in the Dutch East Indies. Mennonites in Europe outside of the Netherlands provide considerable support for this oranization and have done so since its beginning.

Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, of Wichita, Kansas, was the special lecturer at the Bethel College Bible Week. Dr. Langenwalter is a former president of Bethel. Faculty members participating in the lectures were Prof. D. H. Richert, Prof. P. J. Wedel, Dr. P. E. Schellenberg, Dr. J. Thierstein, Dr. W. H. Harshberger, Prof. W. H. Hohman, and Dean P. S. Goertz.

Rev. Carl Landes, pastor of the First Church, Philadelphia, has been confined to his home under quarantine, but has improved. In his absence the pulpit was supplied by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, a former pastor, of the church, and Dr. L. Pannebecker.

MARRIAGE

Augspurger-Oswald.—Margie Augspurger, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. R. Augspurger, became the bride of Earl John Oswald, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Oswald, in a ceremony performed at the home of the bride's parents, Sunday morning, December 23, at 11:30 o'clock. The couple who was attended by Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Springer, the latter a sister of the bride, and the bridal party stood in an arch of white with a background of flowers. The single ring ceremony was read by the bride's father. The bride was attractively dressed in a frock of peacock blue. Dorothy Oswald, sister of the groom, played the Mendelssohn wedding march. Rose Marie Springer, niece of the bride, carried the ring in a pink tea rose. A wedding dinnner followed the ceremony. A pink and white color motif was used in the decorations and a white wedding cake centered the table. — The bride and groom are both graduates of Aurora High School, and Mrs. Oswald has been a teacher in the county for several years. The groom is engaged in farming. They will make their home three miles west of Aurora, after February 1st. — Guests at the wedding included the Augspurger family, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Springer and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Oswald, Dorothy, Bessie, and John, Ruth Leech, and Paul Augspurger of Lincoln.

Leech-Augspurger.—Ruth L. Leech and Paul Augspurger were married at noon, Thursday, January 10, at the home of the groom's parents, Rev. and Mrs. E. R. Augspurger of Aurora. Rev. Augspurger performed the ceremony. The couple was attended by Esther Leech, sister of the bride, and Peter Wendel of Lincoln. The bride is a daughter of James Leech, farmer near Syracuse, Nebr. She wore a navy blue tailored suit. She was graduated from the Syracuse High School. The groom is the youngest son of Rev. and Mrs. Augspurger. He graduated from the Aurora High School. He has been bookkeeper for the Holland Furnace Co. of Lincoln. A dinner was served following the ceremony. The guests were James Leech of Syracuse, Esther Leech and Peter Wendel of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Springer and family, Rev. Jacob Peltz, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Oswald.

DEATHS

David Funk was born November 1, 1851, in Adelshein, Baden, Germany. He was baptized upon confession of his faith by Elder Lander and taken into the Mennonite church, where he remained as a member until his death. On January 30, 1876, he married Anna Babette Bär. This union was blessed with four chidren, of which only one is alive today. On January 12, 1882, the mother died. On August 4, 1883, he married Susanne Bär of Heidelsheim, Baden. In 1893 he emigrated with his family to America where he settled near Clay Center, Kans. In May 1894 his second wife died. In 1895 the father migrated with his daughter to Oklahoma, where they settled in the strip near Perry. On January 2, 1898, he married Barbara Dester, Halstead, Kans. With her he could live until his death. The union was blessed with six girls, who are all alive at present. He passed away quietly and peacefully on the morning of December 24, 1934. He reached the age of 83 years, 1 month, and 24 days. He leaves to mourn his death, his wife, 7 children, 16 grandchildren, 14 greatgrandchildren, many relatives, and a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Rev. Henry Funk conducted the services at the home, using Phil. 1:21-23 as reference. At the church Rev. Frose preached in the German language, and Henry Hege in the English language on Gen. 35:29.

Mrs. Emma Mohr, nee Roth, was born in Bucks county, October 4, 1868. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Roth. On March 14, 1896, she was united in marriage to Frank D. Mohr. This happy union was broken when the Lord called her on January 3, 1935, bringing her age to 66 years, 2 months and 29 days. She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband, a daughter, one step-daughter, four grandchildren, and one greatgrandchild. As funeral text her pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, used one of her favorite passages, Isaiah 55:1-11. Interment in West Swamp cemetery.

Simon B. King, son of Christian and Mary King, was born in Livingston County on February 21, 1871, and passed away at his home near Flanagan, Ill., on January 9, 1935, after an illness of nine days with pneumonia and complications, at the age of 63 years, 10 months, and 19 days. On January 22, 1895, he was united in marriage to Barbara Rheinhardt and together they have shared their joys and sorrows in their life for nearly forty years. He leaves to mourn his departure, his sorrowing wife, one son, Irwin, at home, and one daughter, now Viola Zanner, of Chicago, Ill., four grandchildren, four brothers, and two sisters. His father, mother, two brothers, three sisters, and three infant children preceded him in death. Early in life he accepted Christ as his Savior and joined the Flanagan Mennonite Church, of which he remained a faithful member until his death. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. I. Gundy and Emanuel Ulrich.

RESOLUTIONS

Jonathan's Edwards' resolutions were these:

Resolved, to live with all my might while I do live.

Resolved, never to lose one moment of time, but improve it in the most profitable way I possibly can.

Resolved, never do anything which I should despise or think meanly of in another.

Resolved, never to do anything out of revenge.

Resolved, never to do anything which I should be afraid to do if it were the last hour of my life.—

—Selected.

Let us renew our trust in God, and go forward without fear and with manly hearts.

—Abraham Lincoln.

BUY YOUR FAVORITE HYMN BOOK NOW!

MENNONITE HYMN BOOK

No Mennonite Church can afford to be without this hymn book. Those churches which have used it for any length of time are enthusiastic about it.

The Mennonite Hymn Book is a 392 page volume, containing 412 hymns of dignity and character and a splendid selection of responsive readings. Hymns are well arranged for all Church Year occasions. Choice selections for Missions, Peace, Home, and Religious Education, including a number of children's hymns and translations of "Gesangbuch mit Noten" favorites. A suitable hymn book for every department of the church. Nearly every hymn has the text set within the music. The music and type are clear and bold.—Printed on superfine book paper and bound in artistic durable binding.

Prices

No. 1 Record Buckram (Maroon) Binding

Single copies, postpaid......$	1.50
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid..........	15.00
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid..............	110.00

No. 1-A Spanish Maroon Fabrikoid

Single copies, pospaid..........$	2.00
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid.................	18.00
100 or more copies, per 100, not prepaid..........................	125.00

No. 2 Full Back Leather Binding

Single copies, postpaid......$	2.50
12 or more copies, per dozen, not prepaid...........	24.00

Cheaper Song Book for Sunday Schools

NAME OF SONG BOOK	Binding	Number of Songs	Single Copy Price, Postpaid	Per Dozen Not Postpaid	Per 100 Not Postpaid
Hymns of Praise Nos. 1 and 2 combined	Green Cloth	447	70c	$6.60	$55.00
*Tabernacle Hymns Number Three	Green Silk Cloth	352	65c	6.00	50.00
*Triumphant Service Songs	Green Cloth	295	50c	4.80	40.00
*Worship and Praise	Brown Cloth	291	55c	4.80	40.00
Praise and Service Songs	Red Cloth	263	50c	4.80	40.00
*Gloria in Excelsis	Red Art Cloth	225	50c	6.00	45.00
*Magnificat	De Luxe Cloth	231	50c	6.00	45.00
*Hymns of Praise	Green Cloth	286	50c	4.80	40.00
*Hymns of Praise Number Two	Green Cloth	289	50c	4.80	40.00
The New Church Hymnal	Green Cloth	402	65c	6.00	50.00

*May also be obtained in cheaper paper bindings

Prices of other books gladly furnished on request

Returnable sample copies will be sent to responsible persons expecting to order for churches and Sunday Schools if name of congregation and name of pastor accompanies request.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, MARCH 5, 1935 No. 5

OUR DIAMOND JUBILEE

For the people of Israel God instituted the fiftieth year as a year of Jubilee. In Leviticus 25:9-10 we read, "And thou shalt cause the trumpet of Jubilee to sound on the tenth day of the seventh month; in the day of atonement shall ye make the trumpet sound throughout all your land. And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof. It shall be a Jubilee unto you."

They were to celebrate a whole year. All the slaves were to be set free; all the debts were to be cancelled; all the land which had been bought and sold was to be restored to its original owner, and the people as a whole were to rejoice that the Lord was their God and in the fact that He had abundantly blessed them. That Golden Jubilee for Israel was a good and wise arrangement.

As a Conference we have long since passed our Golden Jubilee and are this year celebrating our Diamond Jubilee. Surely it will be profitable for us to look back to the time of the beginning, to the time before we were born, and reviewing the seventy-five years thankfully, marvel at the things which God hath wrought and the blessings which He has bestowed.

If in 1859, when my father's uncle, Daniel Krehbiel, whom I remember as an old man visiting our home in Summerfield, Ill., when I was a boy, suggested that the two small churches in Lee County, Iowa, have a union meeting on Easter Monday, had been told that out of this suggestion there would eventually grow a Conference of Mennonites extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific and north into Canada, doing mission work in several continents, he could not have believed it. Behold what God hath wrought! In the 126th Psalm, which is a Psalm of Thanksgiving, the writer says, "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad." Surely the Lord hath done greater things for us, wherefore we should be glad and thankful. I know of no better way to give expression to our joy and gratitude than by making a contribution to the Jubilee Fund, and I am glad that this opportunity has been offered us and is meeting with such universal approval. If we with grateful hearts will give to God according to the manner in which He has prospered and blessed us, we will not only liquidate our debt, but have a surplus in our Jubilee Fund for the extension of His Kingdom. Let us remember, it is more blessed to give than to receive.

H. J. Krehbiel,
Chairman of Board of Publication.

THE BEGINNINGS OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

To tell the story of a great movement that began in a small way involves difficulties and speculations. The historian, too often, must surmise motives and draw on his own conclusions in order to fill gaps where there are few, if any, sources of information, such as documents and the testimony of surviving witnesses. The General Conference is fortunate in having had the account of its beginnings recorded by one of the second generation who knew most of the outstanding participants and was closely related to many of them. We refer to the History of the General Conference by Rev. H. P. Krehbiel in 1898. This pioneer work having been done, there remains only the need of interested diligence in consulting records, church publications etc., in order to complete the story. The purpose of this article, and those that will follow, is to sketch the origin and development of our General Conference as briefly as possible. In view of the Diamond Jubilee of the Conference, which is to be celebrated in California next summer, we hope that these articles will help center interest on that event.

There is little to record of the existence of previous conferences of Mennonites in America apart to those movements that led to the organization of the General Conference. In Pennsylvania there arose on several occasions the need for Mennonites to meet and give to the world a declaration of their positions, especially in relation to their community and the State. As early as 1727 there appeared from the press of the celebrated colonial printer, Bradford, a pamphlet bearing the title: "The Christian Confession of Faith of the Harmless Christians in the Netherlands Known by the Name of Mennonites." The work was a republication of a similar one appearing in Holland for the benefit of English speaking refugees who had associated themselves with the Dutch Mennonites. This appeared in 1712 and at an earlier period in German.

As the purpose of this work was to show what the Mennonites stood for and bore the signature of eighteen Mennonite ministers, who represented five sections in Pennsplvania, it is hard to conceive that anything but a general gathering of these brethren could have been responsible for its appearance. In the copy we have consulted there is an inscription indicating that it had been filed with the officials of the Province of Pennsylvania, February 9, 1754, at the time a group of Mennonites applied for naturalization. This would indicate that Mennonites gave the document the recognition of authority that had behind it the approval of representatives of their entire church. However, there is no record of the time or place when the document was so endorsed.

The local gatherings of ministers and deacons that were held in the Franconia District, Montgomery County, Pa., were called conferences and in other localities similar gatherings were conducted, but our story begins with the Franconia Conference and, as the other conferences were hardly involved, we will direct our attention to this one. It gained its name from the Franconia Meeting House, in which the meetings were held. The district represented covered several counties. This conference kept no records. It concerned itself briefly with matters of discipline, and the oldest bishop presided. Rules were made and regulations were imposed covering various matters, such as dress. The result was that often the ruling of one meeting would be either contradicted or forgotten at the next. The Pennsylvania Mennonites, and those who had gone from them to settle in Canada, had been out of touch with the Mennonites in Europe for at least a century, immigration having long before that come to an end. Mennonites were not an illiterate people at this time, as some would imply, since they had their schools and could boast of so eminent a teacher among them as Christopher Dock. Indeed, with their various books, such as the Martyr's Mirror, Dirk Philips writings, Danner's Sermons, Hymn Books, and Catechisms, they make a better showing than their non-Mennonite neighbors, but as the middle of last century approached, things had become stagnated, tradition and form having the precedence. In some quarters there was a distorted idea of the principles of the church if not downright ignorance of them. Daniel Hogh cites an instance in which, upon being asked what the Mennonite church stood for, one of its ministers replied that he did not exactly know, but if the questioner would come to his house he would show him a book written by Dirk Philips in which it could show what the Mennonites represented.

John Oberholtzer was called to the ministry from the Swamp church. He had been a school teacher and when he began to preach he attained a popularity as a preacher in the community which none of his brethren in the ministry enjoyed, being often invited by non-Mennonites to preach in school houses and other places. Objection to the cut of his coat, which unintentionally slightly differed from the regulation uniform, gave opportunity to the less popular brethren in the ministry to bring him into disrepute with the conference. His next offense was to suggest a regularly prepared constitution for the conference. In order to bring it to the widest notice he had it printed and circulated with his signature and that of a number of other ministers and deacons attached. The pamphlet was intended to be brought before the Conference as a proposition. At this the members of the Conference took offense and he and his supporters were ordered to recall the book and confess themselves guilty of introducing an innovation.. Their not doing so made them guilty of disobedience, which was to be understood as an excommunication.

On October 8, 1847, two weeks after the meeting of the Franconia conference from which they had been excluded, had met, there gathered in the Skippack Meeting House six ministers and five deacons who had been involved, to consider their position and plan for the future. This was the beginning of the East Pennsylvania Conference, which later came to be known as the Eastern District Conference of the General Conference. Since Oberholtzer was the outstanding personality, responsible for what happened, it was quite natural that then and for a number of years later his influence was paramount. Others, however, were men of ability and standing. The differences in the Franconia conference divided several churches into two parties, while in the case of the Upper Milford church, under the leadership of Jos. Schantz, the entire congregation entered the new movement. The Skippack, Herford, Deep Run, and Swamp churches divided. Germantown and Phoenixville, though not numerous, seem to have gone entirely with the new party. In some cases the churches peaceably divided their time of worship, in others there were lockouts. In one instance the old party retired and built another meeting house for itself, while in another there arose the strange spectacle of Mennonites who professed not to believe in the righteousness of lawsuits going to law in order to settle their right in the use of a place of worship. New places of worship were erected for the new party at Freeland, Deep Run, Swamp, and Herford.

As it often happens where there is a revolution, those entering into it differ greatly from one another. There are sure to be parties representing a conservative, a radical, and an emotional point of view. This is what happened in the East Pennsylvania Conference. There were three schisms that greatly weakened the new movement, particularly is this to be noted in the Skippack group, which at time of the separation was possibly the largest group. About this time the Odd Fellow movement was at its crest in eastern Pennsylvania. Mennonites generally did not approve of secret societies. Abraham Hunsicker, a minister of the Skippack group, who stood high in the community and who was the founder of Freeland Academy, while not himself identified with secret societies of any kind, took a liberal view with reference to them. The matter could not be settled in conference and the Hunsicker party, having been excluded, established an organization of its own. The group included several congregations calling themselves the Trinity Christian Church. Some years after the death of Hunsicker one church became Lutheran, two became Reformed, and Germantown returned to the Eastern District Conference.

There arose a difference with reference to the ordinance of feet washing. Henry Johnson, secretary of the Conference, represented the element that held to this ordinance. After numerous efforts to come to an understanding, this party was excluded and its adherents came to be known as the Johnson people. They remain to this day a prosperous and energetic congregation, in possession of the Skippack meeting house, one of the most historic in the east. Later, when a wave of emotionalism, fostered by the Evangelicals or Albright People, was sweeping over Pennsylvania German communities, the Mennonites of the Eastern Conference as well as those of other communities, were deeply moved and often greatly affected by the proselyting that accompanied the movement. Several aggressive individuals insisted that prayer meetings, as they understood and conducted prayer meetings, were the test of real Christianity. Efforts to force these meetings on people to whom emotionalism did not appeal so strongly, caused great dissentions in several congregations. The result was the founding of the Evangelical Mennonite Church, known then as the Gehman's People, which later came to be merged in what is now known as the Mennonite Brethren in Christ. Many Mennonites broke away from their congregations to join this movement, but there was not, as in the other separations, a serious dividing of churches.

One wonders just what must have taken place in the East Pennsylvania Conference at the time when these differences were under consideration. As one thumbs the old records one finds time and again only a record in the minutes which reads: "Nothing of importance was accomplished at this meeting." Perhaps nothing was accomplished, but with feeling running high enough to divide the church, the meetings certainly could not have been lacking in intensity and general interest.

HOME MISSION NOTES

Altoona, Pa.—Brother L. H. Glass writes: The Ladies' Missionary Society made it possible for us to give our school a treat this Christmas that was enjoyed very much by the children, and Sister Stiffler prepared baskets with clothing and dolls and the things she knew the families needed, and gave them out on Christmas, and we bought coal and shoes and other things that the people needed with the money that was sent in by different parties. It was on account of this work, when the mayor of the city and his official body visited us and made an investigation, that they exonerated us from a debt of $500 for street paving, and also the taxes of about $61.50 a year. They said if the solicitor would not exonerate us from our city and school taxes, they would pay it themselves.

So many move away on account of having no work, and many lost their homes; many had to move to the country. Still some come to the services, from ten to fifteen miles. We had election of officers and took in ten members and had communion services, and there is a splendid spirit among the people. We have three tons of coal and one load of wood in the cellar, and all bills are paid. When I went to run an engine I made up my mind I would do it right, and when I retired I had a record that the superintendent said was not equalled on the system, and when I took this work and saw the conditions, I made up my mind I would stay with it until it was on a solid basis, notwithstanding all the opposition, and God is giving us the victory. We ask for nothing but your prayers.

Mrs. Stiffler is a busy woman. She works in the Post Office five hours every day, and keeps the church clean, trained over fifty children for one of the best Christmas programs they had, teaches the largest girls' class in Sunday School, plays the piano in school and church, is president of the Ladies' Missionary Society, meets her class once a month for sewing for the needy, and members of her Missionary Society visit the sick and wash and iron for them. She visits the sick, gives out clothing, and feeds the hungry. Such consecration I never saw, but she would have it no other way. She says the Board expects her to do her part, and she will not betray her trust. She takes no vacation.

Chicago.—No report from Chicago has come to the Board since April 1, 1934. Brother A. H. Leamann, who is now in charge of the Mission and will be for some time to come, has submitted his report to the Board for the last quarter of 1934. Bro. Leaman took charge September 16, and found a number of unpaid bills and needed repairs, and until January 1, 1935, the loyal group that rallied around him had generously contributed $750.67 for all purposes and paid all the outstanding bills and their running expenses, the Board contributing only $10 a week for Bro. Leaman's expenses in serving them while living 20 miles away. Until other arrangements are made, the mission will cost the Board less than one-half the amount per month than formerly.

The Sunday School has an enrollment at present of 135, which is an increase of 61 for the quarter. The average attendance is 93. God has graciously provided teachers for all classes. During this period the church work was organized on a working basis with the following officers: Sunday School Superintendent, Treasurer, Trustees, Y. P. S., Pianist, and Secretary. All the officers thus far appointed have been willing to work in the spirit of harmony and for the advancement of the work. Bro. Leaman writes: "In looking over the past three months we feel that God has graciously led us despite the oppression, difficulties, and prejudices to which we had to always display the spirit of a Christian."

Smith Corner, East Freedom, Pa. (Mountain Mission).—While Bro. Sylvan Lehman, who is in charge, has nothing striking to report, only the fact that the work and the support is satisfactory, yet in his optimistic spirit he is looking hopefully into the future. In conducting his own evangelistic services he says that the attendance was as good as when strangers were called in. Though there were no conversions to report, the people were evidently strengthened and encouraged in their faithfulness and devotion to the work of the mission and in their Christian life.

Ontario, Canada.—Bro. Jacob H. Janzen of Waterloo is a very busy man. During the past year he has traveled clear across Canada and preached 418 sermons, 111 of which were delivered during the last quarter of 1934. Under such pressure, he writes, the stock of material runs low and it becomes no easy matter to present the Truth in new strength and beauty when one has so little time to meditate. And yet I had evidence that the Lord honored His work which He did through me. Many were brought nearer to God, their faith was strengthened, drooping spirits revived, and straying souls came back to the father's house. Sometimes I wonder why the Lord wants me for such a work, but it seems He wants me to answer certain questions and approach certain problems, and for this I am thankful. Without any efforts of my own, the means for my expenses were furnished. After installing several Elders in the congregations, I expected to have less to do, and I have more. For the first quarter in the new year I have been asked to give special instructions to Sunday School teachers; will begin this work January 15, in Vineland.

Winnipeg, Manitoba.—Sister Lena Epp, matron in the Girls' Home, reports 150 girls on her list, and a group who only come for their positions and then stay with their parents or relatives. The wages vary from $5 to $25, and the youngest girl is 14 years of age. They had a very successful and pleasant Christmas gathering at the Home on December 23. In the light of the Christmas tree the girls sang hymns and had Christmas recitations, and addresses by the brethren J. P. Klaassen and J. H. Enns. The former is the Elder in the church and the latter has charge of the spiritual care in the Home and conducts the Bible studies. The room in the Home is almost too small.

W. S. Gottshall, Secretary of Board.

FAMILY WORSHIP

The family altar has always had a prominent place in the religious life of our people of the Mennonite church. Possibly at times it was more stressed than at other times; perhaps for reasons real or imaginary, at times neglected only to be revived, when these reasons yielded to a revival of religious interest. It is an established axiom that the church reflects the religious life and devotion of the home, while the altar fires of the home, in turn, are being fed and rekindled by the oil of the Holy Spirit and enjoyed in the love, devotion, and harmony of Christian parents and well reared children. A marked contrast to many so-called modern homes.

The family altar brings young life, devoted life, sacrificial life, to the altar of the church, thus making the TWO, ONE divine institution with Christ the High Priest and head. In the home-worship is learned the bending of the knee; in the church the bending of the heart. The devotions of the church help to make the home devotions increasingly sacred, and combine to make the participants good soldiers to meet the trials, troubles, and temptations of everyday life.

Several years ago a correspondent of a prominent journal visited the Berne, Indiana, church, the largest in our General Conference. His observations were later printed in pamphlet form for distribution. In answer to the question why the size of the Sunday School, the superintendent replied: "This big church and Sunday School has its roots planted deeply in the homes of our people. I do not know one Mennonite home in this community in which there is not daily worship and Bible study. This is the flower and fruit of the tree; its sustenance comes from family worship." In a teacher's interview he got the formula for raising "a church from the dead." Quote: "One chapter of the Bible and one fervent prayer; mix and take each morning after rising, and each night before retiring, in the home with the family gathered around. Let that remedy spread throughout the neighborhood and it will cure that tired feeling in the worst rundown church and make it sing and shout so loud you can hear it for miles. We Mennonites have family worship. We live our religion in our homes and lives six days in the week, and bring it to church with us on the seventh day, so we can all unite in worship and singing and Bible study, and present it to the world. Too many communities keep their religion for show only one day in the week, in the church, and they have none in their homes. That is why their churches are weak."

The pastor, who, by the way, was a fellow student at Wadsworth Seminary with myself, learning Christianity at the feet of Prof. C. J.

van der Smissen, gave the following answer to the question: Quote "And why has your church grown so"?

"It goes back to the family," he answered slowly, "to Bible study and worship in the home, to the children. We are commanded to search the Scriptures at home to teach them to our children. We Mennonites obey that command, and we are blessed for it. You will find it in Deut. 6:7, 'And thou shalt teach them (the Scriptures) diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them (the Scriptures) when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.' Any church membership that obeys that command will live and grow."

Suggestions as to ways and means: While in general there ought to be system in family worship as well as in church worship, each family must have its option as to time and details. It might be the first thing in the morning, the last in the evening, or any time between best suited for the gathering of all the members of the household. The services may consist of a Bible passage, brief comments and application, prayer, song; participated in by the different members of the family. Helps: The daily readings on the Sunday School lesson and C. E. topics furnish good portions of Scripture, while many religious papers, as Sunday School Times, Christian Herald, Revelation, etc., furnish suitable notes. Of devotional books arranged for every day of the year, there are many — six, which I will name, lie on my table as I write: 1. "Bogatzky's Golden Treasury," 2. "Every Day," 3. "Courage and Consolation," 4. "Mornings With Jesus," 5. "Streams in the Desert," 6. "Gossner's Schatzkaestchen." I can still hear Father van der Smissen on January 1, 1870, read the passage with comments indicated for the opening of the new year, in the last named book, Isa. 63:16; Acts 4:12, followed with his impressive reading of hymn:

"Ein Nam' ist mir ins Herz geschrieben,
Den keine Zunge wuerdig spricht,
Auch wenn mich alles will betrueben,
Ist er mir Salbe, Trost und Licht.
So oft ich Jesum hoere nennen,
Will mir das Herz im Leibe brennen."

Often the lessons of good or evil of a matter are learned by contrast — here are a few: Heading of a column in the paper: "A frightful home tragedy, father shoots daughters, kills himself." Contrast with: "A pleasant home service, father leads in family worship, mother offers prayer, children sing. — Another: After a night's carousal with drinking, the drunken driver runs the car over the bank into the river, all drowned. Contrast with: A cheerful home gathering of parents, children and grandchildren closes with a season of prayer and song. All returned to their homes happy.

It certainly must augment the joy of any pastor to know, in the closing years of his ministry, that the families of his charge have regular family worship in some form, thus safeguarding the rising generation against the temptations lying in their pathway, and that young couples in starting new homes do not forget the family altar. The revival and survival of church life, the arrest in the decay of our national life, the purity and peace of our social life depend upon Christian home life.

The Christian religion is the cement that binds society together; the granite pedestal of Liberty; the strong backbone of the social system. In closing, let me appeal: Make way for the King of Kings; prepare in the nation clean hearts and renew right spirit within. Consecrate the home to God; and the church and the nation will be blessed. Allen M. Fretz.

THE CALL TO SERVICE

Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. Preach! Instruct! Exhort! It is indeed a great privilege to be in the Master's service. We are sure that God has a plan for each individual life. It often means much time spent in prayer and communion with our Father in order that we may find our place in life.

We can not all be missionaries, but we can do our duty in letting our light shine right in our own community. The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few. Sad, indeed! The night cometh when no man can work. We are studying in our Sunday School lessons this quarter about Peter who left all and followed Jesus when he received the call. May we learn a lesson from Peter that we may also have that strong faith that was found in the apostle.

Those of us who have heard this call and have experienced the fellowship and communion with Christ, let us indeed be a blessing to those we come in contact with, that we may not be as the blind leading the blind, not as stumbling blocks in the pathway of others, but stepping

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance........$1.50
Foreign........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

stones to lead them to higher things, that we many not only have the form of godliness, but that we may have the power also, rooted and grounded in the faith that we may be able to withstand the temptations that come to us.

The call to service means to be a witness for Him to be glad when the opportunity presents itself to confess our Lord before men, not to be ashamed of the Gospel, for it is the power of God unto salvation. The call to service is to present our bodies a living sacrifice, wholly acceptable unto God, which is our reasonable service, cleansed and purged, and meet for the Master's use. We cannot serve two masters, we must be for or against God. The Lord hath said, "Thou art neither cold nor hot, but lukewarm; therefore I will spue thee out of my mouth." We must walk the separated path if we would please God, be a peculiar people, zealous of good works, that we may hear the words, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." In being in the Master's service, let us not seek for the praise of men, but that whatsoever we do in word or deed may be done to the glory of God.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path." Mrs. Wilmer Martin, Quakertown, Pa.

AN ORPHAN BECOMES HOUSEFATHER

(By John Thiessen)

People of India very often despise an orphan, because, they say, "he is not born into anything." As a whole it appears as though India has little or no confidence in itself to learn anything. A person must "be born" into something. The blacksmith's boy must of necessity become a blacksmith, because he is born into blacksmith work. Such is the tendency all along the line. So often non-Christian Indians wonder why missionaries bother about orphans. Even some people in western countries question whether it is worth while to spend energy, time, and money with orphans. Such ideas are held in spite of the great work of a George Mueller and others.

It is true that orphans are not all a success in this world. But neither are all other people a success. Sometimes the very best of homes fail with a child. In our boys' orphanage in Birra, India, we also have had failures. I could draw a discouraging picture about some of the boys who have gone wrong. Though it pains us that some boys have gone wrong, we should not remain with that painful feeling. There have been boys who have become men and are a credit to Christ. One of these is Simon Petrus, who was picked up as an orphan in one of the famines a number of years ago. He was always looked upon as a sort of a "non-plus" when he was a small boy in the orphanage. He usually was goaded into doing the dirty work. But he always was faithful, and did what he was told. Already towards the end of our first term of service I began to notice that there was something in the boy. Sometimes, when I asked one of our leading Indian brethren to supervise a group of rowdy boarding boys in a piece of work, like cleaning the yard, I soon heard nothing but a lot of screaming and yelling, but no work was done. Then I sent Simon to try his hands at it, and lo, in a few minutes everything was quiet and everybody was busy at work. Incidents like that happened quite a few times, and I soon saw that Simon had a control over others which his superiors did not have.

This year in the beginning of May, our former housefather, Jacob, left to go to take care of his own farm. I was wondering and praying whom I should get as housefather. For several days I took care of all details myself. One noon while walking in the blazing sunlight, it came to me like a voice saying, "Try Simon." I did. And now for three months he has been housefather and it appears as though he will make a success of it. The boys respect him and listen to him, better than they did to the old housefather, who was a mature man. For the occasion, God has His leader ready, no matter from where he might be picked up. One cannot help but think of 1 Cor. 1:26-28. Yes, orphans can become something, if they give Christ a chance.

EVANGELISM IN ITS BIBLICAL SETTING AS TO SPIRIT AND METHOD

By J. D. Graber, Dhamtari, India

(Conclusion)

I believe that before we can properly appreciate what should be our attitude toward a lost world we must see every soul utterly and eternally lost without Christ. Paul spoke sympathetically of their religious zeal but he did not compromise the message. In the end he came to the heart of the Gospel, the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Again, in New Testament evangelism we see

The Spirit of Venturing Faith

When Jesus sent out His disciples He gave them this command: "As ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils." But now comes the portion of the text to which I want to call special attention here: "Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves; for the workman is worthy of his meat." Here was already Jesus giving His disciples a practical lesson in faith that ventures out, trusting only God. Here, as it were, was struck the keynote of the spirit of faith that was to characterize the evangelistic activity of the early church.

One of the outstanding characteristics of the Apostle Paul is his unfaltering faith, faith that trusted God and faith in the sufficiency and efficacy of the Gospel he carried. He said, "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation." I believe that any missionary who goes out desiring to follow the spirit of the New Testament must have to the fullest degree this unfaltering faith that the Gospel of Jesus Christ is adequate for every need. He must feel with Paul that he can recommend it unreservedly for he has experienced both in his own heart and has seen it in the lives of others that it is indeed the power of God unto salvation.

Young people sometimes ask us, "What has the Church to offer? What may we reasonably expect the Church to do for us"? It is a common question among those who are looking forward to a definite work in the Church. The only answer I can give is that the Church has nothing to offer in a definite way. Prepare yourself. Go to school. Spend hundreds, perhaps thousands, of dollars of money, and years of time, but the Church cannot promise you definitely that she will find you a place after you have completed your preparation. I asked the young people last week, "Is that a discouraging outlook to you"? They said, "No! it only challenges the best that is in us." I believe one of the best ways to dampen spiritual ardor is to have everything absolutely hedged; everything insured and guaranteed. That is not the spirit of New Testament evangelism, for there we see believers venturing out by faith and trusting God one step at a time, knowing that He will direct all the way.

George Mueller is a modern example of this spirit. It is said of him that God raised him up in order that men of this generation might yet know that God answers prayer. The China Inland Mission began as a pure venture of faith because Hudson Taylor saw that organized missionary societies were working largely on the fringes of China, in the coast cities and provinces. Today the C. I. Mission has on its rolls more than thirteen hundred missionaries, a standing monument to the fact that God honors faith. That is the spirit of New Testament evangelism.

I want merely to mention one more of these underlying attitudes which I see in Scriptural evangelism and then hasten on to a consideration of method. They endured

Hardship and Suffering

In Acts 20:24 Paul says, "But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the Gospel of the Grace of God." We recall also the resume this same Apostle gives of his own life, how he was shipwrecked, stoned and dragged out of the city for dead, in prison and in stocks, beaten with stripes, and then how he completes the list by saying, "I count it all joy that I am counted worthy to suffer these things for the Gospel of Jesus Christ." These things were not mere accidents in his life, for at his very conversion the Lord told Ananias, "I will show him how great things he must suffer for my name's sake." He had accepted them as an integral part of the life of a faithful witness. To the young man Timothy he wrote, "Endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ."

I believe that the Gospel of Jesus Christ, in its evangelistic aspect, is challenging people to suffer for the Kingdom of God. I sometimes feel that our present day missionary work is too easy. Compare our work with that of the early days of foreign missions. They went out in sailing vessels; we go out in steamships. They went to countries they did not know; we go with passports and visas demanding admission, for we carry the credentials of a powerful government in our hands. They went to countries inhabited by hostile natives. Some were eaten by cannibals, some were thrown into prison. Some were shipwrecked and were never again heard of; many died of tropical diseases. We have learned that quinine is the cure for malaria, have serums and vaccines to combat plagues and cholera, and medically trained men and women have preceded us to look after our physical needs and so we are spared many of these dangers and hardships. I believe it is right that we make every provision to conserve strength and personnel, but I believe that we must not attempt to take the idea of sacrifice out of our missionary program. The suffering Church has ever been the growing Church and whenever the Church has lost this spirit she decayed.

In the early centuries "The blood of martyrs became the seed of the Church," which is to say that a literal sacrifice of life was the very essence of the propagation of the Church. This has always been an immutable spiritual law and whenever the Church has evangelized she has paid the price of human self-sacrifice.

I have yet to say a few words regarding

Method of Scriptural Evangelism

As I studied again the Scriptures trying to discover there some word as to the methods used in the work of evangelization, I was impressed with the secondary place that is there ever given to method. Spirit-filled personality is ever the most important factor. Wherever we find a man or woman under the direction of the Spirit of God there we have an evangelistic movement. That is to say, evangelism in the scriptures centers in persons and not in methods. Given a man of prayer we have as a result spiritual accomplishment; given a Spirit-filled believer we see evidence of the release of divine power. We may have organizations that are efficient and may be using the latest improved methods, but if we do not have these organizations and methods vitalized by the presence of Spirit-filled personality nothing of lasting value will be accomplished. So the New Testament evangelism has as its center, as I said in the beginning, the Holy Spirit, and, as I can now say more specifically, men and women who are Spirit-filled, and around them the work of evangelism has ever gone forward.

The first fact we note when we consider the methods of New Testament evangelism is that of their continual

Guidance by the Holy Spirit

This may appear as a repetition, for I have already spoken of the place of the Holy Spirit in this work. But I spoke more directly of the power of the indwelling Spirit; here I am thinking of the guidance of the Spirit. In spite of all our organizations, Boards, committees, councils, division of territory and boundary lines, we dare not lose the clear consciousness that in all this work we are moving at the direction of the Spirit. I can testify from my own experience, as you can from yours; we could cite illustrations from the lives of other Christians demonstrating the fact that God opens doors, closes doors, leads, directs, shapes circumstances and in myriads of ways makes His will momentarily known to those who seek with a pure heart to follow. We believe in the kind of guidance described by Rev. Shoemaker of New York when he says, "I believe in the kind of guidance that consists of a surrendered life at one end and the living God at the other." In New Testament evangelism this consciousness of the continual guidance of God is strongly marked. Paul gives expression to it when he says, after having gone to Macedonia, "Assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us to preach the Gospel unto them."

The second consideration by way of method is the fact that in seeming contrast to this utter dependence on God for guidance the New Testament evangelism is characterized by a

Strategic Purpose

We must be careful not to fall into the error of believing that dependence on God means careless planning and slipshod methods. We have people in our day who have simply wandered over the face of the earth preaching the Word. They did nothing of lasting value, established no permanent work, and yet they claimed to be following the example of the Apostle Paul. When we study the work of Paul as a whole we see that it presents to us a composite picture; we see in it design and purpose. People who have studied the geography of his time will tell us that the cities in which he preached the Gospel were all strategic centers. There he established self-propagating and outreaching churches. He had visualized the whole known world gathered into the Christian church, and he set about the accomplishment of this task in an orderly manner following strategic centers and seeking to launch the bread of life on the currents of trade, travel and expansion that were moving through the Roman Empire of his day. He said, "I am going to Jerusalem, regardless of the fate that awaits me there, to preach the Gospel at the heart and center of Judaism." And again he says, "I want to preach the Gospel in Rome also, at the capitol of the world, so that from that political center the ferment of the Gospel will find its way into the far-flung provinces of the Empire, carried there by officials of the government, traders, travelers, soldiers, sailors,—by everyone or anyone of that vast throng that is ever moving in and out of the imperial city."

We have further to note that

Preaching and Charitable Work

hold a large place in this early evangelistic method. They were commanded by Christ to preach the Word, and so they went everywhere preaching the Word. They no doubt preached eloquently by word of mouth, in fact we have a number of recorded sermons in the New Testament that are remarkable in their setting forth of the Gospel truths, but we see also that they preached just as eloquently by the witness of their lives. Their suffering and martyrdom were powerful sermons. It is more than interesting that the Greek word for witness is "Marturia" from which our English word "Martyr" has been directly derived.

They were filled, not only with a zeal for the truth of God, but with the compassion of Christ. They were constrained whenever they met human need to meet it in the name and by the power of Christ. He had commanded His disciples to heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, cast out devils; this they were doing as an integral part of their evangelistic endeavor.

The Apostle Paul collected money from the churches for the purpose of helping those who were less fortunate. Permit me to read II Cor. 9:11, "Being enriched in everything to all bountifulness, which causeth through us thanksgiving to God. For the administration of this service not only supplieth the want of the saints, but is abundant also by many thanksgivings to God. . . Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift." From the context we gather that this unspeakable gift has reference not only to Jesus Christ but also to these gifts which God's people had sacrificed to give. It becomes clear then that through the distribution of this charity, and I believe some of it was distributed to non-Christians, many were made to thank God for the unspeakable gift of money, but more significantly for the unspeakable gift of His Son. Preaching the Gospel has always meant living the Gospel as well.

The last thing I want to say regarding method is that the missionaries on the field worked out the problems occasioned by the spread of the Gospel into new circumstances and among strange peoples with the home church by

Mutual Consultation

The apostles returned to Jerusalem, the Mother Church. The Church there had her ideas, no doubt, especially a certain section of the church, on just how that Gospel was to be preached abroad, to whom it was to be preached, and held definite opinions as to just how this was all to come about. But when they were convinced that the work of the missionaries was directed by the Holy Spirit and that the blessing of God was upon it they were willing to say, "The Holy Spirit must have His way." They became willing to change their opinions and attitudes when necessary and to work out together with the missionaries the problems which the spread of the Gospel created, for the expansion of the Gospel into strange countries among strange people created problems, in that day even as it does in our own day. May the solution lie for us, as it did for them, in a full submission to the leading of the Holy Spirit. —Gospel Herald.

QUOTED WISDOM

Excerpts from addresses given at Founders' Week, Moody Bible Institute

"The story of man in the Bible is the record of man made, man unmade, and man remade." —Max I. Reich, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"Many persons are members of the church as an organization who are not members of the church as an organism."—Rev. Will H. Houghton, D. D., Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"We possess the Holy Spirit, but does He possess us? As the 'well of water' He desires to permeate our lives."—Rev. Herbert Lockyer, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"We have had plenty of fundamentalism in the last decade or so, but the world has not been overly impressed because it has been more an orthodoxy of the head than of the heart."—Rev. W. W. Ayer, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"If God would answer every prayer for power it would mean disaster. Wisdom must precede power. Jesus first grew in wisdom—power later."—Max I. Reich, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"The noblest life is often the product of sanctified tribulation."—Rev. Herbert Lockyer, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"Only those doctrines count which reach the bloodstream of our being and get built into the bone and fiber of our moral and spiritual living."—Rev. W. W. Ayer, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"Will you pray—'Lord, take the strings of my inward life, and the keyboard of my outward life and, putting all into harmony, produce the music all-sublime' "?—Rev. Herbert Lockyer, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"This call to consecration is not all for the younger men and women. Some of you are too old to go to the ends of the earth with the saving message. Will you older Christians say—'Here am I, use me! My money against their lives; my prayer with them in partnership"!—Rev. Will H. Houghton, D. D., Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"A native of India said, 'Christians should be huts with lights shining through the door!'—even so—let your light so shine." — Captain James E. Mallis, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

"It is imperative to have surrendered bodies, seeing that they form the media of the Spirit's operations."—Rev. Herbert Lockyer, Founder's Week Conference, Moody Bible Institute.

SPREADING SCANDAL

How easily thoughts and tongues turn to gossip, gossip that is very often of a character that does great harm to those of whom it is spoken. Here is a striking warning against this sin.

A story is told of a woman who freely used her tongue to the scandal of others and made confession to her priest of what she had done. He gave her a ripe thistle-top, and he told her to go out in various directions and scatter the seeds one by one. Wondering at the penance, she obeyed, and when the task was completed, returned to her confessor. To her amazement he bade her go back and gather up again the seeds she had scattered. And when she objected that this would be impossible, he replied that it would be even more difficult to call back again and destroy all the gossip and scandal she had circulated about others. Any thoughtless, careless child can scatter a handful of thistle seed before the wind, but the strongest and wisest cannot gather them again.

CORRESPONDENCE

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. Rev. and Mrs. Hostetler, Mrs. C. D. Naffzifer, and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Helwig are attending the course in Bible study conducted by Revs. Weaver, Hartzler, and Sommers, in Danvers.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Donelson are the parents of a son, born Saturday, January 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Brenneman entertained members of the Christian Endeavor Society at their home, Tuesday evening, January 8.

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. C. D. Naffziger, February 7. Sewing was done for missionary work in Africa.

Mr. A. I. Brenneman attended the business meeting of the Mennonite Hospital in Bloomington and gave a report of the meeting Sunday morning, February 3.

Gertrude Brenneman.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

A DAY WELL SPENT

One glance most kind, which felt like sunshine where
If you sit down at set of sun
And count the deeds that you have done,
And counting, find
One self-denying act, one word that eased the heart of him that heard;
One glance most kind, which felt like sunshine where it went,
Then you may count that day well spent.

But if through all the livelong day
You've eased no heart, by yea or nay,
If through it all you've nothing done that you can trace
That brought the sunshine to one face,
No act most small that helped some soul and nothing cost,
Then count that day as worse than lost.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR ON THE MARCH

By Danuel A. Poling

To travel more than eighteen thousand miles in less than sixty days to and from across Europe, is something of an experience in itself; but in these same days of the past summer to meet with Christian Endeavorers in fifteen countries and to catch from the inspiration of what is unmistakably a united advance for Christ and the Church unequalled within the knowledge of the writer, is an even greater experience. Under the moonlit skies of Mediterranean Spain and high among the Italian Alps, on the old Hungarian plain and by the Rhine, in Paris and London, in Ireland and in Norway, everywhere the message was the same — our universal message of loyalty, fellowship and service.

One thing in particular these often widely separated Christian Endeavor unions and groups have in common—evangelizing fervor. Winning young people to Jesus Christ Himself is the supreme business of Christian Endeavor overseas. Whether among the White Russians of Poland or in the Irish Free State, Christian Endeavorers are primarily concerned with the winning of youth to Him whom they acknowledge and adore as Savior and Lord, and with whom as Captain and Comrade they stand everywhere ready to crusade for a new world.

In the majority of these countries "to be Christian" still means to follow another than the popular flag of religion, still means to invite social ostracism and even economic boycott. "To be Christian" still means to choose "hardness for Christ's sake."—C. E. World Quarterly.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

March 17, 1935

Managing Ourselves

I Timothy 4:12-16

This is in reality a psychological problem, but it also strikes at the very root of religion. Psychology at its best is not an enemy to religion, but if rightly understood it is a helpmate to religion. The ancient philosopher said, "Know thyself." That is the secret of a truly successful life, for the individual must learn to know himself and by the aid of an overpowering ideal to overcome the worst that seeks for dominance. We may say that all of life consists of that struggle. As long as man is in the flesh he must ever be a fighter, his higher spiritual nature must seek to dominate his lower fleshly and sensual nature.

Roughly speaking, we may divide the normal life into three periods. Childhood is the period in which the habits which are the elements of character become set in specific lines and patterns by a somewhat conscious learning process. Adolescence is the period in which character goes through a general melting down and fu-sing together, from which there emerges, if the operation is successful, an organized conscious self unified around some dominant interest or purpose. Mature life is the period when a man either becomes set in a fixed mold, determined by his specific place in the social order, or if he is dynamic he will adopt certain principles and methods of self-discipline which will keep him malleable and bring him more and more into harmony with his chosen ideal.

Within every normal human being there are present three latent powers, the emotional nature, the intellectual powers, and the will. By the emotions we mean the desires motivated by fear or love. We see it expressed in loyalty to parents, we see its mighty power evident in the conversion experience when the child gives his heart and life in full consecration to Jesus Christ and determines to live a life well-pleasing to his heavenly Father. The intellect consists of the reasoning powers, which seeks to pass on all things. We all like to do things in a reasonable manner, and it is right that we should use our minds, for God has given us these powers to use, only let us not become so sophisticated that we think we know all things and that those things which our small minds cannot comprehend can surely not be true. The will in turn is the power which whips the various members and functions of the body into some definite channel. In the ideally formed Christian character there must be a perfect balance between the emotions, intellect, and will. When this is not so, you will find there the fanatic, the cold rationalist, or the weak, wishy-washy soul, or the person with wrong motivations.

Religion as centered in Jesus Christ, the highest revelation and the Great Ideal, takes man into the presence of what is noblest and most awe-inspiring, kindles in him new loyalties, reverences, purposes and enthusiasms, adjusts him to what is deepest in the nature of the universe, and so releases floods of warm energy within him, which often sweep away those obstructions which otherwise would tend to draw him increasingly away from God. Jesus Christ becomes the overmastering ideal. If He is accepted by the emotional nature, if He is accepted as the most reasonable unifier and purposeful motive in life, and if He will in turn direct all the channels of life toward that one goal, which is namely to be loyal to Him and to help bring about the greater fulfillment of the Kingdom of God here upon this earth, then that life will be truly Christian.

Questions

1. Is life naturally unified or is life a continual struggle? Explain your answer.
2. Wherein lies the power of an example in the making of a life? What are some of the most powerful examples for good?
3. What is evil? What does it seek to do in a life?
4. How may every evil be overcome?
5. What is meant by the intellect, emotion, and will? How can they be controlled by Jesus Christ, the Great Ideal?
6. What part does habit play in the managing of our lives?
7. To what extent does managing ourselves determine our success or failure in the Christian life? Can we possibly manage ourselves without the aid of Jesus Christ?

March 24, 1935

Why Join The Church?

Ephesians 1:22-23; 2:19-22

This is a very practical topic for discussion. Statistics tell us that only one out of every three persons is a nominal church member and that seven out of ten children never get to any Sunday School or church. We are living in a period of doubt, indifference, and cynicism, and even many who are members of a church are not certain that there is any value in such an affiliation. And certainly there can be but little value in church membership unless there be a heart relationship and an inner loyalty to our Lord and Master who came "that we might have life and have it more abundantly."

There is perhaps nothing better for the challenging and clarification of our thinking on this important topic than was written by that eminent Christian gentleman, Frank Ober, which appeared a few years ago in "Association Men."

Why I Should Join The Church

1. I ought to belong to the church because I ought to be better than I am. Henry Ward Beecher once said, "The church is not a gallery for the exhibition of eminent Christians, but a school for the education of imperfect ones."

2. I ought to belong to the church because of what I can give to it and do through it, as well as because of what I may get out of it. The church is not a dormitory for sleepers; it is an institution of workers. It is not a rest camp; it is a front-line trench.

3. I ought to belong to the church because every man ought to pay his debts and do his share towards discharging the obligation of society. The church has not only been the bearer of good news of personal salvation; it has been and is the supreme uplifting and conserving agency without which "civilization would lapse into barbarism and press its way to perdition."

4. I ought to belong to the church because of memories—memories of things I can never forget; memories of faces that will never fade; memories of vows that are the glory of youth.

5. I ought to belong to the church because of of hope—hope that lives when promises are dead; hope that paves the way for progress; hope that visions peace and social justice; hope for time and hope for eternity—the great hope that casts its anchor behind Jesus Christ.

6. I ought to belong to the church because of the strong men in it who need reinforcing, the weak men in it who need encouraging, the rascals in it who need rebuking. If I say that I am not good enough my humility recommends me. If I sit in the seat of the scornful, my inactivity condemns me.

7. I ought to belong to the church, but not until I am ready to join a going concern; not until I am willing to become an active partner with Jesus Christ.

Questions

1. What does it mean to be a Christian?
2. Why is it not enough to be a Christian and remain outside of the church?
3. After these nineteen centuries why do not all men belong to the church of Jesus Christ?
4. Is it the purpose of the church to save men from a life of service or both?
5. Why should a man belong to church?
6. What can Christian Endeavor do to enlist youth for Christ and the church?

"Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire, called conscience."
—George Washington.

It is love that asks, that seeks, that knocks, that finds, and that is faithful to what it finds.
—St. Augustine.

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Illinois

March 17, 1935

Getting Along With Ourselves

Rom. 7:14-25; 8:1

"I am myself my own commander."

Pre-prayer

That God may help us to see ourselves in the true light and give us power to do that which he would have us do.

Physical

First, we must know ourselves before we can get along with our own self. There are two parts of our being to be taken into consideration, the physical and the spiritual. The physical self can be seen by ourselves and others, but our real self, our spiritual, can not be seen. The following lines express our real self:

"I have a room where into no one enters
Save I myself alone.
There sits a blessed memory on a throne,
There my life centers."

Paul in our scripture lesson gives us a description of the struggle in man between the body and the spirit. He says that when he would do good, evil is always present. We should know ourselves, and especially find out our physical weakness. Our body can be compared to a machine through which the spirit expresses itself and if our machinery is weak it is not capable of doing the best work. Let us put first things first, for we cannot serve God and mammon. So our bodies can either be our servants, doing good, or our masters, taking us into sin.

Spiritual

Man alone possesses three qualities, which, if put to the right use, can become a wonderful blessing to him and if not, a terrible curse. We have a mind through which we are able to learn. After knowing, we have a will with which we are able to make a decision or choice. These two are of a great benefit to us, but too often we throw these aside and let our emotions guide us. Emotions give color to life, but can drive us to do evil as well as good. We must not let our feelings govern our entire life, but let knowledge and will join in, in making our decisions.

Discussion

Do what is right.—So many times we have been at places where we have felt that we should do a certain thing, yet, oh, we would so much rather not, or maybe we would rather do something else. What causes this struggle in ourselves? Are our lives affected by the decision? Do we often wish that we were like certain of our talented friends? Does this do any good? What should we do since we are as we are?

Keep our conscience clear. — What do we mean by conscience? How can we keep our conscience clear? What are some things that are apt to dull it?

Yield not to temptation. — Are we always aware of temptation when it comes to us? When we see temptation ahead of us, should we walk deliberately into it or should we go around? If going around, does this mean we are cowards? Are we sure if we walk into it that we are able to be victorious? Do we have to grow in overcoming temptation, or are we able to overcome any temptation, any time? How did Jesus meet temptation? Do we follow His example?

Overcome the flesh—give the spirit a chance. Read Gal. 5:17. Are the works of the flesh contrary to the works of the spirit? Gal. 5:16. How can we overcome the flesh? What are the fruits of the spirit?

Yield to God. Rom. 6:12, 13.—Will we find it easier to get along with ourselves if we surrender to God? Why?

Let us accept ourselves as we are, for there are good and bad points in all of us. Let us use our abilities to improve ourselves and the world in which we live. Let us plan our time and life so that we may be of the greatest good to all mankind. Let us learn to control ourselves, so we may not be a hindrance to those around us, as well as ourselves. Let us be wide awake, so that we may grasp the opportunities that come our way and live every moment to the full. Let us improve ourselves by choosing only the best of everything in life. Let us forget self and many of our problems will disappear. Let us give ourself to the best Friend we have and life will be worth the living.

March 24, 1935

Getting Along With Others

Rom. 14:13-19

Be A Friend

Be a friend. You don't need money:
Just a disposition sunny;
Just the wish to help another
Get along some way or other;
Just a kindly hand extended
Out to one who's unbefriended;
Just the will to give or lend,
This will make you someone's friend.

Be a friend. You don't need glory.
Friendship is a simple story.
Pass by trifling errors blindly,
Gaze on honest effort kindly,
Cheer the youth who's bravely trying,
Pity him who's sadly sighing;
Just a little labor spend
On the duties of a friend.

Be a friend. The pay is bigger
(Though not written by a figure)
Than is earned by people clever
In what's merely self-endeavor.
You'll have friends instead of neighbors
For the profits of your labors;
You'll be richer in the end
Than a prince, if you're a friend.

—Edgar A. Guest.

Pre-prayer

That we have friends among Thy friends,
Our Master, is our joy and strength;
We thank Thee, that all who walk in Thy dear company
Have fellowship one with another.

Think On These

This life would not be worth living if each person lived solely for himself.

The more we experience of God's presence the more sensitive we become to human needs.

Neighborliness is the cream that rises on top of the milk of human kindness.

A bad neighbor can't be a good Christian, nor a poor Christian a good neighbor.

Selfishness of every kind is harmful and shuts out the help and love of others from our lives.

The selfish soul becomes a dead sea full of brine and salt where no good fruits can grow.

God's constant war is against self life.

Christ taught us the life of sacrifice and service to others. Let us not thwart His purpose.

A friend is, as it were, a second self.

Chance makes our parents, but choice makes our friends.

The only way to have a friend is to be one.

A friend must not be injured, even in jest.

What you would not have done to yourselves, never do unto others.

If you wish to know yourself, observe how others act.

If you wish to understand others, look into your own heart.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

"Hymns Every Junior Should Know"

It seems surprising, when one considers the interest and attention Christ gave to little children, that there should be so few standard hymns for them. There are many Sunday School songs, published in denominational song books, but few strict hymns which every child knows.

"Jesus loves me, this I know" is probably the universal favorite of the children. It has become especially popular in foreign lands, where it has been taught in many tongues by the missionaries. The tune is by William Bradbury, a most prominent name in Sunday School music for the first half of the last century. As a music teacher, editor and composer he developed the "Sunday School song."

"When He Cometh" is loved by children more because of its singable tune than because they understand the words, although the second verse explains the figure of speech, which is based directly on Malachi 3:17, "And they shall be mine, saith the Lord, in that day when I make up my jewels." The hymn was written by a pastor of New England, Wm. Orcutt Cushing, in 1856, the tune was by George Root. Brown and Butterworth in their "Story of the Hymns and Tunes" called attention to the similarity between this "Jewel Song" and "Johnny Schmoker." They mention the fact that in Wales popular songs of all types were transformed into hymns during evangelistic meetings.

"I Think When I Read That Sweet Story Of Old," is a beautiful version of a beautiful New Testament story, and, as a children's hymn, has been sung everywhere. It was written by an English woman, Mrs. Jemima T. Luke, in a stage coach as she was traveling to visit a girl's school. She taught it to the village school, and when her father heard it, he immediately sent it away for publication. Mrs. Luke always considered this hymn to be an inspiration, for she never wrote another as fine. The third verse was added at her father's request as a missionary message. The author was a wealthy woman of great benevolence; her special interest being the education of the poor. Many tunes are used with the hymn. The old English melody, "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms" is one; the Greek melody, arranged by Bradbury and called "Sweet Story," is especially beautiful when sung in parts, and another lovely old English melody called "East Horndon" is perhaps in the widest use.

"Savior, Like A Shepherd Lead Us" is especially suitable for a baptismal service, as well as for general use by young and old. The authorship of this hymn is questioned; some books list it as anonymous, others prefer to attribute it to the probable author, Dorothy Ann Thrupp. She edited "Hymns for the Young," where the hymn first appeared in 1836, in England. There others of her children's hymns are used, but in America they are little known. The fine tune is "Bradbury" by Wm. F. Bradbury, whose success in writing enduring tunes for children's hymns is apparent from his representation in most hymn books.

C. A. Lehman, Chicago, Ill.

March 17, 1935

Topic.—Hymns Every Junior Should Know

Heb. 13:15

For a discussion of this topic, see the article in this section by Mr. Lehmann.

Plans for the Meeting

"Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness. Come before His presence with singing." You will surely want to "come before His presence with singing" as you gather in your meeting today. Have the Juniors tell stories associated with well-known hymns. They may tell how these hymns came to be written or give examples of blessing received from them. In most cases, it will be necessary for you to find the story.

You, as superintendent, may speak of the value of hymn singing. Show that it is far greater than simply introducing a pleasant change in a program. This would be a good time to begin to memorize a favorite hymn.

Questions

1. Quote a Bible verse that encourages hymn singing.
2. Mention some hymns of praise to God.
3. How does singing help in a church service?
4. Where, apart from church service, may we serve God by singing?
5. Name one hymn writer and mention something of his or her life and work.

March 24, 1935

Topic.—What Is Gambling and Why Is It Wrong?

Prov. 13:11; Jer. 17:11

What is gambling? Gambling is usually spoken of as a game of chance. It is trying to get something for little or nothing. There are many forms of gambling: Betting of all kinds, playing marbles for "keeps," slot machines into which one puts a little money hoping to be "lucky" enough to get much more, yet often getting nothing. Playing cards for prizes or money is gambling, and people very often gamble with dice.

Cards have been called the gambler's tool, for far more gambling is done with them than in any other way. Folks who know, tell us that most gamblers learned to play cards at home, perhaps when very young. A man in the saloon business once said that he believed card parties in the home did far more harm than those in regular gambling places because of that fact. There are people who would not think of gambling for money and would certainly not want to be called gamblers, who see no harm in playing cards or bunco for prizes. Someone has said that the only difference between the two is that playing in the home is like a little rattle snake and in a gambling place like a big rattle snake.

You may say, "But why is gambling wrong"? Let us see just a few reasons. We who are saved want to help other people, don't we? If we take part in gambling or games that lead to it, some friend may fall into sin because of what he has seen in us. Surely it will not be a help in leading him to Christ. Two men who were church members, yet card players, wanted a friend to join the church. When the minister spoke to this friend he answered that there was no need, for these church member friends did the same things as he.

These games often lead to cheating. If people can not win fairly, they will try another way.

Often those who gamble get into bad company and one sin leads to another. There are men and women who become so interested in gambling that they neglect home, business, and all that is worth while. Not long ago I heard of a mother who went to a card party where gambling was going on. She began to lose, but she kept hoping for better "luck" and played through the night until her money was gone. Home and children were forgotten. Gambling has also been the cause of many crimes.

Of course, not all who gamble do terrible things. There are those who do not neglect their homes. But how does one know when starting that he will not go farther than he intended or perhaps start someone else that will fall deep into sin? Gambling, like all sin, is best never begun. A good rule is found in I Thess. 5:22, "Abstain from all appearance of evil."

Plans for the Meeting

This is a timely subject and should be dealt with accordingly. Perhaps some of the parents see no harm in "social gambling." Its dangers may never have been pointed out to them. Try to picture its evils so clearly that the Juniors will determine to have nothing to do with it. Plan with much prayer that they and parents shall want to keep separate from all that appears sinful.

Questions

1. What is gambling?
2. Why should Christian boys and girls not play marbles for "keeps"?
3. What harm is there in playing cards?
4. Tell some of the evils and results of gambling.
5. Why is gambling especially wrong for a Christian?

The Lord hath more truth and light yet to break forth out of His Holy Word.

—John Robinson.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

March 10, 1935

Peter Preaches To Gentiles

Lesson Text.—Acts 10:34-48

Golden Text.—God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is acceptable to him. Acts 10:34, 35.

Since our last Sunday School lesson things of vital importance have happened in the early church and also in the life of Peter. Acts 1:8 says that the Christians shall be witnesses in Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

Christianity spreads as waves spread when a stone is thrown into a pond. First the wave is near and small, but the farther it gets away from the center the larger is the wave. So Christianity started at Jerusalem at the time of Pentecost by the preaching of Peter and the apostles, then it was taken to Judea, where the Grecian Jews heard the gospel. Soon the work became so large that helpers needed to be chosen, among whom were Stephen and Philip.

Stephen and Philip became missionaries, Stephen in the Grecian synagogues and Philip to Samaria. Peter and John went to Samaria to supervise the work of Philip. Saul, who had been persecuting the church was converted while on his way to Damascus. Peter then started on a preaching tour and came to Lydda. From Lydda he continued on his journey northwest until he came to Joppa on the sea where he stayed with Simon, the tanner.

One day while Peter was waiting for dinner at the house of Simon the tanner, he had a vision. A sheet was let down from heaven containing all manner of animals. A voice said, "Rise, Peter, slay and eat." But Peter objected because some of these animals to a Jew were considered unclean. But the voice said, "What God hath cleansed, do thou not call unclean." While Peter was wondering about the meaning of this strange vision, a knock was heard at the gate below. Some men were there to see him. These men had been directed to him by the same Spirit that brought the vision to Peter. These men were sent by Cornelius.

Cornelius was a Roman officer, a gentile. He was the captain of a company of Volunteers set by Caesar as a special guard. This Cornelius was a devout man and a true worshiper of Jehovah. There were four kinds of people in the Roman Empire who accepted Christ and came into the church. First, the Jews. These were the first converts at Jerusalem. Second, the Jewish proselytes, men who became circumcised and therefore were Jews. These came into the church in the territory of Judea and Samaria. Third, the followers of the synagogue. They were not proselytes, but attended the Jewish synagogue as gentiles. Cornelius belonged to this group. Then, finally, the gentile world that had no contact with the Jews. The church has now expanded until it opens its door to the third group. This is the point of our lesson. Cornelius had been attending the Jewish synagogue and knew the Jehovah and believed in Him. Peter is called to preach to him and his house Jesus as the Christ. This is a new experience for Peter and is contrary to his Jewish Christian belief, which was that a man must first be a Jew and second a Christian. His vision he had was to teach him that even a gentile could accept Christ without becoming a Jew. While Peter is yet preaching, the Holy Spirit comes upon Cornelius and his neighbors present, who are gentiles. The two problems Peter faces are race prejudice and second, the problem of going counter to all he believed and had been taught through all his life. The church faces the serious problem as to whether Christianity shall be primarily Jewish and therefore limited or be universal and the Gospel for the whole world.

How does this lesson apply to our race problem?

What attitude should I take to new situations and facts?

What are the most effective methods of eliminating prejudice?

The living God still speaks His word of truth to the hearts of living men.

The more we realize our own weakness and insufficiency, the more we will depend upon the ONE who is our unfailing resource.

—A. E. Mills.

March 17, 1935

Peter Delivered From Prison

Lesson Text.—Acts 12:5-17

Golden Text.—Prayer was made earnestly of the church unto God for him. Acts 12:5.

This lesson brings to our attention the persecution which the early church endured and on the other hand the fellowship of the group during persecution. The church is continuing to expand. The church in Antioch of Syria has been established and Barnabas is asked to be its pastor. Because of the large field of service there he seeks for help. He goes to Tarsus and gets Saul who had been converted some years before, and brings him to Antioch. This is the real beginning of that great missionary adventure of which Paul was the leader.

At this same time Herod Agrippa I, who wanted to be a popular king among the Jews, seizes James and Peter. He kills James, who becomes the first martyr among the apostles, and puts Peter in prison to kill him at some later time. Peter is guarded with sixteen soldiers and is chained to two of them. While Peter was sleeping he is awakened by a vision and is led out of the prison through the power of God and comes to the home of Mary, Mark's mother. When Peter came the church was encouraged and the Word of God grew and multiplied.

The method of the church by which she was to expand in spite of persecution, was the testing of its members. There was no distinction between laity and clergy, all went forth to be witnesses and heralds of the good news of the kingdom. A handful of plain people without arms or social prestige and with the Jews and the Roman Empire arrayed against them, went forth to conquer the world for Christ. Their great help came in the form of "mighty works" as the one in our lesson which gave faith and courage to the Christians and dumfounded the enemy. We must always remember that the purpose of the miracles in the Acts is to reveal the unique power of the Holy Spirit which came to each disciple on the day of Pentecost. These "works" attracted attention, awakened inquiry, and opened the hearts of multitudes to faith in Christ.

The other great truth of this lesson is the spirit revealed in Mary's house. The love of Christ glowing in the hearts of these people called forth a love for their fellow disciples, a unity of spirit, a joy in fellowship, and a power produced through prayer in the spirit of common faith and purpose. These disciples, menaced continually by a hostile environment, opposed to the pagan practices of their day, and motivated by the love which came from their faith in a saving Lord, leaned heavily on each other and prayer with such a spirit was effective.

What was the effect of persecution on the early church?

Who in the early church were responsible for the proclamation of the Gospel?

What are some of the things which imprison a soul today?

What is the relation of the church's prayer life to its program of service?

WAR AS A RACKET

War as a racket for profit is hit by Major General Smedley D. Butler, retired commander in chief of the United States Marines, in "War Is A Racket," to be issued March 15th by Round Table Press.

"For a great many years as a soldier I had a suspicion that war was a racket," he says. "Not until I retired to civil life did I fully realize it. Now that I see the international war clouds again gathering as they are today, I must face it and speak out."

Defining a racket as "something which is not what it seems to be to the majority of people, conducted for the benefit of the very few at the expense of the very many," General Butler enumerates the profits and the costs of war.

"'Out of war a few people make huge profits. The general public shoulders the bill," he declares.

Citing his personal experiences in the Marine Corps, "Uncle Sam's debt collectors," General Butler presents a three point plan for controlling war by taking the profit out of it, by giving only those who must do the fighting the power to declare war, and by restricting armed forces to purely defensive purposes.

Little services for others that we fretfully think of as hindrances, may be God's highest work for the day.—Sel.

JOTTINGS

The Executive Committee of Mission Societies of the General Conference reports as follows for the month of January: For Foreign Missions, $170.57; for Home Missions, $72.50; Ex. Com. News and Notes, Expenses, $18.60; for India, $409.70; for China, $234.00; Miscellaneous, $51.00. Grand Total, $956.43.

Receipts of the Board of Foreign Missions of the General Conference for the month of January, $8,475.25. Balance in Bank, January 1, $4,195.88. Paid on orders, $9,419.82. Remitted direct to India, $300.36. Balance in Bank, February 1, $2950.95.

The regular meeting of the Mission Workers of the West Zion church, Moundridge, Kansas, was unusual in that husbands, brothers, and friends were special guests. The main topic discussed at the meeting was "With Missionary Men Around the World."

Rev. W. S. Gottshall of East Swamp, Pa., and a party of twenty-five held service in the American Rescue Home, Allentown, Pa., recently. The subject of Rev. Gottshall's talk was "David and Goliath." A substantial contribution of cash and canned goods was given to the home by the visitors. The workers of the Home will make a return visit to the East Swamp church and render a program on the last Sunday of February.

The Year Book of the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, is in the editor's hands. It contains the usual information concerning finances and membership. The church is fortunate in having a number of organizations active in its work. They are the Sunday School, the Women's Missionary Society, the Dorcas Society, a Senior, an Intermediate, and a Junior C. E. Society in two sections, all functioning. The total present membership is 371, thirteen having been added during the past year. Rev. Paul Whitmer is pastor.

The meeting of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference is scheduled for February 19, and is to be held in Newton, Kansas. The Board calls attention to the need of intercessory prayer, which has upheld the work so far and must do so in the future. The biggest problem before the Board is the furlough expense. So many of our furloughed missionaries should be returned to the field or should come home, that it looks almost like a mountain to the Board. But prayer can remove mountains, says Jesus, the prayer of faith. Thanks to the donor, the necessary traveling money has already been received for one couple.

Rev. G. T. Soldner of the Foreign Mission Board writes: "The Board voted that I shall have charge of the Foreign Missionary Display at the session of the General Conference, to be held in California in August. — — It is my desire to enlist every minister in the Conference as a part of my committee to assist me in locating and bringing to the Conference such material matters of correspondence or articles for exhibit that concern or have to do with the beginnings of any of our missionary endeavors. Pictures, charts, etc., concerning beginnings and development of the work are highly desirable." Persons who have such material will kindly notify Rev. G. T. Soldner, Goshen, Indiana.

Rev. C. H. van der Smissen of Newton, Kansas, was a recent visitor to his old home, Berne, Indiana. For many years he edited the Bundesbote, the German organ of the General Conference, printed at Berne.

Immediately following the meeting of the General Conference at Upland, Calif., August 4-11, a young people's retreat will be held August 12-16. It is to be held at Camp LaVerne, Jenks Lake, in the San Bernardino Mountains, California.

Catechetical classes are being organized in a number of churches. Most of those attending, it is expected, will enter into the responsibilities of church membership this coming spring. The greatly improved catechism that has recently been issued by the Mennonite Book Concern will be greatly appreciated when used.

The Mennonite Home for the Aged, located at Frederick, Pa., is founded and maintained by the Eastern District Conference. It is well equipped for all the needs of such an institution, having electricity and modern plumbing. Since it is conveniently located, most of the churches of this conference are within easy traveling distance. This makes it possible for churches to take turns each Sunday in conducting services.

The women's organizations of the Eastern District support an Orphanage Society that endeavors to do what its name implies—care for the needs of orphans. Business is transacted at an annual meeting.

The Mountain Mission, under the direction of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference, has a station at Smith's Corner in the midst of the Alleghany Mountains and not far from the city of Altoona. The people of this section make a living by cutting mine timbers and wood for paper making. Rev. Lehman is in charge of the work.

MARRIAGE

Hofstetter-Stauffer.—Adam J. Hofstetter of Pratum, Oregon, to Lydia Stauffer of Salem, Oregon, in the Emanuel Mennonite Church near Pratum, Oregon, January 20, 1935. The pastor, Rev. J. M. Franz, preached the sermon and officiated. Text: I Thess. 5: 16-18.

DEATHS

Catherine Penner was born June 6, 1875, in the Mennonite settlement near the city of Saratov in Russia. Her parents were Rev. Johannes K. and Helene Penner, nee Jantzen. In 1884 the family, together with other relatives, came to Beatrice, Nebraska, to settle in this community and united with the Mennonite church. She received her education in the Mennonite parochial school, of which her father was teacher. On June 6, 1892, she was baptized upon confession of faith and became a member of the Mennonite church. She made her home with her brother, H. K. Penner. For a number of years she was active in Sunday School work and also was a member of the Ladies' Missionary Society. Almost six weeks she spent in the hospital, where under the tender care of the sisters and nurses she seemed to rally for a time, however the Lord's will was otherwise. Her life was slowly ebbing away. On January 12, she quietly fell asleep, to be with her Lord. She attained an age of 59 years, 7 months, and 6 days. She leaves to mourn her departure, her aged mother, five sisters, four brothers, five brothers-in-law, two sisters-in-law, and many relatives and friends.

Mrs. Ferdinand J. Wiens.—Alice Dorothy Wiens was born January 19, 1908, in Highland Township, eight miles north of Newton, Kansas. She was a daughter of A. A. Vesper and Eliza Tangeman Vesper. Mrs. Wiens spent her childhood on her parental farm and attended country school, graduating from the eighth grade in 1922. She attended Halstead High School, graduating in 1926 as valedictorian of her class. She attended Bethel College at Newton, Kansas, graduating with the Class of 1929, showing marked ability as a scholar, receiving membership in the order of the Golden A. While at college she was active as a member of the Student Volunteer Union for Foreign Missions, the Y. W. C. A., and the Delphian Literary Society. She was editor of the 1929 issue of the Bethel College Annual, the "Graymaroon." She also served one year as vice-president of the Kansas-Western Missouri State Student Volunteer Union. The year 1929 to 1930 was spent in teaching in the Junior High School at Beloit, Kansas. On May 29, 1930, she married Ferdinand J. Wiens, and with him moved to Berne, Indiana, where she actively assisted her husband in the business management of the Mennonite Book Concern. Another activity in which she was greatly interested was the Berne Camp Fire Girls, which she started and served as the first guardian. She was a charter member of the Berne Book Club, and its president at the time of her death. She also was a member of the Swiss Village Home Economics Club. As a young woman, Mrs. Wiens was active as a Sunday School teacher in her home church, The Highland Evangelical Church, of which she was a member until she united with the Bethel College Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, of which church she and her husband were members at the time of her death. — On Thursday, January 17, the sudden illness consisting of intestinal influenza, overtook her. Her condition became serious as peritonitis developed, and Sunday evening she was removed to the Adams County Memorial Hospital, where everything possible was done to check the disease. But all efforts failed, and after much suffering she passed away quietly at 10:10 o'clock, Wednesday morning, January 23, at the age of 27 years and 4 days. Her death came as a great shock not only to her husband, but also to her large circle of friends both at Berne and in Kansas. — She leaves besides her bereaved husband, one daughter, Phyllis Marie, born April 13, 1932, and five sisters. She lived a beautiful life, she died a beautiful death, and she leaves only beautiful memories. She has gone before to await her loved ones, join those who have preceded her. Her memory will always be an inspiration and a blessing to all her acquaintances.

The husband and little daughter desire to express their sincere appreciation to all who have so kindly and sympathetically assisted them during this time of illness and bereavement. Your words of encouragement, your contributions of flowers, your deeds of helpfulness are a "lifting of the load" that needs to be borne.

Sara Jean, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Otto, was born Thursday, February 14, and departed this life to be with the angels, Monday morning at 7:30. Besides her parents, she leaves her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Giesel and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Otto, and one greatgrandfather, Mr. Michael Diemer of Groveland, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her early departure.

This little crib is empty now
The little clothes laid by;
A mother's hope, a father's joy,
In death's cold arm doth lie.
Go, little pilgrim, to thy home
On yonder blissful shore;
We miss thee here, but soon we'll come
Where thou has gone before.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Wm. B. Weaver of Danvers, Ill.

Joseph Bennett, Sr., was born in Vandalia, Ill., June 6, 1847. He passed away at his home in Shelbina, Mo., January 22, 1935. Age 87 years, 7 months, 16 days. He spent three years of his life in the Civil War . Surviving him are, his aged widow and one son, Joseph, Jr., who lives at home. Two sons and one daughter preceded him in death. There are also 8 grandchildren and 17 greatgrandchildren. Funeral services January 25, 1935. Rev. Wm. B. Weaver of Danvers, Ill., had charge of the funeral services.

Coffman.—Ella Mann, daughter of Cristopher and Magdalena Mann, was born in Elkhart Co., Ind., January 1, 1873. She died in Vineland, Ont., February 9, 1935; aged 62 years, 1 month, 9 days. She resided with her parents in Elkhart Co., Ind., and also for a time in Harvey Co., Kans., returning later to Elkhart Co., Ind. She was converted and united with the Mennonite Church, Elkhart, Ind., at the age of 19 years, and has been a devoted and active member during these past years. She spent some time in the mission work in Chicago, while engaged in other employment in the city. On November 20, 1901, she was united in marriage to S. F. Coffman, going with him to Vineland, Ont., in the same year. To them were born the following children: John E., Magdalena E., David W., Barbara F., and S. Ellen who with her husband, survive her. On several occasions serious illness brought her near the door of her eternal abode, but God saw fit to restore her and grant her wish to be spared until her children reached mature years. In her passing over to be with the Lord she has met the experience for which she was always ready. Her faith in the Lord was not of oft-repeated profession. To her "to live was Christ," and to her "to die is gain." Besides her immediate family she leaves three sisters: Alice K. Miller, Adeline Stouffer, and Melinda King, and two brothers: Rufus K. and George A. The funeral was held February 12, from her late residence to the Moyer Church, Vineland, Ont. Burial took place in the adjoining cemetery. A very large concourse of people gathered to mourn with the sadly bereaved family. The ministers who took part in the service were, L. J. Burkholder, Harold Chambers, C. F. Derstine, J. B. Martin, and Oscar Burkholder. The subject of the funeral message was "Christian Womanhood," and the texts chosen were Prov. 31:10-12, 28-30; Acts 16:14, 15.

Mary A. Greenawalt, daughter of Joseph and Nancy Smoker, was born in Noble Co. south of Ligonier, Ind., November 17, 1856. She departed this life at her late home in Goshen, Ind., February 9, 1935; aged 78 years, 2 months, 22 days. When she was a small girl, her parents moved to a farm in Elkhart Co., just a little southeast of Goshen. Later they moved to a farm north of Ligonier, Ind., where she grew to womanhood. She lived in this same community until 1903, when she with her husband moved to their late home in Goshen, Ind. On November 16, 1880, she was united in marriage to Emanuel K. Greenawalt, who preceded her in death August 24, 1931. This union was blessed with three children, all of whom survive her. They are Lulu (Mrs. H. Frank Reist), of Falfurrias, Texas; Elva W. of Goshen, Ind., and Leland B., of Sturgis, Mich. She became a Christian in her youth, uniting with the Mennonite Church, and at the time of her death was a member of the Goshen College congregation. She lived a quiet, unassuming life in close fellowship with the Lord. She had a spiritual appreciation of the Scriptures which comes only through a prayerful and loving study of the Word in humble dependence on the Spirit of God. Christ was her life. Truly He was "nearer to her than breathing, nearer than hands or feet." Prayer for others was to her a privilege and a duty. It was just as natural as breathing and just as vital. She had a deep interest in the work of the church. She took the missionary program as her personal burden. The missionaries were her special friends. She plead at the throne of God for their success. She read widely, attended every possible missionary meeting, corresponded with those on the field, and entertained missionaries in her home. These activities, of course, resulted in full support of the work. The following quotation seems peculiarly fulfilled in her life: "Our interest in missions is a mark of our Christian character. Our knowledge of missions is the measure of our Christian attainment. Our participation in missions is the measure of our Christian efficiency." Since the death of her husband in 1931, Mrs. M. C. Lehman has lived with her, ministering to her need and comfort in every possible way. Sister Lehman came to her room as usual on the morning of February 9, and found her in the embrace of death. Her soul had gone to be with God. She had walked with God, and she was not for God took her. She leaves her three children, seven grandchildren, one greatgrandchild, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. She has but gone before us. Funeral services were held from the late home, 1225 So. 8th St., Goshen, Ind. February 11, 1935, in charge of C. L. Graber. Text used, Gen. 5:24. Interment was made in the Alwine Cemetery, south of Goshen, in the family burial lot by the side of her husband.

IS THIS THE TIME TO HALT?

Is this the time, O Church of Christ! to sound retreat!
To arm with weapons cheap and blunt
The men and women who have borne the brunt
Of truth's fierce strife, and nobly held their ground?
Is this the time to halt, when all around
Horizons lift, new destinies confront,
Stern duties wait our nation, never wont
To play the laggard when God's will was found?

No, rather strengthen stakes and lengthen cords,
Enlarge thy plans and gifts, O thou elect,
And to thy kingdom come for such a time!
The earth with all its fullness is the Lord's,
Great things attempt for Him, great things expect
Whose love imperial is, whose power sublime.
—Charles Summer Hoyt.

GIFTS RECEIVED DURING DECEMBER FOR THE PUBLICATION FUND

Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska	$ 43.66
Emmaus Church, Whitewater, Kansas	29.45
F. N. Funk	50.00
H. D. Voth	5.00
Peter Stauffer	5.00
J. H. Ensz	5.00
E. B. Krehbiel	5.00
J. J. Krehbiel	5.00
Rev. C. H. van der Smissen	10.00
Hillegonda van der Smissen	15.00
Tabor Church, Goessel, Kansas	9.20
Joseph A. Goering	10.00
Maude E. Byler	10.00
San Marcos Church, Paso Robles, Calif.	8.60
Geary Church, Geary, Okla.	10.00
Lehigh Church, Lehigh, Kansas	20.50
D. M. Harder	2.00
Maxwell Kratz	10.00
John E. Goering	10.00
Norwood M. Landis	5.00
A. J. Neuenschwander	2.00
Flatland Church, Quakertown, Pa.	5.00
Eden Church, Inola, Okla.	9.00
Lydia Augsburger	25.00
Otto Jutzi	25.00

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Entz	50.00
J. B. Andreas	10.00
D. M. Vogt	25.00
Friend from Iowa	2.00
Mrs. Lizzie Weber	50.00
Sunday School Class, Upland, Calif.	10.00
I. I. Bargen	10.00
Mary Bargen	2.00
Mrs. J. P. Linscheid	3.00
Sunday School Class, Deer Creek, Okla.	10.00
John C. Beidler	5.00
Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kans.	21.07
Samuel C. Steiner	36.00
Mary E. Steiner	7.00
Barbara E. Steiner	7.00
Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas	85.84
Ernest Lichti	2.00
Bethel Mennonite Church, Mountain Lake, Minn.	40.00
Mrs. Elizabeth Ruth	5.00
J. W. Regier	25.00
Friendship and Senior Girls' Classes, Donnellson, Iowa	7.35
Tabor Church, Goessel, Kansas	8.60
Ladies' Missionary Society, Butterfield, Minn.	10.00
C. H. Goering	25.00
J. A. Schowalter	10.00
Rev. P. P. Wedel	5.00
P. Pankratz	55.00
Jacob M. Landis	5.00
Hillsboro Mennonite Church, Hillsboro, Kans.	50.00
Adam Amstutz	5.00
Dorcas Sunday School Class, Bluffton, Ohio	3.00
Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Weber	10.00
Mrs. Emma Bachmann	5.00
Beacon Light S. S. Class, Donnellson, Iowa	6.50
Flora L. Fellman	1.00
Salem Church near Freeman, So. Dak.	91.65
J. W. Krehbiel	30.00
Sichar Church, Cordell, Oklahoma	3.79
Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Ledig	50.00
Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Neb.	17.47

Gifts Received by Our Treasurer, Bro. E. W. Baumgartner, During December

Eastern District Conference, C. E. Uunion	$ 25.00
A Friend	10.00
Summerfield Menn. Church, Summerfield, Ill.	10.00
Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas	55.00
First Mennonite Church, Upland, Calif.	3.67
Senior C. E. Society of Second Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Neb.	6.00
Israel Garber	100.00
Mrs. Boehr's S. S. Class, Bluffton, Ohio	10.00
Bethel Mennonite Church, Fortuna, Mo.	6.32
Bethel College Menn. Church, Newton, Kans.	26.11
First Mennonite Church, Beatrice, Neb.	56.51
German Bible Class of Bethel College Church Newton, Kansas	3.22
East Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa.	15.00
Hoffnungsau Church, Inman, Kansas	45.00
S. S. Class of Salem Church, Dalton, Ohio	5.30
First Menn. Church, Newton, Kans.	27.11
Young People's Society, Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa.	7.50
Total	$1551.87

There are two corrections to be made in the acknowledgement of gifts received during November, published in Bundesbote No. 49 of December 11th. First—$100.00 given by Jacob A. Krehbiel should be Jacob H. Krehbiel. Second—$50.00 given by A. A. Penner was sent by him for the Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota.

The gifts received during the month of December are very gratifying to the Board of Publication, and will considerably relieve the burden of debt on our publication work.

The contributions received for this fund during November and December are divided as follows: 23 from churches, 14 from Sunday School classes, Missionary Societies, and C. E. Societies, 85 from individuals.

There are about 30,000 church members in the General Conference: 152 churches, and at least 800 Sunday School classes, Missionary and C. E. Societies. If the remaining 29,015 individual members, and the remaining 129 churches, and the remaining 786 Sunday School classes, Missionary and C. E. Societies will contribute only a small gift during 1935, we can easily liquidate the debt this year. — The Board of Publication expresses its sincerest thanks to all those who have so generously given, and we sincerely hope that many will do the same during this year.

H. J. Krehbiel, Reedley, California,
Chairman of Board of Publication.

Gifts Received for the Publication Fund During January

Herman Janzen, R. 1, Elbing, Kans.	$ 25.00
Medford Mennonite Church, Medford, Okla.	7.60
Sewing Society, Johannesthal Church, Hillsboro	10.00
Christian Church, Moundridge, Kans.	145.00
Mrs. J. E. Baughman, Pulaski, Iowa	50.00
Ladies' Aid Society, Geary, Okla.	5.00
Mrs. S. S. Haury, Granville, Ohio	1.00
Sunday School, First Menn. Church, Reedley	17.00
Gifts received through Bundesbote	43.45
B. D. Stucky, Hesston, Kans.	5.00
S. School, First Menn. Church, Aberdeen, Idaho	37.50
Sunday School, First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, Christmas collection	13.45
Wilford Eden, Lind, Wash.	5.00
Total	$355.00

The Board of Publication expresses its sincerest thanks to all these donors for their generous gifts.

H. J. Krehbiel,
Chairman of Board of Publication.

RECEIVED FOR PACIFIC DISTRICT CONFERENCE

First Mennonite Church, Upland, Calif.	$ 84.47
First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho	18.02
Mennonite Mission Society, Aberdeen, Idaho	39.95
First Mennonite Adult C. E., Aberdeen, Olaho	14.95
First Mennonite Church, Colfax, Wash.	9.95
First Mennonite Church, Reedley, Calif.	56.71
Ladies' Mission Society, Reedley, Calif.	14.95
Mennonite Bible Class, Reedley, Calif.	14.95
Worth While Circle, Reedley, Calif.	14.95
Mrs. L. M. Ledig, Upland, Calif.	9.95
Linda Schmidt, Reedley, Calif.	5.00
Adult C. E., Upland, Calif.	4.95
Young People's S. S. Class, Upland, Calif.	5.95
Sewing Others Circle, Upland, Calif.	14.95
Adult C. E., Los Angeles, Calif.	5.00
Salem Church, Ruff, Wash.	13.04
Mennonite Church, Menno, Wash.	13.60
Emanuel Church, Pratum, Oregon	44.90
Grace Mennonite Church, Albany, Oregon	9.65

Received for Portland, Oregon, Mission

First Mennonite Church, Colfax, Wash.	$ 16.85
Mennonite Bible Class, Reedley, Calif.	14.95
Sewing Others Circle, Upland, Calif.	5.00
Winning Others Bible Class, Upland, Calif.	14.95
Wm. Dirks, Neppel, Wash.	.70
California M. S. S. and C. E. Conference, Paso Robles, California	15.10
San Marcos Mennonite Church, Paso Robles, Cal.	11.45
Adult C. E., Los Angeles, Calif.	11.83
Junior C. E., Los Angeles, Calif.	3.00
Mennonite Mission Society, Aberdeen, Idaho	15.00
First Menn. Group, Elk and Deer Park, Wash.	6.00
Immanuel Menn. Church, Los Angeles, Calif.	1.70

Gratefully acknowledged,
Pacific District Conference,
By J. M. C. Jantz, Treasurer.

BOOKS to READ and STUDY in 1935

BIBLICAL BACKGROUNDS

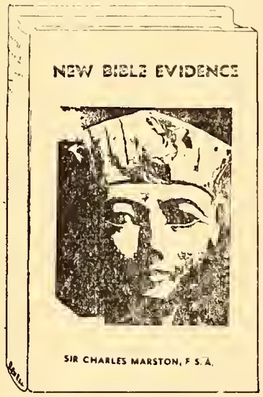
J. McKee Adams

BIBLICAL BACKGROUNDS

This title accurately describes Dr. J. McKee Adams' scholarly researches in biblical lands. Authoritative in every sense. It is illustrated with scores of pictures taken by the author and further illuminated by maps drawn especially for this volume. Indispensable to the serious Bible student.

Price..........................$3.75

NEW BIBLE EVIDENCE



From the 1925-1933 Excavations

Now in its Fourth Enlarged Printing

Sir Charles Marston, F. S. A.

Sir Charles Marston's striking volume has been described as the most important contribution to the confirmation of Biblical records made in recent years, by one who is probably the world's foremost authority on the Israelites' exodus from Egypt. Fully illustrated.

Price.................$2.00

The BELOVED PHYSICIAN OF TEHERAN

Isaac Malek Yonan

A fascinating story of Christian conversion and service. Its whole theme is spiritual; its every word is high and Christlighted. The life of a very remarkable man. Doctor Sa'eed, Khan, of Persia. It shows what an apostolic conversion joined to an unwavering purpose will do.

Price..$1.00

THE MINISTERS ANNUAL FOR 1935

Edited by Joseph M. Ramsey

Here is a book that is indispensable for the busy minister who must hold several meetings each week. The book contains Original Material. There are 334 Original Sermons contributed by the authors for Publication in this volume, arranged in 53 chapters for 53 weeks in the calendar year. For each week in the year it has the following suggestions:

ORDER OF SERVICES including Call to Worship, Psalm, Prelude, Offertory, Postlude, Offertory Sentence, Offertory Prayer, Benediction.
MORNING SERMON, 2 complete sermons and 2 additional outlines.
JUNIOR SERMONS, 2 complete sermons.
EVENING SERMON, 2 complete sermons.
MID-WEEK SERMON, 1 complete sermon.
S. S. Lesson and Young People's Society Topics
Suggestions for the Bulletin Board
And much other helpful material. The book is well bound in an attractive cloth binding. 600 pages.

Price, Postpaid..............................$2.00

DELIGHTFUL FICTION AND ADVENTURE

GOOD-BYE, MR. CHIPS

By James Hilton

Now in its 116th thousand

Here is a beautiful story of an English school teacher that will fascinate you. You will love it and recommend it to your friends.

Price..$1.25

TWO NEW DOLLAR BOOKS

The Crusades, Harold Lamb	$1.00
The Flying Carpet, Richard Halliburton	$1.00

Stories by Zenobia Bird

UNDER WHOSE WINGS

A truly delightful and inspiring book of life stories—one of the best you have ever read—pertinent to every individual and appealing with particular charm to young folks.

Price..$1.50

EYES IN THE DARK

A magnificent story and an unusual one. The book justifies the publishers' claim that it is one you will sit up nights to read. The author's skill and cleverness in handling this material actually makes this adventure story the best kind of devotional reading to recommend to young folks.

Price..$1.50

THE RETURN OF THE TIDE

A fascinating story woven around Marian Linton, who had lost her parents, her home, her friends, even her faith in God; how she attains her restoration to all these is, in a succession of scenes, charmingly told. It is highly recommended for those who are looking for a worth-while story.

Price..$1.50

SALLY JO

(Just off the Press)

Sally Jo Brenton, loved and almost idolized by her two aunts, and full of life, fun and boundless energy, meets a young theological student who influences her greatly. While yet in her teens she faces the question of living a life for God or for self. The story is an appeal to young people to consider the opportunity and the challenge of the foreign mission-field. The bright and the dark side of such a course are fully revealed, and the reward that may be.

Price..$1.50

G. Campbell Morgan's

STUDIES OF THE FOUR GOSPELS

Dr. Morgan's Expositions of the Four Gospels represent the ripe results of years of Biblical studies by one who is an adept in the field of research. The author is recognized as the foremost religious teacher of the present generation and this work will sustain his reputation.

The Gospel According to Matthew	$3.50
The Gospel According to Mark	2.50
The Gospel According to Luke	2.50
The Gospel According to John	3.50

Four Large Octavo Volumes

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, MARCH 19, 1935 No. 6

THE MISSIONARY PROMISE

With every command and purpose of God there is also a great promise. To Abraham God said, "I will be with thee and bless thee." The same promise came to Moses, Amos, Isaiah, Paul, and Jesus. This promise is also evident in the great commission when Jesus said, "Lo, I will be with you, even unto the end of the world."

It must be extremely encouraging and stimulating when our missionaries leave the shores of America to go to some foreign land at the command, "Go ye," and for the purpose of making disciples, to have the reassuring promise, "I will be with you." This promise suggests guidance as the Christian faces the problems of life; power for the tasks undertaken, and comfort for the disappointments met in life. With this promise disappointments become His appointments. We are true stewards of God when we obey the command; see clearly the purpose; and with faith and hope rely on the promise of God. W.

THE MISSIONARY PURPOSE

Some time ago an editorial was written emphasizing the missionary imperative "Go ye," which comes to every true Christian. One of the great impressions made on a Bible reader as he reads the Old and New Testament is the frequency with which God gave commands to men and women. To Abraham He said, "Get thee out from thy country and kindred." To Moses He said, "Go and gather the children of Israel together and lead them out of bondage." Such commands also came to Elijah, Amos, Paul, and Jesus. But these commands of God were not arbitrary and meaningless. With each command there was given a great purpose. To Abraham, "I will make of thee a nation." To Moses, "I want my people free so they can serve me." And so throughout the Word of God, a great purpose is linked with each command.

In the great commission of Jesus, "Go ye" there is suggested a great purpose. The Christian is to go to make disciples. The purpose of the Christian is to teach and preach Christ for He is the complete and supreme revelation of God to mankind. As men become disciples of Jesus they learn through personal fellowship and His teachings the great purpose and love of God. W.

TEMPERANCE EDUCATION

Someone has said, the world moves forward on the feet of children. In these days of revelry and intemperance we wonder how we shall regain that which we lost in the last few years.

There are two institutions that are very significant in any program of temperance. The first is the home. The child from the very beginning of its life must learn self-control. The first two years are very important because of the physical habits that are formed. The greatest contribution which the home can make, however, is in the religious training given and the example of the parents. The virtue of temperance, although ethical, thrives best in deeply spiritual soil.

The school is an important factor in a temperance program because of the instruction it can give on temperance. Here the boy and girl can learn the effects of alcohol and tobacco on the body. There is no sentiment in these findings. It is the cold facts that are needed. Boys and girls of our schools are entitled to know these facts. Some time ago a judge in one of our cities said to a professional man who had violated traffic rules, "You were not drunk so I could not give you thirty days in jail, but you had enough alcohol that you could not see the traffic signs clearly." This is a temperance sermon in itself. Boys and girls need to know that whether it is in beer, wine or whisky that alcohol effects vision, clear thinking, and breaks down the reserve of life so that the individual is easily persuaded to wrongdoing. W.

AFTER SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS

With a deep interest I read and reread the article under the above headline by Dr. Smith in the 1935 Year-Book, and looked repeatedly at the miniature of an institution of the church not now in existence, except as it exists in the hearts and lives that have been effected by its brief yet valued life. I trust I may not be infringing on any copyright, nor on the good will of Bro. Smith in using his headline for this communication, simply to add emphasis to his article by supplying some reminiscences.

In the approaching month of May it will be seventy-five years that the first General Conference was held at West Point, Iowa. The churches of the Eastern Conference were represented by John H. Oberholtzer of the Swamp Charge, and Enos P. Loux, father of the late sisters, Mrs. Zephr, of Wadsworth, Ohio, and Mrs. Kaphos, of Newton, Kans. Bro. Loux was pastor of the Deep Run church of which the writer, then a small lad, can just recall the fact, and is now for nearly 52 years pastor. While this representation was not directly a delegated one made by the Eastern Conference, the Conference should, it seems to me, be credited instead of a few congregations only. The following is a verbal translation of the act of Conference, held on May 2nd of 1860, when Bro. Oberholtzer urged the matter.—"The Iowa Conference was discussed and approved, if the ministerial brethren will voluntarily attend same." A year later the second General Conference wa held in the church near Wadsworth, Ohio. Thi session had six representatives from Pennsylvania. The chief matter under consideratio was the need of a school for the training o ministers and missionaries. Daniel Hege o Summerfield, Ill., was authorized as a travelin missionary to visit the churches, awaken a interest in a school, and solicit funds. At th fall session of the Eastern Conference of 186 a resolution was adopted favoring the project and Bro. Hege's visit. Hege's work was ver successful. Our people wanted a school; hi subscription for funds reached nearly $6000 However, the task was not finished, neithe could HE SEE it finished, except as he ma have seen it in his crowned life; for, returnin from his journey in ten days the brave work man was called from his labors to his reward.

The third General Conference was held i the Summerfield, Ill., church in 1863. Here i was decided to have triennial sessions, bu above all, here the matter of a school wa pushed, so that the 1866 conference was hel at the time of the dedication of the seminar building as the profile in Bro. Smith's articl brings it to our gaze. The dedication took plac on October 13 and 14 of that year. The cor ference sessions followed.

The fifth General Conference was, too, held a Wadsworth, May 31 to June 3, 1869. The pic ture of the school building as it appears in Br Smith's article in a much reduced compas was taken on this occasion. This picture ha especially aroused the reminiscent spirit in th writer. The building stands a short distanc from the west end of the town along the mai road running east and west, facing south. I is difficult to distinguish faces on the pictur but a few are known from memory. In fro of the building are standing S. F. Sprunge Peter High Stauffer, on the portico roof S. C Haury, John S. Hirschler; at the open window on the first floor, the Showalter family; on th second floor the Van der Smissen family; thir floor window near southeast corner, Prof. Frit and near the southwest corner window, Jac S. Moyer. One of those on the cupola is Pet Krehbiel. At the east side door stands one Peter Yoder's sons, I forgot which by nam while by his side, in the door, stands Ely Fret my father, who represented the Deep Run co gregation at the conference. This visit of m parents to the school led them to the decisi to send their son, then in his sixteenth year, to the school.

In the afternoon of the first Monday in October, 1869, a group met in the home of Rev. Samuel C. Cuomer, pastor of the church in Philadelphia, to get acquainted with one another and to fix the hour to entrain for Wadsworth. The group, when the train steamed out from West Philadelphia, was as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Levi O. Schimmel, Henry C. Gottshall, John B. Geisinger, William R. Schantz, Abraham M. Leatherman, Isaac L. Fretz, and Allen M. Fretz. At about 7:30 p. m. the next day we were greeted at the Wadsworth station by the greater number of the student body to escort us to our destniation. There other loving hearts and hands and a loaded table bade us welcome to a then appreciated institution — Mennonite Seminary. Here we found fifteen earlier Pennsylvania students, together with some from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa. Of this number of Pennsylvania students of the term of 1869-1870 there are now only three living—Charles H. Moyer, John B. Geisinger, and the writer. If there are any of the western students of that term still living, I would be pleased to learn of it. Of Pennsylvania students of later terms there are, I believe, only three left, Rev. N. B. Grubb, Dr. A. F. Myers, W. M. Leatherman.

Soon after our arrival at the school, a frame two-story addition was erected at the northeast corner. This work, as the work on the lot, in the stables, on the wood pile, etc., was done by the students under the direction of Bro. Schimmel, who had been elected by the Conference as "Oekonom" (steward). From 1 to 2 p. m. was the working hour. As we came up the steps from the dining room, Schimmel was on hand with his list of assignments for the work hour. One regularly tended and milked the cows, a few had work in the carpenter shop; another one was kept busy at the cobbler's bench; one fetched the mail; two were assigned to the kitchen to peel potatoes and "schnitz" apples for the next day's meal. This generally fell to the lot of Charles F. Myers, who became a noted lawyer in Doylestown, Pa., and the boy who is now writing this. This kitchen work was likewise a pleasant social hour, with the matron, Betty Krehbiel, and the Van der Smissen girls, Wilhelmina and Hillegonda, helping with the dishes, and we boys as company. Of course, our work was approved, so we could keep the job. When, however, the mumps had me in their grip, I was excused, but, oh! so kindly cared for by good mother Van der Smissen and prayed for by father Van der Smissen.

The study and recitation hours, too, were well filled, and so the winter days and weeks sped pleasantly by. The Christmas celebration was a pleasant occasion. A real German Christmas tree lighted up the auditorium; plates with delicacies were laid for each one, with a new German Testament and Psalms by it, as a present. I am still using mine.

One morning during the vacation week our neighbor farmer, Curtis, called for volunteers to husk his field of corn. This gave us a little pocket cash. On a cold day in January we took a sled, or "sleds" ride to Akron to have a group picture taken. All went except teacher Schultz; he had scruples against taking pictures. On our return, at the supper table, we discovered that my good friend Charlie Meyers was missing. He had somehow wandered away from the rest and missed the sled train, so was footing it all the way from Akron. This was a hard experience for Carl, as he was lame.

To me the time spent at Wadsworth Seminary with the good Van der Smissen family and school associates was both a very pleasant and highly profitable time.

Very beautifully did Bro. Smith close his reference to the institution after 75 conference years and 57 school-closing years: "Its influence is felt throughout the Conference even to this day through the lives of men who received their first inspiration to enter Christian work within its academic halls." A thousand regrets that it could not continue.

Allen M. Fretz.

Perkasie, Pa., February 1935.

HOME MISSION NOTES

Saskatoon, Sask., Canada.—Girls' Home and Church Extension.—Bro. J. J. Thiessen quotes Psalm 103:2, and writes that in view of the blessings of the past year it seems easy for him to join in the exclamation of the Psalmist. What a privilege daily to proclaim His Holy Name to the children of men in their homes, on the street, in the hospitals, in the services, and Sunday School, in the Bible class, etc. And then what an encouragement for us weak instruments when we can see results of our work. Thanks be to God, we were privileged to see results and God's blessing in our work. We also felt His presence when we had discouragements. We felt His presence in disappointments.

Bro. Thiessen mentions a long list of important events which transpired during the year, such as Bible lectures, instruction of young people, baptismal services, and communion, in which 134 and 118 persons respectivley, participated, a song festical, outings, Children's Day service, Harvest Thanksgiving,, Christmas, etc.

They greatly desire a church of their own, they use the Victor School for their meetings, but they pay for all purposes a total rent of $38 a month. Indeed, they need a church badly. If the Girls' Home and church should be combined, it would also save in house rent. They ask if the General Conference would be interested in the procuring of a church building and if the Conference could provide the necessary funds. (In 1929 the Conference passed a resolution to approve the collection of $10,000 for a building in Saskatoon, answering the double purpose, but on account of the depression the Board did not have the courage to undertake it. —Sec.)

Bro. J. P. Klassen of Winnipeg writes that during the Advent season as usual he held communion services in his district in a number of places. These are always mountain peaks in the Christian life. Our old people used to call the Communion Sunday "Great Sunday."

One of the pleasant as well as heaviest duties is the visitation of the sick of which we always have a number in our hospitals, and how thankful they always are for every visit.

Our church building is in use every day except Mondays for different kinds of work for the church. It would have been a great hindrance to our work if we had not provided more room in the church; we are still bleeding on account of the cost, but we have already paid off $2500.

Since we have more helpers I can serve the outside districts every third Sunday. Our congregations are very much scattered and it is more or less expensive to serve them. The attendance everywhere is very good and the Word of God is gladly received. In January the Manitoba Ministers' Conference will meet here. In February the Ministers' Course will take place.

It is a great relief to us that you did not yet tire in supporting us.

Before me lies a long report from Bro. F. F. Enns of Whitewater, Manitoba. Were the report not so comprehensive, it would contain interesting and edifying reading matter for our church papers.

Bro. Enns also has a large field to cover where larger and smaller groups of Mennonites live. The field is too large to work it intensively. Traveling by auto and wagon in deep mud, and by sleigh, is cumbersome, and the conveniences in the homes where he is entertained are not up-to-date, but the reception is most hearty and the people are very thankful and invite him to come soon again.

The main purpose of his visits, of course, are the preaching of the Gospel, and the meetings are mostly held in the homes. Wherever it is possible, new ministers are ordained. He gives catechetical instructions and baptizes the can didates, holds communion services and visits the people in their homes and does much per sonal pastoral work ministering to the hungry and neglected and occasionally indifferen souls. His report impresses one of the fac that his work is of a thorough nature an brings lasting results in the edification of th believers and the awakening of those who sleep

The dear brother is also a real Home Missionary because he seeks and finds such who ar not immigrants and who belong to other Me nonite Conferences, but who are isolated fro their own congregations and need the service of a preacher to do pastoral work among the and he seeks to encourage them to live a frui ful Christian life.

Portland, Oregon.—Sister Niswander writes "The past year has brought us some disappoin ments and also some joys. In the summer w had an interesting and well attended Vacati Bible School. The highest attendance at o Sunday School for the year was 80, the ave age attendance was 50. I have been teachi a community Bible class at the home of a frie not far from the church. We meet every wee Our Women's Missionary Society meetings we quite well attended throughout the year. December the society had a well attend Christmas program in the church at whi three young women from the Baptist Semina rendered special music, and a teacher from t Portland Bible School brought a very help message. Our Sunday School Christmas p gram was held Sunday evening before Christmas and it was a nice service. Bro. Homer Leisy and family spent Sunday after Christmas in Portland. He gave us an address to our C. E. On the first Sunday in the new year, a Mr. Lysle Peterson, an evangelist and musician, was with us and gave us a service. On Friday evening during the week of prayer, our church with two neighboring churches had a united prayer service. We want to praise God for answers to prayers for the salvation of a man living at Canby, Oregon. He had always warned his children never to become Christians. We prayed for him and his daughter told us at the Bible class that her father was converted and was baptized. She said that the other evening was the first time she had ever heard her father pray; he prayed especially for his children.

W. S. Gottshall,
Sec. of H. M. Board.

TO THE MENNONITE SANITARIUM ASSOCIATION

in annual session assembled this 11th day of January, 1935:

Greetings from your Board of Directors in the name of Him "who went about doing good," and enjoined upon His followers that they should not be indifferent to human affliction. We rejoice that His Spirit has in our day given rise to many institutions of healing in which the afflicted are given the best of care that medical science and nursing skill can afford; of which the institution which we represent is one. We trust that through this pooling of our efforts as a Mennonite people in behalf of suffering humanity, the name of our Lord may be exalted and His kingdom extended in the hearts and lives of those who seek its services. With humility and gratitude we acknowledge the providence and guidance of our Heavenly Father in bringing the institution to its present capacity to serve the afflicted, and pray that under His continued guidance and blessing it may continue to thus serve mankind in the name of Christ.

I. The Board

The members of the Board of Directors during the past year have been: Rev. E. Troyer, president; J. E. Garber, vice-president; R. L. Hartzler, secretary; Rev. Emanuel Ulrich, Peter Augspurger, Rev. A. H. Miller, S. A. Albrecht, and Chester Roth. At the meeting of the association a year ago, Mr. C. W. Vercler was elected to membership on the Board, but because of numerous other responsibilities and the state of his health, he felt that he could not assume this added duty. This with the fact of Rev. Miller's residence in Iowa, left us with a working body of but seven members. We sincerely hope and pray that with today's election a full board may be provided, so that with added counsel we may do the very best possible to promote the interests of the institution during the coming year.

II. Internal Operation and Administration

We are indeed glad to report that as regards the internal work and operation of the hospital, the past year has been by far the best in the history of the institution. The number of new patients admitted during the year was over 300 more than for 1933. By the end of the month of September the number had already exceeded the total number for the previous year. This increased patronage, along with the fact that patients were more inclined to choose the higher priced rooms, meant a greatly increased income which made it possible to substantially reduce the amount of bills payable for running expenses in previous years. Six girls were admitted to the training school in February, and fourteen more entered training in September. The greatly increased number of patients made it necessary to admit larger numbers of student nurses, or employ graduates, in order to maintain the quality of service for which the institution is noted.

In the matter of administration, the year has also been one of progress. We are deeply appreciative of the efficient and patient services of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover as superintendent and bookkeeper, respectively. In administering the operation of the hospital with discretion and economy, and in meeting the advances of impatient creditors with patience and wisdom, their service to the institution has been greater than any of us can calculate. The number of doctors on the staff has now risen to 40. The attitude of the staff toward the institution is characterized by a greater appreciation of its facilities and quality of service, and by a deeper concern for its perpetuation and progress. During the month of July, Miss Litwiller resigned her position as superintendent of nurses. and Miss Lena Stolzfus of Lima, Ohio, was secured to serve as instructress and head of the training school. The departmental supervisors are now responsible for the work done by the students on the floors. This new arrangement is proving very acceptable to both supervisors and nurses and expressions coming from patients indicate that a still higher quality of service is being given.

III. Capital Accounts and Indebtedness

From the foregoing it will readily be seen that the difficulties and burdens of the Board during the past year have concerned, not the internal working of the hospital, but the outside, or so-called capital accounts. At times it was necessary to draw from the operating account to meet some of these obligations. With many hospitals now operating at a loss, the fact that the hospital treasurer was able at times to render service to the general treasurer is evidence of an efficient and economical administration. If it had been possible to have collected in full for all services rendered during the past year there would have been realized a profit of over $5000.

During the year interest payments were made to the bondholders as receipts of payments on pledges would permit. The amount paid, or now being paid, makes a total of 5% for the year. Many of our bondholders are widows whose investment in our bonds represents practically all of their source of income. Many of their pleas for payment of the interest due them are truly pathetic. This, with the challenge of their faith in the Mennonite Church manifested by the purchase of our bonds, constitutes one of the grave concerns of the Board.

For the most part, we have experienced much patience through the year on the part of the creditor firms who still hold unpaid building accounts. Two small payments have been made on these accounts totaling about 11% of the original amounts. It is now three years since the new addition has been in use and by every law of propriety these accounts should be paid, but how to secure sufficient funds to make settlement of them, the Board has not as yet been able to determine. In the early part of last fall two of the firms in questian started legal procedure which was designed, so far as we could determine, to force us to surrender to them the unpaid pledges to make collections until their claims should be satisfied. We felt that pledgers should be advised of such action, an statements were sent out to be read in th churches. A defense was filed by our attorne and the matter has been at rest since, but ma be resurrected at any time. In view of a number of statements or letters having been ser out from time to time intimating that a cris was impending, it may seem to some that w have been like the boy who cried, "Wol Wolf!" but we assure you that such statement and appeals were made in all good faith. W received the demands of the creditors and sa a possible final crisis and felt that our peopl should be informed accordingly.

In the course of the year six of the preser and former directors of the hospital, who fc no profit to themselves, incurred liability as securers on notes, were obliged to make good suc security to the extent of more than $1000. Wit some this was in addition to previous exper ences of a similar nature involving amount ranging up to and even exceeding the abov figure. The largest amount so paid by one person is considerably over $2500. A number c these men have been forced to place encumbrances on their own holdings in order to meet thes obligations. Certainly the thanks of the association is due them; and withal the cooperation of every friend and supporter of the hosp tal is in order, that they may not have to permanently suffer such measure of loss for th sake of the institution.

IV. Propaganda

It seems to be the experience of institutions as of individuals, that when one gets into difficulty and needs assistance more than eve there are always too many people who seem more inclined to hinder than to help. Thi seems to be the lot of the hospital. During th past year or two there has developed in certain quarters a marked tendency to subjec church organization, church leadership, an church institutions to a rigid and uninforme review in obedience to a destructive, rathe than a constructive impulse. Of such procedure the hospital has had its full share. Indeed, it has been made the victim of mor damaging propaganda based on partial information, misinformation, fabrication, and personal prejudice toward its leadership, than an other one of our church institutions. Why thos who cannot, or are not disposed to help lift th load, feel led to make that load heavier, or wha

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication............Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office............Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance............$1.50
Foreign............$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

spirit actuates such procedure, the Board does not presume to say. But such propaganda is never without effect and the loss to the hospital in terms of financial and moral support as a result of such publicity is incalculable. The proceedings of the Board and of the administration are open to investigation by those who wish to know the facts (as destructive propagandists do not) and both Board and superintendent will welcome any inquiry on the part of those into whose ears Dame Rumor has whispered that they may know for a certainty concerning the hospital's standing and operation and may be able to impart authentic information to others.

V. The Immediate Problem

The thinking of the Board in the matter of finance has been directed for the most part during the year in an effort to devise some means of securing sufficient funds to make settlement of the unpaid building accounts. If the firms holding such accounts will credit the amounts paid on them as payment on principal instead of charging it as interest, there remains a total of about $33,000 in these accounts. The Board has reason to believe that if a sum of not over $20,000 could somehow be secured, all of these claims could be settled. Has the recovery process gone far enough now that with personal solicitation a substantial sum could be secured as payment on pledges? Would people who have paid their pledges go a second mile and would those who did not pledge now assist in the building of such a fund? Two years ago we told the creditors that if corn would go up to 40c, we believed we could raise sufficient funds to make settlement. Now for over a year the price has been in excess of that figure and just now is more than twice as much; if they press us now what can we say to them? Might it be possible to find someone with large holdings who would, or could be interested in an opportunity to make one dollar do the work of two and at the same time help an institution that exists solely for the service of mankind? These are some of the problems faced by the Board during the year. Some efforts were made in accordance with the last mentioned line of procedure, but as yet with no results to any considerable degree. The Board is of the unanimous opinion that now while the creditors are in fairly complacent mood, is the time to secure a settlement on the basis of a large discount. When once they start action again, as we fear they soon may do, we can hope for nothing but a demand for payment in full. The Board earnestly hopes that the Association in this annual session may give valuable suggestions and help in working out this problem.

VI. Constituency

From its very beginning this has been a cooperative enterprise. At present three different Mennonite conferences having churches in the central part of this state are represented on the Board of Directors. It is the people of these churches who have constituted the most substantial element in the constituency of the hospital and to whom the Board is deeply grateful for a very large portion of the moral and financial support which has come to the institution. One of the present needs is that this supporting constituency be greatly changed. The interest of people in the hospital too largely depends on their nearness to, or remoteness from it, i. e., upon the possibility or probability of their receiving service from the institution. The reason for such variation in interest is more obvious than justifiable. Our people need to be led to take a larger view of this work than that. Those who live more remotely from the hospital when in need of hospitalization usually go to nearby institutions which other church bodies have established and are maintaining. There they receive hospital service which the efforts and sacrifice of other Christian people have made possible, but they have themselves done nothing to bring such service within the reach of themselves or others. Does not seem that it would be the discharge of a Christian obligation if those who profit in their own communities from the efforts and sacrifice of their Christian brethren should help to provide the same kind of service for people elsewhere, even though they might never expect to have occasion or be able to receive service from the institution which they thus help to establish and maintain? We hope and pray that as this work goes on our people near and far will come to look upon this work more and more as an avenue through which we Mennonites may, and are, cooperating to train girls for nursing service and to minister to the suffering through this institution which was founded in the Spirit of Christ and is trying to carry on in His name.

R. L. Hartzler,
Secretary of Hospital Board.

THIRTY-FIFTH INTERNATIONAL C. E. CONVENTION

"We Choose Christ" is its theme and slogan. July 2 to 7 are the dates. The united youth program and emphasis, "Christian Youth Building a New World," will be taught and discussed in practical terms. The place is Philadelphia, Pa., and the event thus outlined is the thirty-fifth International Christian Endeavor Convention.

Philadelphia prooves to be the ideal center for this youth gathering to seek religious inspiration, training, and fellowship. Few cities are stronger in Christian Endeavor membership and organization, as well as other phases of Protestant activity. The conventions and meetings and schools conducted by Philadelphia Christian Endeavorers typically attract thousands of young people. It is natural that the entertaining city and state are thinking of the July meetings in terms of a registered strength of 25,000 to 35,000.

Far advanced in planning are the great citizenship parade and demonstration, scheduled for July 6, visits to historic centers, and Junior and Intermediate sessions. All denominations are being invited to plan an afternoon program for their members among the delegates. New York State, Maryland, and other state unions will hold one-afternoon conventions as a part of the international meetings.

Among speakers already accepting are: Dr. S. W. Hughes of England; Senator William E. Borah; Dr. James Kelly of Edinburgh, Scotland; Dr. Norman Peale of New York City; Dr. Robert E. Speer; Dr. Daniel A. Poling, International President; Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, D. D., of Drew Theological Seminary; Rev. Oscar W. Blackwelder, D. D., of Washington, D. C.; Miss Margaret Slattery of Boston; Rev. Lester Clee, D. D., of Newark N. J.; Dr. William Hiram Foulkes of Newark, N. J., vice-president of the International Society; Rev. Vere W. Abbey of Bungalore, India; and others.

Homer Rodeheaver will be song leader, assisted by a large chorus that is being organized months before the convention begins.

The educational conferences conducted on four mornings, beginning July 3, will be based on the united youth theme: "Christian Youth Building a New World." The teachers will be young people's directors, leading ministers, and several educators from a number of denominations. In a fifty-minute period each morning, the delegates will be divided by age groups to meet in twelve to fifteen simultaneous forum sessions. A later group of conferences will deal with fifteen or more phases of Christian service in the church and community.

Dr. Peale has been invited to lead the daily Quiet Hour sessions. A united communion service on Sunday morning, July 7, closing day of the convention, will be in charge of Dr. William Hiram Foulkes of Newark, N. J., assisted by ministers of the Philadelphia area.

The program committee is headed by Dr. Harry Thomas Stock, young people's director of the Congregational Christian churches, and a number of ministers, educators, field-secretaries, and younger laymen, representative of the educational and organizational strength of the Christian Endeavor movement.

Following the Philadelphia Convention, a number of officers and delegates will sail for Europe to attend in August the World's Christian Endeavor Convention at Budapest, Hungary.

CORRESPONDENCE

Aberdeen, Idaho, February 13, 1935. Dear Reader: Just where our former correspondent left off reporting of last year's happenings, I can't at the moment relate. But I would like to mention the departure on December 18, 1934, of a very dear member of our church, Miss Lizzie Wiebe. No doubt many of you have heard of her and many of us mourn her early death, but are happy in having known her. In her will, she remembered our Sunday School by bequeathing a sum of money for the purpose of purchasing hymn books for Sunday School use. All members were joyful at the news.

The Sunday School presented a very interesting Christmas program, December 22nd, which closed with a pageant, "The Hope of the World." From it we learned there is no hope, unless Christ comes into our hearts and brings peace, joy and love as water would make the desert bloom or courage to a weary heart.

The Senior and Young People's Choir rendered a cantata, "Peace on Earth," about forty-two voices partaking. The collection received was used for mission purposes.

After the annual congregational meeting which was held December 26th, all officers and members are busy trying to make this the most successful church year ever had.

On January 25th, another meeting was called for the purpose of calling a pastor, as Rev. J. E. Kaufman's term expires on June 1, 1935. It was voted to extend his call to January 1, 1936. His decision has not been handed down to the congregation as to whether he will accept. It was also the wish of the meeting that we might call an outside minister for a week or two of evangelistic services.

Much to the surprise and joy of the congregation and friends, Rev. and Mrs. Kaufman have adopted a two-month-old baby boy, and his name is Kenneth LaMont. He is a fine looking child who, we hope, will bring much joy and happiness to that home. May the Lord bless Rev. and Mrs. Kaufman richly for this fine deed. A surprise shower was given for Mrs. Kaufman by the Ladies' Aid, at which she received many beautiful gifts and advice.

The health of the church members this winter has been very good. We are glad and thankful to see so many of the older ladies able to be out. The community as a whole has not suffered so much from sickness as in other years, although in surrounding towns they have had quite a siege of pneumonia.

We have had more snow this winter and so the water situation for irrigation purposes looks more promising. The report on the coldest weather we've had this winter was 18 below.

During last Sunday morning service, Rev. Kaufman performed baptism on Mrs. Doris Hill Funk, wife of Alvin Funk of this church. She has been a church worker in Dallas, Oregon. Upon her wish and confession of faith this ritual was enacted. The church welcomes her to its membership and may a mutual blessing be derived.

It has been the desire of the joint choirs to give an Easter cantata. Last Sunday, after a meeting it was decided to have the music committee select the cantata and work should commence immediately.

Much joy, courage and strength has been given to the sick and shut-ins this winter by the efforts of the C. E. Bible Class. They have sung at hospitals and private homes, wherever people were unable to get out. May this blessed practice continue! Corr.

Gnadenberg Church, Whitewater, Kansas. Dear Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel. So far in the new year of 1935 little sickness has been reported.

New Year's eve a large group of young people went serenading, which was enjoyed by the serenaders as well as by those serenaded.

New Year's morning we had the pleasure of having with us Missionary Frey and Mr. Johnson, a Hopi Indian, from Arabia, Arizona. Mr. Frey gave us an interesting talk on his pastoral experiences in the mission work. We were also much inspired by the testimony that Mr. Johnson gave of his life before and after conversion.

Many of our church members willingly donated a day's work to re-shingle the roof of our church this winter. The re-shingling proved to be very wise because of the amount of moisture we have had.

Prayer meetings were held during the second week of January. The attendance was poor because of weather conditions.

Our community was well represented at the Bethel College Bible week.

Sunday, February 10, the Christian Endeavor had a special program assigned for youth. It was well attended. After the program the semi-annual business meeting was held. It was reported at the business meeting that our Endeavor had taken part in the sterilizer project for India for the third time. We were very much disappointed at the C. E. Convention last summer when we heard that some Endeavors had not taken part at all.

Moisture has been plentiful all winter. Feed for the stock has been running a little short, but stock will come through all right. Wheat is looking fair, and many farmers are preparing ground for spring seeding.

The Sewing Circle which meets the first Wednesday of every month, met at the home of Mrs. H. P. Schmidt this month.

Reinhold Schmidt, Corr.

Johannestal Mennonite Church, Hillsboro, Kans., February 14, 1935. We are glad that our dear Elder, Rev. John Plenert, is again able to be about after a long period of illness, beginning last June. He occupied the pulpit for the first time since his illness, on New Year's day, when he related his experiences of 1934. In his message he gave recognition and praise for God's mercy and loving care during the past year. We are hoping that he will soon be able to take up full pastoral duties again.

The Ladies' Sewing Society met at the home of Jacob G. Bartels Wednesday, February 6. They have started a library in our church. A few books have been purchased.

Sunday, January 13, Rev. Gustav Frey of Hillsboro preached an inspiring sermon in the German language.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Klassen, January 6.

One of the oldest members of our church Mrs. Andrew Ewert, passed away January 8. Funeral services were held Sunday, January 13.

Abram Albrecht, teacher of the Hillsboro Bible Academy, delivered an inspiring sermon, January 27.

On January 15, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Klassen.

The officers of the Christian Endeavor met at the home of Edwin Unruhs for the purpose of planning their year's work.

Sunday, February 10, Rev. P. H. Unruh from the Alexanderwohl church delivered the morning message. Corr.

Lima, Ohio, January 13, 1935. The work here is growing gradually. We have had a busy time since Thanksgiving. On December 2, Rev. and Mrs. Suckau from Berne, Ind., were with us for all the services, bringing a message in the morning and evening. Communion services were held in the evening. A young men's quartet came with them.

On December 9, the Ladies' Missionary Society held their monthly meeting instead of on Thursday. A short program of music and missionary notes was given, after which a very interesting talk was given by Miss Martha Burkhalter, of her work in India. At present she is on the faculty at Bluffton College. Our thank offering which was sent to the Mission Board amounted to thirty dollars.

On December 23rd the children gave a Christmas program which was very well attended by the parents. We gave the children a treat of candy and orange and each a gift. The money for the treats was furnished by Miss Helena Liechty's class of Berne church and the Primary Department of First Mennonite of Bluffton. The Girls' Missionary Band of Ebenezer furnished dolls. Mrs. Melvin Zimmerly's class of Ebenezer furnished toys for boys. A large box of gifts and clothing were given by different departments of the First Mennonite. We had a very happy time treating the children. We gave in all fifty-one gifts and seventy treats.

At Thanksgiving time the St. John's church near Pandora brought us a trailer full of clothing. At Christmas time the Ebenezer also gave us a load of food. These were given to the needy families in the community.

On Sunday, December 30, the Mixed Chorus of Ebenezer church presented the Christmas cantata, which was well given and also well attended.

The Missionary Society met for its regular meeting in January and had an afternoon of sewing and mending clothes which were donated to us for distributing.

The first Sunday in this year our attendance rose to 50 in number. The second Sunday 40 were present. Our attendance varies a little each week, keeping between 35 and 50. Our largest attendance is usually the children. Very few of the parents are attending, but we hope to win them with God's help through the children.

The children's meeting on Wednesday, which is in charge of Miss Barbara Bucher of Ebenezer church, is well atended. Last week there were 40 present. Bible verses, songs, and Bible stories are taught.

Beginning next Saturday afternoon, Rev. Esau is starting an instruction class for the children over twelve years old.

We wish to thank all for their contributions and their prayers. Mrs. Reuel Bixel, Sunday School Superintendent.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

WE WOULD SEE JESUS

'We would see Jesus, the great rock foundation,
Vhereon our feet were set with sovereign grace;
Jot life nor death, with all their agitation,
:an thence remove us if we see His face.

'We would see Jesus, this is all we're needing;
Strength, joy, and willingness come with the sight;
Ve would see Jesus, dying, risen, pleading;
Then welcome day and farewell mortal night."
—Anna Bartlett Warner.

MENNONITES AND PEACE

Mennonites have historically, and in many :ases practically, been a peace-minded people. n the World War days many of our people ıave borne noble witness to the gospel of peace. Some others have in ignorance which savored ›f fear refused to do anything, but they had ıot thought their way through, they knew not vhy they were pacifists.

During these days when the world is seeing :he rise of dictatorships, nationalisms, and ıeavy defense programs Mennonites should :hink deeply and experientially and spread their nessage of glad news and peace to all men. What are we doing to bear witness? We cannot afford to simply sit by idly until war comes ınd then be passive objectors.

What can we do? We can write and publish fresh meaningful tracts which will educate for peace. Our able leaders in our colleges, pastors n our churches, and teachers in our schools night make a contribution here. Furthermore we might again send out one or more Peace Caravans this summer to spread the gospel of the Prince of Peace.

Another thing we can do is to uphold the hands of our senators, representatives, our President, Secretary of State, and others. In the State of Ohio at the present time the compulsory military training bill is at issue. Some Mennonites, together with others, are contending for optional military training. The lawmakers are telling our representatives "If Mennonites oppose war, why do they not let themselves be heard from, the militarists do aplenty of that"? All of us should make our wishes known to our legislators.

Dr. Sherwood Eddy has just returned from a trip through Europe and the Near East. He contends that Japan is heading for a war, either against America, Great Britain, or Russia. We can do our part in avoiding an "incident" making for war by abstaining from our military maneuvers right in the very face of Japan, out on the Aleutian Islands. He urged all interested in peace to write immediately making their wishes known to our President, to Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, and to Secretary of the Navy, Swanson.

Dr. Eddy continued telling of the terrible years which seem to be lying ahead of China, being threatened on one side by Japan who seems to be determined to take over China, and on the other side by Russian communism which is making its heavy inroads, but in spite of these enemies he continued that he feels assured that China, like the Jew, will continue to live on.

But let all of us do something constructive for peace. What do you suggest, what can we do? Please let us hear from you. A. R. K.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

March 31, 1935

How Does God Guide People Today?

Romans 8:12-14

Men want to know today how they may learn God's will. They read as to how God appeared to Adam and Eve in the garden, at sundry times God appeared through an angel to Abraham, Lot, and Jacob. At other times God spoke to His servants through visions. The author of Hebrews tells us that "God at sundry times and in diverse manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets." The important experience for any man is that he feels assured that he is in such intimate relationship with the Divine that he can be rightly attuned to receive the message God has for him. That is the most inspiring part of the Old Testament when we perceive how men and women experienced God, that is the kind of religion which gave to us the most devotional Psalms and that has inspired men to accomplish tasks which have been more than human.

Quite often we hear men and women bewailing themselves that they do not have the privilege to live in those good Old Testament days when God appeared to men either by vision or through the medium of angels. But these are far more glorious days in that respect than any Old Testament saint ever had the privilege of experiencing. Again quoting Hebrews we read, "God in these last days has spoken unto us by His Son."

God does speak to us today in divers manners. Dreams to most of us are not very meaningful, they often remind us that we ate too heavy a supper before we went to bed, or they reveal some of our innermost unconscious thought and sometimes they are altogether unexplainable. But let no man say that God does not speak to men by visions as he did to Moses through the burning bush. With Moses the all-important necessity was that he was spiritually attuned to see and hear what God desired to transmit to him. What child of God has not heard God speak to him when seated under a favorite tree down in the woods or out in some field, while meditating upon God and His will?

We say God speaks to us through our conscience, and that is true. However, a conscience is by no means infallible, it must be educated. There is the great value of a fine Christian home. God speaks to us through His Book. The Bible is ever seeking to lift us into higher realms of living. But perhaps the most outstanding way in which God speaks to His children today is through His Son. Some men become fanatical in their claims for the Holy Spirit, others think of this Spirit of Christ permeating their lives. Even such a ripened saint like John the author of our fourth Gospel at one time speaks of the Holy Spirit and in the next verse of the Spirit of Christ. The thing that matters is that we know Jesus Christ so intimately that we feel His presence when we pray, when we are in the midst of our labors, and when we call upon Him. In a practical way it does not matter so much as to that theological problem as to whether it is the Holy Spirit or the Spirit of Jesus who has become the Christ or whether they are one and the same. The thing I am concerned about is that I so seek to become like Him in those endeavors I may see Him urging me on to perfection and that inwardly I may feel His strength giving me power to become that which He would have me to be.

Questions

1. Why is the revelation of God to man so desirable?
2. What are some ways in which God revealed Himself in the Old Testament dispensation?
3. Can we learn anything of the divine revelation through history?
4. In what ways may nature reveal God to us?
5. In what ways is Jesus Christ the final revelation?
6. What must be our condition if God will make Himself known to us?
7. How does the Bible reveal God's will?
8. How may we most intimately experience Jesus Christ in our lives?

April 7, 1935

The Consecration Of Jesus

Matthew 3:13-17; John 17:17-19

(Consecration Meeting)

Let each consecration meeting this year be very meaningful. You might have the secretary read the roll of members and have each answer with a testimony of a verse of scripture which expresses some heartfelt praise or loyalty to the Master. The whole program should be deep and devotional, especially in this season of Lent.

The consecration came to Jesus on the banks of the Jordan. It meant for Him the decisive start into His active ministry. Religion, if it is anything is an experience, it means we are going through something for ourselves and something is happening to us. A man knows truly only that which he experiences. Religion dare not be secondhanded. Experience is ham mering truth into shape upon the anvil of your life.

Although Jesus was the divine Son of God, yet He was human and became perfect by means of the experiences through which He passed. He experienced the triumphant majors and also the sobbing minors. He knew all the human agonies except of course that He knew no sin, and yet He passed through real sufferings. He experienced the more common moments of life and also the more outstanding ones.

One day while John was busy baptizing those who came to him, there was one standing in line who, it was immediately evident, was no ordinary man; there was evident a purity and a something in His personality which was markedly different. Even though the baptizer remonstrated, Jesus desired to be baptized. Baptism is a purifying rite. Jesus was stepping down into the ranks of men as their brother. Jesus was allying Himself with men where they were. He chose the point in which He would ally Himself with them at the very time where they were turning away from sin. A man can always be sure that the Christ will meet us at that very point.

When a young man or woman comes to the hour when he or she consecrates the whole self to Jesus Christ it means not only a stepping out, a turning away from sin, but it is also stepping into the path marked out by a loving Father. It may put us into the path of great dangers, but there are also divine blessings in store. The heavens opened for Jesus and he received the divine approval. On two other occasions He was destined to have a like experience, once when on the Mount of Transfiguration and again in that awful garden so near the cross.

Questions

1. Give a brief review of Jesus at the Jordan baptized by John.
2. In what way is baptism a rite of consecration?
3. What are some things involved when we give ourselves to Christ?
4. In what ways was Jesus' consecration a token of becoming our brother?
5. What is meant by John 17:17-19?
6. What should our experience of consecration mean to us?

What a wonderful thing it is to be really men and women of prayer!—J. D. M.

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Illinois

March 31, 1935

What Makes An Act Right Or Wrong?

I Cor. 3:1-10

"Be sure that you are right, then go ahead."

Pre-prayer

That God may give us a mind free from prejudices, so that we may be able to make our decisions as a true child of God.

Paul tells us that although he is able to eat of the meat offered to idols, for he regarded an idol as nothing, yet he had a higher right to give up a personal right because of his weaker brother, who, seeing him, may feel it is right and through his knowledge the weaker brother shall perish—even though Christ died for him. When he does so and wounds his brother's conscience, he therefore sins against Christ. So he will not eat of the meat lest he should make his brother to offend. What does this mean for us? Just this—we may be able to do a certain act as it will not hurt us, but our friend, brother, or someone, who is just watching us, may think that since we can do that act that it is all right and through that may fall into sin and be lost. We as Christians have that higher right to not do such an act because of our brother's weakness, for if we cause our brother to stumble we have sinned and the act is wrong. Jesus said (Matt. 18:6) in teaching His disciples to be humble and harmless, "But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea." So it behooves us as Christians in deciding that we not only think if an act is right or wrong for us, but what influence it may have on others. I am afraid that we Christians have left the bars down and are allowing ourselves to mingle in wordly pleasures more and more until the non-Christian can not see much difference between us and himself, only we call ourselves Christians. One man has said that we can see what an awful crime Judas committed by selling his Lord for thirty pieces of silver, yet many of us today are selling him for much less than that. It may be only for a card game, a drink, a smoke, a dance, movie, good time, neglecting or refusing any church work which we are capable of doing, instead of taking our stand and doing our Christian duty. We can not compromise, as we are plainly told that we cannot serve God and mammon, and again, that it would be better that we were cold or hot than lukewarm. Am I selling my Lord?

Young people of our age are constantly up against the question of deciding whether any particular action is right or wrong. We must learn to apply certain questions, or tests, to help us determine. The following are examples:

1. Will this act spoil my fellowship with God?
2. Will it lessen my influence with others?
3. If applied universally, would it make the world better?
4. Will it keep me from being my best physically, mentally, or spiritually?
5. How will this act effect my respect for myself?
6. How will I feel about it after the act is completed? Will my conscience approve or disapprove?

Upon some such tests as these must we determine our conduct.

Questions

1. Someone has said, "Experience is the best teacher." Must we do an act to find out whether it is right or wrong? Can the experience of others be an aid to us? Do we really use their experiences in making our decision?
2. Someone else says, "Everyone else does it." Does this make an act right because the majority does it? Is majority always right? Does the fact that almost everyone tells "white lies" or exaggerates make lying or exaggeration right?
3. Someone makes the statement, "Let your conscience be your guide." It it always enough to follow our conscience? Why, or why not? Are we sure that our conscience will guide us rightly? How can we be sure?
4. Someone asks us, "Would Jesus do that"? Can we test whether an act is right or wrong by Jesus' teachings? Will they cover every kind of an act? If we ask this question would it help us in making decisions?
5. How do you go about making a decision?

April 7, 1935

When Is My Religion Real?

Jas. 1:22-27; John 4:24 (Consecration Meeting)

God is a spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."

Pre-prayer

O God, may there be something in my life that shall inspire every one who comes within its reach to be his best and do his utmost.

Suppose here we have a case for candles, a casket for these jewels of light and a candle box, neatly fashioned, which closes well and opens readily. I assure you in it are a number of the very best candles, from the most notable makers. There is no handsomer assortment, so let no one despise this display. Here we have capacity, elegance, preparation, and plenty of each. Quite an array of candles! Variety is charming, numbers is cheering, especially of such reputable lightgivers as these. With so many luminaries we need hardly regret the set of the sun.

But suppose we were in a darkened room, would we say, "Here is brilliance! We need no electric light; this beautiful box and its contents abundantly suffice for the enlightenment of this room"? Would it be so?

I, for one, am none the better off with these promising lights, are you? I put on my spectacles, yet there is no improvement. I can see nothing. How can it be—so many candles, and all the very best?

There is no mystery about it — the candles are not lighted. And until they are lighted they can in no wise remove our darkness. Let us look more closely into our collection of candles—all are wonderful. Here is one supposed to be a missionary, another a very cultured individual, doctor, or priest. But without light they are all equally inservicable, as are all human beings without the spirit of Christ. A poor converted lad in a workshop will be of more spiritual use than a parliament of unregenerated men. Little ability set on fire by the light of God may produce greater results than ten talents without divine power.

Herein is great encouragenment, young friends, if you once get a light it will spread from one to another without end. This one lighted candle would suffice to set a hundred candles shining. How the light goes from one another! Piety in a cottage may enlighten a tion. A man, what is he? A man of God, hat is he not? God will not dwell in a house at does not belong to Him.

Though there is much pretense and sham out other things, there is most of it to be und in religion. So many things are taken r granted, or come so easily, in our day, and ligious profession is one of them.

The following questions go deep into personal ligion and all should meditate on their chal-nges.

Questions

Is my religion inherited? That is, do I fol-w my religious practices because it is the ex-cted thing in my family? Am I a part of the urch because I have been brought up that ay, or because I have made my choice for my-lf? Do I have enough real understanding of ligion that I could make a presentation of it someone else? Is my knowledge of Jesus hrist of the sort that I could pass on to an nbeliever and cause him to accept Christ? If, a time of sudden crisis, I would be called on help a person who was dying, what could I y? What does worship mean to me? Do I et a lift when I pray? Do hymns inspire me better living? Does the Word of God fill a eed for me? Can I be conscious of God's pres-nce when I wait and worship?

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

Blackboard and Object Talks

Someone has called the eye "The broker of ne soul." Surely no other faculty brings so uch to the soul of a child as its eye.

Many a child who would otherwise manifest ttle interest in the lesson, will listen in wonder nd amazement as the lesson truths become ear to him through an object or illustration sed.

The Bible is full of object lessons. Ezekiel sed his sword to teach a lesson, Jeremiah the otter's vessel, Ahijah the new garment. The abernacle and its offerings present a great ob-ect lesson.

Jesus used this method, the lilies on the field, he yeast in the bread, the sparrows, the child. So following Jesus' example, we need not hesitate to use the most common things of everyday life to illustrate the Bible truths.

Let us use such illustrations as will correspond to the age and attainments of the child, and make the presentation as attractive as possible. Do not, however, let the objects become so prominent that they become sources of distraction.

A child can be used to illustrate the power of habit. Using a common store cord, tie one strand around the child, have him break it, it is easily broken; tie more strands around him, they are not so easily broken. When a sufficient number are tied around him it will be impossible for him to break them. He finds himself helpless and needs someone to break the cords for him. This shows the power of habit and the need of God's power in our lives to break evil habits.

To the child, bright colors and things in motion are most attractive. Some lessons can be illustrated by the use of colors, as the "Prodigal Son." A gay piece of silk represents him going out to lead a life of gaiety, expecting thus to find happiness. A silver cloth cut out crookedly —spent his money in a wrong way—led a crooked life. An old ragged cloth—he was in want. Yellow—harvest, plenty in his father's house. Purple—he repented. Red—his sin. Blue—he turned back to his father. Red and blue make purple. A heart cut out of red cloth—the father's love for his son. Red—our Savior's sacrifice. Beautifully colored satin—the robe his father gave him. Gold—the ring. "Cut out" —to represent shoes.

The lesson on "Letting our light shine." A flashlight and a number of brightly colored pieces of cloth on which should be written the word each color stands for, such as "envy" on green. Place cloths into the flashlight between the bulb and battery. A good lamp, good bulb, and good battery, but no light. Take out the cloths one by one, showing how things keep our light from shining.

The blackboard is also very helpful in illustrating lessons. One need not be an artist to use the board. A very simple diagram is often very effective. The lines and marks are quickly seized by the child's imagination and formed into a picture.

Maps can be used, the journeys traced, and places located.

Charts can be made from heavy wrapping paper. Cut slots into the chart, into which little figures of the different people or objects can be placed. For example, draw hills and water between to represent the Sea of Galilee. Make a cut-out of boat, place on sea, and move it across on the sea as you teach. Place figures representing Jesus and the disciples into the boat. Make a basket, fish, bread, the boy, a lot of figures representing the people. Make a stub on each figure to fit into the slot.

Models can be made of oriental houses, the tabernacle, the temple, etc.

The primary aim in all our teaching should be to bring the child to Christ, and build him up in Christ.

Catherine Niswander,
Portland, Oregon.

March 31, 1935

Topic.—What It Means To Become A Christian

Phil. 4:4-9

"The King of Love my shepherd is,
Whose goodness faileth never;
I nothing lack if I am His,
And He is mine forever."

Everyone who has become a Christian can sing this truly. Perhaps as you read, some boy or girl is thinking, "How may I know? How does one become a Christian"? John 3 shows the way. Read verses 16-18 and 36. That means not only believe that Jesus lived and died, but that He died for you. He loves you and wants you to be His own child. When one truly believes on Him, that one is sure there is no other way to be saved but just depends upon Jesus altogether. The Daily Readings help us to see the way. Read them carefully.

We like to think, too, of what being a Christian will mean to us. 2 Cor. 5:17 says, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature." Life will be entirely different than if we were not saved. John 3:3 and 7 tell us that we must be changed. That is what Jesus does for us when we believe on Him. He gives new life. A man who did not love Christ one day gave a talk trying to prove there was no such person. When he had finished, another man came to the front saying that he used to be a drunkard and unkind to his wife and children, but Jesus had changed him entirely. His new life proved that Jesus was real.

When one becomes a Christian he has a new friend who understands, helps, and comforts (Luke 4:18). He has a new master. Instead of serving Satan, a Christian does what Christ wants him to do, not because he must, but because of love. A Christian has a new hope, new peace, and new joy. Then he has new interests and new desires. A Christian wants to d differently after he is saved. Life then is really worth living and death is nothing to fear.

Plans for the Meeting

Begin with a careful study of the scripture lesson and daily reading. Base your closing talk on 2 Cor. 5:17. Print the word NEW i large letters on the left hand side of the blackboard, then opposite make a list of new experiences such as Life, Hope, Peace, Joy, Interests Desires, Friend, Master.

Questions

1. What does it mean to be a Christian?
2. How is it possible to become a Christian?
3. What advantage is there in being a Christian?
4. Why does a person live differently after being saved?
5. Tell of a Bible man who was changed b following Christ.

Daily Readings

Repent of sin. Mark 1:15.
Believe. Acts 16:30, 31.
Confess. Matt. 10:32; Rom. 10:10.
Follow. Mark 10:28-30.
Turn against sin. Matt. 18:3.
Change manner of life. Acts 9:20, 21.

April 7, 1935

Topic.—What It Means To Join The Church

Eph. 2:18-22 (Consecration Meeting)

"One day an old man came to a missionary i Uganda, Africa, and said, 'I want to be baptized.' 'Will baptism save us'? the missionar asked. 'Oh, no,' he answered, 'only Jesus wh died on the cross saves.' 'Then what is the us of baptism'? asked the missionary. 'Well,' sai he, 'Christ told us to believe and be baptized and it shows that we want to leave our ba habits and follow the habits of Christ.'"

Last week we spoke of becoming Christian now quite naturally we think of being baptize and joining the church. It is possible to b a Christian without joining the church, bu such a one reminds us of the man who had b come careless about attending service. His pastor visited him one evening while he was sitting before the fire. The pastor quietly took a live coal, set it by itself and watched the blaze die out. The man learned his lesson. Each Christian needs other Christians if he would be at his best. Heb. 10:25.

By joining the church one says to others that he is a Christian and they expect that he shall live differently.

When one becomes a member of a church he promises to be faithful. That means attend service, live as a Christian should live, and help in the work of the church.

Joining the church does not make a Christian, but a Christian is helped and becomes more useful by joining a church where Christ is honored and where he can serve God.

Plans for the Meeting

There is a well known object lesson that will help the Juniors today. Bring to the meeting a bundle of small sticks. Show how easily one is broken. Then show the strength of the bundle when many are tied together. Christians are a greater power when united than when working singly.

Questions

1. Give reasons for joining a church.
2. What are the duties of a member of a church?
3. What do people outside the church expect of a church member?
4. What lessons can we learn from the church of the apostles' time?

CORRESPONDENCE

Saron Mennonite Church, Orienta, Oklahoma. We had a blessed Christmas season. From December 23rd to January 2nd we had revival meetings, conducted by Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander. "He sowed the seed and God gave the increase."

In the evening of December 25th, the church choir sang the cantata "The Heavenly King."

On Sunday, January 27, eight young people were added to the church through baptism.

Rev. J. B. Epp is our minister. The morning services are conducted in German and the evening services mostly in English.

The C. E. Society meets every three weeks on Sunday evening. There is prayer meeting and Bible study every Wednesday evening. The young people have their own organization "Willing Workers" for a Bible study hour once a week.

The Women's Missionary Sewing Society meets once a month. The work consists mostly of making comforts, quilting, and making articles for the annual mission sale. The last sale in November 1934 netted a little over $140.00. Half of this was used for mission and the other half is being used to begin our kitchen project, which is building in cabinets, getting dishes, and a stove. Mrs. August Schmidt, Corr.

Sugar Creek, Ohio. A chorus consisting of thirty-four members, under the direction of Miss Vesta Hostetler, from the Oak Grove church, Wayne County, Ohio, rendered a very inspirational program Sunday evening, February 24, at the Union Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio. The director, Vesta Hostetler, and the members of the chorus should be highly commended for their splendid work and we hope they will come again some time in the future.

Our church is happy to have been able to secure as our pastor, Rev. Wm. Stauffer, who will finish his seminary course at Oberlin College in June. He brings to us a rich store of ideas, many of which, we hope, he will be able to put into practice during the coming year. His fellowship with us, we hope, will prove a rich blessing to him as well as to us.

The church choir of about 25 voices is at present working on an Easter cantata which is to be rendered during the Easter season.

Corr.

WHAT YOU WILL NOT BE SORRY FOR

For hearing before judging.
For thinking before speaking.
For holding an angry tongue.
For stopping the ear of a tale-bearer.
For being kind to the distresed.
For being patient with all.
For speaking evil of no man.
For doing good to all men.
For walking uprightly before God.
For lending to the Lord.
For laying up treasure in Heaven.
For asking pardon for all wrongs.
For being courteous to all.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

March 24, 1935

Peter Describes The Christian Life

Lesson Text.—I Peter 3:8-18

Golden Text.—But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts. I Peter 3:15a.

This epistle of I Peter can best be understood as it is read as a whole. The situation which produced the epistle was the persecution of the Christians. The problem of suffering and its place in life has always been a difficult one.

To Job suffering was for the purpose of testing his loyalty, and to Jesus He suffered and died for others. To the author of I Peter it was to produce Christian virtues.

The persecution mentioned was undoubtedly that of Nero under whose reign both Paul and Peter were killed. There were three kinds of persecution in early Christianity. The first was by the Jews. The second was by individual emperors, such as Nero. Nero wanted to turn the eyes of people from his own guilty deeds by accusing the Christians of his own evils and then persecuting them for it. The systematic governmental persecution began with Domitian at the close of the first century. The chief accusation there was that the Christian would not bow down and worship the "Emperor." The Christians said they worshiped a different "King," Jesus Christ. This was interpreted by the state as treason and lack of loyalty. Thus the persecutions. The Christians looked on the worship of an Emperor as worshiping the "beast" as is stated in Revelation.

Our chief concern, however, in this lesson is how did the Christians react to persecution? A large group of Christians surrendered their faith in Christ and worshiped the Emperor. There were, however, such as are referred to in our lesson who through trials and persecutions became more steadfast in their faith. It is to such that Peter is writing to encourage them to be firm and to look upon their trials as a means by which they can win joy and peace. Peter pleads for a spirit of love and kindness in their attitude towards each other. Persecution should be the means of binding them together more closely in Christian fellowship. He admonishes them to live consistent Christian lives so that the accusations brought agai them may not be true.

All of the admonitions Peter gives can summed up in Paul's great words in 1 Cor. faith, hope, and love. They are to have fa that is an implicit trust in God that He will them through; a hope that will produce w in them courage and optimism, and a love wh will help them to render unselfish service others.

1. What is the process by which Simon, son of Jonas, finally became Peter the ro
2. What was the effect of persecution on early church?
3. Why were the Christians persecuted?
4. Were they persecuted because of their ology or an allegiance to a person?
5. Would the church today be more de spiritual if she were persecuted?
6. What does the Church Father Tertul mean when he says, "The blood of the m tyrs is the seed of the church"?

March 31, 1935

Review—Lessons From the Life and Lett of Peter

Lesson Text.—I Peter 5:6-11; II Peter 3:1

Golden Text.—But grow in grace and in knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Ch II Peter 3:18a.

This lesson is a review of the quarter. E teacher undoubtedly has his own method conducting a review.

A review is not a repetition. It does not m going over the twelve lessons and repea the points emphasized in previous discussi nor does it necessarily mean reviewing lesson. It is rather reviewing, that is view again, the quarter's lesson as a whole. St ing the Bible effectively reminds one of ar dividual standing on a hill viewing the va lying between two hills. Standing on the hill is getting the general view of the quar lessons. Then the individual starts wal through the valley. This is studying the tw lessons from Sunday to Sunday. Now we reached the top of the second hill and we again view the valley as a whole. This is our task today. It is the review. To the writer's mind the outstanding truth of the quarter is Simon becomes Peter; Petros the rock, in the presence of Jesus and the spiritual Christ. He was a shallow, impulsive, wavering man, now he is a man of stability, living in the fellowship of Christ; his conscience controlled by the will of Christ; his work transfigured and he in spite of persecution devoted to his Lord to the end.

1. After having studied all these lessons how would you describe a Christian?
2. What is there in this quarter's lessons to make us better teachers for the next quarter?

April 7, 1935

Some Great Christian Teachings
The Heavenly Father

Lesson Text.—John 14:8-24

Golden Text.—Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him. Ps. 103:13.

Very fittingly we now turn our attention to Jesus' teachings. Last quarter we noticed the possibilities of a life lived in the presence of Christ. Now we discuss great truths that grow out of a Christian experience. The aim of this quarter, as stated by the Educational Committee, is to help the student to understand and appreciate some of the great teachings of the Christian faith and to apply these teachings to the life of today. These teachings are taken from different portions of the Bible and cover many subjects such as the Trinity, faith, the Bible, the church, sacraments, worship, stewardship, and missions.

The foundation of all great Christian teachings, in fact of all religion, is God. The importance of our conception of God lies in the fact that it determines life and destiny. Every person is religious. Religion is the life of God in the soul of man. It is as normal for a soul to hunger for God as it is for the individual to hunger for food, or the mind for knowledge, or the person for companionship. We are made in the image of God. That image may be badly marred by sin, but it is never destroyed. But we become like the God we worship, so it becomes very important as to what kind of God we believe in and worship.

Jesus came into the world to save us by His complete revelation of God. Jesus through incarnation revealed God which is our redemption. He says, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father. I and my Father are one." "I came not to do my will, but the will of Him that sent me." Without Him, Jesus said, He could do nothing. Jesus is preeminent in the realm of the Deity. We know God only as we know Jesus. Knowing God through Jesus is salvation. This is life eternal that they may know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent.

1. What place does God hold in our Christian thinking?
2. What is the relation of Jesus to God?
3. What is significant about Jesus calling God Father?
4. How may we know God most effectively?

"I WILL NOT LEAVE THEE"

God is with us in our sorrows. There is no pang that rends the heart, I might almost say, not one which disturbs the body, but what Jesus Christ has been with us in it all. Feel you the sorrows of poverty? He "had not where to lay His head." Do you endure the griefs of bereavement? Jesus wept at the tomb of Lazarus. Have you been slandered for righteousness' sake, and has it vexed your spirit? He said, "Reproach hath broken Mine heart." Have you been betrayed? Do not forget that He, too, had His familiar friend who sold Him for the price of a slave. On what stormy seas have you been tossed which have not roared about His boat? Never glen of adversity so dark, so deep, apparently so pathless, but what in stooping down you may discover the footprints of the Crucified One. In the fires and in the rivers, in the cold night and under the burning sun, He cries, "I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am both thy Companion and thy God."—Spurgeon.

Willing learners and willing workers who are in God's hands will be used of God to accomplish great things for Him.

Naught have I gotten but what I received;
Grace hath bestowed since I believed;
Boasting excluded, pride I abase;
I'm only a sinner saved by grace.

—Jas. M. Gray.

JOTTINGS

Many churches issue yearly bulletins and church directories which contain information concerning the activities of the congregation and a directory of the membership and congregational officers and organizations. Three publications of this kind have reached the editor's desk; they are from the Swamp, Pa., charge which embraces the West Swamp, Bethany, of Quakertown and Flatland. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander is the pastor. The Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, of which Rev. P. E. Whitmer is pastor, and the Second Church, Philadelphia, Rev. S. M. Grubb, pastor. These little pamphlets have an important part in the congregational life of the churches issuing them.

The Oklahoma Bible School, an institution maintained by Mennonites at Meno, Okla., at a special meeting of its sponsors, decided to build a new schoolhouse. Rev. J. B. Epp has been appointed collector of funds and will be obliged to live near the school. He will move from Orienta to Meno, but will continue to serve the Orienta church as before.

Dr. S. K. Mosiman, who has been president of Bluffton College for 27 years, directing the institution to its present prominence and making of it an outstanding denominational college, announced his retirement at the last meeting of the trustees of the college. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, a graduate of Bluffton College and Witmarsum Seminary, and former pastor of St. John's Church, Pandora, and West Swamp Church, Quakertown, Pa., has been elected his successor. He is the son of Rev. S. M. Rosenberger whom he succeeded as pastor at West Swamp. Dr. Mosiman will continue his connection with the college in another capacity.

Bluffton College talent gave a broadcast over WOSU recently. Music was furnished by Professors Hauenstein and Lantz, Mrs. Sommer, and Mrs. H. P. Mann. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger gave a talk on the aims and objectives of the college.

Isaac Page, district secretary of the China Inland Mission, located in Chicago, spoke at a recent service in the Berne, Ind., church. The China Inland Mission has been carrying on since 1865. The mission has over 1300 missionaries and 3000 native helpers in the work.

The Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference reports for the month of January: Contributions: $8,475.25. Balance in bank, $4,195.88. Gift for General Fund, $6,815.71. Gifts for Orphans, etc., $965.00. Gifts for Ewert, $59.00. Interest and rent, $539.00. Gifts for Pension Fund, $28.50. India Station, (Sundries—J. R. F.), $68.00. Paid on orders, $9,419.82. Remitted direct to India, $300.36. Balance in bank, February 1, $2,950.

The Executive Committee of Mission Societies of the General Conference reports for January: For Foreign Missions, General Fund, $170.57. For Home Missions, $72.50. Expenses of the Executive Committee and News and Notes, $18.66. For India, $409.70. Fo China, $234.00. Miscellaneous, $51.00.

Tabor College, at Hillsboro, Kansas, an institutio under the Conference of the Mennonite Brethren, whic has been closed the past year, plans for a reopenin next fall. Prof. A. E. Janzen of Wichita, Kans., ha been elected president of the institution. Most of th faculty members have already been appointed.

A noteworthy service was held in the Saucon, Pa church, near Quakertown, Pa., of which Rev. Elwoo Shelly is pastor. The message was given by Rev. A. I Rose, a prominent Italian evangelist. The famou Tindley Gospel Singers rendered the music.

The Junior C. E. Society of the East Swamp, Pa church, Rev. W. S. Gottshall, pastor, celebrated it seventeenth anniversary on the evening of March 1 Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander gave the message.

Olin Krehbiel, son of Rev. C. E. Krehbiel of Newto Kans., who was called to the pastorate of the Lorrair Ave. Mennonite church, Wichita, Kans., was ordaine to the Christian ministry, his father officiating, c March 10. Others participating in the service wer Revs. A. J. Dyck, H. P. Krehbiel, and J. J. Plener The Lorraine Ave. church is of recent organizatio has been making steady growth, and promises furth development under the leadership of the new past and his wife.

Goshen College, Goshen, Ind., and Hesston Colleg Hesston, Kans., (Old) Mennonite institutions, in effor to create part time jobs for students and give voc tional training, have installed factories. At Goshen is a shirt factory, and at Hesston it is a broom factor

Dr. and Mrs. Pannebecker, of our China mission, a tended the meeting of the Foreign Mission Board, he in Newton, Kans. While in Kansas it was arrang for them to visit as many as possible of the Kans churches. Their visits are extending from Februa 17th on through the month of March.

Rev. Carl Landes, pastor of the First Mennon Church of Philadelphia, who had resigned at the l ginning, responded to an unanimous request of the co gregation and withdrew his resignation.

The Central Conference Mission Board met at t Bloomington, Ill., Mennonite Hospital, February Very important matters came before the Board at t time. Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Becker, Rev. and M Archie Graber, and Miss Erna Birkey are return from Belgian Congo where they have been serving missionaries under the Congo Inland Mission Board

The Old Colony Mennonites settled in Mexico, close to the scent of a revolution now in progress. battle has been fought with considerable loss both the Federal and the rebel troops near their settleme

Rev. Roy Scott was installed as pastor of the Dan-ers, Ill., Mennonite church.

The Bible Training School of the Central Conference held in thirteen Illinnis churches, progressed nicely. Nearly two hundred registered for the course in the our churches into which the churches had been divided.

Under the auspices of the Harvey County, Kansas, Council of Religious Education, of which J. J. Siemens of Bethel College is president, a six weeks' training school, supported by the Protestant churches of the community, Bethel College, the Ministerial Alliance, and the Newton Public School Administration. The faculty was composed of Dr. P. S. Goertz, Dr. P. E. Schellenberg, of the college, Rev. R. R. Schrieber, Rev. W. S. Keller, local pastors, and Superintendent of Schools, John B. Heffelfinger. The success of this venture called for its continuance next winter.

During the months of February and March, Rev. J. H. Janzen of Waterloo, Ontario, has been engaged in giving lectures on pedagogical and didactical subjects throughout Mennonite churches in Ontario. He is scheduled to do work at Mountain Lake, Minn., and, since he is making the trip by auto, he would appreciate invitations to conduct meetings along the way. He carries with him pictures of scenes of the Russian Revolution, covering the period from 1918 to 1935, which he would be glad to show by projection as illustrations of what he knows intimately about conditions in Soviet Russia. He is prepared to give his message in English.

DEATHS

Sarah Anne Hofstetter, the daughter of Adam and Anna Basinger, was born at Fortuma, Missouri, on November 14, 1870, and departed to be with her Lord, at her home near Pratum, Oregon, February 22, having reached the age of 64 years, 8 months, and 3 days. In the year 1887 she accepted the Christian faith, and on April 8th of that same year she was received into the membership of Bethel Mennonite Church at Fortuna, Missouri. She was married to John W. Hofstetter on August 24, 1905, and came to Oregon in 1920. She united with the Emanuel Mennonite Church at Pratum in 1920. She is survived by her sorrowing husband, three children, also her aged mother, Mrs. Anna Basinger, five sisters, and four brothers. Funeral services were held at the Emanuel Mennonite Church at Pratum, Rev. J. M. Franz, the pastor, officiating.

Elizabeth Waltner Schrag.—Born in Russia, November 11, 1860. Came to South Dakota in the year 1874. She was married to Andrew Schrag in the year 1877. About 15 years ago they transferred their home to Whitman Co., Wash., where the aged couple spent the evening of their life near their children. Her husband, one daughter, and one son preceded her into the Great Beyond. She is survived by 2 sons, 4 daughters, 27 grandchildren. The funeral took place February 16, at the Colfax Mennonite Church. Rev. J. J. Balzer, Rev. M. J. Galle, and P. R. Aeschliman participated in the services.

Robert John Zerger, son of Ben and Marie Zerger, was born March 7, 1932, and died February 26, 1935. Burial was made in the Eden church cemetery, Moundridge, Kansas.

Jonas Delp died at the Moundridge Home for the Aged, at Frederick, Pa., on February 22, 1935. Aged 67 years, 5 months, and 14 days. Funeral services were held at the Home, February 26, by Pastor A. M. Fretz. Interment in Doylestown cemetery.

Mrs. Catherine (Eicher) Sommer, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (Kroff) Eicher, was born near Mulhausen, Alsace, France, June 19, 1846. She died February 25, 1935, at her home near Crawfordsville, Iowa. Aged 88 years, 8 months, 6 days. She accepted Christ and united with the Mennonite church at the age of 14 years. After coming to America she placed her membership in the Emanuel Mennonite Church of near Noble, Iowa. April 21, 1868, she united in the bonds of holy matrimony with Christian Sommer at Pulversheim, France. To this union eleven children were born. The family migrated to the United States in the year 1882, and located in Washington Co., Iowa. She is survived by two sons, four daughters, seven grandchildren, and one sister, who lives in Alsace, France. Funeral services at Emanuel Church, conducted by her pastor, A. H. Miller, assisted by Rev. Elmer Basinger, pastor of Wayland Mennonite Church.

Augusta Rempel, nee Ewert, was born August 10, 1858, in Ober-Nassau, near Thorn in West Prussia. She was the fourth child of Rev. Wilhelm and Anna Ewert. In 1872 she was baptized by her father upon the confession of her faith. When she was sixteen years old her family migrated to America and settled in Kansas. On May 30, 1879, she was united in holy matrimony with Jacob Rempel. She remained a widow for 18 years, less 10 days. She died Saturday, January 26, 1935. Her age was 76 years, 5 months, and 16 days. Those left to mourn her departure are 11 children, 5 sons-in-law, 5 daughters-in-law, 50 grandchildren, of whom 7 have preceded her in death, 9 greatgrandchildren, 1 brother, 2 sisters, and a host of relatives and friends. Funeral services were held in Tabor College Auditorium, with Rev. J. H. Epp, Rev. A. E. Funk, and Rev. P. H. Unruh as speakers.

Mrs. Mary Waltner, daughter of Jacob and Magdalena Kaufmen, was born June 4, 1849, at Gotosovike in Wolynia, Russia. In her youth she received the holy rite of baptism and united with the Mennonite church. She was united in marriage with Joseph Waltner, June 18, 1872. To this union seven children were born, four sons and three daughters. In 1874 during the immigration of the Mennonites from Russia to America, she also was among them. She passed away at her home, January 26, 1935, thus reaching the ripe old age of 85 years, 7 months, and 22 days. She leaves to mourn her departure, 4 sons, 2 daughters, 2 sons-in-law, 3 daughters-in-law, 20 grandchildren (10 grandchildren preceded her in death), 15 greatgrandchildren, 1 sister, 1 brother-in-law, 1 sister-in-law, and a large circle of friends. — Funeral services were held from her home and from the Eden church on Monday afternoon, January 28, 1935.

Joseph H. King, son of Daniel and Mary Hodler King, was born near Carlock, Illinois, on May 2, 1861. He departed this life at Mennonite Hospital, Bloomington, Illinois, on March 5, 1935, aged 74 years, 1 month, 3 days. Death came as the result of heart disease, after confinement in the hospital for two weeks. He was married to Salina Ann Lantz, October 16, 1883, and was the father of three children, two of whom preceded him in death. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Etta Schad, nine grandchildren, and seven greatgrandchildren. Brother King was ordained to the ministry by Rev. Joseph Stuckey on April 17, 1892, and was active in the ministry until very shortly before his death. His ministry of nearly 43 years was spent principally in the North Danvers and Carlock churches. He served the former 14 years, and the latter 8 years. Since retiring from the pastorate of the latter church, he was active in the field secretaryship of the conference and supplied pulpits for churches without pastors. He was one of the ministers who was active in the founding of the Central Conference, the first meeting of ministers which led to the organization of the conference having been held in his home, August 5, 1899. Bro. King was interested in organizational and institutional phases of church work as well as his pastoral duties. In this respect he was one of the pioneers of the conference.

He was a member of the first committee appointed by the conference to have charge of foreign mission work, and was later a charter member of the Central Conference Board of Home and Foreign Missions. He was one of the first representatives of the Central Conference on the Congo Inland Mission Board and served in that capacity many years. He was, moreover, one of the leading spirits in the founding of Mennonite Hospital, Bloomington, Ill., and served as a member of the board of directors until ill health compelled him to retire in the spring of 1933. Besides all these, he was interested in education and when the Central Conference joined in the cooperative movement which resulted in the organization of Bluffton College as a union institution, he was one of the three members of the board chosen by Central Conference.

Throughout the many years of his ministry he was always characterized by a zealous and courageous spirit, and his interest in the progress of the work of the church and conference through its institutions and organizations increased with the years. It is a fact, well attested to those who were most intimately associated with him more recently, that his deep concern for the welfare and progress of the conference and its work helped to shorten his days.

The funeral services for Rev. King were conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. L. Hartzler, assisted by Rev. E. Troyer.

A MEMORIAL

Rev. R. L. Hartzler, Carlock, Ill.

A Sermon That Was Not Preached

It has been well said that the true measure of man's life is not in terms of days and years, but rather in the height of his ideals, the depth of his convictions, the breadth of his sympathies, and the lengt of his purpose. Those of us who knew intimately ou brother and co-laborer, Rev. J. H. King, lately deceased, will agree that in these several respects h lived a life of no small dimensions. Bro. King wa known as a man of much courage. He believed implicitly in the final triumph of truth and right, an was thereby able to engender new hope and confidenc in many another whose heart had grown faint. H entered sympathetically into the problems and burden of his brethren, and gave them the benefit of the lon years of his experience in active Christian leadership His purpose was longer than the span of his physica endurance. He had a message that surged through hi soul seeking utterance, which bodily illness would no permit. A few days before he went to the hospita from which he never returned, he confided to his companion that he had just one sermon which he yet woul fain preach. When told by the doctor that he woul have to quit preaching, he referred to this one sermo and asked if he might not be able to preach it. Afte his death the outline for the sermon was found o his typewriter. The outline follows:

"WHAT IS A USEFUL LIFE"?

1 Cor. 6:19-20

Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with price; therefore glorify God in your body, and in you spirit, which are of God.

What, know ye not that your body is the temple o the Holy Ghost; which is in you, which ye have o God, and ye are not your own?

Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with th might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest.

Useful Lives

Mark 5:19-20—Jesus to the Undemonized. When h was come into the ship, he that had been possesse of the devil, prayed him that he might be with him However Jesus suffered him not, but saith unto him Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great thing the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassio on thee.

Luke 10:33—Priest, Levite, Samaritan, man. Helpful, beneficial, supporting, saving.

Luke 16:19-31—Riches and poverty side by sid Both died, one was carried, the other was buried.

Jn. 6:3—Five barley loaves, two fishes, twelve baskets. Jesus needs our help, that which we give t him is never exhausted.

Two Dangers: Underestimating ourselves; overestimating ourselves.

Standard Measurement—JESUS. Grew in wisdom stature, and in favor with God and man.

A Christian Life—Tit. 3:1-8. This is a faithful say ng, and these things I will that they which have beieved in God might be careful to maintain good works, . . These things are good and profitable unto men.

A Pure Life—1 Jn. 3:3. And every man that hath his hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.

A Purposeful Life—Acts 9:10-16. But the Lord said unto him, Go thy way; for he is a chosen vessel unto me to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Israel.

A Loving Life.—1 Cor. 13:1-13. Now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these s charity. "God is love."

A Consecrated Life—Rom. 12:1-2. I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God.

A Faithful Life—Matt. 25:14-21. For the kingdom of heaven is as a man traveling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods. To one five talents, to another two, and to another one. Reckoning time came. Unprofitable servant cast into outer darkness.

This, in outline, is the sermon that Bro. King never preached; and yet he did preach it. For over forty years by precept and example, he interpreted and emphasized "The Useful Life." Those of us who were wont to hear his words of exhortation and encouragement, now find those words brought back to us by memory, and thus "he, being dead, yet speaketh." Though his entire life was spent in this one community, yet through contacts made and services rendered as field secretary, visiting evangelist, or in relation to some phase of institutional work, his work and influence was widely felt through the churches of the conference, and now that he is removed from us to the land which "eye hath not seen," his "works do follow him," in the lives of us who know and loved him.

MARRIAGE

Basinger-Bunn.—On March 2, 1935, Miss Gladys Basinger was united in marriage with Robin Bunn at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Basinger. Rev. E. E. Toevs officiated.

Moser-Welty.—On March 3, 1935, Miss Wanda Moser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Moser, was united in marriage with Howard Welty. The wedding took place in the home of the bride's parents. Rev. E. E. Toevs officiated.

Wilson-Kulp.—On February 23, 1935, at Perkasie, Pa., by Pastor A. M. Fretz, John Wesley Wilson and Edith Zeigler Kulp, both of Lansdale, Pa.

The work of winning the world to Christ is the most honorable and blessed service in which any human being can be engaged.—C. F. Schwartz.

EASTERN CONFERENCE GREEN LANE RETREAT

Last year there were 116 registered Retreaters at the Boys' University Camp for the Green Lane Retreat. This year we hope that those 116 will return with one friend in addition. We believe that such a goal is not too far out of reach, when we consider the progress our Retreat has made from year to year. Two new courses have been added to the curriculum for two reasons: First, to make a broader appeal to our young people; second, because the groups were getting so large with the added numbers each year.

Following is a brief outline of the Retreat as far as it is completed:

I. Theme: "A CHRISTLIKE SPIRIT AND LIFE."

II. Motto: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect." (Matt. 5:48.)

III. Courses:

1. General "A" Course: "THE LIFE OF MENNO SIMON." Taught by Dr. C. Henry Smith, professor of Bluffton College. We hope this course will do at least two things: First, acquaint our young people with the Founder of Mennonitism; and second, help our young people to make a contribution to the world because of our Mennonite Faith in Absolute Religious Tolerance, Non-Violence, etc. This ought to make every young person in the Conference want to come.

2. Regular "B" Courses.

a. Bible Study. Rev. Howard G. Nyce has been asked, and we hope he will accept.

b. Mission Study. Mrs. C. L. Pannabecker has been invited to teach this course, though her final word has not reached us.

c. Practical Problems of Christian Living. Rev. Ernest Bohn, of Souderton, has accepted our invitation.

d. Course in Music. By Prof. Russell Lantz, of Bluffton College, who needs no introduction to our young people who learned to know him through the Bluffton College Glee Club. Prof. Lantz will also be our Retreat Chorister and song leader. We hope this course will appeal to many who are interested in music.

Since Course "A" is a Church History course, we have no course "B" in History.

Friday evening will open the Retreat with the "get-acquainted" hour, under the direction of Mrs. Edith Ross of Philadelphia. The devotional address will be delivered by Dr. R. J. Langston, a negro pastor in Philadelphia.

Saturday afternoon will be a recreational period, planned by the recreational director, Mrs. Ross. Saturday evening there will be a drama by the three churches of the Swamp Charge, followed by the Retreat Communion Service, which we hope to have in charge of Rev. Allen Fretz of Perkasie.

If this program interests you, get in touch with your booster, your pastor, or with the Chairman or Secretary of the Retreat Committee for 1935.

Invitingly Yours,

Carl J. Landes, Chairman, Philadelphia.
Hulda Myers, Secretary, Quakertown.

EASTER GREETINGS

Lovely, New Easter Folders

WITH CHOICE SCRIPTURE TEXTS

Easter Greetings

No. 9535

Every Christian's hope of eternal life is based on the resurrection of our Lord. Easter's true import is to recognize and glorify the risen Christ.

Nothing could be more appropriate than to send these lovely folders to your friends. They are attractively designed and produced in many colors. Each folder carries an appropriate passage from the Bible in connection with a meaningful Easter sentiment.

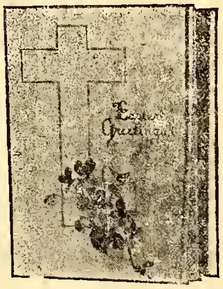
Happy Easter

No. 9542

Honor Christ at Easter Time!
Use Scripture-Text Greetings!

Envelopes included—Only 5 cents each

No orders accepted for less than 25c



No. 9533

No. 9635—Easter Greetings—Lavender cross and white lilies. Choice sentiment and Bible verse of I Cor. 15:20. Size 3½x 3½. With envelope......5c

No. 9533—Easter Greetings—Silver cross and lavender violets. Bible verse is Job 19:25. Size 3½x 4½. With envelope......5c

No. 9542— Happy Easter—Beautiful lilies and insert of quaint church in charming colors. Bible verse is Phil. 4:4. Size 3¼x4½. With envelope 5c

No. 9547—At Easter Time—A cheering folder that shows home on hill, flowers, and birds. Bible verse is Rom. 6:23. Size 3¼x4½. With envelope 5c

At Easter Time!

No. 9547

PRETTY EASTER CROSSES

Choice Scripture texts—Colorful designs

Envelopes furnished

3 cents each

Dainty die cut Easter crosses lithographed in many beautiful colors. Size 2¾x4¼. Each cross comes with envelope. Suitable for gifts, rewards, or greetings. Each of the five different designs illustrated carries a different greeting and Bible verse. All orders are shipped assorted. You'll be pleased. Each cross is of equal value.

3 cents each assorted, or 30 cents a dozen

(No orders accepted for less than 30c)

Fine for Sunday-school rewards to classes or groups

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO

The MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

MISSIONARY NUMBER

THE MENNONITE
AND THE
CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, APRIL 2, 1935 No. 7

"FIRST OF ALL"

"I exhort, therefore, that first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men; for kings, and for all that are in authority." I Tim. 2:1.

Yes, that is number one in mission work: Thanksgiving and prayer. The chief motive of missions must always remain gratitude for the "Good News," the Gospel, which is for all men.

It is noteworthy that in the above passage from Paul he mentions not only all men in general, but singles out the rulers from all the rest as a special object of prayer. They are the only class of people he mentions by name. Why? The context shows that Paul makes the rulers largely responsible for conditions on earth that make the work of "saving all men" possible. The climax of this passage (verses 1-4) is this: "Who will have all men to be saved." That is the ultimate aim of the above prayers.

Reading the following reports, especially those from among the Indians, will show why this is so, and it will undoubtedly stimulate to increased prayers for our government. In China also is danger, that the government may again oppose religious instruction in all schools.

Last year 268 souls were won for Christ on our three mission fields. Praise the Lord!

For the Condition of Our Treasury

we are also thankful. All payments for the first quarter have been made.

But within a few weeks the next quarter's payments are due, and we need for then some $15,000.00.—The Easter mission festivals will, no doubt, help so much.

REPORT OF THE FOREIGN MISSION BOARD MEETING

Held in Newton, Kansas, February 19-22, 1935

The meeting was opened by the President of the Board, Bro. J. W. Kliewer. He read I Cor. 16:9, and emphasized the open door on tne one hand, and the adversaries, or difficulties, on the other, after which followed a brief season of prayer.

There were present, J. W. Kliewer, M. Horsch, P. P. Wedel, G. T. Soldner, A. P. Waltner, J. E. Regier, and P. H. Richert of the Board, and of the Women's Mission Society Mrs. R. A. Goerz and Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz. For a while also the brethren S. M. Musselman and Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannabecker from China.

1. Resolved, Whereas God in His wise providence has seen fit to call to her eternal reward, the beloved wife of the president of our Mission Board, we herewith express to Bro. Kliewer our hearty sympathy. We cherish in loving memory her acts of kindness to our Board. We rejoice at the assurance that she is reaping the reward of her labor, and bring to our attention the fact that her passing is another challenge to us to continue faithfully in the work the Lord has entrusted to us.

2. Resolved, to have no session tomorrow afternoon in recognition of the funeral of a warm mission friend, Mrs. Clara K. Haury, Bethel College, sister-in-law of Bro. Kliewer, but meet in the evening at seven o'clock.

The treasurer, Bro. J. E. Regier, read his report. The following is a brief resume of it:

RECEIPTS

General Fund	$49,443.22
Orphans	5,042.89
Mary Y. Burkhard	359.24
August Ewert	267.11
China Relief	77.00
Interest and Rents	3,365.88
E. Kuhlman	25.00
Musselman, Trustee	211.65
Pension Fund	77.90
Refund Account	1.00
Sundries	1,101.73	$59,972.62
Balance in Bank, January 1, 1934		16.89
Total		$59,989.51

March 5, 1935.

Dear Brother Krehbiel:

We have received the literature concerning the Diamond Jubilee of the General Conference. The council of our church is arranging to present the appeal to the church. We are in sympathy with the effort your committee is putting forth. I was instructed to write you, stating that we shall endeavor to give our assistance in this good cause.

May the Lord bless you in all of your labors. I am,

Fraternally yours,
A. E. Kreider.

DISBURSEMENTS

General Fund	$53,032.53
Orphans	24.00
Mary Y. Burkhard	42.19
August Ewert	1,037.50
China Relief	77.00
Interest and Rents	277.58
E. Kuhlman	25.00
Musselman, Trustee	211.65
Refund Account	1.00
Sundries	1,065.18	$55,793.63
Bank Balance, January 1, 1935		4,195.88
Total		$59,989.51

3. Resolved, to accept the treasurer's report with thanks and with special recognition of his doing this work gratis and efficiently.

4. Resolved, that we, the undersigned, members of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, at a meeting fully and regularly called, do hereby ask the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America to authorize the firm Branine, Branine & Ice, attorneys, to institute such proceedings as in their discretion may be necessary to re-convert the institution's beneficial interest acquired under and by virtue of the will of Katherine M. Krehbiel in and to the South Half of Section Twenty Three, Township Twenty Two, Range Two West, Harvey Co., Kans., from personal property to real property.

5. Resolved, that the Board authorize its Executive Committee to handle the Board's royalty matter on the So. ½ of Sec. 23, Twp. 22, R. 2 West.

China

When this field was discussed, Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannabecker sat with the Board by special invitation.

6. Resolved, to accept the China budget of Mex. 29,870.00 (approximately $9,956.66).

7. Resolved, to send Brother and Sister S. F. Pannabecker back to China this coming fall, 1935, if possible in time for the opening of the Bible School.

8. Resolved to ask Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannabecker to return to China as early in 1936 as his school plans permit, i. e. not later than in the fall of 1936.

9. Resolved, to permit Sister Frieda N. Sprunger to come home on furlough this year, 1935.

10. Resolved, to accept point 20 in the China report which separates the salaries of the Chinese workers from the rest of the budget.

11. Resolved, in answer to point 16 in the China report to assure the missionaries in China of our willingness to comply with the request for a young couple to be sent to China as soon as possible.

12. In regard to Miss Goertz's furlough request—Resolved, that we recommend that she spend her furlough in America. so that the churches may have the benefit of her visits and that she might have the contact and fellowship of our people, and also engage in such line of study and preparation for such work as the Workers' Conference will assign to her.

13. Resolved, to accept the China Workers' Conference report as far as it has not been acted upon otherwise.

14. Resolved, to accept Miss Linda Brown as Mission Candidate for China.

India

15. Resolved, to accept the India budget of Rs. 29,390 (approximately $11,090.00).

16. Resolved to comply with the request in No. 1 of the India report, and to send a young couple there as soon as possible.

17. Resolved in regard to the second bungalow at Basna, to continue collecting money for it in addition to what has been collected, but that we do not build before the money is practically in sight.

18. Resolved to grant the request No. 6 in the India report to affiliate with the Southern Asia United Business Office, Bombay, as they request.

19. Resolved that Sister Agusta Schmidt be ask to return to India in 1935.

20. Resolved to ask Sister Martha Burkhalter return to India in 1935.

21. Resolved that it shall be the policy of the Boa that it will pay the return fare to America for missio aries' children who reach their twenty-first birthd while on the field only in such cases where the ch dren in question shall have left America prior to the fifteenth birthday, and remain on the field not long than the time of the regular term of service of tl parents.

22. Resolved, that the secretary correspond wi India about point 7, regarding a Rest House.

23. Resolved to accept the India Conference repo in so far as it has not been acted upon otherwise.

Oklahoma

24. Resolved to correspond with the Oklahoma mi sionaries regarding the buying of a mimeograph print the Messenger, and to ask them to make i quiries about it.

25. Resolved to accept the Oklahoma budget a follows:

Cantonment, Fonda, and Longdale—
Current expenses	$150.0
Native help	250.0
Total	$400.0
Thomas and Canton Arapaho—
Current expenses	$125.0
Native help	250.0
Deficit, 1934	53.6
Total	$428.6
Clinton and Hammond—
Current expenses	$150.0
Native help	400.0
Total	$550.0
For printing the "Messenger"	150.0
Grand Total	$670.0

Montana

26. Resolved to accept the Montana budgets a follows:

Lame Deer and Birney—
Current expenses (Lame Deer)	$150.0
Native help (Birney)	200.0
Native help (Lame Deer)	100.0
Busby—
General expenses	120.0
Ashland—
General expenses	100.0
Total	$670.0

27. Resolved, to grant a year's furlough to V. Petter.

28. Resolved, that the matter of supplying a substitute in Ashland for Bro. V. Petter be left to the Executive Committee.

29. Resolved, to approve of a plan, according to which a fund of special gifts is being collected. and almost completed, as a gift to Bro. R. Petter for his seventieth birthday, so that he can take a trip home to Switzerland. where he has not been since he came to America. His furlough is herewith granted.

Arizona

30. Resolved to accept the Arizona budget as follows:

Oraibi—
Native help	$120.00
Orphans	100.00
Hotevilla—
Painting church and house	75.00
Fuel in chapel	15.00
Incidentals	20.00
Moen Copi—
Fuel	60.00
Total	$385.00

31. Resolved, to ask Bro. Johnson, whether there is ny possibility for him to work some land for helping upport his family.

32. Resolved, to approve Dan Schirmer's plan to ome east to see an eye specialist, and at the same ime to visit some churches on the way.

33. Resolved, to refer to the Women's Mission Asociation the request to solicit funds for a stereoptican or the Arizona field.

General

34. Resolved, to accept the total budget for 1935, mounting to $65,960.00, with the understanding that we continue the policy of making no debts.

35. Resolved, that all furloughs as recommended by the various Workers' Conferences be considered as of regular order beginning January 1936, and the Board hopes to grant all in their regular order.

36. Resolved, to lay the completion of the Hand Book for missionaries in the hands of the Executive Committee.

37. Resolved, to print the next report to the General Conference sufficiently in time to send one or more copies to each church.

38. Resolved to employ a full time secretary, invite the Home Mission Board to join in the project, and so report to the General Conference.

39. Resolved, to instruct the secretary to embody in his report to the General Conference a recommendation to accept the native churches as members of the General Conference.

40. Resolved, to extend to Bro. S. M. Musselman a vote of thanks for his good work on the Hand Book, and invite him to send in his bill.

41. Resolved, to extend to Bro. J. R. Funk, Drake, Sask., a vote of thanks for his good services as Assistant Treasurer for Canada, and we ask him to send in his expense bill.

42. Resolved, that we appreciate very much the help of the Executive Committee of the Women's Missionary Association, which shows such a fine spirit of cooperation. We thank them and all other mission friends, whether they be churches, Sunday Schools, C. E. Societies, or individuals. Depression is not yet over, and in such times real mission friendship is tested as by fire.

43. Resolved, to thank the Kansas State Bank officers for the free use of its fine session room.

44. Resolved, to thank the Lord for His sustaining grace in the work, so that last year all the missionaries on the field could be paid in full, and all the budgets also. May it be so also in this current year, for which we had to increase our budget somewhat on account of the unusual number of furloughs and return trips. The income last year was $60,000.00, and the budget for this year is $65,000.00 in round numbers. Can the kind mission friends exert themselves this much more? It means an increase of almost 10% over last year. The increase of the number of souls gathered in last year over that of the previous year is more than 10%. Praise the Lord! "Continue in prayer"!

45. Resolved to adjourn. — The secretary led in the closing prayer.

J. W. Kliewer, President.
P. H. Richert, Secretary.

INDIA

Champa, C. P., India, January 8, 1935.

The G. C. Mennonite Mission Board,
Goessel, Kansas.

Dear Brethren:— Greetings from India for this new year, just opened! May this bring to you rich joys in service.

This letter is to reach you at the time that the report of our conference comes into your hands. It is to be a covering letter to Resolution No. 1, dealing with the need for more missionaries. The Conference felt that a simple resolution, without any reason for the urgency of this important matter, would be insufficient. We believe that you will agree to this.

Now, we are well aware of the fact that it seems rather presumptuous on the part of your India workers to ask for more missionaries when the financial situation is so critical, yes, when the Board has not been able, until now, to make up even the loss on exchange of the budget for 1934. But we are not presumptuous, neither are we ignorant of nor indifferent to the stringency of cash. We realize fully that you are working heroically to meet the demands or at least requests of this and other fields. Then, too, we want to assure you and the churches that we gratefully acknowledge the sacrifices that are being made, especially on the part of some. But even so, we believe that our God is still living, that it was HE who started the work in India, and this being so, He MUST and WILL take care of it. Can you visualize the change that has come over this section of India during the last 34 years? Think of it, in 1900 there was not, to our knowledge, a single Christian within the area that we now claim for the General Conference. Now, the number will be nearly, if not over, 2000. In 1900 not a single school or other institution. Now, two Anglo-Vernacular and a number of primary schools, in all of which Christ has the preeminence. Think of the number of Bible women, preachers, and evangelists who are in word and song bringing the message of salvation to the thousands of non-Christians. Think of the large Leper Home with its 525 inmates, two thirds of whom are Christians. Think of the growth of the Indian church in the line of self-support. We are by far not near the goal, but three pastors are now working shoulder to shoulder with your missionaries. God has done wonders, great wonders in India. And what about the future? "Bright as the promises of God." This morning, Bro. Wiens said to me, "I am going to have my camp at such and such a place, because the people are restless." He meant that they are tired of Hindooism. On all sides there are signs of an awakening and of an influx into the Christian church. Recently a fairly well-to-do man called into his home 250 or 275 people belonging to his caste for the purpose of discussing how they might bring about some reforms into their religion. What does THIS indicate? A dissatisfaction with things as they are. They are signs that Christ is going to have the victory. I might continue in this strain for some time, but this is sufficient to prove that the God El Shaddai, the Almighty One, is working mightily in our midst. Think of it, during the Christmas holidays every station reported baptisms. In one station a non-Christian, not of a low caste either, was so happy when he was told that on a certain day he would be baptized, that he jumped into the air and shouted for joy. In the Leper Home we have baptized 71 lepers at one time, and while this is being written, 62 are asking for baptism.

Brethren, we are working in the harvest field right now and we must have more reapers. We say we MUST have them. Is this work to dwindle down to a lower level? Shall the non-Christians really say: "Da, da, das sehen wir gerne"? Psalm 35:21. Shall we admit defeat on the eve of great victory? Never! That is not the wish of the Conference nor of the Mission Board. If the work is to continue, foreign workers will be needed for years to come, if in no other capacity than to preach and to guide the growing church. Hence our plea for more workers.

But the foregoing has been somewhat general, may we now give our reasons for asking for workers at this time?

1. Some of the present workers are not as young as they were. We do not wish you to infer from this that those that have been on the field for a number of years are incapacitated for energetic and aggressive work, but it does mean that the time is nearing where they will not be able to shoulder a young man's burden. One of our number is nearing the forty years service mark, and although he is trying to do justice to his end of the work, yet by his own admission he maintains that it is not as easy as it was.

2. We need more workers, because until now the field has been too much undermanned when some were on furlough. This is especially true of the year 1934. Drs. Bauman, Miss Burkhalter, and the two Schmidt sisters furloughs seriously crippled our work.

3. Without desiring you to come to any conclusions, is there not a possibility of some dropping out by reason of ill health and age?

4. We feel, also, that the time between the arrival of the last workers and the present time is too long. New, young blood with a vision and with enthusiasm is sorely needed.

5. It must not be forgotten that a missionary is not in a position to assume responsibility immediately upon his arrival on the field. Two years of intensive language study are the minimum of preparation. We believe that such new recruits ought to have a year or two beyond that in order to fit into the harness.

6. This is not merely an emergency plea when we ask for more workers. We have all along realized that the field here is undermanned. Vast parts of our field are unevangelized. These are open to the message, albeit with opposition.

We believe that the above reasons are sufficient to impress upon the Board the need for more workers. The first question that will arise after the reading of this letter will be: That's all right, but where are the funds to come from? We do not know, but we believe that if the Conference knows about our need and will unite with us in genuine intercessory prayer, that the funds will in some unexpected way be forthcoming.

In conclusion one word, which we do hope will not be misunderstood by the Board. It has on its minutes or in the rules governing missionaries one that states that men who have at least a B. A., shall be sent out. This is agreed to. But it is possible to find B. A.'s without evangelistic zeal. To send such a man out would be unfortunate. We want first and foremost men on fire for the lost in India, men and women who have a message born of conviction and experience. We are stressing evangelism more than anything else at the present time. It is remarkable how the Representative Missionary Council of our area at its last session recently held in Jabalpur, stressed intensive evangelism, and this is an indication that more than ever missionaries are beginning to realize that evangelism must have a larger share in the activities of the missionary. Not that this has been neglected in the past, not at all, but it would appear that the opportunities for evangelism are greater and the harvest ready to be gathered. Please, pray, and then SEND out more workers.

With most cordial greetings we are,
Yours for India and its needs,
P. A. Penner, Chairman,
P. W. Penner, Secretary,
Executive Committee for Conference.

COMPOSITE OF 1934

In spite of the disappointments and discouragements which have been again the lot to cope with, it is evident that there are sufficient signs to rest assured that in the mission field happened what the apostle Paul I Thess. 1 mentions: "For they themselves show (relate) what manner of entering—" has taken place among the multitudes surrounded by. And why? Because "for our gospel came not in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Ghost; and in much assurance" to carry not only the banner, but causes the citadel of sin to shake. This has been the case that some "Became followers . . . of the Lord, having received the Word in much affliction, with joy of the Holy Ghost." What signs of the times!? There is noticeable a decided greater stir among the Christians to gather their own people in; again the general public shows a hopeful tendency towards Christ. A village only 12 miles away with more than 20 homes give reason to believe that all will enter the Christia church soon. Another certain area bends to embrac the Christian religion. More souls could be baptize than since many years. God deigned to use sinfu creatures and has not only doled out grains (blessings, but poured streams of blessings which mac possible the work accomplished.

The General Conference Mennonite Mission area ha six main stations where missionaries reside, coverin about 5000 square miles, a very large portion is dens jungle infested with obnoxious animals both small an large. There are a bit more than 2500 villages embracing nearly or more so 650,000 of India's population, made up mostly of the lower castes, comparatively few Mohammedans. The Satnami caste, emerge from the leatherites, among whom the missionary activities run quite strong, constitute a good percentage There are 66 villages with some Christians, only a littl more than 2½% of all villages; the Christian community numbers 2,286, a trifle less than ⅜% of the entire population. These are small proportions indeed May such a situation not dishearten, the Lord disclosing that such proportions shall exist constantly, nevertheless reminds us that His flock acts as the salt an light. "Have salt in yourselves" (Mark 9:50).

The mission is established here to evangelize. Fo this huge task insurmountable by human strength an wisdom we have now 11 male and 14 female missionaries on the field, approximately for every 26,000 soul only one. Then also there is a regular Indian staff (27 males and 17 females who devote all (or nearly so time not so much to disseminate the Gospel, but t preach and teach what the public has repeatedly hear then to be engaged in follow-up work. There liv scattered many more interested souls from what th missionary knows. Besides this above number (workers the laymen bend to be a band of soul-winner Probably nearly 50% of the baptism candidates wer won by the latter. A highly encouraging feature the organization of committees for this very purpose and the churches begin to call workers for this important cause. There will in the near future be settin aside a special group. More than 500 villages wer served with the Gospel. The Bible women reporte nearly 2,500 homes visited. The seed which remaine in the various places besides the spoken Word are 1 Bibles, 65 Testaments, 957 portions of Scripture (mainly Gospels), and 3000 tracts, leaflets, etc. The powe of the Gospel must spring up to command greate proportions.

Next to this the mission sees its obligation to stres education among the growing generation. Presentl the mission operates primary and middle schools, fo two of them the church furnishes 50% of the expenses another school functions altogether under church management; other seven schools are run with privat funds. The attendance of these last seven is ver meager: from 10 to 20 scholars, the masters have t get along with exceedingly low remuneration; but it a commendable beginning and needs to be strongly encouraged. There are many more such openings available. In all these schools sat in the primary depar ment 546 scholars, in the middle school departmen 104. Bible teaching receives greatly energized attention more so than heretofore, special courses are prepared and taught under cautious supervision. Bib knowledge must lead among the Christian communit if the spiritual life shall thrive.

The Bible School receives from these centers youn men and women for a three-year training, justifyin the name for religious work. This year 19 students a tended the school, two came from the neighborin mission. All these students are supported by the var ous churches; besides the instructors and touring expenses the mission supplies no outlay.

With the educational phase are linked up industria enterprises. At first these were looked upon by th India public as side issues, however; this view ha changed completely, the general public realizes tha each person ought to learn more how to increase its usefulness in life. The depression is forcing not to specialize in one or two aims, but to generalize in order to meet the occasions successfully. Wherever the industrial schemes have received due trial, the interest increased perceptibly in the right direction.

The work done consists in spinning thread for weaving, knitting, crocheting, embroidering, sewing, weaving, mat-making, cotton work, cooking, carpentry, gardening, smithery, farming, agriculture, tailoring. The boardings nowadays are getting there fast to help themselves in almost every respect. Clothes are being made.

The mission outside of the Mission to Lepers pays no one in any institution away from our mission. It is a joy to observe that on private support there are attending in other mission and government institutions: Middle School 8; High School 6; Normal Training 1; Colleges 2; Vocational Schools 8; Handicrafts 2; Medical 3; Nurses' Training 3. This reversion from foreign to domestic funds and support offers most encouraging outlook.

The Leper Home largely supported by the Mission to Lepers, operated by our mission, shelters 526 inmates. Of these 351 take special treatments either to stem the process of the disease or to eradicate it. Eleven could be dismissed relatively cured; they now may move among others freely, yet are under supervision. Hence in all 68 have been pronounced symptom free since the treatments began years ago. During the year 73 confessed their faith in Christ through baptism; out of these 71 in one day during October. The church has now 333 members. In the home two primary schools are operated; a Sunday School with 13 teachers and officers and an enrollment of 523. The church is alive to soul-winning, relief work, etc. A very good and hopeful spirit prevails.

The mission operates six dispensaries and two hospitals. They registered having treated 13,044 patients, besides these a huge number whose names were never written down. In-patients were 882. There are now three missionary doctors and one Indian lady doctor with another additional help consisting of 16 men and 7 women. Lately two Indian Christian doctors opened private practice in the Champa village. The medical phase is a medium to spread the Gospel through word and the printed page, going out into distant places where little direct mission work otherwise is performed.

There now function seven fully organized churches with several filials who in the near future may look after their own household. During the year 141 baptisms resulted, largely won by laymen and women. The entire membership rose to 1,310; Christians in the area, but not members in our churches 81; unbaptized children 895, bringing the total Christian community up to 2,286. The Korba church elected and ordained their pastor out of their midst; the last church meeting voted also his support to come from the church treasury. Committees are formed, organizations effected, concrete activities go on record for more energetic soul-winning and self-propogating.

Twenty-four Sunday Schools with a complete Indian officer staff are making effective history. The teachers and officers number 109, controlling an enrollment of 1,615. Most of these attendants are non-Christians. In the Senior department the international lessons find full usage, also the Intermediates, the Junior departments begin to use other courses specially arranged. The Sunday Schools are self-supporting

Other organizations do their share to give deeper Christian living more prominence as the Christian Endeavor with 257 members; Girl Guides 36; W. C. T. Union 33. This organization shall be stressed more to attract the entire church. Bible Union with 45. The Prayer League is coming forward strongly. Through these and the church various evangelistic campaigns besides the regular touring were instigated. Very special mention deserves the Passion Week when something like 90% of the entire community voluntarily mustered out. Huge gatherings listened to the salvation story, hundreds of Gospels found their way into the hands of the villagers who had heard repeatedly the story, but saw such an enthusiasm and liked to read for themselves.

The Indian Church Conference Home Mission enjoyed also two baptisms. They now operate two stations. It is remarkable how enthused the staff works in the jungles and among the hills looking up the scattered villages. Their eagerness has much to be commented on. That mission erected new living quarters and sunk a well also.

The financial aspect always commands a great deal of attention, the money situation must be taken into due consideration. The collections help to somehow recognize the spiritual atmosphere. The receipts run like this:

The monthly church fees	Rs. 2,011- 5-0
The Sunday service collections	1,000-00-0
The special offerings	592-14-6
The Poor Fund collections	68-14-2
The Sunday School collections	348-12-2½
The General School Fund receipts	64-10-0
	Rs. 4,086-7-10½

Most praiseworthy it is that the total excess that of last year by Rs. 258-00-6, however, still Rs 70-00-8½ less than what it was in 1932. We must be specially elated over these returns when it remains true that salaries and other incomes were constantly decreasing. The art of giving and learning to sacrifice for Christ's sake increases greatly and must not be forgotten, but we must be thankful that tithing gains importance in theory and wonderfully in practice.

May these remarks create within us all a new eagerness to much more prayer, intercessory prayer for the strengthening of the Indian Christian church, see within herself greater possibilities which need to be mobilized toward the calling of more real active leaders and followers; then to gather new courage for mission work among the unsaved. The Spirit of God works most effectively. "May we be found worthy to be called the embassadors of Christ."

Yours for service, P. W. Penner,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Janjgir, C. P., India, January 10th, 1935.

MONTANA

A "Gala" Day In Lame Deer

On February 19th, Brother and Sister Habegger, with two of their children, arrived early in the day. The others were in school. Our household was busy with preparations for a birthday dinner when they came. Valdo, Laura, and their three small children arrived from Ashland somewhat later.

All were keyed up to great expectations, held well in bounds until the proper day should arrive. We greatly feared that the little ones, who were so eager to share everything with "grandfather," would suddenly blurt out something and "let the cat out of the bag." But they were little darlings. Evidently they had been perfectly schooled by their parents.

The possibility of an Indian funeral in the afternoon did not fit into our plans for the day, but God graciously directed so that it needed not to be until on the morrow.

With merry chatter of children, radio, a bounteous birthday dinner the centerpiece of which was an elaborately decorated birthday cake furnished by Laura and Valdo, also ice cream which the Habeggers brought and which we topped off with choice strawberry preserves I had brought in the back of my coupe when returning from Washington last fall and which had been carefully stored in the cellar for a very special occasion, helped to make a "gala" day indeed.

Mr. Petter seemed to forget the aches of his rheumatic leg that has bothered him for a few weeks. The mail had interesting messages from near and far, but none finer than the German poem Sister Hillegonda had written especially for the occasion. It will appear later in the Bundesbote.

Bro. Habegger kept "pumping" Mr. Petter about his "Schweizer-Heimat," his early experiences, his studies, etc., with a very obvious purpose to those of us who were initiated, but all unknown to Mr. Petter. The Habeggers excused themselves rather early in the afternoon, and went home. Valdo, Laura, and the children stayed on, but were very indefinite in their plans of staying for the night or of going home.

While they and the children entertained Mr. Petter, I was busy with many things in preparation for the evening. I had already smuggled cups and extra chairs from government quarters into the church. In a way it was well that Mr. Petter was slightly lamed, else he would certainly have investigated why smoke appeared from the chimneys at the church. At supper he searched all over the house for the decorated birthday cake, which, we had suggested, should be left uncut at noon, offering a fine fruit cake as substitute. However, I had to place it on the supper table, though immediately afterward I took it to the church, having again been successful in postponing the cutting.

Darkness came on. The "Philco" entertained beautifully, so also did Laura, Valdo, and the children. Mr. Petter finally insisted that the fretful baby be put to sleep. Later he suggested, "Let's all have evening worship together and go to bed." However, he had once remarked about more autos than usual coming into the church yard — to turn around, as he supposed.

At 7:30 the crowd had gathered. Kerosene lamps and candles kept the church dimly lighted. Cakes and sandwiches brought by the guests were handled by two white ladies in the rear room of the chapel. Coffee was being prepared for at least 100 people on the large range in the hospital kitchen. The nurses had assumed the responsibility for that.

At the appointed time the Indian Chief of Police, who is also a dear brother in faith and a preacher in the pulpit, stepped over to the house and said to Mr. Petter: 'Put on your coat, brush your hair a little, and come over. You're wanted." Mr. Petter meekly obeyed, but with a questioning "Why"? The policeman was ready with an answer: "Your friends, the Engles from Sheridan, are out there and want to see you."

At the small gate leading to the church, Mr. Petter noticed a number of autos on the north side of the church (most of them were parked on the south side), but mentally he explained to himself that Meneha (my Cheyenne name) had some kind of "doings" with the young folks, as she often has.

Not until he pushed aside the curtains separating the rear room from the main audience room, and Frank, who was so instructed, had flashed on the electric lights, did it dawn upon him that he was the victim of a REAL SURPRISE.

Little Helen Habegger stepped up and presented him with the beautiful bouquet of carnations and ferns I had ordered from the Forsyth Green House, and behold, there was smiling Bro. Habegger, to whom he had bid goodbye in the early afternoon. One of the ladies stepped to the piano and played a few strains until all were seated.

The church was full of whites and Indians from Busby and Lame Deer. Even the friends from Sheridan had responded to my telegram and driven at such speed as expert drivers maintain, to cover the more than 80 miles after business hours and be here "on the dot." Here were government employees, trades people, ranchers, Indians, Protestants, Catholics, heathen, all keyed up with expectation for an evening of delight. The community can boast three pianists of more than ordinary ability, and also fine singers, so the music furnished was truly of high order, though on an isolated mission station.

Mrs. Owl is a Kentucky lady, wife of a university trained Cherokee Indian, who teaches in the boarding school at Busby. Her piano playing is charming. Miss Patterson is assistant primary teacher at Lame Dee and also plays beautifully. Mrs. Nanahwe is a Caddo Indian from Oklahoma, a graduate of Haskell Institute, with some experience at the Kansas Universit of Lawrence. She was considered one of the most accomplished of any of the Indian girl students and delighted audiences of 2000 with her brilliant piano playing, while still in school. With such talent, togethe with good singers like the Habeggers, the Indian Chie of Police, and government employees, it was not difficult to plan a program, especially since my piano ha remained at the church since the Christmas eve program—with good purpose, as I realize now.

Here follows the program:

1. Opening song by a group of Lame Deer India girls, "All the way my Savior leads me."
2. Invocation by..Rev. Habegge
3. Chorus—"Oh for a thousand tongues," by a grou of Busby government employees, the Habegger and a Sioux Indian.
4. Piano solo—"Romance" by Sidilius............Mrs. Ow
5. Trio—"The song of the sea"
   Rev. Habegger, Mr. Owl, Robert Hawk
6. Piano solo—"Slumber song" by Brahms
   Miss Patterso
7. Vocal solo—"Love suffereth long" by Adams
   Rev. Habegge
8. Piano selections....................David Habegger, aged 8
   The Bells—By Scott
   The Desert Caravan—By Watson
9. Piano selections................Esther Habegger, aged 10
   Etude 2—Concone
   Forget Me Not—Meister
10. Piano selections..................Helen Habegger, aged 12
    Patriotic Song—Grieg
    Fable—By Schmoll
11. Recitation—23rd Psalm..........Daniel Petter, aged 6
12. Recitation..Amy Petter, aged 4
13. Piano solo—Spinning Song—Oesten, Opus 360
    Mrs. A. L. Nanahwe
14. Vocal solo..............Mrs. Thomson, Primary Teacher at Lame Deer
15. Piano solo—"By the Waters of Minnetonka"—Lieurance ....Mrs. Owl
16. Vocal duet—"Thy Kingdom Come"
    Milton Whiteman and Mrs. Habegger
17. Vocal solo—"My Task"..................Rev. A. Habegger
18. Piano solo—Cujus Animan from Stabat Mater, by Ruhe, Op. 101, No. 3....................Mrs. A. L. Nanahwe
19. Chorus—"Great is thy faithfulness"
    Government employees at Busby, Rev. and Mrs. Habegger, Robert Hawk
20. Closing prayer by............................Rev. Valdo Petter

Interspersed throughout this program were bits of information which Bro. Habegger, who was in charge of the program, had gathered earlier in the day, about the early years of Mr. Petter. A letter from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs expressing appreciation for a copy of the Cheyenne New Testament was read. Also the letter from the Conference of missionaries in India, offering congratulations on the completion of the New Testament, was read. A telegram from Dr. J. W. Kliewer bringing congratulations and greetings from the Board, was also read.

Of course, Mr. Petter was called upon for remarks. "Even the Indian babies forgot to cry when Mr. Petter spoke," was Mrs. Engle's appreciative comment on what he said. A hush seemed to fall over the whole assembly as he directed us all to consider first of all the greatness of God and the smallness of man. "I felt like sinking through the floor when I pushed aside the curtains and the lights were flashed on a church full of people. Especially while our good brother Habegger was speaking words of praise I wanted very much to sink out of sight. In my thoughts, while listening to the fine program of music and song, I went back to a climb into the Alps during my student days. We reached a high crest. We straddled the saddle-like ridge. To our right was a sheer drop of some 4000 feet, and to our left a descent of possibly 12,000

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance........$1.50
Foreign $2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to feet to the lake below. Above us and towering over us was "Die Jungfrau" with "Eiger on one side and "Moench" on the other. Here "Die Jungfrau" towered another 3000 feet above us. What a glorious sight! We were awed by it. We were overwhelmed by the thought of the greatness of our God and the smallness of man. I feel the same tonight."
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

There were some spontaneous numbers after this. Indian women and girls came forward and sang, "God be with you" in Cheyenne. Milton, our policeman, sang, "We would see Jesus," in Cheyenne, etc. In the meantime the white ladies had worked on their own initiative in the small room in the rear, arranging the plates, and soon volunteer waiters were tripping back and forth with delicious sandwiches, cakes, coffee, pickles, etc. IT WAS TRULY A GALA OCCASION!

The Engles from Sheridan stopped at the house yet, especially to deliver their gift in person—a beautiful framed picture of the Big Horn Black Tooth Mountain with an altitude of 13014 feet, just back of Sheridan. Only last November the Engles had taken us 9000 feet up a narrow and dangerous ascent to satisfy, in a measure at least, Mr. Petter's longing at times for a "close up" to real mountains. We made that trip just before the winter snows would block the way, and what a delight it was to all of us!

This report would not be complete without mentioning what followed. I take an excerpt from a letter Mr. Petter wrote today to the Habeggers. It explains itself. He says, "All that happened around my seventieth birthday leaves me rather dazed. One jolt after another, but all coming from kind hearts. And both of you did so much to make the day an unforgetable one for me. And to think you had to drive to Lame Deer twice that day, coupled with car breakage! By the way, it would satisfy me could I cover the expenses of your car trouble that night, for you certainly did enough without needing also to suffer loss with car repair costs. I certainly enjoyed your presence that day, and all you did to make the day so beautiful. The participation of your children also touched me. To say thanks falls too short of what I wish I could express. I have small chance to also surprise you on your respective seventieth birthdays. Even then I could not come up to what you did for me. The days following brought the news of which only a hint was given by Mrs. Petter when she read the telegram of Dr. J. W. Kliewer, for she had had a personal letter from Sister Frieda. The way her eyes danced when she mentioned the 'coming letter' made me suspicious of another plot and I braced myself for it in the meantime. Then came Sister Frieda's second letter with the Board's resolution. Well, the gist of the matter is that, all unknown to me, Sister Frieda had not only extended my greetings to the Alps last summer as I had asked her to do, but she writes that while doing that, God seemed to speak very clearly to her, asking her to be an instrument in His hands to make it possible that I, too, might see my beloved Switzerland once more. Thus she returned to Kansas and started a subscription list among interested friends, and lo, a fund is made available. — Whew! All this is enough to drive the rheumatism out of my leg. Really, I feel much better and the betterment started that evening in the church. But I am not yet going to Switzerland. First I must see how such a trip can be planned, and when. If I go this year, it would be in May, if not before, otherwise it would need to be postponed until in 1936."

With kindest greetings to all our dear mission friends, who will rejoice with us on this "gala day" at Lame Deer.

Sincerely,
Bertha E. K. Petter.

February 26, 1935.

Statistical Data

The Montana field has about 650 Indians who at one time or another attend the services on all our stations combined, namely Busby, Upper Rosebud, Lame Deer, Birney, Ashland.

Average attendance at Lame Deer........50
Average attendance at Birney 30
Weekly meetings held at Birney by Frank Littlewolf.

Societies: 1. Sunday School; 2. Dorcas Society; 3. Cheyenne Christian Endeavor; 4. Reading Classes; 5. Native Workers' Training Classes.

Collections during the year........$27.30

Blessings At Busby, Montana

By A. Habegger

Since the writing of the last report we have had many blessings. Special Thanksgiving services were held, at which also collections for missions were held. First at the Sunday School service the Sunday before Thanksgiving, then the Sunday evening at a service for English speaking folks another was held, and then another on Thanksgiving Day. The total which is attached by check and which is to be taken by the treasurer, amounts to $16.26. Every little bit helps.

The Christmas program by the Boarding School pupils was given Sunday evening, December 3. This was all in English and was well received by a full house. The comforters which the Indian women had made, were then given out, also a few small gifts, such as gloves, socks, and stockings. We are more and more getting away from giving gifts in large quantities to the Indians, and rather provide opportunity for them to give.

We again had a series of special meetings from Christmas until New Year. All but two afternoons services were held, and each evening we had nice services. In most of them we had some stereoptican slides to show that helped to impress spiritual truths. On New Year's eve we asked as many as could take part in reading a Scripture passage in English or Cheyenne, and there were 29 who took some part. The little school children delighted in reading portions from the Gospel according to St. John,, which had been given out to them. Quite a number signed pledges to read the Bible daily as well as to attend services when possible. We are offering inducements for them to read a gospel through by promising them a New Testament if they do so.

On December 16, Rev. Petter gave two messages here—in the morning in the Cheyenne language, and in the evening in the English. A collection for the Bible Society in the evening brought $3.00, which was turned over to Bro. Petter. These meetings were well worth while and very informative. As a surprise to Bro. Petter we had quite a number of Christians give quotations of Cheyenne Bible verses at the close of his morning sermon. He enjoyed that immensely. At the evening service John 3:16 was given in as many languages as those present could command. This was also prearranged and was interesting. Bro. Petter, of course, had to give a large number himself.

We shall make special effort to help Christian Cheyennes to become fluent readers of their own language so that they may utilize the new translations. Part of the Sewing Class time will be used for this work with the women.

The two native helpers, Eaglefeathers and Yellowrobe, do not work regularly, and receive no pay.

Living members 101, of whom 29 do not live here.

Enrolled in Sunday School	60
Collections	77.41
Value of mission property—
Church	1000.00
Dwelling house	1000.00
Log house	950.00
Barns, etc.	400.00
Total	$3350.00

CHINA

1934 Evangelistic Committee Report to the Eighteenth Annual Workers' Conference, held at K'ai Chow, Hopei, China, October 24, 1934

Dear Co-workers:—

We thank God that we can look back upon another blessed year of service in evangelism. There were many things not exactly in our favor, and there were also difficulties to be overcome, but our dear Lord gave grace and strength, and also opened new opportunities of service. The Lord has been with us, kept us and blessed us. Some of our fellow missionaries whose work was more or less in the evangelistic line have during the year gone on furlough; we think of Mrs. Lelia Pannabecker and Miss Aganetha Fast. The rest have by the grace of God been kept in health and strength, so that they all remained at their posts.

The annual conference was held in the beginning of November. Thus it broke into the quarter's work. Sister Fast even had to change places, moving from Nanlo to Tamingfu, and taking up work in the city; but she wonderfully adapted herself to the new environments and work, so that by the end of the quarter she already linked up with a number of church activities, and she immediately got acquainted with the government school girls and found them interested in a Bible study class.

Bro. Goering reports that the autumn instruction class was attended by sixty people, and some of these requested baptism. The whole church at Tamingfu had a three day meeting series. But an outstanding event of the quarter was the observing of the "Home Week" in that church. Four days of special services were held with "Christ in the Home" as the central theme. A simple pageant on "The Home for Christ" directed by Stephen Wang, was given on the last day. Everybody that attended these meetings was made conscious of the fact that Christ does make a difference in the home. An official remarked to his friend as they walked out of the church, "That was good. China needs homes like that."

Brother and Sister Voth find the change of evangelists at Esing Feng a great blessing to the church there. Old differences have been made up, and the work there inside and outside of church has experienced a forward march. The new evangelist-preacher with the help of the Bible women, has on the average besides regular church meetings, conducted weekly services in three villages. Sister Voth spent a whole month in Tsing Feng and two more weeks in Nanlo. Her presence and teachings in Bible and health were much appreciated. But Lung Wang Miao has been especially blessed by several new conversions: and the fall instruction class was the best attended so far. The other places of service continued as before.

To the joy of Brother and Sister Ewert, Sister Sprunger moved to Ch'ang Yuan to do relief work, especially opening and running a relief school. But besides the school and the clinic she did a good deal of evangelistic work. Letters from there show that the Christians appreciated her coming very much. Bro. Ewert finds the church attendance increasing, partly due to the flood relief work, which surely has taxed the strength of our co-workers.

In the K'ai Chow field the evangelistic tent was out for part of the quarter, then later the workers were called in to investigate flood refugees and help with relief work. Notwithstanding the flood conditions in our districts, instruction classes were held in four places. Mr. Brown was considerably tied down to the Bible school, but Mrs. Brown largely made up for that in going out more freely for several days at the time. With and through Bible women she has also done much work in the neighborhood. She further held regular classes with some women and children in the refugee camp in the city of K'ai Chow. At all larger places there were Christmas programs given, some with greater and others with minor appreciations. We were able to end the year 1933 with joy in our hearts, but with empty pockets for neither fourth quarter missionary salary nor budgets had come in.

In the second quarter we have Mrs. Mathilda Voth in full swing in Tamingfu country evangelistic work. She finds it a most encouraging factor of the quarter, that the women of the home study course (which is put out by the Kansu Missionary Association) are making good progress. Studying is done at home with such help as they can get. When ready for examination in one subject, they come to her or to some central place, where she goes to examine them. This quarter her pupils numbered eighteen. Bro. Voth had instruction classes in three places with good attendance. This quarter especially marked a change of attitude towards the country churches. The Tamingfu district Chou Pei Hui (local workers' organization) undertook to aid the churches with teacher-evangelists, paying two-thirds of the monthly allowance. It has been clear to some of us long since that they must be assisted if they are to live and grow.

Rev. and Mrs. Goering mention the women Bible study classes and character reading study groups, the Wednesday prayer meeting, and the women's meeting on Friday, and also the monthly special meetings as a sign that the church is alive. They also call our attention to the fact that that church observed the International Week of Prayer with good attendance and having a spirit of prayer prevailing. It is too bad that our papers from America bring the program only after the occasion has passed. Many churches simply can't get the program in time. The Tamingfu big tent did not go out, but instead Bro. Goering encouraged a group of our Bible student-graduates to go out as a team, holding meetings in established churches, and from these working the surrounding villages. Since they were only helped along with mission funds and the Chinese contributions were small, they had hardly much more than the expenses paid.

"Opportunities of service are opening up everywhere," were the opening words of Sister Fast's second quarter report. She mentions especially three things which stand out in the quarter's work: That during the Chinese New Year vacation the girls of the government primary school came to her freely, most of them were children of Christian parents, and that she opened a Bible class with them, meeting every Saturday; that she opened another weekly Bible class with the government normal school girls; and that she started a "Home Study Bible Class" with twelve pupils, that were all progressing in their studies.

From Ch'ang Yuan, Brother and Sister Ewert bring a good report for the quarter. The relief work took much of their time, but still they found time to testify for the Lord, even holding daily services with the relief workmen. The church attendance greatly increased, so that the church was always packed with listeners.

The big tent has been an outstanding feature in the evangelistic work of the K'ai Chou field. Christians have shown a cooperative spirit in hauling the tent from place to place and also giving other assistance. In several places during a two or three week stay also Bible classes for inquirers were held. This quarter three catechism classes were held, and in Tung Ming there was a daily Bible class for Christians lasting over a month. The attendance was seventy-one. Four other Bible classes were opened, but could not be finished during the quarter. The K'ai Chow east suburbs church also opened a Bible class for church members and inquirers. The term was for two months or longer. Pastor Wang of T'sao Chowfu held one week revival meetings in Tung Ming.

During the Chinese New Year all places observed the week of evangelism. Let us quote Bro. Voth: "During this season bands of lay Christians were organized with one evangelist or Bible woman in each group. They went on the streets, into the homes, and even to temple yards to witness for Christ and sing songs of praise. There were many attentive listeners, and thousands could hear the Gospel message. But we often feel sad for the many thousands more around us in the field who did not have the chance to hear."

Brother and Sister Goering also bring us an encouraging report from the city of Tamingfu: "During the ten days of evangelism most all of the Christians helped to carry the Gospel to the people in Tamingfu and the surrounding villages. There were five bands that went out each day. These all met in the church at 10:00 A. M. for half an hour of prayer. Each group carried a banner stating what we were out for. A large number of people heard the Gospel preached and many scripture portions were sold and many tracts distributed."

Bro. Ewert writes: "At Chinese New Year a group of volunteers of nearly a hundred went out for a week to preach and help to sing on the streets. Seven hundred gospel portions were sold and several thousand tracts given away. Many who never heard the Gospel were reached. It also opened a great blessing to those who went out to preach and help in the services, and it aroused new interest so that as a result four Bible classes were started, which are being held every Sunday afternoon just before the afternoon services."

From K'ai Chow comes the report that during the Chinese New Year they also observed the week of evangelism. Groups went out on the streets of the city and others into the villages to preach Christ. Generally speaking, they were well received and had good audiences. It is regretted that the number of personal workers was not quite as large as usual. But the Bible school did not discontinue its classes, and the hospital had patients to take care of, so that both institutions could give only part service. Another feature of the week was Bible and character reading classes in the local church, conducted by Miss Goertz and Mrs. Brown. These were well attended and quite successful.

In the early summer Rev. Yeh held three days of services in the Tamingfu city church, stressing having a clean life and being filled with the Holy Spirit. Later a Bible study class was held and this was followed by the baptism of fourteen people, making a good addition to the membership of the church. Brother and Sister Goering continued their earlier plan and instead of using the big tent, they sent Bible school graduates as a team to visit large centers with their surrounding villages. The reports of their work continue to be good. One man whose daughter used to be in a mission school, came for a Bible and song book, saying: "Our daughter wants us to read the Bible and sing." They also used some of the former workers to do some follow-up work. Rev. Goering says: "Everywhere there are open doors, for which we thank the Lord of harvest. The field truly is white for harvest, and we thank God for willing reapers, although some must work without salary and others on a very small allowance."

Since Sister Regier and Sister Fast have gone on furlough, Sister Voth is the only missionary lady in the Tamingfu district to do country evangelistic work. There is a large field, and much work that needs to be done. Sister Voth has sacrificed much time and strength in her zeal for the same. She has repeatedly left home and family for days at a time, visiting outstations, where there are little groups of believers, staying with them and teaching them the way of life. With the help of Bible women she has also enlarged upon the home study work, so that she brought the enrollment up to twenty-five.

Bro. Voth also tries to reach the country places. He reports to have had several days of special meetings in five places, and twenty-three baptisms after instruction classes. Three evangelists completed the Nanking Theological Seminary correspondence course. We are glad to be able to report that the work in Ch'ang Yuan is also progressing, notwithstanding the great difficulties created by the Yellow River flood. Pastor Chao is doing good work. Well attended instruction classes were held, and seven persons were baptized. But the district badly needs more workers.

Around K'ai Chow eight instruction classes were held and sixty-one persons were baptized. Up to wheat harvest it was a busy work. Then the big tent came home and only regular places of service were attended to. However, two evangelistic bands of Bible students held meetings in a number of places, even going as far as Tung Ming and Ch'ang Yuan. Their teacher Li Ching Hsien was with them most of the time. The reports of their work were fairly good, and the churches visited greatly appreciated the visit. The girl graduates of the Bible school also worked with the Bible women under the supervision of Mrs. Brown.

Generally speaking, by September everybody foreign and Chinese was back at work. The old work is to continue and new efforts are being launched. We should have mentioned before that this committee greatly appreciates the evangelistic work done by people otherwise employed. We are thinking of the regular schools, the hospital, and especially the Bible school, which went out every Sunday in seven groups; some into the villages, some to the country churches, and others to the refugee camp, and two groups to the men and women prisons of the city of K'ai Chow.

Although the hot summer months of necessity showed a slowed down program, there were some features of the work that were extraordinary and of no mean interest. We had been looking forward for special meetings for our field in the nature of a Bible Conference, but on account of the Presbyterian centennial anniversary in Korea, our promised leader, H. K. Chang, could not come. We then tried other leaders, but on account of the late date were unable to engage anyone. Two delegates from K'ai Chow went to the Pei Tai Ho Bible Conference, and one of the Tamingfu and K'ai Chow each to the Shun Te Fu Bible Conference. They all brought good reports along and also new enthusiasm. We feel that they gained much, and they are now passing the good things on.

Another feature of the summer work was vacational Bible schools for the children. These were held by volunteer teachers. K'ai Chow had seven such schools with 123 pupils; Tamingfu city schools with 70 pupils; and Ch'ang Yuan one school with 70 pupils. The interest was good, and the pupils learned a good many Bible stories and Christian singing. Bro. Voth reports in his country work also of three schools with 66 pupils, so that the total number of schools was 12, and the total number of pupils 329.

Our work should not be judged only by the increase of church members. Before any harvest a lot of seed-sowing and planting must be done. In other words, before people can be won for Christ and received into the church, preaching and teaching is necessary; then again much time and strength must be sacrificed to lead them on into a deeper spiritual life. The Lord has been good unto us. He has used us and blessed us. Let us thank and praise Him for it, but let us wait upon Him for even greater things. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength: they shall mount up with wings as eagles: They shall run and not be weary: and they shall walk and not faint." Isa. 40:31. Humbly submitted,

Evangelistic Comimttee:
Chairman, H. J. Brown,
W. C. Voth.

Educational Committee Report to the Seventeenth Annual Workers' Conference

Dear fellow workers:—

Thanks be to God our Father that in spite of the depression and hard times at home the school work has been carried on very much the same as the year before with the exception of the Bible school, which did not open this fall.

The Bible school which was in charge of Bro. Brown the last school year, was brought to a successful close in spring. The second quarter report gives the following in regard to the school: "Our teachers were of the highest standard in every way and the subjects given and the work required first grade. In fact people of understanding tell us that our school compared very favorably with Bible schools with a high school entrance requirement. The outside visitation and preaching required practical work and has acquired a reputation for our school."

The Bible school graduated twelve last spring, eight men and four women. The men organized into two groups after graduation and went out to different places in the country to preach, and have done good work.

Because of lack of funds the executive committee decided to close the school for the time being. Bro. Brown reports that the teachers were willing to sacrifice in order to keep the school going with a smaller staff and carry more hours work, but even so the committee decided not to open, and so we are without a Bible school again.

The high school at K'ai Chow is in charge of a school board, elected by all the churches of our field. The mission allows them a grant to run the school, but which is far from enough to keep the school going; the rest of the money comes from tuition and other sources. They have eight teachers and an enrollment of one hundred and twenty pupils, fifty-two of which are Christians or come from Christian homes, the rest are from the outside. They are trying hard to meet the spiritual needs of the pupils in giving them Bible classes and daily devotions and also Christian activities inside and outside of school.

The grade school in the east suburb has an enrollment of seventy. Last spring 118 took examinations and thirteen graduated from the higher elementary department.

The K'ai Chow city school has an enrollment of fifty, and two teachers. They rather have two teachers on a reduced salary, than one teacher, because of the large enrollment. Last spring they had 68 enrolled, and 62 took the examinations.

Tung Ming has an enrollment of fifty, with three teachers. They have changed their entire teaching staff, hoping to have a better school in the future. Last spring the enrollment was over eighty.

Ch'ang Yuan has changed the school management somewhat. You will remember that this school had been turned over to the local church, but because of very poor management it is more or less in my charge now, or in other words, we cooperate. The teacher that seemed the most at fault has been dismissed and because of low funds a half-time teacher was employed. The school is getting along nicely with an enrollment of sixty. Every Saturday there is a children's Bible class, where Bible stories are told, songs are sung, Bible verses memorized, etc. Thus the children get this Bible knowledge besides the Bible study in school, and also other children attend.

The Taming city schools and the south suburb girls' school have continued as before with one teacher in each school. The attendance was all that they had room for, with an enrollment of 78 in the two schools together last spring. Bro. Goering reports that even non-Christians have expressed their confidence in our mission schools both as to safeguarding their children and in the good education they get. He also reports that a new interest has developed in studying Bible verses and songs because prizes are offered to those who memorize the largest number. This fall the school has opened again with the same teaching staff and an enrollment of 64.

Bro. Voth reports in his second quarter report that the three schools in his charge at Tsingfeng, Nanlo, and Lung Wang Miao, did creditable work that spring, especially at Lung Wang Miao and Nanlo the work was better than a year ago, with better attendance and more constant. At Lung Wang Miao the teacher was dismissed at Chinese New Year and another teacher employed. At Nanlo there was no school last fall, but it is running now again. Bro. Voth mentions the fact that there is no higher primary school in the Taming district, and thus we lose many of the pupils after they finish lower primary, as they go to other schools. This is not for the good of our work as we ought to keep these young people under Christian influence as long as possible. These three schools have again opened this fall as usual.

Because of shortage of funds, the summer institute was not held this year.

During the summer daily vacation Bible schools were held throughout the field. Voth reports that most of the children in his part of the field attended. At Chang Yuan we had an enrollment of 70.

Reading circles are carried on to encourage more reading, and character classes where they learn to read. At Chang Yuan some twenty learned to read in about a year. They are required to be able to read six books, two small gospel readers, thousand character gospel, and first, second, and third books of Short Steps to Great Truths. After they have finished these they receive a large Bible or a smaller Bible and a song book.

There are also several students in outside schools supported by the mission, namely: Ch'eng Kuo Tsun and Wu Tung Hsin.

Respectfully submitted,

Educational Committee.
Chairman, August Ewert
Members: Frieda N. Sprunger,
Pauline Goering.

ARIZONA

Patriotism and the Indian

By Mrs. J. P. Suderman

To us, patriotism and the Indian seems quite as important today as patriotism and the negro was to Christian workers in the time of Abraham Lincoln, though in a different sense. To the negro it was a matter of freedom from slavery, whereas for the Indian today it is a matter of freedom from ignorance and the heathen religion which wrecks the mind, body, and soul. I shall choose to discuss this timely subject under three main divisions: Civil patriotism, selfish or false patriotism, and religious patriotism.

May we keep in mind that the Indians on the reservation are not under state, but under national jurisdiction. The agents, teachers, doctors, and nurses are all employed through civil service. Our government has during the last thirty years done great things in helping these native Americans even in the face of great opposition. There was a time when Hopi mothers would hide their children under the floor or elsewhere when in the early days the soldiers came to take them to the non-reservational schools for the purpose of educating them. When the early missionaries tried to help them clothe their naked bodies, they would often throw clothes and quilts out onto the ground, just because to them all white men, their dress and customs were in their minds just "Washington," and must not be accepted. And even in late years about a third of the Hopi villages resent government help in any form. It is only after the Hotevilla chief, Yukioma, died a few years ago, that the Hopis of that village put regular windows into their houses. When, this winter, shortly before Christmas the government gave a goat or two to each family, many families in Hotevilla refused to accept them. So those who did accept them got so many more. Here in Oraibi they take everything they can get. A great many do so even with greediness. Yet in face of all this the government has been able to help them greatly. Hopis of our age and even a little older can understand and speak the English language quite well and they also enjoy to read. Many returning from government schools now have finished high school, though they are not the equivalent of a high school at home. Except for the above one-third more hostile villages, the Hopis have adopted white man's dress and are more and more adopting white man's food and customs of living, methods of household work, etc. In the more hostile villages one sees the old Hopi costumes, especially on the women, and many of their pre-school aged children are running around naked in summer and winter.

But how is the Indian treated in the social world of today? K. T. Johnson, our interpreter, was in California a few years ago in June. While walking on a street in Los Angeles, his hair held in order Hopi fashion with a handkerchief tied around the crown of his head, was thus addressed by a white man: "Hello chief"! whereupon he answered, "Yes, I used to be a chief. I was the chief of sinners, but Christ saved me. Now I'm not a chief anymore. How about you"? At this testimony and question the white man without a word for reply, disappeared in the throng. Again, some years ago Otto Lomavitu, a young Hopi Christian at school in California, was on the street in Oakland one day. He was met by a seemingly very patriotic man who held his fist in Otto's face, saying, "You scoundrel, you have no business in this country." (Otto was mistaken for a Japanese.) A policeman near by, seeing and hearing this and at the same time knowing Otto, came near and said to the white man: "And what about you? Have you any right to be in this country"? "Oh, yes," the man replied, "my forefathers came to this country in the Mayflower"! Upon which the policeman, pointing to Otto, said: "And this man's forefathers were in the reception committee." Not so long ago a Christian Hopi young man was sitting on a dentist chair in Winslow, when a white man who had no appointment made for that hour, desired to have some dental work done. The dentist, looking over his day's appointments and finding his time all filled, said to the white man: "Well I can be through with this man quickly, he is JUST an Indian." You may well imagine with what feelings this Hopi came home and also how it effected us, who have their welfare at heart.

The Indian trader likes to keep the Indian in the old life, because he would like to make money with the things which the heathen Indian uses in the ceremonies. This harms the natives more than the average man realizes. If it were not for the Hopi ceremonial dances, primitive customs, and heathen religion we would not have a good sized town of Winslow, with a million dollar depot and Harvey House, nor a Flagstaff with its extended renown. Not so long ago these traders sent about thirty pounds of buffalo meat to every Hopi family in honor of their buffalo dances. If any of you have taken a trip to the West, you may recall the many little shops along the highways of New Mexico and Arizona, announcing the Indian curios, rugs, and pottery. These traders make much money in this business. The tourists come from far and wide even from across the ocean to witness these heathen Indian ceremonials and dances. Winslow is the point from which the Harvey House people take their tourists out to these mesas, especially at the time of the snake dance, to see the dance. They net great profits from it all. It seems that these are influencing the Indian Commissioner John Collier of Washington, D. C., in his present policy in respect to these natives. The Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Harold Ickes, has said concerning the American Indian, "We want to encourage him to live his own life in his own way." This, together with the Wheeler-Howard bill, is causing great dissatisfaction in the minds of the Indians. To keep him as he is, because he is an Indian, is not much of an encouragement to anybody. (If you have access to The Christian Century Magazine, I would urge you to read: 1. "A Navajo Dissenter," by J. C. Morgan, October 31, 1934; 2. Religious Policy of the Indian Bureau, by John Collier, November 13, 1934; 3. The Policy of the Indian Bureau, by Wm. R. Moody, November 28, 1934.) To keep the Indian as for a zoo, my friends, is false patriotism. Mr. Morgan, a Navajo Indian, referring to the present policy of the government towards the Indian, writes: "Our future under this plan is a sunset, it lies beyond the horizon." The daily instruction in our local day schools here has been greatly lessened this year. Some grades are doing less than two hours of school work a day, but the children are to be kept busy in their own primitive occupations. Just recently copies of a letter from Collier sanctioning the heathen Hopi weddings as legal, were distributed to these Hopis. This will bring more immorality and girl-motherhood in than ever before. One day as Mr. Suderman was calling in the homes, a non-Christian man asked him, "Does Collier try to keep us in our old ways? Are we to go back to those things which we have left behind? We were getting to the point that our children inherited our property instead of the clan relationship coming and taking it after the parent's death."

It seems that along medical lines less is done than heretofore. Ah, yes, the medicine men shall come back into their dominion. Many a woman in labor dies at the hand of a medicine man. (Just the other week a woman labored three days until finally the government nurse was called who took the woman to the hospital, 35 miles away, getting stuck in the mud besides. The baby had been twisted all out of shape and an arm torn out of its socket in the shoulder by a medicine man. The lady died a few days later.)

Mr. Suderman is at present visiting and preaching to a young man in the village who is at the point of death of T. B. He just went through the Hopi wedding ceremony, though he was married white man's way about a year and a half ago. All weary and worn from the Hopi ceremony, the T. B. has taken him down to death rather suddenly and quickly. Then to add to this, his mother had him taken to a medicine man who almost killed him trying to sweat out the T. B.

Some children at Hotevilla recently told their teacher that a set of twins was born in the home. The teachers after school went to see the twin babies. Upon seeing only one baby, they inquired for the other. All they could learn was "Hopi doctor." Ah, the tragedy of the other baby! Perhaps it was smothered to death and its body cast between huge mesa rocks. The Hopi have a superstitious fear of twins. The Hopis as a whole were just beginning to gain the confidence of a white doctor.

The above named facts will at once tell you that it is the present policy to keep the Indian in his heathen religion. Yet let me quote you what Mr. Marks, an employee of the Indian service of many years, said to Mr. Suderman one day, "I used to think that education would lift the Hopi out of his evil life of immorality, but through all my experience in dealing with them, I have come to realize and to see that mission work is their only hope of freedom from their low life." Tourists coming in to see the "Indian" and his ceremonial dances, make the following remarks: "The Hopi religion is wonderful." "Too bad the missionary has come in to spoil the beautiful ceremonies." "What the Hopis need is only another god, a god of cleanliness." During the snake dance (a horrible ceremonial dance) many tourists went through to Hotevilla. Some had counted 600 cars this year. One of our Christian young men, Karl Johnson, had stationed himself at the filling station and handed out tracts to the tourists. Some tourists tried to take some Christian Hopi girls along to see the snake dance. To have given an Indian a car ride is a thrill to many a tourist. One of the girls replied, "No; I'm done with such a thing. Since I became a Christian I don't want to have anything to do with those dances.'

A group of tourists came to seek lodging in a Christian Hopi home. (Lodging for tourists is quite a problem during those days. We do not keep dance spectators at our house over night, neither do the faithful Christians.) In this home this group of tourists also met one of our Christians, K. T. Johnson. They began to speak to him about the wonderful, beautiful, marvelous snake dance they had just witnessed. When the tourists had finished telling about the wonderful dance, Johnson began to talk, saying, "You think it is very wonderful. I once used to be a snake dancer, holding those live snakes in my hand and taking them into my mouth. I don't think that that is wonderful. But I will tell you what is wonderful. I think it is wonderful that the Lord Jesus has saved me from such a terrible religion. I think that is very wonderful." The tourists did not know what to say. They had not come to see a Christian and his home, nor to hear a testimony like that, so they left before it was bedtime. They had come to see a primitive Indian and his home and to listen to weird, empty prayers to the Great Spirit. Some of the Christian and more educated Indians of the United States are at present in Washington, D. C., for the purpose of getting the Indian Bureau to give them a better deal. They are even asking for the removal of the present Indian commissioner and those who are in sympathy with his policy.

May these examples give to you a deeper sense of the great need and value of mission work among the Hopi people as well as other Indians of America. May it also lead you into more earnest prayer in behalf of their deliverance from ignorance and heathendom to live unto Him who died to save them.

Fruits of Labor in Oraibi, Arizona, 1934

J. P. Suderman

"He which converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins." Jas. 5:20.

Another Hopi accepted Christ Saturday evening and Sunday morning went to be with Him. Valjean, a 25 year old man, died of T. B. Sunday. He had been with the medicine man for some time, until he was brought to his mother last Wednesday. I went to see him three times last week and prevailed upon him to accept salvation. Saturday night, in the presence of some Christians, he took the step. Sunday morning, when Otto stayed with him, he went in peace to the world beyond.

Miss Schmidt asks us to give a little report concerning the orphans. Two of her boys would still com under this. Karl, the older of the two, is at preser attending Bible Institute at Los Angeles. While h was at home last summer, he was very useful in th church. He is a boy far ahead of the average Hop just as Daniel of Hotevilla. He seems to be doing ver well according to reports. While in high school, h was an honor student and was liked by all. He is ver aggressive in telling others the good news.

Floyd is at the Ganado Mission School in the junio year. He also is well liked, although he is not quit the student which Karl is. Even so the influence whic he has received in the home of Miss Schmidt can b felt, for he is ahead of those who have not had an influence like he has had.

Floyd has this year more Hopi fellow student (three Christians and one non-Christian) with him a Ganado. The teachers tell us that all of the Hopi students are outstanding. We are therefore glad to be abl to send such students over there.

We ask the members of the Mission Board to continue to pray for the work here in Arizona, for we ar encouraged to go on in spite of the many obstacles May God's Spirit guide you also as you seek ways an means to carry on the great work of doing your mission work at home.

The following is a brief statement of the work a Oraibi, Arizona, during the year, from January 1, 1934 to January 1, 1935:

Number of persons baptized	12
Total active membership	31
Members out of fellowship	19
Backsliders reclaimed	3
Native Helper	1
Average attendance on Sunday, A. M.	51
Number of services per week	8

Deaths during the year: One baby of Christian parents, one young lady who accepted Christ before she died, one young man who accepted Christ before he died. These were not church members.

Offerings for the year: First quarter, $10.60; second quarter, $16.89; third quarter, $21.41; fourth quarter, $18.48. Total $67.38.

OKLAHOMA

Results in Spite of Obstacles at Clinton and Hammon

By J. B. Ediger

The work as a whole has been rather discouraging this last year to a great extent on account of the policy of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, John C. Collier.

The government has tried for fifty years to civilize the Cheyenne and Arapaho Indians and make independent, self-supporting citizens of them, and not without success. Our present commissioner of Indian affairs says that is a mistake and works overtime to set the Indians back where they were 50 years ago and keep them as dependent wards of the government for all time. This has stirred up our Indians so that it affects our work negatively very much.

The Commissioner says, Peyote is not habit forming and the use of it shall not be suppressed because it is a form of Indian religion. The old Indian religions shall be coordinated with the Christian religion. The old Indian religious ceremonies and social customs shall not be suppressed, but encouraged.

During this time of depression relief work camps for needy Indians have been established where the Indians, besides doing "made work," cultivate their social customs, as dancing, gambling, and immorality.

The teachers in the government boarding school have instructions not to punish the children. Parents of children appeal singly and in groups to the government employees for discipline. They are answered: "Mr. Collier says we must not punish them."

The time honored custom of having the missionaries hold services with the school children on Thursday nights is revoked. The missionary may invite the children for the services, and if they come, he can have services, but the leader of the peyote cult or the sun-dance priest has the same privilege under John Collier's policy.

We think it speaks well for our Indians and the work among them that the church services are attended so well and that many of our Christians take a definite stand against the pernicious policy of the present commissioner of Indian Affairs. And not only that, but Indians of all ages accept Jesus as their personal Savior in spite of the above circumstances.

The work with the native helpers has been encouraging the past year. Homer Hart, Hammon, with the help of his wife, is shouldering more responsibilities and really is ready (and I am sure would be willing) to take more than we are giving him.

Kias, Clinton, the old wheel-horse, is still willing to help when and where he can. Then he is an immense power for good these days as a representative on the tribal council, to which position he always is reelected. He is not afraid to take a stand for his Savior in the council meetings. If there is a man more respected as a whole by the Cheyenne and Arapaho tribes in Oklahoma, I do not know it. He is indeed a salt and a light these days.

Guy Heap of Birds is growing and willing to learn. The Indians like him and his wife Alice. While he is young in experience as a native helper, we set great hopes in Guy and Alice.

No doubt Bro. Kliewer will write about John Heap of Birds, who helped here for years, but "turned back." He lives in the Deer Creek district now and the intercessory prayers for him have not been in vain. He is able and "the best leader yet."

I must not fail to mention the speaking tour through the churches at home. The churches "along the edge" (western Kansas and eastern Oklahoma) were on my program. Plenty mileage compared with people reached. I do not know if it paid in dollars and cents, but I had very attentive and appreciative audiences. At one place they told me I was the first missionary to speak in the church. They said their congregation has sent as much as $300.00 a year to the mission treasury, but when the missionaries visit churches their church is not on the map. One pastor told his congregation at the close of the services that no doubt they felt like he did. For him it had been an eye opener. Then he assured me that we can expect more intercessory prayers and these more definite.

We were privileged to baptize one more last Sunday. Two more are being instructed at Hammon, and two have asked for it at Clinton. But they are in the Colony Camp. Driving, driving.

Statistics

Name of stations: Clinton and Hammon. The churches are 34½ miles apart, but the easiest and quickest route is 47½ miles.

Native Helpers: Clinton, Kias and Guy Heap of Birds; Hammon, Homer Hart.

Number of members added during year: Clinton 5 and Hammon 7.

Number of members died or transferred: Clinton 8 and Hammon 0.

Number of members December 31, 1934: Clinton 38 and Hammon 24.

Property Value: Clinton $3500.00; Hammon $3500.00.

Progress and Hindrances of the Work at Cantonment and Fonda

By G. A. Linsheid

The depression as well as the new deal of the government have caused extraordinary experiences, such as Indian Emergency Relief Conservation Camps, where whole families of Indians are placed, which prevents many from church attendance, though it increases the number who hear the Gospel. Religious services are held each Sunday in these camps.

John Collier's (the Commissioner's) regulations have so far prevented religious instructions at the Concho Boarding School for the first time in forty years.

On our visits through the churches in Oklahoma and Kansas we came to 39 churches, where usually both of us spoke, and Mrs. Linsheid spoke also to a number of sewing societies. We believe that the effort has not been in vain. One minister brother expressed himself thus, after a meeting: "I had no idea that we had as extensive mission work among the Indians; we know more about our mission work in India and China than about the work among the Indians which is right before us at our door."

During Christmas the Indians decorated a very fine Christmas tree at the IECW camp and invited us to bring them the Christmas message, which we were glad to do, and we were very much pleased to note that contrary to their custom at such time in the camp, they had neither Santa Claus nor dance after the service.

Whiteshield has been assisting at the Sunday services, and toward the end of the year also in house visitation, especially when we were visiting churches, Redbird helping in the house visitation. If the budget permits, they are to do this also in the current year.

The messenger, we believe, is issued with good results; the number of those who search the scriptures and send answers to the questions is increasing.

Statistical Report, 1934

Cantonment, Longdale and Fonda, Canton, Okla.

Membership:

Number of members at close of 1933	100
Accessions during 1934	4
Abscissions during 1934:
Deaths	2
Otherwise	1	3
Net gain during 1934	1	1
Number of members at close of 1934	101

Average Attendance:

Longdale church	29
Fonda church	26½
IECW Camp	40½

Estimated Valuation:

Cantonment	$3500.0
Fonda	2800.0
Longdale	1000.0
Total	$7300.0

Gratitude and Hope Amidst Difficulties at Thomas and Canton

By H. J. Kliewer

We are very thankful for still further improvement in the health of my dear wife. We are also thankful for the continued financia support, so that we did not suffer as do so many others these days. The sewing societies, too have been generous and sent the full quota and a little more of the Christmas money. Another cause for thanksgiving is the completion of New Testament in Cheyenne.

The services should have been better attended; however, it seems sometimes that the Indians are beginning to see more and more that what the Bible teaches is what they need for their temporal and spiritual welfare. The missionaries take turns for the services at the Indian work camps.

Willie Meeks, who lives again at the Arapaho station, can thus do more and better work. John Heap of Birds has recently done quite well as helper here at Thomas.

The question sometimes comes to us whether now, when so many changes for the Indians seem to be planned by the government, the mission should also make the bold venture to reduce the number of white missionaries and put native helpers in their place. May the will of God be done!

Statistics

Value of mission property:

Thomas	$5600.00
Arapaho	3000.00

Native helpers:
Meeks at Arapaho, and John Heap of Birds, Thomas.

Members added during the year	1
Total living members: Cheyennes	1
Arapahos	90

Average attendance: At church 15, at the camp 40.

Collections: Cheyennes $15.53, Arapahos $11.16.

WORLD'S CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION

It has been five years since the last World's Convention of Christian Endeavor, but the echoes of that memorable gathering in Berlin in the summer of 1930 have not yet died down. Now the ninth quadrennial convention (postponed from 1934 because of unsettled conditions in Europe) is announced to be held in Budapest, Hungary, in August 1935. The preparations are proceeding with unusual success in many European countries, and an American delegation is being assembled which will be representative of the movement in all parts of the United States and Canada and a sufficient size to demonstrate the strength of the society in the continent of its birth.

The program will give equal recognition to three languages — Hungarian, German, and English, and the speakers and conference leaders will be chosen from every part of the world. Under the leadership of Dr. Daniel A. Poling of New York and Dr. James Kelly of Glasgow, president and vice president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, and with the heartiest cooperation of the Hungarian National Government, the details are being arranged for a convention which will bring to the front the power of Christian young people from more than a score of nations.

Budapest has stood for a number of years as a strong center of Christian Endeavor. The variety of the work accomplished by the Budapest Christian Endeavor Union and the strong leaders it has been able to claim and use to advantage, have already justified the choice of the beautiful city on the Danube as the seat of the convention.

The American delegation will divide into several tours of varying degrees of length and expense, covering the principal countries of Europe before and after the convention. One section of the delegation will visit the Holy Land: July 11 is named as the first sailing date (immediately following the International Convention in Philadelphia). The Travel Department of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, 41 Mt. Vernon Street, Boston, Mass., is arranging all the details for the American contingent. Mr. Carroll M. Wright, Superintendent of the Travel Department, 41 Mt. Vernon Street, Boston, Massachusetts, will gladly furnish information as to prices, schedules, and other essential points.

WASHINGTON—A CHRISTIAN

Miss Lydia Etter, Danvers, Ill.

Perhaps there is no aspect in the life of George Washington that has caused so much controversy as that of his religious habits and beliefs.

1. Many biographers have tactfully avoided the subject.

2. Others have inferred without any substantial evidence that he was not religious, was only lukewarm as a churchman, and at times actually entertained non-Christian views.

3. Two or three have classed him as an atheist, but have not advanced any act or declaration by Washington that would support these ridiculous assertions.

4. A number have attempted to show him as a devout gentleman and an orthodox believer in and worshipper of Jesus Christ.

According to letters, documents, records, and other historical data now preserved in Princeton, New Jersey, we find Washington an example of true Christian character.

He was born February 22, 1732, the first child of Augustine and Mary Ball Washington. His religious training began in very early life, for his parents were a pious couple. While the information about his father in this respect is very meager, it is known that Augustine Washington was of a serious tendency, and most of the books that he possessed were of a religious nature. George was only eleven years old when his father died, but his father gave him many lessons in honesty, justice, and benevolence.

Doubtless the greatest influence in Washington's entire life was his mother, who read the best books available in those days to her children, and also instructed them in the catechism.

His mother's extreme reverential observance of the Sabbath necessitated that the family and all the servants labor long and late the day before to complete all chores and do the cooking for Sunday, so that no work of any kind would be done at that time.

In later life, Mary Washington would daily seek out a secluded spot, a short distance from the homestead, surrounded by large rocks and tall trees. There, as told by G. Wash. Parke Custis, the adopted son of Geo. Washington, abstracted from the world and worldly things, she communed with her Creator in humiliation and prayer.

The fact must not be overlooked that a large part of his early education was received from the Rev. James Marye, who had come to Fredericksburg, Va., for the purpose of serving as rector of St. George's Church. He established the Marye School and it is not unlikely that his lessons on the fundamentals, reading, writing, arithmetic, were interspersed with religious doctrines.

With this background and foundation it is easy to understand how Washington clung to his simple rules of piety all the days of his life. When Virginia failed to supply the army with the necessary number of chaplains during the French and Indian war, the young colonel in a letter to the Virginia Governor said, "The want of a chaplain does, I conceive, reflect dishonor upon the regiment. . . . Common decency in a camp calls for the services of a divine." Finally chaplains were appointed to accompany the soldiers and services were regularly performed.

After the French war, he became active in the church affairs of his neighborhood, serving from 1762-1784 as a vestryman of Truro Parish. Vestrymen were civil officers of the colony in the parish in which they resided. He and his wife were strict adherents to the Episcopal faith and were fairly regular in their attendance at divine worship on the Sabbath.

Washington took his duties as vestryman most seriously. The parish records show the eleven years of his active service in this office he was present at 23 of the 31 vestry meetings called. Once he was kept to his bed by sickness; twice attending sessions of the House of Burgesses in Virginia; the other five times he was not in the vicinity.

Records of Pohick church show that Washington bought pew number 28—one of the center pews adjoining the north aisle and next to the communion table—at the price of 16 pounds, on February 27, 1773. Likewise, when Christ Church at Alexandria was completed he was present and bought a pew for 36 pounds and 10 shillings.

Prior to the Revolutionary War, while he resided at Mount Vernon, he most frequently attended Sunday services held in Pohick church, seven miles from his home. At the close of the war he transferred his regular attendance to Christ church at Alexandria — ten miles away.

Rev. Lee Massey, rector of Pohick church before the War of Independence, said the following about Washington's church-going:

"I never knew so constant an attendant in church as Washington. And his behaviour in the house of God was ever so deeply reverential that it produced the happiest effect on my congregation and greatly assisted me in my pulpit labors. No company ever withheld him from church. I have often been at Mount Vernon on Sabbath morning when his breakfast table was filled with guests; but to him they furnished no pretext for neglecting his God and losing the satisfaction of setting a good example. For instead of staying at home, he used constantly to invite them to accompany him."

Nelly Custis, Washington's adopted daughter, writes of him: "In New York and Philadelphia, he never omitted attendance at church in the morning, unless detained by sickness. No one in church attended to the services with more reverential respect. My grandmother, who was eminently pious, never deviated from her early habits. She always knelt. The General, as was the custom then, stood during the devotional parts of the service. His life, his writings, prove that he was a Christian. He was not of those who act or pray 'that they may be seen of men.' He communed with his God in secret. His mottoes were: "Deeds, not words," and "For God and my country."

Fortunately we have the testimony of one who accidentally witnessed the private devotions of the First President both mornings and evenings in the library. Robert Lewis, nephew and private secretary, had seen the President in a kneeling position and with an open Bible before him, praying most fervently to his Maker. This was a daily habit.

When General George Washington was advised of the signing of the Declaration of Independence he responded by writing a most touching prayer. In it he petitioned Almighty God to "keep the United States" in Thy holy protection" and to "most graciously be pleased to dispose us all to do justice, to love mercy and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility, and pacific temper of mind which were the characteristics of the Divine Author of our blessed religion, and without an humble imitation of whose example in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation." He concluded by asking "Grant our supplication, we beseech Thee, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

Upon his elevation to the Presidency, he was besieged by letters in the form of enthusiastic greetings of all denominations. In acknowledging them, he invariably expressed his sincere belief in Divine Providence, advocated religious tolerance, and considered Christianity and the church as necessary components of the social organizations.

Let us turn for a brief time to one of the sermons preached on the Religious Life of Washington, by Noel Porter, San Francisco, California.

Text Ps. 84:5, "Blessed is the man whose strength is in Thee; in whose heart are Thy ways."

Personality is the most majestic thing in the universe. The worlds are the outflashing of the personality. Back of the universe itself is the Supreme Personality.

Now a great personality is the result of conscious contact with the Divine, for the greatness of any man is but the greatness of God in him.

I. Boyhood of Washington.—(a) Moulded by godly parents. Good parents make for nobler children.

(b) Little matters the house we live in, the kind of clothes we wear, or how much money we leave them when we die, if we have not revealed to them the backbone of God's universe, those eternal truths of righteousness, purity, and love, we have been a hindrance to our children, not a blessing.

(c) George Washington owed a great deal to his early training, for his parents realized the essentials in developing character and personality.

II. Personal and public religious life of Washington. (a) General Braddock dead—no chaplain to give him a Christian burial, but Washington, only 34 years old, acted as lay reader.

(b) During the hardships of the winter at Valley Forge Washington was frequently seen on his knees in prayer.

III. Finally Washington manifested the spirit of the Cross of Jesus Christ—the spirit of self-sacrifice and unselfish service.

(a) Contrast Napoleon in France with Washington.

Napoleon was a greater military genius, but Washington was a greater man.

While Napoleon waded through seas of blood to rescue France from the hands of the despoilers, he thought only of a crown for his son.

Washington waded through blood, hunger, and privations for his country's sake and when it was done he asked no reward save to be left alone on his Virginia farm.

Then the secret of greatness lies in forgetting self and serving others. Character alone determines national greatness. At the core of our national life there must be honesty, and integrity and unselfish service.

One thing which became clear in Washington's mind was that the military and governmental difficulties of America were not and could not be properly met without the help of God. Every crisis in his life found him turning to Divine Providence for help and guidance and in thankfulness for the benefits he had received. Wisdom, patience, tolerance, courage, consecration to the righteous cause animated his every act.

"Blessed is the man whose strength is in Thee; in whose heart are Thy ways."

THE CALL OF THE MASTER

John 11:28

By Mrs. Earl Salzman, Topeka, Ind.

"The Master is come and calleth for thee."

This last week of the Master's life gives us another of those wonderful glimpses into the friendships of His life. Sometimes we say that we are taught in the Holy Word we must love all men and because of that it is not Christian to choose certain individuals and call them our intimate friends. It is true, we are taught to love all men, and yet we find that Jesus, in spite of the fact that He loved all men, set about making a new world by making a few intimate friends. To the disciples this friendship meant a revolution in their own lives. Lazarus, Mary and Martha were not of the twelve, but we find them as dear and trusted friends of Jesus and in the relationship existing between this group and Jesus we have a representation of loyal affection upon which the greatest things of human experience are based. During the last week of His life Jesus came here in order that He might rest in soul and body to go to Jerusalem refreshed and ready to face His task anew.

Tonight our text is taken from just this very friendship. Lazarus, that dear and trusted friend, had suddenly passed over on the other side and there was much weeping and sorrow. As the Master drew near Bethany, Martha went out to meet Him, but Mary remained in the home. Then it is that Martha went back and said to Mary, "The Master is come and calleth for thee." He had been in the home many times, but here He was again and calling those who needed Him so much. The Master is here again tonight and is calling for all of us, and as we are starting out this Passion Week of services, I believe it behooves all of us to heed this call of the Master.

There are many masters in the world today who come and ask that they may dominate our lives. Business comes to us and says, Let us have all your time and energy; give of your best to our interests and we will be your master, paying you well in the coin which we alone can give. The world wants to be your master; the world comes to you and says, Laugh and be happy, enjoy life to its fullest, use your time, energy, and money as we direct and we will see to it that you will get the most fun out of life. Then sin comes and wants to master your life; it is continually parking on every doorstep, asking admittance into every life. "Let me rule your life and be your master," then when it has fully mastered our lives it will send us to hell. Its chief purpose is to so master the life that it will have no time for Christ and the church. It is a most cruel master and there is no human power that can release us from its awful grip.

However, there is another Master who is calling us tonight. He is our Master by right of creation, by right of purchase, and by right of sacrifice. He comes to every soul during this Passion Week and says: Consider my suffering, consider the awful price I paid on Calvary in order that I might have the right to be Master of your life and to call you mine. He has been calling you many times, but tonight He calls us again in a different way to impress us with the fact that we are His and that we belong to Him.

The Master is calling you tonight to a life of prayer. Jesus said during His last week in the temple, "My house shall be a house of prayer, ye have made it a den of thieves." He continually reminded these people of the need of prayer in their own lives and He did it most effectively by practicing prayer in His own life. With Him it was a matter of habit. Often He slipped away from the crowd that He might be seen of God and not man. He prayed and then chose the twelve; Jesus prayed and then delivered that matchless Sermon on the Mount; Jesus prayed and then raised Lazarus from the dead; Jesus prayed and then stood ready to face Pilate and the mob with a triumphant spirit. The book of Acts goes on with this record. They were in prayer in the upper room when Jesus came; they were praying when Peter was delivered from prison; they prayed and Pentecost came upon them; they prayed and Paul was converted. Livingstone died while praying in the heart of Africa. John Knox prayed that the Lord might give him Scotland. Jesus comes to us and calls us to prayer. He says, "The fields are white unto the harvest—pray." We today are prone to say, "The fields are white unto the harvest—appoint committees and organize." Not all can go out to Africa and die for that country as did Livingstone; not all can go to China and India, but all can pray. Thus it is that the Master comes to all of us and calls us to pray, not simply repeat words, but to pray with spirit understanding. A certain naval officer who was not an avowed Christian man, felt led to pray the Lord's Prayer which he had been taught in his childhood. He knelt down in his cabin on the high seas and uttered those petitions one by one in the presence of God and pondered over the meaning of each one. He was on his knees two hours and by the end of that time he had found Christ as his Savior and had dedicated his life to God. Today he is a missionary overseas. What could not be accomplished in the world today if people really prayed like that instead of simply repeating meaningless phrases. The Master is here and is calling thee to a life of prayer.

The Master is calling us tonight to re-dedicate our lives to Him. Mary and Martha were believers, yet He came and called them anew. Why is it that every century brings forth such tremendous inventions and discoveries in industry, commerce, art, and business, while the church stands so helpless among all the great needs of our day. It is because the fields of industry, business, art and commerce are getting the best there is of men, their heart, their brains, and their hands, while the church gets the little that is left of them. We need to see new values, to see religion as it relates itself to our entire life and get a new appreciation of those things worth while. The story is told of a woman who one day brought forth a secretly keyed box which she greatly cherished and showed its contents to her pastor. The gaze of the ordinary world was not allowed to be turned upon its contents. They were things which were very ordinary according to the judgment of the world; the market of the world would refuse to buy them, even the junk dealer would have refused to bid on them. A thief would have passed them by had he raided her house. Yet she priced them beyond any price. She kept them locked in a box and only in certain appreciative moods did she bring them forth and allow her eyes to feast on them. It was not the way they looked or the value the had, but it was the unseen she was looking at. It was only a crumpled shoe, a bit of ribbon, a curl of hair, an old worn ring, but to her they meant not those things which are seen, but those things which are unseen. We need to look more at those things which are unseen and in the presence of them say to the Master, "'Woe is me,' but if Thou wilt purge my lips and forgive my wanderings, I will re-dedicate my life to Thee and to those things which are unseen."

The Master is here and is calling us not only to a life of prayer, a life of rededication, but also to a life of service. Jesus, as He was walking past the fig tree, by His actions teaches us that we must live a life of usefullness. The leaves were not enough because the tree lacked fruit at the time when it should have been bearing fruit. Sometimes the call of the Master comes to us not as a voice from the housetop, but as a whisper asking us to do the impossible for Him. It is only those who live in close proximity to the Master that can hear and understand the meaning of these whispers. It was just whispers that called Livingstone to Africa. called Luther to leadership of the Reformation. called Wesley to the byways of England, called William Booth to the darkest alleys of London, and called Grenfell to the cold Northland. The Master spoke to them and they answered His call with service to humanity. A young officer in the trenches was trembling with fear. His body and his knees shook so that he was afraid everybody would see it. Try as he would he could not master himself. He was afraid he would faint. Then he happened to glimpse another lad who was worse off than he was and he said, "Buck up, old man. We're going over together." He saw another boy with bad shoes and bathed his sore feet. In these acts of service, before he knew it he had regained his own poise and calm and power of self-control. Service always does this. It conquers our fears and weaknesses and brings back power and poise into our lives. It makes us forget our own petty troubles and disappointments when we help those who have been even less fortunate than we. Our lot must indeed be a hard one if it is not possible somewhere around us to find someone who is more unfortunate than we, someone who needs our help and sympathy. God and man working together can accomplish the impossible. A man walked into a florist's shop. Picking up a wild rose he exclaimed, "See what God has made"! The owner of the shop went to the rear of the building and opening the ice box took out a beautiful American Beauty rose and holding it up said, "See what God and man made together"! Some day we shall have heaven on earth if only mankind will be willing to labor with God in the accomplishment of His purpose.

There were two women who died in the state of Carolina, so they say. One woman died at the age of 107 and had shut God out of her heart for 103 of those years, having heard only three gospel sermons during all her life, being baptized at the age of over 100 years. She lived a long time as we reckon time by the clock, she lived a long time as we count time by the setting of the sun, a long time as men count time. The other woman died at the age of 27, and hosts of sorrowing friends gathered around her grave and a babe of a few months was crying in the home for the mother who would never return. She was laid to rest in the village cemetery. She was a "good woman, full of good works and almsdeeds which she did." Days, weeks, months, and years she had gladly and willingly served in that community, visiting the sick, helping the needy, ministering in the home, church, and working wherever needed. Judged by the service she rendered she lived more in one year than did the other woman in one hundred years. One may have lived the longest, but we must truly say the other lived the most.

The Master is here and is calling you not only to a life of prayer, reconsecration, and service, but also to a life of sacrifice. Nowhere is this more beautifully exemplified than in the death of Christ for others. We can only heed the Master's call as it should be heeded if we die to self and sacrifice ourselves for others. We only begin to live when we find someone who means more to us than our own life. Tonight in thousands of homes there are mothers watching over children who prefer the companionship of their family to all that society would be able to give them. To some people they are sacrificing the pleasures of society for their family, but they lose sight of the idea of sacrificing in the joy of doing it. That is the way civilization is built. We often like to talk about the survival of the fittest, but that is not the way that leads to true civilization and to heaven itself, but it is by the sacrifice of the best. You may pick up any book of biography or study the life of any individual and you will see at once that all life divides itself into two classes. There is that man or woman who comes to a hard place and through weakness, self-pity or fear quits and turns back: the other is the person who, coming to the difficult or dangerous place, marches breast forward through. The first class grows weak and fails, the other grows strong and endures. Jesus belonged to this first class. He won by losing. He kept by giving, and He lived by dying. Turn to the men of our own century such as Garrison, Lincoln, Sun Yat-sen, Gandhi, and others. They gave their lives with unerring judgment in service to mankind and because of that their memory lives in the hearts and lives of their fellow countrymen of the world. The Christian who refuses the way of sacrifice is denying his Christ.

The Master is here in our presence tonight and is calling for us. He comes and calls us to a life of prayer, service, dedication and sacrifice. He is eager to tell us that He wants us—that He wants us to be His friends, to us may be applied the title which was applied to John, "the disciple whom Jesus loved." Sometimes we wonder just why Jesus was able to calmly and serenely stand in the presence of the cross and utter those magnificent words of forgiveness and resignation. Was it not because He could look in the face of God and knew that there was nothing of misunderstanding or sin which came as a veil between them? Too often there is a veil of sin, a shadow of misunderstanding and disappointment between us and the Master that we are not able to hear when He comes and calls for us, be it as it were from the housetop or in a whisper. If we can only tear away that veil and stand in His presence unafraid then it is that He can speak to us and give us the great commission which He has to give. It is told of George Herbert that in ordinary speech whenever he mentioned the name of Jesus he would add in an undertone, "My Master." It was a habit of his heart, yet the very tone he used when he said it showed that this was the secret of his life and the hidden spring of his joy. Men loved to hear him utter those words, knowing that his whole life was bound up in the love of Jesus and loyalty to Him. His life continually became sweeter and richer and had about it a subtle charm, until at the close of his life he penned the following lines:

"How sweetly doth My Master sound! My Master!
As amergris leaves a rich scent unto the taster:
So do these words a sweeter content,
An oriental fragrance—My Master!
My Master, shall I speak? O that unto Thee
My servant 'were a little so' "!

The Master is here and is calling for thee; He calls youth, He calls old age, but how much easier it is to respond in youth before sin has had its way. When Jacob wronged his brother in youth, he had his eyes opened through the vision of the ladder. The struggle was brief and he poured oil and vowed a vow to God. But look at him when he wrestles with the angel in his old age. It takes all night. He has not kept his early vow, he was afraid of man and God and it meant a tremendous struggle before God could bless him. It is so much easier to respond in the early years of life and God is continually calling for us to come and follow Him.

YOUR PLACE

Is your place a small place?
Guard it with care!
He set you there.

Is your place a large place?
Guard it with care!
He set you there.

Whate'er your place, it is
Not yours alone, but His
Who set you there.
—John Oxenham.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

JESUS IS CALLING

Softly and tenderly Jesus is calling,
Calling for you and for me;
See, at the portal He's waiting and watching,
Watching for you and for me.

Why should we tarry when Jesus is pleading,
Pleading for you and for me;
Why should we linger and heed not His mercies,
Mercies for you and for me.

O for the wonderful love He has promised,
Promised for you and for me;
Though we have sinned, He has mercy and pardon,
Pardon for you and for me.

—Will L. Thompson.

PLAN TO ATTEND THE JUBILEE CONFERENCE IN CALIFORNIA

The 75th Jubilee Conference of our General Conference will be held this summer in Upland, California, August 1-10. No efforts are being spared to make this an outstanding conference. A large number of young people, laymen and ministers should plan to attend. The work of the church demands the presence of many, aside from that it will be an unusual opportunity to see a part of our country which many have never seen before at a remarkably low rate of expense.

Many tours and schedules will be mapped out to suit various tastes and bank accounts. Some will, no doubt, plan to visit the Sunny Southland enroute, others desire to see the immense Northwest. Such routes can be mapped out via the Santa Fe, the Northwest Pacific Railway, and others. But for that large group who will desire to make the trip as economically as possible and yet see as much of our fair land as can be packed in the time and the money spent, the following route has been found the most acceptable thus far.

It is recommended that the most economical plan would be for those living east of Chicago to try to go to that city by auto if possible. Then leaving Chicago, we would board the fine air-conditioned cars of the Chicago and Northwestern and go directly by the way of Omaha to Salt Lake City and stop off there for about twelve hours to see the great Mormon Tabernacle and other points of interest, and then again board the trains to Ontario, California, just east of Los Angeles from which point we would motor by bus the distance of three miles to Upland (fare about ($.15). On the return trip following the conference, we will have the privilege of returning by another route for the same price. The route suggested is to travel via Southern Pacific along the scenic coast from Los Angeles to San Francisco and stop there for a day or so if desired, and then wind on another railroad through the beautiful Sacramento Valley and the Rocky Mountains to Denver, and from there return directly to Chicago.

The most economical fares are the coach rates. These do not include any Pullman facilities, but the chairs are of the comfortable reclining type. On these the one way regular fare from Chicago, Ill., to Ontario, California, or return is $34.50. The clergy fare for same is $17.25. Those desiring to travel in Tourist Class or First Class may do so for fares proportionally higher. Sleeping berths may be procured for those traveling in the latter classes.

The undersigned is the chairman of the Transportation Committee of the Middle District Conference, any questions concerning this route or rates will gladly be answered. Those who art considering traveling on the above suggested route are asked to kindly write a note to the undersigned, in order that we may perchance have a coach of our own.

A. R. Keiser, Dalton, Ohio.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

April 14, 1935

What Welcome Do We Give Christ Today?

Matt. 21:1-11; John 1:11-12

This is Palm Sunday in the church calendar and so it is very fitting that we ask ourselves, "Had we been in that happy crowd that day would we also have joined in according to the Christ Hosannas on Sunday and on Friday jeered 'Crucify Him'?" What do we do with Christ today? If He were to come into our church and young people's society would we recognize Him? Would we obey Him?

Some of the normal steps in a full allegiance to Jesus Christ are first of all to hear the glad story of the gospel and then feel impelled to accept Him as our highest Ideal and Savior, confess and turn away from our sinful, selfish manner of living, and live that manner of life which is well-pleasing to Him. We will never be able to fully understand the atonement and His vicarious sacrifice until we bend down and pour forth our own lives as a sacrifice to some worthy cause for Him.

This is a problem at once individual, social, national, and international. There has been a good deal of heated argument and much scattering of ink as to whether the gospel is social or individual. It is each and it is both. The gospel of Jesus Christ must first transform the individual life before Christ can be glorified, but it dare never stop there, it has always been the very nature of Christianity at its best to go forth and labor and permeate all of life. So the great secret of all of our problems of morals, of state, of race and class, and of internationalism must center primarily in the individual question in the bosom of every individual soul, we must all answer the great question: "What place do I give to Jesus Christ in my life and work"?

Questions

1. Narrate the incidents of the first Palm Sunday.
2. Why is it so essential that we give Christ full loyalty?
3. What are some of the steps in living the full Christian life?
4. What would our churches do if Christ would appear today?
5. How can our C. E. give Christ a better welcome?
6. How can Christ be given a larger place in some of the larger matters of morals and internationalism?
7. How can I make Jesus Christ more welcome in my life?

April 21, 1935

Why Do Christian Believe In Life After Death?

1 Corinthians 15:20-23

In many churches Easter Sunday evening is spent by having special musical programs. This is very fitting for Easter. Such services should consist largely of worship and praise. For the sake of those who will not have special Easter services of a musical nature a number of suggestions and questions are proposed.

There is in existence a large field of religious poetry which deals with Easter, Immortality, and the future life. Such as the following might be used:

(From "Death" by Maltbie Babcock)
Why be afraid of death, as though your life were breath?
Death but anoints your eyes with clay. O glad surprise.

Why should you be forlorn? Death only husks the corn.
Why should you fear to meet the thresher of the wheat?

Is sleep a thing to dread? Yet sleeping you are dead
Till you awake and rise, here, or beyond the skies. . . .

(From "Prospice" by Robert Browning)
Fear death? —to feel the fog in my throat,
The mist in my face,
When the snows begin, and the blasts denote
I am nearing the place,
— — — — — — — — — — — — — — — —
O thou soul of my soul! I shall clasp thee again,
And with God be the rest.

(From "Crossing The Bar" by Tennyson)
Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me.
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

For though from out our bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

Questions

1. Why does the human soul have an unquenching desire for life after death?
2. In what way does the child of God have a hope which may not be shared by the non-Christian?
3. What are some of the assurances of a future life as given by Jesus?
4. How does Paul argue for a life to come in 1 Corinthians 15?
5. What indications from Nature assure us of a future life?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Illinois

April 14, 1935

"I Will Follow Jesus"

Luke 9:57-62

"No man who has put his hand to the plough, and then looks behind him, is fit for the Kingdom of God."

Pre-prayer

We need Thy touch upon our lives; grant that we may not disappoint Thee in refusing to trust Thy love because we do not utterly understand it.

Three men decided to follow Christ. Probably not one of them ever really became a disciple. They were half-followers. In each case there was a price to pay. Study each man's reasons for hesitating before paying that price.

The first thought, rather sentimentally, that it would be a beautiful thing to do to declare his allegiance to this winsome personality. He had not thought of Christ as a homeless leader of men.

The second felt that other duties conflicted with his immediate acceptance of Jesus' invitation to follow Him.

The third was not yet sure that he wanted to break with his old associations. He was the sort of person who is willing to follow Christ if he can first do the thing in which he is particularly interested.

Every farmer prides himself on his straight furrows. Yet every furrow speeding straight as an arrow from one side of the field to the other has been paid for in concentrated effort to make it straight.

Discipleship is a serious thing, and Jesus urges us to count the cost before we undertake it. It is not that He would discourage us from the great enterprise of the Kingdom. He wants wholehearted followers who know what price is to be paid for the Kingdom and think it worth striving for.

Another price to pay if we are to be disciples of Christ—we must go where He goes, we must take into our friendship His friends, whoever they may be.

"I will follow Jesus" means more than the sudden statement of one of a crowd when the question is put: "Who will follow Jesus"? It is the studied personal decision of an individual who has faced the fact that there are other ways, and other persons, to follow. It involves choice, and deliberate choice. It summons determination and courage against opposition. It is as though some one has said, "Do not be fooled into such a pious decision," and the answer comes strongly, "I will. I know what I am doing. I have made up my mind."

Further, it is not easy to follow Jesus. His way is strange, and testing, and demanding. It must be thorough, complete, following, too. No phase of His living is to be left out. My character must become like His. My purposes must be like His. My service must be like His. My influence must be like His. My devotion must be like His.

"I will follow Jesus" is a possible decision for every one in our society to make,—cost what it may!

Questions

1. State Jesus' answers to the three men who proposed to follow Him.
2. Explain the meaning of each.
3. How does Jesus here display His skill as a teacher?
4. What are some excuses which we give today?
5. Are the missionaries the only ones who leave all and follow Him?
6. How may we follow Him?

"Follow Me"

Whence comes this voice within my soul
That bids me follow Thee?
Whence springs this yearning in my heart
That Thou shalt walk with me?

Thou hast no crown, no scepter, Thou,
No garb of royal hue;
Nor follows Thee, in splendid garb,
A princely retinue.

Nay! but Thou hast a crown—of thorns,
A scepter, too—a cross;
A robe, at once both garb and shroud,
Thy streams of blood emboss.

No retinue? Thy train is filled—
A jostling, jeering throng,
That mocks Thy patient, plodding steps
Dark Calvary's way along.

'Tis Thou, O blessed Son of God,
Dost speak within my soul,
Dost bid me rise and follow Thee—
Thyself the Way, the Goal.

O Christ, Thy voice within me speaks,
I cannot say it nay!
To Thee I yield, my Lord, my all,
With Thee to walk life's way.

April 21, 1935

What Is The Meaning Of Easter?

1 Cor. 15:1-11

Pre-prayer

O Lord, may I have deepening experience of Thy resurrection, so that it shall not be to me a historical tradition of theological dogma, but a present reality in my life.

When life is slowly bursting in woods, in parks, in gardens—when, as George Macdonald says in his "Songs of the Spring Days," "The holy spirit of the Spring Days is working silently," then comes the holy festival called Easter, observed in many branches of the Christian church to commemorate the resurrection of Christ.

There are many customs and manners in which Easter is celebrated both by the world and church. For many churches it is the closing of the forty days of Lent and a special service is held. We have noticed that the prominent flower at this time is the white Easter Lily. Why? It decorates the altar as a sign of purity and light. When we look at the pure white flower, does it not give us a feeling of awe and make us inwardly wish that we were as pure?

Easter Sunday answers three questions. First: Who shall roll away the stone? Humanity has always asked that question when confronting a grave. Science has only answered it in part, while Christianity answers it finally and satisfactorily for Jesus, the risen Christ, is Easter's answer to every sincere heart. Second: Why weepest thou? Humanity has always wept and sorrowed at the grave. Christianit has an Easter experience that will stop ever tear. Mary's faith found a new rock to faste her anchor, knowing that He who raised up th Lord Jesus will raise her up also. Her weepin was turned into joy. Third: Why seek ye th living among the dead? Humanity still make its pilgrimages to the cemetery, to the place o death, the tomb, the grave. The resurrectio was taught in the Old Testament, and in th New Testament, by Jesus, who taught it an demonstrated it, and by the apostles who believed in it and preached it.

Our Scripture lesson is by Paul, and w should study the whole chapter. Briefly in outline he states:

1. The fact of the resurrection of our Lor Part of the gospel (vv. 1-4).
2. Witnesses to the resurrection of our Lor (vv. 5-11).
3. Argument (vv. 12-19).
4. The order of the resurrection (vv. 23-26).
5. The manner of the resurrection (vv. 35-49). Illustration—grain sown, vv. 36, 37; difference in seeds, v. 38; difference in fleshl bodies, v. 39; earthly and heavenly bodie contrasted, vv. 40, 41; earthly body and resurrection body contrasted, vv. 43, 44; th first man and last Adam contrasted, vv. 4 47; earthly and heavenly image, vv. 48, 49
6. The bodily transformation (vv. 50-53).
7. Victory (vv. 54-56).
8. Thanksgiving (v. 57).
9. Exhortation (v. 58).

What Easter means to a Christian: 1. Th resurrection of Jesus from the dead. 2. Th living Christ. 3. Eternal life for all who foll Him. 4. Fellowship with Christ.

Why the resurection means so much to t Christian: The supreme triumph of our ris Lord is divine assurance in the valley of t shadow, victory of the spirit over the flesh and sin, and the hope of immortality confirmed.

What "risen with Christ" means: 1. It means separation from the world. Jesus left the tomb never to return. 2. Consecration to Him. Not only a separation from the world, but union with Christ as risen Lord. 3. Freedom. While in the tomb there was bondage. After resurrection the laws of gravitation did not affect Jesus.

Questions

1. What does the name Easter mean?
2. How does a bulb show the Easter lesson?
3. How does the butterfly symbolize the Easter lesson?
4. How do we observe Easter?
5. Why do so many people go to church on Easter who seldom go at other times?
6. Is going to church the best observance of Easter?
7. How should we as Christians observe Easter?

Are you so linked to Christ by faith that you have the assurance of sharing in this resurrection after death? (2 Cor. 4:14; 1 Thess. 4:16-)

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

April 14, 1935

Topic.—How Can I Live For Jesus Each Day?

Matt. 5:16; 25:40

A story is told of a little girl who had to go to live with an uncle and aunt because her mother had died. It was a bit hard for her relatives to make room for her, as they had a family of their own, but they soon had reason to be thankful for the niece who had come into their home. She was a Christian and lived for Jesus so well that her little cousins as well as the uncle and aunt soon saw that they should give Jesus a larger place in their home. She not only told them of Jesus, but was so kind and helpful that she proved herself a Christian every day.

Jesus expects us to tell other folks of our love for Him, but He wants just as much that we prove our love by living for Him. He is always ready to help us in our living. Matt. 5:16 says that our lives should be such as will bring honor to God. Here are a few rules found in the Bible.

First we are to love God. Matt. 22:37; 1 John 5:21. — If we love Him, we shall love others. 1 John 4:11, 21. — Our love is proved by actions. Eph. 4:32; Rom. 12:18.

Someone has said, "There are many rules in the Word of God for those who belong to Him, but they are all love rules. He does not say we must keep them, but when His love is in our hearts we just naturally keep them. The most important rule in the Bible is that we shall love God with all our heart, and love one another as He loved us. This seems like two rules, but if we keep the first one we will be also keeping the second one, for we cannot love God without loving all His children."

Then we need to think rightly. Phil. 4:8. Unless we have right thoughts, our actions will not be right. Prov. 23:7.

Rom. 12:1 shows that if we would live for Jesus every day we must give Him our bodies as well as our hearts and our minds. Let us see how each part of our bodies may be used for Him.

1. Lips—Ps. 19:14. 2. Eyes—Prov. 23: 31; 5:25. 3. Ears—Prov. 1:8; 8:33. 4. Hands—Eccl. 9:10. 5. Feet—Job 34:21; Prov. 4:26.

Many times people can quickly tell by our appearance whether or not we are Christians. A Chinese woman noticed that the mission girls seemed to be more beautiful than others. She had not learned the reason, but wanted her little girl to live at the mission so she might have a beautiful face, too.

Plans for the Meeting

Use the outline on Rules for Christian Living suggested by the discussion or arrange one similar. This should be a real consecration service. "Take my life and let it be" is a good song to use in closing. Christ loves to receive boys and girls who are willing to yield themselves to Him and allow Him to mold their lives.

Questions

1. How can a Junior prove himself a Christian?
2. How do we get the strength to live for Jesus?
3. Why is it important that we live for Him each day?
4. How may we live for Him at home? At school? At play?
5. What kind of reading will help us to live rightly?

April 21, 1935

Topic.—Why We Believe We Live Forever

John 11:25, 26; 1 Cor. 15:21, 22 (Easter)

Christ is risen! Could any three words hold more of joy and hope? And He said, "Because I live, ye shall live also." A little girl whose baby brother had died asked her mother where the baby had gone. The mother said, "To be with Jesus." Not many days after the girl heard her mother tell someone how sad she was because she had lost her baby. The little girl said, "Mother, can anything be lost when you know where it is"? The baby was not lost. He had just gone on to be with Jesus.

Our topic is "Why We Believe We Shall Live Forever." There are two meanings of the word "believe." If you are not quite sure a thing is true, you say, "I believe so." Then again, when speaking of something that has been told you by a person who always speaks the truth, you say, "He said so and I believe it." In other words, you know it. That is what "believe" in our topic today means. There are things that might cause us to "think" we shall live forever, but we "know" we shall because Christ said so and He always tells the truth.

Christ proved His power to give life when He Himself arose from the dead. Easter seems to me the happiest day of all the year for two reasons. It reminds us that Christ is now living, and that we shall live with Him always. It makes us so happy to know that our loved ones who have gone are not dead, but are with Him, and that we who love Him shall some day meet there. Perhaps you have been lonely for a playmate or grandfather or grandmother who loved Jesus, but have died. Be happy this Easter time, for "because He lived, we shall live also."

"Yet still to His foot-stool in prayer I may go,
And ask for a share in His love;
And if I now earnestly seek Him below,
I shall see Him and hear Him above:
In that beautiful place He has gone to prepare
For all who are washed and forgiven.
And many dear children are gathering there,
'For of such is the kingdom of heaven."

We do not know much about that beautiful place. Christ has saved most of it for a happy surprise. What the Bible tells of it is as if a door had been opened a crack just for a minute and then closed. He has only given us a little look, enough to let us know that it is a very beautiful, happy place and that He will be there.

Get your Bible and we will find some verses that tell of that place and why we know we shall live forever. John 14:1-3, 19; 2 Cor. 5:1; John 11:25, 26; 1 Cor. 15:20-26, 42-44; Phil. 3: 20, 21; Rev. 21: 4, 23-27.

Plans for the Meeting

The most used and perhaps most easily understood illustration of life after death is found in the lily and bulb. If possible, bring to the meeting an Easter lily in bloom and a lily bulb. In connection with this use 1 Cor. 15:43, 44. The Juniors will quickly see that although the life of the lily is in the bulb, yet the lily is far more beautiful. So our bodies after the resurrection shall far exceed the bodies in which we now live.

Questions

1. Why is Easter a happy day?
2. Tell about Christ's resurrection.
3. Give one promise of life after death.
4. Tell something of the home Christ is preparing.
5. For whom is He preparing that home?

Better Than Automobiles

In these days when about everybody has an automobile and when those who do not have one are trying to turn heaven and earth to get one, a little girl asked her mother why they did not have an automobile. She said that about all her schoolmate's parents had them, and her companions felt they must be very poor because they had none. The mother explained that they were buying a home which was more necessary than an automobile, and that they could not buy a home and an automobile at the same time. Patiently the mother explained that some things were more important than others, that some things were necessities, while others were luxuries or conveniences, and that it was wrong to have luxuries without first having the necessities. She showed the little girl that even though others regarded them poor, they could better afford to walk or take a trolley car than to live beyond their means and be dishonest. The little girl kept thinking of the better things on her way to school and began making a list of those she could think of. Among them were honesty, love, helpfulness, and many others. Then her heart was comforted as she understood that a noble character is better than an abundance of things. —The Friend.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

April 14, 1935

Some Great Christian Teachings
Christ The Savior

Lesson Text.—John 3:14-17; Rom. 5:6-10; Phil. 2:5-11

Golden Text.—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life. John 3:16.

This series of lessons gives the church member an opportunity to study and examine for himself the great eternal verities of the Kingdom of God. One of the great weaknesses in our present day church is that the laity take too much for granted. They do not spend enough time in thinking through the fundamentals of Christianity. Religion to many is a side issue, an incidental affair among the many incidents of life. That is the reason for the lack of enthusiasm and indifference of the church. It is the layman's working beliefs—not statements of creeds, or his theoretical beliefs—but the convictions that actually influence his life, which are held steadily in view. Every person must become his own theologian—and prepare himself for stiffer thinking than he has been used to. Too many are like little birdies in the nest, they open their mouths and swallow whatever is fed them. But the laymen are ready to think if we leaders will only give them a chance. The crucial problems of Christianity today are men's convictions of God and Jesus Christ. The great question today, however, concerning God is not so much "Is there a God"? as "What is He like"? Here is where our lesson today is vital. Jesus is the Savior because of the revelation He made of God. We know what God is like when we know Jesus.

It might be well to think some of these questions through: Who is Jesus? Is He a man? Is He only a man? How is He different from Socrates, Ghandi, Mohammed, or even Isaiah or Paul? Is He a Savior any more than these other men were saviors? Did He come to bring us a code of ethics?

Our Scriptures today are taken from three sources, the Gospel of John and Paul's teachings. These writings reveal two truths as to our salvation, first as to who saved us, and what it means to be saved.

God so loved the world that He gave His only Begotten Son. Here is stated God's eternal purpose for mankind. From the beginning God wanted to live in fellowship with man and wanted man to cooperate with Him in carrying out His purpose. But man sinned. Sin obstructed and still obstructs God's purpose for man. Man was made in God's image, but sin marred that image. But God would not be defeated. He would win man back. God is not a passive influence in the world and life; He is an active, seeking, loving God who seeks the last UNTIL He finds them. God's eternal purpose is redemptive because He is love. He revealed in the fullness of time this redemptive love through His Son whom He gave because He SO loved. Jesus means Joshua, which is Hebrew for Savior. He shall save the people from their sins. Jesus is our Savior because He is the Revelation of the redemptive purpose and love of God. In this redemptive love of Jesus as Savior His life and death can not be separated. One without the other is not salvation. Rom. 5:10. If we emphasize only His life we have a man with a code of ethics, but limited in his reach of love. If we take only His death we make it a magical wand to be waved over people for salvation. Jesus' life and death is like His seamless robe. It cannot be separated without destroying its power.

The next thing of significance in our lesson is: What is salvation? A man testified at a revival meeting how he was so marvelously saved. His wife told someone after service that she knew quite a few things he had not been saved from. The final test of salvation lies in the fruit. The first act of salvation is a regenerated heart, then we become babes in Christ and feed on the milk of the Word. Then we grow in grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ until we come to the perfect man unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.

What is God's part in our salvation?
In what sense is Jesus our Savior?
Can an individual save himself? Why not?
Are you saved from or saved for or saved to?

April 21, 1935

Some Great Christian Teachings
The Future Life

Easter Lesson

Lesson Text.—Luke 24:1-12; John 14:1-6

Golden Text.—I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth on me though he die, yet shall he live. John 11:25.

This being Easter Sunday, we turn our attention to an Easter message. There are three things that usually concern us on this day: What did the resurrection mean to Jesus; what did it mean to the disciples; and what does it mean to us today? Our last lesson set forth Christ as our Savior, placing the emphasis on the life and death of Jesus. But after all, Jesus' death is only effective through the empty tomb. A dead Jesus is, after all, not the Lord of life. We are not interested as much in whether we shall exist beyond the grave, as we are in whether we shall live beyond the grave. Eternal life which comes through salvation and regeneration is not only significant for its length—forever,—but also for its depth and its width. We will live as long as God if we live with God. After all the final proof of Jesus' Messiahship lies in whether He rose from the dead. If Jesus' resurrection is a myth, then even the ethics of Christianity are low, because we are deceivers. Paul says if Christ is not risen, then is our preaching vain and your faith is vain. We are false witnesses. We are yet in our sins. The whole foundation of Christianity rests on His resurrection. If it is not true, we perform an intellectual jiggling trick with ourselves.

We as Christians believe that Jesus rose from the dead. He appeared a number of times to the disciples, and finally left them from the Mount of Olives to ascend to His Father. It was this conviction that He had arisen and actually lives that gave the apostles enthusiasm, courage, and such great loyalty to the spread of the gospel. These disciples who had been cowardly, wavering, and uncertain, now became lions of power and people perceived they had been with Jesus.

As far as we are concerned the resurrection brings us two fundamental convictions: first, that Jesus is the resurrection and the life. He is not an absentee Lord, but a present, living Lord of life. He comes with power to gladden the lives of men and women. In the second place, because He lives we shall live also. We shall live now in His presence and we shall live on. Death becomes a sleep, a stepping stone into a larger life. We do not wait pessimistically for Him to come at some future day as if we were now orphans, forsaken of Him. He is here now. Christ liveth in me. We, however, live this life with the blessed hope as our incentive that some day he will come in all His fullness and power and glory in the consummation of all things.

How would you prove to an individual that Jesus rose from the dead?

What is the real Easter message?

CORRESPONDENCE

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. Sunday evening, February 24, a program of sacred music was given by the Goshen College Chorus, under the direction of Prof. Walter Yoder. The Maple Grove Mennonite Church cooperated with this church in the program which was largely attended.

The Berean class of the Sunday School were guests of Mrs. M. W. Steele, Thursday, February 28th.

Sunday morning, March 3, Rev. A. Rosenberger, Associate President of Bluffton College, gave the message. In the evening a program was given by a male quartet from Bluffton College.

Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Weaver of Danvers, Ill., were guests of Rev. and Mrs. Salzman recently.

Mr. Ephraim Plank has returned from a several months' stay in Florida.

At the morning service, Sunday, March 10 two persons were received into the church Mrs. Shirley Loy by letter and Mrs. Carl Bobecl by bapstism. May God bless them!

Sunday evening, March 10, a program o sacred music was given by the Men's Community Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Arthu Slagel. Following the music, a sermon was delivered by Rev. Russel Bollinger, principal o Topeka High School.

There has been considerable sickness amon the members of the Sunday School and churcl A number were ill with measles. Others wh have been quite ill, are Mrs. Salzman, Mrs. Joh Zook, Miss Lucille Moser, and Mr. Verno Kauffman.

JOTTINGS

On Sunday, March 24, the three churches comprising the Swamp, Pa., charge, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, pastor, observed Bluffton College Day. A group of graduates and former students of the college put on a program of instrumental and vocal selections and one of the group taught the Sunday School lesson. Considerable interest was manifested in the Bluffton College Day programs.

The Year Book of the Berne, Ind., church for 1935 appears in the form of an 80 page pamphlet. The church has a membership of 1134, an increase of 55 over last year. Members enrolled in the Sunday School 1160. Rev. C. H. Sucau is pastor.

The California S. S. and C. E. convention of the Mennonite churches in that state will be held May 10-12 in the San Marcos church, Paso Robles. Immediately following the General Conference and its Diamond Jubilee in Upland, Calif., August 4-11, a Young People's Retreat will be held August 12-16 at Camp LaVerne, Jenk's Lake, in the San Bernardino mountains.

Rev. A. M. Fretz, pastor of the Deep Run, Springfield, and Perkasie, Pa., congregations has recently issued the yearly reports of his charges in the shape Vol. 15 of Home and Church. Schedules of services, membership, and financial reports are given as well as notices of marriages, deaths, and special events.

According to a notice printed in Mennonitische Blätter, Germany, the Mennonite congregations of Holland have issued a call for a world conference of Mennonites to be held in Amsterdam in 1936. The following committee has been named: Dr. Neff of Weierhof, Pastor Bachman of Lemberg, Prof. Bender of Goshen College, Pastor Haendiges of Elbing, Rev. Nussbauer of Switzerland, Rev. Sommer of France, and Prof. B. H. Unruh of Karlsruhe.

Peace problems were discussed at a meeting of young people of the Western District Conference. Dr. Harshbarger of Bethel College made the address on "Need for Peace Action." Vivienne Muselman closed the meeting with some definite suggestions for the work.

Christian A. Neuenschwander, age 85, who recently died in his home at Berne, Ind., served that congregation as deacon for more than twenty years, and was secretary of the Sunday School for forty years. He was prominent in the business circles of his town. His birthplace was Switzerland. He arrived in America in 1852.

The Emergency Relief Board of the General Conference reports for December: Received for Russia, $805.02; General Fund, $464.31; for Harbin, $5.00; for China, $25.00; for F. v. Bodelschwingh, $15.00; for Canada, $54.00. Rev. P. H. Unruh of Goessel, Kansas, is treasurer of the Board.

Few persons enjoyed greater esteem in the General Conference than the late Rev. S. S. Sprunger of Berne, Ind., who passed to his eternal reward in 1923. The large Berne congregation and the splendid Christian tone of the town of Berne are moments to his devoted and tireless work. It may be of interest to many of our readers who remember Rev. Sprunger to know that his widow survives, hale and hearty at the age of 86.

President Rosenberger and Professors Dr. Bauman and Rev. I. R. Detweiler of Bluffton College attended the meetings of the Mission Board of the Central Conference held recently in Chicago.

The General Conference treasurer gives the following report of the conference treasury, June 18-March 9, 1935: Balance on hand, $36.41; received for General Conference treasury, $326.73; for General Conference Minutes, $205.52; Diamond Jubilee Fund, $962.70. Balance in hands of treasurer, $787.70.

General Conference Foreign Mission receipts for February 1935: $4,420.38. Balance, February 1, $2,950.95; Gifts, for orphans, $285.88; for Ewert, $12.72; Interest and Rent, $403.47; China Relief, $10.00. Balance, March 1, $732.55.

The Executive Committee of Mission Societies reports as follows: Foreign Missions, General Fund, $56.24; Jubilee Fund, $55.00; Expenses of Executive Committee $16.30; India $260.00; China, $30.93; Miscellaneous, $58.00. Mrs. Freda Regier Entz, treasurer.

A series of Pre-Easter services were held in Grace church, Pandora, O., March 17-24. Dr. D. W. Kurtz, president of Bethel Biblical Seminary, Chicago, was the speaker. Dr. Kurtz has been one of the official speakers at three World Sunday School Conventions. He has served as college president, pastor, lecturer, and seminary head during his career.

The World Day of Prayer was observed by the Missionary Societies of Moundridge and community on March 8. The meetings were held in the West Zion church and was the first observance of the day to be held in Moundridge. The morning session was devoted to meditation and prayer with Mrs. F. W. Kaiser, wife of the Evangelical pastor, presiding. At noon a covered dish luncheon was served in the Christian church to over one hundred people. The afternoon program was led by Mrs. Doc Smith of the Christian church. Special music was given by a ladies' chorus and two numbers by the H. S. Glee Club, directed by Miss Olga Hiebert. We very much appreciated the attendance of three of our missionaries, Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannebecker from China and Miss Augusta Schmidt of India, who gave inspiring talks on their work in the mission fields. A special offering was taken, the proceeds of which will be given for religious education in our school. This special day of prayer proved to be an inspiration and a day of blessing to many who attended, and we trust that a day thus spent has touched many hearts and renewed our pledge of consecration to Christ and His work.

DEATHS

Moore.—In Perkasie, Pa., at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Daymon, on Mach 5, 1935, Lena F. Moore, aged 70 years, 10 months, 13 days. Funeral services were conducted on the evening of March 8, in the Wilkinson Funeral Home, Sellersville, by Rev. Allen M. Fretz. Interment March 9th at Wilmington, Del.

Mrs. Emma S. Ackerman, nee Shelly, was born May 20, 1859. On March 26, 1875, she was baptized upon confession of faith in Jesus Christ as her personal Savior and admitted into the West Swamp, Pa., Mennonite Church. On December 23, 1876, she was united in marriage to Jacob Ackerman, with whom she shared joys and tasks for more than 56 years. Her husband preceded her in death, having died August 30, 1930. Mrs. Ackerman is survived by her only daughter, Mrs. E. Minerva Mory. Early on Tuesday morning, March 5, 1935, the Lord called her home. Her age at death was 75 years, 9 months, and 15 days. Text used at the funeral, 1 Peter 1:3-9. Interment at adjoining cemetery. Funeral was conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander.

Mrs. Katie Stoneback, daughter of Daniel and Sarah Stauffer, was born December 25, 1883. She was united in marriage to Edwin K. Stoneback, on September 30, 1911. On April 10, 1915, she with her husband joined the Bethany Mennonite Church, Quakertown, Pa. On Wednesday afternoon, March 6, 1935, she breathed her last. Her age at death was 51 years, 2 months, and 11 days. She leaves to mourn her departure, her sorrowing husband, and four children. — Funeral text: "Unto you therefore which believe is he precious," 1 Peter 2:7. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, her pastor, officiated. Interment in Quakertown Union Cemetery.

Augspurger.—Miss Elizabeth, born February 9, 1870, died January 26,, 1935, at her home at 211 Harrison St., Middletown, Ohio. Surviving are four sisters and two brothers. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 from the Mennonite Church at Trenton, Ohio, Rev. J. E. Amstutz speaking words of comfort to the bereaved, basing his remarks on passages of Scripture dear to the departed. Burial in the Mennonite Cemetery in Trenton, Ohio.

Meyers.—Mrs. Anna of Trenton of Ohio, passed away at her home, Sunday evening, March 3; 1935, at the age of 85 years. She is survived by her son, Moses. She was a faithful member of the Mennonite Church, and services were held at the church, Wednesday afternoon, at which time Rev. J. E. Amstutz spoke words of comfort, basing his remarks on Psalm 23rd. Burial in the Mennonite cemetery at Trenton, Ohio.

John Malon Lehman was born October 6, 1883, and was the son of P. P. and Barbara Welty Lehman. He spent his entire life in Morgan County, Missouri, being born and reared in the same home at which he passed away. In 1909 he united with the Bethel Mennonite Church near Fortuna, Mo., of which he was a faithful attendant and active worker until his death. On January 1, 1909, he was united in marriage with Ida A. Garber, and enjoyed a happy wedded life. To this union were born nine children, eight of whom are still at home, one son having preceded him in death in 1916. He passed away at his home on March 9 at 11:43, suffering from a lingering illness of several months, having reached the age of 51 years, 5 months, and 3 days. He leaves to mourn his early departure, his beloved wife, six daughters, and two sons, stepmother, one brother, one sister, many relatives, and a host of friends who keenly feel the sorrow of his early departure. Services were conducted in the Bethel Mennonite church by the pastor, Rev. C. H. Dirks, assisted by Rev. P. P. Hilty.

GIFTS RECEIVED FOR THE PUBLICATION FUND DURING FEBRUARY

Frieda Lehman	$ 5.00
Mrs. Benj. Lehman	1.00
Gnadenberg Church, Whitewater, Kansas	15.36
Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak	30.00
First Church, Philadelphia, Pa	1.43
K. A. Richert, Treasurer, General Conference	25.00
First Church, Upland, Cal	3.37
Rev. F. J. Isaac	5.00
Sunday School Class, Grace Church, Pandora, O.	11.65
Mrs. Katherine Balzer	50.00
H. A. Buller	5.00
U. S. Amstutz	10.00
Bethesda Church, Marion, So. Dak	17.65
Salem Zion Church, Marion, So. Dak	68.50
First Church, Paso Robles, Calif	20.50
Total	$269.46

The sincerest thanks of the Board to all the givers.

H. J. Krehbiel,
Chairman of Board of Publication.

WANTED

A group of Christians, fully consecrated to Christ and alive to the needs and conditions existing today are needed everywhere.

Young people who are willing to prepare themselves to take an active part in spreading the Gospel message by both word and deed. They must be willing to forego some things and spend time in earnest study of Christian teachings and in prayerful meditation. They must be willing to speak out against the evils that exist in the world and point to the Spirit of Christ as the only way to correct them.

Young people convinced that Christ died for them and all people, ready to carry the message of Salvation to those who have not experienced its great joy will do more toward correcting the injustice of today than all the laws that can be passed.

—Y. P. S. and S. S. U. Notes, Eastern Dist. Conf.

FRAMED "Bits-O'-Sunshine" MOTTOES

Here is what may aptly be termed "the last word" in mottoes. The sentiments and Bible verses used are the choice of many; they have been tried and proved for their meaningfulness and beauty.

Dainty landscape and floral designs are done in eight-color offset process on lovely silken finish material. Each motto is framed. In Neat Gift Boxes.

Nothing can take the place of framed pictures and mottoes. These are delicately tinted in silver, lavender, pea green, and robin egg blue. Just the right touches of color harmony are used by skilled artists who specialize in artful decorations. They are sure to please the most discriminating. Each motto is under best grade clear glass and comes with metal hanger. Boxed in fancy gift boxes. Priced reasonably and guaranteed to please. Offered only by the religious trade. Not sold in chain stores.

What God Hath Promised

What God Hath Promised
No. 750—Size 5½x7½—75 cents

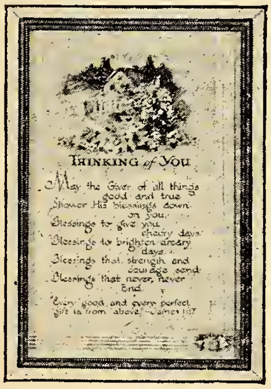
MOTHER and HOME

Mother and Home
No. 751—Size 7½x5½—75 cents

The Twenty-third Psalm

The Twenty-Third Psalm
No. 503—Size 5½x5—50 cents

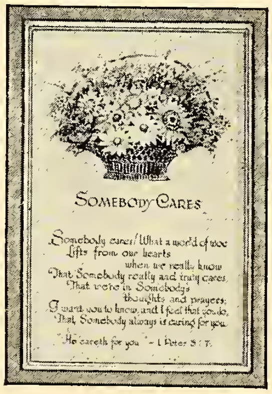
THE IDEAL ALL OCCASION GIFT



Thinking of You
No. 501—Size 4½x6½
50 cents

Just For Today

Just for Today
No. 504—Size 5½x5
50 cents



Somebody Cares
No. 502—Size 4½x6½
50 cents

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

EASTER GREETINGS

Lovely, New Easter Folders

WITH CHOICE SCRIPTURE TEXTS

Easter Greetings

No. 9535

Happy Easter

No. 9542

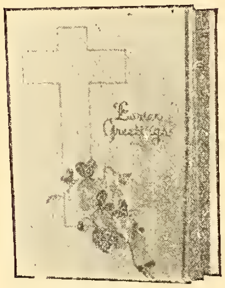
Every Christian's hope of eternal life is based on the resurrection of our Lord. Easter's true import is to recognize and glorify the risen Christ.

Nothing could be more appropriate than to send these lovely folders to your friends. They are attractively designed and produced in many colors. Each folder carries an appropriate passage from the Bible in connection with a meaningful Easter sentiment.

Honor Christ at Easter Time!
Use Scripture-Text Greetings!

Envelopes included—Only 5 cents each

No orders accepted for less than 25c



No. 9533

No. 9635—Easter Greetings—Lavender cross and white lilies. Choice sentiment and Bible verse of I Cor. 15:20. Size 3½x3½. With envelope......5c

No. 9533—Easter Greetings—Silver cross and lavender violets. Bible verse is Job 19:25. Size 3½x4½. With envelope......5c

No. 9542—Happy Easter—Beautiful lilies and insert of quaint church in charming colors. Bible verse is Phil. 4:4. Size 3¼x4½. With envelope 5c

No. 9547—At Easter Time—A cheering folder that shows home on hill, flowers, and birds. Bible verse is Rom. 6:23. Size 3¼x4½. With envelope 5c

At Easter Time!

No. 9547

PRETTY EASTER CROSSES

Choice Scripture texts—Colorful designs

Envelopes furnished

3 cents each

Dainty die cut Easter crosses lithographed in many beautiful colors. Size 2¾x4¼. Each cross comes with envelope. Suitable for gifts, rewards, or greetings. Each of the five different designs illustrated carries a different greeting and Bible verse. All orders are shipped assorted. You'll be pleased. Each cross is of equal value.

3 cents each assorted, or 30 cents a dozen

(No orders accepted for less than 30c)

Fine for Sunday-school rewards to classes or groups

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO

The MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Ema

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid. which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, APRIL 16, 1935 No. 8

INTEREST IN THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

No time in the history of our General Conference has such a vital bearing upon our church life at the present. We are in the face of conditions in which an aroused Christianity is the only thing that will save the world from the chaos that threatens about every worthy institution. The church must have a deeper understanding of conditions, not only in the world, but in its own field, if it is to be prepared for what will follow. Our own General Conference is preparing to celebrate its Jubilee. A look backward for the moment should inspire greater loyalty and greater service in the light of what has been realized. A look forward is as important as it is for the captain of the ship to have a clear knowledge of the way to his destination and the means of meeting whatever difficulties may arise in the way. No one would entrust his life willingly on a vessel about whose pilot there is a question of ability.

Conference has new waters to navigate. It must prepare to enter its undertakings intelligently. There will be no reason for its existence if it is just to drift with the tide of events. Drifting usually lands the ship either on the rocks or on the shoals. Every church, and every member of the church, bears a measure of responsibility for the future of the Conference and that means so far as we are concerned our own Christian future. Because we are so confronted it is of vital importance that the coming gathering should have a full representation from all the churches making up that body. How, if all the church is not sufficiently interested in its work to see that it has a full representation, will our missions, our publications, our schools, and our benevolences be taken care of and assured of a future ability to function?

We realize that distance makes the trip costly to many of the brethren who should attend. We also realize that most of us have found ourselves in a state of financial uncertainty to the extent that our home churches hardly know at times how to make ends meet. But let us understand that going to Conference is not a pleasure trip and that we are in the face of a crisis that must be met and that this calls for sacrifices in order to maintain what we have. No church should hesitate about doing without things, or even going into the red. The usefulness of our church is at stake. We would therefore advise every congregation to provide representation at the Conference. In the days to come we are sure to feel the need of the closest Christian fellowship in order to do our part together in the building up and the maintaining the work of the Kingdom of God to which we have committed ourselves. G.

BEGINNINGS OF OUR GENERAL CONFERENCE

Two things marked the publications of our General Conference from the time when John Oberholtzer of Pennsylvania undertook the publication of the Religioeser Botschafter at his own expense. First it was a keen realization of the need of church publications in efficiently spreading the truth and the work of the church and, secondly, a grave concern about financing such publications which then, as now, has become acute.

Oberholtzer's first paper, which appeared in 1852, was followed by Das Christliche Volksblatt, which was taken over by a corporation in order to relieve him of the financial responsibility, but was entrusted to his editorship. This paper, too, was soon on financial rocks. Its successor, the Friedensbote, had a longer life and continued to appear until merged with Zur Heimath, to become the present Bundesbote. As editor of the two earlier papers, Oberholtzer gained a wider hearing than just the limits of the East Pennsylvania Conference, as it was then called. In looking over acknowledgements of subscriptions one notes a rather large proportion of Schwenkfelder names, and this is easily understood when we realize that he enjoyed the esteem of many of the ministers and people of that church in the neighborhood. More important than community appreciation was the contact with Mennonites in distant parts that came to him through the circulation of the papers. We find that Mennonites in Canada, Ohio, Illinois, and Iowa, as well as other places, were among the readers and often became contributors to the columns.

Very early in his career Oberholtzer began to evidence an unusual interest in missions and education and the papers gave him the most effective field for sharing these interests with other Mennonites. It was quite evident that the limited field offered by the East Pennsylvania Conference could not sponsor undertakings of such proportions.

From the time that he and his party found themselves shut out from the fellowship of the Franconia (Old) Mennonite Conference, he realized that an obscure party of Mennonites, comprising but a few weak and isolated churches, could not truly enjoy and spread the principles that were practically identical with all Mennonites and that there should be a closer fellowship between the numerous scattered bodies who honored Menno Simon by taking his name. His writings were naturally an outlet of his ideas that found responses in other quarters. Soon there were Mennonites from Canada who were seeking fellowship with the East Pennsylvania Conference. Then a group in Ohio that came into fellowship with Canadian churches, received one of the eastern ministers in the person of Ephraim Hunsberger as a minister, he having come with certificates of the ordination to the office of Bishop from Herford, his home congregation, and from the East Pennsylvania Conference. He located in Wadsworth, Ohio, and later Wadsworth was to become the meeting place of several General Conferences and the site of the Wadsworth school, the first venture of Mennonites in America into the field of higher education. It was during his early activities that Oberholtzer came into touch with European Mennonites. His missionary zeal made him the most likely person to contact with European Mennonites who were already actively entering into missionary enterprises and articles on missionary subjects reprinted from the Mennonitische Blaetter frequently appeared in the Volksblatt. The response to Oberholtzer's writings developed an interest among a group of Mennonites in Iowa that came to have a large influence on the future. It was an unusual field. These people had but lately come from South Germany, while in Pennsylvania Mennonites had already been in a settled community for a century and three quarters. Their language had changed into a dialect peculiar to themselves and they were so far from the European background as their fathers that they fitted into American life in about everything but their dialect. Even their everyday life was different. Here they cultivated farms that had been cleared for generations and so were remote from the pioneer life, while in the west their brethren were breaking the virgin soil and enduring the privations incident to settling in a new country.

In Iowa there was a group in Lee county comprising the Zion and West Point churches. These proceeded to arrange for a closer union by calling into being a united conference on March 21, 1859. Krehbiel in his "History of the General Conference" says of this movement: "One would not have thought that this little gathering was of more than local significance, yet it was providentially ordained to form the beginning of a mighty movement.' A leading personality in this conference was Daniel Krehbiel, a reader of and a contributor to the Volksblatt. In a communication from West Point, dated February 5, 1860, he writes "By request of the officers of this church the attention of the brethren in Canada, Pennsyl vania, Illinois, and other places, is called to the hope that many other churches will send delegates to it, for not only would the missionary cause find greater support among us, but to our denomination it would be no small gain to establish a more intimate and fraternal relation between us all."

It was a bow drawn at a venture and there was no certainty as to the response. Travel was costly and trying, while distances were great. The Iowa group waited in uncertainty. Would there be a response? The response did come in the persons of two Pennsylvania ministers, John Oberholtzer and Enos Laux. Then followed the meeting with a vision of a Conference that would lead from the Atlantic across the prairies of the west. The realization of this vision had been greater than the hopes of those who first had it, for the General Conference has long ago spanned the prairies and reached the Pacific. Here, then, was the actual beginning of the General Conference and the two men most involved in its beginning were John Oberholtzer and Daniel Krehbiel. Oberholtzer had dreamed of it, while Krehbiel was the greatest factor in making it a reality.

G.

THE FIRST GENERAL CONFERENCE YOUNG PEOPLE'S RETREAT

Immediately following the 75th Anniversary Session of the conference at Upland, California, the first General Conference Young People's Retreat will be held. The suggestion for such a retreat came from the Pacific District Conference through its president, Rev. J. M. Regier, and has been planned by the General Conference Young People's Committee in cooperation with the California S. S. and C. E. Committee. A retreat executive committee has been organized as follows: D. D. Eitzen, chairman; Aaron E. Jantzen, retreat director; Mary Borneman, secretary; and A. J. Richert, treasurer. Camp LaVerne, owned and operated by the Southern District of the Church of the Brethren, has been engaged. This camp is a beautiful retreat spot in the San Bernardino mountains, only 55 miles from conference headquarters at Upland. The retreat is planned for August 12-17. The fee covering all expenses except transportation is $7.00. Bus transportation arrangements have been made for an additional charge of 50 cents from Upland to the camp and back.

It is hoped that many young people from all of the churches of the General Conference will be able to attend it, and prepare for it. For particulars write Aron Jantzen, 132 Pacific Avenue, Long Beach, California, or Mary Borneman, 27 East Marshall Street, Norristown, Pennsylvania.

GIVE ME — MAKE ME

(Concerning the Diamond Jubilee Fund)

One tangible evidence of a regenerated life is scriptural giving. But how can we account for such dogmatizing? We see it demonstrated in Jesus' own parable of the prodigal son. Was not perhaps the essence of this young man's sin his insisting upon the right to do with his goods as he pleased? "Give me" was his prayer to his father. And did the father grant him this demand? And if he did — Luke's gospel says, "And he divided unto them his living"— under what provisions did he comply with the request? The father gave the young man his due without any strings attached to his giving — except — his conscience.

How has the Father of our denomination— how has our God dealt with us? Has He withheld His blessings, or has the Lord honored the faith of our fathers in their humble beginnings of 75 years ago that we, like Jacob, have had to divide the flock? The answer is evident, for God has used the testimony of the General Conference of the Mennonite Church. Materially too, our people have prospered.

But there is one more question in this series. What kind of stewards are we of these blessings? Do we, perhaps, accept them as did the prodigal son, that we may use them selfishly and as we please? Or have we experienced the poverty of such selfcenteredness and come back to God with the prodigal son, laying at His feet our all with the prayer, "Make Me." What a difference in these two prayers, "Give Me" and "Make me"!

The thermometer of the Jubilee Fund is a fair indicator of how many are praying the former or the latter prayer.

THE JUBILEE CONFERENCE AND FUND

Paul writes to the Romans, Romans 13:8, "Owe no man anything, but to love one another."

Your attendance at the Jubilee session of the Conference will be worth while for the following five reasons:

1—There will be two addresses by older members of the Conference on the development of different phases of the conference work during the past seventy-five years.

2—There will be ten exhibits in an Exhibition Hall to visualize this progress.

3—The transportation on the railroads has been reduced to one-third of what it was ten years ago, and the transportation for a group of four by auto over the splendid highways to California is still cheaper.

4—It will give you a chance to see your country; its wonders of mountains and plains, canyons and deserts.

5—The conference sessions will take place in the orange groves of southern California, among the most friendly Mennonites in the world.

If J. H. Oberholtzer of Pennsylvania, after attending the first session of the conference in Iowa seventy-five years ago, and stopping at Summerfield, Ill., on his way home could write, "These friendly people have captured my heart," I am sure that the friendly people of southern California and their beautiful orange groves and flowers will capture you altogether.

From these premises let me draw three conclusions:—

1—You ought to make a contribution to the Jubilee Fund so the conference can pay all her debts.

2—You ought to make another contribution so your pastor can attend the Jubilee Conference.

3—You ought to come with him and you will never regret giving and coming.

H. J. Krehbiel.

Charlesville, Africa,
February 22, 1935.

Dear Brethren and Sisters in Christ:

Greetings from Congo land we send you from over the seas.

"Truly my soul waiteth upon God; from him cometh my salvation. He only is my rock and my salvation, he is my defense; I shall not be greatly moved, unto the Lord belongeth mercy for thou renderest to every man according to his work." Psalm 62:1-2, 12.

We can truly say with great joy that the Lord is our rock and our defense; and He hides us in the hollow of His hand. As we look back upon the past year, we realize how true these verses have been. The Lord has been very gracious unto us and we have much to rejoice for His wondrous care over us. It is now over two years since we greeted the people with whom we now work, and as we look back over these two years, we can truly say we have been blessed and cared very much for by our heavenly Father who careth for all.

For a time, when most of the Christians were sick with the flu epidemic, things looked rather dark, but now we can rejoice and see how wonderful the Lord has been to us during our time of distress, which was during the month of January. We had to dismiss school for about two weeks because there were not enough children to attend. At that time most of the girls and boys were sick with this flu, and most of them were in bed or lying on the ground. During this time one of our compound boys died from the flu. He was a very good Christian and a very good worker during his life here in the compound, and we rest assured that we will meet him some day when the roll is called up yonder.

Many of the outstation Christians also had a siege of this epidemic, and some are still quite sick. But most of the people round about us have recovered, for which we are very thankful and can offer many praises to the Lord of our salvation.

The outstation teachers were here for their bi-annual conference during the week of February 9-17. On February 11 we had a day of many blessings and spiritual fellowship with the Lord and our Christians. In the morning we partook of the Lord's supper with the outstation teachers and the Christians around the mission here. Then in the evening we had the baccalaureate sermon for the ten Bible school students who have just finished their term of school this last year. This was given by Russell. His text was, "What is in thine hand"? These students expect to go out into the outstations to become teachers for the people there.

We enjoyed the fellowship with the outstation teachers very much while they were among us. About eighty of them were able to come to this conference. They enjoyed being here for a few days, and were glad to once more return to their work in spite of the many hardships they have to endure, because they are working for the Lord. Many of them have to work among a group which is hard to reach by Christianity, and others have to work among people who are not of their tribes. But nevertheless they enjoy the work, in spite of the many difficulties.

Our fellow missionaries, the Grabers, are planning to leave for their furlough the 21st day of March. And we are expecting the new missionaries (the Yoders) to come here soon after that. The Beckers left for the coast by auto on the 19th day of this month, and expect to meet the new parties and the Suttons at Matadi. They will return home on the same boat that the other missionaries have come out on. We are very glad for new recruits on the field, and also for the old missionaries. The harvest field is white, and the laborers are few, so we certainly rejoice to hear that others are coming to join us in the work.

We want to thank you very kindly for the gifts you sent us at Christmas time. It certainly makes our hearts feel good to know that our homefolks are remembering us. In closing I would like to ask that you would remember this work here in your prayers. Prayer can do much. "Prayer changes things"! Hoping that you are enjoying your Christian work, and praying that you may win souls for your Lord, we remain,

Yours in the service of the Lord,
Russell, Helen, and Carolyn Schnell.

A NEW, NEW TESTAMENT

By George William Brown

General Secretary of the American Bible Society

A Swiss heritage, a gift for linguistics, a missionary passion, a devotion to the Bible, and a love for the American Indian, were elements combining in a single individual which, when aided by the normal processes of the American Bible Society, resulted in the language spoken by the Cheyenne Indians of Montana and Oklahoma.

In his more than four decades of ministry to the Cheyenne Indians the Rev. Rodolphe Petter, D. D., a man of scholarly attainments, has become a master of the language of the people of his choice. Beginning with a language as yet unwritten, Dr. Petter produced first an English-Cheyenne dictionary, then a grammar, then portions from both the Old and the New Testaments, presently Pilgrim's Progress, and now, finally, a complete New Testament.

No hasty, indifferent work is this! Nor is this New Testament merely a translation from English. The Greek texts of Westcott and Hort, and Tischendorf were its base, while the Vulgate and several of the main English, French, and German versions, as well as the Hebrew version of the New Testament, were compared. A number of the great commentaries and three Greek dictionaries were consulted. The first complete Cheyenne New Testament, therefore, worthily takes its place in the noble succession of painstakingly careful translations.

Just as Luther went into the shops and homes of the common people of Germany to get correct and understandable terms for use in his great German translation, so Dr. Petter studied intimately and at first hand the practices and customs of the Cheyenne, frequently consulting his Indian parishioners in a search for exact and intelligible phrases. He gave, for instance, a demonstration of grafting and pruning in order to secure from them correctness of expression in translating those parts of the eleventh chapter of Romans where St. Paul in illustrating a certain principle employs the process of olive-grafting.

When the translation was completed, the finished manuscript was re-read carefully by Dr. Petter himself, then by four different Indians separately. During the typing further corrections were made, and the final typed copy was read to an Indian woman to test the average understanding of the Cheyenne text. Finally, the translator's wife read the copy in a last review before it was released to the printer. It will be noted with interest that among others of the Cheyenne who gave noteworthy help in this carefully supervised work the names of Chief Standingelk and Susie Woundedeyes appear.

In the translator's preface there is this concluding paragraph: "And now the message of God and His Christ is 'in the Cheyenne mouth' for a witness to be accepted or rejected. As God in the long ago spoke to the tribes of Israel through Moses He tells to the Cheyenne tribe, 'It is not hard for thee, neither is it far off. It is not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us, and make us hear it, that we may do it? Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it to us, and make us hear it, that we may do it? But the word is nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.'" (Deuteronomy 30:11-14.)

Strikingly appropriate was the occasion of the first public presentation of copies of this volume, for at the end of the recent Christmas eve program in the Mission at Lame Deer, Montana, just before pronouncing the beendiction, Dr. Petter spoke briefly of the New Testament and with great satisfaction presented gift copies to his Indian associates and fellow workers in the Mission. Testaments are often given for Christmas gifts—but I wonder where on last Christmas any copies were given or received with as much genuine rejoicing and profound appreciation as were experienced by this scholarly translator-donor and the beloved Indian recipients. And,—here was another wise man presenting his gift, a gift more precious than gold or frankincense or myrrh, to another group of children of the first Christ-child.

The publication of the Cheyenne New Testament by the American Bible Society brings the total number of languages in which the entire New Testament has appeared up to 199, while the grand total of languages in which Scripture translation has occurred is now 954. Through the efforts of the Bible societies and the missionary forces, Scripture translation is so continuously going on that a new language is added on an average of once every five weeks.

—American Bible Society.

CORRESPONDENCE

Bethel Mennonite Church, Hydro, Oklahoma. Our little church has organized a Bible class, in which our young folks are taking much interest. We meet every other Sunday night.

We do not have preaching service every Sunday, only twice a month, therefore the Bible class takes in the other Sunday night.

Rev. Henry Funk is our preacher for another year. He has started a catechism class again for those who have not yet accepted Jesus as their personal Savior. A baptismal service is planned for Easter Sunday.

We were glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Pete Nachtigal with us this winter. While they were here they celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary the 3rd day of March. Their children and grandchildren and other relatives and friends gathered at their old home on the farm, Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. A fine program was rendered by the children and grandchildren. We are sorry to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Nachtigal are going back to their home in Reedley, California.

In the evening we held our Christian Endeavor program.

We have been blessed with plenty of rain this month. Crops are looking fine in this community.

Alex. Pankratz, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pankratz, and Josephine Landers were quietly married at the home of Rev. H. Funk, Sunday, March 24.

Mrs. Ed. Pankratz, Corr.

Butterfield, Minnesota, March 31, 1935. We have not very much to report of our congregation this time, for the weather in January was so cold and stormy that on January 20th we did not have any services at all. February 24, our minister was not able to preach, so we missed two Sundays this year. We hope it will be better again.

In Psalm 103:15, 16 we read, "As for man, his days are as grass, as a flower of the field, the wind passeth over it and it is gone." We experienced this March 8th, when Mrs. P. J. Bergthold was walking around and fell over and passed away. Since her husband died last fall, she made her home at Mountain Lake with her daughter, Mrs. G. Warkentin. The funeral services were held in our church, with Rev. J. Bartel from Mountain Lake speaking in English and Rev. L. H. Linscheid in German. A mixed quartet from Mountain Lake had charge of the songs.

On March 17, Rev. L. Linscheid spoke in our neighboring church at Bergthal. At the same time Rev. J. Stoesz from Mountain Lake occupied our pulpit. His text was about the ten virgins, which was of great interest. If we Christians were always ready to meet and wait for our Savior's coming!

Some time ago Rev. J. J. Balzer presented his resignation as elder, on account of poor health,

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication..........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office..........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance..........$1.50
Foreign..........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

which was not acted upon until lately. The congregation decided that Rev. J. Bartel shall fill the vacancy. Rev. J. J. Balzer has worked faithfully many years, and we must say we are thankful for all he has done for us. Many times he drove over from Mountain Lake with horse and buggy, and roads then were not as they are at the present time. May the Lord keep him and strengthen his faith, and may the Lord reward him for his life's work for the Master.

Mrs. P. P. Franz recently spent a few days in the Mountain Lake hospital for treatments. We are glad to state that she is at home again and feeling fine.

In our February Ladies' Aid meeting we met with Miss Kathryn Ewy. We all brought lunch along and enjoyed the afternoon. One of the ladies is the leader of the program. We read the Scripture, sing songs, and offer prayers.

Recently a junior choir has been organized, with Mrs. B. J. Rempel as leader. We hope and pray that this will be a success.

Amanda Dick from Mountain Lake has volunteered to start a young people's Bible and prayer meeting, once a week, in the church. We are glad to know that there are always workers for our Master.

We, indeed, have many reasons to be thankful, for our Lord has given us quite a little moisture this year. We are looking forward to a good year.

We have a few older people who are sick. Mrs. J. J. Linscheid is suffering very much. She has been in bed for some time. May the Lord give her faith and patience in her days of trial. Mrs. Gust. Miller, Corr.

Pratum Mennonite Church, Pratum, Oregon. The first quarter of the new year has already gone by, which brings to our finite minds that we have no abiding place here.

God has wonderfully blessed us here this past year. We had good crops of all kinds, even if not so bountiful as in other years, yet there was enough. There is always plenty to eat here if one is not too lazy to work.

Our Sunday School and church services were well attended during the entire year. At present we have sixteen classes, and these are all well filled. We also believe in systematic offerings. The offerings for the first Sunday of the month is for foreign mission, the second for church support, the third for home mission, the fourth for Sunday School, and the fifth for relief.

Twenty-one new members were added to our large group, bringing our membership to 218 souls.

Rev. J. J. Balzer visited our church in January. Rev. W. H. Pike of Los Angeles favored us with a Bible lecture in March. Rev. Wiebe from Dallas brought us a message from God's Holy Word, in February. We are always happy to have traveling men of God stop and visit with us.

At present the church choir is practicing an Easter cantata. The Sunday School choir is doing splendid work. At the Christmas program there were over four hundred people that came to hear the children speak, and an equally large crowd came to listen to the Christmas cantata.

Our busy pastor has a class of twenty-one students in his teachers' training class. This is the third class of this type that he is teaching. In the first class a number of years ago, he had eight students, in the second class he had there were sixteen. Our Sunday School therefore has good material to select from.

He also conducted two golden wedding messages, both couples being from our church.

Eight souls were called home, four from our midst and the others from the community.

At present there is very little sickness around this neighborhood, for which we are thankful. So far we had a very nice winter, very little cold and some rather stormy days.

Mrs. Adam Hofstetter, Corr.

Mountain Lake, Minnesota, March 13, 1934. Greetings from Bethel Church! We are now well along in another year's service for our Lord. The health of the people in our community on the whole is probably not quite as good as it was a year ago. There has been an epidemic of German measles this winter, as well as other sickness.

On January 8 and 9, in the evening, we had our annual church business meeting. New officers and committees were elected and a good spirit prevailed. Two small changes were made on our constitution. One was in regard to church membership. It was decided that if a member, without apparent reason save indifference, has not paid his church dues for two years, and the board has visited him and admonished him in regard to his indifference, he shall lose his membership. The other change was made in regard to the number of members required to be present at an election of an evangelist, preacher, or elder.

On the first of January the annual Sunday School convention was held in conjunction with the other Sunday Schools of Mountain Lake and vicinity.

An Evangelical Training Association course in Old Testament Law and History and Child Study is being offered here this winter. The class meets in the Bible Preparatory School on Tuesday evenings. Mr. H. S. Ewert of the M. B. Church and Rev. Bartel of our church are teaching. The membership is small, but the class is a great blessing and help to those who attend. This course, taught by consecrated teachers and taught to earnest students, should be a great help to anyone who is interested in or working in the Sunday School and also the church.

Our pastor has started a catechism class. So far nine persons have joined. They, the Lord willing, will be baptized into the church on Pentecost Sunday. Ruth Kintzi, Corr.

First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas. Dear Readers and Editor of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— Since we are at the beginning of the second quarter, your correspondent will try to report of the first quarter.

On New Year's day missionary John H. Voth of India brought us the message. The week of prayer was held in our church by three meetings, each taking the subjects of two evenings. Monday evening C. van der Smissen and others spoke and prayed; on Wednesdey, P. Bartsch and others; and on Friday, John Warkentin and others spoke and prayed.

On Sunday, January 13, Rev. P. H. Richert of the Tabor congregation preached, and in the evening Missionary Voth from India.

Monday evening was the yearly meeting of the congregation. Our congregation had 431 members, now 437. The Sunday School has 515 pupils and 27 teachers. The choir has 33 members. The different organizations gave interesting reports. The congregation is in good growing condition. At ten o'clock the ladies served coffee and coffee cake. The meeting lasted until 11:30. The congregation gave $679.27 for foreign mission, $84.29 for home mission, $150.43 for relief. The whole receipts amounted to $3657.52. $500 were paid off on the church debt.

On Sunday, January 20, Dr. E. Kaufman preached English. On Thursday, January 17, was the first regular prayer meeting of the year, following the regular teachers' meeting. Our pastor, Rev. J. E. Entz, spoke very earnestly and edifying on Phil. 1:1-8. Now the prayer meeting is at 7:30 and the choir practice and teachers' meeting at 8 o'clock.

On February 3, Rev. J. H. Epp from Hillsboro preached. On February 10, in the evening a lady missionary from East Africa spoke to the Young Peoples' Society. The Bethel College choir gave the congregation a splendid sacred concert.

The prayer meetings are now conducted by different members mostly on the epistle of Paul to the Philippians.

The Bethel College Bible Week was attended by a number of our members. On February 17, Dr. Pannabecker gave a missionary address. On Tuesday evening, February 19, Sister Frieda showed pictures of Switzerland and explained them to a large audience.

On February 24, in the afternoon, Dr. Bushnell, President of Wheaton College, preached a very good sermon on regeneration. In the evening, Dr. G. Winrod of Wichita spoke on "What I saw in Germany." He spoke very interestingly.

Sunday, March 3, we celebrated the Lord's supper. Tuesday, March 5, in the afternoon and evening, Dr. Wilson of Kansas City spoke. On Friday, March 8, the World's Day of Prayer was observed in our church.

On Sunday, March 10, Rev. P. A. Wedel preached in the forenoon and C. van der Smissen in the evening.

On Sunday, March 17, the C. E. Society of the Emmaus congregation near Whitewater gave an interesting program in our church in the evening to a good sized audience. Friday evening, March 22, Dr. Pannabecker showed very interesting pictures of China and our mission in China to a fair sized audience.

March 24, in the forenoon and evening, Rev. E. J. Neuenschwander preached. Before the service in the evening the Bethel College Volunteers gave a very nice program on the transformed life, for the Young People's Society, in the basement.

On April 3 and 4, Rev. Vietheer of the Berlin Tent Mission, Germany preached very lively. Before the sermon he spoke on conditions in Germany and praised Hitler. On Thursday afternoon he had a Bible lecture on the Song of Solomon, chapter 1:4.

With fraternal greetings, yours

C. van der Smissen.

First Mennonite Church, Hillsboro, Kansas, February 9, 1935. Dear Readers:— Thanks to our heavenly Father for the manifold blessings we have received in the past year, and as we now go forth, may we be more worthy of His tender care and loving kindness towards us.

A fine group of young people was added to our church last summer through baptism. Although it was hotter and the drought longer last summer than we ever had in our years, the interest in Sunday School and church services was fine.

The Christian Endeavor did not hold its regular meeting during the summer months. We joined with some neighboring churches and held union meetings outdoors at one of the churches. These meetings proved very interesting and drew large, appreciative crowds.

We were very fortunate in having Dr. J. H. Langenwalter of Wichita with us during the Thankgiving week. In the evening he conducted evangelistic meetings, while on several mornings a Bible study hour was observed.

As the year 1934 marked the fiftieth milestone of our church as such, Thanksgiving Day was set aside as an appropriate day to celebrate the golden jubilee. A very fitting all-day program was rendered. God became very real to us as we listened to the different speakers and noted how He had led them through various trials and hardships of the pioneer years.

Our Christmas was somewhat subdued by the fact that scarlet fever and also measles broke out in the grade school, so all the town children were under quarantine during the holidays, and as most of our members live in town, the planned program could not be given.

A short program was given by the church choir, and a few volunteer pieces were spoken by the country children.

Our pastor, Rev. J. H. Epp, was also on the sick list during the holidays. We are glad to report that it has pleased our heavenly Father to give him health and strength again. He is serving us again. During his illness, Rev. J. D. Jantzen was assisted by several visiting ministers, all of whom brought the Word of God to us with a glad heart.

Prayer meetings were attended the second week in January of this year.

Sister Augusta Rempel was called to her heavenly home after a short period of suffering. She was held in high esteem by all and loved by many.

January 27, the Bethel Volunteer Band was with us and rendered a fine program. May the Lord bless them and their work richly.

Mrs. Jno. Bartel, Corr.

Altoona Mission, February 12, 1935. We want to express to our friends of the work here at Altoona our appreciation of their help just when we needed it most, by sending in their contributions that went so far in helping to gladden some other life and encourage some other heart. The Lord is blessing our work in a wonderful way by saving souls and adding to the church those that may be saved. It has been a source of much encouragement to the workers here to know that so many others are interested in the work, and manifest it by contributing to it in various ways. We appreciate this very much and pray God's richest blessing upon you all. Work is very scarce here, and this cold winter means so much to our dear people, for we want to do all we can for them in every way. We thank you all again for your kindness, and we pray God's richest blessing upon you all.

L. H. Glass, Pastor.

Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio. Already three and a half months of this year have passed and during this time our church has had many rich blessings.

One of these rich blessings was a Men's Fellowship Banquet. Ninety men from the age of sixteen and older gathered in the basement of the church where a substantial supper was given. After the supper the men filed to the auditorium of the church for group singing and a worship service. Then Rev. Walter J. Thomas of Lima, very seriously addressed the men and conducted a question and answer period.

The following have been united in marriage: Ralph Hilty and Margaret Amstutz; Laverne Geiger and Gwendolyn Basinger; Selma Welty and William Demco.

One Sunday evening, Mrs. Menford Yost's Sunday School class of girls sponsored a program, showing a group of pictures of the work of Dr. Grenfeld of Labrador. We had the members of the St. John's church as our guests that evening. The following Sunday evening the St. John's church invited us to be their guests when Miss Mary Hass showed pictures of her missionary work in Africa.

On February 3, the Christian Endeavor societies celebrated the fifty-fourth anniversary of Christian Endeavor with a social hour and a short program in the basement of the church. Then the people gathered in the main auditorium, where Rev. R. W. Frost of Findley gave an interesting message on "The Challenge of the Changeless Christ in a Changing World."

Mrs. Thomas Carter spoke at the February meeting of the Women's Missionary Society. Mrs. Carter and her husband have given their lives to spread the gospel among the prisoners of our land. She told us about many interesting experiences which they have had among those people.

Our pastor, Rev. Whitmer, was privileged to attend the Pastors' Convention which was held at Columbus, Ohio. On Sunday morning, February 10, he gave to the congregation a very interesting and inspiring report of the convention.

On Tuesday, February 12, one of our faithful old couples, Mr. and Mrs. Irael Garber, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a dinner at noon at the church and open house to their many friends in the afternoon and evening.

Our congregation is looking forward to our annual pre-Easter services, which will be held March 17-24. The speaker will be Dr. D. W. Kurtz, president of Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago, Ill. The general theme is "Good News." The following are his subjects: "The Gospel of Truth," "The Gospel of Freedom," "The Gospel of Peace," "The Gospel of Love," "The Gospel of Suffering," "The Gospel of Victory," "The Gospel of Joy," "The Gospel of Life," "The Gospel of Grace," "The Gospel of Service."

The mixed choir is preparing to render "The Seven Last Words" at Easter time. They are also practicing "Elijah" which will be given some time next summer. A young people's choir and a children's choir have also rendered helpful services to the church. Corr.

WORLDLY PLEASURE VS. CHRISTIAN JOY

Pleasure lives mostly in the mansions of the rich; joy in the cottages of the poor.

Pleasure paints a temporary smile upon the face, to be washed off by the first rainstorm of adversity; joy beautifies the heart with everlasting ornaments that brighten with wear.

Pleasure pleases; joy satisfies.

Joy knows a tomorrow; pleasure, only a today.

Pleasure shakes hands with the world; joy joins hands with God.

Pleasure shines in; joy shines out.

There are streams of pleasure, but oceans of joy.

Pleasure is a poor substitute for joy. She is forever seeking and never finding, always going and getting nowhere.

Pleasure is empty when she is full; joy is full when she is empty.

Joy has eyes that see hunger, pain, aching hearts, sore feet, tired backs, and weary hands.

Joy knows how to bend her knees.

Joy rests while she works, sings with tears in her eyes.

Pleasure must be repeated; joy is a self-repeater.

Pleasure, a flower of the earth; joy, a flower of heaven.

Pleasure passes; joy stays.

(Sel.—B. B. B.)

"Never trust the man who does not trust others."

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

SWEET FELLOWSHIP

How sweet, how heavenly is the sight,
When those who love the Lord
In one another's peace delight,
And so fulfill His word.

When each can feel his brother's sigh,
And with him bear a part;
When sorrow flows from eye to eye,
And joy from heart to heart.

When free from envy, scorn and pride,
Our wishes all above,
Each can his brother's failings hide,
And show a brother's love.

Love is the golden chain that binds
The happy souls above,
And he's an heir of heaven that finds
His bosom glow with love.

—Samuel S. Wesley.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Many of our people are already laying their plans to go to the 75th Jubilee General Conference sessions. The rates by rail are so very reasonable and travel in the cool, air-conditioned cars so pleasant that a goodly number who had always wanted to go to California some time, are making plans to go with the General Conference delegation. There are special 45 day Summer Tourist rates for laymen and very cheap clergy rates for the ministers and missionaries.

Anyone desiring descriptive literature of the scenic places of interest like the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone National Parks, Salt Lake City, and Boulder Dam will receive the same by writing to the undersigned. Timetables, railroad rates, the extra costs for the extra sight-seeing trips, or any other information relative to the trip to the West may be procured by writing to the chairman of the Transportation Committee of the Middle District Conference, A. R. Keiser, Dalton, Ohio.

SEPARATE SPIRITUAL AND WORLDLY AFFAIRS

After reading the letter written by Church-Goer of Vermont, I felt I must write. I rise in defense of those church-goers who build on a more firm foundation than our reader from the East. My heart goes out in sympathy to this writer and all who belong to a church of similar type.

The chief purpose of our churches except those of modernistic type, is to teach the way of salvation through Christ. We hear "typical programs," such as she mentions, six days a week and read the topics in magazines and dailies, so why clutter our minds with worldly affairs on Sunday? The programs may be desirable in their places, but let us have religion in church. No one will reach heaven through a new idea for marketing milk or Farm Relief.

When I attend divine worship, I endeavor to leave worldly cares and worries at home and let God's sweet spirit commune with mine and impart His peace to my soul. Have those who attend those so-called rural churches experienced the solemnity of the benediction, "The Lord bless thee and keep thee; the Lord let His face shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up His countenance upon thee and give thee peace"? How wonderful to feel such words are spoken to us sinners. Yet some permit themselves to be fed on the "husks" of the world.

We, too, belong to a country church, and instruct a class of young people in Bible study, and we feel our church serves the community better for it fits its members for eternal life.

I may be oldfashioned and orthodox, but so far I have failed to find a satisfactory answer to the longing of the soul except in the Bible.

—Separator, U.

(Woman's Home Companion.)

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

April 28, 1935

How To Take Part In The Fellowship And Work Of The Church

John 14:11-14

This topic calls for a program which will give inspiration which will result in joyful service, and also point the ways in which both young and old may share in the fellowship and work of the church.

Questions

1. What is the basis of happy fellowship in the church? (John 14:11.)
2. What is the relationship between fellowship and loyalty to the church?
3. Can there be tasks for every member in the church?
4. How can we help the church to prosper by means of our personal and home life?
5. How can we increase the joy and value in worship?
6. In what way are all members of the church dependent upon one another? (1 Cor. 12).
7. What are some tasks which the people of your church can do?

Before there ever can be such a characteristic as church fellowship, her members must first believe in Jesus Christ and God the Father. When men love the Lord it will not be difficult to love one another. When there are church factions, when church members hate and envy one another and are not living lives in the community which are becoming to Christianity, it is a fair token that they do not love their Christ as they should.

Paul describes very forcefully and beautifully the way in which there is a task for every member and that each task, no matter how common it may seem, is of great importance in the work and progress of the church as a whole. Paul uses the figure of the members of the body. The uncomely parts have a more important function, and no part of the body can be independent of the others.

The reason why some people do not find joy in their church affiliation is because they have not experienced the love of Christ as they should. And when they come to church they do not feel themselves a part of the church. The reason why John was so happy when he came home from the mid-week meeting, his wife soon discovered, was because John took part in the discussion. He who says "My Church," is loyal to it in every possible way, by boosting, by praying, by working, by living and by giving for her — that soul is experiencing the joy of fellowship and service. There is no one—young, middle-aged, or old, but can give some definite service to his or her church. In this week's' discussion it should very emphatically be laid upon the hearts of the individual members and upon the society that here are definite tasks for each and for all to do.

May 5, 1935

How Can I Serve Christ In My Vocation?

Matthew 5:13-16

This day is designated as Vocations Day in the Christian Endeavor Calendar. Each year at about this time or a little later there are countless numbers of our young people who graduate from our schools and are prepared to go into the larger world of service. So this evening we will discuss ways in which we may choose our vocations, how to best prepare when there seem to be so very few if any vacancies, and then having found our chosen life work, we will consider the ways in which we can there best serve our Lord and Master.

Questions

1. Why should everyone choose a special life-work?
2. Name and describe several principles which will help youth to choose his vocation.
3. What shall youth do in the light of present unemployment?
4. What is the proper place of preparation? How much should one have?
5. How can a Christian be like salt and like light?
6. Are all occupations and vocations honorable and Christian?
7. In what vocations lie the greatest opportunities today?
8. How can a man best serve Christ in his vocation?

In the Scripture portion the child of God is compared to salt and to light, and every youth wants his life to count for something worth while so that he can feel when he dies that he has left this world a bit better than it was when he came here. But the question arises, "How can I best make my contribution to my God and my fellowmen"? This question invariably leads to the next, "How can I find the work for which I am best fitted"? The six following questions have been helpful in aiding many young people to choose their life work:

1. What do I like to do?
2. What does the world need?
3. For what am I "cut out," for what have I abilities or talents?
4. How much training am I willing or able to get?
5. Am I going to be satisfied with the rewards?
6. Is it Christian?

It has almost become a trite saying that this is a difficult age for young people just starting out into life, but it is only too true and for youth it is no joke. What shall young people do when the ranks everywhere seem to be well filled? There are two things which the writer often emphasizes to his young people, and no doubt they are basic. In the first place each youth who would succeed must guard his character well, build true, let your life be thoroughly and experientially Christian. In the second place do each task, no matter how small, well; prepare yourself thoroughly, and show that you are willing to give more service than many others. There are always large numbers of workers who drop out of the line either because their characters are breaking down, do not have sufficient preparation, or lack enthusiasm in service. Remember Lincoln's saying, "I will study and prepare myself and then some day my chance will come."

Every vocation which is worthy of a Christian's time and best efforts has untold possibilities for Christian service. We must learn anew that a Christian serves and worships not only in church, but as he goes about his common tasks and duties of life. Every vocation and profession has untold opportunities to serve, sometimes it will require extra hours and no pay. But what of that? The Master will reward us in peace of mind and those spiritual rewards which cannot be paid in dollars and cents.

"We are the only Bible
This careless world will read;
We are the sinner's gospel,
We are the scoffer's creed:
We are the Lord's last message
Given in word and deed;
What if the type is crooked,
What if the print is blurred"?

May 12, 1935

The Art Of Making A Happy Home

Luke 10:18-42

Making a happy home is an art, and one which every youth covets for himself, and yet not nearly every home is truly happy. So on this Mother's Day it is well for us to think upon our mothers and future mothers and the homes we have enjoyed and will make.

Our Scripture portion portrays to us the two types of mothers — the Mary type and the Martha type. The Martha type of mother will wear herself out "fussing" with cooking, baking, and cleaning, and is then too much fatigued to give to the home her love and sunshine which are in reality more essential to a happy home than cakes, pies, and dustless houses. Mary, no doubt, was also diligent about the housework, but took enough time to sit at the feet of Him whom she loved.

In planning this program, arrange a worship service giving mothers the credit due them, and plan for the homes of the future that they may have that divine happiness. Considerable music will add much to the interest of this service.

Questions

1. What are some of the prime essentials of a happy home?
2. Contrast the Martha and Mary type of mothers.
3. What does your mother mean to you?
4. What are some things which make our homes unhappy?
5. How can Christ help to make our homes more happy?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Illinois

April 28, 1935

A Shepherd Preaches

Amos 8:1-10

Pre-prayer

No matter in what occupation of life we may be, help us to have our hearts and minds in tune with Thee, that we may hear Thee speak to us.

Amos is generally regarded as the leading reformer of his day. He began his public life in the kingdom of Israel, about 765 B. C.

The growing standards in the Old Testament were largely the result of these old prophets who caught a glimpse of the righteousness of God and His demands upon life as it affected the whole community. Amos was such a prophet. This shepherd saw the sins of the city life of his day and knew that God could not be pleased by them. He saw the selfishness and greed in the commercial life of the merchants whose great camel trains passed along the highways of his land and he cried out against them. He saw the international injustice and hatred among the neighbors of his own country and warned against them.

Discussion

Read the whole book of Amos for a thorough knowledge of his message. In what town did he dwell? What was his original occupation? To which kingdom was he commissioned as a prophet? Who was the king of Israel at the time?

This was spoken of as the golden age of Israel, but though it was in a sense, it was leaden in another. As the study of Amos reveals, their outward or political prosperity was associated with a gross inward or moral corruption as has been the case with many another nation down to our own time.

After the introduction, we have discourses concerning the Gentile nations. Although the Jews were God's people, He never left Himself without witness to other nations as well.

How many such nations are addressed? Of what nation was Damascus the capital? And Gaza? Locate all the places on a map. What peculiar phrase introduces each discourse? It does not signify that the nation had sinned only three or four times, but indicates that the transgression had been innumerably often.

He was not commissioned to his own people, but to the sister kingdom of Israel. Only discourse to Judah is found in chapter 2:4, 5.

Discourse concerning Israel, chapter 2, verse 6 to end.

Sins charged against were oppression of the poor, lust, idolatry, and greed (v. 6-8). Recalls the mercies and blessings (v. 9-12). What were they? Pronounces their punishment (v. 13-16)-

Prophet's call, 3:1-8. — Amos is no exception to the prophet's rule, so proceeds to give an account of his call and does it in an oriental fashion and round about way. This introduces us to the second of the discourses concerning Israel (v. 9-14). How much does the valiant shepherd secure in either case? Chapters 4-6 are other discourses to them.

Prophetic Visions, chapters 7-9. — What were the two first judgments? Why were they diverted? What was the third? Was it diverted? Who is the official opponent here? How bold and direct were his utterances (v. 11)? What further details of his history does the incident bring to light (v. 14, 15)? What special punishment is now predicted upon the wicked and God-defying priest (v. 16, 17). What was the fourth vision and what does it signify?

Promises for Israel, 9:11-15.—God will destroy the sinful kingdom, but will it be utterly destroyed? He will sift Israel among all nations, as He is surely doing now. But will there be nothing left in the sieve? What are the promises? Restoration of kingdom (v. 11); possession of the nations (v. 12); prosperity of the land (v. 13-14); and perpetuity of the possession (v. 15). Is the kingdom of Israel some day to be restored? Is that people to bear away on the earth? Will the land be fruitful as of old, and even more so, and the cities be built up and inhabited by them again? Will it be a time of rest for them from enemies and war?

Are these same sins of oppression of the poor by rich, suppression of justice, and personal greed and selfishness still with us? Would we do well to join Amos in trying to correct them?

God still has His plumbline to use in measuring sinners.

May 5, 1935

How Shall I Spend My Time?

Ps. 90:12; Col. 4:5, 6

Consecration Meeting

"So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

Pre-prayer

That God may give us the courage to put first things first in our lives. and that He may have His rightful share of our time.

Time must be spent in the care and development of myself. If I am to be physically fit, I must spend sufficient time in rest and sleep. I must take time for eating and recreation. I must take time to improve my mind. Study, reading, lectures, conversations, plays, and other entertainments will help me. I should also include the cultivation of the aesthetic. I should take time for music, art, and beauty of all kinds. There must be regularity in worship, in church attendance, in the use on my Bible, and in fellowship with Christ.

I must provide time for the necessities of life. My job makes a primary demand on my time. If I am still a dependent in my home, then I must give a certain amount of time and attention to home duties.

I must take my social responsibility. I am a citizen, I am a member of a church, I am a member of other worth-while organizations. I must budget my time so that I do not spend all my leisure on myself, but save some of these for service activities.

Paul gives us some good rules in 1 Thess. 5:15-22, which we would do well to study and make them a part of our life.

Questions

What is a reasonable proportion of time to be spent:—

1. On myself?
2. In sleep?
3. In eating meals?
4. In recreation?
5. In study?
6. In church activities?
7. In reading my Bible?
8. In communion with our Father?
9. In home duties?
10. What are my obligations as a citizen?
11. Are we apt to neglect some of the important things in one's life for lesser things?
12. Would it be well to budget my time?
13. Give a budget of your time for one day as it is.
14. Give a budget of your time for one day as it should be.

May 12, 1935

Getting Along At Home

Gen. 37:1-8

(Mother's Day)

In honor of the best mother that ever lived—your mother

Pre-Prayer

That we may be a true Christian at home as well as among our friends.

In our lesson text we have an example of a home where hatred entered in. Being familiar with the story, what caused the hatred? On whom would you place the blame for this existing hatred? Does jealousy have any part in this picture? We know what was the outcome of this hatred and the sorrow that it brought to this home. People study this home life and yet this same experience has been repeated time and again. We seem not to be able to profit by others' experiences, but have to learn the lesson over and over.

We have the example also of Cain and Abel. What was the cause for strife between the two brothers? Is it always the innocent that has to suffer?

Then we have that beautiful story of Ruth who would not leave her mother-in-law. What was there here that was not where hatred lived?

We have a commandment and with it a promise, "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth thee."

Is this commandment kept today? I'm afraid that we have come to the place where too many of us feel that our parents have too old ideas, times have changed, and they have not changed with them. Let us stop and think seriously for a few moments. They have the experience which we have not. So we want to learn through bitter experiences and disappointments when we could be saved all that heartache and trouble.

Parents are to help their children. Eph. 6:4 says, "And ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord."

Read Prov. 23:22. Let us have reverence for our parents and we will have nothing to regret in years to come.

One of the surest tests of one's religion is to ask what the home folks think about it. If mother, father, sister and brother say, "Helen's religion is genuine," the chances are that it is. The reason for this conclusion is that there is likely to be no "putting on'" at home, and Helen will show up just as she is.

What helps a person to get along at home? Is it not the straight application of Christian virtues, such as love, cheerfulness, patience, forgiveness, self-control, courtesy, unselfishness, each esteeming other better than himself?

An officer of a Christian Endeavor society was exceptionally enthusiastic and helpful. He was kind and gentlemanly, and commanded the respect of the other members. But at home he was rude to his mother, disobedient, grouchy to his sisters, unwilling to do his part in the home, and constantly stirring up discord. He blamed all this on the fact that he had to give his time to his society duties. Was he a good society officer? Was he a good Christian? Wherein should he have improved his life?

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

April 28, 1935

Topic.—Making God's Word Our Guide

Ps. 119:105; Prov. 6:20-23

A young man traveling in the mountains out west decided one morning to see beauties that others in his party were missing. A guide had been furnished the group, but there were places where he knew it was not wise to go. The young man determined to visit some of these places, so he climbed far away from his companions. Suddenly his foot slipped and he fell away down to his death. Whose fault was it? Surely not that of the guide. We all know that the young man himself was to blame. He refused to follow the guide.

Many people today are getting into trouble because of wrong-doing. Why? God's Word, the Bible, is here for all who will read. That is a perfect guide, but unless we allow it to guide us, we shall have to suffer as surely as did the young traveler. Things that it warns against may seem attractive, but they are sure to prove dangerous.

God's Word is called a lamp which lights the way. How many of you have been out on a dark night when you could not even see your hand before your eyes? You needed to carry a lantern to show the way. Many times in life we do not quite know what to do next. There are things perhaps hard to understand. We may be in trouble and feel there is no sunshine or joy. The Bible will surely light the way if we take it for our guide.

Plans for the Meeting

Use the blackboard to help illustrate this lesson. Picture a fork in the road and a signboard in the shape of a Bible pointing the way. This may represent more than the one great choice between right and wrong. Christians often come to places of decision. Show that always the Bible points the right way. It guides in times of temptation, in trial, in sorrow, in fear, when misunderstood. Find passages that guide in these and other experiences.

Questions

1. How may we make God's Word our guide?
2. Why is it a sure guide?
3. Why is it important that we accept this guide?
4. How does it light the way?
5. Explain Prov. 6:20-23.

May 5, 1935

Topic.—Making Our Prayers Worth While

John 9:31; 1 John 3:22

(Consecration Meeting)

Prayer seems much more easily understood since we have radio. When men can make it possible for the listener to hear even a whisper many miles away, it is easy to believe that God hears His children when they pray. Radio teaches many prayer lessons. Everything at the broadcasting station as well as in the receiving set must be right if the message is to go through. One day while I was listening to a program, everything suddenly became quiet. I knew the radio here was all right and folks at the other end were singing, yet I could not hear them. Something had gone wrong at the station.

We may be sure that God is always listening for our prayers, but sometimes, even though we may repeat a prayer, it may not "go through." Something is in the way. It may be doubt. Perhaps it is sin. Or the prayer may not really be from the heart.

A Junior need never fear that he is too small to be heard. Have you not noticed that a child's voice carries over the air quite as well as that of a grown person? So it is in prayer.

God's ear can catch the voice of any boy or girl. Remember, real prayer, prayer that is worth while, is not just a few hurried, thoughtless words. It must come from the heart and in faith.

Then there are times when we want to do our part toward having prayer answered. If you want to see somebody saved, pray for them then do your part by telling them of Christ. Pray for the Sunday School or Junior C. E. to grow, then make your prayer worth while by inviting others to come. When I was a girl, I often heard our pastor say, "Pray as if everything depended on God, then work as if everything depended on yourself." It is important, too, that we pray for worth-while things.

Plans for the Meeting

This lesson is another of great importance and its truths should be indelibly impressed on the minds of the Juniors. Study Jesus' prayer life. Also use the Daily Readings suggested by the International Society of C. E. Emphasize their teaching on the conditions to be met if prayer is to be answered.

Questions

1. Give some of Jesus' teachings about prayer.
2. When should we pray?
3. Why is prayer necessary?
4. How does it help?
5. What are some things that may interfere with prayer?

Daily Readings

God hears the righteous. Psa. 34:15, 17.
With the whole heart. Jer. 29:12, 13.
In Jesus' name. John 14:13.
Without doubting. 1 Tim. 2:8.
Effectual, fervent. James 5:16.

May 12, 1935

Topic.—How To Worship In Our Home

2 Tim. 3:14-17 (Mother's Day)

It is quite natural that on Mother's Day we should think of home. Mother and home seem to belong together, don't they? Home is not quite right without mother. Nor is it the best kind of home if God is not loved and worshipped there. No matter how happy your home may be without Him, it will be happier if you let Him in.

Home is the place where you can best find time to pray. Take some time each day to be all alone with God. Take the Bible with you to a quiet place. You will be surprised to find what a happy time you can have reading His Word and praying. I hope that you have family worship in your home, too. A time when father, mother, and all of the children read the Bible and pray together. We need to go to church and worship, but we need just as much to worship God in our homes. He wants to be the head of your home and He will bless.

Plans for the Meeting

Use a picture of a house to represent a Christian home. Write "Christ" on the foundation, for a Christian home must be built on Him. Name the windows "Prayer." Light comes through them and it is through prayer that one looks out to God. The door is "Kind Words." See Psa. 141:3. Cover the whole with a roof of "Thoughtfulness" and hedge it about with "Love." You might use these rules for a happy home. Rom. 12:11; Col. 3:20; 2 Thess. 3:10; Rom. 12:10; Gal. 6:2; Eph. 5:1, 2.

As most of you will have the next issue of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel before Mother's Day, we hope to have there a short article on the difference between Christian and non-Christian homes on the Mission Field.

Questions

1. What is a Christian home?
2. How may we worship in our home?
3. Why should we worship in our home?
4. How may we make Christ Head of our home?
5. What difference will that make in the home?

Kind Words At Home

Speak kindly in the morning; it lightens the cares of the day, and makes the household and all other affairs move along more smoothly. Speak kindly at night, for it may be that before dawn some loved one may finish his or her space in life, and it will be too late to ask forgiveness.

Speak kindly at all times; it encourages the downcast, cheers the sorrowing, and very likely awakens the erring to earnest resolves to do better, with strength to keep them.

Kind words are balm to the soul. They oil up the entire machinery of life, and keep it in good running order. —Selected.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

April 28, 1935

Some Great Christian Teachings

The Holy Schiptures

Lesson Text.—Psalm 19:7-14; 2 Tim. 3:14-17

Golden Text.—O how love I thy law! It is my meditation all the day.

One of the most interesting fields of study is a history of the making of the Bible. It is a library of sixty-six books, written, compiled, translated, and revised until we have it in its various forms today. Entirely too many people think of the Bible as the Mormons did of their Sacred Book, dropped out of heaven all ready written as we have it now. The Bible reveals in its pages both human and divine authorship. About forty different writers, living in a period of one thousand years, made their contribution to its writing and compiling, yet these sixty-six books with forty authors have a unifying element which makes it one book with one Author. It is the Gospel of God. God's message of Revelation to man. There are three truths about the Bible which may help us in its reading. First it is a book of religion. There are eleven leading religions in the world. Each one has its sacred book. The Bible is the book of religion of the Hebrews and Christians. Too often the Bible is used as a book of geology, history, philosophy, magic, or even a calendar rather than a book of a revealed religion.

Second the Bible is the history and literature of the Hebrew people. Its authors are all Jewish with the exception of Luke. The Bible relates the experiences of the Hebrew people with their God. We should always bear in mind as we read the Bible that its environment and background are Hebrew. Its images and symbols used are oriental and Hebrew and so must not be interpreted literally. One of the purposes of the Bible is to reveal God's eternal purpose through His chosen people, the Jews. The value of the Bible for us lies in the fact that these purposes are universal.

Third and most important of all, the Bible is the Book of life. It grew out of life, reveals life experiences, and is the highest authority of life lived in relation to God. We must always bear in mind that before one word if the Bible was written, the Hebrew people lived life, had experiences with each other and wit God. These experiences were at first hande down orally from parent to child and finall written. Many of the writings from which th Bible came we do not have. Is not this writte in the Book of Joshua? Is not this written i the history of Judah or Israel? These writing we do not have. The present books are compilations of earlier writings. These writing are the quarry from which the stones wer taken to erect the structure which we call th Bible. Some one may wonder what the valu of the Bible is for us today since it relates th experiences of a people who lived long ago an were of an entirely different race. The valu lies in the fact that these life experiences wit God can be reproduced in lives today. We d not live like Abraham nor dress like him. Abraham knew nothing of radios, automobiles, an electric lights, but his faith in God can be reproduced in this day and must be if we ar truly Christian.

The Bible then is born out of life, reveals Go at work in life, and so it not only teaches us, bu inspires us. Its inspiration lies not in some outside theory of inspiration which is man-made but in the Bible itself. It is inspired because i inspires me. Coleridge said, "It is a book tha gets me, again and again as we read it we say 'I am the man,' 'I have sinned.' "

Finally, let me say, the Bible is a book to b used. It is not a book of magic, or a book to b worshiped. We are not commanded anywher in its pages to worship it, but we are commanded to search it, to study it, to meditate on it The Bible, lying on a center table in a hom and not used, has no more virtue nor value t that home than a catalogue of a house of merchandise. It is the bread of life. It must b eaten. Study to show thyself approved of Go a workman that needeth not to be ashame rightly dividing the word of truth.

What is the origin of the Bible?

Who wrote the Bible?

In what way is it the Word of God?

What is the unifying message that make the Bible one book?

How can the Bible become more effective i our lives?

May 5, 1935

Some Great Christian Teachings

Sin, Repentance, and Faith

Lesson Text.—Luke 15:11-24

Golden Text.—If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. I John 1:9.

This lesson, although dealing with three subjects, really only deals with one, that of conversion. The Scripture is a very familiar one. It is found in the lost chapter, Luke fifteen, where Jesus in the presence of the disciples, Scribes and Pharisees, and publicans teaches His interest and the Father's interest in the lost. The Scribes and Pharisees murmured and said, "This man receiveth sinners and eats with them." This parable of the lost son is really two parables, for there were two lost sons, the one who ran away and the one who stayed at home, a prodigal son and a lost elder brother. Jesus portrays here two kinds of sins. The prodigal son followed his appetite and fleshly desires until waste brought want. He took his inheritance and squandered it. His sins were largely those of the pig-pen, eat, lusts of flesh, and physical wants. The sins of the elder brother were different. He was industrious, stayed at home, undoubtedly controlled his physical appetites, but his sins were mental. He was selfish, jealous, loveless, and morose. His feet did not carry him from his father, but his heart. He was in his father's house, but he did not have his father's love. Both sons need conversion. The difference in the boys was that the prodigal came to himself and repented. The elder brother was too proud and self-righteous. He did not feel the need. He did not come to himself.

Repentance is not an emotion or desire. Many people weep about their sins especially at a revival and are sorry that they are found out, but that is not necessarily repentance. To repent is an act of the will. It means to face about, to turn in opposite direction, The prodigal son said, "I will arise and go." A decision needed to be made.

Faith is to move forward, trusting in the love of the Father. The prodigal son not only said, "I will arise and go to my father." He went. He believed. His father was at home and still loved him and would receive him. So often we make faith a hard, fast creed, which loses its spirit of trust and forward look and becomes a belief in a past deposit which we must jealously guard. Many men shout about their faith, by it meaning a certain correctness of belief, and yet fear to venture, to go forward trusting God. To have faith means to place our lives in His hands and then move forward although we may not be able to see the way. "All the way my Savior leads, what have I to ask beside."

This lesson is not only for those who have never made a confession of Christ, but it applies to us church people as well. Day by day we need to be saved from our petty sins and selfish desires and our pessimistic outlook on life and to repent and have faith in God and men.

According to Jesus, when was a man lost?

Was sin to Jesus a fixed, settled state, or was it the direction we were going?

What does repentance mean?

How may our faith be manifested?

WHAT GOD HAS PROMISED

God hath not promised
Skies always blue,
Flower-strewn pathways
All our lives through;
God hath not promised
Sun without rain,
Joy without sorrow,
Peace without pain.

But God hath promised
Light for the way,
Grace for the trials.
Strength for the day,
Rest for the labour,
Help from above,
Unfailing sympathy,
Undying love.

—Miss Annie Johnson Flint.

(Church Management.)

We are glad that we may look upon Christ not as a dead Savior, but as a living Redeemer.—A. M.

If we would go forward with success, we must go forward according to the command of God under His chosen leadership.

JOTTINGS

Rev. J. J. Balzer of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, made a tour of Kansas, visiting twenty-eight churches in three weeks. He traveled in the interest of the Board of Publications, presenting to the churches the need of their support to publications. His first visit was to the Hillsboro church.

The Spring Ministers' Conference of the Western District is scheduled for April 23-24 and is to be held in the Christian Mennonite church, Moundridge, Kansas. Rev. J. M. Suderman is chairman of the conference. Those participating will be Revs. J. B. Frey, E. G. Kaufman, A. R. Dyck, P. R. Regier, J. J. Plenert, P. A. Wedel, P. E. Franz, A. C. Funk, and Dr. E. L. Harcshberger. Fred Johnson of the Hopi Mission will also address the gathering. Bro. Johnson is assisting Rev. Frey in translating the New Testament into Hopi.

J. E. Regier, treasurer of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference, reports for the month of March: Receipts, $5,341.01. Balance, March 1, $732.55. For General Fund, $4687.34. Gifts for Orphans, $22.00. Sundries, $155.70. Total, $6,073.56. Paid on orders and remitted direct, $5,246.37. Balance, April 1, $827.19.

The Executive Committe of Mission Societies reports for March through its secretary, Mrs. Frieda Regier Entz, the following: For India, $227.00; Jubilee Fund, $76.00; Expenses of Executive Committee and News and Notes, $20.50; Miscellaneous, $131.05. Grand Total, $454.55.

The Indiana Fellowship of Bluffton College held its spring banquet in Fort Wayne, Ind. Dr. Mosiman and President-elect Rosenberger were present and made addresses. Music was arranged by a group of Bluffton students and by a group from Berne, Ind.

Following the presentation of their annual concert at home, the Bluffton College vesper choir made a two-weeks' tour through the Middlewest. The tour covered about 1800 miles, and churches were visited in Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa. Several broadcasts were made while on tour.

Dr. Max I. Reich, a member of the Society of Friends, of Jewish extraction, who is well known as a Bible teacher and has conducted services in several of the Mennonite churches of the East as well as during the sessions of the Eastern District Conference, conducted meetings in Freeman College, Freeman, South Dakota.

Andrew and Paul Shelly, sons of Rev. Elwood Shelly, of the Saucon, Pa., church, using their time from their studies in Christian work, conducted a service in the Ledrach, Pa., chapel near Norristown, Pa. Recently Andrew was the guest of the C. E. Society of the Second Church, Philadelphia, when he gave an inspiring message.

A social event of considerable interest was conducted in Bethel College, Newton, Kans., when donors, friends and patrons of the institution were the guests at a dinner held in the college dining hall. After the dinner the guests enjoyed a program given by representatives of the College, the Board of Directors, and alumni. The college department of music furnished the music.

The spring session of the Ministers' Conference of the Eastern District Conference, held in the First Church, Philadelphia, was well attended and a number of instructive papers were read. At this gathering there was also a discussion of matters relative to the Home Mission work of the conference. The ladies of the First Church provided an excellent dinner in the parish house of the church.

Many of the choirs of our churches are busy preparing excellent musical programs for Easter Sunday. Reports of several cantatas to be rendered have reached us.

The Sugar Creek, Ohio, church, William H. Stauffer, pastor, has added a Junior Christian Society to its organization. Mrs. Claud Stevanus and Mrs. Alice Krieger are in charge. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger of Bluffton College will be the guest speaker at the Pre-Easter services. The church choir, under the direction of Dr. Hostetler, will render the cantata "The Lord of Life" on Easter Sunday evening.

Attention is called to the fact that there will be an exhibit of items of historical interest at the General Conference. The committee in charge will be glad to have the loan of books, documents, etc., bearing on the matter.

Missionary J. R. Duerksen and family left the mission field in India on March 1. It is expected that they will be on the program of the California Mennonite S. S. and C. E. Convention at Paso Robles on May 12.

The Mennonite church of Geary, Okla., celebrated the payment of its debt by burning the last of the $1,000.00 notes of the members of the church. The match was applied by E. J. Lehman, who for 31 years has been the church organist. The building is a modern one which was completed in the summer of 1929. The original church was erected five miles north of the town, but in 1898 it was moved into town, a number of wagons and sixteen mules were used in the moving. Later it was enlarged and a steeple erected. This served as a place of worship until the present building was erected. At the freeing of the church from debt, Fred Ringelman gave a history of the congregation. Others who participated were Rev. Henry Hege and Mrs. O. P. Ruth. Four charter members of the church still live in Geary. Since 1918 all services have been in English. The church has been without a minister since the death of its pastor last year.

Interest in the coming General Conference meeting in California is being shown in all of the churches of that body. This year there are many serious problems relating to sending delegates to be considered, not the least of which is the matter of finance. However, a surprising number of persons are preparing to go Plans for cheap rates from the Middle and Eastern conferences have been completed that indicate that the expense item will be kept at a very low rate. Of course there will be those who go per auto.

Timothy H. Brenneman, a trustee of Bluffton College for many years, and the father of Naomi Brenneman, head of the English Department of Bluffton College, while returning to his home from church in Goshen, Ind., was struck and killed by an automobile.

A CORRECTION

In the statistics for Clinton and Hammon in the last Mission number the membership is omitted, and the average attendance is given as membership. It should be as follows: Membership: Clinton—55, Hammon—42. Average Attendance: Clinton—38, Hammon—24.

P. H. Richert, Secretary.

DEATHS

Daniel A. Amstutz was born August 4, 1855, in Richland Township, Allen County, Ohio. He departed to be with his Lord Wednesday evening, at 9:30, March 6, 1935, reaching the age of 79 years, 7 months, and 2 days. He was the son of Abraham and Anna (Bucher) Amstutz. Early in youth (at the age of nineteen), upon his confession of faith, he was received by rite of baptism, as a member of the Swiss Mennonite church. At the age of twenty-three, he was united in marriage with Mary Geiger. To this happy union five children were born. In 1912, Mrs. Amstutz preceded her husband in death. Mr. Amstutz then made his home with his children. A sister and one brother also preceded him in death. Father Amstutz leaves to mourn five children, fourteen grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren; also one uncle, Mr. P. B. Rmstutz, of Bluffton, Ohio, who has reached the ripe old age of eighty-nine years. The funeral was held at the St. John Mennonite church, in charge of his pastor, Rev. E. E. Toevs.

Mary Sutter was born September 8, 1862, southeast of Pandora, Ohio. She departed from this life March 20, 1935, reaching the age of seventy-two years, six months, and twelve days. On April 19, 1889, she was received as a member into the St. John Mennonite church, by rite of baptism, upon her confession of faith. She is survived by one brother and two sisters.

Funeral was held at the St. John church and was in charge of her pastor, Rev. E. E. Toevs. Interment at the St. John cemetery.

Mrs. Gottlieb Reichenbach. — Frederika (Schweitzer) Reichenbach, daughter of Philip and Magdaline Fry Schweitzer, was born near Elmira, Ontario, Canada, November 23, 1851. She departed from this life, March 18, 1935, reaching the age of eighty-three years, three months, and twenty-five days. Upon her confession of faith she was baptized and was received as a member into the Swiss Mennonite church some forty-five years ago, of which she remained a faithful member unto the end of her life. On September 14, 1874, she was united in marriage with Gottlieb Reichenbach. This happy union was blessed with ten children, five sons and five daughters. Mother Reichenbach leaves to mourn a large number of nephews and nieces and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the St. John Mennonite church, her pastor, Rev. E. E. Toevs, in charge, assisted by Rev. A. E. Kreider, of the Bluffton Mennonite church. Burial was made at the St. John cemetery.

Adolph Waltner, son of Jacob A. and Mathilda, nee Krehbiel, Waltner, was born on March 31, 1908, west of Moundridge, Kansas. He was baptized upon confession of faith in his Redeemer, June 14, 1925, and became a member of the Eden Mennonite church, whose member he remained until his death. On August 16, 1933, he was united in holy wedlock with Florence E. Goering. The duration of their married life was destined to be very brief. He passed away in the early morning hours of March 15, 1935, reaching the age of 26 years, 11 months, and 15 days. He leaves to mourn his early departure, his deeply sorrowing wife, one brother, one sister-in-law, three sisters, the grandmother who took care of him in his childhood days, uncles and aunts, his relatives and friends. His father preceded him in death about ten years ago.

Funeral services were held in the home and from the Eden Mennonite church, Sunday afternoon, March 17, 1935, at two o'clock. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

Daniel H. Goertz, born March 11, 1884, near Goessel, Kansas. In 1903 he moved with his parents to Gotebo, Okla. July 16, 1905, he was baptized on confession of his faith by Elder H. R. Voth, and became a member of the Ebenezer church near Gotebo. On November 29, 1908, he married Lena Reimer. Four daughters were born to them. He died March 10, 1935, at the age of 50 years, 11 months, and 30 days. The funeral was held March 13, 1935. Mr. Froese of Cordell held a short service at the home. At the church Mr. Kroeker of Bessie preached in German and Rev. Hege, our pastor, in English.

Maria Jantz, nee Nickel, daughter of Johann and Eva Nickel, was born in Michalin, South Russia, April 16, 1857. She is the last of a family of twelve children to pass from this time into the eternal home. She was baptized upon her confession of faith in the Lord Christ, May 7, 1871. She came to America during the time of the large emigration out of Russia, 1874, the family settling in South Dakota, forty miles from Yankton, the nearest railroad station. She was married to Cornelius Jantz, April 27, 1878. Nine sons were born to this union, five preceding the mother in death. Pioneer life she experienced in South Dakota and again in the state of Washington, coming to this latter state in 1903. She was a charter member of the Salem Mennonite church at Ruff, Washington. She passed away almost unnoticed in the evening of March 25. She leaves to mourn her departure, four sons, her aged husband, twenty-three grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends. Though gone, yet not forgotten, but in memory of all. Funeral services were conducted Thursday, March. 28, from the Menno Mennonite church, and interment was made in the cemetery near the church. Rev. M. J. Galle officiated.

Henry Dallke died in his home at Reedley, California, on March 19, at the age of 78 years, 3 months, and 29 days. He was born in South Russia on November 20, 1856. Here he lived with his parents until they with many others immigrated to America in 1874 and settled near Moundridge, Kansas. In the year 1876 he was baptized by Rev. Gaeddert and received into the Mennonite church. In this community he taught school for a number of years. In 1878 he united in marriage with Augusta Hintz, and God blessed this union with five children, two of which have preceded him in death. He took a great interest in school and religious work, and was Sunday School superintendent for more than twenty-five years. From Kansas the family moved to Gotebo, Oklahoma, where they engaged in the mercantile business until 1918, when they moved to Reedley, California, where he has resided since. In 1928 they celebrated their golden wedding in the Reedley church, surrounded by a multitude of friends. Five years ago he had a light stroke, from which he partly recovered. On March 13, he had a severe stroke that caused his death after six days.

Funeral services were held in the Reedley church, March 22, at which Rev. Richert of the Mennonite Brethren Church spoke in German on the text, Heb. 11:10, and Rev. Krehbiel spoke in English on Isaiah 3:10, to a large audience. He leaves to mourn his death, his wife, two sons, one daughter, eight grandchildren, three greatgrandchildren, and many friends, but they do not sorrow as such who have no hope.

The Homegoing of Mrs. Emma Ruth Kliewer

I have reasons to believe that there are many friends of my sainted wife who would be interested in the details of her homegoing. I am sending a personal statement for such friends.

As her friends know, she had not been in robust health for a number of years. Periodic attacks of migraine headaches caused her excruciating pain. Specialists consulted, gave her the desponding information that there was no absolute cure for her ailment, but that it would simply have to run its course. She was further annoyed by a bronchial cough that made us all fear tubercular complications, but that proved negative each time it was subjected to an examination.

On the evening of December 24, she attended the Christmas program of the Bethel College Church Sunday School, and showed all evidence of enjoying it. Shortly after her return from the program her family saw signs of her not being well. She complained of violent chills, but retired with the remark that undoubtedly one of her headache spells was approaching. The next morning (Christmas morning) she remained in bed, but came into the living room where she reclined on a couch while the presents were being distributed in the family, who were all present except the daughter, Ruth, who was in Berkeley, California, in school.

Two days later the physician pronounced her case pleurisy. The next two days brought an increase in the severity of her case and she was taken to the Bethel Hospital. The next day she was put under an oxygen tent to increase her chance to fight pneumonia which had set in. She showed appreciation of the treatment that the doctor and the Sisters gave her.

Uncomplainingly she bore her affliction to the end. When her husband at one time put his head under the tent and asked her how she was, she answered, "I am so tired, and it takes so long!" She was asked, "Do you mean it takes so long to get well"? She replied, "No, it takes so long for the end to come." Her attention was then called to the 23rd Psalm just read, with the remark that the Good Shepherd will be with us even if we walk through the valley of the shadow of death. "Yes, he will be with us," she answered.

Less than nine days after she went down with her last sickness, she fell asleep in the Lord. She passed away early in the morning of January 2, 1935, at the age of 58 years, 11 months, 15 days.

J. W. Kliewer.

John Sommer, son of John and Barbara Sommer, was born in Elm Grove Township, Fayewell County, Illinois, October 12, 1849. He passed to his reward Saturday, March 23, 1935, having reached the age of 85 years, 5 months, and 11 days. On October 24, 1878, he was united in marriage with Emelia Umzieher. This union was blessed with three sons. He leaves to mourn his departure his beloved wife, three sons: Wilbert and Oscar of Elm Grove Township, Arthur of Pekin, Ill., one sister, Mrs. Jacob Ropp of Gridley, Illinois. Someone has said that the true measure of a man's life is not in terms of days and years, but rather: In the heights of his ideals; in the depth of his convictions;; in the breadth of his sympathies; in the length of his endurance; in the greatness of his purpose; in his devotion to a cause. If you knew Bro. Sommer, you will agree that in these several respects he lived a life of no small dimensions. Mr. Sommer in early life accepted Christ and united with the Mennonite Church, of which he remained a faithful, loyal member until death. To him the principles of church attendance was a fixed law which he strictly observed, never missing a Sunday morning service if there was a possible way of attending. The outstanding principles of his life may briefly be summarized in two passages of Scripture: Psalm 37:3, "Trust in the Lord, and do good, so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed"; 1 Peter 3:10-11, "For he that would have life and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil and his lips that they speak no guile, and let him turn away from evil and do good, let him speak peace and pursue it." Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon, March 26, from the home of his son, Wilbert, and at the Bethel Mennonite Church. Burial at Lake Side cemetery at Pekin, Ill.

Services were in charge of his pastor, Rev. Samuel Ummel, assisted by Rev. Allen H. Miller of Wayland, Iowa.

Lucille Moser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Moser, was born April 27, 1903, in Topeka, Indiana, and died at her home in Topeka, March 16, 1935, aged 31 years, 10 months, and 19 days.

She was preceded in death by twin brothers and leaves to mourn her departure, her father and mother and a large circle of relatives and friends. She graduated from the Middlebury high school in 1921. She was a graduate of the South Bend Business College and was a student at the Indiana University for two years. The first of July it would have been nine years that she was confined to her bed. She returned to her home in Topeka after spending five years in Tucson, Arizona, in an effort to regain her health. She found much joy and satisfaction through her interest in art. She gave expression to this through her painting and various types of needlework.

She endured intense suffering much of the time, but was always patient and cheerful and an inspiration to those who called to see her. Loving hands were always ready to render any service that might bring relief to the stricken body.

She accepted Christ in her youth and was a member of the Topeka Mennonite church at the time of her death.

O dear, familiar yesterday,
O sad and strange today!
Yet who would call the glad soul back
To rouse the resting clay?
Or who would wish that she might share
Our morrow's toil and strife,
Who loosed from death and all its pains,
Has entered into life?

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Topeka Mennonite church and were in charge of Rev. Earl Salzman. Burial was made in Maple Grove cemetery.

PLAN NOW TO GO

Perhaps this seems a bit early to think about vacations, but the one I am about to suggest may need careful planning, so it is well to start early.

General Conference sessions will be held in Upland, California, August 4-11, 1935. At the last Conference in Bluffton, it was recommended that the churches consider the young people in the congregation when the delegates are named. If there are young people who are able to go to California, let them be given the opportunity of sharing with the older delegates the responsibilities of Conference.

Immediately following Conference, there will be a General Conference Young People's Retreat from August 12-16. This is being arranged by the Young People's Committee and by the California S. S. and C. E. Executive Committee. It will be held at Camp LaVerne, Jenks Lake, in the San Bernardino Mountains, California.

The coming of Jesus brought to earth a new power, the power to live a life triumphant. The Christian life should be a life of power, and we trust that a week of Retreat inspiration and fellowship will lead to a more vital Christian experience. It will give a deeper knowledge of the Bible as well as a better understanding of God's will for us as Christians, together with the vision and courage to carry out His will. It will bring a keener appreciation of those principles by which our Mennonite forefathers lived and for which they died, as well as a firmer conviction that those same principles have a practical application today.

We hope that all of our Conference Districts will be represented at this Retreat. Of course, it means money and time and effort to get there, but those who go will be well repaid. Mary B. Borneman, Secretary-Treasurer, Y. P. Committee.

"WHO?"

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
"I," said the Brewer.
"Though sober men'll be fewer,
I want Beer-by-the-Glass"!

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
"I," said the hotel-man,
"Just as quick as you can,
I want Beer-by-the-Glass"!

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
"I," said the social climber,
"I'm not an old-timer,
I want Beer-by-the-Glass"!

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
"I," said the society girl,
"Though I like my cocktail whirl,
I'd try Beer-by-the-Glass."

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
"Not I," said the preacher,
"Of temperance, I'm a teacher,
I'm not for Beer-by-the-Glass."

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
"Not I," said the dad,
"Sober sons make me glad,
I'm not for Beer-by-the-Glass."

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
"Not I," said the coal-dealer,
"Beer is a trade stealer,
I'm not for Beer-by-the-Glass."

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
"Not I," said the engineer,
"My brain must be clear,
I'm not for Beer-by-the-Glass."

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
"Not I," said the tourist,
"Sober cars are the surest,
I'm not for Beer-by-the-Glass."

Who wants Beer-by-the-Glass?
Oh, sisters and mothers,
Save the children and brothers,
Don't sell them to "Beer-by-the-Glass"!

—Selected.

OUR BEST-SELLING BIBLES

NEW PICTORIAL BIBLE WITH HELPS

SELF PRONOUNCING BOLD FACE BREVIER 8vo TEXT BIBLE ILLUSTRATED

Suitable for all ages

The Thinnest White Paper Bible containing Bold Face Brevier Type
Size 7¼x4½x⅞ in.

SPECIMEN OF TYPE

3 And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, They have no wine.
4 Jesus saith unto her, Woman,
what have I to do with thee? mine

wilt thou rear it up in three days?
21 But he spake of the temple of his body.
22 When therefore he was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered

RECOMMENDED FOR GIFT PURPOSES
Printed from perfect plates in bold face brevier, the most popular font of type now in use, on a special grade of Bible paper that is very opaque, yet extremely thin, thus giving an unusually compact Bible for the size of type. All numerals are in plain Arabic and chapters are numbered consecutively for easy reference. Marginal titles make this popular edition practically self-indexed.

STUDENTS' HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY
Containing a special 64-page supplement of Helps to Bible Study, especially compiled for this series, consisting of a series of articles on various subjects, such as the Languages of the Bible, the English Versions, Parables and Miracles, Weights and Measures, the Harmony of the Gospels, Paul's Missionary Journeys, the Chronology of the Old Testament, the period between Malachi and the birth of Christ and the New Testament, the Books of the Apocrypha, and a Table of Daily Readings.

ILLUSTRATIONS
consisting of sixten carefully chosen views of the Holy Land, eight in full colors and eight in photogravure.

All have Maps, Headbands, and Markers

No. 8 Imitation Leather Binding, round corners, divinity circuit, red edges. An unusual bargain. Price, postpaid..........$1.00

S89½ Persianette, round corners, divinity circuit, red edges..........$1.25

S89 Persianctte, round corners, divinity circuit, red under gold edges..........$1.50

S91 French Morocco, round corners, divinity circuit, red under gold edges..........$2.25

SPECIAL BIBLE

Special Number for Pew or Desk

Has no Helps, illustrations or maps. Same type and size as Bibles listed above. Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges—S11....$0.90

TEACHERS' REFERENCE BIBLES

SPECIMEN OF TYPE

[6] brook of the willows.
8 For the cry is gone round about the borders of Moab; the howling
thereof unto Ĕg′-lā-ĭm, and the howling thereof unto Be̕er–ē′-lĭm.

6 Or, valley of the Arabians.

like an harp for Moab, and mine
inward parts for Kĭr–hăr′-ĕsh.
12 ᵋ And it shall come to pass, when it is seen that Moab is weary on the ᶠhigh place, that he shall come to his

BOLD FACE PRONOUNCING TEXT
Printed in bold black self-pronouncing type from perfect plates on a new super Bible paper unexcelled for capacity.

EVERYTHING YOU HAVE WANTED IN A BIBLE
Concordance—based on Cruden system. Biblical Index—3,000 proper names, places, and subjects. Complete Chronologies—Old and New Testaments and period between. Biblical Gazetteer—Index to Scripture Atlas—16 pages of colored maps—80,000 center column references.

EXTRA FEATURES
Colored frontispiece—All numerals in plain Arabic—Chapters numbered consecutively throughout the Bible—Synopsis at head of each chapter—Names of Books at upper outside corners of pages.
Size 5⅝x7⅞—King James Version

GUARANTEED GENUINE LEATHER
Strongly bound in French Morocco leather, real Morocco grain, flexible overlapping covers, extra grained linings, red under gold edges, gold stamping on front and spine, headbands and silk marker, neat gift box.
Special Price, Bible S200..........$3.00

Also Supplied in
FLEXIBLE PERSIANETTE
A soft, fine grain binding, very attractive and durable, with overlapping covers, red under gold edges, gold stamping, headbands and marker. Exactly the same contents as S200 plus 48 illustrations (32 gravure—16 color).
Bible 4988..........$2.00

AN EXCEPTIONAL VALUE
Bible No. 4988½ Red-edged Concordance edition without extra helps found in Bibles Nos. S200 and 4988. One of our most popular Bibles. Price $1.50

The MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev. Emanuel Troyer Mar 3

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, MAY 7, 1935 No. 9

GETHSEMANE

I cannot follow Thee
As Thou dost forward press
Into Gethsemane.

The night so dark; Thy heart
So full of sorrow,—deep
And bitter agony.

I cannot even watch
To cool Thy heated brow,
And wipe the precious drops
That fall as blood upon
The ground. The angel comes To Thee,—I cannot, Lord

I cannot follow Thee
In Thy deep love for me
Within Gethsemane.

—Joanna S. Andres.

CAN WE DO ANYTHING TO ADVANCE THE CAUSE OF PEACE?

A. J. Neuenschwander, Quakertown, Pa.

In the last few weeks we have certainly seen enough action in the direction to strengthen fortifications, enlarge armaments, ncrease appropriations for war preparations, and an active enlargement of armies in many countries. Those imbued with the war spirit have been able to do a lot, we must admit.

The other day when Secretary of War, George H. Dern, was in Philadelphia viewing an arms display, he lamented about the "microscopic" size of our American army. He declared it was on a par with such nations as Turkey and Portugal, but failed to mention that this "small" army costs more than any other in the world! Nor did he make any mention that the War Department had just obtained from congress the largest peacetime appropriations in the nation's history.

During the short time that Secretary Dern — whom we once heard make a somewhat faint peace speech in California — was in the "City of Brotherly Love," examining materials of war, bills were passed in Washington, granting $38,000,000 additional for fortifications along the Pacific Coast. We are told that the action for the many millions took less than an hour. It seemed as though money was plentiful. Ten minutes after the action was over, a Representative from Oklahoma introduced a bill asking for a few millions to keep 3,500,000 children in schools which were on the verge of being closed for lack of funds. This plea fell on deaf ears! Thirty-eight millions for war, but not a cent for our children!

Two years ago the CCC was organized. This Civilian Conservation Corpse has undoubtedly accomplished much that is good and praiseworthy. A young man in one of our Mennonite churches wanted to enter into one of these camps. Before signing up he investigated about policies and the possible connection with the war machine. Replies were conflicting. The Administration openly announced that there should be no connection with the War Department. A man who was going to help in these camps and was engaged by the Government, told the writer that these camps were so planned and arranged that they might be converted into military camps at short notice. Whether he spoke officially or not, is a question. The young man did not enlist because he was afraid he might find himself involved in the war machine.

Now we know the plans. The thousands of young men of military age and physical fitness organized into camps was too tempting for the War Department. Two measures are now in congress designed to offer these men an enlistment of two months "for intensive military training" after their regular camp enlistment is over. It is further planned that after the two month period is over, these young men should form an "auxiliary reserve force" for five years with a small stipend.

Loud and long protests went up from every section of Europe and America when Germany came forth and over night converted her civilian air camps into Government Air Camps. Now shall we do the same thing?

Beginning on May 3rd, huge naval maneuvers are supposed to be held in the north Pacific. What is such a procedure by our Navy except a 'shaking of the clenched fist' dangerously close to Japan? Public indignation over this provocative movement has made itself felt in Washington. Many groups have sent delegations to the President and voiced their opposition. Now it seems that there will be a change in the program.

What are we as Mennonites doing about the whole war question? Very likely a unanimous agreement cannot be reached as to what ought to be done. Let each one do what seems right to him. Biblical non-resistance is one of our distinctive principles. This principle is deep-seated and far-reaching. The ministers ought to teach and instruct their members, the Christian attitude toward war, the taking of life, and revenge. If we all take the teaching of Christ on this vital subject, there is bound to be some agreement in principle. This is vital. At the outbreak of the World War many of our young men hardly knew what our stand as Mennonites was on this point. Many knew we were opposed to war, but it was not clear to them why and on what grounds. Some will feel that biblical teaching is all that is to be done. If this is the case, well and good. But let careful instructio be given.

Others feel that they can and as citizen ought to go farther. As long as action is no contrary to principles as taught by Christ it is hard to understand why some would no want such farther reaching action to be taken. I am referring to such activities as writing to Senators and Representatives, and t public officials and letting these know ou stand and position with respect to war. W can also let our convictions be known in publi meetings. The warring enthusiasts let thei voices be heard. Let each one decide what hi duty is as a Christian citizen.

Are we using to the full extent the opportunities that are offered from time to time, i our Sunday School lessons and Christian Endeavor or Young People's topics, to ground an indoctrinate our constituents on this troublesome subject? Can we do anything to advance the cause of peace?

THE HOUSE ON THE HILL

(An imaginary sketch of a home without Christ.)

By Betty Regier

It was a big and beautiful house with ever comfort that anyone could wish — rug draperies, electricity, a gas furnace. Yo would be delighted at the long arching hall the sudden little nooks with their arc windows, quaint vases from the Orient, and tin patterned rugs. And yet the home was incomplete. No love, no joy, no peace adorne it. It stood bare of the elements which mak a house a home. There was the soft tread c footsteps, the subdued murmur of voices, bu beneath this outer calmness there was th clamor of unquieted hearts, the restlessnes of human souls that cried for something better, for something that would really satisfy.

Mr. Brown was the head of the house – the head of the house, but not of the hom He, too, had a goal toward which he wa striving. He wanted to become a millionair Night and day his whole interest centered c it. Money he must have. He rejoiced i watching his hoarded pile grow and was delighted in each bargain that added to it. Eac day he grew more cautious in business and th more cautious he was, the harder he worke until now, living on the strength of his shattered nerves, he still strove on. In hours of the night when he lay awake, too weary to sleep, certain questions of his restless heart came struggling to the surface again and again. "What am I striving for? What good will money do me when I am dead"? Death! Death! Why had he let that question ask itself? Oh, that his money could help him avoid the grave!

Mr. Brown paid scarcely any attention to his two children. They were like mere shadows in the vast beauty of his house. His daughter was seldom near, and his book-loving son was hardly noticeable, slumped in the big chair with his head buried in a book.

Arliss was reckless and young, and her main trouble was clothes. Bright and dashing and up to date they must be, and Arliss couldn't live without them, she declared, for they were all that life meant to her. She considered her brother a bore, and her father a downright stingy man. Arliss had fallen in with a wild crowd, had learned to smoke and drink, and liked each well. She generally came in after midnight, and when she went to school the next morning, she went to attract attention rather than to gain knowledge. But Arliss was not happy.

Perhaps Arliss was much like her mother. Mrs. Brown, too, loved a life of gaiety. She, too, was seldom at home—always gone to parties or clubs. Everyone asked her. She was a prominent person in society circles where her smooth personality and winning grace won her hosts of friends. Sometimes in the quiet hours of the night when the inner voice could speak, she, too, knew that she was not happy.

The most gloomy person living in this house was fourteen-year-old Phil, pale faced, feeble, half crippled. He haunted the house like a thin little host, for Phil never grew much. He was looking for something, something in the solemn beauty of the house. When he was not roaming about, he was reading. What was the matter? In books people were happy and lived in beautiful homes. Even people that had no beautiful homes were happy. And then there were crippled boys, too, and they were happy. Phil could not understand.

What was the matter with this house on the hill? Was it, perhaps, because there was no room for Christ that no happiness was found? They were all so busy, so very busy. There was not time for Him who could give them all they wanted. Phil had time, but he knew not of the Christ whom his heart was seeking.

In January, Mr. Brown found an opportunity to gain nearly twice as much money as he had, but this must be done by fraud. He hesitated, and then took his chance. Someone was poorer that night, but Mr. Brown had a well filled pocket. February passed without much happening. In March Arliss came home slightly intoxicated and spent three days in bed. Summer dragged by and as it faded away into autumn, Phil faded also. No one noticed it until a few days before he died that he was leaving them. Death! Death was coming! In agony of heart, Mrs. Brown watched her son close his eyes forever. There was no one near to comfort her. In utter despair she thought to take her life, but then there was death again and she feared death. She cared to see no one, she cared to go nowhere. She became gloomy and nervous.

In November, Arliss was sent to a penitentiary for misbehavior and, shortly afterwards, Mr. Brown, whose means of fraud had been discovered and whose every penny had been wiped away because of it, was to face a trial at which all his friends would learn to know of the awful deed, and he did not want them to know. While he wondered what he could do to escape this trial, a punishment much worse was laid upon him by the hand of God. A complete breakdown overcame him. He was sent to a sanatorium organized by charity, and his wife, whose name had been blackened everywhere, left the house on the hill by force, and the lovely furniture was put up for auction.

Thus ended the year. The beautiful house on the hill was empty and quiet. Footsteps of strangers that came to view the emptiness rang through the house. As the new year dawned and the months passed, dust and dirt filled the empty nooks and sunlight faded the vast, bare rooms. In spring strangers came to make their home there, and cleaning up the rubbish and accumulated dirt, found a piece of beautiful glass—a fragment of the slender neck of a vase, a fragment of a past that was no more, a past that was shattered and gone.

How glad Christ would have been to make that house a home! How glad would He be to gather three broken fragments and unite them into a beautiful whole to be an ornament for Him!

FRED JOHNSON WRITES OF HOPI LAND AND TELLS HOW HE AND HIS FAMILY BECAME CHRISTIANS

Perhaps the readers of your good paper would like to hear from the work in Arizona. I am writing, therefore, and would greet my readers with the words from Psalm 103:1. "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name." The Lord has been especially good to us in Arizona with fine weather all through fall and part of the winter months. It has enabled us Christian workers to get together once more during the month of November. Our Brother Suderman of Oraibi was very fortunate to get Rev. P. P. Wedel, who is one of the mission board, to be with us at Oraibi during our special meetings. He was our special speaker during the conference. However, I was not able to come to Oraibi for the conference until the brethren Suderman and Wedel had come to visit Moen Copi Mission to inspect our mission property and also to get some idea of the work in general out here. We returned to Oraibi late in the evening of the same day. Once more I was glad to be at home with my dear aunt, Mrs. Nannie Nasehonva, and her daughter, Miss Lucell Nasehonva, the only Christian relatives of mine at Oraibi at the present time. I have, however, three aunts, one uncle, and a great number of cousins, but only these two out of that whole group are now Christians and are seeking to help the missionary in his work at Oraibi. Later in the evening I was privileged to meet the Christian Indians at church service, those that are of Oraibi under our own missionary at Oraibi and those from other missions of the Baptist church. I was especially pleased to see a few of the real old Indians, who are yet serving the Lord. It encourages my heart a great deal to see them holding on to their Christian faith. There are also others among them who have just turned to the Lord that same year. It was indeed a pleasure to meet all of them in the church. It proves again that the power of the Gospel is able to save to the uttermost, even the lowest type of men and women can become saints of the Lord, who redeemed us from our sins in His own blood. And now we can thank God for the missionaries who are willing to give up their homes that the Indians may also have the gospel come into their lives. It was good and proper that they brought all that white civilization can offer, to the Indians of our youth today.

But apart from the Gospel the civilization of the white man made the Indian worse rather than better him in his social life, education, and all that civilization can offer. I sometimes wonder whether it is good that government should let the Indians alone in their own ways of living. But we Christian Indians can thank God for the gospel of Jesus Christ, which the missionary has brought to us in our days. For we find that they worked hard to get the language, later they translated the gospels and some of the epistles, and portions of the Bible stories into our Hopi language, so that the Indian child may understand the way of God as well as the older man. They also built up the orphanage work for our Indians at Oraibi, which later was the means of saving a number of the orphan children from death, a few of whom have now become young men and women to raise families and become leaders in Christian work among our Indians. They also taught the Indian mothers how to bake bread, sew the clothes, and gave encouragement and comfort to the sorrowing hearts in times of great distress among our people. We appreciate all this and what the missionaries have done for us in the past. It must be hard for these missionaries to come to a strange people of a strange language, without having any knowledge of the language of the people, the minds of the Indians, our pagan religion, our customs, manners, and everything that is to be considered in an Indian of the old type.

But here they lived among us from the beginning of the first mission established among our people. At first we did not understand what their mission and its purpose was, we thought them to be Roman Catholics, trying to get back into our land from which, according to our tradition, they had been driven out, never to return again. We were, therefore, warned against the missionaries by some of our leading men. But gradually we were won over to their side before we knew it. It was hard and something new to accept their religious faith, which meant certain persecution if accepted. The Hopi life, as we know it, was hard to give up for something else, and we never knew tha there is anything better in becoming a Christian. But as the work of the mission went on in the Hopi land, one day a missionary opene up his camp meetings outside of our village a Oraibi. The leaders of the meetings, I remember, were Rev. J. B. Frey, Rev. C. J. Frey, and Miss R. L. Olson. Later Mr. Henry Frey joined the group from Kansas, also Rev. J. R. Duerksen and Miss Elizabet Schmidt. These were the early missionaries that we know of, who labored among us. The tent was large, but every night it was filled with Indians, because the missionaries also showed pictures, besides preaching. It drew the crowd. One afternoon toward the close of the service, the missionary again begged the Indians to come to the Savior Jesus. At first no response was given, but later two men held up their hands, saying that they wanted to come. Then the wife and the two girls, all sisters, came. By that time I saw the missionary talking with an old couple, who were the parents of these girls. The old man was blind, and he wanted to know if those were his children. When he was told and asked if he would come along, I heard him say to the missionary, holding the missionary's hand, "Yes, I want the Lord; if my children have taken Him, I want Him too." The old mother said the same thing. It made some of us wonder what all that meant. I was merely a boy at that time. Later, before the meetings closed, my own mother was among those who held up their hands to take Christianity. I looked over the audience to see if father was there, but I could not find him in the audience. So I got out and went home, wondering what would happen.

The next day I saw the missionary in our home, talking to my father and mother, and saying to my father that it would be good and best that he should join my mother to accept Christ as a Savior. But father did not say a word. The missionary left our home. Then I said to my mother, "If father does not become a Christian, I will not come along with you to the Lord whom you claim to have accepted." That seemed to make an impression on my father's mind to think more seriously than ever. I think one of the reasons why father would not consent to become a Christian was because he had just been initiated into a snake religion, and that was one of them in his way, and he was rather worrying and studying hard. We were brought up against this thing and it was hard to know what was best to do. We had many friends and my father and mother were quite influential people. On the other hand, my grandfather on mother's side was a judge and a war chief, and we were rather afraid that he would make trouble, which, of course, he did later. Father could not go to sleep that night, so he got out of his bed, lit his lantern, and went down to the mission to spend some more time with the missionary to talk over the question of Christianity. Well, it was a hard struggle for father to decide, but afterward I saw the change in his looks, and he was getting ready to be baptized the next Sunday, with mother and the rest of the people who had held up their hands for Jesus during the camp meetings. But before we were baptized and joined the missionary's Savior, my father brought out his snake feathers and his bag of tobacco and threw them into the fire of our stove, to be burned out of our home for good. He was a great smoker, but he never touched tobacco since.

All this took place in the fall of 1914. It was the beginning of the founding of the native church at Oraibi. Little did I realize later that some day I would be a preacher myself and a missionary to my own people, but I know right down in my heart that I was saved and that I have the joy of the Lord in my heart. My only delight and pleasure is in the Word of God, and I am happy to give my testimony for the Lord when I have an opportunity, from that day.

May I ask my readers this question: Does it pay to support the mission work among the heathen people to whom a missionary may be sent? I believe, every lover of missions will not only say, "Yes," but rather will continue to support the missions among the Indians in our own country as well as those in foreign countries. May the Lord bless every one who loves the Lord from the heart, and who is willing to give to the cause of Christ's kingdom, until He comes.

Yours in His service,
Fred A. Johnson.

MORE ABOUT THE GENERAL CONFERENCE AND ITS JUBILEE

The earlier meetings of the General Conference were small and generally attended by but a few representatives of scattered churches. It would be of interest, if space permitted, to give an account of these early meetings, but since it is the purpose of these articles only to give a bare outline of the growth of the Conference during these 75 years, we must refer the reader to Krehbiel's History of the General Conference, of which copies are still available and should be in the library of every student of Mennonite history. The work brings the story of the Conference down to the year 1898.

To many of those who will attend the Jubilee in California this summer the rest of what may be told is a familiar narrative. The Conference held in Pennsylvania in 1899 was the first the writer of this article attended. He has the recollection of an earlier one held in this state, after which it was his privilege to show some of those who attended the sights of Philadelphia. Mother Krehbiel, the wife of Rev. Christian Krehbiel, was the guest at the home of his parents and with her visited the Zoological Gardens and other places of interest. Her telling the story of the Indian boys and girls being reared in her home is vividly remembered and the names of a boy named Sweeny and a brother and sister Roadtraveler are recalled as well as what she told of some of her sons and daughters, particularly her son Christian, now the editor of the Bundesbote and Secretary of the General Conference.

The entertainment of a General Conference, until somewhat recently, was an obligation that the local congregation took upon itself. This often had to be done at considerable cost and labor for the entertaining congregation. In a rural section it is no small matter for one small congregation to take upon itself the responsibility for feeding and lodging several hundred persons for a week or more. There is a tradition of a conference held in the East, before the writer's time, that continued for an unusual period, which during the last days was the cause of considerable worry to the hosts because bread and other staple articles were becoming scarce. At one of the conferences held in Kansas, the unusual number of guests made it necessary to lodge some of the delegates on beds of straw in the school house.

As the size of the conferences increased, it became necessary for groups of churches to join in providing food and lodging for the guests. Meals were arranged at a common table in the church or some other convenient place. Later, by common consent, a small fee was charged for the meals. We recall a conference held in Bluffton, Ohio, some years ago, where meals were so elaborate that word came to be passed along the line by auto tourists that wonderful meals were to be secured a bargain price at the Conference church. The result of this was that numerous extra guests hardly desirable to the entertainers, had to be served. At this conference an epidemic broke out one night and many of the visitors became violently ill. Local doctors as well as those called from neighboring towns had to be on the job all night.

Perhaps no gathering of church people in our time was under so high a tension as the former conference in California. The Connference before this one was held in Oklahoma just as the World War was in its beginning and no one thought our nation would be involved, but many were wondering just what would be happening to our brethren in Europe. When Conference was held in California our nation was in the war making preparations to "Make the world safe for democracy" and "Wage war to end war." The draft was in progress. Besides the stress under which Conference, as a pacific body, had to work, most of the ministers and leaders were hundreds and even thousands of miles away from their congregations at a time when leadership was sorely needed. Coming and going, the railroads were jammed with troop trains. Naturally there was worry and uncertainty concerning the situations. Word was coming in that the attitude of many local Draft Boards was unfriendly and that they were ignoring the legal privilege of non-resistant citizens which permitted them to file statements of their position.

It has been our privilege to have known personally many of the early leaders of the Conference. Rev. John Oberholtzer, a gregarious soul, was for a time a neighbor and an almost daily visitor to the home of the writer's parents. He was a short, thick set man, one about whom children loved to be. A son, David, who disappeared shortly after the Civil War and was never again heard from, was a concern continually on his soul and about which he often spoke. His personality came to the fore wherever he happened to be. Repentance was a favorite theme for his discussion off the pulpit as well as on it. We recall some of his other interests, particularly an attempt to make artificial honey in the laboratory he had built in the cellar of his home. As he became older his acquaintances came to speak of him affectionately as "Der alte John."

Christian Schowalter is recalled as an early

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication..........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office..........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance..........$1.50
Foreign..........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

secretary of the Conference and a former teacher at Wadsworth. His missionary interest cropped out at every opportunity. Everything the Conference did was a matter of personal interest to him. Nothing seemed to come before it but what with a "Vorsitzer" he was on his feet to express his opinion. His last appearance at Conference was at the session at Beatrice.

Christian Krehbiel was a man of mighty physique, with a heart as big as his frame. From his eyes there shown the good nature that possessed him, yet none could avoid feeling that with his good humor there was an impressively honest shrewdness. His easy command of the German language and its use in effective delivery made one feel that words were just rolling from his lips as they came from the heart and that he had a message of serious import to deliver.

Two men of the keenest mind and an outstanding gift of leadership were David Goerz and Samuel Sprunger. Goerz was the leading man among the Russian Mennonites and Sprunger was to the Swiss town and congregation of Berne, Indiana, for righteousness and positive leadership what John Calvin must have been in the Geneva of his old Switzerland. Generally these two men were on opposite sides in a debate. Sparks flew and thrusts reached their marks with telling effectiveness, and, withall, one felt that the destiny of the Conference depended largely upon their attitudes.

Andrew Shelly, who presided over more General Conferences than any other man, and for years served as secretary of the Mission Board, was a safely conservative person, but not of the kind that blocked progress for the sake of blocking progress. He served a number of congregations in Pennsylvania. As an officer of Conference, an editor, a member of the Mission Board, the shepherd of a widely scattered flock, a popular preacher, and a farmer as well, he managed to meet his responsibilities and continued to old age the affection and esteem of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

Rev. J. van der Smissen, the erudite, was called by Conference to become the teacher in Theology in the Wadsworth school that came into being during the early days of the Conference. He had been pastor of a church in Europe, when he was called to do pioneer educational work among the Mennonites of America. His culture, his missionary enthusiasm, and the spiritual influence he exercised over his pupils were gifts he left to the Conference that have become permanent blessings. Long after the Wadsworth school ceased to function the leaders in the General Conference were products of the Wadsworth school. Among the survivors of that student body we may name Rev. Allen Fretz, now in his eighty-first year and still in the active ministry, serving three congregations. Another of Prof. van der Smissen's pupils is Rev. N. B. Grubb, now in his eighty-fifth year, living in retirement in Philadelphia, and another of the same age is Charles Moyer of Philadelphia, whom the Pennsylvania Sunday School Association, some years ago, gave special recognition because of the completion of his fiftieth year as a Sunday School teacher. —G.

MISSIONARY APPEAL FOR FUNDS

A few weeks ago statements were sent out by the treasurer of the Congo Inland Mission Board, telling of the extreme emergency in respect to the support of the African work, due to tragically small receipts, especially from the churches of our conference. As a result of this condition, the executive committee with a few of the other members of our Central Conference Board of Home and Foreign Missions, met at Bloomington, Illinois, on April 10 to consider what might be done. At this time the treasurer was able to report that recent receipts were such as to relieve in a measure the most extreme extent of the emergency, but that an alarming deficit was nevertheless accumulating. During the closing months of 1934 receipts were gratifying but since that time they have fallen disastrously low.

In order to provide the missionaries' allowances and the barest necessities of the work on the field, it is necessary for Bro. Hoover, our treasurer, to remit to the C. I. M. treasurer the sum of $850 monthly. This sum is much less than it was a few years ago, and represents the smallest amount on which the work can be maintained. This means that from January 1 to March 31 of this year foreign mission receipts should have amounted to $2550, whereas such receipts totaled less than half that amount. The budget for Home Missions, which has also been reduced to a minimum, calls for receipts of $175 per month. This means a total missionary budget of $1025 per month. At this rate receipts for both Home and Foreign work for the first nine months of this conference year should have amounted to $9225, but as a matter of fact only $5108.65 was received.

The difference between the amount needed and the actual receipts represents just that much shortage in the missionaries' allowances for their living expenses. Naturally there are some expenses which must be met. In the Home Missions such items as coal, light, and water, paving assessments, etc., must be paid when due. In the Foreign work the boys and girls must be kept in the mission schools. We dare not turn them back to paganism. The doctor and the nurses must have medicines and bandages to care for the throng who seek their help. Payment for such expenses cannot be delayed. Accordingly, as stated above, if receipts are inadequate, the missionaries are short just that much on their allowances. Since they are giving their lives for the work, certainly we can not ask them to go in need in order to do it; at least not until our people here at home sacrifice to the same degree.

We are, therefore, asking you as a missionary leader in your church to present this need to your church, and plan some program of action to bring your missionary contributions to the highest possible amount by the close of this conference year, June 30. Often a last minute effort is made. We appeal to you to begin now. Sincerely yours,

Executive Committee General Conference
Board of Home and Foreign Missions.
R. L. Hartzler, Secretary.

TEMPERANCE

By Ethel A. Streid

Let us consider for a few moments the status of temperance today as viewed by some who are in a position to know whereof they speak. Henry Ford says: "Our present industrial system simply cannot work with liquor. We must choose between drink and poverty on one hand and prohibition and prosperity on the other. There is no middle ground. Since the beginning we have enforced the rule of total abstinence both in and out of our shops and offices. Brains and booze will not mix."

J. C. Penny says: "There are today no jobs open to a man who drinks, for a drinking man at a machine is as dangerous to himself and to his fellows as is a drunken driver in a locomotive cab or at the wheel of an automobile."

Now let us think of the meaning of the word Temperance. It seems to me that the meaning can be summed up in one word, "Moderation." Moderation in indulgence of appetites and passions or self-control.

The merit of having taken the first steps toward the matter of temperance belongs to America. As far back as 1808 we find that there was a society formed in New York consisting of 43 members which tried to restrain and prevent the intemperate use of intoxicating liquors. It is interesting to note that the first definite action against liquor came not from Prohibitionists, but from brotherhoods representing the great army of railway workers.

One of the commonest and most destructive sins of our time is that of "Intemperance." It is doing more to break hearts and ruin homes than almost any other sin.

The question of Abstinence from intoxicating liquors may be argued upon three distinct grounds: Scriptural, Physiological, and Social. Let us first see what the Bible says about Temperance. The only strong drink mentioned in the Bible is that of wine.

In Proverbs 23:29-35, we see what the woes of drunkenness are. Proverbs 21:17 says, "He that loveth pleasure shall be a poor man and he that loveth wine and oil shall not be rich."

Hosea 4, "Wine and new wine take away the heart."

Ephesians 5:18, "And be not drunk with wine wherein is excess, but be filled with the spirit."

I Thess. 5:7, 8, "For they that sleep, sleep in the night, and they that be drunken are drunken in the night. But let us who are of the day be sober, putting on the breast-plate of faith and love, and for an helmet, the hope of salvation."

Proverbs 23:20, 21, "Be not among winebibbers, among riotous eaters of the flesh. For the drunkard and glutton shall come to poverty, and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags."

Proverbs 23:1, "When thou sittest to eat with a ruler, consider diligently what is before thee."

I Cor. 9:25, "And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things."

I think one of the most outstanding lessons on temperance in the Bible is found in the first chapter of Daniel, when Daniel and his companions were placed in the court of Babylon and King Nebuchadnezzar appointed them daily a portion of the king's meat and his wine. But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the king's meat and wine and asked that he be given pulse to eat and water to drink. After ten days Daniel and his companions appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat of the king's meat or drink of his wine. God gave these four lads knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom, and after the king had communed with these four, he found none like them. In Daniel 1:20 we read, "And in all matters of wisdom and understanding that the king enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers of his realm."

Now from the physiological standpoint we should be temperate. Alcohol makes the nerves of the body tell untruths. Doctors say alcohol is a deceiver. It makes you think you are warm when you are cold, strong when you are weak, and rich when you are poor. Its immediate effect is to lower the blood pressure, but its final effect, if used continually, leads to hardening of the arteries, especially in the brain, liver, and kidneys. So we see its real effects are just opposite its apparent effects. Alcohol impairs the digestion. Alcohol can never have been intended by nature for food of man. It is never produced spontaneously in nature. The vegetable world yields in abundance the principles which form the flesh and those which keep heat in the body. They produce their own carbohydrates through the process of photosynthesis, but the healthy plant never produces alcohol and in the healthy body food is never converted into alcohol, in fact the body treats alcohol as a foreign element and tries to get rid of it as fast as possible. Some people say that alcohol is a good stimulant, but stimulation produced by alcohol is succeeded by a reaction and to produce a certain effect the quantity must be increased. Therefore often times moderate drinking passes into excessive drinking.

From the social standpoint we know the use of alcoholic drink is the root of much misfortune, a cause of crime, a frequent occasion of immorality. It lowers the health and shortens the life; makes homes wretched and exposes families to evils and temptations of destitution. We must try to fortify the people against these temptations by education, by giving them just, moral and religious views and hold before them the spectacle of temperance and its results which are, health, purity, better homes, patriotism, character, and even more money.

I wonder if we realize what the prohibition law has done for us? Of course, the wets say prohibition has been a failure. They should be more specific. Do they mean the law of murder, forgery, or embezzlement? All these are prohibition laws and all are failures even to a greater extent than the liquor prohibition which has only been in existence for a few years. There is no sound reasoning in repealing laws because they are not enforced. Who would repeal the law of murder or theft? To say a law should be repealed or modified because it is violated would wipe out every moral and civic law established for human conduct. No laws have ever been broken more frequently than those found in the twentieth chapter of Exodus, but who would suggest that the ten commandments be repealed or even liberalized? I have no hesitation in saying with emphasis that the Volstead Act and state laws for prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors have been very beneficial to the industry of the country and the workmen connected with it and their families.

We know that since the saloons have been closed, the health of the people has been improved. The families of workmen are better clothed and better treated. There is a better attendance of workmen and families at church. I should say that prohibition is no longer an experiment. It is past the experimental stage and we have learned that wherein it is enforced the social, hygienic and economic gains are almost beyond computation.

We are in the habit of limiting intemperance to intemperate drinking of intoxicants. That sort of intemperance is bad enough, but there may be just as harmful results from many other intemperate desires. There may be intemperance in speech. Scandalizing people and gossiping are intemperate uses of speech. Profanity must be guarded against. We can even indulge in the use of this modern American slang to an intemperate degree. The Bible says, "Keep thy tongue from evil." Americans are noted for their intemperance in eating, for their extravagance, wastefulness, banqueting, and gorging. It seems in every block in the cities there are at least one or two eating houses or soft drink stands or some sort of place to tempt us and intemperate indulgance in this habit is very harmful to our bodies.

We can also be intemperate in our judgments. How easy it is for us to judge people, even at first sight, how we criticize and find fault with others! But in Matt. 7:1 we read, "Judge not that ye be not judged."

Then, too, we must be temperate in our amusements. This is a time of fast living and pleasure seeking We feel that we must be doing something and must be entertained. We have so many fad amusements, such as endurance tests, marathon dancing, tree sitting, miniature golf, movies, and all sorts of others, too numerous to mention. What amusements shall we engage in?

If there is any doubt in your mind whether to indulge in these amusements, then we had better give it the benefit of the doubt and stay at home. Another question to ask ourselves is, Does it draw me closer to or farther from God? Has it any real recreational value to me? I believe if we ask ourselves these questions, we will not be intemperate in any way and our health will be safeguarded, for intemperance in some amusements, we must agree, is very degrading, both physically and spiritually. The apostles, when desiring a restful recreation, gathered themselves unto Jesus. I think that is a wonderful thought for us.

We must be temperate in choosing our associates, for there is either good or bad influence. The Bible says, "Evil communications corrupt good manners."

I say so much about keeping our bodies undefiled and clean. Why? Why should we be so particular about our bodies? Because they are God's temples. I Cor. 3:16,17, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are."

Paul says in Romans 14:21, "It is not good to eat meat nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth or is offended or made weak."

We as Christians should strive to be temperate in all things and continue to hold fast to that which is good.

The concluding poem illustrates the inclination of youth to follow the examples of their elders, so it necessitates precaution in our daily work of life to portray the things worthwhile.

I'LL TAKE WHAT FATHER TAKES

'Twas in the flow'ry month of June,
The sun was in the west,
When a merry, blythesome company
Met at a public feast.

Around the room rich banners spread,
And garlands fresh and gay;
Friend greeted friend right joyously
Upon that festal day.

The board was filled with choicest fare;
The guests sat down to dine;
Some called for "bitters," some for "stout,"
And some for rosy wine.

Among this joyful company,
A modest youth appeared;
Scarce sixteen summers had he seen,
No specious snare he feared.

An empty glass before the youth
Soon drew the waiter near.
"What will you take, sir"? he inquired,
"Stout, bitter, mild, or clear?

'We've rich supplies of foreign port,
We've first-class wine and cakes."
The youth with guileless look replied,
"I'll take what father takes."

Swift as an arrow went the words
Into his father's ears,
And soon a conflict deep and strong
Awoke terrific fears.

The father looked upon his son,
Then gazed upon the wine,
Oh God! he thought, were he to taste,
Who could the end divine?

Have I not seen the strongest fall,
The fairest led astray?
And shall I on my only son
Bestow a curse this day?

No; heaven forbid! "Here, waiter, bring
Bright water unto me,
My son will take what father takes:
My drink shall water be."

W. Hoyle, Normal, Ill.

CHRISTIAN ENTHUSIASM

This is the great need of the professional religion of our day. There is too much formality and too little earnestness, too much lackadaisical piety and too little stalwart Christianity, too much sitting at ease in Zion and too little zeal for the progress of Christ's cause and Kingdom. There is too much talk and too little work, too much sentimentalism and too little Christism.

"One is your Master," ought to ring in the ears of every professed follower of Jesus. Loyalty to Him should abound. Courage should be added to faith—a courage that would lead its possessor to daring deeds, that would prove itself fearless, outspoken, determined, that would make wrongdoers tremble in its presence, that would not close its eyes to any form of iniquity nor keep silent about anything that hinders the progress of God's Word.

Men who are possessed by the Master will have the courage to live as in His presence, to dare anything for Him, to endure as seeing Him who is invisible, and if need be to die, rather than yield one inch of Christ's territory to the enemy. Oh, for a revival of enthusiasm for Christ! Then one will chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight!—T. C.

A PRAYER

Laid on Thine altar, O my Lord divine,
Accept this gift today, for Jesus' sake;
I have no jewels to adorn Thy shrine,
No far-famed sacrifice to make;
But here within my trembling hand I bring
This will of mine, a thing that seemeth small,
But Thou, O Lord, canst understand
How, when I yield Thee this, I yield my all.
Hidden therein Thy searching eye can see
Struggles of passion, visions of delight,
All that I have, or am, or fain would be,
Deep loves, fond hopes, and longings infinite,
It hath been wet with tears, and dimmed with sighs
Clenched in my grasp, till beauty hath it none!
Now from Thy footstool where it vanquished lies
The prayer ascendeth, may Thy will be done!

Take it, O Father, ere my courage fail,
And merge it so in Thine own will that e'en
If in some desperate hour my cries prevail
And Thou give back my gift, it may have been
So changed, so purified, so fair have grown,
So one with Thee, so filled with peace divine
I may not know or feel it as mine own
But gaining back my will, may find it Thine.

(A prayer found on the flyleaf of an African Missionary's Bible.)

—Missionary Messenger.

CORRESPONDENCE

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. Clifford Loutz submitted to a major operation at the Clinic Foundation at Cleveland, Ohio, recently.

Miss Lucile Moser, who had been a patient sufferer for a number of years, passed away March 16th. Funeral services were held at the church Monday afternoon, March 18, conducted by Rev. Salzman and Rev. Allen Yoder.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, April 4, at the church.

Sunday evening, April 7, the young people presented a play, "The Unlighted Cross."

The Bluffton College Vesper Choir gave a sacred concert at this church Wednesday evening, April 10.

Mrs. Curt Nelson entertained the Dorcas class Thursday, April 11th.

Wm. Turner of Delphos, Ohio, has accepted a position in the Seagley Food Market and has moved his family to Topeka. We welcome them to the services again.

Semi-annual communion service was held Sunday morning, April 14, with a goodly number present at the service.

Topeka High School baccalaureate service was held at the church Sunday evening, April 14th. Rev. A. A. Kay delivered the baccalaureate sermon to a large audience. Rev. Kay is pastor of the Baptist church of Topeka.

Rev. Earl Salzman delivered the baccalaureate sermon for the graduating class of Shipshewanna High School, which was held at the Methodist church in Shipshewanna Sunday evening, April 14.

The Misses Verda Plank and Sarah Bohn of Wooster, Ohio, spent the spring vacation with the home folks.

Paul Kohl and Alden Plank, students of Bluffton, Ohio, spent Easter vacation with the home folks.

An Easter cantata will be given by the church choir on Easter night, under the direction of Mrs. Cletus Hooley.

Comins Church, Comins, Michigan. Mrs. L. F. Schrock who has been recovering from a serious operation, is gaining in strength and is able to be with us at church for several services again, for which we are glad.

A mumps epidemic has interfered somewhat with our services during the winter.

Our chairman of the Ladies' Aid, Mrs. W. R. Rhoads, has been confined to her bed with the flu for the past few weeks.

Several of our Comins families have moved to Fairview because of their business.

Services in cooperation with the Fairview church were held last week, April 14-19, in both churches. Rev. David Bronstein, a converted Jew from Chicago, was the speaker. The subject, "The Jewish Passover and its relation to the Christian communion," was of special interest.

The holy communion was celebrated at the Easter morning service. Four new members, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Troyer, Marvin and Melvin Kurtz, were received into the church on confession of their faith.

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Illinois. Mrs. Jacob Brenneman has returned to her home from the Mennonite Hospital at Bloomington, where she has been a medical patient for the past seven weeks.

The Ladies Aid met at the home of Misses Louise and Hilda Iutzi, Thursday, April 4. Sewing was done for the hospital at Bloomington.

Mrs. George Jeckel visited with her sister, Miss Minnie Brenneman, in Normal the last week of March.

Miss Veda Eash, student nurse at the Mennonite Hospital, spent the week-end of March 3 with her aunt, Mrs. Barbara Naffziger.

Mrs. Chris Hipfer is recovering from a major operation at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Claude Kumpf, of Pekin.

Mrs. Homer McGowan of Danvers gave the address of the evening at the Christian Endeavor meeting, March 24. She awarded certificates to the members who have completed the course in Expert Endeavor Work.

Gertrude Brenneman.

Bluffton, Ohio, April 7, 1935. The Bluffton College Gospel Team. — No doubt Mennonites in general are interested in events taking place in the schools of their denomination, while alumni and parents of present as well as future students are particularly interested. With this in mind, we shall endeavor to supply to the readers of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel a brief resume of the work being done by one small department of Bluffton College.

The Bluffton College Gospel Team is the outgrowth of a small group which united for weekly prayer meetings last fall. Although some notion of a Gospel Team existed from the beginning, it was not the primary motive. We simply met for prayer and a discussion of imminent religious and social problems of the campus. After many weeks of mutual benefit to members of the team, however, the existence of our group became known among the churches and we were frequently called upon to conduct services. Thus began an organization which we feel has been a great blessing to us as well as to those whom we are privileged to serve.

Since New Year we have conducted a total of fourteen services in thirteen different churches. Nine of these were Mennonite churches, three Congregational-Christian, and one Presbyterian. Three of the churches were in northern Indiana, while the remainder were within a twenty-mile radius of Bluffton. Our itinerary for the remainder of the school year includes quite a number of churches at a greater distance within the state and a possible tour of Pennsylvania in June. All expenses are defrayed by free-will offerings and whatever balance accrues will be devoted to the purchase of good books of a religious nature for the college library.

Our programs normally consist of a Gospel message by one of our six members who are taking up life Christian service and several numbers by the Gospel Team Quartet. On some occasions the speaking is divided into two short talks. A number of times we have found it necessary to enlist outside musical talent of the college when there were conflicting dates. Our desire and our policy is to have as members of our group only those who have had definite religious experience, live consistent Christian lives, and take a special interest in things spiritual. Aside from our outside activity — and, we feel, of equal importance — we have a tentative plan for a revival of the spiritual consciousness of our own student body. We hope, eventually, to organize a number of auxiliary groups to further the cause.

The group at present consists of: Paul Cox, Lima, Ohio; Hiram Diller and Robert Oyer, Bluffton, Ohio; Russel Mast, Apple Creek, Ohio; Hiram Hilty, Versailles, Missouri; Homer Becker, Middletown, Ohio; Jonathan Miller, Goshen, Indiana; and George Stoneback, Quakertown, Pennsylvania.

We wish to express our appreciation to the churches for their cooperation during the brief period of our existence, and earnestly desire your prayers and continued support for the future. —A Member.

Odessa, Washington, April 17, 1935. Dear Readers: The S. S. and C. E. officers of the Menno Mennonite church had their quarterly Workers' Conference on April 7th. The topics discussed dealt with Prayer Life of the Worker and Christian Social Activities for the Organization.

Palm Sunday evening, the Junior C. E. Society of the English Congregational church in Odessa gave a program consisting of Easter drills, songs, and recitations. Mrs. M. J. Galle had charge of the program. The lighting effect during the drills was very impressive and beautiful.

The choir at Menno is also going to render a program, consisting of duets, quartets, solos, and choir numbers on Easter Sunday.

Grandmother Cornelius Jantz died of heart failure on March 25th. She had enjoyed health until the unexpected time of her death.

Rev. Galle is conducting a catechism class of eleven young people at Menno. Baptismal services will be on May 17.

We were blessed with a light rain last week. The prospects for a crop this spring were quite good until several weeks ago. Since then we have had some dust storms which ruined many wheat fields. Much wheat is blown out, but the rain has restored some of it.

Our Washington C. E. and S. S. Convention will be held at Monroe, Washington, in June. Everyone is looking forward to that occasion, and we hope many people from our church will be able to attend. The "Peace" question will again have a prominent place on the program.

Spring is here and the wonders of nature are seen everywhere. How close one feels to God when out among the beauties of nature! We that are well and live where we can enjoy the blessings of spring certainly have much to be thankful for. Respectfully yours,

Esther Jantz, Corr.

Ebenezer Church, Gotebo, Oklahoma. The Christian Endeavor Society of the Ebenezer Church, Gotebo, Okla., desires to give a report of her activities.

The program of the evening, March 17, marks the fourth of this year's programs. We have meetings every three weeks, so our meetings are on time. We have had good attendance and a marked interest during the first quarter. The first program of the year was a self-searching study, under the leading topic, "Our C. E. and its place in the church," with sub-topics such as, "What we have done in the past," and "What can be expected in the future"? The last program was of special interest to every one present. The main topic of the evening dealt with the subject of mission work and mission interest. Miss Helen Schmidt gave a short talk on the folly of measuring by false standards, or rather by short standards, which cannot save. The theme: "Bring light into darkness and create a new humanity" (Acts 26:16-1; Eph. 4:30-32), was interestingly developed by Irwin Krause.

Mrs. J. F. Kliewer read a paper full of challenge, The purpose of missions is to bring glad tidings. We should be ready when the opportunity meets us, to help a weary soul. A heart gripping reading, "We can have only one mother," was read by Mary Zacharias.

Other numbers included Scripture reading contest by three S. S. classes, a duet by two small girls, "Into all the world," by four Junior girls, "Thy brother calls to thee," by the choir.

David Daubert, Jr.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

THE MASTER PASSETH BY

"Behold, the Master passeth by,
O seest thou not His pleading eye?
With low, sad voice He calleth thee:
Leave this vain world and follow Me.

"One heard him calling long ago,
And straightway left all things below,
Counting his earthly gain as loss
For Jesus and His blessed cross.

"God gently calls us every day:
Why should we then our bliss delay?
Thou, Lord, e'en now art calling me;
I will leave all, and follow Thee."
—Wm. W. How.

THE FALLACY OF WAR ARGUMENTS

By E. W. Franz, Santa Monica, Cal.

At the impressionable age of sixteen, as a member of a small graduating class in high school, I attended the baccalaureate services. Our country had just entered the World War—it was May, 1917—and the sermon text was, "Greater love hath no man than he who lays down his life for his friend." This gem from the lips of the Nazareth carpenter was used by the speaker to tell us how glorious it was to go to war and give one's life for one's country.

That war is now over. Because of my youth I was not dragged into it, but I have often reflected upon the misappropriation of the Master's words to justify one's going to war to kill one's fellow man. Perhaps there are — I am quite confident there are—even now well meaning people who feel like this baccalaureate speaker. To them, individually and collectively, I wish to say this:

Is it your argument that it is patriotic and glorious to die for one's country? To that my answer is this: If my dying is of value to my country, if I am worth more to my country dead than alive, then why do you not proceed to give me a death without suffering, here at home where my loved ones could have the satisfaction of knowing that my remains have received a decent burial? This would be much more humane both to me and to my loved ones.

Of course, you may use a different line of argument now that I have blasted the silly sentimentalism from the trite phrase "dying for one's country." You may say that as a citizen it is my duty to defend my country against a hostile enemy. But let me ask you just whom I am to "defend" my country against. If and when I am out on the battlefield, or to speak more exactly, when I am in the trenches, in a war tank, or in a fighting plane during this "war to defend my country," just what is it that I am expected to do? I am expected to kill, it becomes my "duty" to kill, with whatever weapon at my command, men who happen to be on the opposing side. Who are these men that I find it my "duty" to kill? Are they criminals who by "due process of law" under ordianry circumstnces would be condemned to die? No, a thousand times no! They are men who are as blameless of crime as you and I. Shall I be eager to kill an innocent man? Shall I take the life that God has given these men who have just as much right to live as you and I? God forbid!

Perhaps you say that the welfare of the nation transcends the consideration of individuals. To that I answer that any national policy that demands the sacrifice of thousands and thousands, yea millions, of lives through the centuries cannot be right. This is especially true in the light of these two well established facts: First, wars are brought about by the selfish desires of the few who have the real control over the nation; and second, wars never really settle any problem, but on the contrary conjure up greater problems than existed before the war was fought.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

May 19, 1935

The Invincible Good Will Of Jesus

John 13:1; Luke 9:51-56

It is easy to show good will and smile on a day in May when the sun is shining and all seems right with us and the world. But it is not at all easy to show a patient spirit of kindness and good will when men persecute, buffet you, spit upon you, bring evil and false charges against you, and finally, although innocent, they nail you to a cross and crucify you. That is not easy. None less than the Son of God can do as Jesus did.

Small men can fight back when things do not go just the way they would have them go, but it requires a personality who has advanced a long way toward perfection who can silently and patiently endure a wrong with the inward satisfaction of knowing that God and righteousness will eventually speak the last word.

It is in this mood that the first part of our Scripture portion is often considered a rare gem in literature and religion: "Having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end." In the second portion we see Jesus "going steadfastly unto Jerusalem," going with determination and purpose. I like that phrase. It was while going up, passing through Samaria that several of Jesus' disciples went ahead to one of the villages to prepare for the entertainment of the night, but the Samaritans rejected Jesus and His friends. The disciples showed themselves human in that they demanded that fire be called from heaven and the whole village be destroyed, but Jesus rebuked them and simply passed on.

Questions

1. Relate the incident in Luke 9:51-56 and the lesson involved.
2. Compare the reception given to Jesus in John 4 with the Samaritan village in our lesson?
3. Give some incidents where Jesus showed an indomitable good will.
4. When is it difficult to have a spirit of good will?
5. In what ways do individuals reject Christ today?
6. In what ways do nations reject Christ today?
7. Explain how Christ knocking at our doors, if and when received, can be the greatest power for good in the world today.

May 26, 1935

What Shall We Do About Social Injustices?

Matthew 25:42-43

This has been an outstanding problem ever since God planned to make a better world. The prophets thundered away at social injustices in their day. Today it is often questioned as to whether the church has any business in concerning herself in righting existing injustices. And yet, if the church does not concern herself in regard to the coming of the Kingdom, who else will?

In our Scripture portion the individual who serves in the name of Christ, he will be entitled to kingdom honors. When we study as to the methods there will be a wide range of difference in opinion. Everybody is aware of the fact that there are many problems, but there is no unity as to the cure. In regard to the unemployment problem we have replaced man power with the machine, now we think that by lessening hours we will solve the problem. Work is no disgrace. We may have to learn yet that it is wiser to junk machines than to junk men. Jesus always taught the inestimable worth of the individual. The world does not owe every man a living as so many seem to think today, but the world does owe every man a chance to make a living which is decent.

We are making a good deal about security programs. All kinds of demagogs are appearing on the radio and platform, bringing programs which promise economic security to every man, woman and child. But whenever the plan calls for a dole or a gift or even for a relief bill of billions, it will not guarantee economic security. Many believe that the only way America can come to security is by much hard work, really producing, and in trusting God, the Giver of every good gift.

Yes, the church and the Y. P. Society should be interested in social legislation. Every Christian should cast his vote at the polls. Our representatives should know how we stand, we need to inform them of our wishes. But real reform must begin in the heart of the individual. When Simons are transformed into Peters, a tax gathering Zachaeus into a reformed follower of Jesus, when presidents, governors, and all citizens take all matters of community and state to God and measure their standards by His, only then will we recover from this depression. Our difficulty is not so much one of economics as a problem having to do with the breaking down of character. The home, the school, and the church will have a large place to play in this program.

Questions

1. Who were some of the prophets of social righteousness in the Old Testament, and what reforms did they seek?
2. What are some cardinal principles of social righteousness as set forth in the teachings of Jesus?
3. What are some of the outstanding social injustices today?
4. What part should the Christian and the church play in social reform?
5. What methods should be used in righting social evils?
6. What can a Young People's Society do to bring about reform?
7. What can the home do to help bring about reform?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Illinois

May 19, 1935

Extending the Ideal Family Spirit

Romans 5:1-6

The person who seldom thinks of anyone but himself has a small brain and education cannot make it any larger.

Pre-prayer

Give us love, that we may be able to include all people as our brothers.

If God is our father and all men are brothers, then it is easy to see how the spirit of the home extends itself to the utmost limits of the world in which we live. Just as we would not be happy to see a brother hungry and poorly provided for while we had sufficient, so we do what we can to see that all of our brothers are treated as we wish to be treated. As we would be unhappy to see our sister married at the age of ten or eleven years, or caught in the industrial system so that her life was ruined, so do we extend our sympathy to the millions of girls who are thus exploited.

Christians have a particular responsibility in treating others as brothers. Jesus said, "Whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother" (Mark 3:35). Selfishness has no place in our program, being a characteristic of those in a state of sin; while the person who is a follower of Christ, or in a state of holiness, lives in a state of love. He should show his gratitude to God for all his blessings by his relationship to his fellowmen. Some of these, as Paul states, are meekness and humility in the experience of spiritual gifts; love and kindness in the general duties of personal conduct; subjection to human authority, and a consideration of the weak disciple.

Genuine family spirit shows itself in helping to overcome the weakness of any member of the family. All are concerned when one is ill, all are honored when one makes advancement, and all are debased when one goes astray. Extend this type of investigation and see where it takes you in your attitude to others.

Questions

1. What is meant by "spirit"?
2. What does "ideal family spirit" mean?
3. Is it easy to extend this "family spirit" to all people?
4. Is it extended today?
5. How can peace help to extend it?
6. How does worshipping together help to extend family spirit?
7. What characteristics will aid us in extending it?
8. What commandment, if obeyed, would fulfill this ideal family spirit?

As To You

Did you give him a lift? He's a brother of man, and bearing about all the burden he can.

Did you give him a smile? He was downcast and blue, and a smile would have helped him to battle it through.

Did you give him your hand? He was slipping down hill, and the world, so I fancied, was using him ill.

Did you give him a word, did you show him the road, or did you just let him go on with his load?

Did you help him along? He's a sinner like you, but the grasp of your hand might have carried him through.

Did you bid him good cheer? Just a word and a smile were what he most needed that last weary mile. Do you know what he bore, in that burden of cares that is every man's load and that sympathy shares?

Did you try to find out what he needed from you, or did you just leave him to battle it through? Do you know what it means to be losing the fight, when a lift just in time might set everything right?

Do you know what it means—just the clasp of a hand, when a man's borne about all a man ought to stand?

Did you ask what it was—why the quivering lip and the glistening tears down the pale cheeks that slip? Were you a brother of his when time came to be? Did you offer to help him, or didn't you see?

Did you stop when he asked you to give him a lift, or were you so busy you left him to shift? Oh, I know what you say may be true, but the test of your manhood is, what did you do? Did you reach out your hand? Did you find him the road, or did you just let him go by with his load? —F. B. Cawell.

May 26, 1935

Is Christianity Unique?

Acts 4:8-12

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Pre-Prayer

Let us be ever watchful for opportunities to show in quiet, telling ways our loyalty to our Lord Jesus.

From the beginning of the world man has reached out to worship something greater than himself. Sometimes he found it in the date palm in his desert oasis. Often fear forms the idea of God, and men sought to appease the demons of fire and torrent and jungle. Air, water, earth, and sky were filled with hostile spirits who made sport of man and demanded bribes for non-interference. A Hinduism with its three hundred and thirty millions of gods presents Kali, goddess of murder, and Siva, the destroyer, as two of the most popular. Buddhism is without a God, a system of despair, so it is not strange that the common people fly for refuge to demon worship and other forms of Shamanism. Tree and serpent worship, Cufucianism or the Mammonism of America—each leaves its followers unsatisfied and powerless to help themselves and others.

Philosophies have been built up, and toppled over, carrying down nations with them. Their golden age is long passed and their adherents must look back centuries to find the ideal age. Their cults have not been able to save them from moral degeneration. How could they, when the greatest of their gods was only a bigger man, swayed by bigger passions, guided only by the law of self-preservation?

In non-Christian religions we find many high and noble things. In primitive religions we find the realization that God is present in life as we live it from day to day. In Mohammedanism we find the majesty and power of God; in much of Hinduism we find the possibility of the presence of God in the life in a real and knowable experience; in Buddhism is the stress on the right and true things of life as a way to salvation; but only in Christianity do we find the cross.

There came One into this word of self, who taught of a Father of Mercy and showed us all that highest law of self-sacrifice. Christianity looks confidently forward to its golden age, when by the devotion of the Christians the world shall know the deep compelling joy of a Savior. The cross represents one man, Himself a part of God, shedding His blood and coming to His death as the representative for all other members of the human race. His one act of suffering and death takes the place of a similar act on the part of each other person because of sin. This is what we call salvation.

In other words, we find in Christ all of the good things we find in the other religions plus salvation here and now. We find the answer to the problem of sin, and satisfaction concerning the future life.

Questions

1. What features belong to the religion of Christ that are absent from others?
2. What does the cross represent?
3. What is salvation?
4. Why the need of salvation? Can an individual save himself? Why not?
5. What was and is God's plan?
6. What does salvation accomplish?

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

What Christ Means To A Home

Home! How we like that word! One of Webster's definitions for the word is, "the abiding place of affections." Really, isn't that why we love our homes so much? It is the place where we love most and are most loved. A place where the outside world may be shut out and we meet with those who understand and love us best. Children are often heard saying, "Mother, it does not seem like home when you are not here." Then a beautiful house does not make it home. It is the atmosphere which is created there.

During my years in Africa I often wondered just what home meant to the children there. The atmosphere which surrounds a heathen home is anything but inducive to create affection. All this is crushed by the superiority complex which is imbedded so strongly for generations in the customs of the people. The children often see their mother treated cruelly by their father and she in turn holds little or no respect for him. Frequently they see her quarreling or fighting with other women. They receive no training in the finer instincts of life, but the impressions which are made cause them to be coarse, war-like and superstitious. As they gather around the bonfires in the evening and listen to the weird, ghostly stories, their imaginations become very vivid along that line. Much suffering and sorrow grows out of the superstitious ideas which are implanted within each person from childhood.

One of the greatest tragedies of the heathen home is when the little girls are sold to men, many of them old enough to be their grandfathers, but they go as brides. Usually they face a life of hardship, misunderstanding and heartache. Another house is built, but shall we call it home? A life partnership has begun without the essential foundation, love.

Within each heart God has implanted an instinct for worship, hence those children bow down to various idols and expectantly await a blessing. Oh, the sadness of miguided worship!

We thank God that now within many lives the natural instinct for worship has been guided aright. Christian homes are being established. The children are taught about the true God and together the family worships Him. They go to school and are striving to become useful men and women in their own communities. In place of fear and anxiety there has come joy, peace and happiness. It is possible that those of us who have been reared in Christian homes will never realize what Christ, the unseen guest, means to us. We should never cease thanking Him for this one great blessing and pray much for those who are less fortunate. Mrs. Emil Sommer, Washington, Ill.

May 19, 1935

Topic.—How To Worship In Our Society

Matt. 18:19, 20

We sometimes think of worship as prayer. Prayer is a part of worship, but not the whole of it. Worship includes any act by which we give reverence or praise to God. True worshi must come from the heart. If we would rightl worship God in our society, we must remembe that the minute we enter the room we are i His presence, even though we do not see Hi as we see each other.

Our first act of worship in the meeting the should be entering the room quietly and reverently. As we realize that we are meetin with God, we shall be able to say, "I was gla when they said unto me, Let us go into th house of the Lord." We may sometimes begi the meeting by saying, "The Lord is in His hol temple: let all the earth keep silence befor Him" (Hab. 2:20). We worship God throug songs of praise and in prayer. Let our prayer not be only asking for what we want, but le us take time to praise God for what He is. W can worship Him, too, in testimony, telling o His greatness.

Plans for the Meeting

Let the whole of the meeting be one of worship rather than instruction. There should b a real consciousness of God's presence throug out the service in the use of worship songs prayers, and Bible verses.

Questions

1. What is the meaning of worship?
2. Why should we worship God?
3. How may we worship Him in song?
4. Why should we enter our meeting roo quietly?
5. Give reasons for praise found in Psa. 126:

May 26, 1935

Topic—Hymn Study: "Fairest Lord Jesus"

Psalm 8:3-9

Fairest Lord Jesus! Ruler of all nature!
O Thou of God and man the Son!
Thee will I cherish, Thee will I honor,
Thou, my soul's glory, joy, and crown!

Our Lord Jesus Christ is not only lovely and beautiful, but He is more lovely than any other. "He is altogether lovely" (Song of Solomon 5: 16). He is "fairer than the children of men" (Ps. 45:2). Before being the Ruler of all nature, He was the Creator. You know He lived in heaven before He came as a baby, and John 1:3 says, "All things were made by Him; and without Him was not anything made that was made." While on earth, He surprised folks by ruling nature. He only needed to speak and a storm stopped. His closest friends wondered what kind of man He was that even the winds and the sea obeyed Him. He healed sick folks and even raised the dead, and we know His power has not changed. Surely we should love and honor Him.

Fair are the meadows, fairer still the woodlands
Robed in the blooming garb of spring;
Jesus is fairer, Jesus is purer,
Who makes the woeful heart to sing!

Who is there that does not love spring time? Leaves have come out on the trees, grass is green, flowers are blooming, and birds are singing. The world is never quite so beautiful as in the spring. Yet Jesus is far better than that. Birds and all out-of-doors seem to sing and they do make us glad, yet there is sorrow that they do not seem to reach. Jesus can make even a sad heart to sing. He gives joy in place of sorrow. Many people who were sad and troubled because if sin are now happy and singing because Jesus has changed their lives and given them a new, great joy.

Fair is the sunshine, fairer still the moonlight,
And all the twinkling starry host;
Jesus shines brighter, Jesus shines purer,
Than all the angels heaven can boast!

We get so used to seeing the sun, moon, and stars that we seldom take time to think how wonderful they are. We do not often think of them, yet we can not imagine being without them. How glad we are for the sunshine after a few cloudy days! God made the sun, moon, and stars and through all the years has kept them in their places. David often spoke of them in the Psalms. You might get your Bible and find these verses: Psa. 19:1-6; 8:3, 4; 74:16; 136:7-9. And Jesus is greater than these and greater than angels.

Plans for the Meeting

You will want to have this song sung in your meeting. If your Juniors are not familiar with it, or if it is not in their books, copy it on the blackboard where all may see, and have it sung as a special number. Since the history of the song is uncertain, it will not be wise to give much attention to that. Simply tell the Juniors that it is a very old song. Take time to discuss each verse.

Questions

1. What do you know of Jesus as ruler of nature?
2. Suggest ways of honoring Him.
3. How does Jesus make the woeful heart to sing?
4. Tell something of the wonder of sun, moon, and stars.
5. Think of some ways in which Jesus is brighter and purer than angels.

EXCUSES FOR FAILURE

Everybody is a very peculiar person; I never met anybody who did not excuse himself for being a failure as a Christian on the ground that he had very peculiar difficulties; but if you will remember that Jesus Christ died for you as if there were not another soul on earth, and that He was the omnipotent Son of God as well as the perfect Man, and that He is now in heaven on the right hand of God, with all power in heaven and on earth, then you will begin to see that the Gospel of Jesus Christ is true when it teaches that men can live a life of victory and power and unceasing joy.

Prebendary Webb-Peploe.

A real friend is one who will tell you of your faults and follies in prosperity, and assist you with his hand and heart in adversity.—H. S.

"The small still voice is wanted."

—Cowper.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

May 12, 1935

The Christian Church

Lesson Text
Acts 2:41-45; Ephesians 4:1-7, 11-16

Golden Text.—So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another.

We have discussed thus far some of the essentials of Christianity, such as God, the Father; Christ, the Savior; the Resurrection; and the Bible. We now turn our attention to an institution and organization that grows out of the above essentials. The church came into existence as a result of men and women accepting Christ as their Savior and God as their Father. Then they that gladly received the Word were baptized and added unto the church.

The question may arise: What is the church? The word "church" is a Greek word, "ecclesia," which means a called out body. It was used politically by the Greeks. In a city-state there were a group of men who were called out from the citizenry of the Greek State to make laws and supervise the affairs of the State. These were called the "ecclesia." So the church, according to the meaning of the Greek word, is a called out body. On the other hand, Stephen in his sermon refers to the children of Israel as a church. The Hebrew word "church" means to "belong to God." This Greek and Hebrew meaning of the word suggests to us its significance. The church is a body of men and women called out of the world through their confession of Jesus Christ and they belong to God. We are a royal priesthood, a holy nation, and a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

There are two extremes in relation to the church we have taken. On the one hand men used to say the Kingdom and the church were the same. There was no Christianity except in the church. Of late we have swung to the other extreme and are indifferent to the church. Some people believe the church is a hindrance to the progress of the Kingdom. We need to go back and study anew the early Christian church. As we study the beginnings of the Christian church, we find that the church is first of all a fellowship. We have looked upon the church too often as an organization with rules and infallible authority. Many people feel that if they are members of this organization they are Christians. The early Christian church had very little organization. Jesus stated the test of membership when He said, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye have love for one another." If this test fails in any church, all other things about the church matter little. What dark pages of history when we study the quarrels, schisms and disputes of the Christian church! Much of it about things which made no difference as far as God was concerned. Even in our Mennonite history, our seventeen branches and twigs. Why? Trace the history of our divisions and see if any were worth fighting over. When a church loses its spirit of love and fellowship, nothing, not even orthodoxy can be substituted for it.

In the second place, the church has a message. Jesus said to Pilate, "I am a King of the Kingdom of Truth." So the church has the good news of the Kingdom, the Gospel of God. This message the world sorely needs. The forces that rule society are not armies and navies, but ideas. Man does not live by bread alone, but by the Word. It is the work of the church to bring this message to the world.

In the third place the church stands for worship. The soul pants after God. With Augustine we say, "Our hearts are restless, until they find rest in Thee, O God." The church must provide the altar, the prayer closet, the opportunity to get away from the noises of the world, so we can have our hearts in tune with the Infinite.

Finally, the church is not an ark or a fort but an army, going out to fight the Goliaths of sin. Its purpose is to render unselfish service to a needy world. The ruling passion of the church is love. This love will bring forgiveness, a social sympathy, which makes us sensitive to others' needs and a spirit of evangelism which sends us out to find the lost sheep until it is found.

Questions

What is the origin of the church?

What part does the church have in a soul's salvation?

Is the church of today really functioning?

Is there a difference between the invisible true church of God and our churches?

What to your mind is the outstanding message of the church for today?

May 19, 1935

Some Great Christian Teachings
Baptism

Lesson Text—Matt. 28:19, 20; Acts 8:26-39

Golden Text.—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son; and of the Holy Ghost. Matt. 28:19.

The Christian church has two sacraments which are to be aids to Christian living, the Lord's Supper and baptism. The one, baptism, is to be observed as an initiatory rite and the other when a person is in the fellowship. The real origin of baptism is not known. When Jesus was baptized, it was already used both by the Hebrews and the mystery religions. The Hebrews had many washings with water symbolical of cleansing. When the priest at the age of thirty assumed his position, he entered it with washings of water. In several of the mystery religions the candidates were literally baptized in blood. A pit was dug and the applicant put in the pit. Then brush was thrown over the pit and an ox or bull killed, so the blood would run down on the candidate. This was his baptism. The animal was then taken and cut into pieces and a communion (supper) was held, in which the members partook of the flesh of the animal. This took place in heathen religions. So the rite of baptism was not new when John the Baptist appeared at the Jordan to baptize. It has always been used as a symbol of cleansing, an outward sign of an inward spirit.

Jesus asked to be baptized. Why? Perhaps for several reasons. First he was a Jew. He was ready to take on Himself the priestly office, so as the priests did at the age of thirty, He would observe the rite of washings with water. In the second place He through sympathy wanted to identify Himself with the hundreds of people coming to the Jordan to be baptized. Although He had no sin, He wished to be identified with His brethren. But perhaps the greatest reason for His baptism was that He wanted to show by this outward symbol of water that He was dedicating His life completely to God and the great cause He represented.

Jesus before His departure commanded baptism, "Go ye — — — baptize in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

The method of baptism is insignificant. The Bible does not teach nor illustrate any form. There is no saving power in water. Three drops on an applicant's head may be sufficient. On the other hand, some people could be immersed every year into the Pacific Ocean and still would be no whit better. It is an outward symbol. Let me hasten to say, however, that there is something dramatic about immersion in baptism which makes it appeal to me.

There are two things to my mind that baptism portrays. In the first place it is a sign of repentance and conversion. The world has a right to believe that when an individual has been baptized that he has turned his back to sin and by faith is facing towards the right. In the second place its larger meaning is that it means the consecration and dedication of the whole life to Jesus Christ and the church for service. We so often emphasize only the first. But an individual on bended knees also promises to actively support the cause of Jesus Christ and the church.

Questions

What is the meaning of Jesus' baptism?

Should we be baptized in the name of Jesus only, or Father, Son, and Holy Spirit?

What has the world a right to expect from a person baptized?

Any man who would have Jesus Christ put into his life the fire of His divine power must be willing to have Him do it at the price of a whole burnt offering of his life. For strength will always stand for each one of us in direct proportion to the degree of sacrifice required to purchase that strength.

—Robert E. Speer.

However hard the task, or rough the road, or dark the outlook, don't give up. To the man of courage, difficulties serve to stimulate and enlist the highest efforts of which he is capable. Your physical and mental powers grow best in the exercise of useful work.—G. K.

JOTTINGS

The Halstead, Kansas, Mennonite church celebrated its sixtieth anniversary this month. About 300 persons were present to enjoy the festivity.

The Western District Conference held its annual meeting in the Moundridge church, April 23 and 24. This is the largest local conference associated with the General Conference.

The First Mennonite church of Nappanee, Ind., held a series of meetings, April 10-18. G. T. Soldner, pastor of the Eighth Street Mennonite church, Goshen, Indiana, brought the message every evening.

Rev. P. R. Schroeder of Freeman, S. D., left for Texas to hold a series of meetings in the Perryton Mennonite church. During his absence the pulpit of the South church was supplied by Rev. S. P. Preheim and Rev. F. D. Koehn.

Rev. Albert Klassen, in charge of the work in Portland, Oregon, was in Freeman, S. D., some days ago. He was guest speaker to the students of Freeman College.

A recent addition to Mennonite historical literature has appeared in the shape of a volume which is described by its title, "A Brief History of the Mennonites of Ontario." The author is J. D. Burkholder of Markham, Ontario.

The Mennonite Weekly Review gives the following interesting account of a visit from Uncle K. Johnson: "We had the pleasure of receiving a friendly visit from Uncle K. Johnson, native Indian and father of Missionary Fred Johnson of Moencopi, Arizona. Mr. Johnson had come to Newton with Rev. J. B. Fry of Meno, Oklahoma, whom he is assisting in the translation of the New Testament into Hopi. Besides visiting friends he spent several days at Bethel College where he exhibited a collection of Indian pottery and tapestry which he had brought along. Mr. Johnson's Indian name is Tuwaletstewa, which, he says, has no particular meaning other than that it refers to the sandy part of the village where he formerly lived. Questioned how he gained such a good use of the English language, Mr. Johnson stated that he picked it up "like a chicken picks up bits of food one by one." He says that he has had little education, but does all he can to acquaint his people in the Arizona village with the Christian gospel.

Many of the church choirs throughout the church contributed toward the impressiveness of Easter by rendering cantatas. Among them the First and Second churches of Philadelphia; the Berne, Indiana, church; Christian Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kansas; St. John's, Pandora, Ebenezer, and the Bluffton churches of the Bluffton group.

The first Sunday School Convention held by Mennonites was held by workers in the Eastern District Conference in the First Mennonite church of Philadelphia, October 4, 1876. Among those who arranged for this gathering, were Mr. Charles H. Moyer, Rev. A. E. Funk, and Rev. N. B. Grubb.

The earliest Christian Endeavor and Young People's Conference among Mennonites of record was arranged by Annie J. Allebach and Rev. N. B. Grubb and was held in the Bethany church, Quakertown, Penna.

The Germantown Mennonite congregation, the oldest congregation in America, originally was a part of the Franconia (Old) conference. It cast its lot with the Oberholtzer faction, which was the beginning of the General Conference when that party organized in 1847. Later it withdrew to become a part of the Hunsicker faction that continued as a separate body for some years. When that organization came to an end it was for a time an independent congregation. On October 4, 1876, it was again admitted by unanimous vote into the fellowship of the Eastern District Conference meeting at the time in the First church, Philadelphia. The present pastor is Rev. Howard Landes. Among those who have ministered in this congregation since its latest association with the Eastern District Conference, were N. B. Grubb, Henry Frederick, A. E. Funk, Silas Grubb, Samuel Muselman, F. F. Gabel, John Bayley, and A. S. Shelly. In the church room there is a tablet bearing the names of the pastors who have served the congregation since its beginning.

The Eastern District Conference will hold session in the Roaring Spring, Pa., church, May 2-5. Besides the regular business devotional services, Bible lectures, a Missionary Meeting, a Women's Meeting, and a Brotherhood Meeting are provided for.

Rev. Paul Whitmer of Grace church, Pandora, Ohio, conducted a successful and helpful series of Pre-Easter meetings in the First Church, Philadelphia. Rev. Carl Landes is pastor of the First church.

Rev. P. H. Unruh, writing from Goessel, Kansas, in the heart of the Mennonite settlements of that state, says, that while the sun is hidden from view by blankets of dust, land in that section is not blowing and they have enough moisture for the present. We learn, however, that in the Dakota sections the situation is still serious. A peculiar condition has developed in the places where dust has settled. When rain falls only the surface takes the moisture. Water on dust is like water on a mass of flour. A pasty cake forms for several inches through which moisture does not penetrate and under it the soil is as dry and dusty as ever.

Palm Sunday was a day of victory long to be remembered, at the Immanuel Mennonite Sunday School, Los Angeles, Calif. A few months ago it was voted at a S. S. Teachers' Meeting to observe April 14th as Decision Day. Some earnest prayers had come to the throne of grace for that occasion. On that day the teachers were to center their aim and lesson truth on decisions. During the closing exercise, while the boys and girls eight years old and younger were in another room, William Linscheid, the S. S. Superintendent, gave opportunity to all who on that day or at some previous time had accepted the Lord Jesus as Saviour, but never publicly confessed Him as such, to come to the front and kneel at the altar. Many boys and girls and adults came forward. The front was soon filled, and still they came and knelt in the aisles, filling them quite far toward the rear. It was a sight to make heaven rejoice to see from 50 to 75 people kneeling before God. The Spirit's working spread over the whole building and its influence and power reached its manifestation into the morning worship. To the Lord be all glory!

The ministers of the Central Conference will hold their spring meeting at the Mennonite Hospital, Bloomington, Illinois, on May 15. Rev. Aaron Augspurger, Saybrook, Illinois, will give the opening address on the subject, "The Faith Delivered to the Saints." The major portion of the day will be devoted to round table discussion of problems and questions relating to the work of the ministry.

The Central Conference Young People's Retreat will convene at the Calvary Mennonite Church, Washington, Illinois, on June 8 and 9. Courses on "The Message of Hosea," "The Church and the Kingdom," and Finding My Place in Life" will be offered. Other features of special interest will be an open forum and addresses by our missionaries who have recently returned from the Belgian Congo, Africa.

BIRTHS

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schrock, a boy, Bruce Arthur, April 5., 1935.

MARRIAGES

Yoder-Handrich.—A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Yoder, Friday evening, April 5, when their daughter, Ruth L., became the bride of Jacob E. Handrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Handrich of Fairview. They were attended by Ruby, twin sister of the bride, and Reuben, brother of the groom. The bride wore a dress of white satin, and the bridesmaid's dress was of light green crepe. They are making their home near Fairview, Michigan. Their many friends extend their wishes for a long and happy life.

NATIONAL YOUNGER MEN'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

A National Missionary Conference for Younger Men is to be held in Chicago, May 2-5. You will receive some circulars concerning it. While this convention is sponsored by the Laymen's Missionary Committee, it has no connection with the much debated laymen's report, "Re-thinking Missions." We believe that if a number of our pastors and some of their laymen can attend, great good will be received in the form of instruction and inspiration. By writing early, it might be possible to secure accommodations at one of our missions and thus greatly reduce the cost of attending.

Executive Committee General Conference Board of Home and Foreign Missions.
R. L. Hartzler, Secretary.

CENTRAL CONFERENCE MEETING IN MAY

The first Sunday in May, more properly speaking, May 5, has been designated as Home Department Day in the churches of the Central Conference. The Home Department Superintendent of the Conference is Mrs. Fanny A. Weaver. Mrs. Weaver advises that the ministers preach on an appropriate theme for Home Department Day. Efforts are being made to have as many Home Department members attend church services as possible on that Sunday.

The Home Department is the extension arm of the Sunday School. Men, women, and children who can not or do not attend church or Sunday School are enrolled. The homes are visited at least quarterly and Sunday School Literature is given them. This not only brings the Gospel to their homes, but also becomes a feeder for the Sunday School and the church. It is one of the finest ways to help the pastor in his contacts with families outside of his church.

HOME DEPARTMENT DAY

On May 14, 15, and 16, there will be held three meetings in relation to the work of our conference. On Tuesday, May 14, will be the Quarterly Mission Board meeting held at the Mennonite Hospital. This will be a very important meeting, as three of our missionaries have arrived in America. Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Becker and Miss Irma Berkey have already landed, and Rev. and Mrs. Archie Graber will land in a few days.

On Wednesday, May 15, will be the Ministerial meeting of the Conference, held at Bloomington, Ill. This will be a meeting for inspiration and a discussion of our common problems as pastors. May the Lord so direct that these meetings shall mean much in the work of the Kingdom through our Central Conference.

On Thursday, May 16, will be the Program Committee meeting of the Conference, to be held at the Carlock church. This meeting is for the purpose of determining the date of the conference, the place to hold it, and arrange for the program.

Whatever creed be taught or land be trod, man's conscience is the oracle of God. —Byron.

POCKET BIBLES FOR S. S. SCHOLARS

COLLINS' CLEAR-TYPE BIBLES

HOLY BIBLE
HOLY BIBLE

New Self-Pronouncing Edition

BLACK-FACE RUBY 24mo. TEXT BIBLE

Illustrated

THE LARGEST AND MOST EASILY READ TYPE IN A REALLY SMALL BIBLE

Size 5⅜x3½x1

This is unquestionably the finest handy pocket size Bible ever issued. It is a real "pocket" edition, one that will slip into the pocket, and unlike so many bulky "pocket" editions will not appear to be there. It is a book worth while carrying, because it never intrudes and yet all the while it gives a satisfaction that no other book of its size can offer. Its super quality Bible paper is unexcelled for purity of shade, opacity, and remarkable bulk. 1024 pages bulk 1 in.

SPECIMEN OF TYPE

The desolation of Benjamin bewailed JUDGES, 21

2 And the people came to the house of God, and abode there till even before God, and lifted up their voices, and wept sore;
3 And said, O LORD God of Israel, time; and they gave them wives which they had saved alive of the women of Jā'-besh-gil'-ē-ăd: and yet so they sufficed them not.

15 And the people repented them for

HOLY LAND PICTORIAL EDITIONS

With 16 Photogravure Illustrations of Scenes in the Holy Land

S22 (9 illustrations) Blue Cloth, stiff, square corners, blue edges, wrapper	$ .75
1389½P (16 illustrations) Persianette, divinity circuit, round corners, red edges	1.00
1389P (16 illustrations) Persianette, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.25
1390P (16 illustrations) French Morocco, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.50

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS EDITIONS

Recommended for Primary and Junior Departments as they contain 16 photogravure illustrations and 64 pages of selected Helps to Bible Study especially compiled for younger children.

S1389½P Persianette, divinity circuit, round corners, red edges	$1.25
S1390P. French Morocco, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.75

SPECIAL DE LUXE EDITIONS

Thirty-two New Colored Illustrations by E. S. Hardy — Presentation Boxes (except 1300HS).

Featuring a selection of the famous Bible pictures by E. S. Hardy (see page 7) presented in a novel style. It is our sincere belief that no finer features have ever been included in a Bible.

1300HC (16 illustrations) Blue Persianette, blue edges, full color jacket	$ .85
1389HC (32 illustrations) Persianette, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.50
1390HC (32 illustrations) French Morocco, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.75

OUR CHEAPEST BIBLE

No. 1—WHITMAN BIBLE, size 5½x3¾. Small Bold Face Type—Red Edges—Paper Covers—Several pages of Helps — Selfpronouncing. — An inexpensive Bible for general distribution.

PRICE ONLY
39c
(POSTPAID)

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO

The MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, MAY 21, 1935 No. 10

BEGINNINGS OF THE GENTRAL CONFERENCE

It is generally assumed that the General Conference began with the meeting held in West Point, Iowa, in 1680. In a sense, this is true, but it must be remembered that this meeting was a preliminary one which, while offering opportunity for Mennonites from other sections to meet and plan a program, was not definite and the circle represented by the gathering was small. The real General Conference, as Krehbiel observes, began the following year in Wadsworth, Ohio, where there was a small congregation composed chiefly of Pennsylvania people who were under the pastorate of Rev. Ephraim Hunsberger. Hunsberger having come from the Hereford, Pa., congregation with recommendations from his home congregation and the East Pennsylvania Conference, in which John Oberholtzer was the leading spirit. This Wadsworth venture was perhaps the first effort on the part of Mennonites of the General Conference group to engage in Church Extention work, though the work began long before the General Conference was a reality. Before the writer there lie the certificates of ordination to the ministry and to the Bishoprick given by the ministers of the home congregation and the East Conference. It was one of the high lights in the life of Ephraim Hunsberger when, in his eightieth year, he attended the General Conference, held in 1899, in his former home congregation and gave one of the principal addresses. (For a long time the term "Bishop" was used in preference to that of "Elder," especially in the Eastern churches. Among other certificates in our possession of early date are several in which this term is used. Confusion in circles outside the church as to the import of the office led to the general use of the term Elder instead of Bishop. Modern Christianity associates the dignity of that term with diocesan authority instead of parochial organization which was the original sense in which it was used in the primitive Christian church.)

Hunsberger had intended to go to the West Point meeting, but found it impossible to do so. Instead, John Oberholtzer carried with him an invitation from Hunsberger to have the next meeting in his church. The present Wadsworth congregation is proud to have had such a prominent part in the Conference at this the first regular meeting and numerous other gatherings as well as having had the honor of having had the General Conference school, the first Mennonite venture in higher education located in its midst — it is to be regarded as one of the historic churches in the General Conference.

For a long time Oberholtzer in his publications had been agitating the establishing of a school for the training of Mennonite leaders and ministers. Letters from Europe and articles in the Mennonitische Blaetter expressed appreciation of such an effort. While there were some who had advantages of higher education among the Mennonites, even at that time it was felt that there must be a need of special training for the ministry in an atmosphere that was completely Mennonite and that there should be an institution in which the spirit of unity might be fostered.

The chief concern of this Wadsworth Conference in 1861 was about the establishment of such a school. Krehbiel remarks that the consideration of this matter gave the Conference something definite to do, it enlisted personal interest on the part of those who would be called upon to contribute toward its establishment, it helped to develop a sense of fellowship and promised opportunity for the youths of the various sections with different backgrounds to come together in intimate association. There were difficulties serious enough, some recognized and others to be discovered in the course of time, that were to make the establishment and maintenance of the school no easy task for the Conference, but, on the whole, this was one of the outstanding advances on the part of American Mennonites. The practical work of visiting and interesting the various congregations was given over to Daniel Hege of Summerfield, Ill., a man specially fitted for the task and one of the few of the Mennonite ministers of his time possessing a classical as well as a theological education. It was decided that Hege begin his work immediately, but the country was in the midst of the Civil War and it was found that the time was not opportune. A year later Hege did begin his visitations, subjecting him to considerable physical strain to the extent that his health broke down and he soon died. However, that which he did accomplish made possible the establishment of the school. Today $5,000.00 would be a mere pittance in planning for an institution, but a little more than that sum brought together by him, was the financial foundation upon which the school was established. The story of the Wadsworth School deserves a larger consideration than we can give in this space, but its influence in our Conference and churches continues to this day. Before me is a collection of photographs of teachers and students taken while the institution was in progress as well as an autograph album that contains inscriptions made by practically all who were connected with the institution. We recognize the names and portraits of our first missionaries, our leaders in practically all the undertakings of the Conference in the past generation and numerous ministers whose work in the churches they served deserves the gratitude of the whole church. The calling of Pastor J. van der Smissen from Germany to take charge of the theological teaching in the school was a decided advance. Professor van der Smissen was a ma of wide culture and deep theological understanding. He won the confidence of the whol church and inspired a respect for many othe things than learning, especially by his missionary enthusiasm. Again we turn to our shelve to take down and look over several copies o sermons written in his own handwriting, whic we happen to have. They are carefully an neatly prepared and arranged in systemati order. General Conference has Prof. von de Smissen to thank for the great pioneer wor done for it in the field of higher education.

The Wadsworth School continued for abou ten years. Unforeseen financial and other difficulties brought its active career to an end, bu its influence was permanent and continues t this day. The venture was one of faith and i was not a faith that failed in spite of the fac that its doors have long ago been closed, for brought results in service and vision that cannot be estimated. —G.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA PREPARES FO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

To the questions often heard, "What are th plans for entertaining the conference? "What are the dates?", "What will it cost delgates during conference session?", etc., the arrangements committee of the two host churches, First Mennonite Church Upland, Californi and Immanuel Mennonite Church, Los Angele gives the following outline as an answer part:

Places and Dates

At Upland

Friday evening, August 2.—Opening Paci Conference.

Saturday forenoon, August 3.—Business sessions Pacific District Conference.

Saturday afternoon, August 3.—Recreati —Sightseeing for all conference visitors and around Upland—orange groves, fr packing plants, vineyards, etc.

Sunday, August 4.—General Conference D mond Jubilee celebration.

Monday to Friday, August 5-9.—Executi sessions of General Conference with special programs in evenings.

At Los Angeles

Friday evening, August 9.—General Conference Young People's program.

Saturday, August 10.—Recreation — Sightseeing in and around Los Angeles, to ocean, harbor, beaches, mountains, etc.

Saturday evening, August 10.—Informal program.

Sunday, August 11.—Celebration of twenty-fifth anniversary of uninterrupted work of General Conference Mennonites in Los Angeles.

General Information

Lodging and Meals — Registered delegates will be given lodging and breakfast at 75c per person per night. The fund created by this charge will be given to the Diamond Jubilee Fund of the General Conference.

Conference visitors other than registered delegates will be aided by the local committees in finding suitable lodging at lowest possible rate.

Noon and evening meals will be served near assembly hall at reasonable rate.

Those coming in autos will find the best possible accommodations for motorists, miles and miles of unending highways, offering them an advantage in visiting many places of interest.

The Conference Exhibit

In order that all who attend the General Con- erence this summer may see as well as hear he story of the General Conference, a practical xhibit of conference work has been planned nd will be shown during the sessions at Up- and, August 3-11. This exhibit is being cre- ted with the thought that old and young alike may profit by it. — Older members will be bet- er able to visualize the progress to which they ave contributed, and younger members may et a clearer picture of the background of this reat Mennonite institution.

And what time is more appropriate than the bservance of the Diamond Jubilee to pause nd look back over the way we came? What ime is more appropriate than this to receive new inspiration for the future? And when was an inspiration more necessary in Christian work than in these confusing and distressing imes?

To create a well rounded out exhibit, each hase of conference work has been placed into he hands of someone well acquainted with that particular field. Anyone having pictures or data which may be helpful to this exhibit should contact the one in charge of the particular department into which it belongs.

General Conference History—Dr. H. J. Krehbiel, Reedley, California.

Foreign Missions—G . T. Soldner, Goshen, Indiana.

Home Missions—Rev. W. S. Gottshall, Quakertown, Pa.

Education—Dr. J. R. Thierstein, Bethel College, Kansas.

Young People's Work—Mary B. Borneman, 27 E. Marshall St. Norristown, Pa.

Women's Mission Auxiliary — Mrs. R. A. Goerz, Newton, Kansas.

Publication Work—F. J. Wiens, Berne, Ind.

Emergency Relief—Rev. David Toews, Rosthern, Saskatchewan, Canada.

Hospitals, Deaconess Works, Homes, etc.—Sister Frieda Kaufman, Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas.

All-Mennonite Conventions — P. E. Whitmer, Pandora, Ohio.

Peace Committee—Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, 122 Juniper St., Quakertown, Pa.

Young People's Retreat

This will be the First General Conference Young People's Retreat, and will be held in connection with the California Mennonite Young People's Annual Retreat. Following are innumerated some points of interest:

Date—Monday to Saturday, August 12-17. (Immediately following conference sessions.)

Place—Camp LaVerne, 55 miles east of Upland, in San Bernardino mountains.

Registration Fee—$7.00, which includes meals, etc., but not transportation to the camp. (Transportation for a limited number at rate of 50c per person.)

Program—A well balanced and deeply spiritual and inspirational program has been arranged; vesper hour services; wholesome recreation consisting of games, hiking, boating, swimming, etc.

Camp Location—In an immense forest of California Redwoods; camp site elevation, 6000 feet with mountains towering 4000 feet higher; mountain stream runs through camp; splendid lake about quarter mile from camp, with life guard on duty; camp is isolated from all commercial activities and used only for religious purposes, and is owned by the South

California District of the Brethren Church.

Inquiries may be sent to Mary B. Borneman, 27 W. Marshall St., Norristown, Pa.; or Aron E. Jantzen, 132 Pacific Ave., Long Beach, Calif.

MENNONITES AND WAR

Carl Landes

No, "I didn't kill any one in the World War." I was a lad of fourteen, getting six dollars a day as a farm hand. My oldest brother was in France, facing bullets for a dollar a day. In one week I had six dollars more than my brother received in a month—and his life was in danger every minute.

I can't get away from that picture as I grow older in the generation which is spending its youth in the aftermath and disillusionment of the "Idealistic World War." My conscience fails to give me peace concerning my brother's "war" and "my war."

Now the Nye Munitions Investigation enters the scene, unmasking war profiteers in their unethical, downright dishonest tactics to increase their profits.

No, "I didn't kill anyone in the World War." Neither did the armament makers. But when I read their own statements and letters, which reveal the immense profits, and the diabolical strategy employed by these "Merchants in Death," my blood nears the boiling point. I could lose my temper without trying—if I could forget that as a boy of fourteen I received six dollars a day while my brother was in hell for a dollar a day.

When I remember that, my temper cools, and my thoughts turn toward the farmers who paid my wages. They raised wheat for $3.30 per bushel. Other grains, livestock and products brought corresponding profits. Yet, "The farmer didn't kill anyone in the World War."

No, "I didn't kill, the armament maker didn't kill, the farmer didn't kill." In fact, the only murderers were the "dollar-a-day" soldiers and their higher paid officers. The army did the killing, murdering, plundering. BUT WE SHARED THE PROFITS — MENNONITES INCLUDED.

My brother "shed German blood," I profited six dollars a day by that bloodshed. The Allied armies murdered the enemy (visa versa); and the laborer, the farmer, the manufacturer, the munitions maker divided the profits of that "wholesale murder." We Mennonites were i that group of profiteers.

And now, in 1935, we are all in poverty, c near the line. Millions are on the point of sta vation, hundreds going to suicides' graves, an none of us are overjoyed at the present worl outlook, with its religious persecutions, dict tors, and destruction of food to force up th
price.

ALL OF US were profiteers from 1917 t
1929, only to discover that we had been spi
itual paupers all along.

I grew up in the Mennonite faith and her tage of non-violence and peace—a faith ar heritage I have learned to love dearly. In th church I often heard, "We are Mennonites; w don't believe in war; we don't take life."

But I never heard minister or layman sa
"We are Mennonite, we do not believe in wa
We will not share the war profits." No, we sai
"Put out more wheat, raise more hogs, set mo hens—let us grow rich while our violent-wa believing fellow citizens, who know not the lo of Christ, murder the Germans."

What I am suggesting in this article is thi
Before another war comes I will notify my go ernment that I will not (1) serve in the arm in any capacity, nor (2) will I share the "bloo money" of war profits. I will try to provide f my family, and reach as many needy as I po sibly can. But NEVER AGAIN WILL I TAK
SIX DOLLARS A DAY WHILE MEN AR
DYING IN HELL FOR A DOLLAR A DAY

The call of Christ in 1935 is clear on th point: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures u on earth—overcome evil with good." That c can be answered only when peaceful, non-vi lent individuals and groups take up their cros es in Love, and refuse to share in the violen of war—either as soldiers or profiteers.

As a Mennonite, I for one will refuse to su port future wars in any way—I will not ser in the army in any capacity; I will not acce a salary above the necessities of life. I w grow no crops, manufacture no goods to su port the war. As a follower of Christ, I refu to be a profiteer at any time—more so wh blood flows like water.

Instead, I WILL BEGIN NOW TO FO
GIVE MY ENEMIES, PERSONAL AND N
TIONAL. I WILL BEGIN NOW TO LIV
AND DIE FOR THE KINGDOM OF G
AMONG MEN. And in fairness and love f my country, I notify her NOW that she cann count on me to support violence in war or peace. (If you are in harmony, let us consider this problem at our District and General Conferences. Carl J. Landes.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

Commencement time is here again. Thousands of young people are coming from our high schools and colleges feeling that they have at least partially completed a training for their future work. We are tempted in this season to raise the question: What is education? What is its purpose? What do we have a right to expect from graduates of our high schools and particularly our colleges?

Religion, life, and education are three terms all of which suggest growth and development because of the very nature of personality. There was a time when we looked upon education as something to get which came from books, schools, and teachers. Or as someone has wittingly put it: Education was for a teacher to throw wads of knowledge at the pupils and the pupil who could catch the largest number was given the highest percentage and was called educated. Or in other words: Education was the process of a teacher feeding the pupil knowledge with a spoon.

Today we rightly look upon education as a process of life. It is life in the process of growth and development of all the abilities and proverbs of the individual. Most of us were assisted and guided in this growth by schools, teachers and equipment. But not all. It is said that the teacher of Thomas Edison sent him home and said he never would amount to anything. Abraham Lincoln, although spending very few years in school and reading only a few books, was educated in the true sense of the word.

The purpose of education may well be stated in the words of Jesus, "For their sakes, I sanctify myself." Anyone who climbs the educational ladder round by round through the grades, high school, and college only to gain power or selfish ends or to learn how to avoid hard work is not truly educated and becomes a menace to society rather than an asset. True education fits the individual physically, mentally, socially, and spiritually to render efficient unselfish service in a needy world, regardless of the occupation or profession which the individual chooses. A service which continually emphasizes "serve us," is not a blessing but a curse to humanity. May the large army of high school and college graduates this spring be able to give society the benefit of the development of their powers. May they make their contribution to the home, the school, the church, and community. —Weaver.

MOUNTAIN TOP EXPERIENCES

We as members of our two conferences of Mennonites are looking forward to the months of June, July, and August, in which will be held many of our rallies, retreats, and conferences. It is well as we think, pray, and plan for these meetings to consider what is the real purpose of such gatherings.

I can never think of such meetings without being reminded of the time when Jesus took Peter, James, and John and went to the mountain to pray. We remember the experience of Jesus there, also those of Peter, James, and John. These mountain top experiences served them as a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night.

To Jesus it meant strength and assurance for the trials He was to meet soon. Peter and John in their writings both remind us of the value of that mountain top experience to them. We may get more out of our rallies, retreats, and conferences if we think ahead of what it should mean to us and what we ought to expect.

The writer will never forget the experience at Lake Geneva, when as a student with other students he spent ten days in study, meditation, and sharing of life. It was there where there came the first realization that following Christ means anything more than church membership and preparing oneself for heaven. The visions received there have been the guiding principles of life since.

What may we expect from our religious gatherings? First, vision of God, ourselves, and the need of the field. Where there is no vision the people perish. We need to see life as a whole, its meaning and purpose. Men such as Moses, Amos, Jesus, and Paul saw God in worship, prayer, meditation, in other words on the mount before they clearly saw their mission in life. There is always a tendency in our workaday world to be dragged down from our places of vision and inspiration and lose ourselves in the needs of humanity so that we lose our power. The disciples could not cast out the devil because they lost their vision of a God of power.

In the second place in our meetings we have the opportunity of fellowship with others of like purpose and faith. With Jesus were even unseen friends, as Moses and Elijah, as well as the fellowship of Peter, James and John. We enrich our lives by this fellowship and receive encouragement as we think of the large number who are laboring by our side in the extension of the Kingdom.

These experiences also serve as an anchor to our souls. Often in times of trials, defeats, disappointments and hard work, the vision on the mountain top holds us steady, true, and firm. We feel we are anchored to the Rock of Ages.

Finally, these experiences transfigure our common tasks of life. We will go back to the shop, the schoolroom, the office, the farm, and the pulpit feeling that the common everyday duties of life have meaning and value in the great redemptive purpose of God for mankind. May the rallies, retreats, and conferences in the next few months mean the enlarging of our vision, the deepening of our convictions, and the expanding of our interests and sympathies in the great cause of Christ and His Kingdom.

—Weaver.

THE WORLD'S CHALLENGE

Lloyd Ramseyer

I have been asked to speak on the World's Challenge to the Church. The committee has asked that three principal phases of this challenge be stressed, namely, the world's challenge for peace, for temperance, and for missions. The world is asking what we are going to do about these three major questions.

I am glad that I can speak to you from the standpoint of a layman. There is no greater calling than that of the ministry. Yet one who is not in that profession has the advantage of talking about the relation of world and church affairs without the suspicion that he is merely talking shop. For that reason, I am glad to be speaking to you as a layman.

What is the responsibility of the church in world affairs? Has a topic of this sort a place on a conference program? Is it too materialistic, should we deal only with spiritual and theological things? We find that Christ was interested in the things of this world. He was interested in improving living conditions, in the poor, in strife between men, in temperance. The priest and the Levite fell under eternal condemnation because they were so full of what they conceived to be duty to God that they were blind to the needs of a stricken man. Furthermore, world problems have an effect on the souls of men. We cannot live entirely apart from our surroundings. War or peace, temperance or intemperance, and other world problems have a definite effect on our spiritual lives and the spiritual development of our children. The churches must, then, interest themselves in this world as well as in the world to come.

War has been defined as organized destruction and mass murder. Present day war is carefully organized, planned in advance. Men make the waging of war their life's study. No amateur could make war successfully. It is a highly specialized business. The goal of warfare is maximum destruction, and when army meets army, maximum destruction means maximum death.

Let us see the cost of war. The war which dwells in our minds most vividly is the world war. What did it cost? Go with me to yonder cross roads. Give your imagination full sway. A vast army is approaching, the army of the world war dead. Let us watch them pass. Here they march, four abreast, in ranks three feet apart, marching rapidly, at the rate of five miles per hour. We watch them for an hour, two hours, three hours, and still they come. Thirty-five thousand each hour. We watch for a day—are you growing weary? Would you tire of these ghastly faces? But they have but begun to pass, day in and day out they march, twenty-four hours a day, and still they come, day after day, the soldier dead. As they march let us see who they are. There we recognize the face of Moseley, a great English physicist, shot down at the age of twenty-nine at Gallipoli after making one of the greatest discoveries in the field of science, his career cut short by war. There we recognize a poet,—what a wonderful future he would have had, but his greatest works remained unwritten, for he was cut down in the flower of his youth. There is a girl marching among them, and we remember that she was shot down in Belgium, she loved her country too dearly. You recognize the face of a neighbor, a manly youth. He would have married and have brought forth children who

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication.....Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office.....Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance.....$1.50
Foreign.....$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

would have been an honor to your community, but these children will never be born, for war laid him low. On and on they march, day after day, for two weeks this cavalcade passes, the soldier dead, the cream of the manhood of the world, twelve million of them.

But still we are not through. Another army approaches, the civilian dead. Children who died of starvation or disease brought on by the war; mothers, who died heart broken; orphans, who died because no one remained to care for them; refugees, who died of exposure; a vast army of civilians who died as a result of war. And for two weeks these march by, twelve million of them.

And still we have not finished. For a month we have watched the ghosts of the world war dead pass by. But these which now approach are living flesh and blood. But some have lost arms, others legs, some have been gassed, some shell shocked. For many this is but a living death. They would have been more fortunate had they died. Then come orphans, widows, parents whose families have been wiped out. A most sorrowful group is this.

This has been the cost of the world war in human life and misery. How different from the gilded accounts of war which we read in our histories! Most men will agree that nothing has been gained which compares with this vast expenditure of human life.

Let us see the financial cost of war. The cost of the war figured into billions of dollars, an amount too great for us to visualize. The future has been mortgaged, future generations must pay the debt. Out of every dollar of tax money paid into the United States treasury, 72 cents goes for past and future wars. At a time when the cry for tax reduction is heard on every hand and our schools go begging for funds to educate our children, this cost seems excessive.

The present economic disturbance is likely a result of the war. Overinflation and overexpansion accompanied the war, and this depression is but a logical result.

The cost of the war in morals is enormous. You are well aware of the crime wave upon us. It is absurd to teach men to kill, to hate, and to destroy, and then when the war is over to expect them to become peaceful, law abiding citizens.

Only certain moneyed interests profit by war. The masses oppose it. Interests with large foreign investments, shipping interests, munition factories and the like, help to plunge us into wars. We know of the large fortunes which have been built up as a result of war profiteering. War does not profit the masses. Extensive propaganda is necessary to arouse the masses to the point where a war will be supported. Many of you remember the tales of torture and frightfulness which were told us about the activities of the Germans. We believed them and became sufficiently angry to desire fight. Now we know that these stories were mere falsehoods, invented to inflame the masses.

Many attempts have been made to prevent war, both before and since the world war. Nearly every year since the war there has been a new treaty or a new disarmament conference. We will not enumerate them here. Yet in some part of the world there has been almost constant warfare. Cost of armaments have continued to rise. In the United States in 1909—1919 the costs varied from 176 millions in 1909 to 193 millions in 1913. In the five-year period from 1925—1929 they varied from 707 million in 1925 to 780 million in 1929. These facts show that these conferences have largely failed.

The church must take a definite stand against war in all forms. It has not done this in the past. Scott Nearing names the school, the press, the church, the movie, and the radio as the channels by which the ruling class makes war. Norman Thomas, the socialist candidate for president, was at the time of the world war pastor of a Presbyterian church. He refused to turn his pulpit into a recruiting station and gave up the ministry in disgust when he saw the attitude taken by the churches. Scott Nearing says that the only escape from militarism is revolution. He believes that the solution is found in following Russia's example.

Since the war, many churches have renounced the principle of war. But when war clouds gather, when propaganda is broadcast, when men are intimidated, imprisoned, and perhaps shot for opposition to war, will they stand firm, or will the churches again be turned into recruiting stations?

Christian ideals, if accepted, would prevent war. We must become world conscious in our interpretation of Christian love and brotherhood. We must learn to think of the German, the Greek, the Chinese, the Japs, all of them as Christian brothers. We must put the good of the universe above selfishness. Then war will disappear. This will require a long and intensive struggle. When national leaders come to realize that the masses cannot be forced into war, when the demand for peace becomes sufficiently insistent, then we shall have real conscientious attempts on the part of our statesmen to make war impossible.

The world wants to know what the church is going to do about temperance. The well balanced man is temperate in all things, in working, in sleeping, in eating, and the like. Probably there are as many people who eat themselves to death as there are who drink themselves to death. But for a long time temperance has been associated in the minds of the people with temperance in the drinking of alcoholic liquors. The reason for this is that intemperance in this line brings the greatest amount of sorrow and discomfort to others.

About fourteen years ago the United States decided that the only way to deal with the liquor problem was to outlaw liquor. Other means of control had failed. Local option, state option, both failed to serve the purpose. Liquor interests knew and obeyed no law. An amendment was passed and accepted by all but two states, an overwhelming acceptance. Those who had pressed the fight breathed more freely. John Barleycorn was buried. They visioned days when drunken husbands would no longer beat their wives, when sons would no longer have drink flaunted in their faces on every street corner.

But the liquor interests did not give up the fight. Thousands of dollars were invested in brewery interests. This investment was worth fighting for. Newspapers were enlisted in the fight. They glorified the breaker of the law. They made heroes of our bootleggers. They scoffed at those who tried to enforce the law. They called the agents of the law snoopers and busybodies in the affairs of other men. Every obstacle was placed in the way of those who would enforce the law.

This campaign bore fruit. The liquor interests, always lawless, organized rings for breaking the law. In a sense they have been successful. Now these same newspapers, backed by new recruits, rise up in selfrighteousness as defenders of the law, and demand that the law be repealed, for they say, it is causing disrespect for all law. Was it the amendment, or was it these same people who idolized the bootleggers and scoffed at those who would enforce the law who caused disrespect for law?

Those of you who can remember saloon days and are fair, must be forced to admit that there is less drunkenness than under the saloon regime. You would not go back to those days. The wets tell us that they do not want the saloon. But what do they propose? We, as thinking American church members, should know where we are going before we consent to disregard prohibition. Let us examine some of the substitutes suggested.

The cry at present seems to be for out and out repeal. Of course, that is what the brewers have always wanted, but only recently have they had the nerve to so openly work for it. Repeal, without some substitute, will mean the old saloon, political domination by the old liquor interests, and all the vice and corruption which goes with the saloon. There is money in liquor. If the amendment is repealed, new recruits must be found to drink more liquor. More appetites must be prepared. This will mean an advertising campaign as insidious and enticing as the disgusting advertising campaign now being conducted so successfully by the tobacco interests. Do you want the countryside lined with billboards inviting your sons and your daughters to drink? Do you want the 177,000 saloons in the United States reopened? But perhaps you would fall more easily as a prey to some other plan.

We will not have hard liquor returned. We will merely modify the Volstead act and permit light wines and beer to be sold. Do you suppose for an instant that if these low alcoholic content drinks were licensed and sold that the liquor interests would confine themselves to selling this drink? Have they been so law abiding in the past? Will not the presence of these open wine and beer saloons make the detection of those selling harder liquors even more difficult? Over 90 per cent of the product dispensed by the old time saloon was beer. In a motor age even moderate drinking cannot be tolerated. Stoeckel, Commisisoner of Motor Vehicles of Connecticut says: "The really dangerous driver is the man who has had one or two drinks only, who still thinks that he is in possession of his faculties, but whose driving judgment has been impaired." The really drunk driver is not so dangerous, for he can easily be detected. Doctor Benedict, Director of the Nutrition Laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, says after exhaustive researches by Miles and Dodge, "The drive of an automobile in the traffic of a modern American city has no business to undertake his task after drinking even these so-called 'permissible amounts' of alcohol.—Clearly, dilution, even to 2.75% cannot solve the alcohol problem, nor can it alter our estimate of the effect of alcohol upon human efficiency.—Inflexible science says, 'Moderate drinker, keep off! For at least four hours after a dose of alcohol formerly considered permissible' you as a motor vehicle operator, may well be considered a menace to society." Either repeal or modification will make the highways unsafe. Low content drinks are, in fact, intoxicating, if taken in sufficient amounts.

State rights are demanded. They would have some states wet and others dry. If the present border cannot be guarded so as to prevent importation, how can this be accomplished when this border is increased many times by the legalization of the manufacture and sale of alcohol in a part of the states?

Then government control is suggested. In seven years of this type of control in Canada the consumption of liquor increased 80%, increase in absolute alcohol consumed was 105%, increase in convictions for drunkenness 51%, increase in violation of liquor law 92%, increase in vagrancy and disorderly cases 115%, increase in felonious assault 91%, and the increase in other major crimes was 77%. South Carolina adopted this system as early as 1893, but twenty years later decided to replace it with state prohibition by a vote of more than two to one.

If shops for the sale of liquor are not to be as the old saloon, they must be under strict rules governing hours of sale, sale to minors, and the like. But these very restrictions will provide a field for the bootleggers. Their biggest problem, that of production, will have been solved for them, they can buy their stock from the government. Their buyers will be found among the youth who cannot buy legally, after hours, on Sundays, and in places of disrepute. They will sell in dry localities, where legal sale is prohibited. No, government sale has not prevented drinking and bootlegging in Canada and it will not prevent it here. While failing to prevent breaking the law, it has enormously increased the consumption of liquor.

The present cry is to float back to prosperity on a sea of beer. Beer taxes will wipe out the deficit in the national treasury, we are told. Perhaps, but if so the money will come from those least able to pay taxes. Some of our rich men would gladly unload their income taxes on the backs of the beer drinking poor. They say beer will increase employment. But if money is spent for beer it cannot be spent for other commodities. Dr. Nystrom, Professor of Marketing of the School of Business of Columbia University, says: "A return to the liquor consumption of the pre-Volstead days would mean several billion dollars less business in home furnishings, automobiles, musical instruments, radios, travel, amusements, jewelry, insurance, education, books, and magazines." Prof. Irving Fisher found not a single economist in the United States who opposed the view that the nation has gained enormously in an economic way from National Prohibition. Yet they claim that beer will bring back prosperity. Absurd!

The wets are now disregarding logic and trying to bring back liquor with a campaign of bunkum and ballyhoo. This was clearly evidenced in the two national conventions. Money to finance this campaign is plentiful. Only a few days ago an association of hotel owners in Illinois voted to tax themselves five cents per hotel room per month to help fight the eighteenth amendment. This alone will raise a sum of 7,800 dollars per month in the state of Illinois for fighting prohibition. The fact that a study of facts favors the drys is shown by the result of a class study of the problem in Ohio Wesleyan University. When the class started there were 16 dry, 14 wet, 9 mildly dry, and 6 undecided. Both sides were impartially presented. Men prominent on either side were invited to present their views before the class.

(Concluded in next issue.)

TWENTY-THIRD ANNUAL C. E. RALLY

June 2, 1935

Danvers Mennonite Church, Danvers, Ill.

Motto
"Win and Hold Youth for Christ"

Afternoon Session

2:00 Praise Service................Mrs. Arthur King
Devotions..................Rev. Emanuel Ulrick
2:20 Our Objective of Christian Endeavor
Rev. Roy Scott
Announcements ....
3:00 Junior Conference..............Mrs. Ali Stahly
Intermediate Conference
Mrs. Ernest Schirch
3:00 Our Task:—
To Win.......................Supplied by Hopedale
To Hold.....................Miss Susan Kauffman
To Train.....................Mr. Donald Gunday
To Serve.....................Mr. Merle Ramseyer
4:00 Adjournment ....
Lunch

Evening Session

Held in the Danvers Presbyterian Church
7:00 Praise Service and Devotions
Rev. R. L. Hartzler
Choir..................North Danvers Mennonite
8:00 Closing Address....Rev. A. S. Rosenberger
President of Bluffton College

SAD NEWS FROM MONTANA

The following message was received on May 7th:

"Dr. J. W. Kliewer:— Waldo Petter gone home to glory. Funeral, Ashland, May 9th, P. M. Asked to inform Mission Board.

P. A. Kliewer."

From other sources we learn that he died of pneumonia after only a short illness.

May we remember the family in prayer, also the parents who were already on the way to Europe.

Mrs. Petter writes that for the present she will remain on the station and keep up the services as best she can, and will decide later whether she takes the furlough or not.

P. H. Richert, Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM

At 4:00 P. M., April 25, 1935, at the Mennonite Hospital occurred the death of Bro. M. L. Ramseyer of Bloomington, Illinois, who had been active in service for Christ and the church for many years.

Mr. Ramseyer was born in Switzerland, January 3, 1864, and came to America in 1874. He lived in McLean County for sixty years. He was married to May Louisa Risser, February 4, 1888. She died June 19, 1890. On February 9, 1892, he married Anna Stahly. He lived on a farm in the East White community for many years. He moved to Bloomington in 1926, where he died. Mr. Ramseyer had been in ill health due to heart trouble over two years and was bedfast the last eight weeks of his life. He knew that life here was nearly ended and spoke many times of his going. He had placed himself in Christ's hand and all was well, whether in life or death. He leaves his wife and four children, Roy, of Bloomington; Mrs. Pearl Andersohn, of Chicago; Ethel, at home; and Lloyd, of Heyworth. One son, Lyle, preceded him in death.

The funeral was held at the East White Oak church Sunday afternoon, April 28. The funeral was very largely attended, almost as many being outside the church as inside. Services were in charge of Rev. Lee Lantz, Superintendent of the Mennonite Gospel Mission, Chicago, Illinois, assisted by Rev. E. Troyer, pastor of Normal Mennonite Church, and Rev. R. J. Zehr of East White church.

Mr. Ramseyer was deeply interested in the welfare of his family, not only physically, but also spiritually. His outstanding interest outside of his domestic interests was Sunday School work. He served faithfully and efficiently as Sunday School Superintendent of the East White Oak church for twenty-one years, and was teaching a class in Sunday School at the time of his death. He also held many positions of responsibility in the conference, in the Sunday School Association, on the Hospital Board, and more particularly on the Publication Board. He became business manager of our Publication Board in about 1915, and continued as such for eight years. He served as a member of our board from its beginning until the time of his death. His counsel will be very greatly missed because of his departure. His interest extended even farther in Sunday School work than his church and conference, for he served for many years in various capacities in township and county association work. The contribution he has made will be gratefully remembered by the organizations in which he held responsible positions.

May God's richest blessings and sustaining grace abide with the family in the loss of a companion and father.

CORRESPONDENCE

North Danvers Mennonite Church Notes, 3½ miles northeast of Danvers, Illinois. The attendance of our church has been aided considerably throughout the year by the graveling of our roads not only to the church, but also to the homes of the members. As soon as our members can get rid of "the mud roads habit" we will have a very fine attendance.

The church joined with our sister churches in the town of Danvers in the observance of Passion Week. The pastors took turns in bringing messages. Stainer's "Crucifixion" was given on Friday evening by a united choir. On Sunday evening as the closing service, Rev. Elmer Graft of the Baptist church directed a pageant, assisted by young people of the participating churches.

The pastor, Wm. B. Weaver, is conducting a Bible class at the Mennonite Gospel Mission in Peoria, Illinois. He is leading the class in a course on History of the Hebrews, as based on the Old Testament.

The Kum-Joy-Nus class, a young married women's Sunday School class of our church, sponsored a mother-daughters' party in the church parlor on Friday, May 10. About sixty mothers and daughters were present. A program and refreshments were enjoyed by all.

The church will observe communion Sunday, May 19.

A Rally and Home Department Day was observed by the church the first Sunday in May. Because of weather conditions and measles the attendance was not so large, but a good spiritual meeting was enjoyed. The pastor brought a Home Department message on "The Church is Thine House."

First Church of Philadelphia. Recently the Church Council delegated me as correspondent for the "Mennonite," and here is my first attempt.

It is quite some time since the readers of the "Mennonite" heard of any of the activities of our church. While we have nothing unusual to report at this time, it was a pleasure for our congregation to entertain the Eastern District Conference Ministerial Meeting on the afternoon and evening of March 29. Both the attendance and interest was good and the discussions which had to do with the Kingdom work was deeply spiritual.

Beginning with Sunday, April 14, we had the good fortune of having Rev. Paul E. Whitmer, former dean of Witmarsum Seminary at Bluffton, O., to conduct a week of special services. His messages were very inspiring and edifying. The attendance for part of the time was very good, but for several nights not so good. He delivered his last sermon Good Friday evening to a well filled house. It was a pleasure on Good Friday evening to receive into the church fellowship by baptism ten persons and right hand of fellowship two persons. These occasions are always impressive, and this was no exception.

On Easter Sunday we observed communion both morning and evening, and in the morning the house was crowded, while in the evening the attendance was small.

During the Passion Week on Wednesday evening our choir participated in the service by rendering an Easter cantata, which was much appreciated by all.

We wish all of our churches and readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel the Master's richest blessings in continuing to serve Him.

Wayland, Iowa, April 21, 1935. Dear Readers:— Greetings to you co-workers! At our annual meeting on January 1, the church adopted the envelope system for receiving both the offering for church expenses and also the offerings for benevolences or missions.

The holiday vacation in our public school lasted for four weeks, due to an epidemic of measles.

Rev. Basinger attended the Bible lectures at Bluffton College. On the Sunday that he was absent, Rev. Daniel Staebler, for twenty-five years a minister of the M. E. Church, filled the pulpit, basing his sermon on Deut. 32:11. He reminded us that we should be thankful for the sorrows that come into our lives.

Rev. Basinger was one of the instructors in the Bible School, sponsored by the County Council of Religious Education. A few of our members took advantage of a few weeks of real Bible study.

Rev. Basinger preached the German funeral sermon at the funeral of Mrs. Catherine Eicher Sommer (mother-in-law of the writer of this article), on February 27, at the Eicher church near Noble, Iowa. He took 1 John 3:2 as his text, in which he brought us a message of real hope.

The Bluffton College Vesper Choir brought a message of sacred music to this community on April 5. The program, given at the H. S. gymnasium, was appreciated by a good sized audience. The presentation of such a program would be a credit to any institution.

The catechetical class in charge of our pastor during the past months culminated today in the receiving three sisters and nine young boys into the bond of the church by the rite of baptism. Another sister was received by the right hand of fellowship. May God bless them and us as we labor together.

Holy communion is to be commemorated the first Sunday in May.

The presentation of the pageant entitled "The Easter Promise," given by the young people of our church, assisted by the choir, was given with much feeling of joy and a deep sense of reverence. The message brought to the audience will be a lasting impression on the hearers who have their minds bent on the resurrected Christ. The committee in charge is to be commended for their work. The decorations were beautiful and in keeping with the occasion. The offering taken is to go towards the Pannabecker Fund.

The Dorcas Society is sponsoring a Father-Son Banquet, which is to be held in the basement of our church, May 2.

The eyesight of our pastor has been impaired to the extent that the Sunday evening services have been dispensed with since January.

The mixed chorus of the High School gave their numbers for which they received superior ranking at New London and again at Sigourney in our church. Under the direction of their leader, Mr. Ivan Korthamp, they will again sing in Iowa City, this time in the State Contest.

May God bless you all in the work of the church! Mrs. Selma C. Sommer.

Dresden, North Dakota. Greetings to the Editor and Readers! It very seldom happens that anything appears in your paper from this locality or church. We are still here and are striving to keep the church and all of its activities going. Two families were received into the church at the beginning of the year. Rev. E. Duerksen has a class of young people under catechetical instruction. The Lord has crowned our church with grace and blessing in all of its activities. Considering the membership, the services have been well attended. Our pastor and his wife have spared nothing in making our congregation what it is. Our Sunday School, being fairly well attended, has been a great blessing to the congregation. John W. Penner is the superintendent. Christian Endeavor meetings are held every last Sunday evening of the month, and many outsiders participate in its exercises. The programs have been good and have helped to keep the spiritually minded going.

The Ladies' Aid Society meets once a month, with Mrs. Jacob Krahn, president, and Mrs. A. A. Veer, secretary and treasurer. The meetings are held in different homes, where matters pertaining to the church are discussed and things are made which are later sold at auction. Some who are not members of the church help in these efforts. The attendances have been excellent, and last summer's sale brought good prices for all articles sold.

The interest in our weekly prayer meetings is good though the attendance is often small.

Conditions in this part of the country are not so good, because crops have failed and prices are low, but we manage to get along somehow, for really, none of us have suffered for want of food, clothing, and shelter. With it all the Lord has been gracious and the times of depression have drawn us closer to Him. It has impressed us with the importance of seeking first the kingdom of God. We appreciate the love and patience of our pastor. He is not one of those who would say: "Pay me or help yourselves." He has assured us that he will remain so long as he can live with us.

Health conditions in this locality have been poor this winter. Since Christmas we have had numerous cases of measles and scarlet fever, and several persons have died, among them the little son of Brother and Sister John M. Penner.

Looking back to the time we organized this congregation three years ago, we may say that the Lord has been gracious to us and not dealt with us according to our deserts. The letter and photographs we received from our missionary in China, Henry Brown, came a long time ago, but since the address has been lost, we take this opportunity of replying through the columns of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel. The writer thinks of Bro. Brown often, since it was he who brought him into the light and led him to conviction. May the blessings of God be upon Brother Brown and his work!

Also we want to express our gratitude to Rev. Clyde Dick of Fortuna, Missouri, for the blessed meetings we enjoyed when he was here a long time ago. J. H. Spenst.

First Mennonite Church, Halstead, Kansas. We are glad to report that our pastor, Rev. H. T. Unruh, has accepted another three-year term of service after serving our church here for over twelve years.

Entering upon the new year, the Protestant churches here observed the week of prayer with a union meeting, the various pastors speaking on the assigned topics.

In January, the Senior Mission Society had charge of one of the Sunday evening services, giving an interesting program.

During the month of February visiting friends rendered interesting programs, for which we were thankful. The Moundridge Men's Chorus rendered a sacred concert at a union meeting of the Protestant churches. Sister Augusta Schmitt, R. N., returned missionary from India, spoke very interestingly of her work there to our Dorcas Society.

Volunteer Band members from Bethel College favored us with a mission play, "Bo-Thane," illustrating mission life as such.

Dr. and Mrs. Pannabecker from China spoke very interestingly of their work there and the slides they showed gave us a better insight into the China field.

On March 8, the World Day of Prayer, was observed by a joint program of the Protestant Mission Societies here.

On March 24, in a rather quiet way, our church observed its sixtieth anniversary. Our pastor had charge of the morning service, also reading three letters, two from former pastors, Rev. J. E. Amstutz of Trenton, O., and Dr. J. H. Langenwalter of Wichita, Kans., and one from Sister Clara L. Kuehny, formerly a member of our church and now in India. Dinner was served in the basement to all present. In the afternoon a short program was given, in which members of the church participated. Also Dr. J. H. Langenwalter was present and gave a brief but interesting talk. Rev. Plenert from Hutchinson gave the closing prayer.

On Palm Sunday thirteen new members were added unto the church; five through the rites of baptism and eight by letter.

On Good Friday services were held, our pastor giving us a splendid sermon on the sacrifice on the cross. Easter morning the holy communion was observed with a large attendance.

In the evening the church choir, with Bro. Marvin Dirks, director, and Bro. W. P. Schowalter, accompanist, successfully rendered "Darkness and Dawn" by Peace, to a crowded house, as the other Protestant churches joined in with us.

With all these rich blessings showered upon us, joys and sorrows were intermingled.

After years of faithful service as organist, Sister Alma Ruth is incapacitated as such, suffering an injured hand from broken glass, several months ago. We hope she will again receive the former good use of same, though some time may elapse ere this is restored.

A number of our members have been seriously ill for some time, one young brother being a patient at the local hospital for months. If it be God's will, we hope health will again be restored to all.

On April 10, we lost one of our members through death. Bro. Abr. K. Schowalter was called to his eternal reward after months of patient suffering.

Many influenza and measle patients could be reported.

Although we have had much dust this spring, we have also had several nice rains. Just recently quite a heavy rain, accompanied by hail and windstorm, fell here. Minor damage was reported, but in general crop conditions are looking better than last year.

Several weeks ago the Pretty Prairie Men's Chorus rendered a sacred concert here, which was greatly enjoyed. Corr.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

MY PRAYER

"Lord Jesus, I long to be perfectly whole;
I want Thee forever to live in my soul;
Break down every idol, cast out every foe;
Now wash me and I shall be whiter than snow.

"Lord Jesus, look down from Thy throne in the skies,
And help me to make a complete sacrifice;
I give up myself and whatever I know
Now wash me and I shall be whiter than snow.

"Lord Jesus, Thou seest I patiently wait;
Come now and within me a new heart create;
To those who have sought Thee, Thou never said'st No,
Now wash me and I shall be whiter than snow."
—James Nicholson.

A STUDY ON PRAYER

1. Read Luke 18:10-14. What do you learn about prayer from this story?

2. Some authors teach that the values of prayer are entirely subjective, that is, that the expression of our desires in the words of a prayer helps us really to answer our own prayers. What do you think of such a conception of prayer?

3. In prayer we speak to God. The evangelist told of setting an empty chair before him and then talking to the unseen Christ as though He were in the empty chair. What do you think of that? How can we make the presence of Christ real in prayer?

4. "Prayer is the soul's sincere desire, uttered or unexpressed." Does this definition satisfy you?

5. How should we prepare for public prayer?

6. How can we make our prayer life more helpful?

When I'm having a good time I want to know it—I don't want my brain muddled with alcohol. — Lady Astor, Member British Parlia-Parliament.

YOUTH

Spend your evening hours at home. You may make them among the most agreeable and profitable of your lives, and when vicious companions would tempt you away, remember that God has said, "Cast not in thy lot with them; walk thou not in their way; refrain thy foot from their path. They lie in wait for their own blood; they lurk privily for their own lives. But walk thou in the way of good men, and keep the paths of righteousness."

Keep good company or none. Never be idle. If your hands cannot be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind. Always speak the truth. Make few promises. Live up to your engagements. Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If one speaks evil of you, let life be such that none will believe him. Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors. When you retire to bed, think over what you have been doing during the day. Make no haste to be rich if you would prosper. Never play at any kind of a game of chance. Avoid temptation through fear that you may not be able to withstand it. Never run into debt, unless you see a way to get out again. Never speak evil of any one. Never think that which you do for religion is time or money misspent. Always go to meeting when you can. Read some portion of the Bible every day. Often think of death and your accountability to God.

"Children obey your parents in the Lord for this is right." Let every child, having any pretense to heart, or manliness, or piety, and who is so fortunate as to have a father or mother living, consider it a sacred duty to consult at any reasonable, personal sacrifice, the known wishes of such a parent, until that parent is no more; and our word for it, the recollection of the same through the after-pilgrimage of life will sweeten every sorrow, will brighten every gladness, will sparkle every teardrop with a joy ineffable. But be selfish still, have your own way, consult your own inclinations, yield to the bent of your own desires, regardless of a parent's command and counsels, and beseechings, and tears, and as the Lord liveth your life will be a failure; because, "the eye that mocketh at his father, and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagle shall eat it."

—Selected.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

June 2, 1935

Jesus As A Man Of Prayer

Mark 1:35; 11:20-26

This is again a blessed topic. We will study the prayers of Jesus, the times He prayed, and His whole attitude toward prayer. If possible, it might be your desire to have this the first of your summer's out-door meetings, for Jesus often resorted to gardens, to mountains, and usually to the out-of-doors. So if you have access to some hill-top or grove, advertise your meeting well and give much time to planning your program.

Questions

1. What is prayer?
2. What are some of Jesus' recorded prayers and on what occasions did He offer them?
3. What was Jesus' attitude toward prayer—duty or fellowship?
4. Did Jesus ever pray selfishly?
5. What did prayer do for Jesus?
6. Should we pray at stated times or in case of special need?
7. What did Jesus teach His disciples about prayer?

Somebody has said that prayer is either the greatest privilege accorded to man or the biggest piece of nonsense in the world. The Bible tells us what Jesus thought about prayer, and if we have actually and honestly prayed, we have experienced that prayer does things. There is a mighty spiritual force at the other end of the line who hears and answers prayer—sometimes with a "Yea" and sometimes with a "No."

It is a very interesting study to note the recorded instances when Jesus prayed, what He prayed, and what prayer did for Him. Sometimes He received purpose as in the temptation, at other times He gained wisdom as at the calling of the disciples, and when on the mount He was transfigured and transformed. At one time Jesus had been praying and He returned so renewed that the disciples asked Him to teach them to pray in order that they might become more like Him.

Prayer is not a duty, Jesus always felt it to be a fellowship, and until we go to prayer eagerly, we will not enjoy it as we ought. Man ought always to pray, because it is a privilege. Do you?

June 9, 1935

How To Conquer Anger

Rom. 12:19; Eph. 4:26, 31; Matt. 5:21-24

Our topic for this week is not as pleasant as some. For many of us a discussion on anger and its results is quite humiliating. A number of questions will immediately present themselves: Is anger ever justifiable? Wherein exists the evil of anger? How can we best overcome anger?

To become indignant, righteously indignant, may be a part of staunch character. The more righteous a man is, the more heinous sin becomes in his sight, and where a man is in the presence of evil, something should be done about it. Jesus was indignant when the temple was being used as a stockyard and a money exchanging booth. But we have no reason to believe that He lost His temper and acted unthinkingly. If a teacher or minister loses his temper and commits a rash deed, he shows himself unfit for public service. A man must first be able to master himself before he attempts to master others.

Paul says in Ephesians, "Be ye angry and sin not, let not the sun go down upon your wrath." This is a good rule for husbands and wives and for men and women in all walks of life. It is human and natural for two people who are thrown together in close proximity to misunderstand each other, but that does not mean that there needs to be any harboring of anger and malice. That is what Jesus meant when He asks His followers to love their enemies and to bless them that curse, and pray for those who hate and despitefully use them. To hate another drives a wedge between the individual and his God, so that God cannot possibly forgive. It robs one of sweet friendship and furthermore doctors tell us it tears down physical tissue.

In writing to the Roman Church, Paul assures his friends that they shall not be too much concerned to bring about judgment upon evil-doers. We humans delight in sitting on judgment upon others. We forget that that is God's business. We often become impatient and think we need to help Him. We should never forget that this is a moral universe, evil has the seed of punishment within itself, and God is ever on the side of righteousness. "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord."

Questions

1. What is anger, and why is it evil?
2. Is anger ever justifiable?
3. What is the difference between righteous indignation and malice?
4. Was Jesus ever angry? Did He ever hate?
5. Name some instances when we are justified in being angry.
6. What are the evils of hatred?
7. How may we overcome anger? Shall we pity those hating us and try to do them some kindness?
8. How will the love of God help us to overcome anger?

"But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace." "He that abideth in me . . . the same bringeth forth much fruit."

"The best way to avoid the sins of the flesh is by being actively engaged in the life of the Spirit. The love, joy, peace which come from this is so great that it is beyond the comprehension of man."

Love that is higher than the love of men,
Reaching above all self, all others, even,
Lifted upon one impulse that is pure:
To glorify the God Who is in heaven.

Joy that is deeper than mere mortals know,
A joy that flowers in a field of sorrow,
That sees beyond man's cloud of present pain
The blessed sunlight of God's bright tomorrow.

Peace that the world can neither give nor take,
A peace that passeth all our understanding,
Tranquility that finds in every storm
That quiet born alone of God's commanding.

Beloved, if your lives would bear such fruit,
Abide. Ye are the branches; Christ, the root.

—Helen Frazee-Bower.

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Illinois

June 2, 1935

How Hymns and Music Interpret God

Ephesians 5:17-21

(Consecration Meeting)

Suggested Program

Silent Prayer, followed by the singing of the song, "Have Thine Own Way, Lord."

Songs—"Where He Leads Me," "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms."

Scripture Lesson.—Solo, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" (The Twenty-third Psalm).

Prayer. Chanting the Lord's Prayer.

Leader's Talk. History of Hymns and Hymn Writers.

Songs — "Anywhere With Jesus," "He Is Mine."

Prayer. Solo: "An Evening Prayer."

Closing Song: "God Will Take Care of You."

Of course, this subject cannot be treated extemporaneously. There must be a searching of hymnbooks and a reflection on different types of music. We can find in our hymnals the expression of almost every religious emotion and almost every characteristic of God.

The stories of the writing of many of the hymns will likewise be helpful. These may be found in the book, "A Treasure of Hymns," by Amos R. Wells.

Many hymns need the prayer setting to make them effective. The majestic hymns, or the psalms, are appropriate to stately services of worship, whereas hymns of consecration do their best work in a quiet, informal atmosphere.

Musicians know how the moods and emotion of an author can be reflected in his compositions. Instrumental music that is well played may often find a response in many hearers and may interpret the meaning of God to them.

Did You Know That—

The three greatest hymn-writers of our English tongue are Isaac Watts, Charley Wesley, and Fanny Crosby?

Charles Wesley wrote, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" just after he and his brother had been driven by a violent mob from the place where they were preaching?

Fanny Crosby, a blind hymn-writer, whose songs have been a comfort to millions of people, at her death had over 6000 hymns bearing her signature?

Frances Ridley Havergal, author of "Take My Life," a brilliant singer and pianist, considered all her talents to be only loaned from the Lord to be used in His service?

The tune for "Abide With Me" was composed by Dr. W. H. Monk in ten minutes to fill a blank in a hymn-book.

John R. Clements began to write verse at the age of fifteen, "because I could not help it," he says; "Christian Endeavor put the devotional touch to my pen"?

Miss Charlotte Elliott, author of "Just As I Am," was an invalid all her life and wrote that great hymn while in great pain and trouble?

Miss Katherine Hankey, author of "Tell Me the Old, Old Story" was recovering from a serious illness when she wrote the song and the line, "For I Am Weak and Weary," was only a picture of her condition at the time?

Ten World Famous Hymns

"Jesus, Lover of My Soul," by Charles Wesley, is one of the noblest songs of modern times, embodying Christian faith and hope.

"Rock of Ages," by Augustus Montague Toplady, is a direct and personal appeal to God.

"Abide With Me," by Henry Francis Lyte, was inspired in a memorable walk by the sea.

"Just As I Am," by Charlotte Elliott, one of the greatest of evangelistic compositions, has possibly touched more lives helpfully than any other hymn, by giving people a sense of their religious needs.

"Nearer, My God, To Thee," by Sarah Flower Adams, was suggested by the story of Jacob's vision at Bethel, as found in Genesis 28:10-22.

"Onward, Christian Soldiers," by Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould, is the greatest of processional hymns, and was originally written for children.

From Greenland's Icy Mountains," by Reginald Heber, is a famous missionary hymn.

"My Faith Looks Up to Thee," by Ray Palmer, is another splendid declaration of trust and confidence in God.

"Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," by Dr. George Duffield, one of America's most popular and soul-stirring hymns.

"Lead, Kindly Light," by John Henry Newman, is the author's prayer of a storm-tossed soul for guidance to the light.

June 9, 1935

How Important Is Education?

Prov. 8:1-11

"It does not matter greatly what a man knows or how much he knows; the thing that separates an educated man from an uneducated man more than anything else is how he learned what he does know."

Pre-Prayer

Seek to know the will of God for the future.

"He will always work for the other fellow." This was a remark made concerning a boy of fifteen, who left high school merely to get a job when he did not need to. Education is not everything, but it leads to at least three good results:

1. Independence. To have such a position in the field of industry or professional life as to make one the master of his time, his leisure, and his income is made possible, in the large, by advanced education.

2. Enjoyment. It does not take wealth or wisdom to make one happy, but the widest sharing of the experiences of other people comes only to the educated person. When history is the subject of conversation, the educated person can enjoy it; when language, literature, or science is discussed, only the educated can share its benefits; and so with every other subject or experience.

3. Culture. What satisfactions are found in music, art, nature, science, language! But these are all closed books to the unlearned and ignorant.

Abraham Lincoln said, "I will prepare myself, and if the opportunity comes, I am ready," and when the opportunity came, he was ready.

Questions

1. What are some things to be taken into consideration when deciding to go on with one's education?
2. Should one find out all he can about the different vocations or occupations before deciding? Of what benefit would this be?
3. Should one follow a line of work decided by someone else, or decide for himself?
4. Who are some people that would be of great benefit in helping one decide?
5. Why is a high school education important?
6. When having to leave home to attend school should one find out all he can about the school beforehand? Should the moral standards of the school be considered in making a decision?

7. Why should the spiritual side of the school and its religious teachings be considered carefully?

Happiness and wisdom. Prov. 3:13-15.
The principal thing. Prov. 4:5-7.
Better than gold. Prov. 16:16.
True wisdom. John 28:28.
God's Word in wisdom. Ps. 119:97-100.
Knowing God is wisdom. Prov. 9:10.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

June 2, 1935

Topic: Children of the Bible: Miriam and Moses

Ex. 2:1-10

(Consecration Meeting)

You girls who have baby brothers will be especially interested in Miriam, for we first find her watching over baby Moses when he was in great danger. She loved him as you love your little brother. There are times when you get tired of taking care of him and wish you might play instead, but I am sure that if he were in real danger you would forget all about play. Miriam must have been brave as well as loving. She knew that at any time soldiers might come to take baby Moses as he lay there in his little basket boat. She was a girl who thought and acted quickly, too. As soon as the king's daughter had found the baby, Miriam hurried to find what would become of him and to offer to get a nurse. The nurse, you remember, was her own mother. Miriam grew up to be a leader with Moses and Aaron. (Micah 6:4).

We know more about Moses than about Miriam and always enjoy speaking of him. There was a law that all baby boys should be killed. Not only his parents, but God wanted Moses to be spared, because there was work for him to do when he should become a man. It was God who helped the mother to plan the little basket that she made for Moses and who with Miriam watched while he lay in it. It was God, too, who caused the king's daughter to find the baby and to love him instead of letting him die. Then the mother took care of Moses until was old enough to go away to school. Sh taught him of God. Later he was educated if he had been the princess' own son.

After Moses became a man, God called hi to lead His people out of Egypt where the were being cruelly treated, to their own lan
Palestine. The people were not easy to lea
They often complained and doubted, the blamed Moses when things were hard. H was very patient and has been called the meekest of men (Num. 12:3). Moses always aske
God what to do and only once failed to obe
Because of this one disobedience, he could n go into the promised land, but God allowed hi to get very near and look into it. He was alon with God when he died and God Himself burie him. This was God's way of honoring him an showing that He was pleased with his life.

Plans for the Meeting

Assign to Juniors different parts of the history of Miriam and Moses. As they tell thei stories, make a list of outstanding facts concerning both. The following is suggestive:

Miriam—Obedient, loving, brave, alert.

Moses—Protected by God, his mother, th princess; educated, patient, meek, faithful, obedient, honored.

Questions

1. How do we know that Miriam was loving an obedient?
2. How did she prove herself brave?
3. Tell how Moses was protected when a baby
4. Tell of his education.
5. What was the great work for which Go spared Moses?

June 9, 1935

Topic: Children of the Bible: Jesus in Nazaret

Luke 2:41-52

The Bible does not tell much about Jesus' lif in Nazareth, but enough to let us know wha kind of boy He was. In our lesson today, w find Him taking that journey to Jerusalem o which we have heard so many times. We sha think rather of His life with His mother an Joseph than of this journey, yet we shall g with Him to Jerusalem for a little while. H is so deeply interested in talking with th wise men about the scriptures that He stay long after other people have gone. When Hi mother finds Him, He reminds her that He must be about His Father's (God's) business. He had not stayed behind just to please Himself. But the time has come for Him to go home, and we are told in verse 51 of our lesson that He was subject to His mother and Joseph. That is, He obeyed them as a child should obey his parents. It is not always easy to obey. When you feel like having your own way, think of Jesus and how He, God's own Son, obeyed His parents. He was never sorry, for obedience does pay. As you grow older you will see this more and more. You are happy when you obey and the entire home is affected. I am thinking of two kinds of homes. In one, the children do almost as they please in everything. No one thinks much of another's comfort. Do you think having their own way makes them happy? No, indeed! There is always quarreling and complaining. Even a visit in such a home tires one. The other is a home where mother and father are always obeyed, not because they are feared, but because there is real love there. Every one in that home is really happy and it is a joy to be a guest there. What are you going to do to make yours a happy home? Jesus not only showed love to His mother when a child, but all through His life. He was even concerned about her when He hung on the cross.

He grew as other boys and girls do and He grew in favor with God and man. People are sure to admire a boy or girl who pleases God. One who grows in favor with God is loving, kind and obedient.

Plans for the Meeting

Study the Daily Readings for additional facts concerning Jesus' boyhood.

Tempted, yet without sins. Heb. 4:15.
A holy high priest. Heb. 7:26.
Joseph and Mary. Matt. 1:16.
The carpenter's Son. Matt. 13:55-57.
Knew no sin. 2 Cor. 5:21.
The grace of God. Luke 2:40.

Questions

1. What kind of home do you think Jesus had?
2. How do we know that He loved His mother?
3. What do we know of His obedience in the home?
4. Tell of Jesus' interest in His Father's business.
5. Mention some lessons we may learn from Jesus' life in Nazareth.

Golden Keys

"Everybody likes Ned," said Bob. "It must be fine to have people feel that way about you."

"Do you know why everybody likes him"? asked Roland.

"Well, no, not exactly. Do you"?

"Yes," said Roland. "It's because of his golden keys."

"His golden keys? I never saw him have golden keys. What do you mean"?

"He has a whole bunch of golden keys which unlock people's hearts and let him walk right in," explained Roland. "And he keeps them on a wonderful key ring."

"Oh, do tell me more about them"! exclaimed Bob.

"One of his golden keys is 'Good Morning'! He uses it to start the day right. When he wants something, or is asking a favor, he uses the golden key of 'If You Please.' When anything is done for him, he uses the 'Thank You'! key. Even a fine boy like Ned sometimes makes mistakes, but again he has a key to help him. It is called 'Excuse Me.' If he happens to harm another, he is not too stubborn to use the golden key of 'Forgive Me.' He always closes the day with the golden key of 'Good Night.' "

"And how about his wonderful key ring"? asked Bob.

"It is called 'Kindness,' and it binds all the golden keys together."

"How wonderful it would be if all of us had golden keys like Ned," said Bob, thoughtfully.

"And how fine it is that all of us who want these golden keys can have them"! added Bob.

—Olive Plants.

"Let your conscience be your guide."
—Old Saying.

Alcohol belongs to the same group of narcotics as ether, chloroform, and chloral.—Arthur D. Bevan, M. D., Rush Medical College, University of Chicago.

The Bible is the poor man's greatest university, as it is absolutely free and it fulfills the highest ideals of education — character and knowledge included.

Before we can call God our Father there must be a relationship between us that makes our inner character like God.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

May 26, 1935

SOME GREAT CHRISTIAN TEACHINGS

The Lord's Supper

Lesson Text.—Matt. 26:17-30

Golden Text.—This do in remembrance of me. I Cor. 11:24.

The Lord's supper as such originated in an upper room in Jerusalem, where Jesus was with His disciples just a few hours before His trial and death. The idea, however, existed before Jesus' time. The Jews had a supper celebrated once a year, called the Passover feast, in commemoration of the saving of their children when the firstborn in Egypt were being destroyed. The Hebrews killed a lamb and put blood on the lintels and doorposts of their homes so that the angel of death would pass over and the angel of life come into their homes. The song expresses it, "When I see the blood I will pass over you."

Such suppers were also common in some of the heathen religions, particularly the mystery religions. In a number of these, an ox or bull was killed and the applicant for membership was literally baptized by blood. The animal was then cut to pieces and a love feast held in which the members partook of bread, the cup, and ate of the meat of the slain animal.

So Jesus, in the method He used, was not doing anything new, as the Hebrews and mystery religions both had suppers of commemoration. But the Lord's supper Jesus instituted was new in its meaning and significance.

He knew that His hour had come and that He was to leave them. He wanted to leave with them a memorial of love and friendship. They built no monument to Jesus or erected a large cathedral in His name, but they were to participate in a love feast in remembrance of Him.

There is a statement which is suggested by our Golden Text that embodies the significance of the Lord's Supper, "This do in remembrance of me."

"This do"! We often emphasize the idea that we should observe the Lord's Supper because we are commanded to do so. And all too many church members observe it as an obligation and nothing more. It is a command, but all the commands of Jesus are not arbitrary rules laid down, but principles to guide life into its fullness and greatest efficiency. So it is with this command. As we observe it, we enjoy the common union and fellowship with each other as brethren and sisters, which enriches life and prepares us for service.

"In remembrance." The Lord's Supper is a memorial. We shall observe it so that it might aid our memories in relation to One who to remember properly is to receive life and power. We do not believe there is any virtue or saving power in the bread we eat or the fruit of the vine we drink, or the brother's feet we wash, but they are symbols of great truths and principles of life.

"Of me." This, after all, is the real reason for the Lord's Supper. It is in remembrance of a Person. Christianity is the religion of Jesus. He is the Savior and Lord of life. He is the incarnation of God's will and purpose for man. He is the good news of God to the world. We as Christians are followers of Him. So we observe the Lord's Supper in remembrance of Him. The broken bread to represent His death on the cross and the sacrificial life He lived; the cup to represent the blood shed on Calvary. Blood has always symbolized life. So Jesus' shed blood meant life given, poured out for humanity because of love.

Also the washing of the saints' feet which represents the humble service of the Christian in the world. Religious groups differ in the method of observance. The Catholics and some Mennonite groups and other conservative bodies observe feet washing with the Lord's Supper, other Mennonites and religious groups observe only bread and cup, while still others have the supper, the bread and cup, and the feet washing. Our Quaker Friends spiritualize it all and do not believe in observing literally any of it.

While it is true it is more convenient to observe bread and cup than feet washing, one would have difficulty to explain why we should literally observe bread and cup and spiritualize feet washing. Perhaps we might as well spiritualize it all. There is no salvation in any of the observances, but we would all testify to the strengthening we receive as we commune with each other and with Christ using symbols to aid us in our meditations.

What is the origin of the Lord's Supper?

Should we observe it because it is commanded?

What are the benefits to be derived from observing the Lord's Supper?

In what sense is it a communion?

What would the church lose by spiritualizing the service and not have symbols?

June 2, 1935

SOME GREAT CHRISTIAN TEACHINGS

Our Day of Worship

Lesson Text.—Ps. 11:1-5; Jno. 4:20-24; Col. 3:15-17

Golden Text.—God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth. Jno. 4:24.

Someone has said, "Man is incurably religious." Paul said to the Athenians, "I perceive in all things ye are very religious." These two observations state a fundamental truth upon which our Lord's Day is based. Man is religious just as well as man is physical, mental, and social. These are all basic needs and hungers in the life of man. Man hungers and thirsts for God and there is a God to satisfy that need. Religion is the life of God in the soul of man.

Man worships. Anywhere you wish to go over this wide world of ours you see the finger prints of religion in the life of man. Man always has worshipped even in his most primitive state. He is made in the image of God and so as the hart pants after the water brooks, so pants a soul for God. This worship spirit in man was recognized from the very beginning. The creation account tells us that on the seventh day God rested after He had created the heavens and the earth.

The fourth commandment takes such a day for granted, when it says, "REMEMBER the Sabbath Day and keep it holy." Remember suggests that it had been observed before Moses time. We find in the early history of Babylonia and Egypt that sabbaths were observed.

To observe the Sabbath Day is not only written on tables of stone and commanded, but it is written in the laws of the universe and in physical man. Man's body needs rest and relaxation to do its best and reach its highest efficiency. Life in the universe is based on motion and rest. So in observance of the day of rest and worship we are living true to the very laws of life and the universe. No people or nation has ever prospered permanently that tampered with or irgnored this law.

The Christian world has very fittingly decided that "sabbath day," day of rest and worship, shall be the first day of the week. This is the day when Jesus rose from the dead. So Lord's Day is really a memorial of the resurrection of Jesus.

The question often arises: How should this day be observed? The fewer regulations we have concerning this day, the better it will be for the day. The Jews had the fourth commandment, "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." About this commandment, in order to protect it, they placed one hundred thirteen rules and regulations. Concerning the sabbath so as Jesus said, "Man was made for the sabbath," rather than the sabbath being made for the welfare of man.

The Lord's Day is a day of rest and worship. "Rest" in the sense that the day helps the individual to recreate in his life strength and prepares him for the duties of another week. People who use the Lord's Day to gad about and to waste money and energy are desecrating the day, because it isn't a day of rest.

It is also a day of worship. Not only should the individual rest physically and mentally, but also spiritually. It should be a day of quietness, reverence, worship, and helpful service. Can work be done? Yes, necessary work. If there is an ox in the pit. But if the ox was pushed in on Saturday so he could be pulled out on Sunday there is no virtue in it. May the day speedily come when the Lord's Day will mean quiet, rest, recuperation of strength, waiting on the Lord to enlarge our vision and renew our lives.

What is the origin of the Lord's Day?

What are the values received in proper observance of the Lord's Day?

What are some dangers today that threaten the Lord's Day?

Three foundations of character building are: a pure heart, pure thoughts, and pure actions.

JOTTINGS

The group of Mennonite Sunday Schools about Mountain Lake, Minn., held their convention in the Bethel church on April 19. Rev. Lois Linscheid served as chairman. There were afternoon and evening sessions with discussions on appropriate themes.

It is reported from Geary, Oklahoma, where there is an active Mennonite church, that the dust storms, so common in the West, covered the tracks of the railroad, making it necessary to use snow plows to clear the right of way for the trains.

Rev. C. H. A. van der Smissen of Newton, Kansas, is still active in the ministry wherever he can be used. Recently he conducted services in the First church, Newton. Rev. van der Smissen was for many years the editor of the Bundesbote. He is the author of a valuable history of the Mennonites, published some years ago.

Miss Martha Penner, Ann Voth, and Mrs. K. Neufeld gave a Russian folk music concert in the chapel of Bethel some days ago. They were dressed in native Russian costumes and because of their intimate acquaintance of Russian life, presented an interesting program. Miss Linda Brown, also a student in the college, assisted as accompanist.

The small group of Mennonites at Wolf Point, Montana, gives evidence of being on the map. The Bethel church of that place gave an Easter program over the air. The choir rendered the music and Rev. Schultz gave the message.

Members and friends of the West Zion church, Moundridge, Mission Workers enjoyed a very interesting talk by Sister Frieda Kaufman of Bethel Hospital on her recent trip to Europe at their regular meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Leidig, members of the Upland, California congregation, recently presented the Upland church with a pipe organ which cost $5000.00. Plans are benig made for the installation of the organ in the very near future.

Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Duerksen of the mission station in Korba, India, are on furlough, having arrived in San Francisco on April 12. They have been on the field since 1926. Arriving on the same boat were Rev. and Mrs. Milton Voght of the India field. They will visit in California before going East.

Dr. and Mrs. Rudolphe Petter, of our Cheyenne mission in Montana, sailed for Europe on Saturday, May 5. Dr. Petter's translation of the New Testament into Cheyenne is one of the noteworthy contributions to Bible translation in years. The American Bible Society has circulated an account of his work which has received considerable publicity. The Bible Society is planning to give a picture of Dr. Petter at work in a publication shortly to appear. On the way to port, Dr. Petter was the guest of the Berne, Ind., church.

It is interesting to note that the Mennonite refugees who found a refuge in the wilds of Paraguay hardly more than five years ago and are still face to face with the hardships of pioneer life, have already begun doing missionary work among the native Indians who are their neighbors in that wilderness.

The Young People's Retreat of the Eastern District Conference will, as usual, be held at Green Lane in the beautiful Perkiomen Valley from June 21 to 23. Last year's Retreat was patronized to the limit of the camp's capacity, and it is expected that this year's attendance will be as large.

At its recent session the Pacific Conference received into its group the Dallas, Oregon, church. Rev. H. G. Widmer, the pastor, expects to attend the General Conference in August.

During the session of the Sunday School at Reedley a children's program was rendered, at which time four of the children of the missionaries Duerksen and Voght participated, the Duerksen and Voght families having returned from the field in India.

During the visit to the churches of the Western Conference, Rev. J. J. Balzer of Mountain Lake, Minnesota, visited many congregations. The church at Medford, Oklahoma, was one of those visited.

Rev. W. S. Shelly of the Wadsworth, Ohio, church visited the Dalton, O., church during a series of meetings conducted by the pastor, and was guest preacher at one. Rev. A. R. Kaiser is pastor of the Dalton church.

One of the interesting addresses given at the Religious Press Association meeting in Washington was that given by the editor of the Western Christian Advocate of the Methodist Church, in which he explained how an unusually large increase of subscriptions for his paper was secured during this period of hard times. The increase was brought about by an intensive drive on all the congregations, the pastors and officers throwing all of their energies into the effort.

The following notice of particular interest to members of the Middle District Conference is herewith given:

Dear Members of the Middle District Conference:—At last year's conference here in Pandora, Ohio, we took over the Lima Mission Project. The work is growing. Rev. and Mrs. Esau, with the help of resident Mennonites and others, are faithfully laboring in that field. The Lord is blessing the work. Prayer meetings are well attended. The Wednesday 4:00 P. M. Bible School with school children, an average of about 35 Sunday School attendance, has increased to 71, this being the last Sunday's attendance. Rev. Esau, with the help of Mennonite ministers of the neighboring churches, conducted a two weeks' revival service, resulting in one woman and a number of younger ones finding the Lord. Also the finding of others who once were Mennonites. Interest is growing steadily and the Lord is blessing that work.

The treasury is soon empty, and the Lord is depending on the churches of the Middle District Conference for the finances to carry on this work in Lima, saving souls for eternity.

We thus make a plea to the churches to remember this work in their prayers and with their gifts. One church in Toledo, Ohio, has twelve active missionaries in the field. And the missionary check for the month of March was $706.97. I believe that the Middle District with its more than 5000 members should be able as a special project to make up $600.00 extra over the other obligations. Let us give unto the Lord what belongs to Him and He will bless us.

P. A. Kliewer,
Chairman of Middle District Home Mission Board.
Bluffton, Ohio, April 23, 1935.

The minutes of the East Pennsylvania Conference which existed as an independent body nearly fifteen years before the General Conference, give several interesting items from the meetings of the 1848 and 1858 sessions. The 1848 minutes contain this resolution: "Directed that each congregation shall place small alm boxes on the side of the door where the members shall deposit their contributions in order to avoid confusion." The session of 1848 gives the first evidence of mission interest. Rev. John Oberholtzer was appointed to correspond with brethren in Europe to obtain information as to their method of mission work. Among the resolutions of the Conference of 1865 was the following: "Resolved, that inasmuch for a long period it has been the custom for the congregation to remain seated during the pronouncing of the benediction, this custom shall be changed and while the benediction is being pronounced, the congregation shall stand in honor of God, the giver of all blessings."

The program of the Eleventh All-Mennonite Sunday School Convention of Nebraska has appeared. The convention is to be held in the First Mennonite Church of Beatrice. Schools participating are: The Krimer Mennonite Brethren, Jansen; The Second Mennonite, Beatrice; Mennonite Brethren, Henderson; The First Mennonite, Beatrice; Bethesda, Henderson; Ebenezer, Henderson; Bethel, Henderson; Mennonite Brethren, Eldorado; Mennonite Brethren, Paxton; Pleasant View, Aurora. The date of the convention is May 19.

DEATHS

Isaac I. Warkentine, born in Sagradovka, South Russia, August 7, 1896. With his parents he migrated to Siberia, and then fled to China. In the year of 1916 he was baptized upon his confession of faith and accepted as a member of the Mennonite church. He was married to Helena Schmidt in 1917. To this union were born eight sons and two daughters; two sons and two daughters preceded the father in death. The family came to America in 1929 and located in the Deer Park, Washington, community. Later he bought a place near Tweedy. He passed away very suddenly Sunday night, April 14, at 10:30. He had just finished a letter, and arising from the chair, he fell over dead. Funeral services were conducted from the Mennonite church near Newport, Washington, the brethren M. J. Galle and Unruh speaking words of comfort.

Abraham Schowalter was born on January 14, 1868, at Hammerhof, Bavaria. In 1890 he emigrated to America, coming directly to Halstead, Kansas, where he found employment with farmers in Garden Township, and thus became established in a new world. On March 7, 1897, he was married to Anna Kaufman of Halstead. He moved to this city and became a member of the First Mennonite Church at that time. Three sons and three daughters came to bless the home, two dying in infancy. The marriage bond of 28 years was severed on October 1, 1925, when the faithful wife and mother, who had been an invalid for some time, was called from his side by death. Death came to him quietly at 11 A. M. on Wednesday, April 10, releasing him from the bonds of his affliction, which he had borne with great patience, without a murmur of complaint. He is sadly missed and mourned by his two daughters, two sons, three sisters, a brother and many relatives and friends. Funeral services were held at Halstead, Kansas, on April 13, at the First Mennonite Church, with his pastor, Rev. H. T. Unruh, in charge. Interment was made in the Halstead cemetery.

FOR THE GENERAL CONFERENCE PUBLICATIONS — APRIL

Emma Ringleman, Geary, Oklahoma	$ 1.00
Eastern District Conference, C. E. Union	25.00
Goessel Mennonite Church, Goessel, Kans.	13.50
Garden Township Church, Burrton, Kans.	6.31
Herald Church, Clinton, Okla.	6.38
Hoffnungsfeld Church, Moundridge, Kans.	15.49
First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pa.	1.54
K. A. Richert, General Conference treasurer	116.66
do	104.29
First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kans.	35.00
First Mennonite Church, Upland, Calif.	4.53
Emil Nagel, Sr., Berne, Ind.	5.00
Zion Church, Elbing, Kans.	14.75
Bethany Mennonite Church, Kingman, Kans.	10.77
Tabor Church, Goessel, Kans.	41.27
Wm. Dirks, Nappel, Wash.	.50
Gnadenberg Church, Whitewater, Kans.	32.66
Pretty Prairie Mennonite Church, Pretty Prairie, Kansas	46.49
Emmaus Church, Whitewater, Kans.	82.85
Total	$563.99

Sincerely yours,
E. W. Baumgartner, Treasurer.

All gains that cost character are losses.

We teach a little by what we say; we teach more by what we do; but we teach most by what we really are.

FRAMED "Bits-O'-Sunshine" MOTTOES

Here is what may aptly be termed "the last word" in mottoes. The sentiments and Bible verses used are the choice of many; they have been tried and proved for their meaningfulness and beauty.

Dainty landscape and floral designs are done in eight-color offset process on lovely silken finish material. Each motto is framed. In Neat Gift Boxes.

Nothing can take the place of framed pictures and mottoes. These are delicately tinted in silver, lavender, pea green, and robin egg blue. Just the right touches of color harmony are used by skilled artists who specialize in artful decorations. They are sure to please the most discriminating. Each motto is under best grade clear glass and comes with metal hanger. Boxed in fancy gift boxes. Priced reasonably and guaranteed to please. Offered only by the religious trade. Not sold in chain stores.

What God Hath Promised

What God Hath Promised
No. 750—Size 5½x7½—75 cents

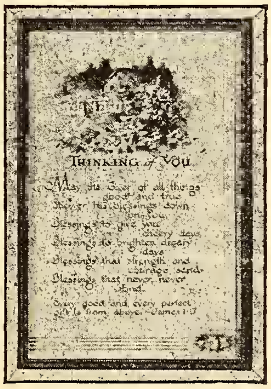
Mother and Home

Mother and Home
No. 751—Size 7½x5½—75 cents

The Twenty-third Psalm

The Twenty-Third Psalm
No. 503—Size 5½x5—50 cents

The Ideal All Occasion Gift



Thinking of You
No. 501—Size 4½x6½
50 cents

Just For Today

Just for Today
No. 504—Size 5½x5
50 cents

Somebody Cares

Somebody Cares
No. 502—Size 4½x6½
50 cents

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, JUNE 4, 1935 No. 11

EDITORIAL

A HISTORY OF THE MENNONITES IN ONTARIO

In the past considerable notice has been given to Mennonites as a colonizing people. In every century of its existence the Mennonite church has been under the necessity of seeking places where its people might live in peace and comfort to worship as they believed they should live and worship. Sometimes this colonizing was a necessity, at other times it has been a matter of choice. As early as Menno's time a community of Dutch Mennonites appeared in Danzig in East Prussia. The accounts of Mennonite settlements from Germany and Switzerland into Pennsylvania, the migration of Prussian Mennonites into South Russia, the coming of large parties of Mennonites from Russia into the United States and Canada in the 70's, and the pioneering of Russian Mennonites into Siberia and Turkestan, are familiar to Mennonites generally. The turn-over in Russia since the World War has resulted in making more Mennonite history in western Canada, in Brazil, in Mexico, and in Paraguay.

About the beginning of last century American Mennonites seriously undertook a colonization venture in another foreign country, the Province of Ontario in Canada. The movement deserves the special notice given it in a volume "A Brief History of the Mennonites in Ontario," written by L. J. Burkholder. It is an account of the pioneer life in its relation to the church as experienced by numerous Mennonite families who migrated from Pennsylvania to Canada during the period between the Revolutionary War and the war of 1812 and later that is brought down to the present day. Family names common to eastern Pennsylvania appear throughout the account. The book is richly illustrated and the writer happily succeeds in avoiding partisan bias in telling his story. The book sells for $2.25 and would be a well worth while addition to the library of any one interested in Mennonite affairs. G.

THE LARGER MINISTRY OF THE CHRISTIAN MINISTRY FROM A LAYMAN'S POINT OF VIEW

The wording of this subject suggests that there exisits an ordinary and common and somewhat restricted ministry, which reaches only into local and denominational circles. It also suggests that there may be exercised a Larger Ministry, the influence of which will reach out into ever-widening circles, becoming national and international in scope.

The consideration of this Large Ministry, to my mind, is very timely. If the Christian ministry ever faced a crisis, it is right now. It confronts a period just ahead which all agree is to be one of profound social change; one of the great turning points of history. Evidences of this change are already upon us. Our social and economic order has been rocked to its foundation all over the civilized world. The suicide rate has mounted to unprecedented heights and a disillusioned and anxious world is turning to all manner of experiments and panaceas in an effort to find a solution for its difficulties." On every hand we hear the cry, "We need Leadership"! Here is an unprecedented opportunity for the Christian ministry to furnish such a leadership as will produce the spark needed to start a world-wide revival, bringing the people back to a faith in God and Jesus Christ.

Fundamentally, what is the function of the Christian ministry in this larger sphere? I think it is to tell the people what they need; what they ought to want. Science does not concern itself very much about what people should want, but with the question of how to get the things that people do want. Men of science are concerned with the how of things, not with ultimate meanings and purposes. Therefore, science should be a complement to religion, but religion should take the lead and blaze the way. There is a great need and a greater opportunity for the Christian ministry to rise up and proclaim to the people the fundamental truths of the Gospel of Christ, and how to apply them to the problems confronting them. Now let us look at a few of these problems.

Through all recorded history, the world has faced the problem of want or poverty. Do you realize that this problem can be solved today? Not so many years ago a man had to depend on the power inherent in his own muscle and that of the animals domesticated, in order to get his work done. No matter how hard he worked, it was impossible for him to produce more than a fraction of what he wanted or needed. But in the last century and a half, man has tapped the energies of Nature and stepped up the power available to him manyfold. Today, one man can do by the touch of a hand what a thousand slaves never did. One of our great turbines can generate more energy than all the working population of ancient Egypt. As one man has put it, the economy of deficit has become the economy of surplus. The power is available today to provide all the people with a comfortable living. But poverty has not disappeared. In fact, it seems to have increased, for we see want and suffering on every side of us. What can the Christian ministry do about it? It can tell the people the truth. Let every pulpit in the land make it known that it is now physically possible to give everyone the material basis of the good life, and we will be a long way on the road to a solution of this problem. It seems to me in this crisis, that our political and industrial leaders are assuming the authority of educating the people in what the new way of life should be, whereas this authority should be vested in our Christian ministry who have the truth about this new way of life.

Another grave problem confronting the world is that of class distinctions and class warfare. It is entirely possible that this may become an open and bitter reality with all the weapons used in international war. In some countries this has come to pass, and the horrors of revolution have swept over the land. The Christian church is the one organization which we have which declares boldly that all are members of the common human family. And yet, after 1900 years of Christianity with its teaching of the brotherhood of man, we still have the spectacle of nation arrayed against nation, class against class, capital against labor, with the strong exploiting the weak. We still hear such phrases as "Struggle for Existence" and "Survival of the Fittest" and "Rugged individualism," which usually stands for "Ruthless individualism." Compare these phrases with the blunt statement of St. Paul in Rom. 15:1, "We that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak and not to please ourselves." The hour has struck when Paul's admonition mus be taken literally, or our civilization canno stand. The time has come when the Christian ministry must impress upon the people of th world that the Golden Rule must be actually lived.

A third great problem of today is the so-called youth problem. In a recent issue of th Christian Herald, Daniel Poling summarizes hi experiences covering 57 days of travel in European countries. In all the countries that h visited, among which were England, Germany, Russia, Austria, Italy, France, and Spain, h said that Youth was on the march! At th core of many of the so-called revolutions ar found the Youth of the land. This shows thei dissatisfaction with present conditions an their determination to have a change. In th youth of the world lies our hope of the future. Is the Christian ministry reaching and holdin the youth of our land? What is their answe to the challenge of Christ? Daniel Poling tell us of how a great youth movement within th church in Germany had repudiated the program of a NATIONAL Church, and of how, whil proclaiming its political loyalty to the Hitler government with an intensity difficult to reconcile, it had nevertheless concluded its resolution with these inspired words, "At whatever cost we choose Christ." "Just what does that mean"? Poling asked a German University Professor. He replied, "It may mean a new martyrdom." I ask again: What is youth's answer to the challenge of Christianity? What does it intend to do with phrases such as "Love thy neighbor as thyself," and "Do unto others as ye would that men should do unto you," and again, "Let him that hath two coats impart to him that hath none, and let him that hath meat do likewise"? It is a challenge to the Christian ministry to make such phrases so live that there will be born in the heart of youth the conviction that the application of these teachings will bring about an infinitely better way of life upon this earth.

Still another contribution which a Larger Ministry can make to our day is the fostering of a will among the people for world peace. Nineteen hundred years after the coming of the Prince of Peace, we have the picture of nations armed and arming to the teeth in preparation for the next war. We have the picture of nations groaning under the weight of taxes imposed to carry on the program of preparedness for war. We still have with us the disastrous results of the last war in huge war debts, loss of millions of lives, millions of broken bodies and broken hearts. How utterly absurd is a line of reasoning that proclaims any good can come to a nation from wholesale destruction of wealth and man-power, even if it is that of another nation! How utterly opposed to the teaching of the Prince of Peace! Due to the means and speed of communication, nations today are becoming more and more dependent on each other. They have in fact become neighbors. When will the Christian ministry give the answer to the question, "Who is my neighbor"? loudly enough and forcibly enough to make the nations of the world heed?

Then, also, we must not overlook the contribution our churches can make in holding up the plumb line of common righteousness and decency. A Christian ministry must hold up the mirror to human society and show men what it really is. They must indulge in destructive criticism when and where dishonesty and unrighteousness shows itself. It is refreshing to see that it was two clergymen, John Haynes Holmes and Rabbi Stephen Wise, who dared to speak out and flay the recent regime of the buffoon Walker in New York City. The Christian ministry is faithless if it does not attack fearlessly such evils as dishonesty, injustice, civic unrighteousness, and organized vice and crime.

Now, in order to make this Larger Ministry more effective, it needs a body of educated and intelligent laymen and laywomen. I include, therefore, as another objective of the Christian ministry, Christian education. I consider this so important that I question whether any denomination can preserve its identity that does not provide for the higher education of its young people. I believe that the real Christian leadership of the future, whether as minister or layman, must come from the denominational Christian schools where the principles of Christ are both taught and lived. I cannot see how such leadership can come from large state and private colleges and universities, where the success of an individual in life is measured by the material rather than the spiritual progress he makes. Therefore, the wide-awake Christian ministry of today must, if only to perpetuate itself, provide the means of giving its young people a higher education in a Christian atmosphere.

Now I have mentioned a few of the outstanding fields of larger service for the Christian ministry. You will note I have not mentioned missions or evangelism. I feel that this work of the Christian church is so firmly rooted and accepted that it should be classed as coming under the ordinary activities of each denomination. Perhaps there are some who say that the church has no responsibility in some or all of the fields I have mentioned. Such may say that religion is purely an individualistic matter and that it should not enter into the economic and social realms. But I say a man's life cannot be so readily divided into various spheres. If our religion does not enter into our everyday business and social life, where we spend most of our time, it will not have much effect in the few moments we devote to it. In the last analysis, Christianity is a complete "way of life." It has a vision of a world completely organized around the principle of love. It can never be satisfied with less than the rule of God realized in all human life. It prays, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven."

JOTTINGS FROM INDIA

Here is Food for Thought. When the earthquake hit Bihar, India, last year, it affected millions of people and left them in ruin and desolation. Then was it that Mahatma Gandhi cabled, "Collect money in England from friends," and Rabindranath Tagore wrote, "Kindly approach friends in England and America."

Why did not they, especially Tagore, who is a great friend of Russia, look to Russia? If he had, then what?

* * * *

More Food for Thought. It was a Sunday afternoon of March 1932. I left Jharband at 1 P. M. by bicycle, went twelve miles to Chananpur, arrived at three P. M., and traveled part of the way over one of the through highways planned between Calcutta and Bombay. Though it was Sunday, and although it was over this transcontinental highway, on all this trip I did not meet a single motor car, nor a cycle, nor an ox cart, nor a vehicle of any sort.

* * * *

The Sword of the Spirit. "Last night I was wounded." Thus spoke Chattersingh, proud of his position as one of several Gond leaders over an area as large as Pennsylvania. "Did one of our group hurt you, or someone else"? asked our co-workers. "When Padre Singh spoke, he said that we were all like lost sheep, that I was like a lost sheep, and that sin had separated us from God. That went straight to my heart as the bullet from a gun to the heart of a forest deer," said the Gond.

This man is under deep conviction. He represents the vast Gond community stretching 1000 miles across the central portion of India. Native kings are of this race. Before the coming of the Aryans and Moslems, in the olden days, they ruled everywhere. Chattersingh himself had disciples over an area of 400 miles in diameter. If he comes out for Christ, — —?

* * * *

The Power of the Cross. The country of the Gonds is a rough, wild country. Tiger, panther, wild pig, bear, monkeys, various sort of deer abound. Recently the husky dogs of the central village where we camped, banded together and attacked and killed a panther. In another village, while our co-workers were cooking their evening meal, a dog stood at a safe distance from their cooking pots, licking his chops. Up swooped a panther, snatched him off and carried him away.

Into the midst of these hardy folk we cam with the message of Jesus Christ and the lesson on the cross. The hardy Gonds may fac tiger and panther and the viccissitudes of life Day and night they have to watch their field to save them from the ravages of deer, pig, an bear. But the other night, these same Gond wept like babes when the lesson of the crucifixion was taught for the first time. Among those whose tears streamed down was Jiy Lall, Mukerdam, chief assistant to the headma of his village by our central camp.

Your comrade in His service,
Samuel T. Moyer.
Basna, C. P. India, March 7, 1935.

RESISTING THE FORCES OF EVIL

"But I would like to be baptized now. Tomorrow is Sunday, Sahib, please do not put m off. The forces of evil are strong, and now have a great desire." Such was the sentimen of the earnest request which came from the tal young man who came to the bungalow as soo as he noticed that the motor (car) had brough Penners in from tour. And his argument prevailed. He was baptized the following day February 10, in a simple and impressive ceremony. To the questions he gave clear and definite answers and with oriental dramatic skil he emphasized the fact that he was willing t deny all pleasures, vanities, sinful practices idol worship, and evil customs by making appropriate motions to suit his words. We rejoice in the courage of Baharta, the most recent convert from the nearby para at Janjgir Forces of evil are great, opposition is bitter even after years of mission effort and tha right adjoining the Christian community.

We missionaries often have argued that i seems best for men to wait for their wives t join them before they are baptized. Yet many a man has come out alone and surely the wife has followed after she, too, was convicted and converted. One came after a month, others only after a year or two of prayer and teaching Serious problems arise among new Christians when their social structure becomes disrupted So we need to pray earnestly that this man's wife may soon welcome a new light to shine in her darkness. It would mean so much for the future of their small child, too!

A verse came home to me with new force and led me to self-examination, confession and a great desire to love my blessed Lord more and more. It is Hebrews 12:4, "Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin." Have any of us done so? Helen T. Nickel.
Janjgir, C. P.

LAST PLACE OF MERCY

Only those guilty of the crime know who kidnaped the Lindbergh child. But crime exacts its toll in some form or degree. But what penalty should be assessed, death without mercy? Does accidental killing constitute murder in God's reckoning? Has He not reserved for the uttermost sinner a place of mercy through penitence and faith in the divine atonement, if availed of while he lives? Then, is capital punishment Christian? Dread results will not obviate crime entirely. Despite the age-old fact that the "way of transgressors is hard," offenders continue to invite misery to their own breast, misery self-inflicted, in kind like that endured by the finally impenitent. To what pains men will go to bring this unhappy condition! Yet the Father, far from despising His handiwork, solicitous for our well-being, anticipates this possibility in a merciful preventitive. The Bible rings out His warnings, appeals, pleadings, "Keep back thy servant from presumptuous sins," taking liberties, slight departures, "then shall I be innocent from the great transgression." A clear conscience, better than repentance, reform, or forgiveness. What a happy world indeed, peopled with unsullied children as when "all the sons of God shouted for joy," the Creator envisioned this to be.

A stock pen stood in the center of a meadow. "To keep stock in"? was asked. "No, to keep it out," was the reply. It surrounded an unused well. But jumpers persisted in leaping over it to their injury. Many men are no wiser, but transgress God's "thou shalt not" and come to grief. Yet there is held out to the "presumptuous" sinner, and to the "great transgressor" one final provision of mercy. Dives, the rich man, even after closing his heart to the voice of pleading at his gate, thereby losing the coveted privilege of helping a fellow man to live, but contributed instead to his death, could have had recourse to this same merciful offer; for still the Father's mercy lingered, as in His tearful pleading with Ephraim, "How can I give thee up, Ephraim"? And to Cain, "If thou doest not well, sin (offering) lieth at the door." Always an acceptable offering has awaited transgressors who repent through the atonement once made for all, but of avail only in the present life—"Now is the day of salvation." Now is Jesus "near," now He can be "found." This Dives ignored. What an oversight! When he "lifted up his eyes" he saw only Abraham and Lazarus, Christ being strangely out of the picture, for an evident reason—viz He was no longer available for sinners; the last proffer of mercy had been exhausted. But what of the death penalty man imposes, which leaves no such place of mercy. Alive, one may repent, reform, and be saved. Dead, this possibility is forever precluded. Cole Youngers bandits were spared to life imprisonment. Younger repented and not only lived exemplary during his 27 year term in the Minnesota prison, but ministered the gospel of hope and blessing to his fellow prisoners; Cole died a Christian. Does capital punishment accord with this divine offer of mercy to transgressors who will repent, whose sins were borne by the Great Sin-Bearer?

T. Richardson Gray.
Edgewood, Iowa.

VOICES FROM BIBLE LANDS

It is springtime and all Judaea is astir with the spirit of the season. The spring flowers of a thousand varieties are spreading themselves over hillside and valley, and filling the morning breeze with their sweet perfumes. Indeed, everything in nature suggests the sacredness and the reality of His presence. Jerusalem has entered the spirit of Easter. The Christians are celebrating the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus of Nazareth, all of which is very embarrassing to the defenseless Jew, for the Jew to this day contends that his people did not crucify Jesus, if indeed, such a person as Jesus ever existed. . . .

To visit the "City of David," the Shepherds' Field, the stable, and the little grotto in Bethlehem; to walk leisurely along the streets of Nazareth, and to meditate among the ruins of Capernaum; to rest in quiet along the shell-strewn shores of Lake Galilee; to visit Bethany by moonlight, and the traditional home of Mary and Martha, the temple area in Jerusalem, the Garden of Gethsemane, Mount Calvary, the empty tomb, the Mount of Olives, is to hear His voice again and to join hands with Him across the centuries which stretch between His day and ours. Here along the byways, among the hills and through the valleys, along the moonlit brook of Kidron, and among the gray olives of Gethsemane, one is conscious of His divine presence once more and there comes into one's life a consciousness of His reality which the western world can not give.

The course of events in Bible lands since the Great War are moving along with increasing acceleration, and the Holy Land of Bible times will not remain long. Today there are three leading tendencies:

First: Among the Arabs. In Palestine today there are more than 600,000 Arabs whose supreme interest seems to be the building of a strong Arab nationalism. The Arab feels keenly that Palestine as a country belongs to him; particularly so since the Jew, in early Christian centuries, left it for other parts of the world . . . The Arab Nationalistic Movement was organized in Jerusalem in recent years and at the time made several positive declarations: (1) That all Arab countries are an indivisible unity. (2) That all artificial boundary lines set by the Colonial Powers are not recognized by the Arabs. (3) That the Balfour Declaration and the Mandate are rejected and refused by the Arabs. And (4) the union of all Arab States and the independence of united Arabia . . . .

Second: Among the Jews. Today there are in Palestine more than 300,000 Jews whose supreme aim and purpose is to restore and build up the Land of their Fathers into a Jewish National State. The Balfour Declaration to the effect that the British government would look with favor on the establishment in Palestine of a National Home for the Jewish people, and that they would use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement, greatly pleases the Jew, but also greatly provokes the Arab. Today the Zionist Jew is enthusiastic in the establishment of such a State. Some progress has been made, the Jews today constituting 26% of the total population, owning 10% of the land, and supplying nearly 50% of the school children . . . . . It must be remembered that Zionism today claims to be an atheistic rather than religious movement. It is social and economic, practically every settlement being communistic. The more liberal Jew as wel as the orthodox Jew, is opposed to the movement. The Zionist Jew does not appear at th Wailing Wall, while the orthodox Jew connects the return of the Jews to Palestine wit the coming of the Messiah.

Third: Among the Christians. The Christian population of Palestine today is abou 100,000. The churches in the land today, particularly in Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth, most of them, seem to have forgotten, i indeed they ever knew, that Christianity, th religion of our Lord Jesus Christ, is not "place," but a "grace" religion. The tendenc among Christians in the land is to attach virtue to place, rather than to the grace of ou Lord. It is true, the churches have establishe schools, and have done much for education, an I would be happy if I could say that the tendencies among Christians were toward Christian education, toward the race of brotherliness; but the truth is, the tendency is towar "place" and the possession of those spots believed to have been made sacred by a ver highly idealized Jesus of Nazareth. Place i constantly emphasized to the neglect of race.

To visit and appreciate this land at Christmas or at Easter time one must be able to loo beyond the smallness of men; one must b able to look beyond the pettiness, the jealousie of priests and bishops. The voice from th tomb, "He is not here, for He is risen as H said," still rings in our ears. If we ever fin Jesus it will not be in place, but in grace; it wil be in a new spirit, the spirit of humility. W will find Him in a new ideal, the ideal of lov and good will; in a new motive, the motive o the will of God, and in a new purpose, the purpose revealed in the Kingdom of God. It i Easter and Jesus has risen far above place an race; far above tongue and color; far abov sects and creeds. Jesus is the Christ, not onl of the "Indian Road," but of every man's road May we hope that the day is not far distan when this land shall be internationalized an made the land of sacred memories and pilgrimages, the house of prayer, for all men, fo every race, and for all nations.

The story is continued in my "VOICE FROM BIBLE LANDS," which has just gon to press.

With sincere wishes,

J. E. Hartzler.

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN

Office of Publication........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS

Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance........$1.50
Foreign $2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

THE WORLD'S CHALLENGE

(Concluded from last issue)

At the close 38 students favored retaining the eighteenth amendment, two favored repeal, and five did not express themselves. If we were to stick to a close examination of the facts, the drys would win. No wonder the wets resort to noisy demonstrations and mass psychology.

The church is indeed in a dilemna concerning this question. When prohibition is mentioned in the pulpit, a cry is raised that they are preaching politics. Is prohibition a moral question? I grant you that whether or not you take a moderate drink may not constitute a moral problem. Yet the prohibition problem, because it involves corruption, vice, creating of new appetites for alcohol, and the possible destruction of the morals of thousands of our boys and girls, becomes an acute moral problem. It must therefore be dealt with fearlessly in the churches. We are approaching a crisis in prohibition.

The world is asking what we are going to do about the millions who are not Christians. What are we going to do about missions? Millions in China, India, Japan, Africa, and other parts of the world are without Christianity. The Christian religion is essentially a missionary religion. Jesus invited His followers to be fishers of men. Later they were commanded to spread the story of Jesus throughout the world. Yet today, nearly two thousand years after that time, there are still millions who have not heard the story of light.

Many of these are living not only in spiritual darkness, but they are suffering from superstitions, ignorance, and inherited customs. They are preyed upon by diseases which could be cured. We must concern ourselves with their physical suffering as well as their spiritual condition.

The depression is seriously hampering our missionary program. All churches are finding difficulty in meeting their budgets. Curtailments are necessary. Yet every curtailment means that some human being must live longer in suffering and darkness, without the story of Jesus. It means that some will die without receiving that light, who might otherwise have been saved. This is a serious problem.

Missionary budgets cannot continue indefinitely to go further and further into debt. Incomes of church members have been reduced to the point where maintaining their missionary contributions has become difficult if not impossible. We must be careful, however, that the greatest percentage of the cut in our budgets is not made in our giving allotment. This is a time when we must sacrifice, if our missions are to be maintained, if the command of Jesus to carry the story to all peoples is to be heeded. Our foreign missionaries have done their bit in delaying furloughs and accepting five year working periods. It is up to us to make a sacrifice comparable to theirs.

In our own country there are many without Christ. It is well known that many in our cities are not Christians. Listen to the following concerning some of our rural communities. Ten thousand American communities have no type of church. Thirty thousand American rural communities have no pastor in residence. Thirteen million four hundred thousand American children under twelve years of age receive no sort of religious instruction. In Clare County, Mich., 11 townships with 46 public schools and an enrollment of 1,000 children and an English speaking population of 4,640, there is no church. In Kansas in an American community of prosperous farmers there were children sixteen years old who had not heard of Jesus Christ. Maine's church attendance is one in seven. One community of 2,100 people has 24 church members. Certainly such conditions in our own country constitute a serious challenge.

These men, whether American, Indian, African, or whatever blood, are human brothers. We profess to believe that the souls of men are more important than their physical lives. If the lives of all these people were in serious danger, we would bestir ourselves to save them. But with their souls in grave danger, we are not worried. Is it any wonder that the world doubts our sincerity?

If we are to maintain our missionary enterprises we must get together as a conference and work together. According to recent information from our missionary treasurers, our home mission treasury has debts totaling $11,000, while the foreign treasury is about $3,500 in arrears. Yet in spite of this condition, we find those in our conference who will support almost any other missionary enterprise than our own. We are responsible for our own missions. No one else will finance them for us. Whatever we can find it in our hearts and pocketbooks to give should be given for the support of our own enterprises. Only in this way can conference bankruptcy be prevented.

There are many other challenges which the world presents, but we do not have time to discuss them in detail. The present economic situation is a challenge. By the sweat of a man's brow he should eat bread, but a condition in which a man does not even have the chance to sweat is intolerable. It is a problem for the church, moral issues are involved.

There is a challenge in Christian education. I have attended both a Christian college and a State institution. There is a vast difference in being taught by Christian professors or by those who even make light of Christian principles in the classroom. Our Christian colleges are a mighty force in maintaining the principles of Jesus among our young people. They are fighting the depression with their backs to the wall. This is a challenge we must meet.

There is one outstanding prerequisite to successfully meeting any of these challenges. We must stand together. A house divided against itself cannot stand. Neither can a church or a conference divided against itself meet the world's challenge. It is time that we realized that our primary job is to save souls and that the challenge of the world must be met. Both progressives and conservatives have been too insistent on their interpretations being correct. With the world waiting to be saved, with pressing problems to be solved, we have been quibbling about method rather than getting things done. Nero fiddling while Rome burned was humanitarian compared with that. We might compare it with a man arguing whether to throw the switch with the right hand or with the left while a loaded train rushes on to destruction. When we learn to magnify the things upon which we can agree, and minimize the things upon which we disagree, when we are willing to give the other fellow the benefit of belief in his sincerity, when we are ready to forget self and cooperate to save souls and meet the world's challenge, then, shoulder to shoulder, together with God, we can make a successful assault upon the forces of evil. Then we can fight with hope of success for peace, temperance, and the spread of Christianity throughout the world.

EIGHTH CENTRAL CONFERENCE MENNONITE YOUNG PEOPLE'S RETREAT

The Eighth Central Conference Mennonite Young People's Retreat will be held at the Calvary Mennonite Church, Washington, Illinois, June 8-9, 1935. Rev. H. E. Nunemaker of Tiskilwa, Illinois, is the general chairman of the Retreat.

Registration will begin Saturday morning, June 8, as the young people arrive. The first session will begin at 9:00 A. M., with the devotion conducted by the chairman.

The first classes will meet at 9:40 A. M. The courses and instructors are: "The Church and the Kingdom," Rev. I. R. Detweiler; "Finding My Place in Life," Rev. P. E. Whitmer; and "Message of Hosea," Rev. Wm. B. Weaver. There will be three class periods throughout the two days.

The Open Forum will be conducted by Rev. Earl Salzman of Topeka, Indiana, who also preaches the sermon on Sunday morning.

The Sunset Service on Saturday evening will be in charge of Rev. Jacob Sommer, Peoria, Ill., and on Sunday evening Rev. Sam Ummel, Norton, Illinois.

On Sunday afternoon a missionary session will be held at which time Rev. and Mrs. Archie Graber, returned missionaries from the Belgian Congo, will speak.

The Peace Declamatory contest will be held on Saturday evening. This program is sponsored by the Christian Endeavor Union.

CORRESPONDENCE

Topeka, Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. The Ladies' Aid met Thursday, May 2, at the church.

Mrs. Ira Hostetler and Mrs. Roy Jones and daughter Gloria and son Quinn visited relatives and friends in Oklahoma recently.

Funeral services for Mr. A. L. Bender were held Saturday afternoon, May 4, at the home, Rev. Salzman officiating. The family has our sympathy.

Sunday morning, May 5, Rev. and Mrs. Jesse Smucker and children of Smithville, Ohio, were present at the services. Rev. Smucker delivered the morning message.

Sunday evening, May 5, Judge Clarence R. McNabb of Fort Wayne was present and spoke at the service. He is a judge of the juvenile court.

The members of the Dorcas class were guests Thursday, May 9, of Mrs. R. A. Hartzler.

The ladies of the Good Fellowship class met Thursday afternoon, May 9, with Mrs. Cletus Horley.

The Crusaders class met for a social time Saturday evening, May 11, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Boheck.

Mother's Day, May 12, was observed by a Mother's Day sermon and a concentration service for children in the morning. A beautiful potted plant was presented the oldest mother present, which was Mrs. Mary Zook. In the evening a Mother's Day pageant, "The Light That Did Not Fail," was given.

Rev. and Mrs. Salzman attended a ministers' meeting and board meeting at Bloomington, Illinois, and visited relatives at Danvers and Carlock, Illinois. They were accompanied home by Dorothy and Margaret Salzman, who had spent several weeks at the Rev. Wm. Weaver home.

Sunday evening, May 19, a musical program was given by the Sack orchestra from Ligonier.

Whitewater, Kansas, May 12, 1935. We have had some very interesting C. E. programs this year. Four churches in this community (the Federated and Methodist C. E. in Whitewater, the Swiss Mennonite C. E., and the Emmaus C. E.) have an Easter Sunrise Service each year. This year we gathered in the Federated church. It was a beautiful morning, so the service was well attended. Each C. E. had a talk and one number of special music. The talks were all based on the subject of Easter. "The Value of a Sunrise Service," "The Proof of the Resurrection," and the like. Each one of the gospels tells of the risen Christ; if that is not enough proof, what about the millions of Christians in all these years. If it were but a story it would have been lost long ago.

Another program was Mennonite History. This started with the beginning of the Protestant and then the Mennonite church. There was also a biography of Menno Simon. The reasons for leaving Russia and West Prussia. The journey from Germany to America as it had been written by John Harder, Sr., some years ago, parts were read, as it was too long for all of it to be read. He told how, before they left, men had been sent to America to see how the land was—just like the Israelites did before they entered Canaan. These men returned with a good report, so they started out and finally came to Halstead, Kansas, where they stayed with friends. There were six families. From Halstead the men went to look at the land in Kansas and Nebraska. They finally decided they liked the land in Butler County, Kansas, best. Then came the task of building. The first building erected was a granary. This was also used for church services until they had a schoolhouse they could use. The granary is still standing. The schoolhouse was used for services until the first Emmaus church was built.

Our last program was out of doors. We had a picnic lunch after the program. Rev. Theo. Roth spoke to us. He told us how just before the dawn of a new day a star comes up as if to lead the sun. Just before dawn is the darkest time of the night—so it was true in the Bible. The four hundred years between Malachi and the birth of Christ were the darkest too. Then came a star that led the wise men to the Son that has been lighting the way for us all these years. As nothing is hidden from the sun, neither is anything hidden from Christ.

The Emmaus C. E. Correspondent.

Tabor Church, Goessel, Kansas, May 13, 1935. We as church have received many spiritual blessings this year, for which we are very grateful to our Heavenly Father. Yes, we can say with the Apostle Paul, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ." Ephesians 1:3.

We have been privileged to meet every Sunday in the House of God except a few times on account of bad weather. Some members live ten to fifteen miles distant and it is not possible for them to come regularly.

On April 14, we observed communion. The week following Easter, April 28 to May 3, we had a series of evening meetings. Rev. J. J. Plenert of Hutchinson gave us inspiring sermons. The men's chorus and the ladies' choir served alternately each evening. Three evenings the services were in German, so the old folks all could share in the blessings. Rev. Edgar Frank of Minden, Ohio, preached Sunday morning, April 28.

The Sunday School is increasing in enrollment. Last fall we had to organize two new classes, one German and the other English. There is enough talent for teachers. Rev. P. H. Richert, our elder, conducts a class in catechism during the Sunday School hour.

The Christian Endeavor societies meet regularly with few exceptions. The Juniors, under the leadership of Sister Martha Schmidt, and the Seniors meet at the same hour, the former meeting in the basement of the church. The Intermediates meet on the evening of the second following Sunday of the other two societies. Brother Abraham Schmidt is the sponsor. At the same hour the others meet for a Bible Study Hour. The Gospel of Matthew was started at the beginning of the new year.

Every Wednesday evening a group of young people meets at the church and studies Stewardship. Rev. Richert is the instructor. The Sunday School teachers and officers meet monthly. Problems relating to work of the Sunday School and the lessons are discussed.

Also we have experienced bereavement. Three members have been called by death: Mrs. B. B. Neuman, Mrs. Jacob H. Neufeld, and John H. Voth. D. S. Thiessen, Corr.

Canton, Oklahoma, April 29, 1935. Dear Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel: Just a few lines to let you know that we are still here and going—though we must admit, sometimes we are not sure just which way we are going, forward or backward, as far as the welfare of these Indians is concerned. Before the application of the present administrations new deal on these Indians we could notice a gradual progress and we felt that eventually the time would come when these people could take a place in the national economy, but the present policy has — in our estimation — proven detrimental to these people mentally, morally and above all, spiritually. One cannot help but feel sorry for the people, for they are in their present condition a product of capacity of the white man on the one hand, and his well-meant but often ill-advised policy on the other. The former is, of course, altogether inexcusable, the latter we can readily criticize, but to remedy the conditions is quite a different proposition.

Our Indians were recently released from the conservation relief work camps. This work was offered to them to tide them over the present difficult time. They were not only to earn enough to keep them supplied with the necessities of life, but they were to save enough of these earnings to take care of them a while after the work would cease. Few, if any, did that, only in the case where the Government retained a part of their earnings did they have anything left when the work ceased. Some were owing more in the stores than their last checks amounted to, and so were left with less than nothing when the work was over and they should begin on their places with the spring work. Much of this is due to mismanagement and quite a little to downright squandering. Much of the latter would have been prevented in former years, but under the present policy they are to have a new deal, a square deal according to their own notion, with as little interference from those in charge as possible. The employee is dependent for his position upon the good will of the Indian under his charge. Every one can readily see what dire results such a situation may bring about.

Such conditions in the material affairs necessarily affect very deeply the spiritual work, especially so since the new policy encourages in every way the aboriginal rites and customs and hampers the Christian teaching.

However, the Lord has His own even among this people, and adds to the church — even though it is not daily as in the early church— such as should be saved. On Easter Sunday we had the privilege of receiving a man into church membership. Another man wished to be received upon confession of faith, but was not able to be present at the time.

Recently the keeper of the so-called sacred arrows died. His wife had died about a year before. His predecessor and wife died only a few years ago within a few days of each other. It has started the talk among the Indians that the keepers of the arrows do not live very long. They may have difficulty in finding anyone who is willing to be the next "victim."

The work among these people has always been difficult, but it is more so now than ever before and we solicit your earnest prayers in behalf of this people and us, your representatives in the field. G. A. Linscheid.

Avon, South Dakota, May 3, 1935. Dear Readers: I feel and know that it is my duty to send a little report of our mission society, which we are still carrying on with the help of our Lord and Savior. We feel His nearness, for He blesses us. Even in the past month and the beginning of this month He has blessed us with the much needed rain. Everything looks revived and refreshed. We hope that we may also have been refreshed spiritually and may have been brought closer to the Lord.

Our society meets once a month, which meeting is held in the homes of the members. The sister of the home where we meet opens the meeting with a song, Scripture reading, and prayer. After that we take up our work, or rather sewing. We have been doing quite a lot of fancy work, like pillow cases and dresser scarfs and sewing together of blocks for a comfort. These things sell easy and we are able to raise a little money in this way. During the period of sewing the News and Notes are read, which we all enjoy very much.

We take a collection every time we meet. We also have a Birthday Box and everyone is permitted to bring the birthday pennies. This is also a great help. We are supporting a worker in India. It is a pleasure to help along in the work of the Lord in this way. Once in a while we have been able to help out a little at places where help is needed.

We are about twenty members that can come together generally, others that come home for the vacation months help along very nicely then.

Our membership is not so large, but we are glad for these; the Lord is also with those that are few in number. Mrs. Henry J. Becker.

Saron Mennonite Church, Orienta, Oklahoma. On Easter Sunday the men's quartet from Bethel College, with Prof. Otto Unruh, visited our morning worship and rendered a short program, which was appreciated by a large audience.

On Monday evening after Easter the men's chorus from the Meno church rendered a fine song service in the church here.

During the Easter season we also had the privilege of having Rev. J. W. Bergens from Texline, Texas, with us and Rev. Bergen served us with sermons in the morning and evening, continuing until Wednesday evening.

Rev. J. J. Balzer was here on Thursday evening, April 25, in the interest of the Publication Board.

The choirs are busy practicing songs for the Song Festival which will be held on Sunday afternoon of the Oklahoma convention.

The Women's Mission Society gave a mission program three weeks ago. An offering was taken at this time, which will go to the Diamond Jubilee Fund.

Mrs. August Schmidt, Corr.

First Mennonite Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio. Greetings! On Sunday, June 2, at 10 A. M., the pastor will be ordained as minister and elder in the Union Church by the Rev. Howard G. Nyce of Allentown, Pa.

The installation services will be held at 8 P. M. on the same day. The installation sermon will be preached by the Rev. Wilmer S. Shelly of Wadsworth, Ohio. The congregation will be charged by the Rev. Jesse N. Smucker of Smithville, Ohio, and the pastor will be charged by the Rev. Austin R. Keiser of Dalton, Ohio.

The pastor's mother, his brother, Richard, and his uncle, Henry G. Stauffer, and wife are planning a trip to Sugar Creek for the above occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gerber are the proud parents of a son, Marlan Eugene.

On Easter Sunday morning Miss Mildred Mason of Dover and Mr. Marvin Hostetler were united in holy matriomny by the pastor.

Miss Arlene Mullet was received into the Fellowship of the church on Easter Sunday.

On Thursday, May 2, Miss Florence Bender of near Fiat and Mr. Glenn Schutt were united in holy matrimony by the Rev. Edward Shepfer.

The Mother-Daughter Banquet was held in the basement of the church on Tuesday, May 14th. Corr.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

"And so beside the silent sea
I wait the muffled oar,
No harm can come from Him to me
On ocean or on shore.

"I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air,
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care."
—Whittier, "The Eternal Goodness."

A CHALLENGE TO SERVICE

An exceptional opportunity is afforded to the young people of our General Conference to attend the Seventy-fifth Jubilee Conference sessions this summer, August 4-10. Plan to stay for the General Conference Retreat in the San Bernardino Mountains, to be held immediately after the Conference. There will be good leaders and a good program in store for all.

Every church is urged to make their contribution toward the Jubilee Fund which has for its goal the clearing away of all deficits. The young people of every active church have here an opportunity for real service. It is here suggested that every Y. P. Society assign to some committee the task of passing a subscription list to both young and old, gathering contributions for this most worthy cause. Since money is coming a little easier, let us show our loyalty to our church by eliminating those nightmare debts, especially those of our Publication and Mission Boards. Some gifts may be large and others small, but every little helps. Will you do your share?

SIMPLICITY

Many persons scoff at the idea of living a simple life. It is too slow, too tame, too monotonous. They want life on a big scale—two or more motors, a town and a country house, annual trips abroad, a great abundance of material things.

They want activity, speed, excitement—go!

Does it pay? Does it bring happiness? Does it build character? These are things most people really want, but sacrifice them in the incessant pursuit of pleasure and personal power.

When you choose to live a simple life, subtle influences will constantly work to lead you away from it. Circumstances will conspire to lure you into a bigger world of strenuous activity, where great fortunes are made and the bitter contest for supremacy transcends all other considerations.

Simple things of the world still confound the wise.

Have you ever thought of how simplicity has characterized the lives of noble men of all time?

There is simplicity of thought. Satisfied with simple truths and principles, it does not clutter the mind with abstruse problems or philosophical vaporings.

There is simplicity of taste. The desire for right appearance, but not for vulgor show.

There is simplicity of habit. Satisfied with simple food, simple occupations and diversions.

There is simplicity of purpose. Free from overweening ambition, but with a clear desire to achieve something worth-while.

There is simplicity of speech. The use of the short, crisp word. A desire to be clear rather than brilliant.

There is simplicity of religion. A belief in God and His beneficent rule over mankind. A simple faith in Christ that sustains one through storm and sunshine.

Cultivate the greatness of simplicity. It is the golden key to contentment.

—G. K.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

June 16, 1935

Why Is Gossip Harmful?

James 3:1-6

In these next two weeks we will discuss some very practical topics which deal rather intimately with life. This week we deal with the negative phase, namely gossiping and slander, and next week we will consider the virtue of having only a kindly spirit toward all.

There is a fable told which likens a gossip scattering lies and slander to the emptying of a bag of feathers which, when once they are caught by the wind, can never be gathered together again. Gossiping is like that, it will rob an individual of his reputation, leave many pangs of pain, and much ill-will between those who should be friends.

That the evils of the tongue have always been a problem with all men is very evident from the fact that many of the Bible writers warn Christians against the same Paul, speaking about this troublesome little member, the tongue, warns in I Timothy 5:13 against those who idly wander from house to house as tattlers and busybodies, speaking things they ought not to speak. In Romans 3:13 the throat is called an open sepulchre and the words passing over the lips are likened unto the poison of asps when a gossiping hypocrite is under consideration. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh," so if any man thinketh he is religious and bridleth not his tongue his religion is vain.

Questions

1. What is meant by gossiping?
2. Why does human nature find delight in gossip and slander?
3. What is a safe rule to determine what should be left unsaid?
4. What is the relationship between slander, reputation, and character?
5. What does the Bible say about a gossiping tongue?
6. Why is it impossible for a true child of God to be a gossip?

Every human being is intended to have a character of his own, to be what none other is, to do some certain work none other can do.

June 23, 1935

Cultivating An Eye For Goodness

I John 2:15-17; Matt. 6:22-23

"Take the world, but give me Jesus,
All its joys are but a name;
But His love abideth ever,
Through eternal years the same."

To be a child of God is a way of salvation, but it is also a philosophy of life, it means a peculiar way of looking at things. Over against being a gossip it means to think and speak only kindly about all men. John says, "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." God will have first place in a man's life. Many things which heretofore were primary now become secondary. When one becomes a Christian then money will no longer be an important end of life, but it will become a servant and a means to an end. Political power, fame and glory are of no account unless by means of it Jesus Christ will be glorified. We can then say with Paul, "I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified." Oh, the glory and joy of having a purpose like that! Life will then become transformed and meaningful.

In the planning of this program, endeavor to show the change which will come into all of life when a person will be truly born again with new motives, desiring to give forth only sweet and constructive words and deeds. A sweet fountain cannot give forth bitter water, neither can a bitter fountain give forth sweet water. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Questions

1. Why will a true child of God have an eye for goodness?
2. Tell about the transforming power of the love of Christ.
3. How will a child of God think of money?
4. Name some old desires that must be replaced when a person becomes a Christian.
5. Compare the joys of a Christian with those of a non-Christian.
6. Give some rules for finding only that which is good in others.
7. Relate some instances when Jesus had only an eye for goodness.
8. How would our topic change our attitude toward other races, classes, and nations?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Illinois

June 16, 1935

Physical Health For Spiritual Living
II Tim. 1:1-7

It is better to have health and a clear conscience with a small bank account than indigestion and remorse with a big one.

Pre-Prayer

Ask for strength to withstand the petty temptations that pull us down physically and spiritually.

Many of the physical difficulties of the school child are caused by the wrong sort of habits. Habit formation is the basis of character, and in much the same way is also the basis of health. When bad health habits are formed early in life it is a very difficult matter to break them later, for they become an almost unconscious part of daily life. On the other hand sound health habits should be largely a matter of automatic action on our part. But good health habits can be acquired only through definite conscious action at first, and such action must be based on acurate knowledge.

More than three million people in the United States and Canada are sick all of the time, yet at least half of this sickness might be prevented. At least one and one-half billion dollars are lost every year through the waste of preventable diseases, to say nothing of lost happiness and permanently reduced vigor. Much of this sickness is caused by the neglect in early life of sensible health habit formation.

Teen-age boys and girls are usually in good health if they obey the simple laws of health. The reason for their natural health is their activity and love of outdoor life; the reason for their illness is their own wasting of physical power in a time of physical change and growth.

The rules of health for young people are not many, but they are important.

1. Eat plenty of good food at regular meal times. The food must be clean, not only from unwholesome foreign matter, but more particularly free from parasites and germs of disease.

2. Next in importance to food comes sleep. It is an adolescent's best friend. Sleep is a building-up process in which the waste of the day is repaired and energy stores up for further use. To do its best work it must be had in regular and sufficient quantities.

3. Care after exposure to severe or unusual weather conditions is important.

4. Nothing is more important in life than the formation of good mental habits. Very few people understand that there is any direct relation between mental habits and health, but as a matter of fact, every thought, every emotion, every nervous impulse directly affects the health of the whole body.

5. Bad habits must be avoided, especially those that pull down physical strength. The use of narcotic drugs, liquor, and tobacco are in this class.

6. Habit formation in exercise is fully as important as any other health habit, although most people fail to realize it.

7. Recreation is always play in some form, and play continues to perform an important function in our lives from earliest childhood until old age. When we stop playing, we practically stop living. Play is our opportunity for self-expression.

8. Worry is to be put aside and cheerfulness established as the rule of life. Habits of cheerfulness, punctuality, and prudence must be formed in early life if they are ever to be of much value to us.

Questions

1. What to your mind are some simple rules for health?
2. Why is poor health discouraging?
3. Can one be of great service if they neglect their health?
4. What are some bad habits that weaken us physically?
5. What are some bad habits that weaken us spiritually?
6. What does Paul mean when he declares that our bodies are the "temples of the Holy Spirit"?

Know Your Bible

Apostle's Concern. III John 2.
Sound body for true service. Rom. 12:1.
Regulative principle in all things. I Cor. 10:31.
The body a temple. I Cor. 6:19; I Cor. 3:17.
Daniel's choice of food and drink. Dan. 1:8.
Man's original food. Gen. 1:29.

Flesh afterwards designated. Lev. 11:3.
Jewish sanitary laws. Num. 12:15; II Chr. 26:21.
The Great Healer. Ps. 103:3.
Put on Christ. Rom. 13:13.

June 23, 1935

Great Modern Christians: Kagawa

Acts 20:17-35

Read William Axling's book "Kagawa"

Pre-Prayer

That we may have the courage and strength to stand the things that are high, noble, and right and above all be a true servant of Christ.

Kagawa has been repeatedly compared with Gandhi and the two of them have been described as the greatest leaders that have arisen in the East in many centuries. But the Japanese seems to be far the greater of the two in spiritual endowment, in richness of character, in the power of unselfish sacrifice, in the flaming desire to give himself utterly in service.

The formative years of his childhood were spent in a home where there was neither love nor care nor interest, but instead scolding, beatings, neglect, loneliness. His youth was one of misunderstanding, abuse, and tears. In school he stood very nearly friendless and alone, working out his own philosophy of life. While in school in his teens he first came upon knowledge of Christianity and the life and character of Christ, and there woke in him a burning, compelling desire to follow the example of Jesus and spend himself in love and service for the poor, the degraded, the suffering, the lowliest of humanity.

In young manhood he lived the life of his social idealism facing, in utter abandon and in total disregard of his personal comfort and welfare, poverty, privation, violence, contempt, and even death. For fifteen years he lived in a six-by-six hut in the slums of an industrial city, pitting against its appalling iniquity and degradation the simple power of one big and loving heart. He risked his health and lived with the poorest of his people and had many of the sick in his little hut, so that he would be able to care for them. At the risk of death, he consorted with criminals in order to save them. In order to keep his conscience clear of wrong attitudes toward other people, he risked the punishment of his government in his sympathy with the Chinese people. In order to build a Christian community that would be able to change the wrong standards and practices in his country, he gave himself to a campaign for a million new Christians.

In middle life he stands a power in his native land, a stern challenge to his Christian brethren, a bulwark to the down trodden and oppressed, and a consternation to the exploiter of human life.

He and his work will be studied from the standpoint of art and literature, leadership, social science, and even genetics and psychology.

Kagawa is a unique figure of this twentieth century and one that against his oriental background seems almost miraculous. To make his acquaintance through the medium of this book is a most rewarding experience.

"His own vivid personal faith is completely contagious. The fact that he is a Christian is the first thing that emerges, joyously, from him when one meets him. He does not hesitate to say that he is a Christian — — — Whatever form of social work he may be for the moment engaged in, he preaches the gospel of Jesus Christ."

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

June 16, 1935

Topic.—Jesus' Love For Children.

Matt. 18:1-6; 19:13-15

A story is told of a shepherd boy who, when quite young, accepted Christ as His Savior and wanted to join the church. His father, as well as the church officers, thought he was too young and told him that he must wait. One day soon after, he was sent to bring the sheep home from pasture. He brought the sheep, but left the lambs. When asked why he had done that he said, "I thought the lambs had better remain outside until they were a little older, or had proved themselves to be genuine." The father saw his mistake and allowed the boy to be received into the church. Jesus never refused to have a boy or girl come to Him. In fact, He invited them and used them as examples when teaching older folks. We like to think that when He told Peter "Feed my lambs," He was thinking of the children.

In Mark 10:14, that verse we love so well, we see Jesus displeased because others tried to keep children from Him. The next verse reminds us that He so much appreciates a child's love and faith that grown folks must become like trusting children if they would be saved. When thinking of such verses as these, we are made especially happy when we remember Heb. 13:8, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and forever." He loves you as much as He loved the children so many years ago and is just as eager to have you come to Him.

Jesus great love for children is shown again in Matt. 18:6. He knew that always there would be people who would think of children as a bother rather than a blessing so in this verse He tries to make folks understand what an awful thing it is to hinder a child who believes in Him.

Jesus was never too busy to take time for the children. You remember how He healed Jairus' daughter. He had many people around Him wanting help, but He went to Jairus' home and raised up the little girl who had died. Not only does Jesus love children and want them to love Him, but He loves to hear them when they pray. Since He loves you so much, don't you think you should do your best to show your love to Him? How about inviting others to love Him? Many times children have won their friends or parents to Christ. Try telling others of Him. You will find that you, too, will be happier as you tell them.

Plans for the Meeting

Give an object talk as suggested in the following story, "The Longest Candle." Jesus' love is shown in His eagerness to save boys and girls and give them an entire life in which to shine for Him. Point out some dangers and sorrows one escapes by such a life. The Juniors may sing the chorus known by many of them to the tune of "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!"

"Jesus loves the little children,
All the children of the world;
Black, brown, yellow, red and white,
All are precious in His sight,
Jesus loves the little children of the world."

Questions

1. Quote your favorite Bible verse telling of Jesus' love for children.
2. Tell of several ways that Jesus, in His teaching, proved that He loved children.
3. Tell how Jesus showed His love for Jairus' little daughter.
4. How do we know that Jesus loves the children today?
5. Why should Juniors try to show their love for Jesus?

The Longest Candle

An evangelist was talking to a meeting of children. He brought out a row of candles on a board; a very long candle was at one end, a very short one at the other. Between the long one and the short one were candles of various heights. He said that by these candles he wanted to represent the grandfather, father and mother, boys and girls, and the baby of a family who never heard of Christ until a missionary came — whom he represented by a lighted candle—and they all gave their hearts to Jesus, and from that day loved and served Him. He then asked which candle they thought represented the grandfather, the mother, and so on. They all thought that the tallest candle would be the grandfather, but he told them, "No, that stands for the baby, the youngest member in the family." Presently one boy said, "I know why; he has the chance to shine the longest for Jesus."

—Children's Quarterly.

June 23, 1935

Topic.—How May I Have A Good Vacation?

Ps. 119:15-16; Matt. 25:35-40

One day, after Jesus and the apostles had been very busy and had had a great deal to think about, Jesus said, "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest a while." There were so many people coming and going that Jesus and His friends could not even be alone to eat. People soon followed them again, but we often find Jesus going off alone or with just a few of His friends for a time. He felt the need of getting away to rest and, most of all, to pray.

Any of us can work better if we take time to rest. That is why we have vacations. A vacation is a holiday or time of rest. The word comes from a Latin word which means freedom from duty. That does not mean that it is a time for doing nothing. Someone has said that a vacation is a change of occupation.

That is, it is a time when one rests by doing something different. You older Juniors, especially you who live on the farm, may not have much time to do nothing this summer. You may even feel that you are not really having a vacation, but while you are busy in field or garden your mind will be having just the change that it needs in order to be rested and ready for school work again.

Vacation as well as other time is given us by God and He expects us to use it wisely. The time should be spent in a way that will make one stronger and better able for work or study. Any kind of fun that harms mind or body is wrong, for God has given us our bodies and wants us to care for them rightly.

I have heard of boys and girls who have spent almost all of their vacation running errands and thoroughly enjoyed it. Some of you will go away for a time, but many will have your vacation at home. If you are on the farm, God's big out-of-doors is yours to enjoy. See how many new birds and flowers you can discover this summer. Perhaps you can have your own garden to care for, as we did when we were children. Even most city children can get out into the open, at least for a time. If you can not go to the country, the city has its parks and in many cases nearby woods.

Above all, be faithful in attending church service, in Bible reading, and in prayer, whether at home or away. Those who stay at home will be especially needed to carry on while others are gone. Make this a helpful vacation, trying to do something worth while for someone each day.

Plans for the Meeting

The discussion of this subject must be adapted to your particular group. Help the Juniors to see that vacation does not mean freedom from all responsibility. Suggest ways in which those who go away can be a blessing in the homes to which they go. Those who stay at home need to think of healthful recreation to be found there, also of the cheer they may bring during the summer months. Impress upon all the importance of loyalty to Christ and the church wherever they are.

Questions

1. What is the purpose of a vacation?
2. How did Jesus spend His time when resting?
3. How can you honor God while away for a holiday?
4. Why is it important that we keep faithful in church attendance during vacation?
5. How can you make this summer a blessing to others?

"A good soldier of Jesus will stand for Him no matter how he is laughed at. Your friends may laugh at you because you stand for Jesus, but in their hearts they think you are brave and true."—Selected.

I THOUGHT

(Written for those who have "loved and lost awhile.")

The morning breaks
I found beneath this dome of blossoms, leaves,
The grass still wet with dew
As though it held a tear to share with me
Life's fondest memory.
The birds are gay.
This tree alone seems hushed. The dawning light
Has not yet bathed away
The ling'ring shades that drape in soft'ning gray
About these glooms.
So pure they seem.
The dampness of the morning air send back
To me their breath as though
In answer to a hunger that I feel.
I heard a stir
Close by within
The branches of the goldenbell. A robin sang.
A warming breeze
Came from the south and stirred the tree.
A branch of blossoms fanned
Against my cheek. I thought that you had stooped
To kiss me, Mother. —J. S. A.

WHICH FACTORS WILL YOU ELIMINATE?

"(1) Faster automobiles and (2) the repeal of prohibition are generally conceded to be the contributing factors to the countrywide INCREASE in the number of traffic accidents, but the majority of these accidents are still caused by (3) carelessness and (4) failure to observe safety rules."

—F. M. Kreml, Director,
Bureau of Accident Prevention, Department of Police, Evanston, Illinois.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

June 9, 1935

SOME GREAT CHRISTIAN TEACHINGS

The Holy Spirit

(Pentecost Lesson)

Lesson Text.—John 16:7-11; Rom. 8:10-17; 26, 27

Golden Text: For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. Rom. 8:14.

Thus far in our discussions of the Great Christian Teachings we have had occasion to study God as the Heavenly Father and also God as Jesus, the Savior of men. We now come to another manifestation of God in the Holy Spirit.

Before Jesus left He promised His disciples that although He would leave physically, He would be with them in the form of the Holy Spirit. He said, "I will not leave you comfortless or fatherless, I will send to you the Comforter who will abide with you forever." The disciples were commanded to wait for this promise. So they gathered in an upper room, apostles, Jesus' mother, and other men and women, one hundred twenty of them, to wait and pray, to prepare themselves for the coming of this Spirit.

On the day of Pentecost this Spirit came. The day of Pentecost was so called because it was fifty days from the first day of Passover. It was called "the feast of weeks" because it occurred seven weeks after the Passover. It marked the end of the wheat harvest and also commemorated the giving of the Law on Mount Sinai. This was the time of the offering, of sin offerings, burnt offerings, and peace offerings. It was very appropriate that at this time the gospel harvest should begin and the new law of love supersede that of ordinances.

On the morning of the Day of Pentecost as they were all together in the spirit of harmony and devotion, the Holy Spirit came on them in a marvelous manner. It came as a rushing wind and as tongues of flame, which rested on each individual head.

The significance of this event does not lie in the fact that the Holy Spirit came because it had been here before. This Spirit came on Abraham, Moses, the prophets, and particularly on Jesus. Its wonder was in two things First it came on all of them individually. Before this the Holy Spirit came to special and outstanding leaders, but was not recognized as coming to every person. On the Day of Pentecost it came to the women, to all the one hundred and twenty, and not only to the apostles In the second place the Holy Spirit was very closely related to Jesus who had left them. He said He would come again. He would not leave them comfortless. When He ascended the angels said He was coming back again. Whatever materialistic explanation we might give as to what happened in that upper room, of this we are sure, that the disciples believed that through the coming of the Holy Spirit Jesus was alive and with them. This is why the weak, stumbling, wavering disciples now became lions of courage and power. The people saw that the disciples were with Jesus and had learned of Him.

The effect of the Holy Spirit on the early church was threefold: First, it brought them illumination. It came as fire. They now began to see that the Kingdom of God which Jesus talked about was not political or material or a Jewish program, but was for all people and was spiritual. It was a kingdom over which not a physical Jesus would rule as Messiah at some future time, but a spiritual realm over which the resurrected and invisible Christ was the active ruler now. An entrance to this kingdom was not dependent on whether Jewish blood flowed in your veins, but you entered this kingdom by accepting Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord of life. The kingdom was the rule of God through Christ in the heart of a believer.

In the second place, the Holy Spirit gave the disciples power. It came as a rushing wind. The command had been, "Tarry until ye be endued with power." This power had now come. How necessary this was! A small band of believers in a hostile Roman empire filled with religions. But the Holy Spirit bestowed on every member a fervor of spirit and a power of utterance which made their testing convincing and which gave them courage to go forth against all odds. The dangers still existed, but courage is not lack of fear but rising above it in the power of faith in God.

In the third place this Holy Spirit did not come as a spurt or special dispensation. It came to permanently abide here in the hearts of the believer according to our faith and consecration. This outpouring of the Holy Spirit was the birthday of the Christian church. There are two extremes that we need to avoid in our Trinitarian formula for God. On the one hand the elimination of Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit as a Person, and on the other hand that we do not become polytheists in the worship of three gods; namely, God, Christ, Holy Spirit. After all, God is our salvation, our guide, and our strength. He manifested Himself, however, as God in Jesus and God in Holy Spirit.

What really happened on the Day of Pentecost? — What is the relation of this event to Jesus? — Is Jesus here now, or do we need to wait for Him to come? — What is the relation of the Holy Spirit to the church?

June 16, 1935

SOME GREAT CHRISTIAN TEACHINGS

Christian Stewardship

Lesson Text.—Deut. 8:11-18; II Cor. 9:6-8

Golden Text: Moreover it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful. I Cor. 4:2.

It is indeed encouraging that the International Sunday School committee has seen fit to include Christian Stewardship as one of the Great Christian Teachings. So often church members look upon it as a tool of the church invented by some man to get money out of the pocket book with the least pain, this is, using a dentist's expression, "painless extraction."

Stewardship is not primarily concerned with possessions or money, but with life. It does not say, "Your money or your life." It says your life and your money. A steward from its original meaning is one who is intrusted with another's possession to use it. The fundamental principles of stewardship therefore are an owner, a steward, an obligation, and a reward.

In Christian stewardship God is the owner. He created us and owns our lives. He owns us in the second place, through Christ who gave His life for us. "You are not your own, you are bought with a price." So our lives are His. The Psalmist says the cattle on a thousand hills are His and the gold and silver. Even as our lesson says, "He hath given thee power to get wealth."

So as a Christian steward your life is His, all your physical strength, your mental abilities, your social capabilities, and the strength of your soul are all His to use to His honor and glory. Our bodies, are to be consecrated temples of the Holy Ghost, clean and usable. Our trained and disciplined minds are His. Our social relationships are all for Him as well as our spiritual lives. If all of our church people would accept this Christian teaching and live it our financial difficulties in relation to the support of the church and institutions would be solved. We would need to find places for the use of the money that would come into the Lord's treasury as a result of a steward life. We are extremely alarmed if some minister or laymember says he does not believe in the deity of Christ, the atonement, or the second coming of Christ, or much more so if some one would say he does not believe in God, and yet stewardship is just as important and just as necessary that I believe in it as any of the above mentioned. Yet we have many church members in our congregations who feel that it is their privilege to believe or not believe in Christian stewardship.

The matter of stewardship as it relates to money is not only concerned with giving. Some Christians feel that if they have given a tenth or tithe, all of their stewardship is fulfilled. A stewardship life is one that is Christian in earning money, in saving money, in spending money, as well as in giving money. A man can not be wholly Christian until he is Christian in all his relationships. It becomes important that we study not so much what Jesus SAID about money, as to study his attitude towards money. Perhaps as never before the battleground of Christianity is in our day in the economic field. To win men for Christ means to win them in an industrial, competitive, material order. We need a new conscience on the whole question of material and spiritual values.

What is Christian stewardship? — What is the relation of money and life? — How does our present economic system reveal the need of an emphasis on stewardship?

JOTTINGS

Waldo Petter, of our mission station at Ashland, Montana, passed to his eternal reward some days ago. The funeral services were held May 9. Waldo was the son of Dr. Rudolphe Petter, our senior missionary, who has recently completed the translation of the New Testament into the Cheyenne language. At the time of Waldo's death Dr. and Mrs. Petter were on the ocean bound for Europe.

Abraham W. Friesen of Henderson, Nebraska, was ordained to the office of Elder in the Bethesda church, Henderson, on May 5. The meeting of the Northern District Conference is to be held in the Bethesda church June 2 and 3.

The Old Colony Mennonites, settled in a closed colony in Mexico, numbering about 5000 individuals, is reported to have determined to return to Canada from whence they came about twelve years ago. The reason for this move is that the Mexican government has ordered that all religious instruction and the use of the German language in schools be discontinued after the middle of April. Some of these people are already in Manitoba. This group is one of the most, if not the most, conservative of Mennonite bodies. They get their name from the fact that they came to Canada in 1874 from the oldest Mennonite colony in Russia—the Chortiza.

Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Dester of the General Conference mission in India, are at this writing on their way to America. They are expected to arrive in New York May 23.

On April 21, it was 83 years that a group of 82 Swiss Mennonites landed in New York and settled in Ohio and Indiana. With the death of Bro. C. A. Neuenschwander of Berne, Ind., the last of the group died several weeks ago. The account in the Berne Witness says: On March 19, 1852, the party embarked from Havre on a small, three masted ship used to carry cotton from America to Europe. After a long and tedious voyage, land was sighted April the 27th, and at five o'clock that afternoon the ship landed. From New York they continued their journey to Albany, then to Buffalo by canal, then to Cleveland by steamer. On May 6, the party arrived at Massilon, Ohio, reaching the Sonneberg settlement the next day. The entire trip to Sonneberg required sixty days. The fare for the trip was 190 francs, or about $37.52.

June 10 has been chosen as the day for the Kansas Mennonite Sunday School Convention, which is to be held in the Mennonite church in Halstead, of which Rev. H. T. Unruh is pastor. The program is in preparation. Hans E. Regier, Whitewater, is chairman of the convention.

The Intermediate C. E. Society of the Berne, Indiana, church gave a program in the Ebenezer church, Bluffton, Ohio. The distance from Berne to Bluffton is about sixty miles. Rev. and Mrs. Suckau accompanied the group, and Rev. Suckau preached after the program was rendered.

Prof. B. D. Smucker, who for twenty years was associated with Bluffton College as instructor and field secretary, has severed his connection with the institution to accept a commercial position. Winfield Fretz will take over the field work.

Bethel College will have added to its teaching staff next year Rev. A. E. Kreider of Bluffton, Ohio. Rev. Kreider was a member of the teaching staff of Witmarsum Seminary for eight years. Since that time he has served as pastor of the Bluffton Mennonite church.

The treasurer of the Mission Board of the General Conference reports as follows for the month of April: Total receipts, $378.11; Balance on hand, April 1, $827.19; Gifts for General Fund, $439.67; Gifts for Orphans, $214.18; Interest and rent, $567.05; Sundries, $157.05. Paid on Orders, $6,149.60; Remitted direct, $28.00. Balance in Bank, $27.70.

Report of the Executive Committee of Mission Societies: Jubilee Fund, $265.39; For India, $330.00; Expenses, News and Notes, $25.65; Miscellaneous, $60.00; Grand Total, $681.04.

Bro. W. F. Unruh of Jonjgir, India, is taking considerable interest in the maintenance of Boys' Camp supported by a number of missionary bodies. He writes: "Six missions join in this Boys' Camp. Each mission may send twenty boys as the maximum number. This is the seventh camp that has been held. These camps have brought very vital experiences into the life of many a boy. The missions cooperating are those of this Chattisgarh District and include the American Mennonite Mission, The General Conference Mennonite Mission, Methodists, Disciples of Christ Mission, Evangelical Mission, and another mission, the official name of which I have forgotten. This may indicate that denominational lines are rather weak on the mission field. We often know missionaries better than the denominations for which they stand."

The Sugar Creek, Ohio, church will hold special ordination services Sunday, June 2, when the pastor, Paul Stauffer, will receive ordination as minister and elder. Rev. Howard G. Nyce of Allentown, Pa., will officiate.

DEATHS

Augusta Dallke, nee Hintz, died on her birthday at the age of 77 years, on May 11, 1935, less than two months after her husband's death. She was born in South Russia, moved to Kansas with her parents, where she was baptized by Rev. D. Gaeddert in 1876, and married to Henry Dallke in 1877. For some years they lived near Moundridge, Kansas, later moving to Gotebo, Oklahoma, and in 1918 to Reedley, California.

She is survived by two sons in California, a daughter in Gotebo, Oklahoma, eight grandchildren and three greatgrandchildren, also one sister in Kansas and three brothers in Oklahoma. She was a faithful member of the Mennonite Church, and her pastors, Krehbiel and Regier, conducted the funeral on the 14th of May.

Kremer, E. J.—Born at Nancy, France, August 11, 1856. Died in Hollywood Hospital, April 29, 1935. Funeral service at the First Mennonite Church, Upland, Thursday, May 2, at 11 A. M., Rev. Lester Hostetler, officiating. Interment at Bellvue Cemetery. The family moved here from Nebraska in 1920, and joined the Upland Mennonite Church in 1928. Mrs. Kremer will reside with her daughter at 2639 San Marino St., Los Angeles.

Cornelius A. Regier was born July 11, 1866, in Rudnerweide, South Russia. In the year 1874, as a boy of eight years, he came to America. On July 29, 1888, he was baptized and received into the Hebron church, whose member he remained until death. On February 21, 1889, he was married to Maria Dyck. This union was blessed with eight children, of which the first two, both girls, died in earliest infancy. On December 17, 1929, his wife was taken from him by a very unexpected and sudden death. On Friday, April 26, at about 5:30 o'clock in the morning, he passed to his reward, having reached the age of 68 years, 10 months and 16 days. Those who mourn his departure are his three daughters, three sons, one daughter-in-law, and one grandchild, also three brothers and two sisters. The Children.

Christian C. Stucky, son of Jacob and Elizabeth (nee Reis) Stucky, was born in Horodischt, Wolynia, Russia. He came to America with his parents during the large immigration of the Mennonites in 1874. The family made their home in the vicinity of Freeman, South Dakota. In 1883, the family moved to Kansas. On November 30, 1886, the departed was united in marriage to Marie Stucky. To this union were born five children, four sons and one daughter. However, in April 1895, death took the wife from his side and left him with five small children. Later he was united in marriage to Katherina Goering. They were permitted to share life's joys and sorrows for about forty years. This union was blessed with thirteen children. On Sunday afternoon about four o'clock, April 14, 1935, the Lord called him home. His age at death was 70 years, 8 months, and 17 days. He leaves to mourn his early departure, his deeply sorrowing wife, nine sons, four daughters, six daughters-in-law, one son-in-law, twenty-six grandchildren, two greatgrandchildren, six brothers-in-law, five sisters-in-law, one sister, one brother, and many other relatives, besides a large circle of friends. Three sons and two daughters and four grandchildren preceded him in death.

Funeral services were held from the home of the departed and from the Eden church, Tuesday afternoon, April 16. Interment was made at the Eden church cemetery.

Jacob Jackie Kaufman, son of Jacob J. and Ella May Kaufman, was born December 10, 1933, at McPherson Hospital. He died April 14 at the Wesley Hospital in Wichita at the age of one year, four months, and four days. On March 8th he was taken sick with a fever, and on March 17 he was taken to the hospital in Wichita, where he suffered until April 14th. He leaves to mourn his death, his father, mother, one sister, four grandparents and one greatgrandmother, also a host of relatives and friends. He has gone to join his sister, who preceded him in death three years ago tomorrow.

John Schrock, the founder of a great family, died in Pekin today. He was the father of twelve children, eleven of whom survive along with twenty-five other decendants; but only one of the thirty-six is left to carry on the good name of Schrock. Religion brought this grand old man to Pekin. Back in the Vaterland a man named Menno Simon founded a religion which has brought honor upon him and to this day they call his followers "Mennonites." A century ago there was a group of them around Pekin, among them the Ropp families. Back in Ohio lived Johannes Schrock, German born and also a follower of Menno. Schrock found Ohio pretty well settled, but from the Mennonites in mid Illinois he heard of a growing new land where acres were cheap and crops were abundant. So Johannes Schrock with three horses pushed through from Trenton, Ohio, to Pekin and looked at this new west. He liked it. He left one horse here and drove the other two back to the Buckeye state. Arriving, he told the anxious wife, who had been Katharina Salzman in her girlhood days in Germany, that they were moving to Illinois. To Joe, the oldest youth, was given the task of driving through with the horses and cattle and what goods they had. The father and mother took the rest of the family to Cincinnati where they took the boat down the Ohio to Cairo and up the Mississippi and Illinois to Pekin. In this family was Johannes, later called John, whose death we record today. He was the second in the family of seven to be given exactly the same name, the older brother of the same name having died. The father, wishing a namesake, named a newborn boy baby by the same name as the one who had died. Johannes Schrock was eight years old in 1851 when the family came to Pekin, for he had been born March 26, 1843. That trip was often recalled by Mr. Schrock; and the older he became the better he remembered those days of children; and the less he recalled the fleeting things of yesterday. The family located in a log house on what is now the Allen Miller farm, five miles east of Pekin. They were made at home by the Mennonites here and kindly neighbors; and because they were honorable and thrifty, they prospered. — As John grew older he worked out in saw mills, grist mills, and brick yards. He could do a tremendous day's work, even in the days when a big day's work was expected of all men. He himself carried from the saw mill every tie and plank for the first bridge over the river here—the Peoria, Pekin & Jacksonville R. R. bridge. Three men would be assigned to such a job nowadays and work only half as many hours. They told of him that he could cut with an axe and rack five cords of wood in a day. Four men wouldn't want to do that today.

On December 3, 1865, he married Barbara Rediger and the two established one of the most respected homes in the county. Twelve children were born to them, and all but the last (who died in infancy) live today to mourn the passing of the father. They are: Peter Schrock, Pekin; Mrs. Katherine Ropp, Pasadena, Calif.; Daniel Schrock, Pekin; Bina Schrock, Pekin; Mrs. Sarah Ringwald, Pekin; Mrs. Ida Gueber, Pekin; Frances Schrock, Pekin; Edward Schrock, Pekin; John W. Schrock, Pekin; Mrs. Belle Thode, Pasadena; Mrs. Barbara Heisel, Pekin; Aaron Lester, deceased.

In 1876 Mr. Schrock bought the home east of Pekin in which the first child born in that home still lives. He is Edward Schrock, president of the farm bureau. The family looks to it as the old family home.

In 1903 the sons built a nice home for the parents and they moved to town. There they lived in comfort. Mrs. Schrock died on August 3, 1911. Although Mr. Schrock was near 70 then, he has clung to life for 24 years more. He was a man of excellent character, good habits, and moral strength, and to this is attributed his long years. Three years ago on his 89th birthday he spaded in his garden. On his ninetieth birthday the family gathered for a great reunion and celebration, but he took pneumonia that day. None expected him to survive; but he lived; and he even weathered another attack of pneumonia this winter. Even till yesterday he was up; but two strokes had weakened him and death came to him quietly at 7:15 this morning in his 93rd year. — Besides the sons and daughters, the aged man is survived by eighteen grandchildren, and seven greatgrandchildren.

Death of Mr. Schrock removes one of the links with Pekin's pioneer past. He lived in the day when pigeons came in flocks that shut out the sun; when wild turkey were in abundance; and deer were to be shot in the woods. The turn of his life has seen the coming of modern age; but through it all there has been no change in the fact that a man of honor and honest and clean living thrives best. His children today rise up to bless his memory.

Funeral was in charge of Rev. G. I. Gundy, Meadows, Illinois. Burial at Lakeside cemetery.

Mrs. Lydia Boyts Miller was born October 3, 1856. She departed this life March 5, 1935, aged 78 years, 5 months, and 2 days. The deceased was born six miles east of Goshen in Elkhart County, the daughter of Emanuel and Fanny (Stutzman) Hostetler. She has resided in Goshen the past twenty years, coming here from Oklahoma. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. C. J. Bontrager and Mrs. Simon J. Smith of Goshen, Ind., and three sons, M. F. Boyts of Crystal Springs, Kans., John O. Boyts of Stockton, Cal., and Edward W. Boyts of New Paris, Ind., a stepdaughter, Mrs. Nathan Yoder, Shipshewanna, Ind., and a stepson, Edwin Miller of Lagrange, Ind., 14 grandchildren, and 6 greatgrandchildren. — The funeral services were held at the Eighth Street Mennonite Church of Goshen, services in charge of Rev. G. T. Soldner, pastor of Eighth St. Mennonite Church, and Dr. T. E. George, of the Fifth St. Church of the Brethren.

NORTHERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE PROGRAM to be held at the Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebraska, June 1 to June 4, 1935

MOTTO: "FOR TO ME TO LIVE IS CHRIST"
Phil. 1:21

Saturday Evening, June 1, 7:30

Ministers' Conference

1. Opening Exercises........
   Leader, Rev. John C. Kaufman, Marion, So. Dak.
2. Theme: What Fundamental Doctrines should the minister of our day particularly emphasize? 30 minutes.)........Rev. David A. Schultz, Avon, So. Dak.
3. Music,..................Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebr.
4. Theme: Is the Ministry a Life's Vocation? (30 minutes.)............Rev. Walter Gering, Freeman, So. Dak.
5. Close ....

Sunday Forenoon, 9:30—11:30

Mission Services

1. Opening by....Leader, Rev. A. W. Friesen, Henderson
2. Home Missions....Rev. John H. Epp, Hillsboro, Kans.
3. Music......................Bethesda Choir, Henderson, Nebr.
4. Foreign Mission..Rev. P. R. Schroeder, Freeman, S. D.
5. Time Schedule to be pronounced after the services
6. Offering taken ....
7. Close ....

Sunday Afternoon (continued)

1. Opening by Leader
   Rev. Helmut Ortman, Munich, N. Dak.
2. Conference Sermon
   Rev. John Bartel, Mountain Lake, Minn.
3. Music......................Bethesda Choir, Henderson, Nebr.
4. Address................Rev. John H. Epp, Hillsboro, Kans.
5. Music......................Bethesda Choir, Henderson, Nebr.
6. Announcing the various temporary committees........
7. Offering ....
8. Close ....

Sunday Evening

Christian Endeavor Program
Chairman: Clarence Graber, Marion, So. Dak.

1. General Singing in charge of Gerh. J. Toews, Henderson, Nebr.
2. Theme: May the Biblical Wisdom still be applied to the Life Problems confronting our Young People today? Prov. 16:8, 32; 6:16-19.
   Bethel C. E., Marion, S. Dak.
3. Song..........................Salem C. E., Freeman, So. Dak.
4. Reading...................Bethesda C. E., Henderson, Nebr.
5. Theme: Does the Christian Endeavor meet the needs in our Churches concerning the Younger Generation? If not, what can be done to better the situation?............Friedensberg C. E., Avon, So. Dak.
6. Music.....................First Mennonite Ch., Madrid, Nebr.
7. Address to the Young People
   Prof. J. D. Unruh, Freeman, So. Dak.
8. Song................Junior Male Chorus, Henderson, Nebr.

Monday Forenoon and Afternoon

Business Program

1. Opening by the president
   Rev. John Bartel, Mountain Lake, Minn.
2. Business Affairs:

a. Receiving the Certificates of Delegates
b. Report of the Protocolls of the preceding session
c. Report of Committee of the Honor Roll
d. Report of the Soliciting Committee
e. Report of the Treasurer
f. Report of the Committee of School and Education
g. Report of the Committee of Examination
h. Report of the Committee of Evangelism
  1. Secretary; 2. Treasurer
i. Election of Officers

Monday Evening

Sunday School Convention

1. Opening by Leader........Hy. J. Boehr, Wisner, Nebr.
2. Music............Bergfelder S. S., Mountain Lake, Minn.
3. Theme: What New Problems are confronting the S. S. Due to Modern Tendencies?
   Dietr. G. Peters, Mountain Lake, Minn.
4. Instrumental Music....Salem Zion S. S., Marion, S. D.
5. Reading....................Bethesda S. S., Henderson, Nebr.
   Reading................Bloomfield S. S., Bloomfield, Mont.
6. Music....First Mennonite S. S., Mountain Lake, Minn.
7. Theme: What part does the Sunday School have in the carrying out of the laws (respectively the laws of the country)? Psalm 119:9.
   Arthur Ortman, Dolton, So. Dak.
8. Music......................Bethesda S. S., Henderson, Nebr.
9. Reading........Swiss Mennonite S. S., Alsen, No. Dak.
10. Music......................Bethesda S. S., Marion, So. Dak.
11. Address....Dr. E. G. Kaufman, Bethel College, Kans.
12. Offering ....
13. Close ....

Tuesday Forenoon

Education

1. Opening by the President..................Rev. John Bartel
2. Address (15 minutes)....................Dr. E. G. Kaufman
3. Music......................Bethesda Choir, Henderson, Nebr.
4. Address (15 minutes)
   Prof. John D. Unruh, Freeman, So. Dak.
5. Music......................Bethesda Choir, Henderson, Nebr.
6. Address (15 minutes)
   Superintendent H. D. Epp, Henderson, Nebr.
7. Remaining Business and answering question if time permits ....
8. Report of Committee of Resolutions..............................
9. Close ....

Tuesday Afternoon

Mission-Sewing Society

1. Opening by Leader
   Mrs. John C. Kaufman, Marion, So. Dak.
2. Music..........Junior Mission Society, Henderson, Nebr.
3. Theme: The Interest of the Sewing Society in the Church; how can it be aroused?
   Barbara Schowalter, Wisner, Nebr.
4. Reading..............Bethany Church, Freeman, So. Dak.
5. Music
   Mission Workers, Bethel Church Mt. Lake, Minn.
6. Theme: Has the Church a responsibility toward the Sewing Society? If so, wherein rests this responsibility? ....Mary Bargen, Mountain Lake, Minn.
7. Music................Salem Zion Church, Marion, So. Dak.
8. Address on Mission
   Dr. E. G. Kaufman, Bethel College, Kans.
9. The Challenge of the Cross
   Junior Mission Society, Henderson, Nebr
10. Closing Song: Ev. Lieder No. 2, by all Society Members present..
11. Offering for mission..

Tuesday Evening

Song Service

The songs of this program are to be given by the various choirs of the local church and the visiting members of choirs and quartettes are asked to be prepared to render some music or sing songs or solos as is most convenient and possible for them. All singers then join in a closing song.

The Program Committee—
John J. Becker
Ben J. Kaufman
Rev. A. F. Friesen

REPORT OF THE DIAMOND JUBILEE FUND OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE TREASURY

From April 15, 1935, to May 15, 1935

Eden Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kans.	$ 99.29
"K. F.", Newton, Kans.	7.00
From a Friend, Henderson, Nebraska	500.00
Immanuel Mennonite Church, Los Angeles, Cal.	20.25
C. E. Society, First Christian Menn., Moundridge	50.00
Lizzie Rohrer, Indiana	.16
Group of Friends near Warwood, Menn.	5.00
Elise K. Wiebe, Kansas	10.00
Nordheimer Menn. Gemeinde, Sask., Can.	15.70
From a Friend, Henderson, Nebraska	10.00
P. P. Schmidt, Kansas	2.00
Salem Church, Munich, South Dakota	10.64
Mrs. J. Janzen, S. S. Class, Ontario, Can.	5.00
From a Friend, Mountain Lake, Minn.	10.00
Mrs. Frieda Reiger Entz, Treas. Ex. Com. of Mission Societies	265.39
D. E. Buller, Texas	35.00
First Mennonite S. S., Mountain Lake, Minn.	50.00
Arlington Mennonite Church, Arlington, Kans.	8.90
P. P. Dirks, Washington	5.00
Mrs. Karl Badertscher, Ohio	1.00
Bergfelder Sewing Society, Mountain Lake	12.25
Zion Church, Elbing, Kansas	34.15
	$1,156.73
Total Receipts for the Diamond Jubilee Fund to May 15, 1935	$3,931.55

Gratefully acknowledged,
K. A. Richert, Treasurer.

MENNONITE YOUNG PEOPLE'S RETREAT

Shipshewanna Lake, Indiana, August 5-11, 1935

This Retreat will begin August 5. Registration in the afternoon, and get-together social in the evening. Courses will continue each day through the week, and the Retreat will close Sunday noon, August 11.

Earl Salzman, Retreat Chairman.
Topeka, Indiana.

POCKET BIBLES FOR S. S. SCHOLARS

COLLINS' CLEAR-TYPE BIBLES

HOLY BIBLE
HOLY BIBLE

New Self-Pronouncing Edition

BLACK-FACE RUBY 24mo. TEXT BIBLE

Illustrated

THE LARGEST AND MOST EASILY READ TYPE IN A REALLY SMALL BIBLE

Size 5⅜x3½x1

This is unquestionably the finest handy pocket size Bible ever issued. It is a real "pocket" edition, one that will slip into the pocket, and unlike so many bulky "pocket" editions will not appear to be there. It is a book worth while carrying, because it never intrudes and yet all the while it gives a satisfaction that no other book of its size can offer. Its super quality Bible paper is unexcelled for purity of shade, opacity, and remarkable bulk. 1024 pages bulk 1 in.

SPECIMEN OF TYPE

The desolation of Benjamin bewailed JUDGES, 21

2 And the people came to the house of God, and abode there till even before God, and lifted up their voices, and wept sore;
3 And said, O LORD God of Israel,

time; and they gave them wives which they had saved alive of the women of Jā'bĕsh-gĭl'ĕ-ăd: and yet so they sufficed them not.
15 And the people repented them for

HOLY LAND PICTORIAL EDITIONS

With 16 Photogravure Illustrations of Scenes in the Holy Land

S22	(9 illustrations) Blue Cloth, stiff, square corners, blue edges, wrapper	$ .75
1389½P	(16 illustrations) Persianette, divinity circuit, round corners, red edges	1.00
1389P	(16 illustrations) Persianette, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.25
1390P	(16 illustrations) French Morocco, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.50

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS EDITIONS

Recommended for Primary and Junior Departments as they contain 16 photogravure illustrations and 64 pages of selected Helps to Bible Study especially compiled for younger children.

S1389½P	Persianette, divinity circuit, round corners, red edges	$1.25
S1390P.	French Morocco, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.75

SPECIAL DE LUXE EDITIONS

Thirty-two New Colored Illustrations by E. S. Hardy — Presentation Boxes (except 1300HS).

Featuring a selection of the famous Bible pictures by E. S. Hardy (see page 7) presented in a novel style. It is our sincere belief that no finer features have ever been included in a Bible.

1300HC	(16 illustrations) Blue Persianette, blue edges, full color jacket	$ .85
1389HC	(32 illustrations) Persianette, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.50
1390HC	(32 illustrations) French Morocco, divinity circuit, round corners, red under gold edges	1.75

OUR CHEAPEST BIBLE

No. 1—WHITMAN BIBLE, size 5½x3¾. Small Bold Face Type—Red Edges—Paper Covers—Several pages of Helps — Selfpronouncing. — An inexpensive Bible for general distribution.

PRICE ONLY 39c (POSTPAID)

SEND CASH WITH YOUR ORDER TO

The MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE
AND THE
CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

VOL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, JUNE 18, 1935 No. 12

Reedley, California,
May 24, 1935.

The Home Mission Board has looked forward with a peculiar interest to the Diamond Jubilee celebration of the conference, hoping strongly that through the Jubilee Fund campaign enough money would be raised to wipe out all conference debts, — nearly half of which rests with the Home Mission treasury.

Would every congregation raise from 75c to 80c per member, the entire indebtedness would be cleared away. How much has your congregation contributed thus far?

With a large indebtedness on our hands, the Home Mission Board has not been able to expand their work for several years. With the rise in cost of living during the last year or two, our workers must be increasingly saving in order to meet all their financial obligations, and many need extra allowances.

The General Conference Publication Board at its meeting in 1910.

Standing, left to right, J. von Steen who served from 1896 to 1917; Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, 1896 to 1935; Rev. Wm. J. Ewert, 1890 to 1923; Rev. N. B. Grubb, 1884 to 1923; P. Goertz, 1905 to 1919; J. F. Lehman, 1898 to 1932.

If the treasury permitted, the writer would favor doing more work along two different lines. The first would be to aid various churches who have a struggle to support their pastors. Some district conferences are doing commendable work along this line, but many churches are not yet reached. The other would be to assist the weaker churches in having occasional protracted meetings. This could be done by aiding financially in securing a man of their choice to conduct a series of services, or by the Board engaging a worker to carry on this type of itinerate ministry. Our traveling ministers in Canada are doing a splendid piece of work along this line.

However, the Home Mission Board hesitates to enlarge its sphere of work as long as the present indebtedness is not removed. And there are still thousands of dollars needed to clear away the debt. The other day a good old sister brought us $50 for this purpose. Within the last two months 80 different members of our church have contributed an average of $2.50 toward this fund. The work is still being continued and it must continue in all our conference churches if our goal is to be reached. May God grant that we will not fall down on our job.

Very sincerely,
J. M. Regier.

EASTERN DISTRICT ROUTE TO CONFERENCE

The Eastern District Conference has planned an attractive and interesting trip in connection with the Diamond Jubilee of General Conference in Upland, California.

The trip, as planned, will leave

Philadelphia (Rdg.)	July 29	at 9:05 P. M.
Bethlehem (L. V.)	July 29	at 11:04 P. M.
Chicago (Santa Fe)	July 30	at 11:35 P. M.
Newton, Kans.	July 31	at 6:10 P. M.
Hutchinson, Kans.	July 31	at 7:00 P. M.

and will arrive in Upland August 3rd, at 10:30 A. M., in good time to get located and refreshed for the opening meeting that evening.

A stop will be made at the Grand Canyon, Arizona, on August 2, in order that we may have an opportunity to view this beautiful spot.

Every one planning on attending the conference is invited to join the party at a convenient point along the route. It will give an opportunity to renew old friendships and to make new ones.

After the conference closes, the trip will return via the Pacific Northwest, with stops for sightseeing in San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, and a motor trip from Seattle to Yakima, with a stop at Sunrise Lodge on the eastern slope of Mount Rainier. The party will arrive in Chicago, Monday, August 19, and Philadelphia the next evening.

In San Francisco we will make our headquarters in the William Taylor Hotel. This hotel is owned by the Methodist Episcopal Church and named in honor of an eminent bishop of that denomination.

There will be an opportunity to visit our mission while in Portland, Oregon.

It is not necessary to make the entire trip with the party, anyone is welcome to join at any convenient point and leave at their wish. The trip is not conducted as an all expense tour, but itineraries have been prepared on the basis of estimated expenses in order to give those interested an idea of the cost to make the trip.

The estimated costs of the trip in Tourist Sleeping Cars are

From Philadelphia—
One in tourist lower	$209.35
Two in tourist lower, each	189.63
One in tourist upper	201.50
Clergyman—tourist lower	172.99
Clergyman—tourist upper	165.14
From Chicago—
One in tourist lower	$152.25
Two in tourist lower, each	140.13
One in tourist upper	147.70
Clergyman—tourist lower	123.28
Clergyman—tourist upper	118.73

Further information can be secured from Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas, or Mr. Earl Kremer, 926 Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander
Earl Kremer
Walter H. Temple, Chairman.

HOME MISSION NEWS

All the reports from the Chicago Mission are good news. The membership is growing in interest and attention, partly as evidenced by the contributions of the first quarter of 1935 ($468.34). Bro. Leaman is giving particular attention to organization. When he took charge of the work last September, there were only about three members left. God has blessed his ministry and quite a number of former members returned, as well as sinners turning to Christ. He instructed a class of converts and on the first Sunday in May, Bro. P. R. Schroeder was there and took in twenty-two by baptism and letter. Another class is to be ready to be received into the church by July. Communion services were also observed on this date. The most encouraging service is on Sunday morning, when the attendance is from sixty-five to seventy.

The Hutchinson, Kansas, Mission is moving along as usual. The most important event reported by Bro. Plenert is a week of Bible teachings conducted by Rev. J. H. Langenwalter on the general theme: "How Jesus dealt with men," according to John's Gospel. The studies were well attended and highly appreciated.

The work in Altoona, Pa., is greatly hindered by the extreme poverty which exists there. Our workers have their hands full ministering to the sick and needy. Up to this time about sixty families lost their homes and had to move elsewhere outside of the city. Others move in and have to be hunted up, and many new ones are brought into the Sunday School and church. Eleven new members were added the first quarter of 1935, one a Jew and one a Catholic; they are enthusiastic witnesses for the Lord. Bro. Glass is in much demand for funerals and weddings and visiting the sick. Sister Stiffler is a good Samariton in the community and ministers to all kinds of needs of the people and they are rising up and call them blessed. It was the privilege of the writer to preach in the Mission on Sunday evening, May 5, and though a rainy night, the attendance was good and the spirit lovely. It was most inspiring to attend the Junior C. E., under the direction of Joyce Stiffler, and hear the boys and girls sing and pray and recite Scripture.

A change has taken place in the Smith Corner and Mechanics Grove fields. Bro. Sylvan Lehman has been called from the former to the latter and took charge April first. His beginning was trying. From a scratch on his right hand, while moving, blood poison developed and he had to spend some time as a very sick man in the Lancaster hospital. Glad to report that he is restored to health again. Installation services at Mechanics Grove were conducted by the Secretary on Sunday evening, May 19. During April the work at Smith Corner was taken care of by Bro. John S. Rough, a member of the Roaring Springs congregation and a licentiate of the Eastern District Conference, and with such good effect that they asked that he be stationed there permanently. This request was granted and he is now living in the home aside of the chapel. Bro. Rough has done some preaching in his home church and in the community. He will likely be ordained to the ministry soon. The labors of the past in that place have been fruitful of good results. There is more life and activity, and moral and spiritual conditions have greatly improved. The people are also more appreciative, which is evidenced by their contributions to the cause. During the past year they put a new roof on the chapel, and just lately paid half of a set of new batteries for the electric light plant ($45). They pledged $8.00 a month toward the new pastor. Recent accession raised the membership to 50.

Sister Burkhalter of the Emanuel Church in Los Angeles, who is still supported by the Home Mission Board, did not say much about their work in the church, which seems to flourish, but she was so full of the terrible effects of SIN in the homes in the neighborhood that she only wrote of her experiences in calling at different homes one afternoon. In one home the rug was rolled back and men and women were dancing and smoking that the room was blue from smoke, on the table were wine glasses and bottles and the children were helping themselves. In another home she saw the aftermath of such conditions, and the angry mother punishing the children unmercifully. In another home she found the mother crying because of conditions in the home of her daughter-in-law. In another home where two young people had taken a definite stand for the Lord and were recommended for church membership, she found them living untruthful lives. Her closing words were: "O that the Son of God might walk through these streets just once and set things in order, as the black curtain of sin hangs over these homes. There is need to cry aloud morning, noon, and night. Ps. 55:17."

The Itinerant Preachers in Canada have nothing unusual to report, only their visits to the various groups and families that are scattered over the wide extent of territory, and minister to their spiritual needs in holding meetings for Bible study and pastoral work and preaching. In their experiences they are sometimes handicapped by severe weather and road conditions and their lot is not an easy one, but their services are very much appreciated and it serves to keep them together in the bond of fellowship and in touch with the congregations and helps to answer some of their problems and encourages those who are tempted and tried, and many people are severely tested with the problem of existence. During the winter they have Ministerial Conferences and Conferences for Bible Study, and occasion for other studies for intellectual and spiritual improvement. So far reports have come in from the brethren Jacob H. Janzen, Franz Enns, J. H. Enns, and J. J. Klaassen. All of them express their appreciation of the assistance given them by our people which alone makes their needed work possible.

From the Girls' Home in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Sister Helene Epp reports that during the winter there were almost constantly some of the girls sick and had to remain at the home until they were again able to return to their places. Many of the girls go home in the spring to help their parents. This their employers do not like, but almost invariably they are glad to take them back in the fall. A goodly number attended catechetical instructions led by Rev. John P. Klaassen. On May 2, they had a Girls' Festival together with the girls from the home of the Bruedergemeinde. The girls are also sewing and preparing articles for the mission sale in the fall. Positions for all the girls could be secured and the wages are a little better than last year. W. S. Gottschall,

Secretary of the Home Mission Board.

HOW DO WE GROW IN GRACE?

We all know that if we expect a large crop, that the land, the soil must first have been prepared and put in a good condition to yield a large harvest. The stony land, the hard soil will but yield half the crop, but never an hundred fold.

So we shall never grow unless we are prepared for growing. All the little sins and hindrances must be put away. The weeds that spring up from time to time must be cleared away. Our roots must be planted where they can grow deeper and stronger, grounded on the rock, Jesus Christ, anchored safe for time and eternity.

Hebrews 4:16, "Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need."

As every plant must have nourishment, rain, sunshine, etc., so the growing Christain must also have food, bread from heaven and living water. You cannot be a vigorous, useful, soul-winning Christian without plenty of nourishing soul-food. A certain man of God said, "Thy words were food and I did eat them." Those who read little else but novels and cheap, filthy newspapers and other thin diet, soon become walking skeletons. Begin every morning with fervent prayer, and breakfast your soul on God's glorious, infallible, inspiring Book, the Word of God.

Not only partaking of this heavenly food will make us grow, but after we have feasted upon God's Word we must go out in obedience of faith, wherever the Holy Spirit will lead us, performing our part in the building of God's Kingdom, for only through service we grow.

There is no preparation for service like frequent secret fellowship with God (I John 1:3). "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father and with His Son, Jesus Christ." Ah, my dear young friends, if the mountain-top fellowship with God is not followed by service, it will soon become a dim and fading memory, with no power or blessing in it, but regrets.

Jesus will live in us and we in Him. Such intimate fellowship! You may as: How can that be?

An old negro said it is like this: You put the stove poker into the fire and soon it becomes red hot. Then the fire is in the poker and the poker is in the fire. That is just what happens when Jesus lives in us and we in Him. It is hard, folks, to explain, but those of us who have experienced it, know.

Spiritual growth is a living act. I can not originate or force it. I may encourage and help it, by prayer, by self-denial, by Christian work, by meditation and communion with the Word; but like the lily, all my growth must be the result of life within me, which life was a divine impartation. —Arthur F. Ortmann.

COVETOUSNESS

By C. U. Widmer

The covetous individual is named in Ephes. 5:5, an idolator, and is classed in that passage along with Ephes. 5:2 and I Cor. 6,10 in the same category as some of the most heinous sinners. This significant declaration, together with the fact that the sin of covetousness is an insidious offense, of which many are guilty, who may even claim to be free from it, makes a meditation on this subject a worth while and necessary one.

The reason that this sin is so insidious, no doubt can be attributed to the fact that the natural tendency or the inherent law governing our conduct pertaining to self-preservation, has been allowed to develop to excess, so much so that this selfishness has overshadowed, shriveled, and dwarfed the soul to such an extent that the needs and rights of others is finally lost sight of entirely and only the capital "I" is considered in all dealings. This is very terse-ly and minutely explained and a lesson deduced therefrom by Jesus in the familiar parable of the rich fool (Luke 12:13-21). Here is portrayed a so-called very successful man who was providing, working, and planning for material things for his own bodily pleasure and enjoyment, excluding entirely from his thoughts and plans any responsibility or care toward others who might be needy, either materially or spiritually. This parable sets forth a case of plain outright covetousness which Jesus condemned so harshly, addressing the man, "Thou fool"! The occasion for giving it was the answer to a dispute growing out of a monetary controversy. The Bible teaches that "no one liveth to himself." It is natural and perfectly proper that we should provide for ourselves and those depending on us, and in doing so, employ our best skill and diligence, but we should constantly remember that we have sacred duties toward others and toward God, and the danger to be entangled in the sin of covetousness is ever present. We shrink with horror from idolatry and rightly so, knowing that it is an insult to God, but is not the predominating Twentieth Century sin, — God pity us, — this monstrous sin discussed in this article, described in the Bible as plain idolatry?

In all of His teachings Jesus emphasized the idea of service, which is comprehensively summarized in that characteristic declaration found in Matt. 10:39, "He that findeth his life shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it." The meaning which the Master Teacher wants to convey is that life is intended for something higher than self-love or self-glory; that by indulging in this unworthy task we literally cut ourselves off from the very life purpose for which we were created, and the object of our having lived on this earth is defeated and lost, consequently we might as well be dead, sad to say. On the other hand, he who uses his powers and his means, in other words his life, for the betterment of mankind and the glory of God, is actually finding not only peace, happiness, and supreme satisfaction for his own soul, but his life is fulfilling the purpose for which it was created, God is honored, and the crowning plaudit awaits that soul at that day: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." He truly has found life.

It is pathetic to see so many otherwise industrious, well meaning, and honest souls bound with this evil cord of selfishness that is so blinding and ruinous. Most of these are perhaps unconsciously yielding to the temptation of Satan who represents to them erroneous ambitions and false standards of right and wrong. The admonition to watch and pray surely is timely. Let all who read these lines pause and in the fear of God ask the question, "Am I living in the will of God"? If not, pray that He may help me to see the Truth and to become His follower in reality.

THE CONGO INLAND MISSION

Rev. A. M. Eash

An Unusual Report

As goes Christian work in general, this is truly an "Unusual Report." As concerns the work of the Congo Inland Mission it is no more "Unusual." It is a report that indicates another large forward stride in the work of the mission during 1934. In this respect it has much in common with the reports of the past several years. All of this has reference to the Annual Statistical Report of the work in the mission for the past year. Here are some of the items of special interest:

The total number of white missionaries in the mission		16
Total church membership at beginning of year		2943
Total church membership at end of year		3577
Christians awaiting baptism		5012
Number of employed native workers		202
Number of native deacons		5
Number of native assistant pastors		2
Cared for by native church—
Aged	42
Blind	38
Widows	1
Orphans	51	132
Number of students in training classes		107
Number of tribes represented in station work		20
Number of pupils in station schools		987
Number of pupils in outstation schools		8249
Number of catechumens		6977
Number of clinic and ward medical treatments		68108
Total investment by the home end supporters		$22952.29
Number of permanent mission buildings		26
Number of temporary mission buildings		91

During the past several months there has been an extensive movement of workers between the home end and the mission field. A party of six sailed from New York at the end of January, and a party of five arrived at home in April. These eleven constitute one-half of the present missionory force.

Those going to the field were as follows: Rev. and Mrs. Omar Sutton, who returned to Kalamba station to begin their fourth term of service.

Miss Agnes Sprunger, who returned to the field for the beginning of her fourth term. She spends the remainder of 1935 at Charlesville and then goes to Mukedi station.

Rev. and Mrs. Roy O. Yoder, who went to the field on their first term of service. Rev. Yoder will serve as mission treasurer and will be located at Charlesville. Mrs. Yoder is especially interested in work with women ond girls and will no doubt be assigned to work of that type in the Charlesville district.

Miss Fanny Schmallenberger, who went on her first term of service. Sister Schmallenberger will spend the remainder of 1935 at Charlesville and will then be placed at Kalamba.

During the trip to the mission field and for the remainder of 1935 Miss Sprunger serves as language teacher for the three new missionaries.

The missionaries returning home were as follows: Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Becker, who returned home with their children, Lois and Charles, at the end of their second term of service. They had been working at Kalamba station and are at present at home at Woodburn, Indiana.

Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Graber, who returned home after one term of service. The Grabers served the term at Charlesville station. At present they are at home with Mrs. Graber's parents at Broadwell, Illinois.

Miss Irma Bidky, who has completed her second term of service on the mission field. Her work had been at the Mukedi station. After the middle of June she will be at home with her father near Bloomington, Illinois.

All of these who returned home ended strenuous terms of service in a work where the number of workers was very small and the size of the work had grown rapidly. Mrs. Graber had undergone a serious operation during a critical illness several months ago. The Beckers remained on the field nearly six years when the term of service under normal times was four years. Miss Birky had been in the mission nearly six and one-half years and had also undergone serious illness. They have all returned home and the unanimous verdict of the physicians who are examining them is that they need months of complete rest in order to regain their normal strength. It is very possible that for several months they will be reluctant to accept invitations to address missionary meetings or other services. The Board believes that none will unduly press them for much public work until they have had time to quite fully recover their normal health and strength.

The Board and Home constituency are under a large obligation to these workers who so nobly remained by their tasks at times when they should have been on furloughs. We are also under large obligations to the splendid corps of workers at present in the mission with the responsibility of directing this rapidly growing work. The Lord has blessed the efforts of the workers in the Congo Inland Mission far beyond our largest expectations and full credit for these blessings must be given to the ones who permitted themselves to be used of God as the "channels of blessing." We can do no better than to faithfully stand by them with our support in prayer and with funds so that their hands may not be stayed nor their hearts become faint.

It will be necessary for the Board to send an additional force of workers to the field during the current year if furloughs are to be granted to the present workers as they are due to them. A number of candidates are under consideration and the Board covets the support in prayer of all who have a concern for this work, that it might be definitely guided by God in all of its deliberations and work.

STEWARDSHIP OF POSSESSIONS

Mrs. Maggie McDevitt

Webster says, possessions mean, "act, or state of possessing" or condition of a person having such control of property that he may legally enjoy it to the exclusion of all others having no better right than himself. But since our theme is Christian Stewardship of Possessions, and a steward is one who acknowledges God's ownership of all material possessions, therefore stewardship of possessions is the acknowledgement of God's ownership of all we

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance........$1.50
Foreign........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to control, of our property, or the things we enjoy to the exclusion of all others having no better right than ourselves.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

God then being the owner, man is the steward, and the service of stewardship covers a very wide field of obligations. But we are not to consider the whole of it, as that would mean to write a treatise on the Christian life.

Stewardship of Possessions is our sole theme and must undoubtedly overlay to some extent previous meetings on stewardship. Jesus said, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesses." Roswell C. Cong says, "I believe that God owns all and that man owes all, everything in partnership with God," which of course would be time, money, home, family, and property. Jesus sorrowed over the rich young man, not because he had great possessions, but because the possessions had him.

Jesus' emphasis on the money and property question lies close to the fact that money is stored up life, or personality. Money is the medium for which man exchanges his ability, ingenuity, and labor. For instance; we receive pay for a day's labor, and in performing this deed we are giving this stored up self in exchange for money as a medium. We may and often do, no doubt ask ourselves the questions: Posessions! What are they? What do they include? Who shall control them? Who shall administer them? On what terms shall they be enjoyed?

These questions pulse with human interest, and we are all wholly absorbed by them and rightly we should be. Our possesions include all ourselves, children, home, and property. Of course to some extent we must control them.

This may or may not be done according to God's divine plan, as this of course is up to each one individually, and as we understand His divine Word. Also as our circumstances thereof to be made, through obedience and guidance of the Master's will with consecration of our will. This, of course, answers the question also of who shall administer them. Seeking not our own but the things which are of Christ Jesus, or in the words of Paul, "Not with eye service as men pleasers but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart."

In the beginning it was ordained that man should have dominion (not possession) over the material world. He was to replenish the earth and subdue it to the honor and glory of God. Such a task requires the whole masterful strength of man's mind. The first idea of possesion was a pagan idea, and we alone cannot create possession. Some one else must appear in the picture. For illustration: Robinson Crusoe held no ownership of the lonely island as long as he was alone.

It was not until Friday appeared on the scene that his possessive powers were aroused, and then only did he wake up to possession, for until the coming of Friday it was meaningless to say, "This or that is mine."

The legal power of excluding others has followed the ancient Roman custom or law and formed our modern theory of ownership, hence that part of it is more or less a selfish idea. Our possessions of today will be in some one elses's hands tomorrow.

Christian stewardship makes it impossible to give God a fraction of what we possess because in the first place we are not realy the owners. In Psa. 24:1 we read, "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof, the world and they that dwell therein." Deut. 10:14— "Behold the heavens and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, the earth also and all that therein is.

It is the challenge of a patient Christ calling His disciples to a full consecration of life and possessions for the Christian conquest of the world.

It was said of the early heroes of the church —"Not one of them staid that aught of the things which he possessed was his own."

This stewardship of possessions must be taught, as it is only through education of stewardship that the vital relation between God's ownership and our debt to Him will become an active reality. Taught in the home, Sunday school and in the church just as other rituals and duties are wont to be taught. Economic value, like other values are from God and pass a trust into the hands of man. When we recognize that the value in our possessions be they ever so small, is indeed a trust, two thoughts consciously or subconsciously, form themselves, namely, honor says acknowledge and fidelity says administer. We may fail in either or both these duties, but nevertheless they exist.

Assuming that Christians cannot refrain from acknowledging God's divine ownership, hence the administration is before us.

First of all we must feel that we are stewards.

Second, righteous stewardship must rest upon rightful possessions. If the possession of value is unrighteous then the name of stewardship becomes a mockery.

Stewardship of possessions includes a broad scope and involves the social, industrial and financial fabric of our structure.

The Israelites clearly recognized that the land did not belong to them, although it had been given them for a possession. God said, "The land shall not be sold forever for the land is mine, I am the Lord your God." Every year the people set apart as an acknowledgement of divine ownership, a tenth for the support of one of their tribes to maintain the worship of Jehovah. After the holy tithe, the poor were next considered, "God said, "The poor shall never cease from your land." Provision was made by setting apart every third year a tithe of the crops and every seventh year when the land rested the poor were permitted to gather the produce from the fallow ground. Every fiftieth year each man's debt was cancelled.

The Lord's blessed way of unselfish giving is commanded in Matt. 6:1-4; Luke 6:38; Matt. 10:8. In Acts 3:6, Peter's statement and act shows the unselfish spirit of a steward when he said, "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee."

That blessed sharing with others and that unselfish spirit of the Master is the foundation upon which we build our Christian life. We have been thinking through this problem mostly from our economic possessions, but there is something that touches our heart strings even more, it is the lives given in trust and placed in our possessions, those so near and dear to us, also given in our possesion for the Master. What a serious and overwhelming responsibility to mold and shape our children's lives and carefully, wisely and prayerfully lead them with our hands placed in the Master's for guidance and wisdom to perform this great task, and then being willing to have them used as the Master may see fit.

We so often in our shortsightedness are eager to make these dispositions, forgetting to glorify God thereby. What we have we owe. Our stewardship value increases with our power to create it. I will conclude with the following poem:

Steward Only

Steward, I am not possesor—of the wealth entrusted me,
What, were God Himself the holder, would His disposition be?
This I ask myself each morning, every noon, and every night,
As I view His gentle goodness with an ever new delight.

Steward only—never owner—of the time that He has lent;
How, were He my life's custodian, would my years on earth be spent?
Thus I ask myself each hour, as I plod my pilgrim way
Steeped in gratefulest amazement at His mercy day by day.

Steward only—not possessor—of the part of Him that's I.
Clearer grows this truth, and dearer, as the years go slipping by.
May I softly go, and humbly, head and heart in reverence bent,
That I may not fear to show Him how my stewardship was spent.

—Strickland Gillilan.

EIGHTEEN REASONS WHY AN AMERICAN YOUTH CHOOSES NOT TO DRINK

I Refuse to Drink Because:

1. Alcohol is an irritating, habit-forming narcotic drug and as such should be used only on advice of a physician.

2. I object seriously to anything that impairs my personal liberty. Alcohol, by establishing a habit very difficult to control, deprives me of my liberty of decision.

3. Alcohol is destructive of the brain structure. Unfortunately, I do not have more brain than I need.

4. My observation is that men and women have enough trouble in life without hunting for it. Alcohol, by causing functional disorders or organic changes, lays the drinker liable to the attack of disease when his resisting powers are weakened by age.

5. I have a slight but real resentment against the present attempted social compulsion to drink and this gives me a real pleasure in saying "no" when I am offered an alcoholic beverage. I have a right to be different if I want to be.

6. I don't want to make use of anything of such a nature that an increased quantity is required to get the same physical or mental effect. It has always seemed to me that a real source of human happiness is to be found in good physical condition. I like to feel fit and no man who uses alcohol can long continue to feel that way.

7. Men of great experience in the commercial and industrial world tell me that nothing will make me more likely to fail in life than contracting the habit of drinking alcoholic liquors. Life is hard enough at best and I don't want to make it any harder to attain a measure of success which will provide not only for my own living and comfort, but a competence for my family.

8. I don't like to be fooled, and alcohol is the great "mocker" of the age. It tells a man he is strong when he is really weak; wise, when he is folish. Maybe weaklings need that sort of encouragement, but I had rather just be as strong as I can and let it go at that.

9. I abstain from alcoholic liquors because I feel that this is not the age for drinking. The problems of the world which I must help to solve require a steady hand and a clear eye. I may not be able to solve all these problems, but I know that drunkenness will not help in the process.

10. I won't drink because I know that the drink traffic has through the ages been one of the three great problems of the human race and every effort to control it has been a failure. By refusing to be a party to this traffic, I am lodging my personal protest against this great enemy of my fellow men.

11. Furthermore, I do not drink because in so doing I lend my influence to the evil and subversive forces of society.

12. I cannot drink without encouraging others to drink and I refuse to take that responsibility. Maybe I can control my appetite, but some of the best and strongest men I have ever known have not been able to control theirs. I don't want to help start someone on the path which may end in suicide and a pauper's grave or criminal disgrace.

13. I will not drink bootleg whiskey because it is made from inferior and rotten materials. It is rank poison. Neither will I drink the best of "good liquor," because even though I get the best of liquor, it will eventually get the best of me.

14. I will not drink bootleg whiskey, moreover, because in so doing I am contributing to the personal fortunes and war chests of racketeers. Such parasites on society are doing well enough without encouragement from me. Nor will I drink legal liquor, for in so doing I help to support an industry which profits by creating and perpetuating human weakness.

15. There are so many stimulating and helpful interests in the world that I do not need to resort to the false stimulation of inoxicating liquors. I prefer music, dramatics, sport.

16. I don't drink because the church is against it and it is against the church, and my church deserves my loyalty in its conflict with this great evil.

17. I don't drink because I know that alcohol has no place in our mechanistic civilization. It makes the automobile owner an unsafe driver, the mechanic liable to serious accidents, the man of great responsibilities unequal to them. An abstainer helps make his city a safer place in which to live. An intoxicated person today, as always, is a menace not to be tolerated by the thinking people. If Air-Pilots became intoxicated, one might expect a visitor through the roof of his house almost any time.

18. Lastly, I don't drink because I don't like it. No normal man ever liked the taste of intoxicating liquors. It is an appetite that has to be acquired and, speaking plainly, I think any man makes a fool of himself when he acquires it.

Total abstinence is the only safe answer to a troublesome mathematical problem.

I figure that alcohol—

MULTIPLIES my troubles, aches and pains.

SUBTRACTS from my health and moral strength.

DIVIDES my powers of concentration, purpose, and initiative.

ADDS to my difficulties and increases my weaknesses.

I canont drink alcohol for it destroys those finer sensibilities on which my spiritual life is dependent, and without which there is no "abundant living."

—Board of Temperance, Methodist Church.

CORRESPONDENCE

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. Members of the Sunday School held the first picnic of the season in the Hopedale Park, May 26.

Masters David Kauffman and William Donellson lately submitted to appendix operations. Both are able to be at home again.

Mrs. Walter Eash and daughters Veda and Shirley of Flanagan are spending a week at the home of Mrs. Barbara Naffziger and daughters.

Preparations are being made for a Children's Day program, to be held Sunday evening, June 9.

The monthly meeting of Ladies Aid Society was held at the home of Mrs. Jacob Litwiller. Canning was done for the Mennonite Hospital in Bloomington.

Several members of the Christian Endeavor Society attended the C. E. Rally held at Danvers, Sunday, June 2.

Miss Edith Litwiller, superintendent of nurses at the Deaconess Hospital of Lincoln, and Frank C. Pease of Latham were married Wednesday noon at the church by Rev. Hostettler. A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Simon Naffziger of Minier, after which the couple left on a wedding trip. They will reside at Latham, where Mr. Pease is a hardware dealer.

Mrs. Pease has been supervisor of nurses in Lincoln since last September, coming from Bloomington, where she served as supervisor for five years at the Mennonite Hospital.

Los Angeles, California. May 5, the church held a memorial service. The choir sang, "The Lord is in His Holy Temple," and "Keep Silent." D. D. Eitzen read a Scripture passage, Psalm 90:1-2, and offered prayer. Again the pastor read Psalm 33. He particularly emphasized the words "Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous. Praise the Lord with harp: sing unto him with the psaltery. For our heart shall rejoice in Him because we have trusted in His holy name." He also emphasized the poem, in German:

"Groszer Gott, wir loben dich,
Herr, wir preisen deine Staerke,
Vor dir neigt die Erde sich
Und bewundert deine Werke.
Wie du warst vor aller Zeit,
So bleibst du in Ewigkeit."

Anthem by the choir, "O come, let us sing unto the Lord." Rev. H. B. Dirks gave a very interesting message from the time the "Whosoever Will Mission" was organized May 5, 1910, 25 years ago. He gave the names of those who started the mission and also the different ones up to the present time. Yes, he stated that whatsoever one soweth another will reap. He also pointed out the faith the leaders had in the Lord, and the faith the leaders of the church still have today, according to Heb. 11, and emphasized how faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. In 1924 we moved to the present location. The Lord has been with us and has blessed the work. Look not so much at things on earth, but at the things above, where God is the finisher of all things. The mission started with a few members, but thanks to God today it has a membership of 166. It has developed wonderfully. Look at the missionaries the church has out in the fields: Bro. and Sister F. J. Isaac in India, Bro. and Sister F. E. Manning in Africa, Bro. and Sister Geo. Buhler in Pennsylvania, and Bro. and Sister Rudolph Smith at Liberal, Kans. The Lord has blessed the work unspeakably. The "Whosoever Will Mission Church" some years ago changed the name to Immanuel Mennonite Church of Los Angeles. God is with us.

1. The work in the past 25 years has been done in faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, Heb. 11. 2. St. John 5:23, "That all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father." 3. St. John 15:5, "I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing." 4. Col. 3:1, "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God—everything ye do in Christ and for Christ." All things we have done for the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ will remain.

Theme verse, II Cor. 9:15, "Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift, for God will provide." I Cor. 3:10, "I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon." I Cor. 3:11, "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

Anthem, Choir: "Trust ye in the mighty God."

In closing our pastor, D. D. Eitzen, gave a very interesting memorial message: The names of those who in the past twenty-five years have passed to the Great Beyond. He emphasized plainly that we have no abiding place on earth, but an abiding place with the Lord in the heavenly home for ever and ever more. Ps. 90:12-13, "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom. Return, O Lord, how long and let it repent thee concerning thy servants." Col. 3:2-4, "Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Praise to God! The congregation rose and sang, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Yours in the Lord,
F. F. Wedel.

Pratum, Oregon, May 20, 1935. Dear Readers of the Ladies' Aid:— Our Ladies' Aid meets every first Thursday of the month. We meet at the homes of the members. Every three months we meet at the Deaconess Hospital to help them with their sewing and mending. The attendance is usually very good at all our meetings. Very light refreshments are served before we leave. Mrs. Franz is our president, and is very efficient in this work. Rev. Franz usually opens our meetings with Scripture reading and prayer, followed by singing. Two of our members have been called to their reward in the past year. They were Mrs. Paulina Wenger and Mrs. John Hofstetter.

Our annual meeting will be held again on June 6th. Mrs. J. Ramseyer.

The Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, has had the usual activities of the Lenten and Easter season. Our pastor took note of the Lenten season in his sermons from Sunday to Sunday.

Then from March 17-24, Dr. D. W. Kurtz, president of Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago, gave an eight day series of special Pre-Easter services, using as his theme "Good News," the Gospel of Christ. This series was exceptionally helpful to the church and the community.

On Palm Sunday, while our pastor was in Philadelphia conducting special services, Dr. A. S. Rosenberger supplied the pulpit in a very acceptable manner. His message was stimulating and permanently helpful.

On Easter Sunday morning we had our spring baptismal service and celebrated the communion of the Lord's Supper. In the evening our church choir sang "The Seven Last Words of Christ" to a large and appreciative audience. These special Easter services made a deep and lasting impression on our church and community.

"OPEN THE DOOR"

"Shall we not open the human heart,
Spread its doors till the hinges start?
Stop our worrying, doubt and din,
Hunting heaven and dodging sin?
There is no need to look so wide;
Open the door and stand aside—
And God comes in"!

The author is unknown, but these lines vividly express the attitude of true prayer. We do not have to shout and struggle to gain God's ear. "His ear is ever open to the voice of His children." All we need to do is to "Open the door." He stands at the door and knocks. Prayer is not a struggle to the child of God. It is the heart waiting to know His way.—Sel.

IT'S NO "SOFT SNAP"

Dr. George Caleb Moore, writing in "The Churchman," says that the qualifications demanded of the city pastor for days like these are: The strength of an ox; the tenacity of a bulldog; the daring of a lion; the patience of a donkey; the industry of a beaver; the versatility of a chameleon; the vision of an eagle; the melody of a nightingale; the meekness of a lamb; the hide of a rhinoceros; the disposition of an angel; the resignation of an incurable; the loyalty of an apostle; the heroism of a martyr; the faithfulness of a prophet; the tenderness of a shepherd; the fervency of an evangelist; the devotion of a mother.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

KEEP IN TOUCH WITH JESUS

Would you be a victor over every foe,
Conquer every trial in this world below,
Overcome temptations that each day you meet?
Keep in touch with Jesus, He will keep you sweet.

Would you be a blessing all along the way
Would you be possessing perfect love each day?
Let the Holy Spirit overcome defeat,
Keep in touch with Jesus, He will keep you sweet.

Would you have communion with your Lord each day,
Have a blessed union with Him all the way?
Praying without ceasing, learning at His feet,
Keep in touch with Jesus, He will keep you sweet.

—C. S. Kauffman.

TRUE PATRIOTISM

Patriotism is a large word and is often misused. We often think, when we see someone displaying the American flag, or going to war, that such a one is a patriot. But this outward display does not measure a man's patriotism. The word "patriot" has a most noble ancestry. It roots itself in the Greek word "poter," which means father, and from the word father we get the idea of fellow-countrymen. True patriotism then is not love of country only, but love of our fellowmen. Patriotism comes from the spirit. Now there is all about us a great need for all of us to exercise "true patriotism." The world is spoiled by the presence of sin, such as greed, envy, hatred, etc. To fight these and to make this world a fit place to live is our duty.

We are glad we can live in this great country of America. Because we appreciate our country it is necessary that we so live that God may add His blessing. The sun will give light and heat to the earth if nothing obstructs, likewise God will bless the nation that puts no obstructions in the way. "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."

The best way to serve our country is by loyalty to her laws and our Christ. The laws of a country are made for orderly and just relationships between folks, so they will be able to live as God directed men to live when He gave them the ten commandments. Every boy and girl needs to possess the spirit of loyalty. We cannot do very much, if anything, worth while unless there is within us a desire to be wholeheartedly loyal to the principles of Jesus Christ. The battle against present day evils calls for courage, consecration, and loyalty to His desires and purposes for us. Let us notice a few directions in which we may show our loyalty or true patriotism.

1. We can show our loyalty by truthfulness. God wants us to speak the truth on every occasion. In the Bible we read, "Lying lips are an abomination to the Lord, but they that deal truly are his delight." We are to speak the truth every time. One of our presidents once said to his reporter, "Be truthful." Get the facts. Mistakes are inevitable, but strive for accuracy. I would rather have one story exactly right than half a hundred half wrong."

2. Then we can show our loyalty to Christ and our country by honesty. "Honesty is ever the best policy." Success comes to boys and girls who are honest and truthful. Be honest with yourself, with Jesus, and with others, so honest that every one who knows you will honor and love you. No one has any respect for a dishonest person. We need never to be ashamed of truthfulness and honesty. It takes a brave boy or girl to be honest and truthful at all times.

3. Also we can show our loyalty by faithfulness. In this country we can choose whether we will be faithful, honest, and truthful, or unfaithful, dishonest, and untruthful. What is our decision? As true American citizens let us show our patriotism by our deeds of truthfulness, honesty, and faithfulness.

Rev. Ernest Hostetler, Hopedale, Ill.

THE PERNICIOUS HABIT OF SELF-PITY

"Verily I have cleansed my heart in vain and washed my hands in innocency," said the Psalmist, as he recounted the prosperity of the wicked. He was pitying himself. He was recounting his troubles. He was doing what so many do, who start with some disagreeable phase of their life and magnify it and seek to pile up more of the same kind and conclude that they are the most unfortunate and abused of all mankind. The more they look at themselves the more they shut out the light of day and plunge themselves into the shadows of their own making and consider themselves the most abused of mankind. How many thus spoil life for themselves and everybody around them!

Self-pity is a product of unbelief. We are told that "all things work together for good to them that love God." The self-pitier does not believe it. Jesus says that God cares more for His children than He does for the sparrows.

But self-pity looks at circumstances, as if they are not adverse enough, only to manufacture more and turns all things into gall.

Self-pity is discontent. It is a refusal to believe that God either sends or permits all adverse things; that nothing comes to us except in His will and for our good.

Self-pity shows a want of real consecration. Entire consecration means that we are in the hands of our God; we are in His keeping; we are ready to be or not to be, to do or not to do, to suffer or not to suffer as He sees fit. We are in our Father's keeping. We are so in His keeping that His grace will make us conquerors. He, who is entirely consecrated, never whines. He does not show his sores to the world. The more we whine the less we trust.

Self-pity is idolatry. We want the whole world to bow down and worship us. We want men to join us in our idolatry. We think that no one else has such a hard lot as we. We think other people ought to be interested in our sores and wounds. It is self-puffedness to be always dragging our idol into the gaze of men.

Self-pity is weakness. It saps the strength, it weakens our courage. It unfits us to meet the ills of life. It blunts our courage and weakens our faith and enervates our will. Self-pity really shows weakness and results in defeat. Get rid of self-pity and you will have half the battle against the situation already.

"Only be thou strong and very courageous," said God to Joshua. God can do nothing with a coward. Had little David given way to self-pity he had never defeated Goliath. Any little David can overcome, if he has faith in the God who says, "No weapon formed against thee shall prosper."

Let us refuse to give way in the least to the enervating, unbelieving, God-dishonoring practice of self-pity. David said he got cured when he went into the sanctuary of the Lord, when he retreated into God, his refuge.

—Christian Witness.

TRUE GREATNESS

If your heart is daily growing great and generous, if you are taking increased interest in the common happiness of others, if you are earnestly endeavoring to fill the hours of the day with useful work, if you are frequently making earnest supplication to God for guidance and wisdom, then be assured you are progressing toward the kingdom. The way to peace, happiness, and perfection has been implicitly pointed out to you. You are to practice humility, serve and glorify God in your body and in your spirit, run with patience the race that is set before you, and let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven. The way is plain to every sincere disciple of truth.

The vital step to the apprehension of truth is to desire it sincerely and earnestly. To make truth wholly yours, you must both understand and practically apply it. You will better appreciate the value and importance of truth when you seriously consider that erroneous thinking is the chief cause of all the sin, disaster, misfortune, sickness, and failure in the world. Truth to be properly grasped must be studied for truth's sake. Truth to be of real significance to you must be something more than theory: it must be a vital, personal, demonstrated power in your daily life. There is nothing which will bring to you so much satisfaction and permanent benefit as a profound study of truth. It transcends all material possessions, since it is eternal.

True prayer is cooperative. You can not properly ask God to relieve you of responsibility. Ask Him to make the way clear to you, to give you desire and diligence to labor, to endow you with power equal to your duties and obligations. Prayer is not a substitute for personal effort. Your petition to God must first be right, followed by earnest and intelligent cooperation on your part. True prayer is receptive, cooperative, confident, and submissive.

There are certain forms of evil which you should guard yourself against as you would against disease and pestilence. When you feel toward others the first intimation of resentment, envy, contempt, or discontent, annihilate the thought on the instant. Drive it out of your mental world and be done with it. Let thoughts of appreciation, admiration, approval, gratitude, and generosity, be uppermost in your mind. —G. K.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

June 30, 1935

What Makes A Nation Great?

Proverbs 14: 34

"Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

It is well for the people of every nation to study history in order that they may learn the mistakes which brought ruin to some nations, and the principles which caused others to live for thousands of years.

Because of the fact that July 4th falls in this coming week, there is special importance attached to this topic. It will in a sense be a patriotic service. Some peace loving Christians feel that Decoration Day and the Fourth would better be dropped off our calendar in the interest of a growing spirit of peace. Very true for many it is a time which for superficial souls calls for flag-waving and decrying as unpatriotic those who differ in thinking. But in reality a day like this calls for deep thinking and for a nationalism based on righteousness, for "righteousness exalteth a nation." Christian Endeavorers, if anybody, are interested in helping to build a great nation. Their elders have "made a mess of things" in many realms, so youth is studying the problem afresh so that a better day may dawn. Jesus Christ must be the foundation stone for such a building. "For other foundation can no man lay but that which is in Jesus Christ."

Questions

1. What are some evils which have brought the downfall of great nations like Rome, Greece, Babylon, and others?
2. Can you give some principles which have caused some nations like China to stand through the centuries?
3. Why is righteousness of such eternal value, and evil so brief in the life of an individual or a nation?
4. What are some of the evils which threaten the greatness of America?
5. How can the principles laid down by Jesus Christ make any nation great? Discuss a few of them.

July 7, 1935

Why Is Profanity Harmful?

Exodus 20:7; Matthew 26:69-75

This is the monthly consecration meeting. It calls for clean thinking, pure living, and a conversation that is Christian. Any other manner of speech than a "Yea, yea; nay, nay," is irreverent, unnecessary, and belittling.

Each generation learns anew that the Ten Commandments are immortal. The truths therein stated reach to the very foundation of our being, so that no individual can trample them under foot but that the act will crush him. "The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind sure." It robs a man or woman of something very vital when he or she drifts into the habit of using divine names or words related thereto in every sentence he or she utters.

Why do people otherwise intelligent continually use the oath and swearing in their speech? Is it that they desire to be emphatic, so that people will believe them, like in the case of Peter when he was denying His Lord? In many cases like Peter's it immediately calls forth suspicion as to whether it is truth. Some of the greatest prevaricators known indulge quite freely in profanity and the swearing of oaths. It immediately marks an individual as small, or of limited vocabulary and of doubtful veracity. It is a habit, and in many cases a habit hard to break, but surely one which every true child of God will shun like poison. That God is ill pleased with this habit is well shown by Luke's record when he relates how Jesus looked upon Peter after the third denial uttered with an oath. How that loving, pitying look must have hurt Peter! It is doubtful whether he could ever forget it. How Christ must lovingly pity the man or woman who is the slave to profanity! Do you find yourself guilty of this habit? Or do you habitually use some unnecessary words which although perhaps do not take the name of God or of Jesus Christ in vain, belong to the same class? For His sake and for your own will you with His help endeavor to break yourself of this bondage?

Questions

1. What is meant by profanity?
2. Why is profanity harmful?
3. What are the reasons for the use of profanity?
4. Why was the third commandment included in the Decalog?
5. Is Peter's use of profanity typical? Did it help him?
6. What helping words may one use for the sake of emphasis, if any?
7. How can we best rid ourselves of the habit of profanity?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Ill.

June 30, 1935

"The Heavens Declare the Glory of God"

Psalm 19:1-9

Let us take time—To enjoy the world of nature. No one ever contemplated murder while filling his soul with the perfume of a garden, the singing of birds, or the enjoyment of opening spring life.

Pre-Prayer

Help us to take time to appreciate Thy universe and in so doing be drawn closer to Thee.

The world is full of beauty. It is everywhere lavished without stint. In the shifting panorama of cloud land; in gorgeous sunsets; in the bewildering loveliness of flower strewn fields; in sparkling cascade; in silvery stream; in majestic ocean, and towering mountains—all above, around, and beneath us, the earth, the air, and sea are filled with ten thousand forms of beauty. In response to them the love of beauty is implanted in our nature to awaken our finer feelings and to raise our minds to exalted heights of rapture and adoration. What a wondrously rare world is this to one who sees it aright! What ceaseless pleasure is afforded in beholding its perpetual succession of shifting scenes. Said a blind girl who suddenly received her sight and saw for the first time the outer world, "Why did you not tell me before how beautiful the sky and trees and grass and flowers were"? and she trembled in a transport of delight as the sight surpassed all the impressions that language had conveyed to her. There are multitudes of people who have no more conception of the beauty about them than had this blind girl with her darkened vision; and they plod on through life, missing the exquisite delight which might be theirs if the love of the beautiful were awakened and developed in them.

What an open book is Nature! How wonderfully one can find God in the open air, mountains, sea, and forest! But by night, when the stars shine out, when the moon sends forth her light, "the heavens declare the glory of God." The universe teaches by three of its features:

1. Its beauty. God is a God of balance and grandeur. The softness of the twinkling light of each star, the symmetry of their arrangement, the heaven covered as with a carpet bespeak the Creator's love of beauty.

2. Its orderliness. The stars of heaven, with the sun and moon, impress upon us the unchanging laws of God. Our ancestors of a thousand years ago looked into the same heaven and found the working of the same laws as we do now.

3. Its vastness. Each year adds to man's ability to search into the remote distances of space, and new constellations are being added to the roll. The beam of light from Arcturus being harnessed forty years after its origin to create new light in the Chicago Fair is an example.

Questions

1. Why is it difficult to believe that the world came into being by chance?
2. In what two ways does the Father reveal Himself to us?
3. What lessons do you learn from an intimate fellowship with trees?

4. What is the value of meditation upon the wonders af nature?
5. What do I think when I look into the heart of a rose?
6. What were some of the great teachings which Christ took from nature?

July 7, 1935

Why Is Profanity Harmful?

Exodus 20:7; Matt. 26:69-75

"Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain."

Pre-Prayer

Our Father, may we be this day as watchers on the wall, alert to guard our lives against the approach of evil. May we be anxious to welcome all good influences, and let us watch not only our own lives, but be ever ready to guard the best interests of all Thy children.

Matt. 26:69-75.—This is a record of a good man's temporary disgrace. It was a good motive that brought him to the place of temptation—love for his Lord. The bitter weeping that shook his strong frame as he went out from the scene of temptation into the darkness testified that he still loved his Lord. Why did he yield to temptation and go out with such bitter sense of shameful defeat? The question can not be fully answered because we do not possess an intimate knowledge of Peter's inner life during the years that preceded his temptation. The reason for a man's failing in a conspicuous emergency is often found in a long series of earlier failures at inconspicuous points of his life. Evidently telling the exact truth under all circumstances had not become an instinct of Peter's nature.

Four points characterize profanity: 1. The profane person often possesses so limited a vocabulary, and his ignorance is so marked that he cannot express himself in more cultured language.

2. Profanity or rough talk is never the sign of gentility. No gentleman, no lady is considered such because of coarseness in speech, but quite the contrary is true. To be a gentleman is to respect the personality of other persons, and the profane person never does that. This is particularly true when one uses foul language in the presence of children or of ladies.

3. The use of profanity is frequently coupled with anger and loss of temper. Cursing and swearing becomes a channel to vent one's wrath. Anger is a physical poison and a spiritual disease.

4. Profanity shows lack of respect for God, His name, and other holy things. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain" has never been repealed. The Christian speaks the names of Deity with awe and reverence. Profanity can never pass as a mark of a Christian.

Questions

1. How can one control his temper?
2. When is anger dangerous?
3. What proves that anger can be controlled?
4. Why is profanity harmful?
5. What can prayer do to help us control ourselves from using profane language?
6. Does profanity keep a person from climbing upward in life?
7. How can we break ourselves of swearing and cursing?
8. In what ways can we help our friends to stop using profane language?

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 So. Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois

June 30, 1935

Topic.—Nature Talks That Jesus Made

Matt. 6:26-33

I hope you are reading this several days before your Junior meeting. If you are, lay this paper aside for a bit, get pencil and paper, and go to the window or out of doors. Make a list of things you see, things God has made, then come back to your study. Notice how often Jesus spoke of these things and the lessons He taught from them. Perhaps you noticed the sun. Read Matt. 16:2, 3. In Luke 12:54, 55 we read of clouds and wind. Did you see a hill in the distance? Matt. 5:14 reminds us that true Christians are like a city on a hill, seen by all around.

In Matt. 13, we have the lesson of the sower. He sowed good seed, but only a part of it grew because some of the ground was not good. God's Word is the seed and our hearts are the soil. His Word is always good, but some hearts are sinful or careless and lessons from the Word are soon forgotten. What kind of heart have you? Then Jesus speaks of weeds in Matt. 13:24-30.

In Matt. 6:26-33 we find Jesus speaking of birds and flowers. He says that even though they are not able to care for themselves, God feeds the birds and clothes the flowers and grass beautifully. Why, then, should we worry? He wants us to think most of Him, to love Him, and trust Him to care for us.

I wonder if you saw sparrows while you were looking out? We have so many of them that we do not really care for them at all, but Jesus speaks even of them. He said in Luke 12:6, 7, that even though they were so plentiful as to be worth very little, God does not forget one of them. Surely then we need not be afraid, for each of us is worth more than many sparrows.

Look out into the fields. Wherever there is a stalk of wheat, a grain has died, allowing the little sprout inside to grow. Jesus came to give us eternal life, but in order to do that He must first die. He told of that in John 12:24, telling of the wheat to help us understand.

His children get spiritual life from Him as a branch gets its life from a vine. John 15. No one can live a real Christian life except by abiding in Him.

In Mark 13:28, 29, He speaks of a tree by which one can tell when summer is coming. This tree should remind us that when certain things that He has told us come to pass, we may know that He is about to come again to take His children to be with Himself.

Plans for the Meeting

There has been no attempt made to discuss all of the nature talks Jesus made. This meeting will be especially impressive if it can be held out-of-doors. Try to get these stories so firmly implanted in the minds of the Juniors that the object used shall always be a reminder of the deep truths taught.

Questions

1. How does wheat speak of Jesus' death?
2. Tell Jesus' story of the vine and branches.
3. What lesson can we learn from weeds? (Matt. 13:25-30.)
4. Of what would Jesus have birds and flowers remind us?
5. How may we know when the time is near for Jesus to come again?

July 7, 1935

Topic.—Of What Things Can Our Country Be Proud?

Ps. 33:12; Prov. 14:24. (Consecration Meeting)

Before speaking of our country's pride, let us be sure that we use the right meaning of the word. So often that word means thinking so much of one's self as not to care anything for another. I am sure our topic does not mean that. One meaning given for "proud" in the dictionary is "worthy of admiration." That is the one we shall use. What is there in our country that both we and people of other nations can admire?

Did you ever thank God for a land where we are free to worship Him? We have read of people in other days who had to hide their Bibles very carefully if they would keep them. They could not go to church as we do. They must get together very quietly where they could not be easily seen. If they were found, they were put into prison or even killed. That is true in some lands today. How very good God has been to us to give us this freedom in our country!

Then we have our homes. Even during these hard times the government has tried to keep families together instead of separating them as in some lands. We are glad to live in a nation of homes. And with church and home we think of school. Are you not glad that boys and girls, both rich and poor, may go to school? We are told that there are few countries where it is as easy for poor people to get an education as here.

Plans for the Meeting

In our discussion we have confined ourselves to reasons for encouragement. Our Scripture for today mentions the opposite as well and we should not overlook that in the meeting. Emphasize the fact that if sin rules, God must punish. Let this be a call to deeper consecration, a greater determination to be true to Christ and the teaching of His Word. Use and encourage the Juniors to read Rev. Hostetler's article on "True Patriotism."

Questions

1. Why are you glad to live in America?
2. How can we best show loyalty to our country?
3. How does sin affect a nation?
4. What is "true patriotism"?
5. How may a nation be sure of God's blessing?

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

June 23, 1935

SOME GREAT CHRISTIAN TEACHINGS

Christian Missions

Lesson Text.—Acts 1:6-8; 13:1-12

Golden Text.—Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. Mark 16:15.

The Christian church has a number of activities all of which are a part of her life and work. In the first place the church is an organization as well as an organism. All churches could be classified under either Episcopal, Presbyterian, or Congregational form of government. In the second place she has a creed formed by her interpretation form of worship, the form ranging from the simple congregational worship of the Mennonites to the High Mass of the Catholic church. Then in the fourth place there is the emphasis on the Christian life. These have been named so that we might see their relation to the fifth one which is our discussion for this Sunday, missions.

Missions deals with the expansion of the church. The church has always been interested in enlarging her borders and in bringing the gospel to others.

Perhaps the first point of interest in relation to missions is its motive. Why is the church interested in missions? The explanation of its motive is to be found in the heart of God. God is love. His eternal purpose throughout the ages has been to have man who is created in His image to live in fellowship with Him and to cooperate in His great cause. When sin entered the human race, it obstructed God's eternal purpose. Man in sin could not live in fellowship with God neither cooperate with Him. So God because of His love sought to win man back to Him. His purpose became a redemptive purpose. For this reason in the fullness of time, He sent His Son into the world because He so loved the world. In all of Jesus' life He manifested this redemptive purpose of His Father. Jesus loved, forgave, helped, and sympathized with man, and finally we see the culmination of that love on Calvary when He poured out His life for the remission of sins. He gathered disciples together and imparted to them this same loving, unselfish, sacrificing spirit. When He ascended to the Father, He said, "Ye shall receive power after the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me everywhere. He also said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel, baptizing them in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo, I will be with you always, even unto the end of the world." The church believes in missions because it is Christ's church and that is His Spirit.

The motive of missions is the Love of God through Christ in the heart and life of a Christian. The true church is composed of such members. When a church does not believe in missions or does not have a missionary spirit, it is not a church. It is a worldly organization. A church not missionary will one day be a missing church.

What do we mean by "Missions"?

What is the motive of missions?

What part does the pastor have in the promotion of missions in a church?

What part does each laymember have in the promotion of missions?

June 30, 1935

SOME GREAT CHRISTIAN TEACHINGS

Liberty under Law

(Temperance Lesson)

Lesson Text.—Romans 14:13-21; I Cor. 8:9-13

Golden Text.—It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak. Romans 14:21.

We are living in a day of lawlessness. Freedom and liberty are emphasized until they have become license. This is true not only politically but in every realm of life. We cry for self-expression often meaning by that that all our fleshly desires, passions, and lusts shall be fulfilled. We must not be curbed or controlled in anything. When the home insists on law and control, the young rebel. When the school would control, the students go on a strike. Yet with all this emphasis on no control, we are drifting on the other hand towards regimentation and dictatorship. Never have we taken orders from superiors and "Goose stepped" as we do today in our country. It is high time that the church study carefully what is true liberty.

One thing we dare never forget and that is that we live in groups and societies and that we do have some relation to others. Man's life is very largely determined by his relationship to God and to his fellowmen. This was recognized before the days of Jesus. When Moses wrote the Ten Commandments on tables of stone, four had to do with man's relation to God and six with man's relation to man.

Christianity is a religion of "others." Man in Christianity not only lives in the presence of God the Father, but also in relation to his brother. Jesus says we can't even worship God unless we are first right with our brother. This, of course, immediately suggests that the other man has rights and he is to enjoy freedom as well as I. So in all of my life as a true Christian citizen I must always regard the rights of my brother. I have freedom under law. The law is for offenders and also for educational purposes to help me practice self-control. Paul states it well when he says, "The law is a schoolmaster to lead me to Christ." The law to the Christian is not burdensome and grievous. It does not limit his freedom. The law is the protector of his liberty. The Christian has the law incarnate in his life. He does not obey because it is law, but because the law in principle is the expression of the best in his life.

The greatest need in the world today is this recognition of the rights of others and a positive interest and concern in the welfare of the other person. This principle is the basis for both peace and temperance.

What is liberty?

Are there any real dangers to our liberty today?

What is the relation of liberty to law?

How far should a Christian determine his conduct by a consideration of others?

"The bondage of habit grows with the years."

ALL IS WELL

In the center of the circle
Of the will of God I stand;
There can come no second causes,
All must come from His dear hand.
All is well! for 'tis the Father
Who my life has planned.

Shall I pass through waves of sorrow?
Then I know it will be best,
Though I cannot tell the reason
I can trust and so am blest;
God is love and God is faithful,
So in perfect peace I rest.

With the shade and with the sunlight,
With the joy and with the pain,
Lord, I trust Thee, both are needed,
Each Thy wayward child to train;
Earthly loss, did we but know it,
Often means our heavenly gain.

—I. G. W.

YOUR AFTERSELF

Your first duty in life is toward your afterself. So live that the man you ought to be may, in his time, be possible, be actual. Far away in the years he is waiting his turn. His body, his brain, his soul, are in your boyish hands. He cannot help himself. What will you leave for him? Will it be a brain unspoiled by lust or dissipation; a mind trained to think and act; a nervous system true as a dial in its response to the truth about you? Will you, Boy, let him come as a man among men in his time? Or will you throw away his inheritance before he has had the chance to touch it? Will you turn over to him a brain distorted, a mind diseased, a will untrained to action, a spinal cord grown through and through with "the devil-grass, wild oats"? Will you let him come and take your place, gaining through your experience, happy in your friendship, hallowed through your joys, building on them his own? Or will you fling it all away, decreeing, wantonlike, that the man you might have been shall never be? This is your problem in life—the problem which is vastly more to you than any or all others. How will you meet it, as a man or as a fool? It comes before you today and every day, and the hour of your choice is the crisis in your destiny.—D. S. J.

JOTTINGS

Bethel College Bulletin for May gives a striking picture of Science Hall. The inspector from the North Central Association of Colleges says of it: "The college has one of the finest science halls that the inspector has ever seen on the campus of a small college."

A recent survey of historic buildings sponsored by the U. S. Government included the historic Mennonite Meeting House of Germantown, the home of the oldest Mennonite congregation in America. Accurate drawings were made of the building, including every detail so that, were the building to be destroyed, it could again be accurately replaced. The result of these surveys is on file in Washington for the benefit of those interested in architecture and history.

No less a celebrity than Wallace Nutting honored one of the ancient Mennonite Meeting Houses by making it the subject of one of his famous pictures appearing in print. The meeting house is at Saucon, located near Coopersburg, and one of the oldest Mennonite places of worship in Pennsylvania. The building sets in a beautiful grove of oak and other forest trees.

Thirty-six years ago the Second Mennonite church was erected in a section of Philadelphia just being developed. Thousands of new homes were erected and the whole character of the neighborhood changed. Persons who left the section at that time would, were they to return, never be able to locate any of the landmarks. The father of Deacon Abraham B. Weiss pastured his cows where the church now stands and the creek of considerable size that ran past the location is now confined to a sewer thirty feet underground which is fifteen feet in diameter, large enough to drive through with a truck. The writer, when a boy, caught fish (minnows) in this stream and he knew men who had shot wild ducks on the pond which lay in the stream's course.

The first building of the First Mennonite church in Philadelphia was a frame one, standing on timber supports. It was purchased from another denomination and was used for a number of years before being replaced by the present structure. The old frame building being without a cellar and standing several feet from the ground on its supports, offered a splendid place for small boys to hide. An ancient inhabitant of the locality informed the writer that he with a number of other boys had built a "bunk" under the structure.

An ancient log Meeting House located some miles above Allentown, was in such an out-of-the-way place in the old times that meetings had to be suspended during the winter months. The place was known by the name of Settlement. One fine spring morning, when Rev. Moses Gottshall was to preach the first sermon of the season, it happened that the wasps that had wintered in the building, did not like the fine vibrating voice of the preacher and drove the preacher and worshippers from the building. Nothing remains of the place today except the graveyard where sleep the fathers of this ancient congregation that once had stood in the way of an Indian raid that threatened to destroy all the white inhabitants of that locality.

The Berne, Indiana, church has a long honor roll of those who have entered the work of Home or Foreign Missions. The names on this roll are: Loretta Lehman, Martha Burkhalter, Noah Burkhalter (who died on the field), Helen Nickel, Mrs. Herbert E. Dester, and Mrs. S. T. Moyer, in India; Frieda Sprunger, in China; Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Habegger, in Montana; Lavina Burkhalter, in California; Rev. and Mrs. Sylvan Lehman, in Pennsylvania; Rev. M. M. Lehman, in Canada. Rev. John Nussbaum is an evangelist.

Dr. and Mrs. Dester of the General Conference Mission in India arrived home on their first furlough last month, landing in New York. Their first stop was with Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of the Swamp charge, Quakertown, Pa. From Quakertown they left for Berne, Ind., the home of Mrs. Dester. They have been on the field eight years.

Missionaries Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Steiner who for a term served with the General Conference Mission in Central India and later near the Tibetean border under another society, will return to their home in Pandora, Ohio, on furlough.

Bluffton College Commencement, June 12, included on its program the annual baccalaureate service, at which time the retiring president, Dr. S. K. Mosiman, gave the address. The commencement address was given by Dr. Harold Alderfer, professor of Economics at Pennsylvania State College. Dr. Alderfer is a graduate of Bluffton College.

The Wedel family, numerous in Mennonite churches of Russian extraction, will hold a reunion on the campus of Bethel College, Newton, Kans., June 16. Arrangements have been made so that in case of rain the college "gym" may be used.

Some days ago the Gospel Herald Quartet of the Mennonite church, Elbing, Kansas, rendered a program over the radio, KFBI, Abilene, Kans.

The Mennonite Song Festival which is an annual event among the Mennonites of the Western District Conference, in which the choirs of the district participate, was held in Newton, Kansas, on the afternoon and evening of June 2.

The secretary of the General Conference, Rev. C. E. Krehbiel of Newton, Kansas, has sent out Delegate's Certificate blanks. These should be properly filled out and mailed to him in good time. Should any delegates chosen to represent their congregations, have been missed, application should be made to Rev. Krehbiel immediately so that they may be properly certified and forwarded.

Posters announcing the General Conference Young People's Retreat which is to follow the meeting of the General Conference, have been sent to the churches for the benefit of young people and young people's leaders. Churches not receiving the posters or those who could use additional ones should notify D. D. Eitzen, 722 East 79th St., Los Angeles, Calif.

The program of the Kansas Mennonite Sunday School Convention, Halstead, Kansas, June 10, provides the following subjects: "Survey of Christian Education," G. R. Gaeddert; "How Shall Our Sunday School Teaching Contain the Truths of the Lesson and Everyday Life"? Anton Richert; "What Contribution to Christian Living May the Sunday Schools Expect From Their College Trained"? Dean P. S. Goertz; "My Idea of What a Sunday School Might Be," P. E. Frantz; "Training for Christian Living in the Sunday School," Rev. W. L. Clark. Special music and devotional features were also included in the program.

DEATHS

William M. Hofstetter, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hofstetter, of Wayne County, Ohio, was born December 27, 1862. In 1869 he came with his parents from Ohio to Missouri, settling in Hickory County, where he made his home for 24 years, until moving to his home in Moniteau county in 1893.

On December 6, 1888, he was united in marriage with Caroline M. Lehman. To this union were born nine children, five sons, and four daughters. For many years he had been a member of the Bethel Mennonite church, of which he remained a member until his death. On May 17, at 2:30 A. M., he passed to his eternal reward, having reached the age of 72 years, 4 months, and 20 days. He leaves to mourn his departure his beloved wife, five sons, four daughters, four brothers, one sister, and ten grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday at Bethel church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dirks, and interment was made in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Josephine Musser, daughter of John and Anna (Eicher) Wittmer, was born September 13, 1847, in Alsace, France. She came with her parents to America in the year 1866. They located near Olds, Henry Co., Iowa. She united with the Mennonite church in her youth and has continued a faithful member until death. For many years she was a member of the Eicher church of near Noble, Iowa. On November 9, 1871, she was united in marriage to Abraham Musser. To this union eight children were born, three sons and five daughters. Her husband, two sons, and three daughters preceded her in death. She peacefully passed away May 18, aged 87 years, 8 months, 6 days, leaving to mourn her passing, two daughters, one son, fourteen grandchildren, ten greatgrandchildren, one sister, and one brother.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday morning, May 22, at Eicher church. Services were in charge of her pastor, Rev. A. H. Miller, assisted by Rev. Bacher of Olds, Ia.

OBITUARY OF REV. VALDO PETTER

Missionary to Northern Cheyennes at Ashland, Mont.

Missionary Valdo Petter was born July 26, 1895, at Darlington, Oklahoma. He was the son of Missionary Rodolphe Petter and Marie Gerber Petter, whose home was at Cantonment, Okla., near Canton, where missionaries Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Linscheid are stationed at present.

Valdo Petter grew to young manhood at Cantonment. He received his early education from his parents, and also by attending a school for white children for a short time. He often accompanied his parents and sister Olga on their long journeys over the mission field among the Cheyenne Indians. These were made by wagon and team in those days.

His mother became ill with tuberculosis, which disease is common among the Indians. After fourteen years of sickness she passed away July 31, 1910, and was buried in the Indian cemetery at Cantonment.

In May 1909 the Petters had gone to Kettle Falls, Wash., in quest of health for Mrs. Petter. They procured a small fruit ranch of some ten acres in the Columbia River Valley, where health and climate conditions are very inviting. Rev. Rodolphe Petter who had been working steadfastly on his mastery of the Cheyenne language, was bothered with hay fever, moved with his two children to Kettle Falls in 1913 to print the Cheyenne dictionary on the multigraph machine. Valdo did the type setting, while his father did the preparing of the manuscript and proof reading. This work was completed in the fall of 1915. This exacting work was a great strain on the eyesight of Valdo Petter, and left him with weakened eyes.

After the death of his mother, Valdo and his sister attended school at Newton, Kans., attending first the public school and then the Academy of Bethel College. After the dictionary mentioned above was printed, he enrolled in the University of Washington.

When the United States declared war on Germany, April 6, 1917, Valdo volunteered the next day, April 7, in the non-combatant service of the medical corps. He was stationed at Camp Lewis, State of Washington, and later at Allentown, Pa., and was then sent overseas to do service at the front. This strenuous service midst extreme human suffering and the awful horrors of war made a deep impression on him. He served in the medical corps for two years, returning home in 1919, for he was with the Army of Occupation for some months after the war was over.

After his return home he enrolled for a two year course in the Moody Bible Institute. While there he met Miss Laura Rohrman of Detroit, Mich., to whom he was married September 25, 1923, at Lame Deer, Mont. The Rev. P. A. Kliewer, now of Bluffton, O., then missionary among the North Cheyennes, performed the ceremony. After their marriage they went to Kettle Falls, Wash., living in the house of his father. For three months he served as pastor of the Presbyterian church near there.

In October 1924, they were called to take over the work at Ashland, Mont., among the North Cheyennes. After some years as an evangelist he was ordained by his father as a minister and elder, so he might perform marriages and officiate in all matters pertaining to the work of the church.

At the time he accepted the call to the mission field he did not wish to assume full duties, due to the fact that he was not well. He had trouble with his nerves, often had sleepless nights, when he would toss about and see the terrible war scenes move by in his mind. During all these years of service he has been doing all he could for the Indians. He knew the Cheyenne language from childhood up, having learned it in playing with Indian children, and also in his printing the Cheyenne dictionary. He kept the mission station attractive and in good order, and proclaimed the Word of God in all sincerity and love.

Feeling his health failing, he had asked for a furlough last year, but due to the depression and other difficulties it was not granted until this spring. Then there were difficulties in getting a substitute. All along he felt his strength lessening. He with his family went to see his father, Rev. R. Petter, and wife off on April 3, at Forsyth, Mont., when his parents started on their trip to Europe. This was but two weeks before his death. He told his dear wife about this time that he did not think that he could hold out on an overland trip if they did go on a furlough. In a letter, written April 25, to Rev. Habegger he says, "If God does not want us to go, we know He will keep us here. On the other hand we know that He will open the door wide if we are to go.—So the matter is fully in His hands, and we await His decision."

On Saturday, May 4, the same day his parents boarded the steamer Champlain at New York, Valdo did his work about the place, and assisted an Indian woman to scrub the church. Towards evening he complained of pain all over and of an extreme weariness and exhaustion. He had a restless night, and was unable to get up in the morning. It worried him so much that he could not preach to the Indians as he had planned. A doctor was called from the C. C. C. Camp not many miles off, who pronounced his sickness as pernicious anemia. All medications seemed of no avail. A nurse was sent for Monday, and the doctor was called again Monday P. M. The patient began to complain of a choking sensation and his lungs began to fill rapidly with pneumonia. He could only talk in a whisper. When Mrs. Petter mentioned that he might go home to his mother, he seemed rather surprised, but then said: "Shall I die"? When she said, "Do just as you like," he answered, "I guess I might just as well die." He felt that he might be an invalid for life, and so welcomed release. He was a devoted husband and father, and a devoted missionary to the Cheyennes.

His sister Olga and her husband, P. F. Schroeder, of Collville, Wn., came overland for the funeral. Edward Rohrman, brother to Mrs. Petter, came from Detroit, Mich. Christian friends, white folks living at Ashland, and Mrs. Habegger of Busby, helped Mrs. Petter Tuesday and Wednesday in preparations for the funeral, and in receiving the numerous callers, both Indians and whites.

Rev. Habegger of Busby was in charge of the funeral services. The first was Thursday at 10:30 A. M. for the Cheyennes. This service was all in the Indian language. Many a sad Indian woman shed bitter tears when they beheld their beloved friend for the last time. Milton Whiteman of Lame Deer sang a Cheyenne solo, and gave the obituary in the Cheyenne language. Words of comfort were based on Romans 8:31-39.

The second service was at 12:30 P. M. for the white friends at Ashland. The church was well filled. The American Legion post of that place sat in a body and contributed a beautiful floral offering. There were numerous and beautiful floral offerings from friends and neighbors, showing that Rev. Petter was highly esteemed by the white people of Ashland. Rev. Oliver of the Methodist church at Ashland read the Scripture passage I Cor. 15:45-58 and offered prayer. Rev. Habegger preached the funeral sermon, emphasizing the thought given in the passage read, especially verse 57: "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

The body was then taken to Lame Deer, where at 3:30 P. M. another service was held. The church was filled with a mixed crowd of whites and Indians, friends of Valdo and his parents. Several additional floral offerings from Lame Deer friends were added to the ones displayed at Ashland. Here words of comfort were directed especially to the bereaved ones, and attention was called to the great assurance we have in Christ Jesus, that nothing in life or death, in time or eternity can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus. Words of comfort were based on Romans 8:38-39. A few remarks were also made in Cheyenne by Milton Whiteman, and the obituary read in both English and Cheyenne. Special music was given at both the Ashland and Lame Deer services.

The casket was furnished by the government, as Valdo was a veteran of the World War, as mentioned in this report above. A large American flag was placed over his casket. Attention was called at all services to the fact that Valdo served the Lord while serving his country, that he was a citizen of a better country, and that love to God and his fellowmen was the urge that moved him wherever he was.

Burial was made in the Lame Deer cemetery, near his dear departed friends, Eugene Standingelk and Anna Wolfname, both loyal and staunch Christians of his father's church. Thus his earthly remains rest with his North Cheyenne friends, as his mother's rest with the South Cheyennes. So in death as in life he is associated with the people with whom the major part of his life has been intimately connected. His grave will remind them long of his love and devotion to them, and this in turn will remind them of the love and mercy of the heavenly Father as we know it through Christ Jesus, our Lord.

Valdo had in the last months of his life become intensely interested in the stars and heavenly bodies. He procured maps of the sky and books on astronomy, and marveled, that He who made the heavens should be so interested in us small human beings. He felt very humble before the Lord of heaven and earth. He trusted in His Lord, that He would guide him aright, as unerringly as He guides the stars in their paths. Now that he has passed out of time into the glorious eternity to be with Him who died for Him, may we all gain inspiration from his life.

He leaves to mourn his departure, his devoted wife, three children: David, Amy, and Daniel, one sister, Olga, wife of P. F. Schroeder, and his father, Rodolphe Petter, now in Europe, with Mrs. Petter, also one nephew, son of his sister, and a host of friends, both Indians and whites. His age was 39 years, 9 months, 10 days. He served as missionary 10½ years.

MARRIAGE

Mast-Stevens.—On April 25, 1935, a quiet and impressive wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mast of Fairview, Michigan, when their daughter, Letha Pearl, was united in holy wedlock to Ellsworth Preston Stevens of Mio, Michigan. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Troyer of Fairview. Miss Ima Stutesman, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march, while they marched down the stairway to their places. Rev. Frank R. Mitchell of Comins performed the ceremony. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, parents of the groom; Mr. Smith, grandfather of the groom; and Mrs. Frank R. Mitchell.

RECEIVED FOR PUBLICATIONS

Mennonite Church, Meno, Wash.	$ 90.28
Mennonite Church, Monroe, Wash.	22.60
Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hostetler, Upland, Calif.	10.00
Rev. W. W. Miller, Pulaski, Iowa	5.00
Rosenort Mennonite Church, Rosthern, Sask.	68.00
First Church, Aberdeen, Idaho	140.16
Inman Church, Inman, Kansas	14.00
Missionary Society, Trenton Church, Trenton, O.	5.00
First Mennonite S. S., Wadsworth, Ohio	11.50
Senior Sewing Society, Halstead, Kansas	9.75
First Church, Upland, Calif.	3.45
Bethel College Church, Newton, Kans.	12.55
First Church, Philadelphia, Pa.	1.46
Dr. T. H. Soldner, Berne, Ind.	10.00
Total	$403.75

Sincerely,
E. W. Baumgartner, Treasurer.

CENTRAL CONFERENCE LADIES' AID REPORT

January—May, 1935

January: 8th St., Goshen, Used clothing to 62nd St. Mission, $10.25; Peoria Mission, African Sewing, $6.00; 26th St. Mission, Support of African pupil, including sewing, $15.00.

February: 8th St., Goshen, Cash to O. P. Home, $5.00; Silver St., African Sewing, $11.56; Carlock, African Sewing and Support of Pupil, $5.00; Normal, Support of African Pupil, $15.00; North Danvers, African Sewing, $10.89; 62nd St. Mission, African Sewing, $5.00.

March: Comins, Cash to 62nd Street, $1.00; Topeka, Cash to 26th Street, $5.00; Danvers, Cash to 62nd Street, $3.00; Middlebury, Cash to 26th Street, $3.00; Hopedale, Cash to O. P. Home, $3.00; Carlock, Food to O. P. Home, $5.85.

April: Danvers, Cash to 26th Street, $3.00; Hopedale, Sewing to Hospital $4.62; Topeka, Cash to 62nd Street, $5.00; Carlock, Food to 62nd Street, $5.00.

May: Middlebury, Hospital Sewing, $3.00; Carlock, Food to 26th Street, $5.50; 8th St., Goshen, Missionary Society, Support of African Pupil, $15.00.

Gratefully acknowledged,
Mrs. R. L. Hartzler, Secretary-Treasurer.

MY HEART NEEDS THEE

My heart needs Thee, O Lord, my heart needs Thee! No part of my being needs Thee like my heart. All else within me can be filled by Thy gifts. My hunger can be satisfied by daily bread. My thirst can be allayed by earthly waters. My cold can be removed by household fires. My weariness can be relieved by outward rest. But no outward thing can make my heart pure. The calmest day will not calm my passions. The fairest scene will not beautify my soul. The richest music will not make harmony within. The breezes can cleanse the air, but no breeze can cleanse a spirit. This world has not provided for my heart. It has provided for my eye; it has provided for my ear; it has provided for my touch; it has provided for my taste; it has provided for my sense of beauty, but it has not provided for my heart. Provide Thou for my heart, O Lord! It is the only unwinged bird in all creation; give it wings, O Lord! Earth has failed to give it wings; its very power of loving has often drawn it in the mire. Be Thou the strength of my heart. Be Thou its fortress in temptation, its shield in remorse, its covert in the storm, its star in the night, its voice in the solitude. Guide it in its gloom; help it in its heat; direct it in its doubt; calm it in its conflict; fan it in its faintness; prompt it in its perplexity; lead it through its labyrinths; raise it from its ruins. I cannot rule this heart of mine; keep it under the shadow of Thine own wings.—George Matheson.

Do a kindness, do it well;
Angels will the story tell,
Kindly deeds and thoughts and words
Bless the world like songs of birds,
—Selected.

Drop a word of cheer and kindness;
Just a flash and it is gone,
Yet there's half a hundred circles
Rippling on and on and on.
—Selected.

OUR BEST-SELLING BIBLES

NEW PICTORIAL BIBLE WITH HELPS

SELF PRONOUNCING BOLD FACE BREVIER 8vo TEXT BIBLE ILLUSTRATED

Suitable for all ages

The Thinnest White Paper Bible containing Bold Face Brevier Type

Size 7¼x4½x⅞ in.

SPECIMEN OF TYPE

> 3 And when they wanted wine, the > mother of Jesus saith unto him, They > have no wine.
> 4 Jesus saith unto her, Woman,
> what have I to do with thee? mine
>
> wilt thou rear it up in three days?
> 21 But he spake of the temple of his > body.
> 22 When therefore he was risen from > the dead, his disciples remembered

RECOMMENDED FOR GIFT PURPOSES

Printed from perfect plates in bold face brevier, the most popular font of type now in use, on a special grade of Bible paper that is very opaque, yet extremely thin, thus giving an unusually compact Bible for the size of type. All numerals are in plain Arabic and chapters are numbered consecutively for easy reference. Marginal titles make this popular edition practically self-indexed.

STUDENTS' HELPS TO BIBLE STUDY

Containing a special 64-page supplement of Helps to Bible Study, especially compiled for this series, consisting of a series of articles on various subjects, such as the Languages of the Bible, the English Versions, Parables and Miracles, Weights and Measures, the Harmony of the Gospels, Paul's Missionary Journeys, the Chronology of the Old Testament, the period between Malachi and the birth of Christ and the New Testament, the Books of the Apocrypha, and a Table of Daily Readings.

ILLUSTRATIONS

consisting of sixten carefully chosen views of the Holy Land, eight in full colors and eight in photogravure.

All have Maps, Headbands, and Markers

No. 8 Imitation Leather Binding, round corners, divinity circuit, red edges. An unusual bargain. Price, postpaid........$1.00

S89½ Persianette, round corners, divinity circuit, red edges........$1.25

S89 Persianette, round corners, divinity circuit, red under gold edges........$1.50

S91 French Morocco, round corners, divinity circuit, red under gold edges........$2.25

SPECIAL BIBLE

Special Number for Pew or Desk

Has no Helps, illustrations or maps. Same type and size as Bibles listed above. Bound in cloth, round corners, red edges—S11....$0.90

TEACHERS' REFERENCE BIBLES

SPECIMEN OF TYPE

> ⁶brook of the willows.
> 8 For the cry is gone round about
> the borders of Moab; the howling
> thereof unto Ĕg'lā-ĭm, and the howl> ing thereof unto Bê̄er-ē'lĭm.
>
> 6 Or, valley of the Arabians.
>
> like an harp for Moab, and mine
> inward parts for Kĭr-hăr'ĕsh.
> 12 ¶ And it shall come to pass, when > it is seen that Moab is weary on the > ʹhigh place, that he shall come to his

BOLD FACE PRONOUNCING TEXT

Printed in bold black self-pronouncing type from perfect plates on a new super Bible paper unexcelled for capacity.

EVERYTHING YOU HAVE WANTED IN A BIBLE

Concordance—based on Cruden system. Biblical Index—3,000 proper names, places, and subjects. Complete Chronologies—Old and New Testaments and period between. Biblical Gazetteer—Index to Scripture Atlas—16 pages of colored maps—80,000 center column references.

EXTRA FEATURES

Colored frontispiece—All numerals in plain Arabic—Chapters numbered consecutively throughout the Bible—Synopsis at head of each chapter—Names of Books at upper outside corners of pages.

Size 5⅝x7⅞—King James Version

GUARANTEED GENUINE LEATHER

Strongly bound in French Morocco leather, real Morocco grain, flexible overlapping covers, extra grained linings, red under gold edges, gold stamping on front and spine, headbands and silk marker, neat gift box.

Special Price, Bible S200........$3.00

Also Supplied in

FLEXIBLE PERSIANETTE

A soft, fine grain binding, very attractive and durable, with overlapping covers, red under gold edges, gold stamping, headbands and marker. Exactly the same contents as S200 plus 48 illustrations (32 gravure—16 color).

Bible 4988........$2.00

AN EXCEPTIONAL VALUE

Bible No. 4988½ Red-edged Concordance edition without extra helps found in Bibles Nos. S200 and 4988. One of our most popular Bibles. Price $1.50

The MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

Rev Emanuel Troyer Mar 35

The Mennonite—Organ of the General Conference of Mennonites of North America, 1885-1933.

The Christian Evangel—Organ of the Central Conference of Mennonites, 1910-1933.

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11

OL. II HILLSBORO, KANSAS, JULY 2, 1935 No. 13

OUNG PEOPLE AND THE CONFERENCE JUBILEE

During the week-end of May 26, the Califor- a Sunday School and Christian Endeavor nvention was held at Paso Robles. A healthy terest was manifested in behalf of the forthming Diamond Jubilee celebration of the nference and the first General Conference ung People's treat. A resution was ssed, urging l Christian ndeavorers of e California ennonite urches to ay daily for e Conference d the Retreat. oreover, fifty llars were apopriated to lp young ople of the alifornia urches to attend the Conference and the Reat. And the convention offering was voted go to the DIAMOND JUBILEE FUND.

The various districts of the General Confer ce are holding their local Sunday School nventions and Young People's Retreats dur June and July. Let us utilize these special opportunities for united prayer in behalf of the forthcoming conference and retreat. Coming to God thus, He will reveal to us our individual responsibility as regards the DIAMOND JUBILEE FUND.

D. D. Eitzen, Chairman,
General Conference Young People's Committee.

Trustees of the General Conference in 1908

Seated, left to right: David Goerz, John B. Baer, A. B. Shelly, S. F. Sprunger. Standing: J. J. Flickner, C. F. Claassen, J. J. Krehbiel, Chr. Krehbiel.

THE PRINCIPLES OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

As stated at the Meeting held in Wadsworth, Ohio, in 1861

1. All branches of the Mennonite Church of North America, regardless of minor points of difference, should extend to one another the right hand of fellowship.

2. Nothing shall be allowed to hinder or disrupt the bond of fellowship with any member or congregation except an intentional and persistent departure on their part from the fundamental Mennonite doctrine as based by Menno Simon on the Word of God according to I Cor. 3:11.

3. Only direct testimony out of the Word of God shall be applicable in convincing a brother of error.

4. No exclusion shall hold good unless for actual offenses through transgression or omissions proved by scriptural testimony.

5. No one can be a member of our united Mennonite church who is a member of any secret society.

6. Every smaller or larger division or congregation shall be allowed to attain any regulations adopted for its own control, and shall not be disturbed in the use of the same, according to their convictions, unless such regulations shall offend against the fundamental doctrines of our common confession.

7. When a member of the congregations or divisions desires to withdraw on account of certain practices and unite with another branch in our General Conference, he shall not be hindered if he thinks he can improve himself according to his convictions in respect to outward forms.

The subject of missions was considered and the following adopted:

1. The work of home and foreign missions shall in the future be carried on in our church and sustained according to means, willingness and understanding.

2. Funds for this purpose shall be established, one in the western and one in the eastern part of the United States and one in Canada, unto which all contributions for mission work and distribution of tracts shall flow.

3. Jacob Krehbiel I, of Franklin Center, Iowa, John B. Shelly of Milford Square, Pa., and Abraham C. Detweiler of Blair, Waterloo County, Canada West, shall act as mission treasurers of this conference each in his respective district.

4. Each congregation shall collect the money according to their judgment and transmit it to one of the above named treasurers, designating the purpose for which the money is contributed.

5. The press of the Mennonite Printing Union, already in active operation in our church, is recognized as an absolute necessity, and is heartily commended to all for general and liberal support.

6. A theological seminary should be established in our denomination as soon as practicable.

Signed in the name of the West Point Co ference,

John Oberholtzer, President.
Chr. Schowalter, Secretary.

SOME EARLY MENNONITE MINISTER OF DISTINCTION

The names of some of the men in the earli periods of the Mennonite church are seld mentioned, yet their influence continues to felt in Mennonite thought to this day. Amo those Jacob Denner of Altona might be me tioned. He was born in 1684. His sermo printed in a large volume, were widely cir lated. An edition that two Mennonites America had printed in Europe, was widely c culated in Pennsylvania. A later edition peared in America in 1860.

Living at the same time in Altona, was t celebrated Gerrit Roosen, the elder of anoth Mennonite group of that city. He was t author of the widely circulated work whi bore the title "Christian Spiritual Conversati on Saving Faith." This book has been used a catechism in many Mennonite congregatio for more than 175 years in America and Europe, especially the 35 questions and answ for the preparation of catechumens. He w in correspondence with the Mennonites of G mantown. His grandmother was an acqua tance of Menno Simon. That he possessed spirit of tolerance is shown by the fact th when a new Lutheran church was erected his town he presented the ball that topped t spire of the church. When 97 years of age administered baptism and the Lord's Supp in his congregation. He died at the age of years and 8½ months. His grandson, Bernha Rosen, long the pastor of the Altona chur died at the beginning of this century, havi also attained a ripe old age after distinguish service to the Mennonite church, having be editor of the Mennonitische Blaetter for ma years and having been the author of a "L of Menno Simon," as well as a history of Altona church.

Contemporaneously with Gerrit Roosen, ing in Holland, was the celebrated Mennon minister and physician, Galenus Abrahams man of wide culture and distinguished pie He appreciated the needs of an educated m istry and did much to meet this necessity assisting young men in preparing for the ministry.

The greatest literary undertaking in colonial America was the publication of the Martyr's Mirror in 1748, a German translation of the work of the Dutch minister, Tielmann von Bracht, of Dortrecht, who was born 1624 and died 1664. This is one of the great score books of Mennonite history. Copies are treasured as precious heirlooms in many American Mennonite families. The book also has the distinction of being the first American book reprinted in Continental Europe, the edition dating 1790.

A century after von Bracht another famous Dutch Mennonite minister, whose writings have been treasured, was Johannes Decknatel, who was the author of a catechism which was extensively used and a volume of sermons that had a wide circulation both in Europe and America. G.

SOME FAMOUS MENNONITE HYMN BOOKS

The following sketch of Mennonite Hymn Books, prepared some years ago by Rev. H. G. Manhardt of Germany, is still of interest to Mennonites, though many and varied have been the hymnals that have come into use in our American Mennonite churches:

Congregational singing has always been and is to the present time characteristic of Mennonite church worship. Even in the earlier times of bitter persecution our fathers made prominent use of singing in their worship. Many of the hymns composed by them under those trying circumstances and used for their edification and strengthening of their faith were afterwards collected and published under the title, "Der Ausbund."

The congregations in Holland early had their own hymn-books containing many hymns from Mennonite authors. Some of these books were long used in the churches in other parts of Europe, congregations frequently singing the Dutch hymns while the rest of the service was in their native German. As late as 1802 a hymn-book was published in Amsterdam with the title, "Christlijke Gezangen voor de openbare Gottesdienstoeffeningen ten Dienste der Mennoniten Gemeente to Hamburg Altona."

In the year 1780, under the direction of Hans von Steen, then elder in the congregation in Danzig, a collection of hymns was compiled and published under the peculiar title, "Geistreiches Gesangbuch zur oeffentlichen Erbauung der Mennonitischen Gemeinde in und vor der Stadt Danzig." The preface speaks of it as the first German hymn-book of the Mennonites in that country. It contained many of the hymns which have become the common possession of the German people and which are found in evangelical Protestant hymn books. Quite a number of the hymns were also of Mennonite authorship and some were translated from older Dutch collections. In a later edition, Hans Mumbar, minister of the Danzig congregation, and Elder Jacob de Veer were among the contributors.

A new hymnal was published by the Danzig congregation in 1854 under the more general title, "Gesangbuch zur kirchlichen und haeuslichen Erbauung in Mennoniten Gemeinden." The book continued to be used in Europe and in several of the immigrated congregations in America.

The Prussian country congregations had an old German hymnal of their own published in the latter part of the nineteenth century and in 1869 gave out a new book entitled, "Gesangbuch fuer Mennoniten Gemeinden in Kirche und Haus." Some years later a second edition of this collection was printed. It was used in the country congregations of Prussia and also in Berlin. Besides this these congregations used several other collections of hymns for special occasions.

In the Palatinate a hymnal was published in 1832 entitled, "Christliches Gesangbuch zunaechst fuer den Gebrauch der Mennoniten Gemeinden in der Pfalz," and in Weibaden another one appeared in 1843. That other congregations had hymn books of their own is certain.

In addition to the list given by Manhardt as having been used, we might add a short note of those in use in the churches in the General Conference. The most prominent collection of hymns before the separation which took place in 1847 was, "Die Geistliche Harfe," then already in its fifth edition. This work continued in use in the East Pennsylvania Conference until 1873, when a new hymnal, compiled and prepared by a committee appointed at the sixth triennial meeting of the General Conference. The title was, "Gesangbuch zum gottesdienstlichen und haeuslichen Gebrauch in Mennonitischen Gemeinden." It came into general use in the Conference until the second edition was exhausted when in 1890 it was superseded with a hymnal containing words and music.

The General Conference, recognizing the need of an English hymnal, arranged for the taking over of a publication issued by a commercial concern and adapted to the use of our churches in 1891, which bore the title, "Mennonite Hymnal A Blending of Many Voices." The work gave general satisfaction for nearly four decades when its usefulness seemed to have come to an end and General Conference appointed a committee to compile a new hymnal. Their work resulted in the issuing of "Mennonite Hymn Book," which is gradually coming into general use throughout the General Conference. It is a work of excellence deserving the patronage of every church connected with the Conference. G.

OUR PRECIOUS SAVIOR

Text: I Pet. 2:7, "Unto you therefore which believe He is precious."

Would we make the Lord's Day a "Day of all the week the best," we must realize the rare privilege for which it was set apart. It is really resting from the work, problems, and cares of the six days and giving ourselves in renewed consecration to the Lord. Why should we rest?

First and above all because Jesus says so. "Come ye yourselves apart and rest awhile." are the words which He used with the disciples. He calls us to minister to the multitude, but there is also great need to REST from the crowds. What fragrance there is in the gracious words of the Master, "Come ye yourselves apart and rest awhile."

For what purpose shall we come apart? It is, I believe, to learn the lesson which ambitious and active Peter learned, "the preciousness of Christ," and may we avoid all things that would hinder that happy and holy fellowship with the Lord.

The words set strangely on the lips of Peter, the hardened, burly fisherman of the sea, that impulsive, hot tempered Peter. Had it been John, the tender hearted, beloved disciple, who had laid his head on the bosom of the Master, it would not be so strange. Had it been David, the sweetest singer of all Israel, who call Christ precious, it would not be so strang

On the night that Christ was betray there were no tears on the face of Peter, b curses from his lips. Yet it is from these san lips that we have these sweet, tender, winson words, "Unto you therefore which believe H is precious."

What caused this change? In all the yea of his fellowship with his Master—the Ma ter's life, teaching, and influence had done the work, and Peter has formed a low opinion himself and a high estimation of Christ. P ter's life reveals what divine love and gra can do.

There are many things in your life of whic you can use the word "Precious." You cou your health precious; you count your posse sions precious; the dear companion of your li is precious. We have a darling baby girl, an looking down into those smiling eyes we mu say, "O precious gift"! But nearer and deare than all these must be the Christ of our r demption, and looking at Him with lovin eyes, our hearts respond in unutterable em tion as we hear the words of Peter, "Unto yo therefore which believe He is precious." Whe we realize the text-words are found inadequat to express our inmost feeling of praise to Hi who is so precious.

The costliness of a thing usually determine its preciousness. You pick up a diamond an say it is precious, but the world famous "Hop diamond" is infinitely more precious becaus there is none other like it. Taking such simpl standards as these, we may be able to unde stand why Jesus Christ is precious.

I. HE Is Precious

HE is precious, because His Saviourhoo robbed Him and heaven of glory. It must hav been this fact of which the Psalmist wa thinking when he wrote, "Thou art fairer tha the children of men, grace is poured into th lips, all thy garment smell of myrrh and aloe and cassia, out of the ivory palaces." Ps. 45 The song we love to sing is in keeping wit this thought: "My Lord has garments s wondrous fine, and myrrh their texture fills its fragrance reached to this heart of mine with joy my being thrills. His life had als its sorrows sore; for aloes had a part; an when I think of the cross He bore, my eye with teardrops start." Yes, He came from th ivory palaces of glory to a world of sin, godlessness, and death.

1. HE is precious because He meets man's need. Man is lost, hungering and dying, and he needs a great service. Years ago an old Indian, ragged and starving, came stumbling into the office of one of our Indian agencies of the West. He was so far gone that he fell on the floor unconscious. When they examined him they found a string about his neck and at the end of this string a tiny packet, done up in a piece of oil cloth. They opened it and there inside, so ragged and torn as to be almost indecipherable, was an order from the War Department of the United States for $50.00 a month. The old Indian had served with distinction in one of the border wars and had been granted this pension of fifty dollars a month, but he had not known enough to cash it and died of hunger. Just so every man outside of Christ is starving his soul when he might find abundance in Christ, therefore Peter says, "Unto you therefore which BELIEVE, He is precious."

2. HE is precious because He shed His blood for the remission of sin. In speaking of this, Peter uses the word "precious" again, "For as much as ye know ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, but with the PRECIOUS blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot."

Well might the writer of the hymn ask, "I gave My life for thee, My precious blood I shed, that thou might'st ransomed be, and quickened from the dead. I gave My life for thee; what hast thou done for Me"? Know it well, don't you? Just seems to stir and search the heart every time you hear it sung, does it not? Now, just for a moment pause and think on those words, even as though Christ Himself were asking, "What hast thou done for Me"? How can we answer? Surely in the light of His redemptive work on the cross for us, we must feel ashamed of ourselves. Doesn't our small service pale into insignificance? Yes, and may God forgive us our lack of deep concern and heartfelt interest in and compassion for the lost.

II. He IS Precious

Here Peter uses the present tense for the believer. He IS precious, here and now. What a glorious assurance! What gives the most precious things or priceless gems their value? Is it not because there is not another like them in the world? For this same reason Jesus Christ is precious to us. "For there is none other name under heaven given amongst men whereby we must be saved." There was none other good enough to pay the price of sin, He only could unlock the gates of heaven and let us in.

There is a story of an Arab who lost his way in the desert. After his provisions were exhausted he had nothing to eat for two days and two nights. In his vain search for the way and for food he came to a well. Among the refuse left by other travelers he found a bag of pearls. Precious pearls, but they were useless to the man who needed FOOD. A man may have wealth, he may have everything the world considers valuable, but unless he has Jesus Christ he must die. "Behold, NOW is the accepted time, behold, NOW is the day of salvation." And in the words of the Psalmist we say, "O taste and see that the Lord is good."

III. He Is PRECIOUS

Some of you have treasures and their charm never fails to thrill your heart. To them you turn when all other things fail. One of them may be a bunch of old letters. You pick them up when you are tired of the world and its noise. They may be stained in places by tears. You hear the old familiar voice and it brings back many precious memories, though it was hushed long ago in silence. For you such letters are a great treasure. They are precious.

It may be some photograph that is precious. Some years ago I visited my sister and she took down a photograph and handed it to me and said, "This is our precious baby." She is in heaven now, but that photograph is precious.

No matter how hard the day, or how keen the disappointments, or how annoying the trials, when a parent looks at that photograph, the heart softens and a sweet tenderness creeps into the voice.

Such are faint illustrations of the preciousness of Christ. Most of all—HE is precious, and when He leads His people home at last we shall spend eternity exploring the unsearchable riches of Christ. C. H. Dirks.

"Lord, teach us to pray"! May we be teachable at all times in the presence of the heavenly Father.

THE MISSION AT HOTEVILLA, ARIZONA

The mission force at this station has increased during the past year. My foster-son, Daniel, who graduated from the Los Angeles Bible Institute last spring, is now a native missionary at this place. The youngest member of the family is another foster son, a nephew of Daniel. It is a son of his sister, who died shortly after his birth. The relatives, fearing that they would not be able to raise the child, brought him to my house. The taking care of such a baby is in itself a witness to the Hopis, which speaks louder than words. Almost every time they see the child they express their amazement and tell the missionary, "You white people are not lazy, that's why you can raise such orphans." In earlier years they used to say, "You have such good hearts, our hearts are wicked." Now they are too much Americanized to admit that their heart is wicked. The little orphan's mother also called herself Schirmer, because of her brother, Daniel. His name therefore is, Paul Andrew Schirmer. He grows and does well and brings to us much joy as well as much work.

The work at our station is the same as in the past. We do house visiting, have sewing classes, and on Sunday forenoon we have our regular Sunday School. Daniel preaches in Hopi or in English, according to need. The blind woman who became a Christian two years ago, has learned to read the alphabet for the blind and is able to read the first twelve verses from the Gospel of John. The attendance this year is somewhat smaller, perhaps because of the many dances held this summer.

It is more difficult for me to go to the two villages, especially to the one which is over a mile away. However, the people are coming more to the mission now since the post office is here. In this way I get in touch with them and can speak to many about the "one thing that is needful." The post office is quite small. The mail carrier comes thrice each week, and so I keep the post office open on those days from three o'clock until sunset.

Perhaps some of you will ask, "What about testifying for Christ on the part of Christian Hopis"? Dear friends, we must learn to pray more that those who are afraid to take Christ might be released from their bondage, and that the tendency of the present age might be turned away from the Hopis. Will you help us pray that the words of Malachi 3:17 might be fulfilled in the life of the Hopis?

Sincerely yours, Mary Schirmer.

THE VALUE OF THE HOME DEPARTMENT OF THE CHURCH SCHOOL

Mrs. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Ill.

One of the fine tendencies of today is the increasing desire in the hearts of the right thinking to put within its leadership personnel the urge of the upward and onward, to reach out to those who can not or will not come to church. The Home Department was born in the effort to carry the ministry of the Sunday School and church into the home.

Any healthy, robust church school ought to be ashamed of itself if it does not organize and loyally support a vigorous extension ministry. 1. Because there is no enduring, satisfying substitute for the religion of Jesus Christ in the human heart. 2. To vitally contact all people with Christian truth. 3. To keep church school pupils in close fellowship with their old friends. 4. To secure every new born life for Christ, the church, and the kingdom, and to put heaven's highest hopes into the sunset days of the aged. 5. To make the church school an educational dynamo radiating spiritual "light, heat, and power" into all the community. 6. To help the homes and all their occupants to realize that the church is their best ally in their fight for Christian character. 7. To keep alive in the thinking of all the fact that the church is the one institution divinely appointed to put the truth which saves and stabilizes into the hours of greatest pleasure and prosperity, and to put comfort, courage, and faith into the darkest hours of despair, defeat, and death. 8. To conserve the longing and the service abilities of altruistic-minded church school leaders who find in the church school extension ministry their chief satisfaction.

With unselfish ministry an earnest effort is made to serve every one possible. 1. Children too young to attend the church school sessions. 2. Mothers whose little children temporarily prevent them from attending the classes in which they were formerly active members. 3. People too old or ill, invalids or cripples. 4. People confined to institutions, such as old folks' homes, soldiers' and sailors' homes, inmates of orphanages, or other specialized in-

THE MENNONITE AND
THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern.

MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN
Office of Publication........Hillsboro, Kansas
Executive Office........Berne, Indiana

EDITORS
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 North 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

Subscription in advance........$1.50
Foreign........$2.00

Entered at the post-office at Hillsboro, Kansas, as second-class mail matter.
Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. S. M. Grubb, D. D., 2956 No. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to
Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A. M., Danvers, Illinois

stitutions. 5. People whose business, trade or profession keeps them away from the school's regular sessions, such as railroad men, truck or bus drivers, radio, telephone, telegraph, restaurant and garage employees, physicians, pharmacists, and others who are occupationally-bound on Sunday. 7. Foreigners.

The best way to insure permanent results in this work is to fix administrative responsibility in one capable person known as the director of church school extension, who should be qualified for the task with a genuine wholesome Christian life, a firm believer in the worthiness of the Christian religion, faith in folks, and their educational response to Christian truth, knowledge of the comprehensive programs of the present day church school, friendly genial approach to people, horse sense, a studentmindedness, ability and a willingness to keep in touch with best available literature in pamphlet, magazine and book form, conscientious, aggressive acceptance of the reasons for church school extension, and a dogged determination to master details, difficulties, and the paralyzing inertia of many good people.

If a church school takes seriously its extension ministry, it will ferret out and dedicate to this great cause one of its most able and attractive leaders. If necessary, such a person should be relieved of all other church or church school service in order to devote time and strength with a passion to this significant task.

It is understood, of course, that, like the other church-school officials, the director of church school extension is not on salary. The services are the free will contribution of a worker in the great business of the modern church school. It would be unreasonable to expect too much of a voluntary worker. However, the task demands devotion and intelligence of a high order.

The following duties are suggested in the hope of helping any present or prospective director to come to a full appreciation of the privileges which such an officer may enjoy. At least some of these should be pressed down hard on the conscience of any person who undertakes seriously to function efficiently.

To accept the office conscientiously, expecting to make good, or at least to try honestly to be a faithful servant of the cause.

To set aside regularly time each week for reading church school extension literature.

To definitely fence off certain days or hours of certain days each week for visitation of members.

To systematically confer with all associates and helpers on best ways and means, and seek for their adequate training.

To report to the pastor promptly any discovered cases of spiritual need, and to the proper church authorities any welfare work that should be undertaken as a part of a church's neighborly service.

To report to the church-school superintendent or church director of religious education any items of interest calculated to help the school as a whole.

To report to the proper departmental age-group leaders of the school any prospective pupils found.

To see that all church school extension supplies of every description are ordered in sufficient quantities and in sufficient time to meet the needs of a growing and going work.

To make full reports on proper blanks to the church school superintendent or director of religious education at such times as may be required.

To be on the lookout, not only for new members, but also for the most helpful associates.

To attend institutes, conventions, training schools, lectures and conferences for the fine fellowship of workers who fill similar positions.

In brief, to "eat, sleep, and live" for the work with sympathetic, congenial relationships with all members and all helpers, and with a proper balance in appraising the place of church school extension in the big religious education task of the local church, and the greater kingdom of Jesus Christ throughout the world.

Next to the pastor or special paid church worker who, on the whole horizon of a church field of service, has a bigger opportunity with more humanly worthwhile points of contact, and with greater joy in duty done for the Master of us all, than the director of church school extension?

CORRESPONDENCE

Upland, California, June 10, 1935. For the Mennonite and Christian Evangel. Since I have been somewhat negligent in performing my duty as correspondent, I will have to go back to our last business meeting of 1934. This meeting was an occasion for great rejoicing among the members. The cause for this jubilant feeling was the fact that our church president, Mr. L. J. Horsch, assisted by our treasurer, Henry Reimer, burned the mortgage notes, and the church building was ours, clear of all encumbrance.

New Year's Day services were observed in our church, Rev. Maurer preaching in the German language, and Rev. D. B. Hess in English.

Under the able leadership of our Pastor, Lester Hostettler, a chorus of some seventy voices were trained and rendered with great success, the sacred cantata "The Holy City," by Gaul. This chorus also rendered the same contata in Ontario and LaVerne, by request. Our church is indeed fortunate in that it is blessed with a great amount of musical talent. Besides the regular church choir, under the direction of Marlin Dettweiler, we have a splendid Junior choir, also a wonderful Intermediate Girls' Chorus, and recently a Ladies' A Capella Chorus has been organized. Besides these vocal organizations, Miss Gertrude Eymann directs a fine orchestra.

The Junior, Intermediate, Young People's, and Adult C. E. Societies are functioning with spiritually uplifting meetings. The Senior Young People's Society has disbanded for the summer months.

Numerically the church has had considerable growth since the first of the year. Some weeks ago quite a number of persons were received by letter and on Pentecost seven young people were received into membership by baptism. Counteracting this increased membership, th Angel of Death has entered three homes. Mr Cramer, who just recently had moved to Los Angeles, was called first. Then Grandma Reese a charter member, who lived at San Simas, was called, and then, while visiting relatives at Wichita, Kansas, Bro. D. C. Schmidt suddenly passed away. All were interned at Belle View cemetery, Ontario.

Several weeks ago, Rev. Hostettler at the close of the morning service said he had an announcement of the utmost importance to the church. A great stillness came over the congregation as they waited. Then came the glorious news that Brother and Sister L. J. Ledig had determined to present the church with a fine memorial, an organ, the price of which is $5000. No one could find words ample to express our deep appreciation of this splendid gift. This gift made it necessary to build an addition to our church building in which to house the blower and the organ proper. Besides this the building will offer a new pastor's study, a choir room, several additional Sunday School rooms, as well as additional room in the kitchen. The Men's Brotherhood had charge of and quickly executed the work of excavation. The actual construction of the addition is now well under way. We are sorry that time will not permit us to have this organ installed in time for use during the Diamond Jubilee of the General Conference, which convenes here in August, next.

Committees, covering every phase of the Conference work, are busily engaged in planning for the Conference delegates and visitors. We join the Conference Committee in extending to all a hearty invitation to attend this great assembly. Will we have the pleasure of greeting YOU at that time?

Everybody seems to be feeling "The Call of the Open Air" and private parties as well as organizations are answering the call in the form of outings, lawn parties, aand picnics. The Ladies' Missionary Society, the Serving Others Circle, and the C. E. Societies are among those who have responded to the call. And we are beginning to hear murmurings about a Sunday School picnic.

Our Church Visitors' Register, presented by the S. O. Circle, shows that quite a few people from various parts of the United States have been among us since the first of the year.

Official duties have made it necessary for our pastor to be away from home several times. At such times the following brethren have supplied: Rev. Maurer, who teaches our German Men's Bible class; Rev. M. A. Niswand, who is at present teaching the Wanderer's Welcome class; and Rev. D. B. Hess, who teaches the Junior Boys' S. S. class.

The church joins with me in praying for the editor and all readers God's richest blessing.

D. B. Hess, Corr.

Barto, Pennsylvania, June 2, 1935. The members and friends of the Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Penna., extend greetings and best wishes to the editors and friends of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel.

Our annual Service of Praise ushered in the activities of the past six months in our church. A program of instrumental and vocal music was rendered at the morning worship service on January 6th.

The Intermediate Christian Endeavorers of the Perkiomen Valley held their sixth annual rally in our church on Sunday evening, January 20. Rev. Lester K. Kriebel, pastor of the Palm Schwenkfelder church, was the speaker. He gave a wonderful message, using Psalm 118:24 as his text: "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." They had as their theme: "I Will Be Christian,"—Dr. Poling's slogan.

On Friday evening, January 25, Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannabecker, some of our missionaries to China, gave an illustrated lecture. Our attendance was very small that evening, because we all were bound up with a blizzard.

Twice in the past six months our Primary Department sang in our worship service. At our service on January 27, Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson, our pastor, held a reproduction of the picture "Behold, I Stand at the Door and Knock," and told its story to the young friends and drew lessons from same for our use. At the Easter morning worship service they again sang before a large audience. We always enjoy their singing.

We had a rich treat on Sunday, March 24, when Miss Aganetha Fast of Mountain Lake, Minn., one of our missionaries to China, spoke at our morning worship service. In the afternoon she met with the young people and spoke on the young people's activities in China and in the evening she showed slides of her work in China. A person cannot help but catch some of her enthusiasm after hearing and seeing her.

We again held Easter Dawn Services at 6:00 o'clock on Easter morning.

May 12, Mother's Day, was the red letter day for the past six months at our church. Mrs. Alciabiades Iglesias, Miss Elizabeth Foth, and a little four year old Indian boy, which Mr. and Mrs. Iglesias have adopted, spoke at our morning worship service. Mrs. Iglesias and her husband work among the San Blas Indians, about 150 miles east of the Panama Canal. She took us on a very interesting imaginary airplane trip to the island, relating some of the experiences we would have and the food we would eat. Truly, she and her husband are making sacrifices! In the afternoon Mr. I. H. Mack of the Hall-Mack Music Company spoke to a well filled church on "How Music Came Into the Church." The energy of Mr. Mack and his enthusiasm helped to make it a very interesting meeting. Mr. Mack brought Clarence Kohlman, the organist at the Ocean Grove Tabernacle, with him to render an organ concert. He can make music mean more than a combination of chords and rests. Mr. Kohlman is noted for his renditions of "The Storm."

The Montgomery County Intermediate Christian Endeavor Convention was held at our church on Saturday afternoon and evening, May 4th. About 250 young people were registered. They had as the convention theme, "Like Jesus." Dr. Roy L. Winders, pastor of the Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, Royersford, was the speaker, basing his thoughts on "There Is A Difference."

At this writing, Mrs. Elmer E. S. Johnson, our pastor's wife, is recuperating on a hospital bed, following an operation for appendicitis. She has done very nicely, for which we are truly grateful. She expects to leave the hospital in a few days.

During the past six months our pastor has been obliged to be away a great deal, due to the professorship he holds at the Hartford Theological Seminary, but Mr. Paul Shelly, one of our own boys, has been supply minister. With the approach of summer and vacation time, we hope our pastor can serve us more regularly. It is with hope that we go forward and trust that all will be pleasing in God's sight.

The attendance in our Sunday School has increased quite a bit over that of last year. For the first 22 Sundays in this year we had an average attendance of 214, whereas it only averaged 183 for the entire year of 1934. We also have noticed an increase in our church attendance.

A MONSTER IS HERE

"My kingdom is not of this world." "Your citizenship is in heaven." (R. V.) "Not of the world even as I am not of the world." These and many other scriptures show us our place in the kingdom of God, and it is very proper that we should consider them. These references are not intended to make us inactive. We are apt to forget that we are to be "ambassadors for Christ"; that we are to "earnestly contend for the faith"; that we are to be living epistles"?

Strong drink is again here, supported by our government. The bootlegger was to be a thing of the past, but he is not. The old corner saloon was never to make its appearnce again, and possibly will not. Why should it? The stuff can be gotten now with many of the objectionable things out of the way. The very names, saloon, bar-tender, etc., were considered of low degree, but today those that the world calls "refined society" can sit down to a nice, clean table—not in a saloon—but in a fine restaurant and get their drinks with little or no questioning.

Will there be less drunkards in years to come than there were when liquor was handed out over the bar under the protection of the law? Verily, no. The number of recruits will have to be vastly greater, but the liquor element need have no alarm. The fine eating places with fine appearing young lady table waiters, and the general refinement which the liquor element is trying to associate with the "social glass"—these and a number of kindred things will deceive more people than that element was in any position to do before prohibition days.

Will the recruits be the sons and daughters of drunkards who have the habit planted into them even before they were born? Yes, a comparatively small per cent will come from these, but the large majority of such children have seen the effect that liquor has had on their parents and will avoid it as they would a snake. The recruits will be sought from the better homes. These boys and girls usually pride themselves that they are master of themselves and can quit when they want to, which only increases their danger,

What can the church of today do in this matter? The very least that should be done is to institute a campaign of scientific and biblical education. There will not be so much danger if people are properly taught. For such a campaign, some one would have to spend considerable time in getting information. Analysis after analysis would need to be made. We dare not depend on the analysis of others. Never expect the liquor element to obey the laws — or any other—when they stand in the way of their financial success.

We need to have scientific knowledge of the effects of these poisons on the coats of the stomach, the effect upon the heart action, the effects on the condition of the blood, etc. Many a man has been very sick, yet might have been cured had not doctors been compelled to waste too much precious time in getting liquor out of the system, and by that time the disease had gone beyond medical skill.

We must know our subject the Bible teaching on the question, and a wide scientific knowledge on its effect. Will the church arise to save her boys and girls and other which she can touch, or will she save a few more paltry dollars needed for this and lose her girls and boys and be disgraced with the thought that they have gone down to drunkards' graves, lost? J. S. H. (Gospel Herald.)

CONTRIBUTION FOR PUBLICATIONS

First Mennonite Church, Berne, Ind.	$100.74
Bethesda Church, Henderson, Neb.	114.84
Bethel Church, Fortuna, Mo.	8.73
E. S. Moyer, Deer Creek, Okla.	25.00
Lizzie Ruth, Upland, Calif.	5.00
Lehigh Mennonite Church, Lehigh, Kans.	8.57
Arlington Mennonite Church, Arlington, Kans.	10.50
Brudertal Church, Hillsboro, Kans.	93.85
Karl A. Richert, General Conference Treasurer	25.00
Dr. C. Henry Smith, Bluffton, Ohio	13.66
Eicher Church, Crawfordsville, Iowa	13.95
Mennonite Church, Dallas, Oregon	12.27
Pulaski Church, Pulaski, Iowa	27.65
Mennonite Church, Pratum, Oregon	18.70
Mennonite Church, Newport, Wash.	16.20
Mr. and Mrs. Krehbiel, Donnellson, Iowa	3.00
First Mennonite Church, Upland, Calif.	2.99
Johannesthal Church, Hillsboro, Kans.	34.00
Total	$534.65

E. W. Baumgartner, Treasurer.

Young People's Department

EDITORS

Junior Department
MRS. CHAS. H. ANDERSOHN
6454 So. Morgan St.
Chicago, Ill.

Editor-in-Chief
REV. A. R. KEISER
Dalton, Ohio

Intermediate Department
MRS. HOMER McCOWAN
402 Leland Street
Bloominton, Ill.

ANTONIO AND GOD

"If my hand slacked
I should rob God, since He is fullest good,
Leaving a blank instead of violins,
'Tis God gives skill, but not without men's hands,
He could not make Antonio Stradivarius's violins
Without Antonio."

THE RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE submits the following for your approval

Resolved:

1. That the Young People's Union of the Eastern District Conference of Mennonites express its sincere thanks to our Heavenly Father for the opportunity of meeting in this Fortieth Convention at West Swamp Mennonite Church on May 30, 1935.
2. That we express our gratitude to the West Swamp Congregation for their gracious hospitality.
3. That we express our appreciation to our leaders for their earnest endeavors in providing the various programs for the spiritual development of our young people.
4. That we are constantly aware of the efforts of various people and leaders for the destruction of the Lord's Day, thus destroying the spirit of rest and worship. We as a body gathered here at this convention go on record as being definitely opposed to any further liberalization of the Sabbath, and recommend that the secretary be instructed to send a copy to the Governor of the State.
5. That we recommend to our young people to establish a definite program on temperance such as various meetings devoted to the study of the evils of intemperance and that they provide some definite method to overcome the present evils.
6. That we reaffirm our stand for peace and recommend that our societies obtain literature from various peace organizations thus better acquainting our young people with the great Mennonite doctrine of peace.
7. That our young people be more diligent in Bible study and prayer, also for the advancement of the cause of Christ through Missions and Conference activities.
8. That we urge our young people to rededicate their lives to the Master following the theme of our Convention, "I Choose Christ."

Respectfully submitted,
Resolutions Committee:
Richard Stauffer, Chairman.
Helen Kooker
Anna Weiss
Rev. Howard T. Landis
Margaret Stover

THE REAL POINT

Alcohol is a habit-forming racial poison. The more you drink the more you want, and the more you drink the more likely it is that your children will be handicapped for life.

The point is not—what the law allows or does not allow.

The point is not—who wants to drink or who does not.

The point is not—whether the rich or the poor do the drinking.

The point is not—whether the drink is beer or wine or hard liquor.

The point is that alcohol is a poison.

The point is, more liquor means more alcohol; more alcohol means more poison.

Average alcoholic content of liquors: Beer 3.2% to -; English ale and porter 5%; French wines 8 to 17%; Champagne 8%; Gin 30%; Whiskey 35 to 40%; Brandy 47% Rum 60%.

It took a hundred years to educate intelligent

America to realize that alcohol belongs in the class with other habit-forming drugs, a hundred years to set an ideal of mind over appetite.

We can wait another hundred years to make that ideal a reality, or we can promptly reeducate ourselves and our children to the knowledge that alcohol is a poison, and we can continue our warfare against alcoholic drinks because we know that alcohol is a poison.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

July 14, 1935

The Widening Influence Of Jesus

Matthew 28:18-20; Mark 16:20

This evening we are to study and consider The Great Commission as it comes directly from our Leader. The call to service is as real today as it was nineteen hundred years ago when it was first issued. This service will give us an opportunity to study the problem of missions for our modern day. If possible, plan to have some missionary to bring an address or have him lead an open discussion following the answering of the questions. But throughout the meeting plan to keep the discussion Christ-centered. Ours is a Divine Commission and we must understand it from a Christian viewpoint.

Questions

1. What is the status of world missions today?
2. What was the world's condition in Jesus' day? What similar conditions are prevalent today?
3. Outline the message of "The Great Commission."
4. What was the source and motive of power in the early Christian church?
5. In a study of comparative religions, what place does Christianity hold? What is our basis for claiming Christianity to be the final and absolute religion?
6. What can young people do to widen the influence of Jesus?

While Jesus was living He had a world perspective. He saw the possibilities of a transformed people looking toward a kingdom which is to become like unto the Kingdom of God. This is to come when men come to a repentance from their sins and an acceptance of Jesus Christ as their Savior and then go out and become witnesses for Him.

The little company in Jerusalem started not by hustling hither and thither, but they continued in prayer and supplication in one place with one mind and one accord, and then after the outpouring of the Spirit there was a great ingathering on the day of Pentecost. From there the message went forth and a world wide movement called Christianity was under way. It started with a triumphant Christ. It comes not to destroy, but to fulfill.

We believe Christianity to be the final and absolute religion. It came into full consciousness and vigor in the nation providentially prepared to embrace it. It shows itself competent to offer satisfaction for the moral yearnings of all men. It has shown itself unique in its ever widening influence not by destroying any part of life, but by bringing into full realization all the powers resident in man.

The influences of Christianity and our reasons for believing it to be final and absolute lie not in a spirit of intolerance or false pride, but in facts which can be experienced by all men who will follow Christ. Our first reason lies in the ethical conception of God, so perfectly manifested in the historical revelation of Jesus Christ. He showed God to be best described as "Our Father," one who desires justice but who can best be described as a loving Father. No other religion can boast of a God who places such a high conception on man and is willing to suffer for the sake of man's redemption and well-being. The second reason grows out of the first. It is the conception of salvation made possible by the life and death of Jesus Christ. He came that man might be saved and that man might live the more abundant life. And finally we believe Christianity is the final religion because of the hope and confidence which are resident therein. Jesus taught "May thy kingdom come." His life and transforming power are ever looking toward this expectation. The three great words of Christ to an active, forward-looking generation of youth who will win the world for Jesus Christ by witnessing for Him and striving for the widening of His influence are: COME, FOLLOW, ABIDE, and GO. Will you?

July 21, 1935

Keeping One's Word

Matthew 5:33-37; Proverbs 19:5

The world is founded on truth. God is truth, the devil has been a liar from the very beginning. It will be well for us to meditate on the worth of absolute honesty. Dishonesty has gotten into no end of trouble. In this service a frank discussion of the problems involved will be most rewarding. A list of suggestive questions will be given. Further space will be spared for other material. Choose your material so that it will be as practical as possible. Use current life-situations.

Questions

1. Answer Pilate's question: "What is truth"?
2. Discuss Matthew 5:33-37, make modern applications.
3. Discuss Proverbs 19:5. Is this truth applicable to our nation?
4. Should one always keep one's promise or vow, however bad?
5. Is untruth ever justifiable?
6. Should we refuse to make pledges to our society or church for fear of not being able to keep them?
7. Will the swearing of oaths strengthen the truth of a statement?
8. What is the relation between untruthfulness and the moral fibre of an individual and of a nation?
9. How does this topic pertain to our lives?
10. How can one who is habitually dishonest keep his word?

Are you planning to go to General Conference at Upland, California, this summer? Is your young people's society sending one or more delegates to the General Conference Young People's Retreat? You should.

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Homer McCowan
402 Leland Ave., Bloomington, Ill.

July 14, 1935

Great Modern Christians: Jane Addams

Luke 10:30-37

Pre-Prayer

May God give us such vision of ourselves as we are able to endure, and make that vision of some service to another.

Jane Addams

Jane Addams would probably be considered the outstanding woman in American life, because for nearly half a century she has given herself in unselfish service for the unfortunate. She was born at Cedarville, Illinois, in 1860, and graduated from Rockford College, and did postgraduate work in Europe and at the Women's Medical College in Philadelphia. Then, convinced by her study of social conditions, she decided that she would devote her life to work among the poor. In 1899, with Ellen Gates Starr, she opened the Social Settlement of Hull House, in Chicago, thus becoming one of the first to invest her life among the poor in the slums of a great city.

Energetic and capable, sympathetic but not sentimental, and gifted with the ability to grasp at once the problems of the poor, Miss Addams soon won a place for herself and her institution in the life of the neighborhood, and it was not long before Hull House was recognized as the leading social settlement of the United States. She, too, came to be looked upon as an authority on many social questions. On such questions as the evils and the possibilities of tenements, the problem of child labor, and the like, she thought deeply and wrote and spoke well.

In Hull House she has carried on in the spirit of Christ a program of education, recreation, and health, so that the underprivileged might have a chance to rise above their surroundings. Her educational work has gone far in the Americanization of foreigners, and thousands of good citizens have been the result. At the same time she has been a constant supporter of good government and civic righteousness, and her name has been linked with every good cause.

She did not confine herself to her work at Hull House. For three years she did most efficient service as an inspector of streets and alleys, and in 1909 she acted as president of the National Conference of Charities and Correction. She became active in the movement for women's suffrage and took a prominent part in the formation of the Progressive Party in 1912.

In April, 1915, when there was convened at The Hague an International Women's Peace Congress, with delegates from fourteen countries, she was made its chairman, and was further intrusted with the duty of visiting the warring nations and presenting to their governments the women's peace petition. On that errand she was received by the leading statesmen of the continent and by the Pope. Since then she has been a delegate to and presiding officer of several women's peace congresses in Europe.

There is in all America no better example of singleness of purpose, lofty idealism, and patient sacrificing service than Jane Addams of Hull House.

Readings

Full of good works. Acts 9:36.
Pure religion. Jas. 1:27.
Relieve the oppressed. Isa. 1:17.
Secret Social Service. Isa. 58:6, 7.
Service to Christ. Matt. 25:34-40.
As old as Isaiah. Luke 4:18.

July 21, 1935

Choosing Friends

I Sam. 18:1-4

Friendship can bear anything except insincerity. In that blighting atmosphere it withers and dies.

Pre-Prayer

O Lord, help me more and more to meet the conditions of deepening friendships. May there be an enlarging consideration of the interests of others that shall make the friendships of the household stronger and richer with advancing years.

A poet, showing a profound knowledge of human nature, has well said: "We grow like those with whom we daily blend," and both the deductions of reason and the fruits of experience abundantly verify the assertion. God has created us with such delicate and sensitive natures that we are unconsciously influenced by those around us. We are creatures of imitation, and no effort of the will, however powerful, can wholly free us from this universal principle. We are like a looking-glass, — we reflect back the figures held before us. If a jolly, vivacious acquaintance, who is fairly brimming over with good humor and sprightliness, comes to us, how soon we ourselves become mirthful and feel our whole being aglow with an infectious enthusiasm; or if in the company of a sour, complaining person, how quickly our spirits become depressed, and yield to the same fault-finding tendency.

The wise old proverb, "Tell me thy company and I will tell thee what thou art," we unconsciously apply when forming our judgment of others. The maxim, "Keep company with the good and thou wilt be one of them," contains a golden truth. Sir Peter Lely, the great painter, made it a rule never to look at a bad picture, because he found by experience that whenever he did so, his pencil took a hint from it, which disfigured his own work, so subtile and insidious are the influences of evil association. John B. Gough, that matchless temperance orator, never ceased to lament the evil companionship of his young manhood. Speaking on this subject, he said, "I would give my right hand if I could forget that which I have learned in evil society; if I could tear from my remembrance the scenes which I have witnessed, the transactions which have taken place before me. You cannot, I believe, take away the effect of a single impure thought that has lodged and labored in the heart. You may pray against it, and by God's grace you may conquer it; but it will through life cause you bitterness and anguish." Tennyson uttered in a line a thought more powerful than the theories of whole schools of philosophy: "I am a part of all that I have met."

If, then, our characters are thus molded by those with whom we associate, how careful should we be in the choice of our company! If we cultivate the society of those who possess superior mind and exalted character, we may hope to become like them.

The great preacher, John Wesley, when a student at Oxford, made a resolution that he would have no companions by chance, but by choice, and that he would only choose such as would "help him on his way to heaven," and this resolution he carried out strictly, and a life of honor and usefulness followed, such as but few attain.

Helen was sure that there would be no harm in establishing a friendship with Mabel, even if Mabel did smoke once in a while. "Besides," Helen argued to herself, "I think I can show Mabel the harm of smoking, but I can't do that if I am not her friend." But when Helen knew Mabel, she came to know some of Mabel's other friends, and they all smoked; and instead of Helen influencing Mabel, it was not long until Helen herself began to smoke, "because all the girls do it," she said.

The basis for choosing a friend is that you have one or more worth-while things in common, with no harmful thing in either one to draw the other down. There is nothing so good as a binder among friends as a common devotion to the principles and practices of the Christian life.

Questions

1. How does a true gentleman or lady regard friendships?
2. What are some of the characteristics that we should look for in a friend?
3. Do my friends stand for the things that help to build a Christian character?
4. Should a Christian boy or a Christian girl have friends who are not Christians?
5. Is the saying, "A man is known by the company he keeps," true?
6. Give illustrations of men and women whose lives have been influenced by their friends.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 So. Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois

Music in the Society

If it is possible, I would suggest that during the next year a part of your C. E. hour be used for hymn study. The hymn book is a story book of heroic deeds. It deals with history and biography, science and religion, geography and travel, pictures and drama. It is a book of nature, with descriptions of mountains, hills, trees and flowers, birds and beasts, rivers and oceans, seasons of the year, the wealth of the soil, and the stars of the heavens. It contains something of interest to everyone.

One reason why music is neglected is that to buy new music is expensive. Let us get out our old books and really become acquainted with their contents. Each hymn was written by someone who had a reason for writing it. Have different ones, or perhaps one individual be responsible at each meeting to tell the story of a hymn and then learn it. Other music in various forms may be rehearsed, to be given on some Sunday morning during the worship hour. I am sure your pastor will gladly give you the time. In this way you are training yourselves also creating in all the desire to appreciate the beauty of those grand hymns, such as "Holy, Holy, Holy," "Fairest Lord Jesus," "May Jesus Christ Be Praised," and "This is My Father's World."

The most of you are now given the opportunity to study music in school and out of it is growing the chorus choir which, we are hoping, will be a help in the church of tomorrow, for which Juniors will be responsible.

Make it a point in your society to discover new talent. Perhaps there are some who did not know they could sing until someone discovered that they could. This applies also to those who can lead your singing. Keep your ears open to "hidden" voices.

There are so many suggestions for variety of study in the music world, but lack of space permits me to stress only one point for your interest this coming year, and that is to do all you can to keep hymns that have lived long and have only recently come back into our churches to be better learned and loved. More than 200,000 hymns have lived for one hundred years. Let us do all we can to keep them going.

We can worship God through music as well as by other methods and that is a big way in which you can contribute to Him, your home, church, and community.

July 14, 1935

Topic.—The Hymn I Like Best, And Why

Isa. 12:2

On opening a hymn book in church one evening, my eye fell on the old song we love so well, "Jesus Loves Me." Beneath the title I read, "The favorite hymn of China." When I saw that I wondered, "What is the favorite hymn of John or Mary or whoever you may be"? Think for a minute. You like so many hymns, but which do you like best? Now that you have decided, just why do you like that one best? It may be because of the words, perhaps the music, or it may remind you of something that you have enjoyed. I remember a song that I loved years ago because it was sung over and over at a Sunday School convention that seemed to me especially good. Often, because of the music, we remember a hymn long after we have forgotten spoken words.

Now get a hymn book and look through it, counting the hymns that tell of God, the Father. Some tell of His love, some of His power, others of His care, His wisdom, His holiness, etc.

Next find hymns about Jesus; His childhood, His life, His death, His resurrection, His coming again. Then there are many that tell of His love and greatness.

You will find hymns of prayer, hymns about the Bible, about missions, the Holy Spirit and His work. Then there are those that tell us something of how we should live. I shall not name any of them, but ask you to study your hymn book carefully before you go to the meeting.

Plans for the Meeting

A week before this meeting, ask each Junior to choose a favorite hymn and to come prepared to tell why he likes it, also something of its history and teaching. Sing as many of these hymns as time will permit. The Daily Readings suggest a helpful hymn study.

"The Lord is my Shepherd," Psalm 23.
"Trust and Obey," Acts 5:29.
"Jesus Loves Me," Mark 10:13-16.
"Christ for the World," Matt. 28:19.
"Jesus Calls Us," Matt. 4:18-22.
"Abide With Me," Luke 24:29.

Questions

1. What is a hymn?
2. Give Bible teaching about hymn singing.
3. How do hymns help in a service?
4. How does singing at work help?
5. Why is it well to memorize hymns?

July 21, 1935

Topic.—How God Is Continually Working

Isa. 55:8-13

Many years ago a man who thought himself very wise told a poor, unlearned man that soon Bibles, churches, and everything that spoke of God would be put away. The poor man said nothing, but laughed quietly. The other asked why he laughed, and the poor man, pointing to the stars said, "I was just wondering how you would manage to get them down." We need only look to see all around us things that speak of God and how He is working right now. We know that "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." We are glad that He did not make heaven and earth and forget about them, but that all through the years He has taken care of His creation. The fact that the sun rises and sets just on time each day and that the stars have kept in their right places all these years, says "God is still working."

He is caring especially for those who love Him. He knows just what we need and takes care of that need. He keeps His promises and is always ready to hear His children when they pray.

He has many ways of working. In John 14, 15, and 16 we read of the Holy Spirit through whom much of His work is done. The Holy Spirit is a Comforter and Teacher (John 14:26). John 16:7-11 tells us that it is the work of the Holy Spirit to show people that they need God. He quietly shows us how sinful we are, how holy God is, and that we need Jesus to save us.

God is working through His Word. Isa. 55:11 assures us that the teaching of His Word, the Bible, is most worth-while. It changes the lives of those who study it. A traveler in Africa one day found fault with a native who was reading the Bible. He was much surprised when this native told him that if the Bible had not come to his land, the white man would have been eaten long ago. People there had been cannibals, but now they loved God.

Then God works through His children. They carry His Word to those who need it. Often, too, when someone needs help, God uses one of His children to give what is needed.

Plans for the Meeting

Have the Junior room decorated with flowers as reminders of God's Word in nature. Speak of His work today in both the natural and spiritual realm.

Questions

1. Mention proofs that God is continually working in nature.
2. How does God work in the hearts of men?
3. How does He work through children?
4. How does He work through the Holy Spirit?
5. Tell how God works through the Bible.

"Spirituality is old-time religion filling the heart and mind so full of good things that a stream of loving service is constantly flowing from the life toward both God and man."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Illinois

July 7, 1935

Representative Men and Women of the Bible

Moses, Leader and Lawgiver

Lesson Text.—Exodus 24:3-8; 12-18

Golden Text.—Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord. Psalm 33:12.

The Educational Commission this quarter has seen fit to select for our study various characters of the Bible, men and women who are representative of different types of people. The aim, as stated by this Commission, is that through a study of the lives of these men and women we may discover the source of spiritual power, to share their experiences and to receive guidance for our own living. The first character we study is Moses.

In order to understand the life and work of Moses it is well to take a brief review of the history of the Hebrews to Moses' day. The eternal purpose of God from the beginning was to reveal Himself to man, so that through this revelation man might live in fellowship with God and cooperate with Him. But man sinned and sin frustrated the plan of God to reveal Himself through humanity.

God chose a representative of the Semitic race that through a particular group of people His purpose might be accomplished. As we study Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and Joseph we are impressed with this fact. As this patriarchial period ends we find the descendants of these patriarchs in Egypt, the land of Goshen, where they had gone to escape the famine in southern Palestine. Here in Egypt the Hebrews became prosperous and the group became large. A new line of kings came to the throne in Egypt, the Pharaohs, who became alarmed at the strength and unity of this foreign group of people.

The Hebrews were made slaves by these kings and were forced to labor. The purpose of it was to check the rapid growth of the Hebrews. The Hebrews became very much dissatisfied with their conditions and wanted freedom. But they had no leader. Slavery never develops leadership. So they must look outside for help. They cried unto the Lord and He heard them. Their liberty came in the form of Moses.

Moses was born of consecrated godly parents during the time of the oppression by the Pharaohs. His parents, fearing his life, put him in a basket boat and put him in a sheltered place in the Nile. Pharaoh's daughter found him and adopted him and hired Moses' mother to train him for her. These facts are given to show the wonderful way in which God prepared a leader. The education received by his Hebrew nurse, his mother; the secular education received at the Egyptian court, being raised in an atmosphere of freedom, all played their part in producing Moses, the leader and lawgiver.

Moses still needs experience. Because of a rash, impatient act one day in killing an Egyptian, he was compelled to flee from the court and found refuge in the territory of Midian. Here he led sheep for a number of years so that he might develop the qualities of leadership necessary for his task.

We now have a Moses prepared, but what is the task? God appears to Moses in the burning bush and reveals to him his work. He is to lead his brethren who are in slavery to a land of freedom, the promised land. Moses reluctantly responded to the call and set about to lead the Hebrews out of Egypt. He led them through the Red Sea and on to Mount Sinai where he had had his vision and call. There at Mount Sinai the Hebrew nation was born in the fact that laws were written and codified for the people. The basis for all these laws were the ten commandments which state man's relation to God and to his fellowmen. These laws came from God in the sense that they state eternal principles which are characteristic of a God of justice, truth and righteousness. On the other hand, they came from the experiences of a people trying to live with God and with each other.

